A. Reaffirm the profound spiritual truth that God calls and empowers both individuals and supporting ministries who are committed to the mission of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, to join with the Church, its institutions and organizations in the proclamation of the gospel.

B. Establish such official communication and planning forums, including supporting ministries such as 3ABN, with world and divisions leaders as may be appropriate.

C. Encourage General Conference departments, world divisions, and Church institutions to utilize the services of 3ABN for production and distribution of programming as may be appropriate, with the understanding that the agreements between the applicable Seventh-day Adventist organizations and 3ABN, include-at a minimum-that the financial arrangements and copyright ownership be documented in writing.

D. Encourage Seventh-day Adventist Church organizations to submit programming for distribution on 3ABN with the recognition and understanding that 3ABN will review all programming.

E. Encourage the fostering of a spirit of unity and cooperation between all organizations of the Seventh-day Adventist Church and 3ABN.

Our Common Vision:
Includes strategic planning sessions, counseling on matters of common interest, praying, dreaming and planning together. We welcome the opportunity to join together in coordinating and executing the global mission of reaching every nation, kindred, tongue and people with the message of the saving grace of Christ and His soon coming in the context of the Great Controversy and the Three Angels' Messages of Revelation 14.

Issues Resolution:

We recognize that as Christians, even with the best of intentions, differences can arise. We agree to the following Issues Resolution Process in harmony with the counsel of Matthew 18 to keep the cooperative spirit between us healthy.

In the event of a disagreement between 3ABN and a duly authorized Executive Committee of a world Division of the Seventh-day Adventist Church regarding programming which the the Division Executive Committee believes is detrimental to the mission of the Church, then;

Step One: Representatives of both entities will communicate informally and, in a spirit of cooperation, attempt to resolve the issue.

Step Two: If the issue is not resolved informally, the parties can request the appointment of a mediator, jointly selected by the Chairman of the Board of 3ABN and a representative of the General Conference Administrative Committee (GCADCOM) on behalf of whatever entity of the Seventh-day Adventist Church is involved. The mediator will carefully examine and consider the matter and report the recommendations and conclusions to both the representative of the GCADCOM and the Chairman of the Board of 3ABN.

Step Three: Should the issue continue to be unresolved, then a Special Issues Resolution Committee (SIRC) will be established to examine, consider, and resolve the issue/s. 3ABN and the affected Church organizations will each select three individuals to serve as members of the SIRC. These six members, meeting with a temporary facilitator provided by GCADCOM, will jointly select a chairperson, a seventh member of the SIRC, who must be agreed to by the representatives of all three parties. The SIRC will act in a timely manner, and the Chairperson will provide written recomendations and conclusions for presentation to the governing boards of all affected parties. The expectation is that all governing boards will agree to abide by the recomendations and conclusions of the SIRC. In the unlikely event that 3ABN or the affected organization chooses not to abide by the recomendations and conclusions of the SIRC, the cooperative efforts of the parties as indicated in this Joint Declaration will terminate and all parties agree that no civil court has jurisdiction in these matters.

With eager anticipation of God's rich blessing on our renewed commitment to work together in our mutual efforts, we execute this Joint Declaration of Commitment this 4th day of November, 1997.

Walter Thompson, M.D.

Board Chairman, 3ABN President,

Robert S. Folkenberg

President, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Danny Shelton

President, 3ABN

G. Ralph Thompson

Secretary, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Linda Shelton

Vice-President, 3ABN

Robert L. Rawson

Treasurer, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists

Posted by: tall73 Oct 28 2006, 03:26 PM

Thanks Pete.

Yes they do indeed take things marked Tithe and several of my members have demonstrated in their own giving. A few of them were willing to start giving to the conference when I spoke to them. Some were not. 3ABN was always willing to take their donations when clearly marked tithe.

Now as to them putting material on secular stations, yes they do. However, I haven't seen them submitting them to non-supportive independent ministries.

And as I said I have not heard of them revoking the joint declaration. Until the church does that they are giving them sanction. So they are still classed as supportive though they may not be supportive in every way.

Now hopefully they are currently using the dispute resolution clauses.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Oct 28 2006, 03:35 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 28 2006, 02:48 PM)

Joint Declaration of Commitment

Tall73,

You are correct about the Joint Declaration still being in force.

Page 7 of the current issue (November 2006) issue of 3ABN World magazine says:

"Since 1997, 3ABN has enjoyed a formal working agreement with the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists to support each other in proclaiming the gospel of Jesus Christ to the whole world. Our network is accepted as a supporting ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church."

The Joint Declaration posted earlier is still, apparently, in effect. 3ABN is proud of it.

Therefore, I think we should implore the General Conference Executive Committee to invoke Steps 1 through 3 of that Declaration .

This would be a outstanding opportunity for Dr. Walter Thompson, 3ABN Board Chair, to present all of 3ABN's "unquestionable" evidence. After all, 3ABN made the original charges with evidence that has never seen the light of day.

This would also address the issue whereby some say, "Let God handle it." The General Conference Executive Committee is the closest we mortals can come to that right now, I'm guessing.

So, while you're all writing to Dish Network to add 3ABN, per Danny's request, write a second letter to the GC Executive Committee. Be sure to mention 3ABN's and Dr. Thompson's "unquestionable" evidence that 3ABN claims to have.

Then, a mediator is appointed: There are professional organizations that specialize in independent, neutral mediation.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 28 2006, 04:26 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 28 2006, 05:35 PM)

Tall73,

You are correct about the Joint Declaration still being in force.

Page 7 of the current issue (November 2006) issue of 3ABN World magazine says:

"Since 1997, 3ABN has enjoyed a formal working agreement with the General Conference
of Seventh-day Adventists to support each other in proclaiming

the gospel of Jesus Christ to the whole world. Our network is accepted as a supporting ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church." [/b]

The Joint Declaration posted earlier is still, apparently, in effect. 3ABN is proud of it.

Therefore, I think we should implore the General Conference Executive Committee to invoke Steps 1 through 3 of that Declaration .

This would be a outstanding opportunity for Dr. Walter Thompson, 3ABN Board Chair, to present all of 3ABN's "unquestionable" evidence. After all, 3ABN made the original charges with evidence that has never seen the light of day.

This would also address the issue whereby some say, "Let God handle it." The General Conference Executive Committee is the closest we mortals can come to that right now, I'm guessing.

So, while you're all writing to Dish Network to add 3ABN, per Danny's request, write a second letter to the GC Executive Committee. Be sure to mention 3ABN's and Dr. Thompson's "unquestionable" evidence that 3ABN claims to have.

Then, a mediator is appointed: There are professional organizations that specialize in independent, neutral mediation.

The whole thing looks like a farce to me. Why it was ever signed by the GC is more than I can figure out. What does 3abn promise to do? Nothing more than vague statements of "support", which amounts to nothing concrete at all. What does the GC promise to do? Promote them to every Division and church entitiy.... regardless of what 3abn does.

I think it is high time for the GC to have someone read this thing and recognize it for what it is, nothing but a lasso around their necks by which the 3abn wrangler has been leading them them around the mulberry bush. 3abn has NOT lived up to its part of the deal. It has NOT accepted programming produced by the church.... unless it jolly well happened to like it. It has NOT attempted to encourage people to "integrate into the Adventist church", but has, instead planted seeds of distrust of the church in people's minds, and put pressure on them to give all their available funds to them.... 3abn.... rather than supporting the conference in a financial way. They have insulted SDA ministries .... ordering Dan Matthews off the premises and refusing to show some of his programs. They have frequently through the years harbored those who implied or taught that the SDA church had apostatized and was now Babylon. And have claimed that they were the only ones teaching the "true" three angel's messages.... thus implying that the other media outlets of the SDA church were not.

I agree that it is time that the GC acted upon these things... but I do not agree that it should be done under this "Declaration of Committment". I think rather that they should examine it carefully, declare it as being broken many times over on the part of 3abn.... thus rendering it null and void and removing any obligation on the GC to recommend its utilization by any church entity.

3abn may be sending out information to its private mailing list that says it is a supporting ministry of the SDA church. But its PUBLIC declaration is that it is non-denominational and says nothing at all about being that closely connected with the Adventist church.

Here is the only statement on the 3abn website that mentions their "connection to the SDA church". This is in the "About Us" page, and the Mission Statement makes no reference to the SDA church at all. "3ABN is not owned, operated or funded by any church, denomination or organization, so people from all cultures and backgrounds appreciate 3ABN programming. Many of 3ABN's employees and volunteers are members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. "

I think it is high time that the GC folk recognize that there are multiple violations of this agreement, and that they stop acting as though they are bound to their agreements made in it.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Oct 28 2006, 05:09 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 28 2006, 04:26 PM)

I think it is high time that the GC folk recognize that there are multiple violations of this agreement, and that they stop acting as though they are bound to their agreements made in it.

I think many people at the General Conference have not had an opportunity to even read the Declaration document. This may be the first some have heard of it, because they were not around Silver Spring in November, 1997. Some may not even know that the General Conference is currently committed to encouraging Seventh-day Adventist organizations to seek out 3ABN.

The General Conference cannot abrogate a document if they don't know it exists. So, we need to build some awareness of it. I agree with you, Watchbird, that the current people at the GC need to take out their bifocals and actually read the thing.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 28 2006, 06:53 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 28 2006, 07:09 PM)

I think many people at the General Conference have not had an opportunity to even read the Declaration document. This may be the first some have heard of it, because they were not around Silver Spring in November, 1997. Some may not even know that the General Conference is currently committed to encouraging Seventh-day Adventist organizations to seek out 3ABN.

The General Conference cannot abrogate a document if they don't know it exists. So, we need to build some awareness of it. I agree with you, Watchbird, that the current people at the GC need to take out their bifocals and actually read the thing.

In another BSDA thread, called "3ABN crucial documents", beginning with http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?s=&showtopic=9194&view=findpost&p=129504, through #21 we looked at some of the dialogue between the GC and 3ABN which went on, according to a 3ABN person who was involved at the time, "over a year".

For reasons not apparent from the flow of the thread, the thread was interrupted, and we never got back to that specific set of documents. There was, however, one more that we had access to from that same April 1997 time frame which was never posted. I have now put that in the "3ABN Crucial Documents" thread, so it can be compared to the proposed contract which the GC offered to 3ABN at that time, and which 3ABN refused. This document is a "memorandum" from Danny Shelton's lawyers regarding the proposed contract. You may find it interesting.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 29 2006, 12:07 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 28 2006, 03:35 PM)

...
This would also address the issue whereby some say, "Let God handle it." The General Conference Executive Committee is the closest we mortals can come to that right now, I'm guessing.

So, while you're all writing to Dish Network to add 3ABN, per Danny's request, write a second letter to the GC Executive Committee. Be sure to mention 3ABN's and Dr. Thompson's "unquestionable" evidence that 3ABN claims to have.

Is it something that we could do to write those letters to Dish Network on behalf of Hope Television? As in, start the letter-writing campaign by putting out the word something like:

Hope Television has what might be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to reach approximately 30,000,000 souls with the Gospel by getting Dish Network to add Hope Television to their channel lineup. But we can't do it without your help. We need you to enlist the help of your Church as well as friends, family and the local community in a letter writing campaign requesting Dish Network to carry Hope Television on their basic package. You may address your letters and postcards to:

Mr. Eric Sahl
Senior VP Programming
Dish Network
9601 S. Meridian
Englewood, CO 80112

Just a thought...

Posted by: Ralph Oct 29 2006, 12:59 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 28 2006, 04:26 PM)

The whole thing looks like a farce to me. Why it was ever signed by the GC is more than I can figure out. What does 3abn promise to do? Nothing more than vague statements of "support", which amounts to nothing concrete at all. What does the GC promise to do? Promote them to every Division and church entitiy.... regardless of what 3abn does.

Farce or not, it is a reality that will have to be dealt with. The key paragraph of the announcement at http://www.global-evangelism.org/FTP/97-11-03.pdf reads:
GC AND 3ABN APPROVE "JOINT DECLARATION:" After lengthy discussions, the 3ABN Board of Directors and the GC Administrative Committee approved a "Joint Declaration of Commitment" describing a cooperative working relationship. In the statement, both 3ABN and the General Conference affirmed each other and the vital importance of efficiency in the proclamation of the Three Angels' Messages to the world. In addition to commitment and vision statements, the document also describes an issue resolution process by which representatives of 3ABN and members in the territories they serve, facilitated by the GC, can resolve any differences which may arise. The URL they give for the document is not valid, but most of the document is recorded in http://www.tax.illinois.gov/legalinformation/hearings/pt/pt04-1.pdf starting on page 18.

Posted by: Lee Oct 30 2006, 11:24 AM

[quote name='Chez' date='Oct 28 2006, 08:22 AM' post='158421']
Lee,
3ABN is suppose to be a supportive ministry, but financially, I think that is an Independent Ministry.

Chez: you are right here. I asked them and received a reply today. They do accept tithe from SDA's. So this makes them an Independent ministry to be technically correct.

Lee

Posted by: Skyhook Oct 30 2006, 01:21 PM

If they openly accept tithe money, doesn't that mean that they are not supportive of the church, and in fact undermining the organized church? That would seem me to mean that any agreements between 3abn and the church written or otherwise would be meaningless. Does the GC understand that 3abn is accepting tithe money? I always thought that the GC took a fairly hard stance on that issue. Is that not correct?

Posted by: Lee Oct 30 2006, 06:35 PM

The tithe is not a "test" question in our church. It is left to the individual where to send their tithe. It should nearly always be sent to the church to support our Pastors. I say "nearly" because there were a few times when Mrs. White sent her tithe to some Pastors who were beginning a work in the south that were not being paid and were in need. That is definitely not the norm now-a-days. Did Mrs. White support the SDA Church? Of course she did wholeheartedly.

Amazing Facts also accepts tithe as does some other ministries. But they return a "tithe" to the Conference of these received tithes. And they are careful to use them as salaries for Pastors in the work.

I do not know about Quiet Hour or Voice of Prophecy or It is Written, whether they accept tithe or not. They will let you know if you ask I'm sure.

Posted by: lurker Oct 30 2006, 08:17 PM

Quiet Hour accepts tithe. I believe they are very careful to use it for gospel workers also.

QUOTE(Lee @ Oct 30 2006, 07:35 PM)

The tithe is not a "test" question in our church. It is left to the individual where to send their tithe. It should nearly always be sent to the church to support our Pastors. I say "nearly" because there were a few times when Mrs. White sent her tithe to some Pastors who were beginning a work in the south that were not being paid and were in need. That is definitely not the norm now-a-days. Did Mrs. White support the SDA Church? Of course she did wholeheartedly.

Amazing Facts also accepts tithe as does some other ministries. But they return a "tithe" to the Conference of these received tithes. And they are careful to use them as salaries for Pastors in the work.

I do not know about Quiet Hour or Voice of Prophecy or It is Written, whether they accept tithe or not. They will let you know if you ask I'm sure.

Posted by: Skyhook Oct 30 2006, 08:42 PM

It is news to me that the various independant ministries accept tithes. I always believed that the tithe was to go to God's storehouse which has always been interpreted to mean the organized church, and the independants raise thier own support via offerings. If that is widespread it would seem to be an unpredictable financial picture for the church. How can the independant ministries claim to be supportive of the church if they are in competition with the church for tithe money? Makes no sense to me.

I do know that there are a fair number of immigrants living in the US who do not pay tithe here but say they send it back to the church in their home country.

Posted by: lurker Oct 31 2006, 07:26 AM

You can always send $5 to one of these ministries and mark it tithe. See if you get a receipt for it. then you won't have to take anyone's word for it.

QUOTE(Skyhook @ Oct 30 2006, 09:42 PM) ☐

It is news to me that the various independant ministries accept tithes. I always believed that the tithe was to go to God's storehouse which has always been interpreted to mean the organized church, and the independants raise thier own support via offerings. If that is widespread it would seem to be an unpredictable financial picture for the church. How can the independant ministries claim to be supportive of the church if they are in competition with the church for tithe money? Makes no sense to me.

I do know that there are a fair number of immigrants living in the US who do not pay tithe here but say they send it back to the church in their home country.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 31 2006, 05:19 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Oct 27 2006, 04:59 PM) ☐

Well, I see I have been beat to post this, but 3abn is NOT an SDA channel.
You can watch Hope Channel very easily, ONLINE, or get the dish that has SDA channels on it (tv and radio) from Hope's site as well.

As far as I can find on their web sites, neither Hope, nor LLU claim to be Seventh-day Adventist. I don't find the moniker anywhere on their sites (below I do point where you can find the SDA name on Hope but it isn't on their pages, only a mention in news stories). While they may be run by Adventists, influenced by Adventist doctrine, and financed significantly by Adventists they do not show direct connection between themselves and the church.

When you do a Google search the following information comes up in the first entry for Hope:

Official Seventh-day Adventist 7 x 24 TV station to spread the good news of the gospel to the world. Available online and via satellite.

But, on their "About US" page on their web site there is no mention of connections to the church. The first sentence on that page is:

"The Hope Channel is a Christian television network that seeks to bring everlasting hope to people around the world."

In their "News" section they do post ATN News Notes and the phrase "Seventh-day Adventist" appears three times.

Other than that no mention. Now at LLUBN web site there is no mention at all of the SDA Church.

So of the three most significant networks spoken of here none directly connect themselves to the church and only 3ABN makes direct comment about the SDA Church on their "About" page ("Many of 3ABN's employees and volunteers are members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.").

So while Hope may be the "official" channel of the church there is an obvious effort to maintain a little distance for marketing purposes maybe. I don't think you can legitimately call any of them SDA channels.

- fhb

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Oct 31 2006, 05:48 PM

For as long as I can remember we as a church have tried to deceive people as to who we are. Weather it be a Prophecy Seminar or an evangelistic series we're tried to hide who we are. Personally I think this has lead to the shame that some of us have felt in the past to be a member of the SDA church. And I have known people who were interested but felt taken when they found they were deceived

Would it not be better to proudly put right on the very opening page of the Hope web site that it is a outreach of the SDA church? If we really believe we are the one true remnant church why should we hide who we are in order to "hook" people. Why lie to win people to Christ. We should proclaim who we are from the roof tops! Instead we think we must deceive people to get them to a meeting, how pathetic.

Richard

Posted by: Lee Oct 31 2006, 07:35 PM

Blue Mountain Television from Walla Walla, Washington has a web site and it also doesn't say anything about it being SDA. It uses the word "Christian" also.

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Oct 31 2006, 08:01 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Oct 31 2006, 09:35 PM)

Blue Mountain Television from Walla Walla, Washington has a web site and it also doesn't say anything about it being SDA. It uses the word "Christian" also.

Again, hiding who we are is wrong, it's deception. It's bearing false witness.

Redfog

Posted by: princessdi Oct 31 2006, 09:30 PM

Ok?!! I have never understood that deception, especially from those who claim to have not just truth, but THE Truth, the Remnant.

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Oct 31 2006, 06:01 PM)

Again, hiding who we are is wrong, it's deception. It's bearing false witness.

Redfog

Posted by: Johann Oct 31 2006, 10:26 PM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Nov 1 2006, 04:01 AM)

Again, hiding who we are is wrong, it's deception. It's bearing false witness.

Redfog

A prominent church member once told me that if he and his wife had known the Seventh-day Adventists were sponsoring the archeological lectures advertised, they would never have attended. But when they discovered the amazing Bible truths presented they gladly joined the church in baptism. Was this deception?

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 31 2006, 10:38 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Nov 1 2006, 12:26 AM)

A prominent church member once told me that if he and his wife had known the Seventh-day Adventists were sponsoring the archeological lectures advertised, they would never have attended. But when they discovered the amazing Bible truths presented they gladly joined the church in baptism. Was this deception?

Was it truth in advertising?

Second question, why would it have made a difference to them who was making the presentation, and why, if it were Adventists would it have kept them away?

- fhb

Posted by: Johann Oct 31 2006, 10:54 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Nov 1 2006, 06:38 AM)

Second question, why would it have made a difference to them who was making the presentation, and why, if it were Adventists would it have kept them away?

- fhb

In this case she was a Roman Catholic and he was a prominent Lutheran. Neither one of them wanted to be influenced by any other church at that time. So they would not have come to the lectures if they had known they were sponsored by a church.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 31 2006, 11:12 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Nov 1 2006, 12:54 AM)

In this case she was a Roman Catholic and he was a prominent Lutheran. Neither one of them wanted to be influenced by any other church at that time. So they would not have come to the lectures if they had known they were sponsored by a church.

Makes sense, thanks for the clarification. Now that aside, was it truth in advertising not to indicate who was presenting. One of the crucial questions in historical inquiry is to know the authority of the speaker - translating that here if I am looking for truth and I go to a web site claiming be presenting "truth" to the world without identifying who they truly are, I would have to question why they felt a need to keep that hidden.

Is it a fear that there is already a bias against the SDA "truth" or is it that too many people identify the church as cult or fringe religion and we really don't want to deal with that? In the instance of Hope, if in fact it is "the" television channel of the church why not say so? If it is the official voice, why not present it that way.

Did the disciples ever "couch" the announcements that Jesus would be speaking at a specific time and place?

- fhb

Posted by: princessdi Nov 1 2006, 12:16 AM

Ok Johann, that is all well and good, but is there ever a good reason for deception? God meant for those poeple to hear the truth, and just didn't allow the deception to get in the way of His plan.

QUOTE(Johann @ Oct 31 2006, 08:54 PM)

In this case she was a Roman Catholic and he was a prominent Lutheran. Neither one of them wanted to be influenced by any other church at that time. So they would not have come to the lectures if they had known they were sponsored by a church.

Posted by: Ralph Nov 1 2006, 01:11 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 31 2006, 05:19 PM)

When you do a Google search the following information comes up in the first entry for Hope:

Official Seventh-day Adventist 7 x 24 TV station to spread the good news of the gospel to the world. Available online and via satellite.

But, on their "About US" page on their web site there is no mention of connections to the church. The first sentence on that page is:

"The Hope Channel is a Christian television network that seeks to bring everlasting hope to people around the world."

In their "News" section they do post ATN News Notes and the phrase "Seventh-day Adventist" appears three times.

FHB, what you wrote was correct as far as you went. I notice that you did not mention the home page where the following announcement appears:

Click here to read about Hope Channel's Tell the World Convocation on Nov. 4, at the Sligo Adventist Church in Takoma Park, Maryland.

Instead of just doing a Google search, my wife and I spent a few hours watching the Hope Channel tonight, and time after time we saw or heard the name Seventh-day Adventist mentioned. During the breaks, they were advertising the upcoming 7 Signs program that starts on November 4. There was no question in our minds that this was a Seventh-day Adventist station. We were impressed.

Posted by: beartrap Nov 1 2006, 01:26 AM

Is it a deception for an Adventist to say that they are a Christian as opposed to saying they are an Adventist? You make an interesting point here.

QUOTE(princessdi @ Nov 1 2006, 01:16 AM)

Ok Johann, that is all well and good, but is there ever a good reason for deception? God meant for those poeple to hear the truth, and just didn't allow the deception to get in the way of His plan.

Posted by: inga Nov 1 2006, 02:13 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Nov 1 2006, 02:26 AM)

Is it a deception for an Adventist to say that they are a Christian as opposed to saying they are an Adventist? You make an interesting point here.

I find it rather astonishing that a number of folks on this list should consider it "deceptive" for Adventists to present themselves as Christians!!

What kind of Adventists are those who are not Christian??

The way I see it -- anyone who's not a Christian is certainly not an Adventist. And I found that I became a much more effective witness for Adventist truths when I recognized and presented myself as first and foremost a Christian. I highly recommend it to members of this board, providing you are actually Christians.

The reality is that we -- individually or corporately -- must always decide just how much to reveal of ourselves in any given situation. I think we've all known some who continuously run off at the mouth telling all sorts of unecessary details about themselves. Are these the only honest folks around? (I rather think they are lacking in good judgment!)

Posted by: västergötland Nov 1 2006, 03:34 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Nov 1 2006, 05:26 AM)

A prominent church member once told me that if he and his wife had known the Seventh-day Adventists were sponsoring the archeological lectures advertised, they would never have attended. But when they discovered the amazing Bible truths presented they gladly joined the church in baptism. Was this deception?

If the purpose of the archeological lectures is to find people who would convert to the SDA church, they yes, it would be deception. If the purpose is to educate people about the bible in general and strengthen the faith of those christians who attend without any intent for them to change church, in such case it would not be deception.

On a sidetrack, I heard of one such archeological seminar where at the end of the meetings the presenter got some questions for additional information from one in the audience, but he was to busy making altar calls and rudely dismissed the question. The person and children are since then thorroughly vaccinated against the SDA church.

QUOTE(beartrap @ Nov 1 2006, 08:26 AM)

Is it a deception for an Adventist to say that they are a Christian as opposed to saying they are an Adventist? You make an interesting point here.

As I answered to Johann, that depends on the Adventists purpose. If you try to strengthen the faith of all christians without demanding or expecting conversions, then no. But if your purpose is to boost the size of the church books with "sheep stealing", then yes, it would be.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Nov 1 2006, 05:56 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 31 2006, 05:19 PM)

As far as I can find on their web sites, neither Hope, nor LLU claim to be Seventh-day Adventist.

When you do a Google search the following information comes up in the first entry for Hope:

Official Seventh-day Adventist 7 x 24 TV station to spread the good news of the gospel to the world. Available online and via satellite.

- fhb

Go to the HopeTV.org Web site, and on your browser's dropdown menu after you choose "View," select "Source" or "Page Source" or "Source Code."

You will then see where Google obtained their description. That description is placed there by the HopeTV.org webmaster under the "meta name" tag.

<meta name="Description" content="The Hope Channel is the official Seventh-day Adventist 7 x 24 broadcast to spread the good news of the gospel to the world.">
<meta name="KeyWords" content="hope faith bible tv television broadcast free webstreaming media adventist adventism prophecy">

As for Loma Linda Broadcasting:

"We are a volunteer-based, nonprofit organization," Hanna said. "The majority of us are Adventists, but we are not affiliated with the church. We are nondenominational."

http://www.pe.com/localnews/inland/stories/PE_News_Local_C_llbn08.5e7b54.html

Pete

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Nov 1 2006, 06:47 AM

I think there is a bias against us because we are deceptive is our literature. So because of the bias we think we have to be deceptive. It's a vicious circle. The only way to break it is to stand up and say we are Seventh Day Adventist Christians and proud of it.

An example of deception hurting someone is a tiered marketing company here in Michigan (Amway) who tried to get recruits by being deceptive. Now their company's ex-president is running for governor and people are holding the actions of Amway against him. It never pays to deceive.

Richard

Posted by: watchbird Nov 1 2006, 08:02 AM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Nov 1 2006, 07:47 AM)

I think there is a bias against us because we are deceptive is our literature. So because of the bias we think we have to be deceptive. It's a vicious circle. The only way to break it is to stand up and say we are Seventh Day Adventist Christians and proud of it.

An example of deception hurting someone is a tiered marketing company here in Michigan (Amway) who tried to get recruits by being deceptive. Now their company's ex-president is running for governor and people are holding the actions of Amway against him. It never pays to deceive.

Richard

I agree wholeheartedly with Richard. When I go to a website, the very first thing I do is to check their "about us" (or equivilant) pages. If they do not tell very plainly who they are.... including both identifying the persons who have put the website up, or in the case of "ministries", the names of their leadership and the denomination with which they are either affilitated or identify.... then I simply move on.

Long long ago we should have been building respect for our denominational name by the openness with which we conducted our public meetings and identified ourselves on our literature. In some cases we did that, but unfortunately that has not become either official policy or practice.

In this age of openness and information access it is IMPERATIVE that all persons, websites, organizations, institutions, ministries, and anyone else who is connected with the Adventist church in any way, be up-front and honest about just what that connection is.

How ironic it is that in an age where the church has deemed it necessary to copyright the name Seventh-day Adventist Church and develop a logo that is recognizable .... and also copyrighted, with use restricted to official church entities and projects.... that some of these official entities and/or projects are not utilizing those means of identification.

Certainly, IMO, HOPE should not only state their status on their meta tag, but also should make the same statement prominent... either on their front page or at least on an "About Us" page that is listed on their main menu on their front page. And they display not only their own logo, but that of the Adventist church prominently on their front page.

As for LLBN, even though they are not owned by the church or directly operated by Loma Linda University, they are taking a lot of their image from the similarity of their name to the better known Loma Linda University.... which IS an Adventist entity, even though it obviously does not restrict its services nor its employment to Adventists alone..... so it seems to me that they also should make their relationship to the Adventist church known. Then, as it develops and shows by its programming that it is truly for all persons, it will, like Loma Linda University, be a witness to the fact that Adventists are interested in a lot more than either "talking to themselves" or increasing their numbers by evangelistic presentations.

As it is, the station is anchored in the Adventist church every weekend when it shows both live and repeat broadcasts of the Loma Linda University church services and has other religious programing that is entirely Adventist. For it to claim no affiliation with the Adventist church on their website, is,

IMO ingenous (in its negative political sense) at best, and would be viewed by any who already had a prejudice against Adventists as being simple dishonesty.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Nov 1 2006, 08:47 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Nov 1 2006, 10:02 AM)

I agree wholeheartedly with Richard. When I go to a website, the very first thing I do is to check their "about us" (or equivilant) pages. If they do not tell very plainly who they are.... including both identifying the persons who have put the website up, or in the case of "ministries", the names of their leadership and the denomination with which they are either affilitated or identify.... then I simply move on . . .

Well said.

When I woke up this morning and was preparing for the day I was thinking back over this line of dialogue and my thoughts wandered across the the idea of ecumenicalism. The move to focus on what our similarities are, within Christendom, and to set aside the differences in an effort to coalesce all Christians seems to be somewhat a play here. If, as we present ourselves, we don't seem "so different" people may give us a chance. Once given a chance we can show them who we are.

There has always been this fear that if we mention "Seventh-day Adventist" as an identifying factor we may suffer from some of those preconceived notions out there about our faith - thereby losing the chance to share with someone what we have to offer. However, it seems to me that if our faith is in God, and we honestly identify ourselves upfront, the Holy Spirit - having already begun the work in an individuals heart - will lead them to the message we have to offer. If the individual declines the opportunity because of the moniker S-dA, then maybe they were not fertile ground for the message in the first place.

The question is still there, are we Seventh-day Adventist Chrisitians or Christian Seventh-day Adventists?

- fhb

Posted by: västergötland Nov 1 2006, 08:54 AM

Of the Christian tribe, in the SDA clan...?

Posted by: watchbird Nov 1 2006, 09:22 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Nov 1 2006, 09:47 AM)

The question is still there, are we Seventh-day Adventist Chrisitians or Christian Seventh-day Adventists?

- fhb

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 1 2006, 09:54 AM)

Of the Christian tribe, in the SDA clan...?

I'm not sure what the custom in other countries is, but I think here in the USA it is common to put the smallest and most specific designator first .... thus I would describe my location as house number, street, city, county, state, and country.

Applying this to fhb's question, I would call myself a Seventh-day Adventist Christian.... that is, I am part of the clan, Seventh-day Adventist, which is in turn part of the larger "tribe" (community of faith) called Christian.

If I were to say I am a Christian Seventh-day Adventist, to me, that would mean that I was implying that there were Seventh-day Adventists who were NOT Christian. So far, I don't think that is true ... though with all the different views held by Adventists currently it is not all that uncommon to hear somone use differentiating designators such as "Historic Adventist", "Progressive Adventist", "Celebration Adventists" ... etc.

So I think it is the term, Seventh-day Adventist Christian, which maintains both our solidarity with and our differentiation from other Christian communions.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Nov 1 2006, 05:39 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Nov 1 2006, 07:47 AM)

Well said.

When I woke up this morning and was preparing for the day I was thinking back over this line of dialogue and my thoughts wandered across the the idea of ecumenicalism. The move to focus on what our similarities are, within Christendom, and to set aside the differences in an effort to coalesce all Christians seems to be somewhat a play here. If, as we present ourselves, we don't seem "so different" people may give us a chance. Once given a chance we can show them who we are.

- fhb

This is sort of like a young lady not wanting to be judged by the actual size of her chest. To hide this fact she opts to wear an article of enhancement to make her look more appealing while hoping that the young man she attracts will not care about size once he has the chance to get to know her.

Are we really that self-concious? Are we that unsure about the power of God?

As you said, it is after all, the Holy Spirit at work in people's hearts that draws them to us and our meetings. Why must we hide who we are, our differences, under a bushel?

PB

Posted by: princessdi Nov 1 2006, 05:45 PM

AMEN!!!!!

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Nov 1 2006, 03:39 PM)

This is sort of like a young lady not wanting to be judged by the actual size of her chest. To hide this fact she opts to wear an article of enhancement to make her look more appealing while hoping that the young man she attracts will not care about size once he has the chance to get to know her.

Are we really that self-concious? Are we that unsure about the power of God?

As you said, it is after all, the Holy Spirit at work in people's hearts that draws them to us and our meetings. Why must we hide who we are, our differences, under a bushel?

PB

Posted by: princessdi Nov 1 2006, 06:00 PM

Uh Inga, that wouldn't be a problem except we are proud to be Advnetist until tent meeting/Rev. Sem. season, then it is quite convenient to be "christian" and drop and Adventist. Kind of like Pat Robertson and Jesse Jeackson when they ran for president. All of a sudden their office to God was a burden. The name Adventism would not be a problem if we had the reputation of baptist or even charismatics. Let's not pretend, we claim christian when we know the name adventist will close the door before we get started. So, yes it is defintiely more effective, and most expedient.

Oh yeah. Adventist and Christian are not always one in the same. They are far too often mutually exclusive. Mainly because we get it backwards and believe it is our Adventism, 28(and growing) FB, belief in EGW, health message, which makes us christians. Instead, is should be, no, it IS our walk(relationship) with Christ, being a christian which lead us to Adventism.

More to the point when we have a good portion of our evagelistic meetings, indiependent ministries, etc. We dont' claim to be anything. In 2006, I would not go anywhere with anybody who couldn't be completely honest with me about their own identity, especially someone claiming to have life changing information, affecting something as serious as my soul's salvation. If they are ashamed of what they are, why would I want to be that? and then I just can't get over us starting out with a lie, of ommission, but a lie just the same, when re claim to hae THE Truth. That just doesnt' sit right with me.

QUOTE(inga @ Nov 1 2006, 12:13 AM)

I find it rather astonishing that a number of folks on this list should consider it "deceptive" for Adventists to present themselves as Christians!!

What kind of Adventists are those who are not Christian??

The way I see it -- anyone who's not a Christian is certainly not an Adventist. And I found that I became a much more effective witness for Adventist truths when I recognized and presented myself as first and foremost a Christian. I highly recommend it to members of this board, providing you are actually Christians.

The reality is that we -- individually or corporately -- must always decide just how much to reveal of ourselves in any given situation. I think we've all known some who continuously run off at the mouth telling all sorts of unecessary details about themselves. Are these the only honest folks around? (I rather think they are lacking in good judgment!)

Posted by: Skyhook Nov 1 2006, 10:11 PM

As I recall, EGW wrote concerning this particular issue something to the effect that we are in no way to hide who we are, Our name Seventh-day Adventist should remain prominent, and especially as the end approaches we are to fly our banners high. She also predicted that there would be a movement within the church to make obscure our differences with the Sunday churches, and even set aside some of our doctrinal pillars.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 04:50 AM

I find this sidetrack of "deception" to live up to its name--it is deceptive! Folks, the real truth is that SOMETIMES, even God has advocated a course of action which might SEEM to be deceptive at face value. We are in a great controversy. The devil doesn't play fair. Sometimes God reaches people with direct honesty, but other times, God must use more subtle means. This DOES NOT make it in any way dishonest. Just not so overt as to cause offense before the person has had a chance to digest the little bit that they can swallow. Physicians work with the same principle at times: a person needs medicine, but if too much is given, a violent reaction will take place. So the dose must start small and gradually work up to higher levels as the body can accept it.

Some people will not be attracted to a church. They still need God. There will always be a fine line between the dove and the serpent, but nonetheless, we are counseled to learn from both and act accordingly.

A Biblical example of God being "deceptive":

Samuel 16:1-2 "And the LORD said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons. And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the LORD."

So, Samuel was told to say something that wasn't the full truth. Does that mean Samuel was lying? Decidedly, NO! Just because we tell a partial truth, even perhaps with the intent to mislead, as is the case here, does NOT turn our truth into falsehood.

The point is, does it serve God's purpose, or does it not? Is it for selfish motives, to cover sin, to promote pride, or some other un-Christlike reason? or is it to fulfill the will of God? When we are doing God's will, we can rest assured that God will be honored through our best efforts. Even if we make mistakes, when we are truly desirous of following Him, and doing the best we know how under the circumstances, God will approve, and will give us strength and wisdom.

Do you suppose that in certain closed countries of this world it would be best for every Seventh-day Adventist Christian to make known his or her identity and go straight to jail? While they might reach some inmates by so doing, they would have effectively removed all other opportunities which God may be providing them.

For a more thorough understanding on the ethics of "deception," I would strongly recommend the book "The Ethics of Smuggling" by Brother Andrew, who took many Bibles into such closed countries, with God's help, including miracles, intentionally breaking the law so that others might come to a knowledge of truth.

Posted by: västergötland Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 11:50 AM)

I find this sidetrack of "deception" to live up to its name--it is deceptive! Folks, the real truth is that SOMETIMES, even God has advocated a course of action which might SEEM to be deceptive at face value. We are in a great controversy. The devil doesn't play fair. Sometimes God reaches people with direct honesty, but other times, God must use more subtle means. This DOES NOT make it in any way dishonest. Just not so overt as to cause offense before the person has had a chance to digest the little bit that they can swallow.

Are you advocating that the ends justify the means? It do sound as if you are.

QUOTE

Some people will not be attracted to a church. They still need God. There will always be a fine line between the dove and the serpent, but nonetheless, we are counseled to learn from both and act accordingly.

It is fully possible to "have God" without at the same time having "church" in the classical sence of the word. I know this first hand, many people are much more interested in knowing God than in joining a denomination.

QUOTE

A Biblical example of God being "deceptive":

Samuel 16:1-2 "And the LORD said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Bethlehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons. And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the LORD."

So, Samuel was told to say something that wasn't the full truth. Does that mean Samuel was lying? Decidedly, NO! Just because we tell a partial truth, even perhaps with the intent to mislead, as is the case here, does NOT turn our truth into falsehood.

So you are saying that when organising a meeting with the intent to convert catholics and lutherans to sda and doing this while flying under no colours at all is comparable with adding another purpose than ones main purpose for the sake of safer travel? It would have been a much better fit if Samuel here had denied himself (going in disguise) in order to reach Bethlehem unknown and in the shadows. What examples do we have of that. Jacob disguised himself when he decieved Isaac to bless him. But did God approve? Jonah used disguises but that was for trying to flee from God so we can be pretty sure that God did not approve. Abram had Sarai disguise that they where married, and God defended their marriage. But did He approve of the means used? Are there any examples of God asking anyone to pretend to be someone they where not or pretend not to be what they where for a purpose? Cant think of one (thought that doesnt nessessarily mean that such an example doesnt exist). I do remember that Jesus once said that if we deny Him for other people (deny who we are with Him?), He will deny us before the throne of heaven.

QUOTE

The point is, does it serve God's purpose, or does it not? Is it for selfish motives, to cover sin, to promote pride, or some other un-Christlike reason? or is it to fulfill the will of God? When we are doing God's will, we can rest assured that God will be honored through our best efforts. Even if we make mistakes, when we are truly desirous of following Him, and doing the best we know how under the circumstances, God will approve, and will give us strength and wisdom.

Is our best effort really to hide who we are? If so, its not something to shout from the rooftops, it is something to whisper in the shadows.

QUOTE

Do you suppose that in certain closed countries of this world it would be best for every Seventh-day Adventist Christian to make known his or her identity and go straight to jail? While they might reach some inmates by so doing, they would have effectively removed all other opportunities which God may be providing them.

In these countries you wouldnt go tell the authorities that you are a christian either, and the question here seems to be specified to the question of "christian" or "adventist christian".

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 07:34 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM)

Are you advocating that the ends justify the means?

Not at all. I am arguing that when God commands, we should follow, and it is not always wise to proclaim oneself and one's motives to every person who happens along.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM)

It is fully possible to "have God" without at the same time having "church" in the classical sence of the word.

True! But that is because "Christian" transcends denomination.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM)

So you are saying that when organising a meeting with the intent to convert catholics and lutherans to sda and doing this while flying under no colours at all is comparable with adding another purpose than ones main purpose for the sake of safer travel? It would have been a much better fit if Samuel here had denied himself (going in disguise) in order to reach Bethlehem unknown and in the shadows.

I am saying only that we must be wise as serpents and harmless as doves, as Christ Himself commanded. God Himself gave Samuel his instructions, and God did not tell Samuel to go disguised.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM)

Jacob disguised himself when he decieved Isaac to bless him. But did God approve? Jonah used disguises but that was for trying to flee from God so we can be pretty sure that God did not approve. Abram had Sarai disguise that they where married, and God defended their marriage. But did He approve of the means used?

Yes, and I point you once again to what I said before, that it is the motive which moves us to the action which is important here--are we moved by the Holy Spirit, or by our own selfishness, whether from pride, embarrassment, fear, etc. which are not of faith. We must live by faith and according to God's direction.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 05:45 AM)

Are there any examples of God asking anyone to pretend to be someone they where not or pretend not to be what they where for a purpose? Cant think of one (thought that doesnt nessessarily mean that such an example doesnt exist). I do remember that Jesus once said that if we deny Him for other people (deny who we are with Him?), He will deny us before the throne of heaven.Is our best effort really to hide who we are? If so, its not something to shout from the rooftops, it is something to whisper in the shadows.

Well, what would you understand Jesus' own words to His disciples to mean, when He told them NOT to reveal who He was?

Matthew 16:20 "Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ."

Jesus does not mean this to be the motto for everyone, right? or does He? But it illustrates once again that there is a time and a place for everything. The better part of wisdom and of discretion is to know when that time and place is. Fish are not caught by brandishing the hook. Jesus teaches us how to fish for men.

Posted by: västergötland Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM

Greenie, its not the details here but the entire concept. Your argument is invalid unless and until you can show that God has specifically asked 3abn, hopeTV and/or LL TV not to tell those seeking more information on their respective websites that they are working with (if not for) the SDA church. Your argument is invalid unless and untill you can show that God has specifically asked the pastor doing a citywide crusade or archeological meeting series or Daniel and Revelation seminar series not to tell their audience that they are working for or are sponsored by the SDA church. You write that

---

QUOTE

Not at all. I am arguing that when God commands, we should follow, and it is not always wise to proclaim oneself and one's motives to every person who happens along.

Show me where God has commanded in scripture or anywhere else that the SDA evangelists should hide the SDA name and logo. Show me that your point above contains any relevant substance at all. You further wrote

QUOTE

> I am saying only that we must be wise as serpents and harmless as doves, as Christ Himself commanded. God Himself gave Samuel his instructions, and God did not tell Samuel to go disguised.

And for that exact reason, Samuel is at best a very weak example to this particular situation that we are discussing here. I do not believe that "wise as serpants and harmless as doves" in any way mean that people are to find out about SDA participation in evangelistic efforts from the rumor mills.

As for Matthew 16:20, some insight is offered in this following quote from Matthew Henrys commentary.

> QUOTE
>
> Lastly, Here is the charge which Christ gave his disciples, to keep this private for the present (v. 20); They must tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ. What they had professed to him, they must not yet publish to the world, for several reasons; 1. Because this was the time of preparation for his kingdom: the great thing now preached, was, that the kingdom of heaven was at hand; and therefore those things were now to be insisted on, which were proper to make way for Christ; as the doctrine of repentance; not this great truth, in and with which the kingdom of heaven was to be actually set up. Every thing is beautiful in its season, and it is good advice, Prepare thy work, and afterwards build, Prov. 24:27. 2. Christ would have his Messiahship proved by his works, and would rather they should testify of him than that his disciples should, because their testimony was but as his own, which he insisted not on. See Jn. 5:31, 34. He was so secure of the demonstration of his miracles, that he waived other witnesses, Jn. 10:25, 38. 3. If they had known that he was Jesus the Christ, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory, 1 Co. 2:8. 4. Christ would not have the apostles preach this, till they had the most convincing evidence ready to allege in confirmation of it. Great truths may suffer damage by being asserted before they can be sufficiently proved. Now the great proof of Jesus being the Christ was his resurrection: by that he was declared to be the Son of God, with power; and therefore the divine wisdom would not have this truth preached, till that could be alleged for proof of it. 5. It was requisite that the preachers of so great a truth should be furnished with greater measures of the Spirit than the apostles as yet had; therefore the open asserting of it was adjourned till the Spirit should be poured out upon them. But when Christ was glorified and the Spirit poured out, we find Peter proclaiming upon the house-tops what was here spoken in a corner (Acts 2:36), That God hath made this same Jesus both Lord and Christ; for, as there is a time to keep silence, so there is a time to speak.

Lastly

> QUOTE
>
> Fish are not caught by brandishing the hook. Jesus teaches us how to fish for men.

Fish are caught by net, the ones caught by hook are to 90% catched for sport.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 10:05 AM

> QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM)
>
> Greenie, its not the details here but the entire concept. Your argument is invalid unless and until you can show that God has specifically asked 3abn, hopeTV and/or LL TV not to tell those seeking more information on their respective websites that they are working with (if not for) the SDA church.

You have no grounds to say it is an invalid argument on that basis. I could just as easily turn that around and say you must prove that God has not given them such instructions. It boils down to the fact that neither you nor I should try to them them what God is telling them. They should be getting their instructions firsthand.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM)

Your argument is invalid unless and untill you can show that God has specifically asked the pastor doing a citywide crusade or archeological meeting series or Daniel and Revelation seminar series not to tell their audience that they are working for or are sponsored by the SDA church.

Can you prove God has NOT led pastors to reach people this way? You have completely mistaken my point, and that of the Bible. We are not to tell a lie. There is a very large and distinct difference between telling a half truth, or simply not disclosing everything, and telling a lie. I never advocated lying. If someone asks, tell. If they do not ask, it may not be in GOD'S best interest for us to broadcast some things, even though they are truth.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM)

You write that Show me where God has commanded in scripture or anywhere else that the SDA evangelists should hide the SDA name and logo. Show me that your point above contains any relevant substance at all.

Jesus hid, as it were, His identity from the men on their way to Emmaus. He did reveal His identity in the end. But why did He not immediately identify Himself to them? What purpose would that serve? Do you question His wisdom?

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM)

You further wroteAnd for that exact reason, Samuel is at best a very weak example to this particular situation that we are discussing here. I do not believe that "wise as serpants and harmless as doves" in any way mean that people are to find out about SDA participation in evangelistic efforts from the rumor mills.

I know of a number of people who have become Christians because they were drawn into it WITHOUT REALIZING what they were getting into. If someone had come to them saying he/she was a Christian, they would have turned away. God does not reach everyone by the same methods. Because individual circumstances vary, who are we to tell the one witnessing how to do his/her work? God will give words to say. Samuel was not told to disguise himself. He was simply given an alibi. He was told to say something that was to be true, but was not his true motive. We will not easily win people by telling them that we are trying to catch them--they will run.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 09:02 AM)

LastlyFish are caught by net, the ones caught by hook are to 90% catched for sport.

Color your net brightly with reflective material in clear water and see how many fish will come. Fish, like people, will not come near if the trap is obvious. Whether it's a net or a hook matters little.

The fact is that the devil doesn't play fair. He has prejudiced the minds of many against God's truths and against those who teach them. Many in the world believe the lies that they have heard regarding the church being a cult. Some do not even know we are Christians. There are some who would come to a meeting just because they heard it was an Adventist meeting. There are probably at least twice as many who would stay away if that fact were known. Then there are those who have no clue who Adventists are. To these, the name may not deter them. Put out your Adventist banner, if you wish, you will reach a certain class of people. God uses others who work differently to reach other classes of people. Let us all work together and recognize that God is not limited to just one style of evangelism.

As for 3ABN, LLBN, and Hope, only God knows what they should be doing, and hopefully they are following His orders to the best of their ability. I do not judge them.

I am proud to be an Adventist. I'm proud of the name. But just because I am not embarrassed about it does not mean it is always prudent to proclaim it. Enough said.

Posted by: Clay Nov 2 2006, 10:17 AM enough said? nope not even.... not until everything has been said....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Nov 2 2006, 10:33 AM

GC,

There is a large difference between using wisdom in a particular situation and employing lack of faith. Wisdom in a "closed" country would be not verbally offering that you are a Christian when the information is unsolicited. Lack of faith is not admitting it when asked.

Jacob, Jonah and Abraham were, by their deceptions, most definitely exhibiting their lack of faith in God's power. Each had to face the consequences of their faithless actions.

The instance with Samuel that you cited reminds me of when God told Moses to go back to Egypt and demand from Pharaoh the release of His enslaved children. Each lacked confidence, faith, that God's power was sufficient for the task so God told Samuel to take a heifer and Moses to take Aaron. Could God have kept Samuel safe on his journey to find David? Of course. Samuel just didn't have enough faith to believe it at the time. Could God have given Moses the words he needed for Pharaoh? Undoubtedly. Even though he had heard the voice of God speaking to him from the burning bush, Moses allowed fear to hobble his faith.

Are we to second-guess God? Are we omniscient so that we can rightly determine what the hearts of those we are trying to reach are ready to hear? Does spreading the Gospel really need a deceptive scheme?

And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. John 12:32

What is the bait we should disguise the hook with when fishing for men? Could it perhaps be a character –both personal and corporate – that so reflects the image of Christ that no deception is necessary?

Posted by: princessdi Nov 2 2006, 10:44 AM

While you are there, PB, let's include the disciples and spostles who knew the authorities would be looking for themt to imprison and even torture and kill them, but they still never went into a city on the DL. Paul went right to the front of the temple. John the Baptist sure wasn't problaming anything Herod and his wife wanted to hear, but he proclaimed it just the same, in public.

I am sorry, it just won't wash. With all evangelistic meetings, we mean to add new members to our church, we need to be upfront with people about who is courting their membership. This is why we are still seen as a cult by some, and dismissed by others. We are not even true to ourselves.

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Nov 2 2006, 08:33 AM)

GC,

There is a large difference between using wisdom in a particular situation and employing lack of faith. Wisdom in a "closed" country would be not verbally offering that you are a Christian when the information is unsolicited. Lack of faith is not admitting it when asked.

Jacob, Jonah and Abraham were, by their deceptions, most definitely exhibiting their lack of faith in God's power. Each had to face the consequences of their faithless actions.

The instance with Samuel that you cited reminds me of when God told Moses to go back to Egypt and demand from Pharaoh the release of His enslaved children. Each lacked confidence, faith, that God's power was sufficient for the task so God told Samuel to take a heifer and Moses to take Aaron. Could God have kept Samuel safe on his journey to find David? Of course. Samuel just didn't have enough faith to believe it at the time. Could God have given Moses the words he needed for Pharaoh? Undoubtedly. Even though he had heard the voice of God speaking to him from the burning bush, Moses allowed fear to hobble his faith.

Are we to second-guess God? Are we omniscient so that we can rightly determine what the hearts of those we are trying to reach are ready to hear? Does spreading the Gospel really need a deceptive scheme?

And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. John 12:32

What is the bait we should disguise the hook with when fishing for men? Could it perhaps be a character –both personal and corporate – that so reflects the image of Christ that no deception is necessary?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Nov 2 2006, 11:13 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Nov 2 2006, 09:44 AM)

While you are there, PB, let's include the disciples and spostles who knew the authorities would be looking for themt to imprison and even torture and kill them, but they still never went into a city on the DL. Paul went right to the front of the temple. John the Baptist sure wasn't problaming anything Herod and his wife wanted to hear, but he proclaimed it just the same, in public.

I am sorry, it just won't wash. With all evangelistic meetings, we mean to add new members to our church, we need to be upfront with people about who is courting their membership. This is why we are still seen as a cult by some, and dismissed by others. We are not even true to ourselves.

Too true! We've come a long way but still have quite a stretch to go!

Posted by: västergötland Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 05:05 PM)

You have no grounds to say it is an invalid argument on that basis. I could just as easily turn that around and say you must prove that God has not given them such instructions. It boils down to the fact that neither you nor I should try to them them what God is telling them. They should be getting their instructions firsthand.

Oh, where to start with this all? Yes, I do think I have grounds, solid grounds, to my argument. Where? you will likely ask. In the fact that Gods government is based upon Love, Grace, Truth, this becourse that is what Gods character is like according to scripture. The shadow government that is based upon deception and "whatever works" is of another kind.

QUOTE

Can you prove God has NOT led pastors to reach people this way? You have completely mistaken my point, and that of the Bible. We are not to tell a lie. There is a very large and distinct difference between telling a half truth, or simply not disclosing everything, and telling a lie. I never advocated lying. If someone asks, tell. If they do not ask, it may not be in GOD'S best interest for us to broadcast some things, even though they are truth.

Are we talking about the same God here? The One who said -you have heard that sex between people who are not married is sin, but I tell you, even planing or dreaming about such sex is sin. The One who said -you have heard that killing another person is a sin, but I tell you that even planing or dreaming about killing another person is a sin. Would this same One draw a line between lying as in telling that which is not true and half lying in purposefully not telling the entire truth in order to decieve?

And notice that this in context is very, very far away from 'not telling you are a christian missionary to the Irani secret police'. We are talking about not identifying oneself or ones true purpose when doing mission towards other christians in western europe and USA. The lands of free speach and religion as we are told. You are risking nothing but your reputation by telling people you are trying to reach who you are. And while speaking about bad reputation, what religious group has a worse reputation than the JW? And they dont need to hide who they are to grow. Are we worse of than them?

QUOTE

Jesus hid, as it were, His identity from the men on their way to Emmaus. He did reveal His identity in the end. But why did He not immediately identify Himself to them? What purpose would that serve? Do you question His wisdom?

Jesus, having recently been dead and talking with diciples who had not yet grasped the fact of His resurection might have needed the time to help them understand so they wouldnt be terrified of ghosts as they might have been if He had come directly to them. We know from the time Jesus walked on water that the diciples did believe in ghosts.

QUOTE

I know of a number of people who have become Christians because they were drawn into it WITHOUT REALIZING what they were getting into. If someone had come to them saying he/she was a Christian, they would have turned away. God does not reach everyone by the same methods. Because individual circumstances vary, who are we to tell the one witnessing how to do his/her work? God will give words to say. Samuel was not told to disguise himself. He was simply given an alibi. He was told to say something that was to be true, but was not his true motive. We will not easily win people by telling them that we are trying to catch them--they will run.

Does God work through our deficiensies and faults or despite of them? Paul once wrote,

"And many of the brethren in the Lord, waxing confident by my bonds, are much more bold to speak the word without fear. Some indeed preach Christ even of envy and strife; and some also of good will: The one preach Christ of contention, not sincerely, supposing to add affliction to my bonds: But the other of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the gospel. What then? notwithstanding, every way, whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached; and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice. "

But he also wrote this

What shall we say then? Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid. How shall we, that are dead to sin, live any longer therein?

And the righteous Job said

Lo, mine eye hath seen all [this], mine ear hath heard and understood it. What ye know, [the same] do I know also: I [am] not inferior unto you. Surely I would speak to the Almighty, and I desire to reason with God. But ye [are] forgers of lies, ye [are] all physicians of no value. O that ye would altogether hold your peace! and it should be your wisdom. Hear now my reasoning, and hearken to the pleadings of my lips. Will ye speak wickedly for God? and talk deceitfully for him? Will ye accept his person? will ye contend for God? Is it good that he should search you out? or as one man mocketh another, do ye [so] mock him? He will surely reprove you, if ye do secretly accept persons. Shall not his excellency make you afraid? and his dread fall upon you?

QUOTE

Color your net brightly with reflective material in clear water and see how many fish will come. :) sh, like people, will not come near if the trap is obvious. Whether it's a net or a hook matters little.

The trap? What is your true purpose here? Remember that God gave all men a free will, and the freedom to excersize it. To trap and decieve and other means to bypass it I cannot think comes from God.

QUOTE

The fact is that the devil doesn't play fair. He has prejudiced the minds of many against God's truths and against those who teach them. Many in the world believe the lies that they have heard regarding the church being a cult. Some do not even know we are Christians. There are some who would come to a meeting just because they heard it was an Adventist meeting. There are probably at least twice as many who would stay away if that fact were known. Then there are those who have no clue who Adventists are. To these, the name may not deter them. Put out your Adventist banner, if you wish, you will reach a certain class of people. God uses others who work differently to reach other classes of people. Let us all work together and recognize that God is not limited to just one style of evangelism.

And what, pray tell, does the devils game honesty have to do with what God and His people are doing? Let the devil cheat and cut corners all he wants (and is allowed to) but you and me, we should follow the LORD.

And while in another circumbstance Id be among the first to say you are right that God is not limmited to just one style of evangelism, I wont agree with you that God should purpose to have evangelism in such a way that it contradicts His play rules.

QUOTE

As for 3ABN, LLBN, and Hope, only God knows what they should be doing, and hopefully they are following His orders to the best of their ability. I do not judge them.

I am proud to be an Adventist. I'm proud of the name. But just because I am not embarrassed about it does not mean it is always prudent to proclaim it. Enough said.

Will it be prudent to proclaim the name of Jesus if you are ever thrown before a court of law for its sake? Or will it be prudent to deny Him to save your own skin, however temporarily that may be?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 11:30 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Nov 2 2006, 10:44 AM)

While you are there, PB, let's include the disciples and spostles who knew the authorities would be looking for themt to imprison and even torture and kill them, but they still never went into a city on the DL. Paul went right to the front of the temple. John the Baptist sure wasn't problaming anything Herod and his wife wanted to hear, but he proclaimed it just the same, in public.

Would you agree that this was God's orders to those people? Just because God led them to take such open and decisive actions does not mean that God leads everyone to do the same thing.

QUOTE(princessdi @ Nov 2 2006, 10:44 AM)

I am sorry, it just won't wash. With all evangelistic meetings, we mean to add new members to our church, we need to be upfront with people about who is courting their membership. This is why we are still seen as a cult by some, and dismissed by others. We are not even true to ourselves.

PB made some very good points. I agree with most of what she said--she wasn't disagreeing much with what I have said. But, PrincessDi, as for being "upfront" with people regarding our identity, tell that to Tyndale and the Waldenses. It pays to know who you are talking to first. Hence, the saying, "Discretion is the better part of valor."

Posted by: västergötland Nov 2 2006, 11:36 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 06:30 PM)

PB made some very good points. I agree with most of what she said--she wasn't disagreeing much with what I have said. But, PrincessDi, as for being "upfront" with people regarding our identity, tell that to Tyndale and the Waldenses. It pays to know who you are talking to first. Hence, the saying, "Discretion is the better part of valor."

Tyndale and the Valdenses had a death warrant on their heads for their faith and many of them died in flames. Who in the western world risks death for the sake of Jesus name?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 12:12 PM

You have brought up some good points which do deserve more clarity.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM)

Would this same One draw a line between lying as in telling that which is not true and half lying in purposefully not telling the entire truth in order to decieve?

For the sake of clarity and truth here, let us understand that "half-truth" does not equate to "half-lie." If I say the cup is half empty, that doesn't mean it is not half full. That I didn't tell you both parts to the equation does not make the first part false. To view this another way, Jesus Himself quoted the 10 Commandments in the New Testament--only He didn't quote them all. Does that make any part of the whole untrue? If I tell you that I am a student, and don't tell you that I am a missionary, a teacher, or any other role I may currently have as well, does that make any part of what I had told you false or necessarily deceptive? Prudence does not mean embarrassment. Just because I don't tell you that I am a missionary does not equate to me being embarrassed of it. Yes, I'm a student. Yes, I'm a teacher. Saying just one of them does not make the other false or embarrassing. It does not mean I'm afraid to tell. It only means that I have told you what seemed most appropriate or applicable to the situation or question.

If telling a partial truth, instead of the whole truth, equates to lying or deception, then we are all hopelessly liars...perhaps for eternity! None of us has all the truth.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM)

And notice that this in context is very, very far away from 'not telling you are a christian missionary to the Irani secret police'. We are talking about not identifying oneself or ones true purpose when doing mission towards other christians in western europe and USA. The lands of free speach and religion as we are told.

Well, please excuse me then, for I am not working in those lands you mention, and I AM working toward reaching people in a closed Communist country. Perhaps, to you, none of what I have said applies to this discussion, since you are discussing only a narrowly-defined field.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM)

You are risking nothing but your reputation by telling people you are trying to reach who you are.

I have spoken not for my own honor or pleasure, but out of respect for what God is trying to accomplish on this planet. Were it merely my own life at stake, I should be much less concerned about cloaking my intentions. But God is not honored, nor benefited when we speak brashly without thought and without regard for what will truly attract that individual to Him. It is too easy to simply blurt out who we are and what we are doing. It just doesn't catch everyone's hearts. It is not my honor at stake, it is God's reputation. As a representative of Christ, to bring dishonor upon myself is to bring dishonor upon God. Asian cultures have a good understanding of this principle, as it is embedded within the status system. To bring dishonor upon someone else is to bring dishonor upon yourself, and vice versa. Therefore, my reputation IS God's reputation.

God has spoken through Ellen White that the right arm of our message is the health message. Why? Because people put up their wall of defense to hear about religion; but reach out to them with something that shows you care about them as a person, in a way they can relate to, and you have found a formula for success in sowing seeds of the Gospel as well.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM)

To trap and decieve and other means to bypass it I cannot think comes from God.And what, pray tell, does the devils game honesty have to do with what God and His people are doing? Let the devil cheat and cut corners all he wants (and is allowed to) but you and me, we should follow the LORD.

And why, then, would Jesus use the analogy of "fishing for men?" Have you ever caught a fish without sublety? The devil's game plan has very much to do with this. It is because the devil has poisoned the well of truth with his errors that people have been blinded to the truth. The poison not only injures the people's minds, preventing them from a clear understanding and ability to learn truth, but it also causes them to view the truth as error. Because of the abundance of confusion (and we know God is not the author of confusion), God Himself is forced to present the truth through subtle means sometimes, so that it flies in below the radar of the individual involved, who might otherwise misidentify the truth as falsehood.

The devil does such a good job with deceiving, that the deceived, in most cases, do not know they are deceived. God must bring truth to them without causing their mis-guided "error shields" to be activated.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Nov 2 2006, 11:15 AM)

And while in another circumbstance Id be among the first to say you are right that God is not limmited to just one style of evangelism, I wont agree with you that God should purpose to have evangelism in such a way that it contradicts His play rules. Will it be prudent to proclaim the name of Jesus if you are ever thrown before a court of law for its sake? Or will it be prudent to deny Him to save your own skin, however temporarily that may be?

Again, I was not speaking from any desire to save my skin. Regarding the game rules, Jude is quite clear that some are to be saved by love, some by fear. Hmmm....fear is a negative emotion, isn't it? Why would God use that? But God does bring some to Him through fear. I had a good friend who came to God during the Persian Gulf war, because he was afraid the world was about to end. As he so aptly said of his turnaround, "If this doesn't get your attention, what will?" God leads us to the same place in the end, but our starting points are all different. Not everyone can be lead in the same way to Christ. Praise the Lord that He knows how to reach us!

Posted by: awesumtenor Nov 2 2006, 01:13 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 01:12 PM)

You have brought up some good points which do deserve more clarity.
For the sake of clarity and truth here, let us understand that "half-truth" does not equate to "half-lie." If I say the cup is half empty, that doesn't mean it is not half full. That I didn't tell you both parts to the equation does not make the first part false. To view this another way, Jesus Himself quoted the 10 Commandments in the New Testament--only He didn't quote them all. Does that make any part of the whole untrue? If I tell you that I am a student, and don't tell you that I am a missionary, a teacher, or any other role I may currently have as well, does that make any part of what I had told you false or necessarily deceptive? Prudence does not mean embarrassment. Just because I don't tell you that I am a missionary does not equate to me being embarrassed of it. Yes, I'm a student. Yes, I'm a teacher. Saying just one of them does not make the other false or embarrassing. It does not mean I'm afraid to tell. It only means that I have told you what seemed most appropriate or applicable to the situation or question.

If telling a partial truth, instead of the whole truth, equates to lying or deception, then we are all hopelessly liars...perhaps for eternity! None of us has all the truth.

Since you, by your own admission, "believe Ellen White":

Those who are controlled by policy rather than by principle are not to be trusted. They will pervert the truth, conceal facts, and construe the words of others to mean that which was never intended. They will employ flattering words, while the poison of asps is under their tongue. He who does not earnestly seek the divine guidance will be deceived by their smooth words and their artful plans.

There are many who would scorn the appellation of policy men, yet who will stoop to concealment, evasion, and even misrepresentation, to accomplish their purposes. He who, in a matter of right and wrong, remains noncommittal that he may retain the friendship of all; he who seeks to secure by evasion of truth what should be won by courage; he who waits for others to take the lead, when he should go forward himself, and then feels at liberty to censure their course,--all these are in God's sight numbered as deceivers. -- EGW, Signs of the Times, Aug 4, 1881

If you do, as you claim, believe her, then the rest of your argument is just so much rationalization.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: västergötland Nov 2 2006, 05:47 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 07:12 PM)

You have brought up some good points which do deserve more clarity.

What happened to the scripture references I gave? They were not there to fill out more space you know.

QUOTE

For the sake of clarity and truth here, let us understand that "half-truth" does not equate to "half-lie." If I say the cup is half empty, that doesn't mean it is not half full. That I didn't tell you both parts to the equation does not make the first part false. To view this another way, Jesus Himself quoted the 10 Commandments in the New Testament--only He didn't quote them all. Does that make any part of the whole untrue? If I tell you that I am a student, and don't tell you that I am a missionary, a teacher, or any other role I may currently have as well, does that make any part of what I had told you false or necessarily deceptive? Prudence does not mean embarrassment. Just because I don't tell you that I am a missionary does not equate to me being embarrassed of it. Yes, I'm a student. Yes, I'm a teacher. Saying just one of them does not make the other false or embarrassing. It does not mean I'm afraid to tell. It only means that I have told you what seemed most appropriate or applicable to the situation or question.

If Jesus while speaking about murder where to quote nine of the ten commandments but exclude the one about murder, then we would be talking about the same thing. If you go to your teacher and present yourself as a missionary and a teacher but neglect to mention that you are also his student, then we would be talking about the same thing. If you where to go to the people whom you are a missionary for and tell them about being a student and a teacher but neglect to mention that you are also a missionary, then we would be talking about the same thing. It is not merely about not telling everything there is to know about a subject but about neglecting, willfully, to tell parts relevant to the particular situation one finds oneself in. Next time you get a new class of students in your role as a teacher, present yourself and act as your role as a student or as your role as a missionary and maybe you might start to understand what I am talking about. For your students, your role as a teacher is the relevant one and while you can tell them about the other two aswell they arent as important as you as a teacher.

QUOTE

If telling a partial truth, instead of the whole truth, equates to lying or deception, then we are all hopelessly liars...perhaps for eternity! None of us has all the truth.

As I said above, it is not as much that you dont tell everything as it is willfully suppressing important and relevant information.

QUOTE

Well, please excuse me then, for I am not working in those lands you mention, and I AM working toward reaching people in a closed Communist country. Perhaps, to you, none of what I have said applies to this discussion, since you are discussing only a narrowly-defined field.

If you remember, this did not start with your particular missionary situation but with the TV ministries based in the US. That is why the examples are to be relevant there mainly. We can discuss a secound application to your mission if you give some additional, relevant information to build such a discussion upon. The narrowly defined field you mention just happens to include all the industrialised nations on three continets. But maybe that is narrow since it apparently missed the country you are working in, oh well...

QUOTE

I have spoken not for my own honor or pleasure, but out of respect for what God is trying to accomplish on this planet. Were it merely my own life at stake, I should be much less concerned about cloaking my intentions. But God is not honored, nor benefited when we speak brashly without thought and without regard for what will truly attract that individual to Him. It is too easy to simply blurt out who we are and what we are doing. It just doesn't catch everyone's hearts. It is not my honor at stake, it is God's reputation. As a representative of Christ, to bring dishonor upon myself is to bring dishonor upon God. Asian cultures have a good understanding of this principle, as it is embedded within the status system. To bring dishonor upon someone else is to bring dishonor upon yourself, and vice versa. Therefore, my reputation IS God's reputation.

Here is where I really lost you. I cannot even begin to fathom that you are acctually suggesting that you are defending Gods reputation by lying by omission about yourself, your church and who knows what else. I find this utterly unbelivable. Let me repost one of the passages I had in my last reply, but in easier english.
Job 13:3 But I prefer to argue my case with God All-Powerful-- Job 13:4 you are merely useless doctors, who treat me with lies.
Job 13:5 The wisest thing you can do is to keep quiet
Job 13:6 and listen to my argument.
Job 13:7 Are you telling lies for God
Job 13:8 and not telling the whole truth when you argue his case?
Job 13:9 If he took you to court, could you fool him, just as you fool others?
Job 13:10 If you were secretly unfair, he would correct you,
Job 13:11 and his glorious splendor would make you terrified.
What in all of this is unclear? Or do you disagree with it?

QUOTE

God has spoken through Ellen White that the right arm of our message is the health message. Why? Because people put up their wall of defense to hear about religion; but reach out to them with something that shows you care about them as a person, in a way they can relate to, and you have found a formula for success in sowing seeds of the Gospel as well.

Jesus healed the sick, all who asked Him went away healed. He didnt demand anything in return from them but gave away health as a free gift. He also preached the good message about the kingdom of God. His altar call was "take up your cross and follow me", and He also told wouldbe followers, count the cost before you start the journey so you wont be quiting in the middle and thus humiliated."

Jesus wasnt about deception.

QUOTE

And why, then, would Jesus use the analogy of "fishing for men?" Have you ever caught a fish without sublety? The devil's game plan has very much to do with this. It is because the devil has poisoned the well of truth with his errors that people have been blinded to the truth. The poison not only injures the people's minds, preventing them from a clear understanding and ability to learn truth, but it also causes them to view the truth as error. Because of the abundance of confusion (and we know God is not the author of confusion), God Himself is forced to present the truth through subtle means sometimes, so that it flies in below the radar of the individual involved, who might otherwise misidentify the truth as falsehood.

You can never drive out darkness with darkness. But it only takes a very smal candle and the light will be seen a long way. The devils game plan is darkness. Jesus compared His message with a ligth up city on the top of a mountain. It is a light that will be seen for miles around.

QUOTE

The devil does such a good job with deceiving, that the deceived, in most cases, do not know they are deceived. God must bring truth to them without causing their mis-guided "error shields" to be activated.

I was of the impression that it was indeed God who would do the job of dismantleing the error shields. Yours and mine is the job to preach the gospel and care for the sick, Gods is the job to take that preached and acted gospel and bring it to the heart of people. Dont change places, I think you might find those shues a bit to large to fill...

QUOTE

Again, I was not speaking from any desire to save my skin. Regarding the game rules, Jude is quite clear that some are to be saved by love, some by fear. Hmmm....fear is a negative emotion, isn't it? Why would God use that? But God does bring some to Him through fear. I had a good friend who came to God during the Persian Gulf war, because he was afraid the world was about to end. As he so aptly said of his turnaround, "If this doesn't get your attention, what will?" God leads us to the same place in the end, but our starting points are all different. Not everyone can be lead in the same way to Christ. Praise the Lord that He knows how to reach us!

Jude clear that some are to be saved by fear? Eh, no? Where more exactly do you find such a thing?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Nov 2 2006, 06:07 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 10:30 AM)

Would you agree that this was God's orders to those people? Just because God led them to take such open and decisive actions does not mean that God leads everyone to do the same thing.
PB made some very good points. I agree with most of what she said--she wasn't disagreeing much with what I have said. But, PrincessDi, as for being "upfront" with people regarding our identity, tell that to Tyndale and the Waldenses. It pays to know who you are talking to first. Hence, the saying, "Discretion is the better part of valor."

I believe it would be better to be burned in a cave than to hide our connection, our relationship with Jesus under a bushel.

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Nov 2 2006, 07:37 PM

A good example of doing it right is ADRA. ADRA operates in many countries where they are prohibited from overtly preaching Christianity, however there is no doubt in those countries as to who they are because the very first word in their title boldly proclaims it. They don't disguise who they are, they are up front about it. Does it turn some people off? Undoubtedly. However they never have people wondering or thinking they are being deceived.

Another example is my child's academy gymnastic team. They go into a lot of public schools where they perform and give talks about healthful living. They are not allowed to bring religion into their talks but everyone there knows who they are because they proudly point our that they are from Great Lakes ADVENTIST Academy. They don't say Great Lakes Academy, or even Great Lakes Christian Academy. They don't have any need to deceive anyone as to who they are.

Richard

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 2 2006, 07:57 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Nov 2 2006, 01:13 PM)

Those who are controlled by policy rather than by principle are not to be trusted. They will pervert the truth, conceal facts, and construe the words of others to mean that which was never intended. They will employ flattering words, while the poison of asps is under their tongue. He who does not earnestly seek the divine guidance will be deceived by their smooth words and their artful plans. ...

Yes, I totally agree. I've had more dealings with "policy" folk than I'd care to recount. To my viewpoint, politics are diametrically opposed to Christianity...but that's a topic for another day. And, BTW, I wasn't talking about politics in this thread, were you? I'm not sure how this applies. Just because I said that we must be discrete, does not mean I am saying that ALL those who conceal truth do well, nor that any/all forms of concealing truth are necessary. So let's not go there.

Posted by: awesumtenor Nov 2 2006, 11:31 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 2 2006, 08:57 PM)

Yes, I totally agree. I've had more dealings with "policy" folk than I'd care to recount. To my viewpoint, politics are diametrically opposed to Christianity...but that's a topic for another day. And, BTW, I wasn't talking about politics in this thread, were you? I'm not sure how this applies. Just because I said that we must be discrete, does not mean I am saying that ALL those who conceal truth do well, nor that any/all forms of concealing truth are necessary. So let's not go there.

It would help if you didn't selectively extract part of my post and respond to it as if that was all I said.

That is deception.. and is not becoming one who claims the cross of Christ.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 3 2006, 01:52 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Nov 2 2006, 11:31 PM)

It would help if you didn't selectively extract part of my post and respond to it as if that was all I said.

That is deception.. and is not becoming one who claims the cross of Christ.

In His service,
Mr. J

Oh, is THIS the rationale behind everyone quoting entire posts on BSDA? And why I've seen complaints about it? But, let me guess, if I had not just quoted a part of it, as I did, to show to whom I was responding, and the gist of what I was responding to, i.e. if I had not quoted you at all, there would be no cause for complaint?

Pardon me for saying so, but I do not believe I was trying to be deceptive. You have certainly been critical, however. Is this your Christian response and love?

I was just trying to be helpful to the folks out there who had already read it in the original post and didn't need to read it twice. I'm sorry if that has offended you. I had no intention of stepping on toes--to the contrary, I thought I was being helpful.

Posted by: awesumtenor Nov 3 2006, 08:38 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Nov 3 2006, 02:52 AM)

Oh, is THIS the rationale behind everyone quoting entire posts on BSDA? And why I've seen complaints about it? But, let me guess, if I had not just quoted a part of it, as I did, to show to whom I was responding, and the gist of what I was responding to, i.e. if I had not quoted you at all, there would be no cause for complaint?

Pardon me for saying so, but I do not believe I was trying to be deceptive. You have certainly been critical, however. Is this your Christian response and love?

I was just trying to be helpful to the folks out there who had already read it in the original post and didn't need to read it twice. I'm sorry if that has offended you. I had no intention of stepping on toes--to the contrary, I thought I was being helpful.

Helpful to yourself, perhaps... the part which specifically applied to your actions you conveniently omitted... and again, you are taking specific statements directed to you individually and attempting to paint them as if they were directed to all and sundry...

I am not speaking in general; I am speaking specifically and with express intent to you and you alone. If someone else does what you did with a post of mine I will address that person and that person alone when and if.

If you had quoted the entire EGW quote I posted and stated what you did, given your previous posts in this thread, you'd have looked like your profession of "believing EGW" was a lie... you have tried to duck being painted into that corner by excluding the part that specifically address the actions you have omitted.

You want to believe that wasn't deceptive? Knock yourself out... but you are far from letting your yea be yea and your nay, nay... and it is appearing more and more as if you have been so disingenuous with so many for so long that you have finally successed in deceiving yourself.

Should have just taken Polonius' advice; it would have kept you off of this particular slippery slope.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Nov 3 2006, 09:14 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Nov 2 2006, 01:13 PM)

Since you, by your own admission, "believe Ellen White":

Those who are controlled by policy rather than by principle are not to be trusted. They will pervert the truth, conceal facts, and construe the words of others to mean that which was never intended. They will employ flattering words, while the poison of asps is under their tongue. He who does not earnestly seek the divine guidance will be deceived by their smooth words and their artful plans.

There are many who would scorn the appellation of policy men, yet who will stoop to concealment, evasion, and even misrepresentation, to accomplish their purposes. He who, in a matter of right and wrong, remains noncommittal that he may retain the friendship of all; he who seeks to secure by evasion of truth what should be won by courage; he who waits for others to take the lead, when he should go forward himself, and then feels at liberty to censure their course,--all these are in God's sight numbered as deceivers. -- EGW, Signs of the Times, Aug 4, 1881

If you do, as you claim, believe her, then the rest of your argument is just so much rationalization.

In His service,
Mr. J

Are we happy now?

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

150

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Sda Tv Network Promotion

Posted by: watchbird Oct 29 2006, 08:10 AM

Since this comment/question from Greenie was somewhat off-topic in the thread where he posted it, and since the thread where we discussed this may be a bit difficult to find..... and since it was discussed in multiple previous theads.... I am using his post as a "jumping off place" from which to launch a new thread that hopefully will not only reference these threads, but provide a new one which will encourage those who know more about the "inner workings" of getting HOPETV... and other new Adventist networks.... such as Loma Linda Broadcasting Network and Blue Mountain Net.... on local cable companies or on satellite companies which have the broadest available reception possibilities.

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 29 2006, 02:07 AM)

Is it something that we could do to write those letters to Dish Network on behalf of Hope Television?
As in, start the letter-writing campaign by putting out the word something like:

Hope Television has what might be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to reach approximately 30,000,000 souls with the Gospel by getting Dish Network to add Hope Television to their channel lineup. But we can't do it without your help. We need you to enlist the help of your Church as well as friends, family and the local community in a letter writing campaign requesting Dish Network to carry Hope Television on their basic package. You may address your letters and postcards to:

Mr. Eric Sahl
Senior VP Programming
Dish Network
9601 S. Meridian
Englewood, CO 80112

Just a thought...

This idea came up some time ago in the BSDA discussions, and while I was at first an enthusiastic promoter of such a plan, I thought it necessary to rescind my supportive comments after I received information which indicated that any such letter writing campaign would be counterproductive.

So before such a campaign were initiated, it would be essential, I think, for someone to talk with HOPETV persons to see if they have investigated such possibilities, and if so, what their contacts have indicated would be a proper and effective way of facilitating this. The last thing we want to do is to create an image with Dish that would in the long run hinder HOPETV from getting such satellite coverage.

It may, in fact, be of better service to HOPE to assist in publicizing their availability and to work towards getting them included on local cable companies. Another possibilty would be to investigate the possibilities of them being included in the DirecTV network, which has an even wider user base than does either sky-angel or Dish Network. See http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/DirecTV

One previous thread which discussed this (along with other things), and the one in which I rescinded my previous support for such a "campaign", is "The 3abn Story", which can be accessed at http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=10628 In that thread there are some clues as to what is currently happening which are not obvious to the general reader.... in fact, may even be misleading. And I hesitate to even mention that here since I was accused there of "teasing" by giving "clues" but not giving the information that ties things together. Unfortunately, I still have not received permission to give any additional ones.... nor to state what that "key" information is. But there is enough there, I think, so that the person who approached those who are in a position to know best with a questioning attitude rather than with what would appear to be yet another "pressure campaign" just might learn quite a bit. Whether that could then be shared publicly, I know not.

Whatever one learns.... the important point is that the first place to start is with the specific Adventist network one wants to promote to see what their plans and timetable is, and what they have already initiated, and what we as supporters can best do to help..... and that could, and I think should, include SAFE TV, which could reach a far wider audience were it to be included in DirecTV, as well as other Adventist Stations besides those I listed above, which may at present have only local coverage, but that may well grow to be worthy of much broader accessibility.

Posted by: Johann Oct 30 2006, 04:24 PM

7 Signs Premiering on Hope Channel and Esperanza TV

Silver Spring, MD, USA...Saturday, November 4, 2006, marks the premier of 7 Signs with Jose Rojas, director for the Adventist Volunteer Ministries Network, for the Seventh-day Adventist Church's North American Region, covering the U.S. and Canada.
"7 Signs celebrates its second year as a discipleship evangelism initiative that is leading many across our region to Christ," says Rojas. "The central idea of 7 Signs is simple for your church, school, or other outreach setting, he continues. You and I are called by Christ to be disciples. As we truly respond to that calling, we will then understand the Great Commission in a more personal way. We experience what it means to go out and make more disciples for the kingdom," he concluded.
7 Signs will air from 8:00pm-9:00pm Eastern and 11:00pm-12:00am Eastern, November 4-11, 2006. This eight-part, one-hour series is aimed at inspiring, informing, and helping viewers realize that their lives are changed by becoming true disciples of Christ and learning to disciple others to the feet of Jesus.
"We are delighted that 7 Signs will be aired on Hope Channel and Esperanza TV," said Brad Thorp, president of Hope Channel. "Many of our viewers, especially new members, will benefit from such a program in learning and reviewing the importance of being a true believer in Jesus Christ."
Pastor Jose Rojas, a well-known and popular speaker, especially among the youth, is the featured speaker for both language broadcasts. For more information about the mission of 7 Signs or to find out how you can receive training on discipleship, visit www.sevensigns.net.

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

151

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Leave Danny Alone

Posted by: motivator Oct 18 2006, 06:50 PM

I've been reading the materials on this website concerning the 3ABN situation and all I've got to say about this is that this is a gossip column and God is not glorified. It seems to me that there are those who want to see Danny go down and rather than leave the situation alone, fuel is continually being put on the fire concerning this situation.

Now I'm not saying that Danny Shelton is innocent neither am I saying that Linda Shelton is guilty, but its been two years and we need to stop this because God is not glorified. Yes, we need to call sin by its right name, but this is getting ridiculous! I read the note where Linda Shelton's "daughter" wrote a letter stating that Danny was touching her inappropriately. Come on give me a break!!! It seems to me that people want to see this man go down by any means necessary. God is holding this website accountable for all of this and we better make sure that God is ordaining this to happen.

Leave Danny alone!

Posted by: Freedom Oct 18 2006, 06:55 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 07:50 PM)

I've been reading the materials on this website concerning the 3ABN situation and all I've got to say about this is that this is a gossip column and God is not glorified. It seems to me that there are those who want to see Danny go down and rather than leave the situation alone, fuel is continually being put on the fire concerning this situation.

Now I'm not saying that Danny Shelton is innocent neither am I saying that Linda Shelton is guilty, but its been two years and we need to stop this because God is not glorified. Yes, we need to call sin by its right name, but this is getting ridiculous! I read the note where Linda Shelton's "daughter" wrote a letter stating that Danny was touching her inappropriately. Come on give me a break!!! It seems to me that people want to see this man go down by any means necessary. God is holding this website accountable for all of this and we better make sure that God is ordaining this to happen.

Leave Danny alone!

I believe Danny's step-daughter! She has no reason to lie.

God, will hold those accountable that know about the wrong doings at 3ABN and don't come forward!

Posted by: Clay Oct 18 2006, 06:57 PM

Motivator you speak for God now?

Posted by: sonshineonme Oct 18 2006, 06:59 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 18 2006, 05:57 PM)

Motivator you speak for God now?

Hard to tell who he speaks for

Posted by: motivator Oct 18 2006, 07:00 PM

QUOTE(Freedom @ Oct 18 2006, 06:55 PM)

I believe Danny's step-daughter! She has no reason to lie.

God, will hold those accountable that know about the wrong doings at 3ABN and don't come forward!

I agree with you, but this has gone too far on this website and we need to discuss on better things. It seems to me that people don't have nothing better to do and the bottom of this is that this is gossip and we all know it!!!!

Posted by: Clay Oct 18 2006, 07:02 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:00 PM)

I agree with you, but this has gone too far on this website and we need to discuss on better things. It seems to me that people don't have nothing better to do and the bottom of this is that this is gossip and we all know it!!!!

you think its gossip.... others don't..... this is a discussion board... we discuss things.... as far as what people do, let them and God work it out....

Posted by: motivator Oct 18 2006, 07:06 PM

For those who disagree answer the question, what is the payoff in continuing to dwell upon this? What pleasure are we getting from reading all of this dirt? This is gossip, no way around it and God is not pleased. Matthew 7:12.

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 18 2006, 08:02 PM)

you think its gossip.... others don't..... this is a discussion board... we discuss things.... as far as what people do, let them and God work it out....

You know you like to hear this stuff. Tell God the truth!

QUOTE(Freedom @ Oct 18 2006, 07:55 PM)

I believe Danny's step-daughter! She has no reason to lie.

God, will hold those accountable that know about the wrong doings at 3ABN and don't come forward!

How is that going to help the situation? Can we really believe this person. This is gossip and the truth is that a lot of people who are on this discussion board on this issue really get pleasure out of this drama. We love drama and once this dies away, we will look for another stimulus to feed our gossiping appetites.

Posted by: Clay Oct 18 2006, 07:08 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:04 PM)

For those who disagree answer the question, what is the payoff in continuing to dwell upon this? What pleasure are we getting from reading all of this dirt? This is gossip, no way around it and God is not pleased. Matthew 7:12.
You know you like to hear this stuff. Tell God the truth!

if its true its not dirt.... and I haven't heard anything... I have read quite a bit though, and as one of the staff I make it my job to read everything that's posted... .... so if you don't like what you read.... there are other forums on BSDA than you are more than welcome to peruse....

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:06 PM)

How is that going to help the situation? Can we really believe this person. This is gossip and the truth is that a lot of people who are on this discussion board on this issue really get pleasure out of this drama. We love drama and once this dies away, we will look for another stimulus to feed our gossiping appetites.

whateva.... hadn't stopped you from reading it... why don't you admit it that you enjoyed reading it and are sorry that its winding down...

Posted by: motivator Oct 18 2006, 07:09 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 18 2006, 08:08 PM)

if its true its not dirt.... and I haven't heard anything... I have read quite a bit though, and as one of the staff I make it my job to read everything that's posted... .... so if you don't like what you read.... there are other forums on BSDA than you are more than welcome to peruse.... whateva.... hadn't stopped you from reading it... why don't you admit it that you enjoyed reading it and are sorry that its winding down...

It's still dirt! Yeah, the situation is serious, but some of these discussions have gone too far, that's all I'm saying!

Posted by: Clay Oct 18 2006, 07:10 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:09 PM)

It's still dirt! Yeah, the situation is serious, but some of these discussions have gone too far, that's all I'm saying!

what you didnt say is that you have enjoyed every sordid twist.... now you feeling a little guilty perhaps?

Posted by: motivator Oct 18 2006, 07:14 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 18 2006, 07:10 PM)

what you didnt say is that you have enjoyed every sordid twist.... now you feeling a little guilty perhaps?

(Laugh!!!!!!)

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 07:13 PM)

(Laugh!!!!!!)

Who made you God to read my heart?

Posted by: Clay Oct 18 2006, 07:15 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:14 PM)

(Laugh!!!!!!)
Who made you God to read my heart?

its your words I am reading.... and they betray you my friend.....

Posted by: watchbird Oct 18 2006, 07:29 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 07:06 PM)

For those who disagree answer the question, what is the payoff in continuing to dwell upon this? What pleasure are we getting from reading all of this dirt? This is gossip, no way around it and God is not pleased. Matthew 7:12.
You know you like to hear this stuff. Tell God the truth!
How is that going to help the situation? Can we really believe this person. This is gossip and the truth is that a lot of people who are on this discussion board on this issue really get pleasure out of this drama. We love drama and once this dies away, we will look for another stimulus to feed our gossiping appetites.

Hmmm..... interesting use of "we" here .... but most likely covered under dictionary definitions number 5 or 6.....

"5. Also called the royal we. (used by a sovereign, or by other high officials and dignitaries, in place of I in formal speech): We do not wear this crown without humility."
"6. Also called the editorial we. (used by editors, writers, etc., to avoid the too personal or specific I or to represent a collective viewpoint): As for this column, we will have nothing to do with shady politicians".

Posted by: sister Oct 18 2006, 07:30 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 08:06 PM)

How is that going to help the situation? Can we really believe this person. This is gossip and the truth is that a lot of people who are on this discussion board on this issue really get pleasure out of this drama. We love drama and once this dies away, we will look for another stimulus to feed our gossiping appetites.

To answer your some of your questions:

1. How this helps the situation is to educate those who do not have first hand knowledge of what goes on at 3ABN, with the full knowledge of Danny Shelton, which will bring disgrace upon both the SDA church and God; since Danny now claims to be a supporting ministry of the SDA church and "God's anointed head of 3ABN" (3ABN's words, not mine).
2. If the person you are referring to in regard to their credibility is Allysa, then the answer is yes we can believe her testimony of her experiences with Danny Shelton. First she has no reason to lie and nothing to gain from the humiliation that a victim feels when addressing the unwanted "attentions" that are forced upon them.

3. Gossip? Not from where I and a number of others stand. It is testimony. An attempt to warn and educate the members in the pews.
4. As to the motivation of the readers on this forum, personally I do not have the ability to determine why they choose to read about 3ABN. Perhaps they are just looking for the truth...

Posted by: watchbird Oct 18 2006, 07:31 PM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 07:14 PM)

(Laugh!!!!!!)
Who made you God to read my heart?

Don't have to be "God". Any ol' grammar teacher could figger it out.....

Posted by: howdy Oct 18 2006, 07:46 PM

What has happened to those people who were promising a speedy solution to the 3abn thing? Has the whole thing turned out to be a farce? Where is Johan and his friends? Has Danny eliminated them? I'm feeling slightly abused hee now!

howdy

Posted by: princessdi Oct 18 2006, 09:05 PM

It has been my experience tht people who offend in some way, shape, or form ALWAYS count on the passage of time. Then they, t heir supporters, and even those who agree that they are wrong will say for example, That was two years ago'. trying to make the eprson trying to hold them accountable seem silly and petty. What they are really saying is, " I got away with it two years ago, and you all need to get over it".

The other things "christians" who offend count on is out reluctance to call sin by it's name, and hold the person accountable until the right thing is done. First of all, the longer t heir deeds remain in darkness they escalate and fester. It odesn't even help if we "elude" to it, if it they are not directly confronted, they will continue.

So you asked what good is coming form this? What is the payoff? If nothing else Danny knows that somebody is aware of his offenses, and they are laid out before him. He cann't say that he was unaware of his actions. It is here in black and white for him to see.

Now, my suggestion to you is that you probably avail yourself to the other forums here are BSDA. They all existed long before 3ABN, and there is not one negative word about Danny in any of them.

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 06:06 PM)

For those who disagree answer the question, what is the payoff in continuing to dwell upon this? What pleasure are we getting from reading all of this dirt? This is gossip, no way around it and God is not pleased. Matthew 7:12.
You know you like to hear this stuff. Tell God the truth!
How is that going to help the situation? Can we really believe this person. This is gossip and the truth is that a lot of people who are on this discussion board on this issue really get pleasure out of this drama. We love drama and once this dies away, we will look for another stimulus to feed our gossiping appetites.

Posted by: sonshineonme Oct 18 2006, 09:12 PM

QUOTE(howdy @ Oct 18 2006, 06:46 PM)

What has happened to those people who were promising a speedy solution to the 3abn thing? Has the whole thing turned out to be a farce? Where is Johan and his friends? Has Danny eliminated them? I'm feeling slightly abused hee now!

howdy

Howdy Howdy!
I really don't recall anyone promising a "speedy solution" to this horrible mess, but I can tell you there is a solution in the works....there is nothing about this that is a farce, and Johann and all are still very much around, but also very busy with many things....Dan eliminating them?? Well, yes, I would say that is exactly what he is trying to do, in his usual ways, only more desperatly.... but it will not work anymore. Please don't feel abused, but do please pray for all involved. This is truely a mess, and it will not go away easily, but it is being dealt with as we speak. Hold tight!

Posted by: summertime Oct 19 2006, 08:30 AM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 07:00 PM)

I agree with you, but this has gone too far on this website and we need to discuss on better things. It seems to me that people don't have nothing better to do and the bottom of this is that this is gossip and we all know it!!!!

Motivator, I am wondering why you are following this subject with such zeal. You have to want to know all about it or you would not be writing about it. Are you for real---or for whom do you speak? You have a mouse that could carry you elsewhere---right? Let God do the judging.

Posted by: Johann Oct 19 2006, 01:08 PM

QUOTE(howdy @ Oct 19 2006, 03:46 AM)

What has happened to those people who were promising a speedy solution to the 3abn thing? Has the whole thing turned out to be a farce? Where is Johan and his friends? Has Danny eliminated them? I'm feeling slightly abused hee now!

howdy

Have been travelling. Not able to connect to the Internet all the time. It may seem like a lull at the moment, but thank God, there are more and more people at work, preparing a cleansing of the vehicles the Lord is using to proclaim a warning message to the world before it is too late. Thank you for your support by your prayers.

Posted by: justme Oct 24 2006, 09:12 AM

QUOTE(motivator @ Oct 18 2006, 09:14 PM)

(Laugh!!!!!!)
Who made you God to read my heart?

Motivator,
Welcome to BSDA. This place will cause you to think and use your mind. The frequent mention of "God" in your posts leads one to think you know Him personally, however, God has told us the in Isaiah that jealousy is a one very common sin. Isaiah also says that one get very jealous when see in another the vary sin he is covering up in himself. He sees his own sin the lives of others.

In light of this, one has to wonder why you harp on the issue of someone "playing God" when attaching motives to one's posts. You have pointed out that we should not "play God" by trying to read other people's minds/hearts.

Re read your posts one after another. That is exactly what you have been doing in your posts. You accuse others of "Playing God" and "Reading your heart". Yet you scold others for "enjoying the gossip"! Is that your way of "Playing God"? Has God given you the gift of "mind-reading", a power that ONLY GOD HAS?

That gift, the "gift" you have assumed upon yourself, comes from another source, one that rebelled against God thousands of years ago.

If you are dysfunctional here, it will become evident quickly. There are people here who can reason from cause to effect, without emotional involvement.

The fact remains, Danny, hisself claimed to have the power of discernment when he attached his own imaginings to the co-founder of 3ABN. He became jealous of her acceptance and talent and had to eliminate her through "manufactured stories and paid witnesses". Danny tries to destroy whatever he cannot control. Beware, you may be on his list, and not even know it, ... yet.

Posted by: summertime Oct 25 2006, 03:48 PM

Just me has said, "The fact remains, Danny, hisself claimed to have the power of discernment when he attached his own imaginings to the co-founder of 3ABN. He became jealous of her acceptance and talent and had to eliminate her through "manufactured stories and paid witnesses". Danny tries to destroy whatever he cannot control. Beware, you may be on his list, and not even know it, ... yet."

[/quote]

Danny is destroying himself and 3ABN---maybe not in the totality of taking 3ABN off the air or removing 3ABN from off the face of TV. But just this weekend I was looking at some old tapes that I had made for distribution to friends who are unable or do not want to go to church each week. And I was made really sad when I was reminded of what 3ABN used to be and what it is today.

In past years I have watched 3ABN with great admiration and I felt that through them God was speaking to me when I could not attend the meetings or go to church. There were so many good programs that spoke of the love of God and the soon coming earth made new. Even though I now know of the deceit that was in the souls of many of the people speaking on 3ABN I still felt that it was a satellite placed in the heavens to tell others about the love of God for us poor sinful mortals on this earth.

Now I see the Founder (?) stealing the rights of his Cofounder and claiming that God speaks to him thus directing the things that the world sees on 3ABN. More and more the world is seeing him for what he is and more and more the view of what we see on 3ABN is floundering and becoming downright discouraging. Defensiveness and backbiting is seen spoken by the same people that I used to think were speaking for God. People who were admired, at least by me, are turned off because I know that the things that they may be saying are not really coming from honest Christian hearts. These people speak well and think wrong. I know that some good people are still seen on 3ABN but if any of you can just watch a tape from 4 years ago and then watch a day of live 3ABN today, you would see the difference. Probably 3ABN will survive and probably Dan Shelton will survive somewhere and someplace with his new family---but God knows the difference and he will judge Danny and Brandy as he sees them and records their hearts and actions in the books of heaven. He knows why they did what they did when they eliminated Linda for their own purposes. I expect 3ABN to survive but I also know that those who have lied, stolen reputations and money and think that they will make it right someday should not wait too long to make their sins right with God. After rewatching the recorded videos of a few years ago, it makes me really sick when I think of what 3ABN has become today. We need to pray for all the good people who may still be at 3ABN but we also need to pray for the revival of what 3ABN was really meant to be. Linda should still be there encouraging the viewers every morning---she made 3ABN what it used to be. Somebody, if not Linda, needs to restore it to what it was. God must be very sad.

Posted by: no_cults Oct 28 2006, 11:57 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Oct 18 2006, 07:59 PM)

Hard to tell who he speaks for

I can make a guess

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

152

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ It's Bigger Than 3abn

Posted by: Ralph Oct 20 2006, 12:13 AM

I observed something interesting among the Campa Indians of Peru. If you heard a whoop of laughter, it was not because someone told a good (or naughty) joke; It meant that someone had gotten hurt. Laughter was their way of lessening the tension. And here on BSDA we joke. Some people feel that it is inappropriate, but I wonder if we don't do it for the same reason. We are discussing serious stuff here. And it's bigger than 3abn.

It is said that we can gauge the ethics of a society by how it treats the weakest among them. How do we measure up both individually and collectively? Although much focus has been on Linda and her daughter, they may represent issues that are cancers of not only 3abn, but of our church and maybe our countries.

Our denomination may be caught in the dilemma between competing sorrows. On one hand, I have it hard to believe that our evangelists and church administrators would sit idly by if they were aware that the allegations that have been mentioned on BSDA would stand up in court of law. On the other hand they have to face the fact that 3abn is the face of Adventism to so many people throughout the world. If GC were to intervene and bring 3abn down, it could fracture the church with 3abn supporters throughout the world feeling that GC was being high handed.

Will this crisis have to play itself out until the hearts of all men are revealed? If the leaders and board of 3abn were to step aside now, it could save a lot of problems down the road. There is a time when it is wise for leaders to let others take their place in the front lines.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 20 2006, 09:06 PM

> QUOTE(Ralph @ Oct 20 2006, 01:13 AM)
>
> If the leaders and board of 3abn were to step aside now, it could save a lot of problems down the road. There is a time when it is wise for leaders to let others take their place in the front lines.

Spoken like a person that is NOT in leadership. I agree with you, Ralph, that would be the ideal, but noone at 3ABN is going to step down.

Posted by: Johann Oct 21 2006, 09:41 AM

> QUOTE(Ralph @ Oct 20 2006, 08:13 AM)
>
> There is a time when it is wise for leaders to let others take their place in the front lines.

What would the pioneer do? A General Conference President stepped down when his unmarried daughter got pregnant.

Posted by: summertime Oct 23 2006, 10:34 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Oct 21 2006, 09:41 AM)

What would the pioneer do? A General Conference President stepped down when his unmarried daughter got pregnant.

Johann: That was in the days of honesty, respect for decency and conscience. Will we ever get back to that kind of respect for God and for ourselves? I'm watching and waiting for that day to come---even in our own church leaders.

Posted by: Clay Oct 23 2006, 11:27 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Oct 21 2006, 10:41 AM)

What would the pioneer do? A General Conference President stepped down when his unmarried daughter got pregnant.

why would he do that? That was his daughter's decision not his? Its not like he could control her 24/7 and prevent her from doing what she wanted to do..... oh wait, maybe he THOUGHT he should be able to do that..... either way, that was no reason to resign in my opinion.....

Posted by: Lee Oct 23 2006, 02:11 PM

The Bible says in 1 Tim. 3:1-4 what is required of an Elder or leader in our church. Verse four says "One that ruleth well his own house, having his children in subjection with all gravity." That GC President absolutely did the right thing, though it could not have been easy. What dishonor his daughter brought to the whole family by her actions. This GC President recognized his failure and acted promptly. He is to be commended.

Posted by: Clay Oct 23 2006, 02:39 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Oct 23 2006, 03:11 PM)

The Bible says in 1 Tim. 3:1-4 what is required of an Elder or leader in our church. Verse four says "One that ruleth well his own house, having his children in subjection with all gravity." That GC President absolutely did the right thing, though it could not have been easy. What dishonor his daughter brought to the whole family by her actions. This GC President recognized his failure and acted promptly. He is to be commended.

I think not... if the unmarried daughter was grown it was not the right thing to do... dishonor on the family? please.... she may have embarrassed herself, but her choice is not a reflection on her parents... according to that logic then Lucifer has brought dishonor to God and God therefore should step down from being the sovereign ruler of the universe.....

Bad choices by the children are NOT a failure of the parents.... were that the case the greatest parent of all, is the greatest failure of all.....

He should have stayed....

Posted by: princessdi Oct 23 2006, 02:49 PM

Go on and preach, Steve! We make bad decicions all the time, but it is no reflection on the character of God. We can on teach our children, they still have all their own decisions to make. He should have stayed. Not only did that girl have to live with oher own bad choice, but then the whole of the family honor was thrust up on her. So she got to be guilty for her father losing his job, too. We are not saved by families, either.

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 23 2006, 12:39 PM)

I think not... if the unmarried daughter was grown it was not the right thing to do... dishonor on the family? please.... she may have embarrassed herself, but her choice is not a reflection on her parents... according to that logic then Lucifer has brought dishonor to God and God therefore should step down from being the sovereign ruler of the universe.....

Bad choices by the children are NOT a failure of the parents.... were that the case the greatest parent of all, is a failure.....

He should have stayed....

Posted by: västergötland Oct 23 2006, 02:54 PM

Dishonour the family? Sounds like muslim family honour, except that the muslim might have keept the job and killed the daughter. Same foundation of "dishonour" though.

Posted by: Clay Oct 23 2006, 02:58 PM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Oct 23 2006, 03:54 PM)

Dishonour the family? Sounds like muslim family honour, except that the muslim might have keept the job and killed the daughter. Same foundation of "dishonour" though.

true Thomas.... it would have been a "honor" killing, i.e. the daughter has dishonored the family so she must die.....

Posted by: seeshell Oct 23 2006, 03:22 PM

But maybe the father knew in his heart that his daughter's mistake was due to a lack in his parenting.

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Oct 23 2006, 04:04 PM

My guess is that in that day and age the pregnancy of the daughter would have been a terrible distraction, so much so that position of the presidency would have suffered.

Richard

Posted by: HEIRTOTHEPROMISE Oct 23 2006, 07:26 PM

[font=Arial Black][size=4]

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 23 2006, 02:39 PM)

I think not... if the unmarried daughter was grown it was not the right thing to do... dishonor on the family? please.... she may have embarrassed herself, but her choice is not a reflection on her parents... according to that logic then Lucifer has brought dishonor to God and God therefore should step down from being the sovereign ruler of the universe.....

Bad choices by the children are NOT a failure of the parents.... were that the case the greatest parent of all, is the greatest failure of all.....

He should have stayed....

Posted by: Tori Oct 23 2006, 07:56 PM

HA!!! What if the daughter was a son? The passage quoted presumes that the children are the property of the elder. It becomes a woman's issue.

Posted by: Truly Blonde Oct 23 2006, 08:04 PM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Oct 23 2006, 02:04 PM)

My guess is that in that day and age the pregnancy of the daughter would have been a terrible distraction, so much so that position of the presidency would have suffered.

Richard

Having grown up under the rules that govern the heiarchy of the church I believe today the president would not have resigned. Thirty years ago a pregnancy by an unwed daughter could have cost the president his job if he hadn't resigned.

I cannot tell you the pressure that our church exerted on pastors and the leaders of the church. We were to be examples for the rest of the church members. When I was in the academy, on a weekend leave I went to a movie with some of my friends. (A drive-in no less). The first movie I ever attended. I was told that I could be expelled from school for doing this.(I wasn't) but I could have because of who my father was. It made no sense to me because they would show movies at the academy and that was ok, just not in a theater. My father's job could also have been in jeopardy. This was a heavy burden for a teenager to carry. For you youngins this is very hard to comprehend. Today even the pastors attend movies and think nothing of it. It wasn't always so!!!

I would say the bigger issue here is why was that kind of pressure put on the employees of the church back then? I personally feel that if things had been different back then a lot more of the church employee's children would still be in the church.

Posted by: Clay Oct 23 2006, 08:17 PM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Oct 23 2006, 09:04 PM)

Having grown up under the rules that govern the heiarchy of the church I believe today the president would not have resigned. Thirty years ago a pregnancy by an unwed daughter could have cost the president his job if he hadn't resigned.

I cannot tell you the pressure that our church exerted on pastors and the leaders of the church. We were to be examples for the rest of the church members. When I was in the academy, on a weekend leave I went to a movie with some of my friends. (A drive-in no less). The first movie I ever attended. I was told that I could be expelled from school for doing this.(I wasn't) but I could have because of who my father was. It made no sense to me because they would show movies at the academy and that was ok, just not in a theater. My father's job could also have been in jeopardy. This was a heavy burden for a teenager to carry. For you youngins this is very hard to comprehend. Today even the pastors attend movies and think nothing of it. It wasn't always so!!!

I would say the bigger issue here is why was that kind of pressure put on the employees of the church back then? I personally feel that if things had been different back then a lot more of the church employee's children would still be in the church.

I am old enough to remember that craziness..... it was wrong then and it would be wrong now.... double standards and inconsistent disciplinary actions.... same old story.... as I have said, some people have given the church toooo much power over their lives....

Posted by: Denny Oct 24 2006, 05:52 AM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Oct 24 2006, 03:04 AM)

I would say the bigger issue here is why was that kind of pressure put on the employees of the church back then? I personally feel that if things had been different back then a lot more of the church employee's children would still be in the church.

The church stressed works more than relationship so it was not who you knew but what you did that counted more....Sometime we think society was 'more moral' back in the day I prefer to think society including the church was better at covering things up and the stigma of getting caught was greater than it is now. Plus some things should never have been taboo in the first place.

Posted by: Clay Oct 25 2006, 08:19 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Oct 24 2006, 06:52 AM)

The church stressed works more than relationship so it was not who you knew but what you did that counted more....Sometime we think society was 'more moral' back in the day I prefer to think society including the church was better at covering things up and the stigma of getting caught was greater than it is now. Plus some things should never have been taboo in the first place.

along that line remember some could get away with almost anything, others could not..... I suspect that when its all said and done this will be just a bump in the road... a big bump no less, but one that folks get over....

IPB Image

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

153

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Dr. Bacchiocchi's Thoughts

Posted by: beartrap Sep 14 2006, 10:02 AM

DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

The 3ABN saga of Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and remarriage has attracted considerable attention. Many subscribers to our newsletters have emailed me all sorts of gossip information. Both Danny and Linda also have exchanged several messages with me. Danny claims to be totally innocent, because it was Linda who had an affair with a Norwagian doctor, Arild Abrahamsen, and left him to be with her lover.

Linda denies all the allegations, as you can read for yourself at her website: http://www.lindashelton.org/ She claims that she never had an affair with Arild, she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, and she never wanted a divorce.

At this point only God knows who is telling the truth. The only thing that we know for sure is that Danny remarried a 20 years younger, twice divorced woman, while Linda is still single.

In response to the many enquiries I decided to put together the following information:

1) The two sides of the Linda/Danny Shelton story as posted at the BLACK SDA WEBSITE: http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

2) My understanding of the Biblical teaching on Divorce and Remarriage and its application especially to Danny's remarriage of a divorced woman.

The focus of my study is on the biblical teaching on divorce and remarriage. Danny and Linda Shelton are briefly mentioned only as a case study of the Biblical teaching.

THE BLACK ADVENTIST ONLINE COMMUNITY

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

The Accused Other Man Evidence: Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

06/20/2006
Greetings from Norway;

My name is Dr. Arild Abrahamsen. I live in Svindal, Norway. I have been a medical doctor for more than 35 years. I am a member of the Moss SDA Church. I've been the Sabbath School Superintendent for 14 years and the head elder for 4 years, which position I am presently serving. I am the Norwegian doctor who has been slandered by Dr. Walt Thompson, chairman of the board of 3ABN, Danny Shelton, John Lomacang and others.

Since I have observed the situation and the slander only getting worse, I feel it best to share my experience. I share my personal experience, what I have seen and heard. Much of this information has been verified by other sources, which include emails, letters and the personal experiences of others. I share my experience not to attack any individual or organization, but to bring the truth of this situation to the surface.

I have been shocked to observe the events of the last two years. I have made no public statement until now. I had hoped things would resolve themselves.

I visited Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson at 3ABN the last week of 2003. The purpose of the trip was to see them and visit the ministry, which I personally had been supporting for some time. I had never been to 3ABN previously, nor had I met the Shelton's. During this visit I discovered from the Thorvaldsson's that Linda Shelton's son, Nathan, was in a dangerous state of health because of an addiction to drugs and working in coalmines. I offered to see him. This visit resulted in an invitation for Nathan to come to Norway for treatments. Nathan came to Norway around January 20, 2004 along with his friend, Dava Vice. Linda came for a 3-? day visit to support her son, the first week of February together with Brenda Walsh. This was the last time I saw Linda until the weekend she was fired.

I had a chance to visit with Nathan regularly. I learned from my conversations with Nathan that the roots of his drug problems were the relationships with his father and stepfather. Specifically he told me that Danny had turned his back on him. I shared this information with his mother on the phone. She told me that Danny said he had no responsibility towards Nathan since he was a product of her first marriage, so she felt she had to do what she could to help her son. There was nothing unusual in the occasional phone reports I gave Nathan's mother while he was in Norway. After Nathan returned home, I asked Linda to keep me updated on Nathan's progress.

I was shocked to discover in early March of 2004 that Danny was threatening to get Linda fired from 3ABN because of some conversations on the phone. In fact, she was threatened immediately with divorce. By this time Nathan had started with drugs again and Linda was seeking advice. I was also shocked to discover that Brenda had started circulating untrue statements as well. (Was it because Danny had admitted to some emotional involvement with Brenda?) I talked to Danny one time on the phone and found him to be unreasonable, unbalanced and very difficult to communicate with. Johann Thorvaldsson, a retired pastor of the SDA Church of 50 years, also was in communication with Danny, both by phone and email. We talked together and shared the same opinion that Danny was acting completely irrational and unreasonable towards his wife. It appeared he was attempting to leave an email trail filled with untruths to verify a position at a later time. The decision was made to stop the communication by phone with Linda.

Some weeks went by. Johann and Irmgard were getting treatments at my clinic and staying in my home during the Easter week in April, so I discovered from them that the situation was not improving for Linda. She was being harassed, threatened, and unreasonable demands by her husband were repeatedly being made to confess things she had not done. By this time, she was also suspended from her job at 3ABN, an order that was issued and enforced by her husband with no Board action. Things were so bad in the home that she found it necessary to go to her daughter's home in Springfield, Illinois for safety and rest on several occasions. Derrell Mundall, who was traveling often for 3ABN, reports rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were in SDA churches in April 2004, when Linda was still living with Danny. When he inquired about the source of the rumors, people always pointed to Danny Shelton.

I could see from my 35 years of experience as a physician that Danny was a psychopath. accusations were directed at me that I had done "mind control" over Linda. (Walt Thompson made the same accusations in his letters.) Linda was accused of sending "secret messages" to me over the television. Danny's emails and communications with Johann were completely crazy, and his reasoning often conflicted with his previous emails. Danny targeted Linda's few inner circle confidants and slandered her to the point that even they backed away from her at this critical time. (Linda's "friends" did not want to lose their television privileges.) Johann and I concluded this was a man who was determined to get rid of his wife. We also concluded that Linda was in danger.

Things eventually progressed from emotional and mental abuse to physical abuse. In the midst of all this harassment Linda asked Danny, 'Why are you treating me like this?' He answered, 'Because I want you to get out.'

Considering the urgency of the situation I allowed the conversations to resume. Linda knew, with her high profile status, that confiding with local people regarding these issues would be very bad for the ministry. I had given counsel to people in difficulty in the past and felt I could be helpful from a distance in this situation. I encouraged Linda to fight for her marriage and ministry many times. This she really did, but she often had to leave her home to find refuge at her daughter's apartment in Springfield, even in the middle of the night because of Danny's behavior. At times like these she was afraid of him. She always returned to her home after a couple of days seeking to try to mend the marriage, but Danny would not allow this.

During the spring of 2004 Danny called my pastor in Norway. Danny tried to get me kicked out as an elder and as a member of the church. My pastor told me about the conversation and he said, "He is mentally sick, he needs professional help."

I find it very disturbing that Walt Thompson defended and continues to defend Danny although he was a witness repeatedly to the emotional and mental abuse that was taking place. At one point he witnessed Danny "trashing" his wife for five hours. I also find it disturbing that John Lomacang, Linda's former pastor, claims to have counseled extensively with Danny and Linda when this was far from the truth. During the months of April and May of 2004, when most of the activity was ccurring in this situation, Linda NEVER saw John, who was supposed to be her pastor.

Coincidentally the handful of people supporting Danny and defending his actions has gained either power, position, airtime, homes, public endorsement or all of the above.

At one point I had a conversation with Walt Thompson, Chairman of the Board of 3ABN. He asked me to stop all communication with Linda. This had also been communicated to Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson and others. I told him that it was obviously Danny's plan to isolate Linda from everyone at a time when she needed help. To me it was the Christian thing to answer her phone calls and the only humane thing to do for someone who was in crisis.

Others did not come to Linda's aid because they did not want to lose whatever benefit they gained from 3ABN, whether it be a job, programming, promotions, etc. Walt was also the one who phoned Linda when she was suspended from the ministry by her husband. He instructed her that she must not come to the ministry (which she co-founded) without calling ahead of time because she must be supervised when at 3ABN. Danny broke into a locked bathroom to forcefully take her keys to 3ABN from her. Her hard drive of her computer was confiscated, her contact information taken and even her filing cabinets ravaged, all without any kind of Board action.

Linda was living in an impossible situation. Danny was "in her face" on a regular basis. At times he would say, "If you don't say you're a pathological liar, the marriage and 3ABN is over. If you don't say you're an adulterous woman the marriage and 3ABN is over for you. If you don't say you've given your heart to another man and that he is a demon the marriage and 3ABN is over..... etc." It even reached the point when he demanded her to say "Repeat after me." Johann and I received a couple emails, which said they were from Linda, but they were written by Danny. Linda saw her ministry being destroyed one day at a time. All of this was dehumanizing and terrifying to Linda, who was trying to hold things together. She very much realized what was at stake.

An "investigative committee" was put together by Walt Thompson to look into this situation. They were Walt Thompson, Bill Hulsey, Nick Miller and Kay Kuzma. Danny talked privately at length with each of these people. Linda did not. The committee as a whole never met with Linda at all. In one brief phone conversation with Kay Kuzma she told Linda, "The Board is not interested in you and Danny's personal problems. It is only interested in the fact that the President no longer wants his Vice-President." Johann Thorvaldsson testifies that he spoke with Kay the following day. She told him she was instructed to get Linda used to the idea of not being at 3ABN anymore and to try to get her involved in another ministry.

It's interesting that at the time Danny accused Linda for speaking on the phone to me, that he was in the practice of speaking regularly with Brenda, Linda's "friend." He also visited often with her in her 3ABN apartment in the night. A worker at 3ABN states that Brenda even went golfing with Danny behind Linda's back while she was working. As soon as Brenda saw where the tide was turning, she was no longer Linda's friend. She became an accuser as well.

About May 1, 2004 instructions were given to the production staff to wipe Linda's face off of the network by June 1, again with no Board action.

All CD's, videos, literature and photos of Linda were stripped out of the Call Center. She was sent a document a few days later specifying that she was advised to get 30 days of counseling by counselors of "their" choice. If she did not agree to this in writing within 24 hours, her employment could be gone. She requested time for an attorney to look at the document. This was refused. Mail was flooding into the network with Linda's name on it. They were all returned to sender. Her scheduled speaking appointments for women's ministries were sabotaged by those in leadership at 3ABN. Danny told those who worked for Linda that she was a pathological liar and to stay away from her. (He did not want them to hear the other side of the story.) At one point Linda told Walt that Dan was purposefully ruining her reputation and that she was not willing to be a martyr for 3ABN. Walt's response was "How else are we going to save the ministry?"

Rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were flying throughout the churches and the General Conference in May of 2004, rumors which were begun by her husband. It was communicated to me that Linda was going to be fired at the Board meeting, which would occur in May, following the 3ABN camp meeting. Johann and I decided to go to the camp meeting and talk to the Board members and tell them the truth about the situation. When we walked into the 3ABN building we were surrounded by about 10 people. One person stood directly behind me for the entire service. Walt Thompson and Nick Miller (3ABN's attorney) asked us to leave. We stayed until nearly the end of the service. (At this camp meeting an announcement was made regarding Linda. There were tearful appeals by Danny, which raised a record-breaking amount of money for 3ABN. Danny also claims that an additional two million dollars was raised the year of their divorce.) When Johann and I went to the door, once again we were followed by a small crowd of people. I spoke to Mark Finley about the situation at length in the parking lot. John Lomacang tried to stop the conversation. He said 'It is not good for you to talk to him alone.' What was he afraid of? He was standing with me when Danny drove up and said that if I returned to camp meeting I would be arrested and thrown in jail. He had already talked to the Sheriff. I decided to not return, as it was Mark Finley's suggestion to avoid the possibility of disrupting the camp meeting for all of the people attending. Linda was staying in her daughter's apartment in Springfield, so we drove there on Saturday to stay in a hotel for the weekend. During this weekend we were followed by three private investigators all the time. What kind of actions was that, for a man that REALLY wanted to save his marriage?

It is my understanding that a one-sided conversation was illegally taped by Danny towards the end of May. With a mind set on framing his wife, her words have been misconstrued into saying what he wants people to think. She mentions a trip to Las Vegas. He explains to all that she is planning a rendezvous with "the doctor." In reality for weeks he has offered Linda larger and larger sums of money for her to go to Las Vegas and stay with her mother for six weeks to acquire residency, a requirement for couples that want a quick divorce. For weeks she refused. SHE NEVER WANTED A DIVORCE.

The events of the previous months eventually bring her to the place where she thinks this is maybe what she should do. She knew a separation was necessary. Danny takes her words from the phone call and adds his insinuations. He makes photo copies of her one sided conversation and distributes it. This is his main source of "proof" for his actions and re-marriage. They call it circumstantial evidence." To further cover their tracks Linda's accusers say that for her sake they don't want to tell "all she has done." They say this so people will accept their statements and imagine the worst. This is slander of the worst kind all coming from professed Christians.

Johann says he was fired from 3ABN for refusing to attest to something false Danny wanted him to put in writing about Linda. Derrell Mundall, Danny's ex-son-in-law, says he was given the option to resign or be fired because of his actions defending Linda. Others quit their jobs because they could not support the actions of the leaders. There is one thing many of these people have in common. Anyone who disagrees with Danny is slandered and discredited.

It's interesting that Danny's daughter recently was found to be pregnant out of wedlock. A quick wedding followed when Derrell, (her ex-husband & father of their four children), claims she had no grounds for re-marriage. It's also interesting that nobody asked Derrell about the issue of grounds at all when he was still a resident in Thompsonville. Also another married Shelton family member had a romantic encounter recently with a married employee of 3ABN. They were instructed to keep it quiet. They did. They all still work at 3ABN, and Melody is featured on the network. Is 3ABN all about standing for principle and values, or standing for those who happen to be in good graces with the President and the Shelton family ?

Another question that seems to be in the minds of many is "Why was Linda given $240,000 when all claim she was fired for a wrongdoing?" The only reason Linda signed this 3ABN contract was because she needed money to escape from a very irregular, abusive and impossible situation. Danny forced her to sign not only this contract, but another contract which sold him her half of their joint-owned home the same day.

Linda has suffered much emotional trauma and humiliation from all of this. She still has nightmares about these events. She did not feel ready to face the people of the SDA church for six months after all of this occurred. I encouraged her to begin again. She went for the first time around the end of November of 2004 in Springfield. The people welcomed her. She requested her membership to be transferred out of the Thompsonville church into the Springfield church in December of 2004. The Springfield pastor had previously worked at 3ABN and knew Linda. He did not believe the rumors and encouraged the church to put her to work. It was a healing time for her to teach Sabbath School and occasionally preach.

In June of 2005 things changed. Pastor Grady was transferred out of the Springfield church, though he wanted to stay, and a pastor from 3ABN was moved into the church. Within two weeks John Stanton met with Linda and told her she would be doing nothing on the platform. She told him that the church really needed the help and she hoped that if she was asked once in two months to teach a Sabbath School class that she would be able to do this. He told her that the orders had come from the conference level. (The Illinois conference President sits on 3ABN's Board and his parents work for 3ABN.) During our visit to the General Conference Session Johann and I visited with this pastor. He told us he thought Linda was a liar. I TOLD HIM THAT LINDA HAD NEVER BEEN UNFAITHFUL TO HER HUSBAND and that all the rumors from her husband were lies. But this man had TV interests to pursue and he was in close connection with Danny and John Lomacang.

The last week of October 2005, a letter came to Linda from John Lomacang, the pastor of the Thompsonville (3ABN) church. It stated that the church board had voted "to call a church business session to recommend to the church that you be placed under censure." Linda called John to ask him why. He said it was because she had abandoned her marriage and ministry, which led to her divorce. (This is what Danny refers to as "grounds" to re-marry.) Linda planned to address the church business meeting. She wrote to Danny requesting a release from the restrictions of the contract she signed so she could openly share her side of the story. Danny denied this request. Because of this she felt forced to drop her membership there and then join another SDA church. This decision was made after much counsel with several SDA's. It's interesting that this recommendation for censure came almost 18 months after the fact. (Which kind of practice is this? Special for USA?) It's also interesting that all of this occurred while Danny was trying to gather evidence against Linda so he could re-marry.

Danny Shelton and the leadership of 3ABN are responsible for using the ministry of 3ABN to bring character assassination to Linda and others. In Linda's case, television and radio announcements were made denouncing her character. There was an announcement on the front page of 3ABN's website for many months. About 180,000 letters about Linda were sent to the mailing list at 3ABN. Videos about her were made and distributed. Magazine articles were written and submitted. Mailings were made to church officials. Many calls were taken at 3ABN where slanderous remarks about Linda were given over the phone. Many letters containing completely false statements were sent to many individuals. Danny even made his personal email address available over 3ABN so people could write to him and obtain his side of the story. They did a thorough job of character assassination.

Now two years later the "trashing" continues. It is inexcusable, especially for a proclaimed

Christian ministry.

In conclusion I want to clearly state that I have not committed adultery (emotional, physical, "spiritual"), and neither has Linda. The conversations we had were not unusual or inappropriate. Linda is the victim of domestic violence, only this has resulted in worldwide effects for our Church.

Linda has sought for help at the General Conference level. She has sought the aid of pastors. No one has an answer. She has tried repeatedly to meet with a committee from the Board of 3ABN. This request has not been granted. Still the bulk emails and letters flow from 3ABN slandering the innocent. This has been the most ungodly situation I have observed in my entire life. Any who find themselves not in good graces with Danny Shelton will find that their name is discredited and slandered in an attempt to destroy their influence. Linda has suffered the most with the loss of her job, her influence and reputation. But many others, including myself, have felt the heat coming from what is supposed to be a ministry representing Jesus Christ. This is an outrage. This is unacceptable. Accountability of leaders is a must. (Can bad fruits come from good trees?) As Christians, it is our duty to demand accountability and a high standard from leaders. I hope this testimony will fulfill the mission intended.

Respectfully,

Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

From Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN board of Directors
Regarding Danny's marriage

Dear Family and Friends of 3ABN,

Two years ago 3ABN was challenged by the most difficult battle the ministry has ever faced. It was a battle that threatened the very existence of the ministry and the work of preaching the end time message of the Three Angel's to the world. It is only because of the grace and power of God Almighty, and the faithful support of you, the 3ABN family, that the ministry has survived to preach another day. Today, the ministry is stronger than it has ever been and its reach into the world even broader and more powerful for the cause of truth.

As is always the case when in the public eye, questions arise, stories abound, and rumors spread. We thank God that you have trusted the leadership and board of 3ABN during this time and have stayed with us in ministry. More recently some of you have heard that Danny has found one to comfort him in his loneliness and sorrow. You may have also heard rumors about an allegedly illegal divorce occurring without Biblical grounds. This letter is an attempt to fill you in with the facts.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has taken the action that it has taken. I have been one that has plead with Linda to keep her marriage and her ministry and offered to provide counseling for them. I have known Danny and Linda almost from the beginning of the ministry and have been in their home many times. They had a good marriage. It was not until this third party got in the middle did things begin to fall apart. It is also true that Danny really did want to get back together again, but when it became obvious that couldn't happen, he correctly had to close the door on that part of his history lest it destroy him and the ministry.

The divorce was a mutually agreed thing, even the choice to get it from Guam where there would be no long wait. Linda had originally planned to move to Las Vegas long enough to become a resident there so as to get a divorce there. They then discovered the possibility of a divorce from

Guam, checked it out and found it to be legal, and decided to go that route. Though I believe Guam has now stopped the program, the legality of a Guam divorce had previously been taken to the U.S. Supreme Court where it was ruled legitimate. As chairman of the board, I did not try to influence the decision, but I will say that had they not obtained a quick divorce, the ministry would have been placed at much greater risk since the situation was causing so much dysfunction with leadership and staff. I believe time has verified the correctness of what was done then, both by Danny and by the board for the ministry.

Linda's web site recently stated that she and Danny were not divorced. She wrote this after the judge made the decision in Danny's favor. She claims she did not know this when she wrote it. Her web site referred to an e mail I sent to Johann Thorvaldson a year earlier saying that I had never accused her of adultery. I believe that exchange with him was in response to an accusation by him that we had fired her because of adultery. I was merely saying that she was not fired for adultery, but because she had defied the board in not discontinuing a relationship that was threatening to destroy the ministry. (I might add that the doctor also told me he would not break off the relationship, even though I pled with him to do so.) That letter to Johann was correct, and it is true that I have never directly accused her of adultery. That does not mean that I believe Linda is innocent. If by adultery one must be caught in bed with another person, I cannot prove Linda has committed adultery. If, on the other hand, hard evidence indicates that Linda was involved in an unacceptable relationship with another man qualifies for adultery, then there is no question about Danny's moral right to marry again.

As a board, we have chosen not to make the details of the evidence available to the public. I believe Satan is the accuser of the brethern. We have chosen to take the "high road" in this whole situation and say nothing more than we have been forced to say to try to quell rumors. We care about Linda and have tried not to do anything to hurt her more than she has already been hurt. I can tell you that I personally spent a great deal of time at 3ABN during those months when this was all happening. I spoke with Linda and Danny on numerous occasions. A sub committee of the board met and prayed with Danny and Linda and pled with Linda to call off the relationship. Danny and Linda spent an 8 hour session with a pair of Christian counselors (non-Adventist in an attempt to avoid bias) who had no doubts about the nature of Linda's conduct. We offered to provide Linda with the opportunity to go away for counseling with a counselor agreeable to both she and us. She did not respond to that offer or request.

Finally, the full board met, reviewed Linda's letter of explanation, and voted unanimously to remove her from the ministry and her seat on the board. Other church leaders who have been privy to some of the evidence we have are in full agreement with our decision.

The relationship Linda had with the Norwegian Dr. was not a normal doctor-patient relationship as she claims. It is true. Linda was very concerned about her son Nathan. He was the vehicle through which the Dr. reached Linda. Our evidence leaves no question that this became much more than a doctor-patient relationship. We know that the long hours on the phone together were not about Nathan and have hard evidence to support this knowledge - nor were times spent together on both sides of the Atlantic.

Furthermore, she refused to break it off, even after weeks of pleading with her to do so. We, the board believe the evidence we have clearly justifies the divorce and gives Danny the moral and legal right to remarry. Those in church leadership with whom we have shared some of this evidence agree with us. Out of concern for Linda we have been reluctant to make details public.

No, Danny is not to blame for what has happened here. On the contrary, he has bent over backwards trying to make things work and meeting her requests. Yet, she has never acknowledged that it was wrong for her to have another "friend".

The things I have stated here are accurate and correct. As far as the lady Danny has married is concerned, I can only say I believe his new wife is a very good person and will be a real asset to him as he carries on his heavy responsibilities. Just to clarify any rumor you may have heard, this relationship began long after the divorce. I was at 3ABN when this lady came from Florida looking for work. There was nothing going on before that time, and Danny definitely was not trying to "dump" Linda. I was with him during much of the time he agonized and mourned her loss. It is one thing to lose a loved one in death. It is much different to lose one to another lover - like cutting a dog's tail off one inch at a time! As to the matter of age difference, I will say that I do not believe that is any of my business. I find nothing in the Bible, and I don't remember any thing in the SOP indicating age differences for married couples. If it is legal, and morally correct, and if entered into with honesty, sincerity and earnest prayer for God's guidance, as I know happened here, it is not for me to criticize. In my own musings about this, I have concluded that it was no accident that brought Brandy to 3ABN. Either the devil was behind it, or God was. There is no question in my mind which one it was.

(Archo Dart was for many years a family and marriage counselor in the Adventist church. When in his 80's, he married one of my patients, who was then in her 50's. She loved and admired him till death many years later.)

I have had an interesting thought this week that I will share with you. It is this. God lost one of his closest companions when Lucifer went astray. More than that, myriads more angels left with him when he left heaven. Talk about grief or emotional pain. Experiences such as this with Linda, I think, help us to understand the pain of loss, and the reality of the war between God and Satan. Some have claimed it takes two to divorce. I don't think that is categorically true! This has been a terrible injury that has hit 3abn and Danny, and yes, Linda too, but it is one that I believe God understands - and He continues to bless his servants.

We recognize that we live in a world at war, and are working with a ministry that the devil would like to see destroyed. The war is real, and as in any other war there are real casualties. War is never pleasant, and spiritual battles may be some of the worst. Our hearts still ache for those who have been wounded. Our prayers continue to ascend on their behalf. Should acknowledgement of wrongdoing and penitence ever occur, we would be the first to forgive and forget. Unfortunately, that has not happened, and we must move on.

Some who have been aware of the growing relationship and the possibility of marriage have thought they should wait for a longer period of time before marrying. In discussions before the event, the 3ABN board reviewed the events of the past couple years and have agreed that there was no moral or legal reason precluding marriage. Realizing the heavy burdens resting on Danny and of his need for companionship, we, the board did not see any reason not to give our blessing to their union. We hope you, our 3ABN family, will agree too, and with us, welcome Brandy with open arms.

Should you have any questions that I might answer, please feel free to send them to me at 3ABN and I will do my best to try to answer them.

Sincerely in the precious name of Jesus,
Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN Board of Directors
Walter Thompson MD

REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University

Much of the discussion about Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and consequent remarriage of Danny, revolves on the legitimate grounds for them to divorce and for Danny to remarry. It appears to me that from a biblical standpoint, the issue is not, "Did Danny have a legitimate ground to divorce Linda, but should a Christian couple experiencing marital problems consider divorce as a solution to their problems in the first place?

The teaching of Jesus on divorce and remarriage is abundantly clear. Both Luke and Mark affirm the same teaching. "Every one who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and he who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery" (Luke 16:18). "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery" (Mark 10:11-12).

When Paul applied Jesus' teaching to the concrete marital problems that existed in the Church of Corinth, he clearly claims to give Christ's command by enjoining the wife not to separate from her husband, and the husband not to divorce his wife: "The wife should not separate from her husband, but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband- and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The total prohibition of divorce by Paul reflects the teaching of Jesus found in the Gospels.

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Danny is advancing all sorts of argument to prove that he is innocent and Linda is guilty. In the light of his allegations I asked Linda to respond to a dozen of specific questions. She denies all your allegations. She claims she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, she did not want a divorce, and she never had intimate relationship with the Arield, the Norwagian doctor, and she never married the man. It appears to me that had Linda been involved in an adulterous relationship, by now they would be married, especially since he is widow and she is divorced.

The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position.

The longer he holds on to his position, the more people will become disenchanted with him and 3ABN. In an age of instant communication, one cannot cover up past mistakes for very long.

My advice to Danny is largely based on Paul's teaching on Divorce and remarriage that we want to consider at this point.

THE TEACHING OF PAUL ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

Paul's teachings on divorce and remarriage are found in 1 Corinthians 7, where the apostle discusses three different types of marital problems. In 1 Corinthians 7:10-11 Paul speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts. His admonition given with Christ's authority is clear. Christian couples should not seek divorce, and if they separate they should remain single to leave the door open for reconciliation.

Since I have examined this passage in my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT, I will quote a few paragraph relevant to Danny and Linda's situation. Personally I feel that it is far more important to understand what the Bible teaches us on this important area of marital relationship, than to gossip about who is to be blamed.

In marital conflicts the blame seldom falls only on one partner. To a greater or lesser degree both partners have contributed to the problem and both need to seek a biblical solution to their problem. In seeking for a solution, it is important to remember that in the Bible marriage is not a social or civil contract that can be dissolved through the legal process, but it is a sacred, lifelong covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself.

The Teaching of Paul in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16

Paul's treatment of the divorce question in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 is most significant because it reveals how the teaching of Jesus on divorce was understood and applied to certain concrete marital situations in the apostolic church. He begins the chapter by setting forth some general principles about marriage. To avoid the temptation to sexual immorality, "each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband" (1 Cor 7:2). Both husband and wife should fulfill their respective conjugal rights (1 Cor 7:3-5). The unmarried and the widows who have the gift of celibacy should remain single as himself (1 Cor 7:7-8).

Next Paul discusses three different divorce situations: (1) the divorce of two believers (vv. 10-11), (2) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever does not want to divorce, and (3) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever wants to divorce. Since only the first situation is relevant to the case of Danny and Linda, I will quote from the book what I have written about it.

Divorce of Two Believers. Paul first speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts: "To the married I give charge, not I but the Lord, that the wife should not separate from her husband (but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband)-and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11).

Appealing to the teaching of Christ (cf. Mark 10:9, 11, 12; Luke 16:18; Matt 19:3-9), Paul declares in absolute terms that a Christian couple should not seek divorce. Twice he affirms the no-divorce principle: ". . . the wife should not separate from her husband . . . and the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The basis of Paul's prohibition is Christ's teaching that husband and wife are one flesh and what God has joined together no man should put asunder.

Paul recognizes, however, that human nature is perverse and that even a Christian husband or wife can make marriage intolerable for the other partner. A spouse who is out of fellowship with God can become intolerant, abusive, unfaithful, domineering, inconsiderate. Undoubtedly, Paul had run into situations of this kind and recognizes that sometimes separation may be inevitable. However, if separation becomes a necessity, Paul leaves Christian partners with two options: (1) to remain permanently unmarried, or (2) to be reconciled to one's partner.

It is important to note that Paul appeals to the teaching of Jesus ("not I but the Lord") in ruling against the possibility of divorce for a Christian couple. On this regard, New Testament scholar F. F. Bruce comments: "For a Christian husband or wife, divorce is excluded by the law of Christ: here Paul has no need to express a judgment of his own, for the Lord's ruling on this matter was explicit."

To appreciate the revolutionary nature of such teaching, it is important to remember that divorce and remarriage was allowed in both the Jewish and Roman society. Yet Paul affirms the no-divorce principle for Christians as a word of the Lord which will be accepted without challenge. This goes to show that within twenty-five years of the crucifixion itself, the Apostolic Church believed and taught that Christ had proclaimed the permanence of the marriage union. This belief played an important role in the Christian mission to revolutionize the values of the existing society.

In Paul's day, there was no provision for a wife to be legally separated from her husband without being divorced. Fortunately today, the law provides for legal separation as an alternative to divorce. Legal separation offers to a Christian the protection of the law while leaving the door open for reconciliation. Such a door must be left open because Christians believe that no marital conflict is impossible for God to solve.

Since there was no legal separation in Paul's day, the apostle recommends a legal separation-type of divorce. This is indicated by his use of the verb koridzo ("to separate") rather than the normal verb for divorce apoluo used by Jesus. By recommending a legal separation-type of divorce, Paul respects the spirit of Christ's teaching while at the same time providing protection for the believing wife until a reconciliation with her husband can be realized.

Paul's teachings on the question of divorce in 1 Corinthians 7:12-16 not only closely reflects Jesus' teachings concerning the permanence of marriage, but also reveals its full depths. It does this by showing how the Christian faith causes the marriage covenant to become a sacred and lifelong relationship. There is for Paul an intimate connection between the permanence of the marriage bond and the Christian faith.

A Christian couple who marries "in the Lord" accepts the responsibility to honor by divine grace their covenant commitment both to God and to one another. It is the sacred and permanent nature of the Christian covenant commitment to God that makes a Christian marriage sacred and permanent. On account of this fact, a Christian couple experiencing marital problems may separate with the hope of reconciliation but may not divorce and remarry. This condition does not apply to a mixed marriage where the unbelieving partner deserts his believing spouse, because by the very act of desertion the unbeliever rejects the Christian view of marriage as a sacred and permanent union.

Summing up, like Jesus the apostle Paul affirms the principle that Christian marriage is a union binding and permanent for life. If a separation should occur, Paul presents only two alternatives to believing partners: be reconciled to one another or remain single.

The Teaching of Paul on Divorce for Church Leaders

Paul's view of Christian marriage as a lifelong union which admits no divorce and remarriage, is indirectly supported by the marriage qualifications he sets forth for church leaders: "Now a bishop must be above reproach, the husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; cf. Titus 1:6). "Let deacons be the husband of one wife, and let them manage their children and their households well" (1 Tim 3:12).

The basic qualifications given by Paul for the church office of elder (or overseer) and deacon were designed to enable Timothy in Ephesus and Titus on Crete to appoint church leaders qualified to serve in such offices. The first qualification for the office of elder is that the man must be "above reproach." His blameless lifestyle is to serve as a role model to the congregation and is to offer no reason for criticism in the community. The first important aspect of his role modeling is his marital status, which Paul defines as "husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; Titus 1:6). This qualification occurs both in 1 Timothy and Titus immediately after the demand for blamelessness thus indicating the prominence Paul gives to the marital status of a church leader.

The Greek words translated "husband of one wife" can be rendered literally as "one-wife-man." This short phrase has been the subject of considerable investigation. Did Paul mean that a church leader should be married only to one woman at a time or only once during his lifetime? Did Paul intend to exclude from church leadership polygamists, that is, men married to several wives or digamists, that is, men married twice or more legally?

Exclusion of Polygamists. Some have understood the phrase "husband of one wife" to exclude polygamists from church leadership. This interpretation is discredited by two main considerations. First, there was no need for this qualification since no Christian, whether church leader or not, was allowed to practice polygamy. Second, in New Testament times polygamy was generally outlawed in the empire and thus it hardly needed insistence by Paul.

Exclusion of Digamists. The most plausible meaning of the phrase "husband of one wife" appears to be "married only once." This is in fact the rendering of the New Revised Standard Version. According to this view, divorce and remarriage would disqualify a man from the office of elder and deacon. Paul would be stressing the importance of appointing to church leadership only men whose marital status was beyond suspect by having been married only once. Several considerations favor this interpretation.

The priests in the Old Testament were enjoined to uphold a higher marriage standard by marrying only a virgin, and not "a widow, or one divorced, or a woman who has been defiled, or a harlot" (Lev 21:14; cf. 21:7). This Old Testament precedent supports the New Testament higher marriage standards for elders and deacons. Elsewhere I have shown that even the requirement for church leaders to be "abstinent" (1 Tim 3:2) finds its precedent in the Old Testament strict prohibition against the use of alcoholic beverages by the priests (Lev 10:9).

The construction of the phrase without article "mias gunaikos andra-one-wife-man" emphasizes the moral character of the individual as being totally committed to one woman. Such a total commitment is best exemplified by faithfulness to one's spouse "till death doeth us part." In an age when the marriage bond was lightly regarded and commonly dishonored, Paul emphasizes that a church leader must be an example of marital fidelity. Such a fidelity would exclude the possibility of divorce and remarriage.

This may be inferred also from the requirement that a woman enrolled in the official order of widows was to have been "the wife of one husband" (1 Tim 5:9). In Greek, the phrase corresponds to "the husband of one wife." Since the widows enrolled in the ministry of the church were to have been married only once, it seems safe to assume that the same qualification applied to the office of elder. The linguistic similarity between the two phrases ("husband of one wife" and "wife of one husband") strongly suggest that in both instances the person was to have been married only once.

In summary, both the Old and New Testaments uphold the principle of high marriage standards for church leaders (Lev 21:7, 14-15; 1 Tim 3:2, 12; Titus 1:6). In the New Testament church the elders and deacons must stand before the congregation as role models of blameless lifestyle, especially by being the "husband of one wife," that is to say, married only once and totally devoted to one's wife. This excludes the possibility for church leaders to divorce, remarry or to lust after other women.

The standard is admittedly high, but God could hardly allow a lesser standard from those who have been called to give spiritual leadership to His church. To allow a man who has been divorced and remarried to serve as the spiritual leader of a congregation means to tempt its members to follow his bad example by divorcing their spouses and remarrying, if the occasion arises.

The foregoing discussion of the marriage qualifications for church leaders has served to corroborate the principle that Christian marriage is a permanent, lifelong union, which admits no divorce and remarriage. This principle is to be upheld especially by church leaders because their lifestyle and teaching serve as role model for many to follow.

CONCLUSION

In this chapter we have found that both the Old and New Testaments clearly and consistently condemn divorce as a violation of God's original plan for marriage as a lifelong union that enables a man and a woman to become "one flesh." Respect for this fundamental principle demands that a Christian couple experiencing marital conflicts should not seek to resolve them through divorce. If a marriage relationship becomes intolerable, a Christian couple can consider a legal separation. The purpose of the separation should be to provide an opportunity for the couple to work toward a possible reconciliation.

APPLICATION OF PAUL'S TEACHING TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S CASE

According to Paul's teachings, the solution to Danny and Linda's marital conflicts, should have been, not the filing for a hasty divorce in Guam, but the filing of a legal separation which would have left the door open for a possible reconciliation.

Christians who believe that marriage is a sacred covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself, must also believe that God is willing to move heaven and earth to save their marriage. Legal separation leaves the door open for the Holy Spirit to work in the hearts of both partners who have been estranged.

It is important to note that a key qualification for church leadership spelled out by Paul, is the marital status. A church leaders is expected to be a "one-wife-man,", that is, a man married only once, fully committed to his wife and a spiritual leader who "manages well his own home . . . for if a man does not know how to manage his own household, how can he care for God's church? (1 Tim 3:5).

Particular emphasis is placed upon the Christian character of a church leader, exemplified by his temperate life-style, loyalty to his wife, and spiritual leadership in the home. The reason is that a pastor or a TV evangelist serve as role models to the congregation or viewing audience entrusted to them. A man divorced and remarried several times, can hardly serve as a role model to his congregation or viewing audience. Thus, fidelity to the biblical teachings demands that spiritual leadership is to be entrusted to men who have proven to be faithful to their wives and to be moral and spiritual leaders in the home.

--

Christian regards

Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.,
Retired Professor of Theology and Church History, Andrews University
4990 Appian Way
Berrien Springs, MI 49103

Phone (269) 471-2915 Fax (269) 978-6898

E-mail sbacchiocchi@biblicalperspectives.com

WWW HOMEPAGE: http://www.biblicalperspectives.com

Posted by: September Sep 14 2006, 10:25 AM

Excellent study! I pray more leaders like him speak out.

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 14 2006, 10:37 AM

In one way or another, most of us have posted the same thoughts, although not as detailed, for which I thank you Dr. Bacchiocchi.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 14 2006, 11:10 AM

In light of information from Dr. Bacchiocchi and possibly some others, it may make for an interesting night to watch 3ABN Live, and the FIRST live showing of course, as often the replays are edited. It can be watched online too if you don't have the satelite.

p.s. I will be happy when spell check comes back from vacation. Ü

Posted by: Chez Sep 14 2006, 11:38 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 11:02 AM)

DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

The 3ABN saga of Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and remarriage has attracted considerable attention. Many subscribers to our newsletters have emailed me all sorts of gossip information. Both Danny and Linda also have exchanged several messages with me. Danny claims to be totally innocent, because it was Linda who had an affair with a Norwagian doctor, Arild Abrahamsen, and left him to be with her lover.

Linda denies all the allegations, as you can read for yourself at her website: http://www.lindashelton.org/ She claims that she never had an affair with Arild, she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, and she never wanted a divorce.

At this point only God knows who is telling the truth. The only thing that we know for sure is that Danny remarried a 20 years younger, twice divorced woman, while Linda is still single.

In response to the many enquiries I decided to put together the following information:

1) The two sides of the Linda/Danny Shelton story as posted at the BLACK SDA WEBSITE: http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

2) My understanding of the Biblical teaching on Divorce and Remarriage and its application especially to Danny's remarriage of a divorced woman.

The focus of my study is on the biblical teaching on divorce and remarriage. Danny and Linda Shelton are briefly mentioned only as a case study of the Biblical teaching.

THE BLACK ADVENTIST ONLINE COMMUNITY

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

The Accused Other Man Evidence: Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

06/20/2006
Greetings from Norway;

My name is Dr. Arild Abrahamsen. I live in Svindal, Norway. I have been a medical doctor for more than 35 years. I am a member of the Moss SDA Church. I've been the Sabbath School Superintendent for 14 years and the head elder for 4 years, which position I am presently serving. I am the Norwegian doctor who has been slandered by Dr. Walt Thompson, chairman of the board of 3ABN, Danny Shelton, John Lomacang and others.

Since I have observed the situation and the slander only getting worse, I feel it best to share my experience. I share my personal experience, what I have seen and heard. Much of this information has been verified by other sources, which include emails, letters and the personal experiences of others. I share my experience not to attack any individual or organization, but to bring the truth of this situation to the surface.

I have been shocked to observe the events of the last two years. I have made no public statement until now. I had hoped things would resolve themselves.

I visited Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson at 3ABN the last week of 2003. The purpose of the trip was to see them and visit the ministry, which I personally had been supporting for some time. I had never been to 3ABN previously, nor had I met the Shelton's. During this visit I discovered from the Thorvaldsson's that Linda Shelton's son, Nathan, was in a dangerous state of health because of an addiction to drugs and working in coalmines. I offered to see him. This visit resulted in an invitation for Nathan to come to Norway for treatments. Nathan came to Norway around January 20, 2004 along with his friend, Dava Vice. Linda came for a 3-? day visit to support her son, the first week of February together with Brenda Walsh. This was the last time I saw Linda until the weekend she was fired.

I had a chance to visit with Nathan regularly. I learned from my conversations with Nathan that the roots of his drug problems were the relationships with his father and stepfather. Specifically he told me that Danny had turned his back on him. I shared this information with his mother on the phone. She told me that Danny said he had no responsibility towards Nathan since he was a product of her first marriage, so she felt she had to do what she could to help her son. There was nothing unusual in the occasional phone reports I gave Nathan's mother while he was in Norway. After Nathan returned home, I asked Linda to keep me updated on Nathan's progress.

I was shocked to discover in early March of 2004 that Danny was threatening to get Linda fired from 3ABN because of some conversations on the phone. In fact, she was threatened immediately with divorce. By this time Nathan had started with drugs again and Linda was seeking advice. I was also shocked to discover that Brenda had started circulating untrue statements as well. (Was it because Danny had admitted to some emotional involvement with Brenda?) I talked to Danny one time on the phone and found him to be unreasonable, unbalanced and very difficult to communicate with. Johann Thorvaldsson, a retired pastor of the SDA Church of 50 years, also was in communication with Danny, both by phone and email. We talked together and shared the same opinion that Danny was acting completely irrational and unreasonable towards his wife. It appeared he was attempting to leave an email trail filled with untruths to verify a position at a later time. The decision was made to stop the communication by phone with Linda.

Some weeks went by. Johann and Irmgard were getting treatments at my clinic and staying in my home during the Easter week in April, so I discovered from them that the situation was not improving for Linda. She was being harassed, threatened, and unreasonable demands by her husband were repeatedly being made to confess things she had not done. By this time, she was also suspended from her job at 3ABN, an order that was issued and enforced by her husband with no Board action. Things were so bad in the home that she found it necessary to go to her daughter's home in Springfield, Illinois for safety and rest on several occasions. Derrell Mundall, who was traveling often for 3ABN, reports rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were in SDA churches in April 2004, when Linda was still living with Danny. When he inquired about the source of the rumors, people always pointed to Danny Shelton.

I could see from my 35 years of experience as a physician that Danny was a psychopath. accusations were directed at me that I had done "mind control" over Linda. (Walt Thompson made the same accusations in his letters.) Linda was accused of sending "secret messages" to me over the television. Danny's emails and communications with Johann were completely crazy, and his reasoning often conflicted with his previous emails. Danny targeted Linda's few inner circle confidants and slandered her to the point that even they backed away from her at this critical time. (Linda's "friends" did not want to lose their television privileges.) Johann and I concluded this was a man who was determined to get rid of his wife. We also concluded that Linda was in danger.

Things eventually progressed from emotional and mental abuse to physical abuse. In the midst of all this harassment Linda asked Danny, 'Why are you treating me like this?' He answered, 'Because I want you to get out.'

Considering the urgency of the situation I allowed the conversations to resume. Linda knew, with her high profile status, that confiding with local people regarding these issues would be very bad for the ministry. I had given counsel to people in difficulty in the past and felt I could be helpful from a distance in this situation. I encouraged Linda to fight for her marriage and ministry many times. This she really did, but she often had to leave her home to find refuge at her daughter's apartment in Springfield, even in the middle of the night because of Danny's behavior. At times like these she was afraid of him. She always returned to her home after a couple of days seeking to try to mend the marriage, but Danny would not allow this.

During the spring of 2004 Danny called my pastor in Norway. Danny tried to get me kicked out as an elder and as a member of the church. My pastor told me about the conversation and he said, "He is mentally sick, he needs professional help."

I find it very disturbing that Walt Thompson defended and continues to defend Danny although he was a witness repeatedly to the emotional and mental abuse that was taking place. At one point he witnessed Danny "trashing" his wife for five hours. I also find it disturbing that John Lomacang, Linda's former pastor, claims to have counseled extensively with Danny and Linda when this was far from the truth. During the months of April and May of 2004, when most of the activity was ccurring in this situation, Linda NEVER saw John, who was supposed to be her pastor.

Coincidentally the handful of people supporting Danny and defending his actions has gained either power, position, airtime, homes, public endorsement or all of the above.

At one point I had a conversation with Walt Thompson, Chairman of the Board of 3ABN. He asked me to stop all communication with Linda. This had also been communicated to Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson and others. I told him that it was obviously Danny's plan to isolate Linda from everyone at a time when she needed help. To me it was the Christian thing to answer her phone calls and the only humane thing to do for someone who was in crisis.

Others did not come to Linda's aid because they did not want to lose whatever benefit they gained from 3ABN, whether it be a job, programming, promotions, etc. Walt was also the one who phoned Linda when she was suspended from the ministry by her husband. He instructed her that she must not come to the ministry (which she co-founded) without calling ahead of time because she must be supervised when at 3ABN. Danny broke into a locked bathroom to forcefully take her keys to 3ABN from her. Her hard drive of her computer was confiscated, her contact information taken and even her filing cabinets ravaged, all without any kind of Board action.

Linda was living in an impossible situation. Danny was "in her face" on a regular basis. At times he would say, "If you don't say you're a pathological liar, the marriage and 3ABN is over. If you don't say you're an adulterous woman the marriage and 3ABN is over for you. If you don't say you've given your heart to another man and that he is a demon the marriage and 3ABN is over..... etc." It even reached the point when he demanded her to say "Repeat after me." Johann and I received a couple emails, which said they were from Linda, but they were written by Danny. Linda saw her ministry being destroyed one day at a time. All of this was dehumanizing and terrifying to Linda, who was trying to hold things together. She very much realized what was at stake.

An "investigative committee" was put together by Walt Thompson to look into this situation. They were Walt Thompson, Bill Hulsey, Nick Miller and Kay Kuzma. Danny talked privately at length with each of these people. Linda did not. The committee as a whole never met with Linda at all. In one brief phone conversation with Kay Kuzma she told Linda, "The Board is not interested in you and Danny's personal problems. It is only interested in the fact that the President no longer wants his Vice-President." Johann Thorvaldsson testifies that he spoke with Kay the following day. She told him she was instructed to get Linda used to the idea of not being at 3ABN anymore and to try to get her involved in another ministry.

It's interesting that at the time Danny accused Linda for speaking on the phone to me, that he was in the practice of speaking regularly with Brenda, Linda's "friend." He also visited often with her in her 3ABN apartment in the night. A worker at 3ABN states that Brenda even went golfing with Danny behind Linda's back while she was working. As soon as Brenda saw where the tide was turning, she was no longer Linda's friend. She became an accuser as well.

About May 1, 2004 instructions were given to the production staff to wipe Linda's face off of the network by June 1, again with no Board action.

All CD's, videos, literature and photos of Linda were stripped out of the Call Center. She was sent a document a few days later specifying that she was advised to get 30 days of counseling by counselors of "their" choice. If she did not agree to this in writing within 24 hours, her employment could be gone. She requested time for an attorney to look at the document. This was refused. Mail was flooding into the network with Linda's name on it. They were all returned to sender. Her scheduled speaking appointments for women's ministries were sabotaged by those in leadership at 3ABN. Danny told those who worked for Linda that she was a pathological liar and to stay away from her. (He did not want them to hear the other side of the story.) At one point Linda told Walt that Dan was purposefully ruining her reputation and that she was not willing to be a martyr for 3ABN. Walt's response was "How else are we going to save the ministry?"

Rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were flying throughout the churches and the General Conference in May of 2004, rumors which were begun by her husband. It was communicated to me that Linda was going to be fired at the Board meeting, which would occur in May, following the 3ABN camp meeting. Johann and I decided to go to the camp meeting and talk to the Board members and tell them the truth about the situation. When we walked into the 3ABN building we were surrounded by about 10 people. One person stood directly behind me for the entire service. Walt Thompson and Nick Miller (3ABN's attorney) asked us to leave. We stayed until nearly the end of the service. (At this camp meeting an announcement was made regarding Linda. There were tearful appeals by Danny, which raised a record-breaking amount of money for 3ABN. Danny also claims that an additional two million dollars was raised the year of their divorce.) When Johann and I went to the door, once again we were followed by a small crowd of people. I spoke to Mark Finley about the situation at length in the parking lot. John Lomacang tried to stop the conversation. He said 'It is not good for you to talk to him alone.' What was he afraid of? He was standing with me when Danny drove up and said that if I returned to camp meeting I would be arrested and thrown in jail. He had already talked to the Sheriff. I decided to not return, as it was Mark Finley's suggestion to avoid the possibility of disrupting the camp meeting for all of the people attending. Linda was staying in her daughter's apartment in Springfield, so we drove there on Saturday to stay in a hotel for the weekend. During this weekend we were followed by three private investigators all the time. What kind of actions was that, for a man that REALLY wanted to save his marriage?

It is my understanding that a one-sided conversation was illegally taped by Danny towards the end of May. With a mind set on framing his wife, her words have been misconstrued into saying what he wants people to think. She mentions a trip to Las Vegas. He explains to all that she is planning a rendezvous with "the doctor." In reality for weeks he has offered Linda larger and larger sums of money for her to go to Las Vegas and stay with her mother for six weeks to acquire residency, a requirement for couples that want a quick divorce. For weeks she refused. SHE NEVER WANTED A DIVORCE.

The events of the previous months eventually bring her to the place where she thinks this is maybe what she should do. She knew a separation was necessary. Danny takes her words from the phone call and adds his insinuations. He makes photo copies of her one sided conversation and distributes it. This is his main source of "proof" for his actions and re-marriage. They call it circumstantial evidence." To further cover their tracks Linda's accusers say that for her sake they don't want to tell "all she has done." They say this so people will accept their statements and imagine the worst. This is slander of the worst kind all coming from professed Christians.

Johann says he was fired from 3ABN for refusing to attest to something false Danny wanted him to put in writing about Linda. Derrell Mundall, Danny's ex-son-in-law, says he was given the option to resign or be fired because of his actions defending Linda. Others quit their jobs because they could not support the actions of the leaders. There is one thing many of these people have in common. Anyone who disagrees with Danny is slandered and discredited.

It's interesting that Danny's daughter recently was found to be pregnant out of wedlock. A quick wedding followed when Derrell, (her ex-husband & father of their four children), claims she had no grounds for re-marriage. It's also interesting that nobody asked Derrell about the issue of grounds at all when he was still a resident in Thompsonville. Also another married Shelton family member had a romantic encounter recently with a married employee of 3ABN. They were instructed to keep it quiet. They did. They all still work at 3ABN, and Melody is featured on the network. Is 3ABN all about standing for principle and values, or standing for those who happen to be in good graces with the President and the Shelton family ?

Another question that seems to be in the minds of many is "Why was Linda given $240,000 when all claim she was fired for a wrongdoing?" The only reason Linda signed this 3ABN contract was because she needed money to escape from a very irregular, abusive and impossible situation. Danny forced her to sign not only this contract, but another contract which sold him her half of their joint-owned home the same day.

Linda has suffered much emotional trauma and humiliation from all of this. She still has nightmares about these events. She did not feel ready to face the people of the SDA church for six months after all of this occurred. I encouraged her to begin again. She went for the first time around the end of November of 2004 in Springfield. The people welcomed her. She requested her membership to be transferred out of the Thompsonville church into the Springfield church in December of 2004. The Springfield pastor had previously worked at 3ABN and knew Linda. He did not believe the rumors and encouraged the church to put her to work. It was a healing time for her to teach Sabbath School and occasionally preach.

In June of 2005 things changed. Pastor Grady was transferred out of the Springfield church, though he wanted to stay, and a pastor from 3ABN was moved into the church. Within two weeks John Stanton met with Linda and told her she would be doing nothing on the platform. She told him that the church really needed the help and she hoped that if she was asked once in two months to teach a Sabbath School class that she would be able to do this. He told her that the orders had come from the conference level. (The Illinois conference President sits on 3ABN's Board and his parents work for 3ABN.) During our visit to the General Conference Session Johann and I visited with this pastor. He told us he thought Linda was a liar. I TOLD HIM THAT LINDA HAD NEVER BEEN UNFAITHFUL TO HER HUSBAND and that all the rumors from her husband were lies. But this man had TV interests to pursue and he was in close connection with Danny and John Lomacang.

The last week of October 2005, a letter came to Linda from John Lomacang, the pastor of the Thompsonville (3ABN) church. It stated that the church board had voted "to call a church business session to recommend to the church that you be placed under censure." Linda called John to ask him why. He said it was because she had abandoned her marriage and ministry, which led to her divorce. (This is what Danny refers to as "grounds" to re-marry.) Linda planned to address the church business meeting. She wrote to Danny requesting a release from the restrictions of the contract she signed so she could openly share her side of the story. Danny denied this request. Because of this she felt forced to drop her membership there and then join another SDA church. This decision was made after much counsel with several SDA's. It's interesting that this recommendation for censure came almost 18 months after the fact. (Which kind of practice is this? Special for USA?) It's also interesting that all of this occurred while Danny was trying to gather evidence against Linda so he could re-marry.

Danny Shelton and the leadership of 3ABN are responsible for using the ministry of 3ABN to bring character assassination to Linda and others. In Linda's case, television and radio announcements were made denouncing her character. There was an announcement on the front page of 3ABN's website for many months. About 180,000 letters about Linda were sent to the mailing list at 3ABN. Videos about her were made and distributed. Magazine articles were written and submitted. Mailings were made to church officials. Many calls were taken at 3ABN where slanderous remarks about Linda were given over the phone. Many letters containing completely false statements were sent to many individuals. Danny even made his personal email address available over 3ABN so people could write to him and obtain his side of the story. They did a thorough job of character assassination.

Now two years later the "trashing" continues. It is inexcusable, especially for a proclaimed Christian ministry.

In conclusion I want to clearly state that I have not committed adultery (emotional, physical, "spiritual"), and neither has Linda. The conversations we had were not unusual or inappropriate. Linda is the victim of domestic violence, only this has resulted in worldwide effects for our Church.

Linda has sought for help at the General Conference level. She has sought the aid of pastors. No one has an answer. She has tried repeatedly to meet with a committee from the Board of 3ABN. This request has not been granted. Still the bulk emails and letters flow from 3ABN slandering the innocent. This has been the most ungodly situation I have observed in my entire life. Any who find themselves not in good graces with Danny Shelton will find that their name is discredited and slandered in an attempt to destroy their influence. Linda has suffered the most with the loss of her job, her influence and reputation. But many others, including myself, have felt the heat coming from what is supposed to be a ministry representing Jesus Christ. This is an outrage. This is unacceptable. Accountability of leaders is a must. (Can bad fruits come from good trees?) As Christians, it is our duty to demand accountability and a high standard from leaders. I hope this testimony will fulfill the mission intended.

Respectfully,

Dr. Arild Abrahamsen
From Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN board of Directors
Regarding Danny's marriage

Dear Family and Friends of 3ABN,

Two years ago 3ABN was challenged by the most difficult battle the ministry has ever faced. It was a battle that threatened the very existence of the ministry and the work of preaching the end time message of the Three Angel's to the world. It is only because of the grace and power of God Almighty, and the faithful support of you, the 3ABN family, that the ministry has survived to preach another day. Today, the ministry is stronger than it has ever been and its reach into the world even broader and more powerful for the cause of truth.

As is always the case when in the public eye, questions arise, stories abound, and rumors spread. We thank God that you have trusted the leadership and board of 3ABN during this time and have stayed with us in ministry. More recently some of you have heard that Danny has found one to comfort him in his loneliness and sorrow. You may have also heard rumors about an allegedly illegal divorce occurring without Biblical grounds. This letter is an attempt to fill you in with the facts.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has taken the action that it has taken. I have been one that has plead with Linda to keep her marriage and her ministry and offered to provide counseling for them. I have known Danny and Linda almost from the beginning of the ministry and have been in their home many times. They had a good marriage. It was not until this third party got in the middle did things begin to fall apart. It is also true that Danny really did want to get back together again, but when it became obvious that couldn't happen, he correctly had to close the door on that part of his history lest it destroy him and the ministry.

The divorce was a mutually agreed thing, even the choice to get it from Guam where there would be no long wait. Linda had originally planned to move to Las Vegas long enough to become a resident there so as to get a divorce there. They then discovered the possibility of a divorce from Guam, checked it out and found it to be legal, and decided to go that route. Though I believe Guam has now stopped the program, the legality of a Guam divorce had previously been taken to the U.S. Supreme Court where it was ruled legitimate. As chairman of the board, I did not try to influence the decision, but I will say that had they not obtained a quick divorce, the ministry would have been placed at much greater risk since the situation was causing so much dysfunction with leadership and staff. I believe time has verified the correctness of what was done then, both by Danny and by the board for the ministry.

Linda's web site recently stated that she and Danny were not divorced. She wrote this after the judge made the decision in Danny's favor. She claims she did not know this when she wrote it. Her web site referred to an e mail I sent to Johann Thorvaldson a year earlier saying that I had never accused her of adultery. I believe that exchange with him was in response to an accusation by him that we had fired her because of adultery. I was merely saying that she was not fired for adultery, but because she had defied the board in not discontinuing a relationship that was threatening to destroy the ministry. (I might add that the doctor also told me he would not break off the relationship, even though I pled with him to do so.) That letter to Johann was correct, and it is true that I have never directly accused her of adultery. That does not mean that I believe Linda is innocent. If by adultery one must be caught in bed with another person, I cannot prove Linda has committed adultery. If, on the other hand, hard evidence indicates that Linda was involved in an unacceptable relationship with another man qualifies for adultery, then there is no question about Danny's moral right to marry again.

As a board, we have chosen not to make the details of the evidence available to the public. I believe Satan is the accuser of the brethern. We have chosen to take the "high road" in this whole situation and say nothing more than we have been forced to say to try to quell rumors. We care about Linda and have tried not to do anything to hurt her more than she has already been hurt. I can tell you that I personally spent a great deal of time at 3ABN during those months when this was all happening. I spoke with Linda and Danny on numerous occasions. A sub committee of the board met and prayed with Danny and Linda and pled with Linda to call off the relationship. Danny and Linda spent an 8 hour session with a pair of Christian counselors (non-Adventist in an attempt to avoid bias) who had no doubts about the nature of Linda's conduct. We offered to provide Linda with the opportunity to go away for counseling with a counselor agreeable to both she and us. She did not respond to that offer or request.

Finally, the full board met, reviewed Linda's letter of explanation, and voted unanimously to remove her from the ministry and her seat on the board. Other church leaders who have been privy to some of the evidence we have are in full agreement with our decision.

The relationship Linda had with the Norwegian Dr. was not a normal doctor-patient relationship as she claims. It is true. Linda was very concerned about her son Nathan. He was the vehicle through which the Dr. reached Linda. Our evidence leaves no question that this became much more than a doctor-patient relationship. We know that the long hours on the phone together were not about Nathan and have hard evidence to support this knowledge - nor were times spent together on both sides of the Atlantic.

Furthermore, she refused to break it off, even after weeks of pleading with her to do so. We, the board believe the evidence we have clearly justifies the divorce and gives Danny the moral and legal right to remarry. Those in church leadership with whom we have shared some of this evidence agree with us. Out of concern for Linda we have been reluctant to make details public.

No, Danny is not to blame for what has happened here. On the contrary, he has bent over backwards trying to make things work and meeting her requests. Yet, she has never acknowledged that it was wrong for her to have another "friend".

The things I have stated here are accurate and correct. As far as the lady Danny has married is concerned, I can only say I believe his new wife is a very good person and will be a real asset to him as he carries on his heavy responsibilities. Just to clarify any rumor you may have heard, this relationship began long after the divorce. I was at 3ABN when this lady came from Florida looking for work. There was nothing going on before that time, and Danny definitely was not trying to "dump" Linda. I was with him during much of the time he agonized and mourned her loss. It is one thing to lose a loved one in death. It is much different to lose one to another lover - like cutting a dog's tail off one inch at a time! As to the matter of age difference, I will say that I do not believe that is any of my business. I find nothing in the Bible, and I don't remember any thing in the SOP indicating age differences for married couples. If it is legal, and morally correct, and if entered into with honesty, sincerity and earnest prayer for God's guidance, as I know happened here, it is not for me to criticize. In my own musings about this, I have concluded that it was no accident that brought Brandy to 3ABN. Either the devil was behind it, or God was. There is no question in my mind which one it was.

(Archo Dart was for many years a family and marriage counselor in the Adventist church. When in his 80's, he married one of my patients, who was then in her 50's. She loved and admired him till death many years later.)

I have had an interesting thought this week that I will share with you. It is this. God lost one of his closest companions when Lucifer went astray. More than that, myriads more angels left with him when he left heaven. Talk about grief or emotional pain. Experiences such as this with Linda, I think, help us to understand the pain of loss, and the reality of the war between God and Satan. Some have claimed it takes two to divorce. I don't think that is categorically true! This has been a terrible injury that has hit 3abn and Danny, and yes, Linda too, but it is one that I believe God understands - and He continues to bless his servants.

We recognize that we live in a world at war, and are working with a ministry that the devil would like to see destroyed. The war is real, and as in any other war there are real casualties. War is never pleasant, and spiritual battles may be some of the worst. Our hearts still ache for those who have been wounded. Our prayers continue to ascend on their behalf. Should acknowledgement of wrongdoing and penitence ever occur, we would be the first to forgive and forget. Unfortunately, that has not happened, and we must move on.

Some who have been aware of the growing relationship and the possibility of marriage have thought they should wait for a longer period of time before marrying. In discussions before the event, the 3ABN board reviewed the events of the past couple years and have agreed that there was no moral or legal reason precluding marriage. Realizing the heavy burdens resting on Danny and of his need for companionship, we, the board did not see any reason not to give our blessing to their union. We hope you, our 3ABN family, will agree too, and with us, welcome Brandy with open arms.

Should you have any questions that I might answer, please feel free to send them to me at 3ABN and I will do my best to try to answer them.

Sincerely in the precious name of Jesus,
Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN Board of Directors
Walter Thompson MD
REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University
Much of the discussion about Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and consequent remarriage of Danny, revolves on the legitimate grounds for them to divorce and for Danny to remarry. It appears to me that from a biblical standpoint, the issue is not, "Did Danny have a legitimate ground to divorce Linda, but should a Christian couple experiencing marital problems consider divorce as a solution to their problems in the first place?

The teaching of Jesus on divorce and remarriage is abundantly clear. Both Luke and Mark affirm the same teaching. "Every one who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and he who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery" (Luke 16:18). "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery" (Mark 10:11-12).

When Paul applied Jesus' teaching to the concrete marital problems that existed in the Church of Corinth, he clearly claims to give Christ's command by enjoining the wife not to separate from her husband, and the husband not to divorce his wife: "The wife should not separate from her husband, but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband- and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The total prohibition of divorce by Paul reflects the teaching of Jesus found in the Gospels.

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Danny is advancing all sorts of argument to prove that he is innocent and Linda is guilty. In the light of his allegations I asked Linda to respond to a dozen of specific questions. She denies all your allegations. She claims she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, she did not want a divorce, and she never had intimate relationship with the Arield, the Norwagian doctor, and she never married the man. It appears to me that had Linda been involved in an adulterous relationship, by now they would be married, especially since he is widow and she is divorced.

The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position.

The longer he holds on to his position, the more people will become disenchanted with him and 3ABN. In an age of instant communication, one cannot cover up past mistakes for very long.

My advice to Danny is largely based on Paul's teaching on Divorce and remarriage that we want to consider at this point.

THE TEACHING OF PAUL ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

Paul's teachings on divorce and remarriage are found in 1 Corinthians 7, where the apostle discusses three different types of marital problems. In 1 Corinthians 7:10-11 Paul speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts. His admonition given with Christ's authority is clear. Christian couples should not seek divorce, and if they separate they should remain single to leave the door open for reconciliation.

Since I have examined this passage in my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT, I will quote a few paragraph relevant to Danny and Linda's situation. Personally I feel that it is far more important to understand what the Bible teaches us on this important area of marital relationship, than to gossip about who is to be blamed.

In marital conflicts the blame seldom falls only on one partner. To a greater or lesser degree both partners have contributed to the problem and both need to seek a biblical solution to their problem. In seeking for a solution, it is important to remember that in the Bible marriage is not a social or civil contract that can be dissolved through the legal process, but it is a sacred, lifelong covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself.

The Teaching of Paul in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16

Paul's treatment of the divorce question in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 is most significant because it reveals how the teaching of Jesus on divorce was understood and applied to certain concrete marital situations in the apostolic church. He begins the chapter by setting forth some general principles about marriage. To avoid the temptation to sexual immorality, "each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband" (1 Cor 7:2). Both husband and wife should fulfill their respective conjugal rights (1 Cor 7:3-5). The unmarried and the widows who have the gift of celibacy should remain single as himself (1 Cor 7:7-8).

Next Paul discusses three different divorce situations: (1) the divorce of two believers (vv. 10-11), (2) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever does not want to divorce, and (3) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever wants to divorce. Since only the first situation is relevant to the case of Danny and Linda, I will quote from the book what I have written about it.

Divorce of Two Believers. Paul first speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts: "To the married I give charge, not I but the Lord, that the wife should not separate from her husband (but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband)-and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11).

Appealing to the teaching of Christ (cf. Mark 10:9, 11, 12; Luke 16:18; Matt 19:3-9), Paul declares in absolute terms that a Christian couple should not seek divorce. Twice he affirms the no-divorce principle: ". . . the wife should not separate from her husband . . . and the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The basis of Paul's prohibition is Christ's teaching that husband and wife are one flesh and what God has joined together no man should put asunder.

Paul recognizes, however, that human nature is perverse and that even a Christian husband or wife can make marriage intolerable for the other partner. A spouse who is out of fellowship with God can become intolerant, abusive, unfaithful, domineering, inconsiderate. Undoubtedly, Paul had run into situations of this kind and recognizes that sometimes separation may be inevitable. However, if separation becomes a necessity, Paul leaves Christian partners with two options: (1) to remain permanently unmarried, or (2) to be reconciled to one's partner.

It is important to note that Paul appeals to the teaching of Jesus ("not I but the Lord") in ruling against the possibility of divorce for a Christian couple. On this regard, New Testament scholar F. F. Bruce comments: "For a Christian husband or wife, divorce is excluded by the law of Christ: here Paul has no need to express a judgment of his own, for the Lord's ruling on this matter was explicit."

To appreciate the revolutionary nature of such teaching, it is important to remember that divorce and remarriage was allowed in both the Jewish and Roman society. Yet Paul affirms the no-divorce principle for Christians as a word of the Lord which will be accepted without challenge. This goes to show that within twenty-five years of the crucifixion itself, the Apostolic Church believed and taught that Christ had proclaimed the permanence of the marriage union. This belief played an important role in the Christian mission to revolutionize the values of the existing society.

In Paul's day, there was no provision for a wife to be legally separated from her husband without being divorced. Fortunately today, the law provides for legal separation as an alternative to divorce. Legal separation offers to a Christian the protection of the law while leaving the door open for reconciliation. Such a door must be left open because Christians believe that no marital conflict is impossible for God to solve.

Since there was no legal separation in Paul's day, the apostle recommends a legal separation-type of divorce. This is indicated by his use of the verb koridzo ("to separate") rather than the normal verb for divorce apoluo used by Jesus. By recommending a legal separation-type of divorce, Paul respects the spirit of Christ's teaching while at the same time providing protection for the believing wife until a reconciliation with her husband can be realized.

Paul's teachings on the question of divorce in 1 Corinthians 7:12-16 not only closely reflects Jesus' teachings concerning the permanence of marriage, but also reveals its full depths. It does this by showing how the Christian faith causes the marriage covenant to become a sacred and lifelong relationship. There is for Paul an intimate connection between the permanence of the marriage bond and the Christian faith.

A Christian couple who marries "in the Lord" accepts the responsibility to honor by divine grace their covenant commitment both to God and to one another. It is the sacred and permanent nature of the Christian covenant commitment to God that makes a Christian marriage sacred and permanent. On account of this fact, a Christian couple experiencing marital problems may separate with the hope of reconciliation but may not divorce and remarry. This condition does not apply to a mixed marriage where the unbelieving partner deserts his believing spouse, because by the very act of desertion the unbeliever rejects the Christian view of marriage as a sacred and permanent union.

Summing up, like Jesus the apostle Paul affirms the principle that Christian marriage is a union binding and permanent for life. If a separation should occur, Paul presents only two alternatives to believing partners: be reconciled to one another or remain single.

The Teaching of Paul on Divorce for Church Leaders

Paul's view of Christian marriage as a lifelong union which admits no divorce and remarriage, is indirectly supported by the marriage qualifications he sets forth for church leaders: "Now a bishop must be above reproach, the husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; cf. Titus 1:6). "Let deacons be the husband of one wife, and let them manage their children and their households well" (1 Tim 3:12).

The basic qualifications given by Paul for the church office of elder (or overseer) and deacon were designed to enable Timothy in Ephesus and Titus on Crete to appoint church leaders qualified to serve in such offices. The first qualification for the office of elder is that the man must be "above reproach." His blameless lifestyle is to serve as a role model to the congregation and is to offer no reason for criticism in the community. The first important aspect of his role modeling is his marital status, which Paul defines as "husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; Titus 1:6). This qualification occurs both in 1 Timothy and Titus immediately after the demand for blamelessness thus indicating the prominence Paul gives to the marital status of a church leader.

The Greek words translated "husband of one wife" can be rendered literally as "one-wife-man." This short phrase has been the subject of considerable investigation. Did Paul mean that a church leader should be married only to one woman at a time or only once during his lifetime? Did Paul intend to exclude from church leadership polygamists, that is, men married to several wives or digamists, that is, men married twice or more legally?

Exclusion of Polygamists. Some have understood the phrase "husband of one wife" to exclude polygamists from church leadership. This interpretation is discredited by two main considerations. First, there was no need for this qualification since no Christian, whether church leader or not, was allowed to practice polygamy. Second, in New Testament times polygamy was generally outlawed in the empire and thus it hardly needed insistence by Paul.

Exclusion of Digamists. The most plausible meaning of the phrase "husband of one wife" appears to be "married only once." This is in fact the rendering of the New Revised Standard Version. According to this view, divorce and remarriage would disqualify a man from the office of elder and deacon. Paul would be stressing the importance of appointing to church leadership only men whose marital status was beyond suspect by having been married only once. Several considerations favor this interpretation.

The priests in the Old Testament were enjoined to uphold a higher marriage standard by marrying only a virgin, and not "a widow, or one divorced, or a woman who has been defiled, or a harlot" (Lev 21:14; cf. 21:7). This Old Testament precedent supports the New Testament higher marriage standards for elders and deacons. Elsewhere I have shown that even the requirement for church leaders to be "abstinent" (1 Tim 3:2) finds its precedent in the Old Testament strict prohibition against the use of alcoholic beverages by the priests (Lev 10:9).

The construction of the phrase without article "mias gunaikos andra-one-wife-man" emphasizes the moral character of the individual as being totally committed to one woman. Such a total commitment is best exemplified by faithfulness to one's spouse "till death doeth us part." In an age when the marriage bond was lightly regarded and commonly dishonored, Paul emphasizes that a church leader must be an example of marital fidelity. Such a fidelity would exclude the possibility of divorce and remarriage.

This may be inferred also from the requirement that a woman enrolled in the official order of widows was to have been "the wife of one husband" (1 Tim 5:9). In Greek, the phrase corresponds to "the husband of one wife." Since the widows enrolled in the ministry of the church were to have been married only once, it seems safe to assume that the same qualification applied to the office of elder. The linguistic similarity between the two phrases ("husband of one wife" and "wife of one husband") strongly suggest that in both instances the person was to have been married only once.

In summary, both the Old and New Testaments uphold the principle of high marriage standards for church leaders (Lev 21:7, 14-15; 1 Tim 3:2, 12; Titus 1:6). In the New Testament church the elders and deacons must stand before the congregation as role models of blameless lifestyle, especially by being the "husband of one wife," that is to say, married only once and totally devoted to one's wife. This excludes the possibility for church leaders to divorce, remarry or to lust after other women.

The standard is admittedly high, but God could hardly allow a lesser standard from those who have been called to give spiritual leadership to His church. To allow a man who has been divorced and remarried to serve as the spiritual leader of a congregation means to tempt its members to follow his bad example by divorcing their spouses and remarrying, if the occasion arises.

The foregoing discussion of the marriage qualifications for church leaders has served to corroborate the principle that Christian marriage is a permanent, lifelong union, which admits no divorce and remarriage. This principle is to be upheld especially by church leaders because their lifestyle and teaching serve as role model for many to follow.

CONCLUSION

In this chapter we have found that both the Old and New Testaments clearly and consistently condemn divorce as a violation of God's original plan for marriage as a lifelong union that enables a man and a woman to become "one flesh." Respect for this fundamental principle demands that a Christian couple experiencing marital conflicts should not seek to resolve them through divorce. If a marriage relationship becomes intolerable, a Christian couple can consider a legal separation. The purpose of the separation should be to provide an opportunity for the couple to work toward a possible reconciliation.

APPLICATION OF PAUL'S TEACHING TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S CASE

According to Paul's teachings, the solution to Danny and Linda's marital conflicts, should have been, not the filing for a hasty divorce in Guam, but the filing of a legal separation which would have left the door open for a possible reconciliation.

Christians who believe that marriage is a sacred covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself, must also believe that God is willing to move heaven and earth to save their marriage. Legal separation leaves the door open for the Holy Spirit to work in the hearts of both partners who have been estranged.

It is important to note that a key qualification for church leadership spelled out by Paul, is the marital status. A church leaders is expected to be a "one-wife-man,", that is, a man married only once, fully committed to his wife and a spiritual leader who "manages well his own home . . . for if a man does not know how to manage his own household, how can he care for God's church? (1 Tim 3:5).

Particular emphasis is placed upon the Christian character of a church leader, exemplified by his temperate life-style, loyalty to his wife, and spiritual leadership in the home. The reason is that a pastor or a TV evangelist serve as role models to the congregation or viewing audience entrusted to them. A man divorced and remarried several times, can hardly serve as a role model to his congregation or viewing audience. Thus, fidelity to the biblical teachings demands that spiritual leadership is to be entrusted to men who have proven to be faithful to their wives and to be moral and spiritual leaders in the home.

--

Christian regards

Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.,
Retired Professor of Theology and Church History, Andrews University
4990 Appian Way
Berrien Springs, MI 49103

Phone (269) 471-2915 Fax (269) 978-6898

E-mail sbacchiocchi@biblicalperspectives.com

WWW HOMEPAGE: http://www.biblicalperspectives.com

EXCELLENT!!! Thank you.

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 14 2006, 12:00 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 14 2006, 02:10 PM)

In light of information from Dr. Bacchiocchi and possibly some others, it may make for an interesting night to watch 3ABN Live, and the FIRST live showing of course, as often the replays are edited. It can be watched online too if you don't have the satelite.
p.s. I will be happy when spell check comes back from vacation. Ü

I don't know if Dr. B has ever been a guest on 3ABN...but I'm also certain that now he has rendered his perspective on the Danny/Linda situation, the welcome mat has been rolled up. The wagons are now circling in West Frankfort, and it would be interesting to see the spin the good folks at 3ABN would put on this new development.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 12:12 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 14 2006, 12:00 PM)

I don't know if Dr. B has ever been a guest on 3ABN...but I'm also certain that now he has rendered his perspective on the Danny/Linda situation, the welcome mat has been rolled up. The wagons are now circling in West Frankfort, and it would be interesting to see the spin the good folks at 3ABN would put on this new development.

Before we get too overawed by the Doc having his qualified "say" in the matter, it would be well to note that in the beginning .... within a very short time after Linda was ousted from 3abn, the doc listened to Johann and others, and essentially promised to write in her defense in one of his next newsletters. But not long after that he backed away, choosing to not "get involved". There are some of us who, rather than being elated at this attention he is giving the topic, are rather in wonderment as to why, in all the time that has elapsed since then .... and with all that has been said here on BSDA .... he can still only quote the two contrasting letters of Thompson and Abrahamson from this site, and conclude that he doesn't have enough information to judge which is correct. Nor does he give even any passing casual "nod" to all of the other problems that have been revealed about the Shelton Dynasty. It is as if nothing existed other than Danny's divorce and remarriage.

So ... once more Linda has been dragged out like a "red herring" so as to divert attention from all of the other ills that exist on the 3ABN campus! Which is just the way Danny wants it. Strange, isn't it .... how he manages to "get his way" in that matter?

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 14 2006, 12:18 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 11:02 AM)

REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University

Interesting read since I had the Dr. as a prof in university. I am curious what brought him to generate this document. Who solicited his thoughts on this subject and how did it make its way here?

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 14 2006, 12:30 PM

Well Watchbird, I had come to the same conclusion after reading his Biblical Dissertation on marriage. Other concerns were not mentioned, and I wondered why he had not commented on them, but I am far too new to BSDA to have questioned why. Like I stated in my previous post, we all at one time or another have stated the same things only not as detailed....which was my way of saying without saying...much was left onsaid by him. I will leave it to all of you who have better insight than I do...to conclude as to the reasons why.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 12:37 PM

QUOTE(Lucyladye @ Sep 14 2006, 12:30 PM)

Well Watchbird, I had come to the same conclusion after reading his Biblical Dissertation on marriage. Other concerns were not mentioned, and I wondered why he had not commented on them, but I am far too new to BSDA to have questioned why. Like I stated in my previous post, we all at one time or another have stated the same things only not as detailed....which was my way of saying without saying...much was left onsaid by him. I will leave it to all of you who have better insight than I do...to conclude as to the reasons why.

Being a long time follower of Bacchiocchi's newsletters, I think he gives the immediate answer to the question of "why" in his early paragraphs .... he had a bunch of requests from readers of his newsletters .... and he had a book on the subject so he could use this as an excuse to promote that .... and he didn't have any other really bright ideas for subject matter (witness the fact that the majority of his several recent newsletters has been the reprinting of articles by other people, plus, of course, his own self-promotional material. (If I sound cynical when it comes to the dear "boc doc" (long history behind that nickname) it is only because I am... long history behind that also, but that would be WAY to far "off topic".)

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 14 2006, 12:44 PM

I am not sure how much people will listen to him. Seems like not too long ago he had some controversy and many have written him off too....

Posted by: calvin Sep 14 2006, 12:49 PM

Yes, it was an excellent Biblical based analysis. But please folks, you don't have to quote the whole post. We already read it.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 14 2006, 01:33 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 03:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Absent the man's stating otherwise, you should read it for what he stated it is... an assessment of that specific situation; any extrapolated tangents toward wide spread gneral application would be for this thread in this forum.

You can always fish in another pond, however...

In His service,

Mr. J

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:35 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 14 2006, 01:40 PM

QUOTE

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 14 2006, 02:33 PM)

Absent the man's stating otherwise, you should read it for what he stated it is... an assessment of that specific situation; any extrapolated tangents toward wide spread gneral application would be for this thread in this forum.

You can always fish in another pond, however...

In His service,
Mr. J

Same answer still applies, sarah.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:43 PM

And if you were the administration of BSDA or God it might be worth consideration...but since you are neither, and no rules have been violated, as a Moderator, all members are welcome to reply as it very much a part of this thread discussion.

Your thoughts have been noted.

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 14 2006, 02:40 PM)

Same answer still applies, sarah.

Posted by: Expression Sep 14 2006, 01:54 PM

I do not see everything the way Dr. Bacchiocchi does, but I really appreciate his thoughts. Making a statement and taking a stand has never been easy or popular--and yet it has always been needed. Church leaders have been all too quiet about the 3ABN situation and I hope others will come forward in the near future.

Thank you Dr. Bacchiocchi for sharing this with us.

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 02:08 PM

perhaps this thread that is dealing with divorce and remarriage be moved to the married forum....

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 02:12 PM

That is a very good idea....thanks for the suggestion. Can you please move it?

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 14 2006, 03:08 PM)

perhaps this thread that is dealing with divorce and remarriage be moved to the married forum....

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 02:16 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 03:12 PM)

That is a very good idea....thanks for the suggestion. Can you please move it?

done.....

Posted by: princessdi Sep 14 2006, 03:00 PM

Scary as this is.....I have to agree with Sarah here. I know that everyone involved is more than ready for ALL of the issues to be resolved, but the good Dr. has really given what is needed, just enough to get Danny removed at 3ABN, or at least enough of a warning to get GC to distance themselves. They cannot in good conscious maintain a relationship with Danny when he is not living acording to biblical principles, especially as a leader, one giving an Adventist face to the world. What the Dr. addressed is enough to get any other leader removed from office, it should be enough to warrant discipline for Danny. Also, it is the avenue that even the hardliners cannot ignore. It is the area which will more garner wide spread support.

The rest can also be dealt with in due time. It is not that there is not enough evidence, but it is definitely not as solid as the divorce/remarriage situation. Primarily because there is a solid biblical basis for it. We have hear several some here and say they lost interest when other matters came up with sketchy details. and It seemed like gossip at that point. Now, while it ia initially clear that these people did not take time to read carefully to get all the information on the other issues, it is also clear that they cannot over look the divorce/remarriage situation. IOW, it is a start. Begin with that, and the rest will come.

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 12:18 PM) ☐

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 14 2006, 04:04 PM

I wonder if the people that watch 3abn are the same people who would write hate mail to Dr B for his articles on EllenW? In other words, one of the groups of SDA that would have benefited from reading this may have already stoped reading the endtime issue newsletters.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 06:06 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 01:12 PM) ☐

Before we get too overawed by the Doc having his qualified "say" in the matter, it would be well to note that in the beginning .... within a very short time after Linda was ousted from 3abn, the doc listened to Johann and others, and essentially promised to write in her defense in one of his next newsletters. But not long after that he backed away, choosing to not "get involved".

Watchbird. He did get involved in 2004.

I personally think 3ABN made Bacchiocchi offers in 2004 to "neutralized" him.

So many Adventists have no immunity to the insidious West Frankfort virus. Once that infected mosquito bites you, you're in trouble. We need to be grateful that he is recovering. Without treatment, West Frankfort virus can remain in your system for years, causing you to compulsively seek out TV cameras. ☒

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_119.htm

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_119.htm

3ABN has invited Dr. Samuele Bacchiocchi to be a guest on a live two-hour program in December on "The Passion of Christ," on their flagship program 3ABN Today. Plans are also in progress to produce future programs with him as well.

I wish to thank 3ABN for inviting me to participate in some of their live programs and for airing some of my popular messages. The aim is to broaden the outreach of 3ABN by attracting viewers who look for a more substantive presentation of biblical truths. I will be sure to inform you about the time of the airing of my messages.

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_122.pdf

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_122.pdf

APPEARANCE ON 3ABN ON DECEMBER 9, 2004

3ABN has extended me an official invitation to present the highlights of my forthcoming book THE PASSION OF CHRIST IN SCRIPTURE AND HISTORY on Thursday evening, December 9, 2004 during the two hours popular live program.

The program will be aired twice. The first time on Thursday evening December 9, at 8:00 p. m. Central Standard time and the second time on Friday, December 10, at 1:00 a. m Central Standard Time. In the next newsletters I should have the time for the overseas airing.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:47 AM

Dr. Bacchiocchi has given us his analysis as they do it at the seminary, in light of all the references thay use up there. It is his personal view, just as this forum is a collection of personal views. His is no more or less authoritative because we each answer only to God in this regard.

Les us also remember that when one spouse committs adultry in the bed of another, it is called "adultry" as we all know. Jesus said that we also committ adultery if we so much as "lust " after another other than our spouse. Is that "grounds" as well? Is that a violation of the "Marriage bed"?

What if one spouse takes no interest in the sexual needs of the other spouse? Does that spouse then become the "victim" if the 'starved spouse" accepts the love of another?

I also know of a couple who has an agreement. It is this. If either of us "wants it" and the other is not available, take whatever IS available, and we don't discuss it afterwards. Is that adultry if they each/both agree it is OK?

Where does "blame" and "culpability" begin or end?

Who is the "CAUSE" and who was the 'EFFECT"?

Is "Self-righteousness" the absence of knowledge of "Cause and Effect".

What about a "PSYCHOPATH",and a "SOCIOPATH".

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 15 2006, 01:51 PM

I have asked that question in another 3ABN thread...will post when I locate it.

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 12:47 PM)

Dr. Bacchiocchi has given us his analysis as they do it at the seminary, in light of all the references thay use up there. It is his personal view, just as this forum is a collection of personal views. His is no more or less authoritative because we each answer only to God in this regard.

Les us also remember that when one spouse committs adultry in the bed of another, it is called "adultry" as we all know. Jesus said that we also committ adultery if we so much as "lust " after another other than our spouse. Is that "grounds" as well? Is that a violation of the "Marriage bed"? What if one spouse takes no interest in the sexual needs of the other spouse? Does that spouse then become the "victim" if the 'starved spouse" accepts the love of another?

I also know of a couple who has an agreement. It is this. If either of us "wants it" and the other is not available, take whatever IS available, and we don't discuss it afterwards. Is that adultry if they each/both agree it is OK?

Where does "blame" and "culpability" begin or end?

Who is the "CAUSE" and who was the 'EFFECT"?

Is "Self-righteousness" the absence of knowledge of "Cause and Effect".
What about a "PSYCHOPATH",and a "SOCIOPATH".

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?act=ST&f=48&t=10247

Found it!

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 03:34 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 12:37 PM)

Being a long time follower of Bacchiocchi's newsletters, I think he gives the immediate answer to the question of "why" in his early paragraphs .... he had a bunch of requests from readers of his newsletters .... and he had a book on the subject so he could use this as an excuse to promote that .... and he didn't have any other really bright ideas for subject matter (witness the fact that the majority of his several recent newsletters has been the reprinting of articles by other people, plus, of course, his own self-promotional material. (If I sound cynical when it comes to the dear "boc doc" (long history behind that nickname) it is only because I am... long history behind that also, but that would be WAY to far "off topic".)

I think you "hit the nail on the head" as they say, Watchbird....I see the letter as a "marketing" tool for his book...

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 04:13 AM

I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say. Did you notice, there was not one Spirit of Prophecy quote in that letter he wrote? I believe it is because he is not in harmony with the Spirit of Prophecy on his understanding of divorce.

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 04:39 AM

Please compare what the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy say, concerning divorce, to what Bacchiocchi says....he is NOT teaching Scripture...He is perverting Scripture! BEWARE!

The Bible says:

QUOTE

And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except [it be] for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery. Matthew 19:9

But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery. Matthew 5:32

The Spirit of Prophecy says:

QUOTE

God gave only one cause why a wife should leave her husband, or the husband leave his wife, which was adultery. Let this ground be prayerfully considered. {AH 342.2}

-Your ideas in regard to the marriage relation have been erroneous. Nothing but the violation of the marriage bed can either break or annul the marriage vow. We are living in perilous times, when there is no assurance in anything save in firm, unwavering faith in Jesus Christ. There is no heart that may not be estranged from God through the devices of Satan, if one does not watch unto prayer. {AH 341.3}

Bacchiocchi says:

QUOTE

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 16 2006, 05:09 AM

Dr B using this partly as an opportunity to promote himself and/or his book? Probably.

Dr B lacking quotes from Ellen in his letter. Yes, So? I didnt miss them...
There sure was no lack of scripture.

EllenW the only true interpreter of scripture? This might become interesting.

Time to get comfortable for the show.. [x] p [x] pe

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 06:11 AM

QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 04:13 AM)

I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say.....

that has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like a good used car salesman.....

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 16 2006, 07:03 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 07:11 AM)

that has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like a good used car salesman.....

Regardless of Dr. B's perceived flaws... one doesn't rebut his arguments by attacking his person.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 07:09 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 16 2006, 08:03 AM)

Regardless of Dr. B's perceived flaws... one doesn't rebut his arguments by attacking his person.

In His service,
Mr. J

not attempting to rebut this particular one..... now that one on wine...

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 07:17 AM

The one on "wine"? What did I miss?

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 11:51 AM

QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 07:17 AM)

The one on "wine"? What did I miss?

another thread, another time..... don't need to highjack this thread, but if you search the archives you may be able to find the discussion we had on that subject....

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 17 2006, 11:14 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 16 2006, 06:09 AM)

Dr B using this partly as an opportunity to promote himself and/or his book? Probably.

Dr B lacking quotes from Ellen in his letter. Yes, So? I didnt miss them...
There sure was no lack of scripture.

EllenW the only true interpreter of scripture? This might become interesting.

Time to get comfortable for the show.. p pe

I'm having "meaty bits".....
"Lesser Spiritual" and all.... sna

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 08:09 AM)

not attempting to rebut this particular one..... now that one on wine...

Get outta me head Clay - I was thinking the exact same thing!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 04:49 PM

Thank you.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 12:51 PM)

another thread, another time..... don't need to highjack this thread, but if you search the archives you may be able to find the discussion we had on that subject....

Posted by: calvin Sep 17 2006, 05:03 PM

QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 05:13 AM)

I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say. Did you notice, there was not one Spirit of Prophecy quote in that letter he wrote? I believe it is because he is not in harmony with the Spirit of Prophecy on his understanding of divorce. .

Well, at least he gave BSDA it's props! We got a some free marketing out of it. I'm cool with the man.

Posted by: Brennen Sep 17 2006, 07:55 PM

Great Dr. Sam. You are on target. You are certainly correct. Danny had no ground for remarriage and Linda is innocent. Danny should resign and do so very soon. The facts do speak for themselves. Great Dr. Sam, great points. I hope Danny Shelton reads this.

Quote by Dr. Samuel Bacc.:

"The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position."

Posted by: rwelchcrs Sep 17 2006, 09:07 PM

Beartrap, I would like to find Bacchiocchi's Bible study on remarriage as it relates to D Shelton on the Endtime Issues Newsletter website, but I can't find it there. Am I looking in the wrong place? I would like to get this from it's source so I can forward it to friends who respect Bacchiocchi. Can you provide a link directly to the study?

Posted by: sister Sep 17 2006, 09:49 PM

QUOTE(Brennen @ Sep 17 2006, 08:55 PM)

Great Dr. Sam. You are on target. You are certainly correct. Danny had no ground for remarriage and Linda is innocent. Danny should resign and do so very soon. The facts do speak for themselves. Great Dr. Sam, great points. I hope Danny Shelton reads this.

Quote by Dr. Samuel Bacc.:

"The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position."

Brennen, of course Danny is reading this. He is reading BSDA everyday, watching and waiting, constantly checking which way the wind of Adventist opinion is blowing. How do I know this? I know Danny and one thing you can count on, he is predictable... He has certain established patterns of behavior from which he does not deviate. Once you realize how he plays the game, it is possible to stay a step ahead of him. Taking this into consideration, it would be completely out of character for Danny to do the honorable act of resigning his position at 3ABN. To quote a public statement he made previously, "3ABN is my baby and no one is going to take it away from me!" Is that the attitude of a man who would be willing to let someone with a clean record take his place at the helm of 3ABN? In defining "clean", I would not be suggesting any of the individuals currently in leadership positions at 3ABN. It is time to clean house...

There is one area of which I am in disagreement with Dr. Sam, in the above quote, that is in regard to Danny remaining at 3ABN in a less conspicuous position. First of all, I do not believe that would be possible, a demotion of that magnitude would be beyond what pride would allow. And secondly, Danny's influence would still control the ministry. But that is just my opinion...

Posted by: JustTana Sep 18 2006, 08:44 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 07:11 AM)

that has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like a good used car salesman.....

That has always been my perception of the good Dr. Bacchocchi. I have long since stopped paying attention to his self-promotional ramblings. Yes, he is right about Danny not having a right to remarry, and I'll give him that, but there is where I draw the line. His treatise on dress/makeup/jewelry is not to be believed and I refuse to be cowed into obeying what I see as Biblical twisting by the SDA establishment. Should we use the modesty in all things instruction, by all means, but to treat all of these items as sinful - NOT!!

OKAY, I'M CLIMBING DOWN OFF MY SOAPBOX NOW! (GOTTA GET THOSE EMOTICONS WORKING!

JT

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 11:24 AM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 18 2006, 08:44 AM)

That has always been my perception of the good Dr. Bacchocchi. I have long since stopped paying attention to his self-promotional ramblings. Yes, he is right about Danny not having a right to remarry, and I'll give him that, but there is where I draw the line. His treatise on dress/makeup/jewelry is not to be believed and I refuse to be cowed into obeying what I see as Biblical twisting by the SDA establishment. Should we use the modesty in all things instruction, by all means, but to treat all of these items as sinful - NOT!!

OKAY, I'M CLIMBING DOWN OFF MY SOAPBOX NOW! (GOTTA GET THOSE EMOTICONS WORKING!

JT

agreed.....

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 19 2006, 09:58 AM

Anyone who runs an independent ministry has to decide how, and how much, to "self-promote." If you're on Dr. B's Endtime Issues mailing list, you know that every e-mail comes with a lot of advertising for his books and appearances.

Is this wrong? I don't know. The advertising's not something I particularly like , but I stay on the mailing list because I like the content of the essays even if I disagree with him at least 1/2 the time.

As noted by someone else above, a lot of people showed up here in the first place because he included a link to blacksda in his newsletter. I was one of those, and I owe him one for sending me over to y'all.

As for his thoughts ... I might not agree with his reasoning, but he came to the same conclusion many of us did, just in a different way--and his way may be more credible to The Establishment tableta if they look for ways to distance themselves from him.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 14 2006, 02:09 PM

SilentConqueror

welc EH!

Glad you came to join us here on this forum.

PeacefullyBewildered

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 17 2006, 08:50 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 15 2006, 07:06 AM)

Watchbird. He did get involved in 2004.

I personally think 3ABN made Bacchiocchi offers in 2004 to "neutralized" him.

There were discussions about having Dr. Bacchiocchi do a series on the 28 Fundamental Beliefs - but now I believe that program is going to James Rafferty and Ty Gibson...possibly...

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

154

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Reflections On How To Resolve The 3abn Issues.

Posted by: Observer Oct 7 2006, 02:07 PM

Several hours ago, Gregory Matthews posted the following in MSDAOL:

"Reflections of Course of Action

I have been reflecting, over the past 20 hours or so on how the situation at 3-ABN can be resolved, who it is that can properly resolve it, and in general terms, what can be done. As I have thought about this, I have come to the conclusion that it is more complex than I had previously considered. There are clear limitations what can be done by some. There are questions to be asked, and issues to be decided that are not easy.

I have not thoroughly organized my thinking, at this point in time, in a clear manner. But, here are some of my thoughts:

1) Some critical issues, or facts:

a) It appears that 3-ABN, and Danny Shelton will not participate in any type of a hearing in which they believe that they will not be treated fairly, and objectively. This is understandable. Most people would take that position. It is believed by some that this means that they will not participate in any type of a hearing before the SDA Church, or any affiliate organization. Whether this is accurate, remains to be seen. The reality is that without the participation of 3-ABN/Danny Shelton, such a hearing would be unlikely to be effective in resolving issues.

B) It appears that certain people, who are said to claim inappropriate conduct by Danny Shelton against them, are unwilling to participate in any type of a hearing where they believe they will not be treated fairly and objectively. Again, that is understandable. Most people would take that position. This is thought to mean that they will not participate in hearings before ASI, the so-called 3-ABN Church, the IL Conference, and possibly more. Whether or not this is accurate, remains to be seen. In any case, without the participation of such, it is unlikely that such a hearing would be effective in resolving issues.

c) 3-ABN is an independent organization which places real limitations as to what it can be forced to do.

d) There are questions as to what power the 3-ABN Executive Board actually has.

e) Ethical issues exist in regard to whether or not it is appropriate for the so-called 3-ABN church, and/or the IL Conference of conduct any type of a hearing, yet in standard denominational polity, all such hearings must begin with them.

f) To what extent should the NAD, and/or the General Conference be involved, and/or can they be involved?

g) To what extent should/can the NAD and/or General Conference issue a public statement of position and recommended relationship of the denomination and/or its members to 3-ABN?

h) What legal liability exists for the NAD and/or General Conference for the actions of 3-ABN?

i) What issues can/should be resolved in denominational channels, as opposed to issues that can only be resolved in civil channels?

j) To what extent can the 3-ABN Board take effective action?

The above probably does not exhaust critical issues in regard to the resolutions of the situation at 3-ABN. But, they may illustrate the complexity of his situation. I will comment below on the above.

2) Issues a and b: The comments above speak for themselves. For understandable reasons, people on both sides of the issue are likely to be unwilling to participate in a hearing that they believe is either unfair, or not objective. The challenge to the denomination is to structure a hearing that all can accept. That may not be possible. If so, a denominational hearing cannot resolve the issues.

3) Issues c and d: 3-ABN has developed as a self-governing organization that may be able to function outside of the SDA Church. Currently, it carries certain denominationally developed and affiliated programming. But, it could likely continue to function, with none of this, and with all of its programming self-developed. It currently is officially authorized to solicit SDA members for funding. As such, it has developed a significant contributor base of SDAS and non-SDAs. If this authorization were removed, it would likely be able to raise its funding based upon its developed contributor base, and that many SDAs would continue to contribute to it.

4) Issue e: In ethics it is not required to demonstrate that something actually exists. One ethical requirement is that the "appearance" of wrong be avoided. Two important ethical issues in this saga are a) conflict of interest, and B) dual role/relationship. These clearly exist on both the level of the local congregation, and the IL conference. On the local level, there is a reason for that congregation to be called the 3-ABN church. The majority of its membership is either employed by 3-ABN, or otherwise has some sort of a relationship ton 3-ABN, or to someone employed to 3-ABN. On the IL Conference level, 3-ABN has an employee on the Conference Executive Board, and the President has close relatives employed by 3-ABN. There is a clear appearance of ethical conflicts at to both a and b above. Neither the local congregation, nor the IL Conference can be considered to be ethically objective and/or fair in their ability to deal with the issues.

5) Issue f: Standard SDA governance requires that issues begin at the local congregational level, go to the Conference, then the Union, to the NAD, and finally the General Conference. This can work well in a normal situation. As stated above, neither the local congregation, nor the Conference, can ethically handle this situation. If so, can the Union directly step in? What about the NAD, and the General Conference? 3-ABN is more than a local organization. It is an organization that has NAD influence, and in some ways, has world-wide influence. Our standard SDA policy, which is focused on mere local situations, does not really address issues that relate to organizations that have NAD and world-wide impact. Such situations should be addressed by the NAD, and/or the General Conference. Yet, our policy does not provide for such.

6) Issues g: Some will tell us that the denomination (either the NAD, or the GC) could /should take the moral high-ground and issues a public statement, and take the few options open to it. After all, the Church has begun to speak on social/civil issues. If the denomination can issue public statements on what some call political issues, should it not do the same in this case? In their minds, such a statement might include a recommendation that SDAs not fund 3-ABN. John L. (the local pastor who is employed by the IL Conference) could be required to either leave denominational employment, or be transferred elsewhere, and the Conference would no longer provide a pastor. This has been done in other locations. I3-ABN personnel could be removed from the Conference Executive Committee. Denominational employees could resign from the 3-ABN Board. If such were done, 3-ABN could likely continue, even if in a reduced role. However, there are some who argue strongly that the denomination should cut all ties to 3-ABN.

7) Issue h: The answer to this question is uncertain. Legal experts will argue that the denomination has no legal liability for any of the actions of 3-ABN and/or Danny Shelton, as it is an independent organization. There are also those who will propose the denomination is entangled with 3-ABN due to the IL Conference President, and others, sitting on the 3-ABN Board, along with a 3-ABN employee sitting on the IL Conference Executive Board. The legal liability which may or may not exist, in my opinion, is unclear.

8) Issue i: Folks, there is a very limited sphere in which the denomination can resolve these issues. Issues that involve violations of civil law cannot be resolved by the denomination. The only recourse here is to the civil authorities. Issues regarding finance, expenditure of funds, tax issues, and other such, also fit into the area that belongs to the civil authorities. The denomination does not have the capability to resolve such. If these are to be resolved, they must be referred to the civil authorities. As this is true, people who allege such should take them to the civil authorities, and/or file such civil actions as are necessary to effect such resolution. They should be allowed to do so without criticism for doing so.

9) Issue j: In the secular world the Executive Board is the final authority. It hires the CEO, and directs the actions of that CEO. It sets overall policy, and direction, and the CEO follows that direction in the specifics, which the Board does not review in minute detail. If the Board is not satisfied with the direction that the CEO is going, it simply removes that CEO. However, it is uncertain as to whether or not the 3-ABN Board has that authority. Under the law, 3-ABN could have been incorporated in a manner where a very small group of people (who have been described as the Shelton family) had the power to appoint and remove members of the 3-ABN Board. If this is the manner under which 3-ABN was incorporated, the Board is very limited in power, and there is a very small group of people that is legally able to control the 3-ABN Board. I do not know if this is the manner of legal incorporation. But, this is a critical issue.

Folks, the issues are very complex here. The may be beyond human resolution in some aspects. It is possible that they can only be resolved by "divine intervention." It is quite possible that resolution will require civil intervention, with people taking issues to the civil authorities.

Some knowledgeably people now believe that this issue is so complex that resolution requires that 3-ABN:

a) all of it current Board be removed
B) all top management be removed
c) totally go out of existence
d) the assets be transferred to a new organization
e) 3-ABN be totally rebuilt from the ground up, with totally new management and Board.

As you look at the above, be aware that in such, the ministry and mission of 3-ABN would continue.

The future of 3-ABN, depends in many ways upon the courage of people to know what is right, what God wants, and to do it.

Whether or not people will rise to that challenge, I do not know.

Gregory Matthews"

NOTE: in the origonal there were no smiling faces. They appeared in this copy, why, I do not know.

Posted by: Clay Oct 7 2006, 03:23 PM

good summarization..... I will see if I can eliminate the smileys, but they show up when you put a) after some characters, like 8, or b.... next time you want the smiley's not to show up, disable the emoticon feature for that post....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 7 2006, 03:29 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 7 2006, 02:23 PM)

good summarization..... I will see if I can eliminate the smileys, but they show up when you put a) after some characters, like 8, or b.... next time you want the smiley's not to show up, disable the emoticon feature for that post....

It seemed odd there would be smiley faces in a post of that nature. They were a bit of a distration. I'm glad you solved the mystery for me and could get them out.

Posted by: Skyhook Oct 7 2006, 09:38 PM

That sounds like a well thought out assessment of the situation. Who is Gregory Matthews?

Posted by: sister Oct 7 2006, 09:42 PM

QUOTE(Observer @ Oct 7 2006, 03:07 PM)

Some knowledgeably people now believe that this issue is so complex that resolution requires that 3-ABN:

a) all of it current Board be removed
b) all top management be removed
c) totally go out of existence
d) the assets be transferred to a new organization
e) 3-ABN be totally rebuilt from the ground up, with totally new management and Board.

As you look at the above, be aware that in such, the ministry and mission of 3-ABN would continue.

The future of 3-ABN, depends in many ways upon the courage of people to know what is right, what God wants, and to do it.

Whether or not people will rise to that challenge, I do not know.

3ABN has become, administratively, like a body that has an untreated cancer. If caught in the early stages of the disease, it may be possible to control the condition through lifestyle changes. In the case of Danny Shelton that could have been achieved through repentance, restitution and reformation of character, through allowing the power of the Holy Spirit to accomplish this in his life. But as no reformative measures were taken to eradicate or slow the disease process, imperceptibly to the outside world, it continued to grow. Beginning in the head of the ministry, this insidious cancer has metastasized throughout the organization. Through the gathering of information and the testimony of many witnesses, it has become obvious that this is the current situation in regard to 3ABN. In order to save the ministry radical measures must be taken and the following points listed below may truly be the only resolution that would ensure that the ministry and mission of 3ABN would continue:

1. Removal of all the current 3ABN Board
2. Removal of all administrative personal
3. 3ABN, as it currently exists, eradicated
4. A new organization formed, with accountability and administrative transparency
5. All 3ABN assets transferred to the newly formed organization

6. A complete rebuilding of the ministry from the very foundation, with totally new management and Board.
7. New organizational structures that insure that no individual is given unlimited power in the regard to the operation of the ministry.

As in the case of a patient with advanced cancer, it is necessary to evoke radical measures in order to save the life of this ministry. When more facts are made available to the public at large, the wisdom of what at first appears to be extreme measures will become apparent. If people do not rise to the challenge soon, it could become impossible to save the ministry later as top management are lead away by civil authorities on the evening news.

Posted by: Clay Oct 8 2006, 01:55 AM

3abn though is a private company.... yes it receives donations, but people cannot tell the owner of a company how to run his business.... that is why some of what people want to happen with 3abn is unrealistic.... if they have broken laws, then eventually the justice system will deal with them, if not, as long as someone is willing to donate, he can operate it as he sees fit....

again the question must be asked, if 3abn is such a mess, why do you all continue to watch it?

Posted by: Observer Oct 8 2006, 03:11 AM

It was asked: "Who is Gregory Matthews?"

According to what Mr. Matthews has posted elsewhere:

Gregory Matthews is currently a hospital chaplain, a Seventh-day Adventist minister who is credentialed by the General Conference, and a former U. S. Army chaplain. He has been active in this 3ABN mess for several years. He has publicly stated that in his opinion Linda Shelton has done nothing that would give Danny Shelton Biblical grounds to divorce her. However, he does not criticize Danny for his re-marriage. He has stated that the focus should be on other issues. While he is credentialed by the General Conference, his opinions are simply his personal opinions, and should not be considered to be an official statement of denominational position.

I hope that this answers your question.

QUOTE(sister @ Oct 7 2006, 08:42 PM)

3ABN has become, administratively, like a body that has an untreated cancer. If caught in the early stages of the disease, it may be possible to control the condition through lifestyle changes. In the case of Danny Shelton that could have been achieved through repentance, restitution and reformation of character, through allowing the power of the Holy Spirit to accomplish this in his life. But as no reformative measures were taken to eradicate or slow the disease process, imperceptibly to the outside world, it continued to grow. Beginning in the head of the ministry, this insidious cancer has metastasized throughout the organization. Through the gathering of information and the testimony of many witnesses, it has become obvious that this is the current situation in regard to 3ABN. In order to save the ministry radical measures must be taken and the following points listed below may truly be the only resolution that would ensure that the ministry and mission of 3ABN would continue:

1. Removal of all the current 3ABN Board
2. Removal of all administrative personal
3. 3ABN, as it currently exists, eradicated
4. A new organization formed, with accountability and administrative transparency
5. All 3ABN assets transferred to the newly formed organization
6. A complete rebuilding of the ministry from the very foundation, with totally new management and Board.
7. New organizational structures that insure that no individual is given unlimited power in the regard to the operation of the ministry.

As in the case of a patient with advanced cancer, it is necessary to evoke radical measures in order to save the life of this ministry. When more facts are made available to the public at large, the wisdom of what at first appears to be extreme measures will become apparent. If people do not rise to the challenge soon, it could become impossible to save the ministry later as top management are lead away by civil authorities on the evening news.

Good statement.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 8 2006, 04:25 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Oct 7 2006, 09:42 PM)

...In order to save the ministry radical measures must be taken and ...
If people do not rise to the challenge soon, it could become impossible to save the ministry later as top management are lead away by civil authorities on the evening news.

So, what are we waiting for? What can I do to help? Give me my marching orders!

Posted by: Observer Oct 8 2006, 05:50 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 8 2006, 03:25 AM)

So, what are we waiting for? What can I do to help? Give me my marching orders!

It just may be that radical measures will/can only be taken after the involvement of civil authorities.

Many of the people involved in this have wanted to effect change in a denominational venue, without the intervention of civil authorities. That may not be possible.

Posted by: Jewel50 Oct 8 2006, 08:02 AM

Along the lines of what can we do to help. Maybe and I do say maybe others are going to start doing something and are giving out a warning to not put your trust in man.

Did anyone happen to catch Pastor Batchlor's sermon on the Internet Live yesterday, Sabbath? It was about fallen heros. Maybe it is because I know about all this 3ABN stuff but to me that is all I could see it pointing to. All speculation on my part however, but maybe he was given all those people who have put Danny up as some kind of "hero" in their minds a warning not to be shocked if their hero falls. And here I just have to say how they could do so is way beyond my understanding. The ones who make 3ABN are the people Pastor Batchlor, Pastor Bohr, Pastor Asscherick and those like them. They are the ones who are really getting the message out there. Anyone could do what Danny does and do it much better. His talents are not as an host or whatever you call what he does.

Amazing Facts should be putting up a link to the sermon given yesterday soon on their web site. Please go and listen to it and see if you think the same as I do or is it just wishful thinking on my part.

Here is the link to their site where all his sermons are uploaded to:

http://www.amazingfacts.org/media/everlasting_gospel.asp

Posted by: summertime Oct 8 2006, 08:58 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 8 2006, 01:55 AM)

3abn though is a private company.... yes it receives donations, but people cannot tell the owner of a company how to run his business.... that is why some of what people want to happen with 3abn is unrealistic.... if they have broken laws, then eventually the justice system will deal with them, if not, as long as someone is willing to donate, he can operate it as he sees fit....

again the question must be asked, if 3abn is such a mess, why do you all continue to watch it?

I don't!!!!

Posted by: justme Oct 8 2006, 10:59 AM

QUOTE(Jewel50 @ Oct 8 2006, 10:02 AM)

Along the lines of what can we do to help. Maybe and I do say maybe others are going to start doing something and are giving out a warning to not put your trust in man.

Did anyone happen to catch Pastor Batchlor's sermon on the Internet Live yesterday, Sabbath? It was about fallen heros. Maybe it is because I know about all this 3ABN stuff but to me that is all I could see it pointing to. All speculation on my part however, but maybe he was given all those people who have put Danny up as some kind of "hero" in their minds a warning not to be shocked if their hero falls. And here I just have to say how they could do so is way beyond my understanding. The ones who make 3ABN are the people Pastor Batchlor, Pastor Bohr, Pastor Asscherick and those like them. They are the ones who are really getting the message out there. Anyone could do what Danny does and do it much better. His talents are not as an host or whatever you call what he does.

Amazing Facts should be putting up a link to the sermon given yesterday soon on their web site. Please go and listen to it and see if you think the same as I do or is it just wishful thinking on my part.

Here is the link to their site where all his sermons are uploaded to:

http://www.amazingfacts.org/media/everlasting_gospel.asp

I looked on the Amazing Facts site and "searched" for "Fallen Heroes" and found none.
I then went to "Best" "Archives" and found "free books in text" that are also for one to "Listen" to.

Because I didn't hear the one you spoke of yesterday I don't know how to determine "success" for my search.

These two are on the subject of "Falling From Grace" parts 1 & 2..

http://www.amazingfacts.org/items/Read_Media.asp?ID=1219

http://www.amazingfacts.org/items/Read_Media.asp?ID=1221

I hope this helps for the time being.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 8 2006, 12:17 PM

Sister,

To further flesh out your cancer metaphor I would like to submit the following:

1. When symptoms of a disease become apparent, it is important for those around to urge the patient to seek evaluation by the fitting medical expert. If that doesn't succeed, medical intervention may be indicated.
2. It is vital to have the appropriate tests performed by trained professionals to verify if cancer is indeed present and, if so, to determine the type, location and the proper course of treatment.
3. When removing cancerous cells it is always a good practice to delegate that job to a qualified surgeon so good flesh is not cut out with the bad.

QUOTE(sister @ Oct 7 2006, 07:42 PM)

As in the case of a patient with advanced cancer, it is necessary to evoke radical measures in order to save the life of this ministry. When more facts are made available to the public at large, the wisdom of what at first appears to be extreme measures will become apparent. If people do not rise to the challenge soon, it could become impossible to save the ministry later as top management are lead away by civil authorities on the evening news.

How would this be a bad thing? There would no longer be any doubt by present, past, and future donors and supporters that something was not kosher in the ministry. If civil authorities need to be involved, they should be! Anything less could smack of a cover-up.

When a house burns down it can often be rebuilt. (Yep, I switched metaphors.)

PB

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 7 2006, 11:55 PM)

3abn though is a private company.... yes it receives donations, but people cannot tell the owner of a company how to run his business.... that is why some of what people want to happen with 3abn is unrealistic.... if they have broken laws, then eventually the justice system will deal with them, if not, as long as someone is willing to donate, he can operate it as he sees fit....

That's what I'm talkin' about!

QUOTE

again the question must be asked, if 3abn is such a mess, why do you all continue to watch it?

As for myself, because so many of the programs are terrific.

Posted by: Jewel50 Oct 8 2006, 04:52 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 8 2006, 09:59 AM)

I looked on the Amazing Facts site and "searched" for "Fallen Heroes" and found none.
I then went to "Best" "Archives" and found "free books in text" that are also for one to "Listen" to.

Because I didn't hear the one you spoke of yesterday I don't know how to determine "success" for my search.

These two are on the subject of "Falling From Grace" parts 1 & 2..

http://www.amazingfacts.org/items/Read_Media.asp?ID=1219

http://www.amazingfacts.org/items/Read_Media.asp?ID=1221
I hope this helps for the time being.

This sermon is not uploaded as of yet. Yesterday was Sabbath when they taped the sermon and today is Sunday so I would image no one is back at work until Monday. This is why I mentioned that I would image it would be uploaded soon. I would think no one is back to work at Amazing Facts until Monday and it may take them a few days to get it cleaned up and whatever they do before they upload it. You can keep checking the link and if I remember I will to and then post when it is uploaded.

I was wondering if anyone else had seen the sermon.

Posted by: Skyhook Oct 8 2006, 04:54 PM

To expand the medical metaphor, in years past before the advent of Penicillin etc. when someone had a serious contagious disease that was a threat to others (such as TB) they were separated from those they could harm and sent voluntarily to a sanitarium. If they refused voluntary treatment, they were sent involuntarily to a locked treatment facility.
It doesn't appear that any voluntary intervention will be accepted in this situation.

Posted by: justme Oct 8 2006, 06:52 PM

QUOTE(Jewel50 @ Oct 8 2006, 05:52 PM)

This sermon is not uploaded as of yet. Yesterday was Sabbath when they taped the sermon and today is Sunday so I would image no one is back at work until Monday. This is why I mentioned that I would image it would be uploaded soon. I would think no one is back to work at Amazing Facts until Monday and it may take them a few days to get it cleaned up and whatever they do before they upload it. You can keep checking the link and if I remember I will to and then post when it is uploaded.

I was wondering if anyone else had seen the sermon.

OH! I seeee. I thought it was all ready to watch. Apparently they can put it online as they are filming it. Then they upload it later. Was it "live" as you saw it?

What time did it come on, online, on Sabbath? Was it under a "link" somewhere on their website? Thank you for your help.

Posted by: Jewel50 Oct 9 2006, 04:52 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 8 2006, 05:52 PM)

OH! I seeee. I thought it was all ready to watch. Apparently they can put it online as they are filming it. Then they upload it later. Was it "live" as you saw it?

What time did it come on, online, on Sabbath? Was it under a "link" somewhere on their website? Thank you for your help.

You can watch both their Sabbath School and church service live on Sabbaths.

The Sabbath School comes on about 9:40 Pacific Standard time. and church service after that. You can go to their web page and they have a link to get to the page where you can get the live streaming.

http://www.saccentral.org/default.aspx

Watch Our Programs "Live" on the Internet

Jan 10, 2005 Sacramento Central Church broadcasts "Live" around the World each Sabbath morning! Visit our launching page by clicking on "Watch us Live" found on the homepage or under "Media" on the top menu bar.

Visit the page immediately at:
http://www.saccentral.org/main/livestreaming.aspx

Posted by: Ralph Oct 10 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 8 2006, 01:55 AM)

again the question must be asked, if 3abn is such a mess, why do you all continue to watch it?

To clarify this question a bit, the management may be a mess but some of the programs are excellent. I have received a real blessing from many of the programs that I have heard.

Posted by: justme Oct 10 2006, 08:00 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Oct 10 2006, 07:47 PM)

To clarify this question a bit, the management may be a mess but some of the programs are excellent. I have received a real blessing from many of the programs that I have heard.

I agree, Ralph. There are some good programs from other producers. Lately, opinions I hear about HOPE is that they are getting better and better. When 3ABN was new it had some struggles as well.

There's hope for HOPE! May more $$$ would give Hope more hope. I hope!

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

155

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Can Danny Change

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 9 2006, 08:53 PM

I have been reading the different posts about the hardening of Danny's heart and that we don't see a change and what he would need to do for us to see a change or by your fruits we shall know you. I have been doing a lot of thinking about this and here is what I think. Danny CAN change. Even if the Lord is hardening his heart he can still change. If he stops long enough to listen. We had a guest pastor for our church campout and he told us his story. He was raised in an SDA home. (In the country) At the age of four he was sexually molested by a farm hand. He told no one. From that point on he had abnormal sexual fantasies. In his college years he went as a student missionary and ended up staying for several years. He thought he wanted to be a minister. Felt the Lord was calling him to this. Took Theology but kept having sexual thoughts. Prayed about it over and over. Came to the conclusion that if he got married it would solve all his problems. So he did. Had two children. When he finished schooling he was offered a church. He turned it down. His wife had to go take care of her parents. While she was gone he went to his first gay bar. He became immersed in the gay lifestyle. His wife was told by leaders of the church to divorce him. "That kind never changes." She did. He was in this lifestyle for 16 years. Had three semi permanent partners. Took up all the vices, smoking, drinking,drugs. His parents never gave up on him. They would come to visit and stay with him and his partners. When they left they would always forget and leave something. A book, a phamplet telling him of God's love for him. He wouldn't look at them. After sixteen years he was by a pool at a gay bar in Palm Springs and another gay came up to him and said "Hey pastor what are you doing in a place like this?" He had never told any of his friends or even strangers he had taken theology. He hit rock bottom lived so high he couldn't pay his child support, couldn't pay his bills etc. He thought he could just go to court and straighten things out. WRONG!!! He was arrested and sent to jail til his hearing. Through all of this his exwife was supportive of him. At this time he started praying and asking the Lord to forgive him and to help him turn his life around. The Lord answered that prayer. He started reading all the books his parents had left him and studying his Bible. He was rebaptized and he was offered a church to pastor. An elder in the church said "I give you 2 years and you will be back a homosexual, your kind never change". He was very discouraged and hurt but he clung to the Lord. The Lord heard him and not only that , He brought a new women into his life and they got married and have 2 children and he has been straight for 14 years. His former wife and new wife have become friends. This man is a changed person and he preaches the grace of God. He doesn't tell the details of his story because he doesn't want to glorify Satan. (He has written a book telling more of the details you can get it at the ABC. Its called That Kind Can Never Change, Can They?) He preaches repentance and change. He tells you without repentnce and change there can be no forgiveness. I tell you you can see God shining in his eyes. He loves the Lord and the Lord has done a good work in him. It oozes out of him he can't hide it. He tells you we must die to self, surrender everything to God.

Today in church we had a guest speaker who also talked about surrendering ourselves to God. Dieing to self and he said I can tell you an easy way to tell if you are surrendered to God. Have you ever been hurt by someone? Of course everyone said yes. He told us that if someone hurts our feelings and/or us we are not surrendered to God. If God lives in us these things won't matter to us because there will be no self to hurt. I have to say that hit home to me. There are times when I start feeling a pity party comming on because of things people have said or done to me. I now know that that is self getting in the way of my relationship with God.

SOoooo-the way I see it. Danny can change if he repents and changes. His hard heart can be softened by the Holy Spirit--IF he surrenders his whole self to God. That means-NO ME in 3abn. Just God. I believe that God is working through 3abn. It is winning souls to Jesus Christ everyday. However until Danny surrenders and repents God cannot work through HIM!! As long as he allows people to call him the annointed one and takes credit for 3abn God will not use him for his will.

What do you think? tb

Posted by: princessdi Sep 9 2006, 08:57 PM

As long as he is breathing and in his right mind, he still has a chance. Jesus died for him, also.

Posted by: sister Sep 9 2006, 09:51 PM

Blondie,

The Pastor you mentioned was a guest on one of the 3ABN Today programs, interviewed by Danny Shelton. It was one of many opportunities the Lord has given Danny to hear the wooing of the Holy Spirit upon his heart, the call to humble himself and repent...

Sister

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 9 2006, 10:50 PM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 9 2006, 07:53 PM)

SOoooo-the way I see it. Danny can change if he repents and changes. His hard heart can be softened by the Holy Spirit--IF he surrenders his whole self to God. That means-NO ME in 3abn. Just God. I believe that God is working through 3abn. It is winning souls to Jesus Christ everyday. However until Danny surrenders and repents God cannot work through HIM!! As long as he allows people to call him the annointed one and takes credit for 3abn God will not use him for his will.

What do you think? tb

Truly Blonde, I heartily agree with you. I saw that pastor on 3abn and was so moved by his testimony!

Through Jesus all things are possible. His power is limited only by our own choice.

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 9 2006, 08:51 PM)

Blondie,

The Pastor you mentioned was a guest on one of the 3ABN Today programs, interviewed by Danny Shelton. It was one of many opportunities the Lord has given Danny to hear the wooing of the Holy Spirit upon his heart, the call to humble himself and repent...

Sister

Sister, the loved ones of that pastor kept leaving materials for him to read. He read them once he was open to having a change of heart. Perhaps all of these opportunities are not lost on Danny.

Posted by: Clay Sep 10 2006, 12:45 AM

where there is life, there is hope.... given that, anyone can change.....

Posted by: Jewel50 Sep 10 2006, 12:57 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 9 2006, 11:45 PM)

where there is life, there is hope.... given that, anyone can change.....

Amen Clay. That was one of my late husbands favorite sayings. So yes all long as anyone has breath in this and allow the Holy Spirit to work in them there is HOPE. Amen

Jewel

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 10 2006, 04:38 PM

It is always hard to look at someone you would like to take behind the woodshed as a child of God. Dan is, in fact, exactly that and should be graced with God's limitless forgiveness and love.

On the other had - I expect to see a whole lot a whoopin goin on!

bot

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 10 2006, 06:54 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 9 2006, 09:57 PM)

As long as he is breathing and in his right mind, he still has a chance. Jesus died for him, also.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 10 2006, 01:45 AM)

where there is life, there is hope.... given that, anyone can change.....

Now...will he change?

Probably nope.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 10 2006, 07:10 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 10 2006, 05:54 PM)

Now...will he change?

Probably nope.

Anything is possible. But God is limited by a persons willingness to surrender. I'm watching for that white flag....

Posted by: Expression Sep 11 2006, 07:13 AM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 9 2006, 10:53 PM)

Today in church we had a guest speaker who also talked about surrendering ourselves to God. Dieing to self and he said I can tell you an easy way to tell if you are surrendered to God. Have you ever been hurt by someone? Of course everyone said yes. He told us that if someone hurts our feelings and/or us we are not surrendered to God. If God lives in us these things won't matter to us because there will be no self to hurt. I have to say that hit home to me. There are times when I start feeling a pity party comming on because of things people have said or done to me. I now know that that is self getting in the way of my relationship with God.

There is much to be said in regard to change. I feel that many have been thinking about this and I'm glad it was brought up. I may post later about the question at hand, but first I want to address the above statement. If you follow this line of thinking to it's end result it's rather disturbing--at least to some.

We say that God created us, true? But we must remember that we're not just a body. God created us with feelings and emotions. This is what makes us different from mere automations. He made us in His image, with the ability to feel not only joy, but pain.

You might be thinking, "Yeah, we know. What's your point?"

If we say that hurt equals sin we are attempting to take away the most basic component that makes us different than a machine or robot.

God tells us that in heaven there will be no more pain. Is this because we have turned off our emotions? No. It is because the outside factors that once brought us pain will no longer exist. If we take away someone's freedom to feel the pain they have experienced we are telling them to deny what they have gone through. This is dangerous and extremely unhealthy.

Well you say, "We are to be dead--dead to self." Does this mean we are to become a doormat? Theologians can go into great detail on this subject, but when we begin to say that people can no longer be hurt and still be Christian something is wrong. Very wrong. Our emotions are there to protect us, but too often we just shut them off and say, "I gotta forgive and move on." Thus we are quiet when abuse is rampant and many of the families that compose our churches are in need of serious help.

Those within Adventism need to be learning how to listen and work through their emotions. All too often we suppress them in order to be "Christian" but you can only do that for so long. Our church is filled with people who are emotional wrecks on the inside, but they look good at church because they are "supposed to."

If we can get people to turn off their emotions we are much more likely to be able to control them. This is something that you often see within cults, and though the Adventist church is not a cult, it surprises me how often ideology such as this appears inside our church.

As long as we live in this sinful world we will be hurt. But we are not to destroy our emotions. Instead of stuffing our feelings we need to ask, "Why do I feel this way?" and begin to work through them. This is the healthy approach. It is only as we work through the hurt that we can begin to find healing.

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 11 2006, 08:36 AM

Very good points Expression & I agree with what you are saying.

Posted by: summertime Sep 11 2006, 10:58 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 9 2006, 09:51 PM)

Blondie,

The Pastor you mentioned was a guest on one of the 3ABN Today programs, interviewed by Danny Shelton. It was one of many opportunities the Lord has given Danny to hear the wooing of the Holy Spirit upon his heart, the call to humble himself and repent...

Sister

I thought that tb said that this man never told his story--but he wrote a book and appeared on 3ABN? Maybe I have lost the storyline completely. If his ex-wife had continued to believe in him, why did they not reconcile? Apparently he found himself another wife. So where does that leave his ex-wife?

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 13 2006, 02:28 PM

Summertime

What I meant when I said he doesn't tell his story is that he doesn't go into all the nasty details that are better left unsaid. He does tell about his life in general just not in specifics. When he preaches and alludes to his story it is in passing, spending much more time on repentance and change. For example he did not tell us he had been a homosexual in his sermon just said he had lived a very very very bad lifestyle and then told us of his comming to Christ and his asking for forgiveness and repenting and changing. Does that make sense?

When you read his book you find out about his homosexuality. Once again he doesn't go into the nitty gritty that makes people speculate about all the sexual innuendos of a homosexual lifestyle.

About his first wife. He does not tell us if she remarried during that 16 years or not. He just says that she helped him in different ways and that after he remarried that his first and second wife (who by the way had known him thru all of this because she was a good friend of his sisters and knew all his history good and bad) were able to hug and there was no animosity by the first wife to the second wife. I have to assume that the first wife was able to truly forgive him and was a Christian and that was why she was able to help him and to hug the second wife without wanting to be married to him herself, (if she was even in a position to marry him.)

tb

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 06:54 PM

She has to be a remarkable Christian woman to support her ex-husband emotionally as he struggled with homosexual lifestyle...not every woman can do that....

I do have a better understanding of what Terry McMillian meant in her situation with her now ex-husband.

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 13 2006, 02:28 PM)

Summertime

What I meant when I said he doesn't tell his story is that he doesn't go into all the nasty details that are better left unsaid. He does tell about his life in general just not in specifics. When he preaches and alludes to his story it is in passing, spending much more time on repentance and change. For example he did not tell us he had been a homosexual in his sermon just said he had lived a very very very bad lifestyle and then told us of his comming to Christ and his asking for forgiveness and repenting and changing. Does that make sense?

When you read his book you find out about his homosexuality. Once again he doesn't go into the nitty gritty that makes people speculate about all the sexual innuendos of a homosexual lifestyle. About his first wife. He does not tell us if she remarried during that 16 years or not. He just says that she helped him in different ways and that after he remarried that his first and second wife (who by the way had known him thru all of this because she was a good friend of his sisters and knew all his history good and bad) were able to hug and there was no animosity by the first wife to the second wife. I have to assume that the first wife was able to truly forgive him and was a Christian and that was why she was able to help him and to hug the second wife without wanting to be married to him herself, (if she was even in a position to marry him.)

tb

Posted by: justme Sep 19 2006, 08:21 AM

Truth Will Triumph Gloriously

Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. Isa. 26:2

The truth of God must be enshrined in the heart, and we must be determined to fight the battles of the Lord, if we would come off conquerors with the final triumph of the truth; for the truth will triumph gloriously. . . . If you are seeking to be a blessing to others, God will bless you. We should bring all the good possible into our lives, that we may glorify God and be a blessing to humanity.

The church is God's agency for the proclamation of truth, empowered by Him to do a special work; and if she is loyal to Him, obedient to all His commandments, there will dwell within her the excellency of divine grace. If she will be true to her allegiance, if she will honor the Lord God of Israel, there is no power that can stand against her.

Zeal for God and His cause moved the disciples to bear witness to the gospel with mighty power. Should not a like zeal fire our hearts with a determination to tell the story of redeeming love, of Christ and Him crucified? It is the privilege of every Christian not only to look for but to hasten the coming of the Saviour.

If the church will put on the robe of Christ's righteousness, withdrawing from all allegiance with the world, there is before her the dawn of a bright and glorious day. God's promise to her will stand fast forever. He will make her an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations. Truth, passing by those who despise and reject it, will triumph. Although at times apparently retarded, its progress has never been checked. When the message of God meets with opposition, He gives it additional force, that it may exert greater influence. Endowed with divine energy, it will cut its way through the strongest barriers, and triumph over every obstacle.

From My Life Today - Page 266

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 20 2006, 10:47 PM

justme, your post reminded me of some passages that have been such a blessing to me. I thought I'd share them with all of you!

Jeremiah 29:13 You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart.

Isaiah 26:3 You will keep in perfect peace him whose mind is steadfast, because he trusts in you.

Philippians 4: 4 Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again: Rejoice! 5 Let your gentleness be evident to all. The Lord is near. 6 Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. 7 And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

May you all rejoice in the Lord and have this peace!

Posted by: Expression Sep 27 2006, 12:40 PM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 9 2006, 09:53 PM) ☐

I have been reading the different posts about the hardening of Danny's heart and that we don't see a change and what he would need to do for us to see a change or by your fruits we shall know you. I have been doing a lot of thinking about this and here is what I think. Danny CAN change. Even if the Lord is hardening his heart he can still change. If he stops long enough to listen.

SOoooo-the way I see it. Danny can change if he repents and changes. His hard heart can be softened by the Holy Spirit--IF he surrenders his whole self to God. That means-NO ME in 3abn. Just God. I believe that God is working through 3abn. It is winning souls to Jesus Christ everyday. However until Danny surrenders and repents God cannot work through HIM!! As long as he allows people to call him the annointed one and takes credit for 3abn God will not use him for his will.

Tomorrow evening 3ABN camp meeting is scheduled to begin. Though I'm not sure exactly what to expect, I wonder if what we saw during The Most Amazing Prophecies seminar was a sign of things to come. Danny is a smooth manipulator, and whether we see it this coming weekend or at a later time, I would not be surprised if at some point he plays the forgiveness/change card.

Christianity, especially Adventism, loves to buy the phrase "I've changed" and glorify God for the result. Too often however we do not know the real result. Things look good on the outside and so we tell ourselves they are. But looks, especially when it comes to abusers, can be extremely deceiving.

We owe it to ourselves to understand what constitutes true change so that we do not fall for the counterfeit.

I have referred several times to the book "Why Does He Do That?" by Lundy Bancroft. The reason being is that without excusing abuse Dr. Bancroft explains why it occurs. He talks about the attitudes that drive a controller and looks at the subject of change with a frankness and honesty I have come to appreciate.

Dr. Bancroft gives 13 ingredients for true change. If one of them is missing genuine change will not be the result.

The steps of an abuser who is truly changing are as follows:

1. Admit fully to his history of physiological, sexual, and physical abusiveness toward any current or past partners whom he has abused. Denial and minimizing need to stop, including discrediting your memory of what happened. He can't change if he is continuing to cover up, to others or to himself, important parts of what he has done.

2. Acknowledge that the abuse was wrong, unconditionally.

3. Acknowledge that his behavior was a choice, not a loss of control. For example, he needs to recognize that there is a moment during each incident at which he gives himself permission to become abusive and that he chooses how far to let himself go.

4. Recognize the effects his abuse has had on you and on your children, and show empathy for those.

5. Identify in detail his pattern of controlling behaviors and entitled attitudes.

6. Develop respectful behaviors and attitudes to replace the abusive ones he is stopping.

7. Reevaluate his distorted image of you, replacing it with a more positive and empathic view.

8. Makes amends for the damage he has done.

9. Accept the consequences of his actions.

10. Commit to not repeating his abusive behaviors and honor that commitment.

11. Accept the need to give up his privileges to do so.

12. Accept that overcoming abusiveness is likely to be a lifelong process.

13. Be willing to be accountable to his actions, both past and future.

("Why Does He Do That?" pg. 339-342)

On page 360 Dr. Bancroft makes the following statement: "An abuser doesn't change because he feels guilty or gets sober or finds God. He doesn't change after seeing the fear in his children's eyes or feeling them drift away from him. It doesn't suddenly dawn on him that his partner deserves better treatment. Because of his self-focus, combined with the many rewards he gets from controlling you, an abuser changes only when he feels he has to, so the most important element in creating a context for change in an abuser is placing him in a situation where he has not other choice. Otherwise, it is highly unlikely that he will ever change his abusive behavior."

At the end of the chapter Dr. Bancroft lists some key points to remember, some of which include the following:

You can't make or even help an abusive man change. All you can do is create the context for change, and the rest is up to him.

Change in an abusive man is not vague; it is highly specific.

An abusive man won't change by "working on his anger," unless he also does the more difficult work of changing his entitled attitudes.

Abusiveness is like poison ivy, with its extensive and entrenched root system. You can't eradicate it by lopping off the superficial signs. It has to come out by the roots, which are the man's attitudes and beliefs regarding partner relationships.

("Why Does He Do That?" pg. 366)

May this be food for thought as we continue to watch the unfolding drama of 3ABN during the coming weeks and months.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 27 2006, 01:26 PM

QUOTE(Expression @ Sep 27 2006, 01:40 PM)

I have referred several times to the book "Why Does He Do That?" by Lundy Bancroft. The reason being is that without excusing abuse Dr. Bancroft explains why it occurs. He talks about the attitudes that drive a controller and looks at the subject of change with a frankness and honesty I have come to appreciate.

Dr. Bancroft gives 13 ingredients for true change. If one of them is missing genuine change will not be the result . . .

On page 360 Dr. Bancroft makes the following statement: "An abuser doesn't change because he feels guilty or gets sober or finds God. He doesn't change after seeing the fear in his children's eyes or feeling them drift away from him. It doesn't suddenly dawn on him that his partner deserves better treatment. Because of his self-focus, combined with the many rewards he gets from controlling you, an abuser changes only when he feels he has to, so the most important element in creating a context for change in an abuser is placing him in a situation where he has not other choice. Otherwise, it is highly unlikely that he will ever change his abusive behavior."

May this be food for thought as we continue to watch the unfolding drama of 3ABN during the coming weeks and months.

Good and valuable stuff! However, I think there is a caveat in regards to this situation. The book does not indicate, insinuate, or otherwise require that the act of change (or the 13 items) be done publicly. The results are obvious through changed behavior that is observable by all outsiders. It is not our right as outsiders in the situation to demand that these things be done publicly (no insinuation here that you have done that, I am making a generalized statement). I would contend that there are many here who feel that they will never accept a change unless they get to see it happen - not the resulting change of behavior, but the actual process in all its detail step-by-step.

- fhb

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 27 2006, 06:19 PM

QUOTE(Expression @ Sep 27 2006, 01:40 PM)

Tomorrow evening 3ABN camp meeting is scheduled to begin. Though I'm not sure exactly what to expect, I wonder if what we saw during The Most Amazing Prophecies seminar was a sign of things to come. Danny is a smooth manipulator, and whether we see it this coming weekend or at a later time, I would not be surprised if at some point he plays the forgiveness/change card.

I agree.

I think we'll either see some damage control or the forgiveness card played. He seems to like to use Campeeting as the platform for the 'first attack."

just my opinion...

Posted by: Freedom Sep 27 2006, 06:25 PM

[quote name='fallible humanbeing' date='Sep 27 2006, 02:26 PM' post='154000']
Good and valuable stuff! However, I think there is a caveat in regards to this situation. The book does not indicate, insinuate, or otherwise require that the act of change (or the 13 items) be done publicly. The results are obvious through changed behavior that is observable by all outsiders. It is not our right as outsiders in the situation to demand that these things be done publicly (no insinuation here that you have done that, I am making a generalized statement). I would contend that there are many here who feel that they will never accept a change unless they get to see it happen - not the resulting change of behavior, but the actual process in all its detail step-by-step.

- fhb
[/quote

WHOA, back off a minute FHB!

You just contricted yourself in your post.
"The results are obvious through changed behavior that is observable by all outsiders". "It is not our right as outsiders in the situation to demand that these things be done publicly".

If a person is in leadership and in such a public light - true change would be observable.

I haven't seen any other that from the 3ABN management/leadership people.

Posted by: summertime Sep 27 2006, 06:41 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 27 2006, 06:19 PM)

I agree.

I think we'll either see some damage control or the forgiveness card played. He seems to like to use Campeeting as the platform for the 'first attack."

just my opinion...

I just have trouble when the way is open for an abuser or a self seeking character to manipulate, abuse, coax and push until he gets what he wanted in the first place (such as a young, desired lady who is willing to marry an old man for the benefits it will give to her), and then the supposition is that when he/she has the desired changes, then we head for the forgiveness card, or the baptisimal tank, or the tears of hurt and false pretense, and we are told, that whatever his/her sins may have been, that God will forgive and those who have been hurt can just get over it. After all, they were expendable all along. I would like to see all these wrongs on the part of 3ABN be made right, but to tell you the truth, I am wondering if they ever will. Am I losing faith, or what?

Posted by: Treniece Oct 7 2006, 01:13 PM

So I guess most persons who are comenting here are at least 99% sure that Danny Shelton is guilty of the things that are being said about him. Sixty percent of my intuition is sort of leaning towards his guilt. One thing for sure is, God is still using the 3abn ministry to reach others for Christ. If he is guilty and doesn't repent then he will be among those whom God will say: "depart from me I know you not" Maybe God is working through Danny Shelton's magnificent faith and his strong desire to spread the gospel. I believe if Danny Shelton wants to use God, God can use him also, this does not mean that he will make it into the kingdom of Heaven.

Posted by: Lee Oct 7 2006, 10:43 PM

Treniece--I agree with you. I'm about in the 60% camp too. But I've noticed how much people appreciate the programming on 3ABN. I like 3ABN better than Hope, although I do watch both.

Posted by: summertime Oct 8 2006, 09:20 AM

[quote name=He brought a new women into his life and they got married and have 2 children and he has been straight for 14 years. His former wife and new wife have become friends. This man is a changed person and he preaches the grace of God. He doesn't tell the details of his story because he doesn't want to glorify Satan. (He has written a book telling more of the details you can get it at the ABC. Its called That Kind Can Never Change, Can They?) He preaches repentance and change. He tells you without repentnce and change there can be no forgiveness. I tell you you can see God shining in his eyes. He loves the Lord and the Lord has done a good work in him.

It oozes out of him he can't hide it. He tells you we must die to self, surrender everything to God.

Just God. I believe that God is working through 3abn. It is winning souls to Jesus Christ everyday. However until Danny surrenders and repents God cannot work through HIM!! As long as he allows people to call him the annointed one and takes credit for 3abn God will not use him for his will.

What do you think? tb
[/quote]

I think I wonder if this man, who had given his heart to God in repentence, and I am happy for his change,----Did he commit adultry all over again when he found and married a new wife---Had his first wife remarried, thus giving him the idea that he was free to marry again and raise a new family? Praise God for his change, ---It is just that I do not understand him (in the eyes of God)to be able to pastor another church while at the same time marrying another wife. Maybe I am wrong. Will someone please explain this to me?

Posted by: summertime Oct 8 2006, 09:37 AM

QUOTE(Lee @ Oct 7 2006, 10:43 PM)

Treniece--I agree with you. I'm about in the 60% camp too. But I've noticed how much people appreciate the programming on 3ABN. I like 3ABN better than Hope, although I do watch both.

Lee, 3ABN, at this point, is being VP'd by a man who has hurt many people, used donor's money to further himself, does not admit that he has ever commited these things (plus others) while Hope TV is a Seventh Day Adventist network which is generating programs that are honest, sincere and working to line the gates of heaven--while 3ABN, is lining the pockets of a few men who live in comparative luxury--thank God for the good people who are keeping 3ABN alive. They are good people---Think how they will feel when the truth comes out. We need to pray that the leaders of our GC church will allow the truth to be told when the right time comes. There is a lot of good programming on 3ABN, but the story of Danny and his shananigans are not one of them. I chose not to watch as he goes on with his own charade. Hope TV may not yet be as polished and dramatic as 3ABN, but they are honest and truthful in where they intend for our donated dollars to go.

Posted by: summertime Oct 8 2006, 10:01 AM

[Maybe God is working through Danny Shelton's magnificent faith and his strong desire to spread the gospel. I believe if Danny Shelton wants to use God, God can use him also, this does not mean that he will make it into the kingdom of Heaven.
[/quote]

Danny Shelton's magnificent faith!. I will see his magnificent faith when Linda and Alyssia's reputation is restored and the retribution is made of the misuse of donor's money. I am not worried about him showing magnificient faith---I would just like to see him admit to the mistreatment that he has bestowed to so many. Then maybe I would agree that he has magnificient faith. BY THEIR FRUITS YOU SHALL KNOW THEM.

Is he spreading the gospel?. A lot of our evangelists are spreading the gospel and they will be blessed. But even Jimmy Swaggert and Jim Baker claim to spread the Gospel.

Posted by: justme Oct 8 2006, 11:56 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Oct 8 2006, 11:01 AM)

[Maybe God is working through Danny Shelton's magnificent faith and his strong desire to spread the gospel. I believe if Danny Shelton wants to use God, God can use him also, this does not mean that he will make it into the kingdom of Heaven.
Danny Shelton's magnificent faith!. I will see his magnificent faith when Linda and Alyssia's reputation is restored and the retribution is made of the misuse of donor's money. I am not worried about him showing magnificient faith---I would just like to see him admit to the mistreatment that he has bestowed to so many. Then maybe I would agree that he has magnificient faith. BY THEIR FRUITS YOU SHALL KNOW THEM.

Is he spreading the gospel?. A lot of our evangelists are spreading the gospel and they will be blessed. But even Jimmy Swaggert and Jim Baker claim to spread the Gospel.

May years ago, I became acquainted with a very godly man, who also, by the way, had his own 'self-supporting work" (meaning it took no conference money, including personal tithes from people). There was a new wave of "unconventional forms" of church services. At he time, a lot of "drama" was all the rage. Much controversey surrounded the subject. He like the more traditional church services, but he said that he would not speak for God. He pointed out that God can reach the sincere and repentent heart. He said that even the most seemingly-offensive thing can have a purpose. Anything be used by God when the soul is lead by the Holy Spirit.

He gave me an example of "moldy bread". He said that we regularly discard moldy bread. But moldy bread has something that may be used to save a life. Properly processed then administered in the right dose, at the right time, under the ausopices of a Physician, can save a life. Pennicillin.

Over the years I have remembered this illustration. EGW point out in regards to eating certain foods, that what nourishes one person can be poisonous to another. God knows the needs of each heart and just what He needs to use to reach that heart, if that heart will respond.

I wonder what the people thought the first time they saw "Paul" a.k.a."Saul" after his conversion experience. Saul murdered "Christians", and had quite a reputation followed him. Why? .... How? ... could anyone know that his preaching about the "need to become Christians" was not a ploy?

Remorse?, Repentance?, Conversion? Restitution? Dewfinitely needs to be done. Whatever it takes.

Posted by: Observer Oct 8 2006, 09:22 PM

In regard tko the statement: "I believe if Danny Shelton wants to use God, God can use him also, this does not mean that he will make it into the kingdom of Heaven."

Created beings (humans) were not placed on earth to use God. BAck up there a little.

Posted by: summertime Oct 9 2006, 08:19 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 8 2006, 11:56 AM)

May years ago, I became acquainted with a very godly man, who also, by the way, had his own 'self-supporting work" (meaning it took no conference money, including personal tithes from people). There was a new wave of "unconventional forms" of church services. At he time, a lot of "drama" was all the rage. Much controversey surrounded the subject. He like the more traditional church services, but he said that he would not speak for God. He pointed out that God can reach the sincere and repentent heart. He said that even the most seemingly-offensive thing can have a purpose. Anything be used by God when the soul is lead by the Holy Spirit.

He gave me an example of "moldy bread". He said that we regularly discard moldy bread. But moldy bread has something that may be used to save a life. Properly processed then administered in the right dose, at the right time, under the ausopices of a Physician, can save a life. Pennicillin.

Over the years I have remembered this illustration. EGW point out in regards to eating certain foods, that what nourishes one person can be poisonous to another. God knows the needs of each heart and just what He needs to use to reach that heart, if that heart will respond.

I wonder what the people thought the first time they saw "Paul" a.k.a."Saul" after his conversion experience. Saul murdered "Christians", and had quite a reputation followed him. Why? .... How? ... could anyone know that his preaching about the "need to become Christians" was not a ploy?

Remorse?, Repentance?, Conversion? Restitution? Dewfinitely needs to be done. Whatever it takes.

Even though I do not understand the whole moral of the story, I will agree that apparently Jimmy Swaggert and Jim Baker have shown remorse, repentence and maybe conversion. It probably would have been impossible for them to make full restitution, but I have not seen remorse, repentence, or restitution coming from 3ABN, have you? If they ever are willing to do that, then maybe God could use the 'moldy bread' to his benefit. I hope so.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 9 2006, 08:19 PM

I must admit that I was once "moldy" myself. Before I became a Christian, I was involved in some less-than-noble things. God saved my life more than once and when I realized that He loved me just as I was but enough to not leave me as He found me, I gave my life to Him. Now, years later, I have had many chances to tell others of Him and His grace and mercy.

So - moldy I once was - but I found the Light!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 9 2006, 09:32 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 9 2006, 07:19 PM)

I must admit that I was once "moldy" myself. Before I became a Christian, I was involved in some less-than-noble things. God saved my life more than once and when I realized that He loved me just as I was but enough to not leave me as He found me, I gave my life to Him. Now, years later, I have had many chances to tell others of Him and His grace and mercy.

So - moldy I once was - but I found the Light!

Without Him, we are all just pond scum whether we are less-than-noble or high-and-mighty!

Posted by: justme Oct 9 2006, 09:42 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 9 2006, 10:19 PM)

I must admit that I was once "moldy" myself. Before I became a Christian, I was involved in some less-than-noble things. God saved my life more than once and when I realized that He loved me just as I was but enough to not leave me as He found me, I gave my life to Him. Now, years later, I have had many chances to tell others of Him and His grace and mercy.

So - moldy I once was - but I found the Light!

Well said!
My point is more the thought that it is not so much the "sender" who gets the "credit" fro a conversion, it the heart moved by the Holy Spirit. So anyone who thinks that their ministry is virtually "indispensible" is wrong. It is the power of the Holy Spirit in a softened heart that converts us. ANYONE who thinks he is the most powerful force for God should "beware lest he fall." Do any ministry leaders come to mind?

I actually had to be "Inspired' by non-SDA Christians who put me in touch with JESUS PERSONALLY. After I met Jesus, all the SDA stuff became easy to understand and took on a whole new meaning. It all suddenly "fit". I learned to love the Bible because I learned to love Jesus!

Saul, "moldy bread", became a power for good, after God "processed" him with love. Same man, "same bread", but now had new power through God.

Thanks for your testimonies...! (more?)

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

156

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Danny On 3abn 8/31/2006

Posted by: icedragon Sep 1 2006, 12:57 PM

Did any body else see the live call in show with steve wohalberg last nigh? There was a section when steve started talking about gossip and defending yourself and Danny jumped in and started saying that there was a lot of information about him that was being spread in chat rooms and posts and e-mails and letters to pastors. He said that people were making up stuff about him that was not true and were not even coming to ask his side of the story like jesus says in matt 24. He said that he was advised by whitely phipps not to defend himself. it would only make it worse.

This was a revelation. What this is revealing is that what is happening on BSDA, CA and Msdaol is working. it is having an impact. it is also revealing that Danny is lying to people . He stated that he has tried to defend himself and no one would believe Him. He also Lied by saying that no one has tried to contact him. Danny had been asked to come repeatedly and tell his side of the story. We had not heard from danny in a complete response. He has scolded and shamed and attacked people for wanting to know the truth about the situation. He has hidden behind the mantle of Making the Gospel go foreward as an excuse to stop the investigation in to the situation. We are bad for not wanting to support the the evanglistic efforts not him bad for bareing false wittness and committing adultry, by remarriage.

Is any one else thinking that we should step up an e-mail campagin? this is ridiculous

Posted by: inga Sep 1 2006, 01:14 PM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 1 2006, 01:57 PM)

Did any body else see the live call in show with steve wohalberg last nigh? There was a section when steve started talking about gossip and defending yourself and Danny jumped in and started saying that there was a lot of information about him that was being spread in chat rooms and posts and e-mails and letters to pastors. He said that people were making up stuff about him that was not true and were not even coming to ask his side of the story like jesus says in matt 24. He said that he was advised by whitely phipps not to defend himself. it would only make it worse.

Wintley's counsel was wise. However, Danny is using it to make it appear that he is not defending himself when, in the very act of telling about the counsel he is actually defending himself and wrapping a mantle of righteous innocense around himself. In actual fact, his regular references to his "situation" and Linda's supposed adultery ("seduced by a professional") are not only self-defense but attack on Linda.

If he had lived by Wintley's counsel from the beginning, this discussion probably wouldn't be happening at all ...

Posted by: SandyColorado Sep 1 2006, 01:33 PM

Danny also mentioned that he had just come from Russia - and was back. He said after the program a couple of weeks ago that people were calling and e-mailing and wondering if he was leaving 3ABN. But NO - he is there to stay.

He might take a week or two or three in the winter to take a vacation that he hasn't had in 20 years - but he is at 3ABN to stay.

Isn't that nice...

Posted by: icedragon Sep 1 2006, 01:40 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 01:14 PM)

Wintley's counsel was wise. However, Danny is using it to make it appear that he is not defending himself when, in the very act of telling about the counsel he is actually defending himself and wrapping a mantle of righteous innocense around himself. In actual fact, his regular references to his "situation" and Linda's supposed adultery ("seduced by a professional") are not only self-defense but attack on Linda.

If he had lived by Wintley's counsel from the beginning, this discussion probably wouldn't be happening at all ...

Has any body read a "viewers prespective" i think it is very telling about possible motivation for linda.

Posted by: gardener Sep 1 2006, 02:16 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 03:14 PM)

Wintley's counsel was wise. However, Danny is using it to make it appear that he is not defending himself when, in the very act of telling about the counsel he is actually defending himself and wrapping a mantle of righteous innocense around himself. In actual fact, his regular references to his "situation" and Linda's supposed adultery ("seduced by a professional") are not only self-defense but attack on Linda.

If he had lived by Wintley's counsel from the beginning, this discussion probably wouldn't be happening at all ...

I wish he would take Wintley's counsel and keep h is big mouth shut on worldwide TV. That is no place for this discussion or inference of this matter. Nothing like airing dirty laundry for the WORLD to see. I remember standing there with my mouth open watching him talk at that campmeeting about the two people that should not be there referring I suppose to Johann and the Dr. I just could not believe it. That was the first inkling that something was going on for me. That made me loose respect for him. Goes to show he can't take counsel from others. I don't know, maybe God told him to say it.

Posted by: JustTana Sep 1 2006, 04:23 PM

QUOTE(gardener @ Sep 1 2006, 03:16 PM)

I wish he would take Wintley's counsel and keep h is big mouth shut on worldwide TV. That is no place for this discussion or inference of this matter. Nothing like airing dirty laundry for the WORLD to see. I remember standing there with my mouth open watching him talk at that campmeeting about the two people that should not be there referring I suppose to Johann and the Dr. I just could not believe it. That was the first inkling that something was going on for me. That made me loose respect for him. Goes to show he can't take counsel from others. I don't know, maybe God told him to say it.

That is what I keep hoping for too - for Danny to keep his big mouth shut!! And maybe you are right 'gardener' - that God told him to say it in the sense of "Go ahead Danny, start digging the hole - and I won't have to do anything but wrap it up in the end. " It begins to look like that's what's happening.

Does anyone know where to read the 'viewer's perspective' mentioned earlier?

d

Posted by: Expression Sep 1 2006, 04:53 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 1 2006, 06:23 PM)

Does anyone know where to read the 'viewer's perspective' mentioned earlier?

I think they're referring to the "Viewer's Version" thread that country bumpkin started earlier today. I may be wrong however...

Posted by: princessdi Sep 1 2006, 05:07 PM

Here ya' go, JustTana!

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=10713&hl=

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 1 2006, 03:23 PM)

Does anyone know where to read the 'viewer's perspective' mentioned earlier?

Posted by: JustTana Sep 2 2006, 10:00 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 1 2006, 07:07 PM)

Here ya' go, JustTana!

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=10713&hl=

Well, duh-h-h! Thanks, princessdi. I've been really sick for the last three years, in and out of the hospital 13 times, mind you; so every once in a while my mind does funny things, like just leave me hanging . . . But this last two days finally brought a diagnosis which will take care of everything else if I can just find the money to buy the alternative treatment now available to literally eat the candida running rampant in my body. Please, everybody? Pray that God will provide those funds (I'm on SSDisability which becomes plain SS in October) so that I can finally have a clear mind and a body with the energy to do the things that will make life meaningful to me and others as well as give Him glory and praise. I do give Him all the praise that I am even still alive after this long session of questioning what was happening to me?

Anyway. . . back to Danny and Linda: I think that Viewer's Version is somewhat on target. And from my observation of things, I knew that something was wrong between them when I heard Danny say things to/about Linda that were 'supposed' to be funny but were, in reality, often back-handed 'compliments' or criticisms dressed up in 'humor.' (It is a sociopathic personality which makes statements like this - I know from having lived with a man like this for 17 years and while he was not violent, PTL, I didn't have the faith to leave it in God's hands and my health began to suffer so much that I had to get out before I literally killed myself. Besides, The Lord later gave me insight into his behavior which allowed me to forgive him and we ended up friends before he died of cancer. My worst regret is that he didn't get to know his two beautiful grandchildren, for he would have loved them to pieces. The difference between my husband and Danny is that Danny seems to be a choleric/? personality and my husband was a sanguine/phlegmatic driven in his behavior by his subjection to an overbearing father with whom he was in business.)

I often wondered what happened off-camera but realized that Linda was more wrapped up in her dedication to the ministry and didn't want to say or do anything to cause damage to God's work - the same thing that has been practiced in this church, as well as others - because of Satanic confusion on what God really wants His people to do in such cases as we have seen developing over the last two years. I believe Clay (?) hit the nail on the head when he reiterated the list of things God hates and what He wants from His people: JUSTICE - RIVERS OF JUSTICE!

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 2 2006, 09:12 PM

Why - I can think of a certain situation in which a certain "rich caveman" advised against a certain "televangelist" marrying a certain younger woman. Apparently that wise advise went unheard also.

"Advice is seldom welcome, and those who need it the most, like it the least."
Lord Chesterfiled

"He that won't be counselled can't be helped."
Benjamin Franklin

Posted by: msraccoon Sep 3 2006, 04:01 PM

Back to Topic!!!!!!!!!!!

I just watched DS online, the Sunday rerun of Thursday night 2-hour live with Steve Wohlberg. Verrrry interesting.

Not only did he say he is staying on 3ABN, but he states he is soon to start a 24/7 children's programming channel that he recently thought up..."that's all I can say"...you know how DS talks. He is working very hard to convince (?himself) that he will be around long term. He reminded those in ??Hot Desert Springs CA that he will be there this weekend.....I find it too difficult to listen to or watch him now that I know what I believe to be true about him.

When he got to the call-in note that this topic mentioned (about Steve being badmouthed by others), he showed his true colors and got on a platform about himself, DS, being talked about. BSDA, you are really getting to him! He was so obviously upset, he just couldn't get off the subject. The mass letters sent to churches and forwarded to conferences are of great interest to him. He does not like the supposed statements that he is leaving 3ABN. He DOES hear (?or log on) about what we and other forums post, he calls it all lies.... In my opinion, this is really eating him up even though he denies that it is.

Keep up the fact-finding everybody, if nothing else, he is shaking in his cowboy boots.

msraccoon

Posted by: Expression Sep 4 2006, 06:39 AM

I also watched the re-run yesterday. I found it quite interesting. BSDA is having a tremendous effect.

Knowledge is power.

Posted by: Clay Sep 4 2006, 06:41 AM

QUOTE(Expression @ Sep 4 2006, 07:39 AM)

I also watched the re-run yesterday. I found it quite interesting. BSDA is having a tremendous effect.

Knowledge is power.

not everyone feels this way....

Posted by: Expression Sep 4 2006, 06:44 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 4 2006, 08:41 AM)

not everyone feels this way....

That is a true statement.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 4 2006, 07:58 AM

QUOTE(msraccoon @ Sep 3 2006, 05:01 PM)

Not only did he say he is staying on 3ABN, but he states he is soon to start a 24/7 children's programming channel that he recently thought up..."that's all I can say"...you know how DS talks.

I think he just wanted something to say encourage the viewers that 3ABN was still doing the Lord's work. The children's network has been talked about for several years. It's odd he would bring it up now...

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 4 2006, 10:12 AM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 4 2006, 09:58 AM)

I think he just wanted something to say encourage the viewers that 3ABN was still doing the Lord's work. The children's network has been talked about for several years. It's odd he would bring it up now...

Think 'weapons of mass distraction'...

no; it's not a typo...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: princessdi Sep 4 2006, 10:17 AM

No need to explain, JustTana. Sometimes the threads are hard to find. We are quite a busy site, lately.

QUOTE

Well, duh-h-h! Thanks, princessdi. I've been really sick for the last three years, in and out of the hospital 13 times, mind you; so every once in a while my mind does funny things, like just leave me hanging . . . But this last two days finally brought a diagnosis which will take care of everything else if I can just find the money to buy the alternative treatment now available to literally eat the candida running rampant in my body. Please, everybody? Pray that God will provide those funds (I'm on SSDisability which becomes plain SS in October) so that I can finally have a clear mind and a body with the energy to do the things that will make life meaningful to me and others as well as give Him glory and praise. I do give Him all the praise that I am even still alive after this long session of questioning what was happening to me?

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 4 2006, 12:54 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 4 2006, 11:12 AM)

Think 'weapons of mass distraction'...

no; it's not a typo...

In His service,
Mr. J

As if his rambling on and on isn't distraction enough...

Posted by: beartrap Sep 4 2006, 04:37 PM

He has also talked about a black network, and a Chinese network for three of more years. Guess we'll see.

Posted by: Fran Sep 4 2006, 04:45 PM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 1 2006, 01:57 PM)

Did any body else see the live call in show with steve wohalberg last nigh? There was a section when steve started talking about gossip and defending yourself and Danny jumped in and started saying that there was a lot of information about him that was being spread in chat rooms and posts and e-mails and letters to pastors. He said that people were making up stuff about him that was not true and were not even coming to ask his side of the story like jesus says in matt 24. He said that he was advised by whitely phipps not to defend himself. it would only make it worse.
This was a revelation. What this is revealing is that what is happening on BSDA, CA and Msdaol is working. it is having an impact. it is also revealing that Danny is lying to people . He stated that he has tried to defend himself and no one would believe Him. He also Lied by saying that no one has tried to contact him. Danny had been asked to come repeatedly and tell his side of the story. We had not heard from danny in a complete response. He has scolded and shamed and attacked people for wanting to know the truth about the situation. He has hidden behind the mantle of Making the Gospel go foreward as an excuse to stop the investigation in to the situation. We are bad for not wanting to support the the evanglistic efforts not him bad for bareing false wittness and committing adultry, by remarriage.

Is any one else thinking that we should step up an e-mail campagin? this is ridiculous.

I watched it. I was thrilled to see Steve Wohlberg and see pics of his family. I especially enjoyed the picture of Steve with his brother as a child! Seth, Steve and Kristen's son, is a Steve duplicate! Have you ever seen such beautiful eyes as Seth's?

I was disgusted Danny brought up the subject of rumors about Danny at all. That was so unnessary.

Steve Wohlburg and Doug Batchelor's lies and rumors consist of a non-Adventist publication accusing both of them of being Seventh-day Adventist and therefore a cult. Yeah, lies and rumors! Steve and Doug ARE Seventh-day Adventist! If only the facts/rumors about Danny were the same! I do not believe Danny could pass the test of being a Seventh-day Adventist! That just makes me determined to continue even harder to let everyone I know about the letters posted here and some from Club Adventist that have been deleted!

There has NEVER been an occasion, to date, that Steve has the same problems as Danny! I would suggest Steve has not read BSDA, MSDAOL, or Club Adventist ~ When it was there to read ~ at all. Steve is far too busy being about his fathers business. I know Steve's heart from near and far. Perfect he is not, but I know for sure his imperfections pale in comparison to Danny's. I wish Danny's factual problems were only that he was a Seventh-day Adventist.

As each minute passes, Danny, all by himself, is proving he is unfit to represent the SDA church!

Posted by: September Sep 4 2006, 08:04 PM

Just a side note about Steve Wohlberg--he was my Bible teacher years ago when I was in high school. His class was my very favorite--he always had such wonderful meaningful lessons and I went away from his class blessed every time.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 4 2006, 08:44 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 03:14 PM) ☐

If he had lived by Wintley's counsel from the beginning, this discussion probably wouldn't be happening at all ...

ITA with this.....

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 4 2006, 08:41 AM) ☐

not everyone feels this way....

...and those that don't like the "ostrich burying their head in the sand" type of mess....

sna

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 6 2006, 01:51 AM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 1 2006, 11:57 AM)

Did any body else see the live call in show with steve wohalberg last nigh? There was a section when steve started talking about gossip and defending yourself and Danny jumped in and started saying that there was a lot of information about him that was being spread in chat rooms and posts and e-mails and letters to pastors. He said that people were making up stuff about him that was not true and were not even coming to ask his side of the story like jesus says in matt 24. He said that he was advised by whitely phipps not to defend himself. it would only make it worse. ...

You all that watched this, did you gather the Steve had any knowledge that Dan would take off on this? Or that He was set up to talk about this at all? I am curious if Steve was "helping" Dan with his problems of late?

Posted by: Fran Sep 6 2006, 04:10 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 6 2006, 02:51 AM)

You all that watched this, did you gather the Steve had any knowledge that Dan would take off on this? Or that He was set up to talk about this at all? I am curious if Steve was "helping" Dan with his problems of late?

No, Steve had no idea. He is well aware that those who are working for God will have things said about them. The rest that followed was all Danny. Steve wondered why he would even bring that up, but went with the flow once Danny started.

3ABN will air his new programs. I am happy. I love 3ABN, the network. However, as most of you know, I believe there needs to be a house cleaning so God's air waves can be free from Financial Secrets, missing information and sexual deviants. They need to be transparent in all dealings.

Now there are victims coming forth with information that Danny and Tommy Shelton have sexual problems bigger than that of dumping your wife to marry another. Their sanctuary needs cleansing; Their homes needs Cleaning; there need to be strong Christian counseling to cleans the hearts.

Steve has never had such problems. He adores his wife and son. He is not a womanizer. He does not go near places Danny goes. He prays and studies his Bible daily. He has proven to me over, and over again that, he is a Godly man! In fact, he is so into the Word, he does not have time for reading forums or magazines. That is not a part of their life. They eat only food that glorifies their temple bodies. They worship God in their home as a family. Steve is a strong leader, and so is Kristen as the mother and homemaker. She is a teacher and is a strong leader in those areas.

It was VERY WRONG for Danny to equate his problems with Steve and Doug Batchelor's! Would that we would all be accused of being Seventh-day Adventists! I have not heard anyone complain by saying, "Danny is a Seventh-day Adventist, and therefore, a member of a cult". What I am hearing is "Why, is Danny a Seventh-day Adventist?" or "He can't be a Seventh-day Adventist and do what he has done!"

According to the following definitions, we could well be a cult along with other mainstream religions. So in actuality, what was said was the truth about Steve and Doug, It is beyond my comprehension how Danny could equate one "Fact/Rumor" of Steve & Doug's with Danny's volumes of "Facts/Rumors" with the other.

Definitions of cult on the Web:
• adherents of an exclusive system of religious beliefs and practices
• fad: an interest followed with exaggerated zeal; "he always follows the latest fads"; "it was all the rage that season"
• a system of religious beliefs and rituals; "devoted to the cultus of the Blessed Virgin" wordnet.princeton.edu/perl/webwn
• In religion and sociology, a cult is a group of people (often a new religious movement) devoted to beliefs and goals which may be contradictory to those held by the majority of society. Its marginal status may come about either due to its novel belief system or due to idiosyncratic practices that cause the surrounding culture to regard it as far outside the mainstream.
en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cult
• In traditional usage, the cult of a religion, quite apart from its sacred writings ("scriptures"), its theology or myths, or the personal faith of its believers, is the totality of external religious practice and observance, the neglect of which is the definition of impiety. Cult is literally the "care" owed to the god and the shrine. ...
en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cult_(religion)
• A religious group that follows a particular theological system. In the context of Christianity, and in particular, CARM, it is a group that uses the Bible but distorts the doctrines that affect salvation sufficiently to cause salvation to be unattainable. A few examples of cults are Mormonism, Jehovah's Witnesses, Christian Science, Christadelphians, Unity, Religious Science, The Way International, and the Moonies. (See also Cults)
www.carm.org/dictionary/dic_c-d.htm
• (cult) (kult) a system of treating disease based on some special and unscientific theory of disease causation.
www.merckmedicus.com/pp/us/hcp/thcp_dorlands_content.jsp
• Veneration (or honoring) of a saint expressed in public acts, local or universal, and formally approved by the Pope.
www.ichrusa.com/saintsalive/glossary.htm
• A religious group which denies the essential doctrines of Christianity. The term is usually reserved for groups founded after 1750.
www.dtl.org/trinity/misc/glossary.htm
• A following of people.
www.britishcouncil.org/ukinfocus-music-glossary.htm
• (noun) often attributive [French & Latin; French culte, from Latin cultus care, adoration, from colere to cultivate -- more at WHEEL]; First appeared 1617 1 : formal religious veneration : WORSHIP 2 : a system of religious beliefs and ritual; also : its body of adherents 3 : a religion regarded as unorthodox or spurious; also : its body of adherents 4 : a system for the cure of disease based on dogma set forth by its promulgator <health ~s> 5 a : great devotion to a person, idea, object ...
www.contecult.com/glossary.htm

For over 2 years, I have been praying for God to Save 3ABN, but cleanse the Financial Activities and get help for their deviant sexual behaviors. We must save the children for their future.

Everyone also needs to remember, Abused Children become Child abusers. My line of thinking causes me to pause, and wonder what happened to the Shelton Children to cause them to become abusers and sexual deviants. What happened for this horrible problem to occur? This is not always the case, but it has been proven to be a factor more times than not.

These problems will not go away in the twinkling of the eye or over night, unless there is a true GOD miracle, one that is not of the fabricated kind for a book. It will take time, they will need love, and acceptance while the drives and motivations get reprogrammed/removed from their choices. They must be encouraged to continue in the Lord for strengthening their hearts through Faith. All will not be lost forever. God is the only ones that can correct the problems.

Folkd, it is 5:99AM. I must get in bed. Please forgive misspelled words and improper grammar. Good nighy

---

Posted by: JustTana Sep 6 2006, 10:54 AM

For over 2 years, I have been praying for God to Save 3ABN, but cleanse the Financial Activities and get help for their deviant sexual behaviors. We must save the children for their future.

Everyone also needs to remember, Abused Children become Child abusers. My line of thinking causes me to pause, and wonder what happened to the Shelton Children to cause them to become abusers and sexual deviants. What happened for this horrible problem to occur? This is not always the case, but it has been proven to be a factor more times than not.

These problems will not go away in the twinkling of the eye or over night, unless there is a true GOD miracle, one that is not of the fabricated kind for a book. It will take time, they will need love, and acceptance while the drives and motivations get reprogrammed/removed from their choices. They must be encouraged to continue in the Lord for strengthening their hearts through Faith. All will not be lost forever. God is the only ones that can correct the problems.

Folkd, it is 5:99AM. I must get in bed. Please forgive misspelled words and improper grammar. Good nighy
[/quote]

Dear Fran: I have been thinking in that direction as well. God has shown me from experiences in my life that there is always a reason behind the behavior which we see. He helped me to see that I was allowed to go through what I did in order to make me empathetic to see beyond the behavior to the real, hurting person.

It seems to reason that the Shelton family is so ingrained in their aberrant behavior from generations back that they see nothing wrong in it and that allows them to continue in it without recognizing its heinous quality (I'm thinking Melody here!). But that does not mean that those who observe it should not do everything in their power to get it stopped to protect the non-Shelton children who are in danger. It is obvious to me that the Shelton children are entirely comfortable with what is happening and would be shocked to be told that what they are experiencing is sinful and hateful in the eyes of other people to say nothing about God's (at least the younger ones). Their picture of God is also so skewed that they don't connect the God who made the animals they love with a God Who would disapprove of the behavior of their parents and/or aunts and uncles.

Does this make sense to any of you?

JustTana

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 6 2006, 11:44 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 6 2006, 02:10 AM)

Now there are victims coming forth with information that Danny and Tommy Shelton have sexual problems bigger than that of dumping your wife to marry another. Their sanctuary needs cleansing; Their homes needs Cleaning; there need to be strong Christian counseling to cleans the hearts.

Fran, I am a newbie and not an administrator but Clay informed me the other day that this subject was off limits. If the "victims coming forth" are a matter of public record that would most likely change the situation.

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 6 2006, 08:54 AM)

It seems to reason that the Shelton family is so ingrained in their aberrant behavior from generations back that they see nothing wrong in it and that allows them to continue in it without recognizing its heinous quality (I'm thinking Melody here!). But that does not mean that those who observe it should not do everything in their power to get it stopped to protect the non-Shelton children who are in danger. It is obvious to me that the Shelton children are entirely comfortable with what is happening and would be shocked to be told that what they are experiencing is sinful and hateful in the eyes of other people to say nothing about God's (at least the younger ones). Their picture of God is also so skewed that they don't connect the God who made the animals they love with a God Who would disapprove of the behavior of their parents and/or aunts and uncles.

Does this make sense to any of you?

JustTana

JustTana, like I just said to Fran, Clay told me this subject is off limits at this time. I'm sure he'll jump in here at some point and say so.

I am very interested to find out if the claims are true because I know how devastating this can be to a child. We'll just have to wait for the public records.

Posted by: Clay Sep 6 2006, 11:44 AM allegations of sexual misconduct by any of the Sheltons remains off-limits at this time..... those allegations cannot be proved outside a court of law... so let's stick to what there is evidence for....thank you.....

Posted by: JustTana Sep 6 2006, 12:31 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 6 2006, 01:44 PM)

allegations of sexual misconduct by any of the Sheltons remains off-limits at this time..... those allegations cannot be proved outside a court of law... so let's stick to what there is evidence for....thank you.....

Oop, Clay, I'm sorry - was just expressing an opinion from personal experience and what the Lord showed me during some angry journaling about that experience. Won't happen again.

JustTana

Posted by: Clay Sep 6 2006, 12:57 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 6 2006, 01:31 PM)

Oop, Clay, I'm sorry - was just expressing an opinion from personal experience and what the Lord showed me during some angry journaling about that experience. Won't happen again.

JustTana

not a problem.... we are trying to steer away from allegations that we cannot get definitive proof or that involves sex with minors.....

Posted by: calvin Sep 6 2006, 03:50 PM

Also steering away from stuff about Linda and Danny not related to 3abn. Like his first wife.

Posted by: Ralph Sep 7 2006, 01:18 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 6 2006, 12:51 AM)

You all that watched this, did you gather the Steve had any knowledge that Dan would take off on this? Or that He was set up to talk about this at all? I am curious if Steve was "helping" Dan with his problems of late?

I watched it, and recorded the audio. It seemed that the question that started the discussion was a p.s. from another letter. Whether or not Steve had any prior knowledge, Danny and Steve were sure on the same page, both talking -- and interrupting each other -- at the beginning of it. The exchange lasted less than three minutes, but was very lively and quite revealing.

Danny implied that this was happening because "Satan is furious" because of the extended programming that Danny promises.

If I had no background knowledge, I suppose I would believe him.

I transcribed this exchange, and also the talk by John Lomacang and Shelley Quinn when they were encouraging Danny on the previous 3ABN live. I may not have it word perfect, but it is pretty close.

Posted by: inga Sep 7 2006, 11:11 AM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 7 2006, 02:18 AM)

I watched it, and recorded the audio. It seemed that the question that started the discussion was a p.s. from another letter. Whether or not Steve had any prior knowledge, Danny and Steve were sure on the same page, both talking -- and interrupting each other -- at the beginning of it. The exchange lasted less than three minutes, but was very lively and quite revealing.

Danny implied that this was happening because "Satan is furious" because of the extended programming that Danny promises.

If I had no background knowledge, I suppose I would believe him.

I transcribed this exchange, and also the talk by John Lomacang and Shelley Quinn when they were encouraging Danny on the previous 3ABN live. I may not have it word perfect, but it is pretty close.

Ralph, I think it would be very useful for you to post your transcriptions in this thread. Could you do so, please? (It would be good to include the date & time you recorded these.)

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 7 2006, 07:38 PM

Oh yes, I agree!

Posted by: justme Sep 8 2006, 12:19 PM

I have learned not to put much stock in what Danny says.

Does anyone remember seeing and hearing the project that danny was going to build, first a model of the sanctuary in the wildernedd with all the furnishings, and priests were going to re-enact the sanctuary serivces.?! He took a lot of money in jsut for that particular project.

Then he decided that "the Lord tol dme" to build it life sized after all, and that the "little one" just wouldn;t fo, after all. SO he took in another $+00,000.00 to make it life sized this time.

So what has happened to both projects? They were started, they were half finished, each one. Where did all the rest of the mosey's go?

Did the Lord change His mind and tell Danny that He changed His mind and so just forget the whole thing"?

Danny was the biggest protestor against 3ABN Radio when it was Linda's idea. Now he boasts of it regularly.

Do I believe what he said last night with John Carter at his side, that he, Danny, just re-dediacated his life to God a few days ago?

The "fruits will tell".. Fruits take time to ripen.
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for divorcing her?
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for destroying her reputation
?How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for making calls to cancel her appointments in churches?
How long will it take for him to apologize to all of us viewers for being a "cad"?

I hope this re-dedication is real! Time will tell, but in the mean time, he needs to step down and be "alone with God" as was Saul / Paul" after he was "hit by the light".

Saul/Paul did change all his ways and his habits and confess his sins openly.

Sins openly committed in public must be confessed in openly in public. Sins committed in private can be confessed in private.

Are the seed planted?
Are they being watered?
Are they taking root?
I truly hope so!
Does 3ABN need new, Godly, maybe interim, leadership NOW?

Posted by: lurker Sep 8 2006, 12:36 PM

I heard him say that too. I wouldn't believe him unless he gave back that everything was given by sacrificial giving for the saving of souls but which he used for himself or for his buddies. He is no Zaccaeus.

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 8 2006, 01:20 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 8 2006, 10:19 AM)

Do I believe what he said last night with John Carter at his side, that he, Danny, just re-dediacated his life to God a few days ago?

Justme,
I heard him say this too! I am watching

The "fruits will tell".. Fruits take time to ripen.
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for divorcing her?
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for destroying her reputation
?How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for making calls to cancel her appointments in churches?
How long will it take for him to apologize to all of us viewers for being a "cad"?

I hope this re-dedication is real! Time will tell, but in the mean time, he needs to step down and be "alone with God" as was Saul / Paul" after he was "hit by the light".

Saul/Paul did change all his ways and his habits and confess his sins openly.

Sins openly committed in public must be confessed in openly in public. Sins committed in private can be confessed in private.

Are the seed planted?
Are they being watered?
Are they taking root?
I truly hope so!
Does 3ABN need new, Godly, maybe interim, leadership NOW?

Couldn't have said it better myself. Truly Blonde

Posted by: justme Sep 8 2006, 01:55 PM

How many supporters know about 3ABN and Danny, et al.?

Danny probably is being advised to pretty much ignore that we all know what we know. His advisors likely tell him that "there are only a few out of all the supporters / viewers who know about you and your family. So just don'ta pay any attention to the one who do know."

BUT, there is STILL the responsibility to God and to God's children whom he has victimized, elderly supporters who gave their life savings so DS could have a new truck every year; the little widow who gave all that her husband left for her support, she gave to Danny and she moved into a shack so DS could have "country gentleman's home" and horses. Or the Man who needed surgery for his heart, who now cannot afford it because Danny has all his money to fly around begging for more $$$.

HMS Richards would not even put carpeting in his "Voice of Prophecy" building in Glendale, Calif., because it was cheaper to dust mop than to buy and to maintain carpeting. Other than the volunteers who donated over $300,000.00 worth of work every year, he actually paid his employees and paid their social security taxes, unheard of at 3ABN. None of HMS RICHARD's employees had to get government subsidy to survive. Elder Richards told me that he trusted God to pay every need. No debt at all, short term nor long term. CASH ALL THE WAY! Stay current day by day and all finance records are open daily, as transparent as glass. God blessed him for his faithfulness.

George Vandeman, who founded It Is Written, told me that he trusted God to supply all his needs. He never needed to travel around to hold "fund raisers". God blessed him for his faithful humility.

"When a man's ways please the LORD, He makes even his enemies to be at peace with him."

No peace?
No God!

Know peace!
Know God!

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 8 2006, 02:15 PM

QUOTE

Danny was the biggest protestor against 3ABN Radio when it was Linda's idea. Now he boasts of it regularly.

One evening, while Linda Shelton was sitting next to him, he said, "I have no vision for radio." I thought, at the time, that his viewpoint didn't need to be expressed, since the radio project was already under way.

At the time, I remember asking myself, "If radio is Linda's project, does he have any vision for Linda?" I think that turned out to be a big, "No."

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 8 2006, 02:40 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 8 2006, 01:19 PM) ☐

Do I believe what he said last night with John Carter at his side, that he, Danny, just re-dediacated his life to God a few days ago?

I heard no mention of apologies or of any sense of remorse for prior actions. There was no mention of restitution. (If there have been apologies, I have not heard of them, yet.)

Maybe re-dedicated Christians don't have to do those things? Maybe apologies and restitution are handled by that famous "Let God do it" department up in heaven?

Posted by: beartrap Sep 8 2006, 03:05 PM

"Rededication" does not imply that one has done wrong, but apology, confession, and restitution do. However, "rededication" can be very useful as a weapon against one's victims and those who demand a cleanup. "How dare you question the Christianity and/or rededication of a rededicated person? That is unChristian of you... especially when the rededicated person is God's Annointed One. How many people have you brought into the Church today, as opposed to the numbers he can produce? Are you as successful as him? Obviously, he is blessed and rededicated, and you are not. So there!"

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 8 2006, 03:50 PM

Rededication, repentance, rebaptism doesn't necessarily eliminate the consequences of our actions.

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 8 2006, 03:59 PM

QUOTE(Lucyladye @ Sep 8 2006, 02:50 PM)

Rededication, repentance, rebaptism doesn't necessarily eliminate the consequences of our actions.

sister

tb

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 8 2006, 04:39 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 8 2006, 03:05 PM)

"Rededication" does not imply that one has done wrong, but apology, confession, and restitution do. However, "rededication" can be very useful as a weapon against one's victims and those who demand a cleanup. "How dare you question the Christianity and/or rededication of a rededicated person? That is unChristian of you... especially when the rededicated person is God's Annointed One. How many people have you brought into the Church today, as opposed to the numbers he can produce? Are you as successful as him? Obviously, he is blessed and rededicated, and you are not. So there!"

Building a weapon and calling it rededication: This would be just another form of warfare, if it were true.

Posted by: inga Sep 8 2006, 04:50 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 8 2006, 01:19 PM)

Do I believe what he said last night with John Carter at his side, that he, Danny, just re-dediacated his life to God a few days ago?

The "fruits will tell".. Fruits take time to ripen.
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for divorcing her?
How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for destroying her reputation
?How long will it take for him to apologize to Linda for making calls to cancel her appointments in churches?
How long will it take for him to apologize to all of us viewers for being a "cad"?

I hope this re-dedication is real! Time will tell, but in the mean time, he needs to step down and be "alone with God" as was Saul / Paul" after he was "hit by the light".

Saul/Paul did change all his ways and his habits and confess his sins openly.

Sins openly committed in public must be confessed in openly in public. Sins committed in private can be confessed in private.

Are the seed planted?
Are they being watered?
Are they taking root?
I truly hope so!
Does 3ABN need new, Godly, maybe interim, leadership NOW?

A genuine dedication of one's life to God comes as a result of feeling one's need -- i.e. recognizing one's sins. Thus confession, repentance and restitution are part of the package. If confession, repentance and restitution is missing, there's no "dedication" except as a public relations ploy.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 8 2006, 04:54 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 8 2006, 04:05 PM)

Are you as successful as him? Obviously, he is blessed and rededicated, and you are not. So there!"

nanny-nanny, boo-boo

Posted by: princessdi Sep 8 2006, 05:09 PM

Behave, HOTY!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 8 2006, 03:54 PM)

nanny-nanny, boo-boo

Posted by: Ralph Sep 8 2006, 07:06 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 7 2006, 11:11 AM)

Ralph, I think it would be very useful for you to post your transcriptions in this thread. Could you do so, please? (It would be good to include the date & time you recorded these.)

Check out
http://users.rttinc.com/~rseland/private/lomacang.htm

http://users.rttinc.com/~rseland/private/quinn.htm

Corrections appreciated.
rseland@platinum.ca

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 08:59 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 8 2006, 06:06 PM)

Check out
http://users.rttinc.com/~rseland/private/lomacang.htm

http://users.rttinc.com/~rseland/private/quinn.htm

Corrections appreciated.
rseland@platinum.ca

Ralph, was this the first "showing" of this particular 3abn live? I know there were already edits done to the second showing.....that always sparks my interest....

Posted by: Ralph Sep 8 2006, 11:39 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 08:59 PM)

Ralph, was this the first "showing" of this particular 3abn live? I know there were already edits done to the second showing.....that always sparks my interest....

I did not see the first showing, but recorded the audio from a latter one. I transcribed this from a disk that I bought from 3ABN. I compared it with what I had taped and noticed that there was some editing, but only editing of repeated comments that I would have edited out myself.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 9 2006, 03:09 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 6 2006, 11:44 AM)

allegations of sexual misconduct by any of the Sheltons remains off-limits at this time..... those allegations cannot be proved outside a court of law... so let's stick to what there is evidence for....thank you.....

I'm not understanding this new (to me) emphasis on "court of law". When these things came up originally, as I understood it, there was not to be "speculation" that was not backed up with documentation.... and documentation, as it seemed to be interpreted then was first hand witness, a statement by a victim, or other solid "evidence'. There is nothing that I know of that has been said here on any subject that has been "proved" in any "court of law".

There are those now who have stepped forward and given their first hand testimony about "sexual misconduct" on the part of the Shelton brothers. One such affidavite has been sent to GC and other SDA leadership, and in fact has also been shared with leaders of this forum and of Maritime Forum. Out of consideration for the victim those who have received copies of this statement, have been asked that her name be kept out of any discussions on the forums. Besides this, I am told by an attorney who is formally investigating the case, that he has contact with several other women who have stepped forward and given their testimony also. These is no doubt at all at this stage of things, but what Linda had ample grounds to divorce Danny..... she simply did not realize it at the time.

As for Tommy, over on Maritime Forum, the information was posted about the investigation by the Assemblies of God church leaders into the charges against him when he was both a minister and a school teacher in their denomination..... which led to him being defrocked by that church. And information has also been posted there about the letter that was sent from AoG leadership to the 3ABN Board Chairman warning against hiring Tommy at 3ABN. (Another case of Danny and Walt Thompson not "following wise counsel", I guess).

It has also been documented on this forum (by a first person observer of what went on) as to the reason for Tommy not appearing on the official list of sex-offenders ..... that is, the "bargaining" between the Shelton family and parents of the children involved.

I also have in my possession testimony from a young adult male whom Tommy solicited..... who was told to just keep quiet about it when he reported this to Danny.

So I'm rather confused by seeing these present restrictions tightened against even the asking of questions which have already been given here on BSDA, and the follow-up on these topics as investigators share new documentation with some of us.

These are, admittedly, serious allegations..... but this is a serious topic. And these are NOT "speculations". While the documentation will not be posted until those who are accumulating it have either put it in print or are ready to present it in a court case, the documentation does exist for all I am saying here.... and more. As to the scope of the discussions here, there is much much MUCH wrong at 3ABN other than merely the problems which have to do with Linda and Danny's interactions. BSDA has been giving a marvelous service by allowing those who have information to post it where others can see it. It would be a very sad thing if the lines were now drawn so tightly that the wider picture was put out-of-bounds. For it is that wider picture that is so necessary for even a modicum of comprehension as to the "whys" of the narrower one of Danny's divorce and remarriage. And it is certainly the wider picture that is crucial to the church realizing why they simply must sever all connections with the Shelton "dynasty" (including those whose last names are not Shelton..... whatever that may mean regarding the future relationship to 3ABN as a broadcasting entity).

I am certainly in harmony with the guidelines set up at the previous "thread closing" times ... which banned speculation of a sensational (and even criminal) nature in areas where there was no documentation available. But facts are facts, and IMO we should not have to wait for court cases before we share these in a factual but generalized manner so as to protect the identities of those who are giving their statements to official researchers.

Posted by: Clay Sep 9 2006, 05:16 AM

then post the facts..... not the speculation..... in the one case where the person asked not to be named, it would be difficult to discuss that issue without identifying who that person is..... so to honor the request that no names be disclosed, the issue has not been discussed..... if there has been a change in the request then the issue can be discussed... I have not seen here any information about Mr. Shelton's brother or his problems, when that documentation is provided that issue can also be explored....

Posted by: calvin Sep 9 2006, 07:53 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 9 2006, 04:09 AM)

I'm not understanding this new (to me) emphasis on "court of law". When these things came up originally, as I understood it, there was not to be "speculation" that was not backed up with documentation.... and documentation, as it seemed to be interpreted then was first hand witness, a statement by a victim, or other solid "evidence'. There is nothing that I know of that has been said here on any subject that has been "proved" in any "court of law".

There are those now who have stepped forward and given their first hand testimony about "sexual misconduct" on the part of the Shelton brothers. One such affidavite has been sent to GC and other SDA leadership, and in fact has also been shared with leaders of this forum and of Maritime Forum. Out of consideration for the victim those who have received copies of this statement, have been asked that her name be kept out of any discussions on the forums. Besides this, I am told by an attorney who is formally investigating the case, that he has contact with several other women who have stepped forward and given their testimony also. These is no doubt at all at this stage of things, but what Linda had ample grounds to divorce Danny..... she simply did not realize it at the time.

As for Tommy, over on Maritime Forum, the information was posted about the investigation by the Assemblies of God church leaders into the charges against him when he was both a minister and a school teacher in their denomination..... which led to him being defrocked by that church. And information has also been posted there about the letter that was sent from AoG leadership to the 3ABN Board Chairman warning against hiring Tommy at 3ABN. (Another case of Danny and Walt Thompson not "following wise counsel", I guess).

It has also been documented on this forum (by a first person observer of what went on) as to the reason for Tommy not appearing on the official list of sex-offenders ..... that is, the "bargaining" between the Shelton family and parents of the children involved.

I also have in my possession testimony from a young adult male whom Tommy solicited..... who was told to just keep quiet about it when he reported this to Danny.

So I'm rather confused by seeing these present restrictions tightened against even the asking of questions which have already been given here on BSDA, and the follow-up on these topics as investigators share new documentation with some of us.

These are, admittedly, serious allegations..... but this is a serious topic. And these are NOT "speculations". While the documentation will not be posted until those who are accumulating it have either put it in print or are ready to present it in a court case, the documentation does exist for all I am saying here.... and more. As to the scope of the discussions here, there is much much MUCH wrong at 3ABN other than merely the problems which have to do with Linda and Danny's interactions. BSDA has been giving a marvelous service by allowing those who have information to post it where others can see it. It would be a very sad thing if the lines were now drawn so tightly that the wider picture was put out-of-bounds. For it is that wider picture that is so necessary for even a modicum of comprehension as to the "whys" of the narrower one of Danny's divorce and remarriage. And it is certainly the wider picture that is crucial to the church realizing why they simply must sever all connections with the Shelton "dynasty" (including those whose last names are not Shelton..... whatever that may mean regarding the future relationship to 3ABN as a broadcasting entity).

I am certainly in harmony with the guidelines set up at the previous "thread closing" times ... which banned speculation of a sensational (and even criminal) nature in areas where there was no documentation available. But facts are facts, and IMO we should not have to wait for court cases before we share these in a factual but generalized manner so as to protect the identities of those who are giving their statements to official researchers.

Then post the Alyssa Shelton letter that has supposedly been sent broadly to church officials and we can put molestation on the table. Seems to me this letter is public knowledge. But you want to spare her? Then you admonish us for closing the thread where you want to discuss all the dirty on Melody Shelton. You can't have it both ways,

Let me remind everybody. I run a message board here, have been for 8 years. I am not on a mission to find the true on 3abn or bring down the Shelton clad. I commend you for taking up this cause for truth and exposing the wrongs at 3abn, try to understand that most of us (those members than have around here for awhile) don't share in your zest for this mission many of you have undertaken. There are a lot more things going on in the Adventist church and BSDA than 3abn.

We are going to moderate these discussion the way we see fit. We reserve the right to make rules and change our minds it we want to....and I really don't owe you any explains when you protest, so don't always or even most of the time expect me to response to your emails, PM and public protest. Just go with the flow.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 9 2006, 08:48 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 9 2006, 05:16 AM)

then post the facts..... not the speculation..... in the one case where the person asked not to be named, it would be difficult to discuss that issue without identifying who that person is..... so to honor the request that no names be disclosed, the issue has not been discussed..... if there has been a change in the request then the issue can be discussed... I have not seen here any information about Mr. Shelton's brother or his problems, when that documentation is provided that issue can also be explored....

There are times when I sense a sort of "sliding scale" as to what are considered "facts" and what is considered "speculation". To me there is a definite difference, and all that I posted above I would consider as being facts.... since they represent information that was given to me as to actual occurrances .... as contrasted with things which someone has "reasoned" "might be" what had happened given something that they consider "circumstantial evidence' (which would be my understanding of what would be considered "speculation". Does that coincide with your "working definition of these terms? If not, then hopefully you can help me understand what yours is.

One caveate to this, of course, is the possibility that I might be mistaken in some of the "facts" as I post them. It has happened before, and having only partial information, it is quite possible that it might happen again. When that has happened, I have made public acknowledgement of my error and given the corrected information as I have learned it. But I do make every effort to check my facts before posting, and while I leave out many details, I try to make sure that the partial picture I give is not misleading.

As for the name of the individual mentioned, I think you have seen the compromise that was worked out on Maritime, where the person was identified as to relationship, but not by name. That may seem like a small difference and not one that is important ..... but it seems to be the best that can be done. And the "rules" were significantly altered, whether or not they were officially altered by the person making the disclosure, when Danny at ASI convention, tried to discredit the statement by the things he spread around there..... including his usual "it's all lies" and "she only did it because her mother told her too" and "I have talked to her on the phone and she said that." .... a statement that Mabel Dunbar and others immediately investigated and found to be a false statement since she had gotten a new phone and Danny did not even have phone numbers that would reach her. And then, of course, came the "infamous" sermon by Shelly Quinn, in which she likened Danny to John the Baptist..... and told how he met his demise by a mother/daughter combination. .. and which we discussed in another thread here in that connection. But it is not only the posters on BSDA who see a connection between the two things .... even conference officials and those who are closely connected with the 3ABN board see this as a very crucial document in the "saga".

As to Tommy ... If you go to Maritime you can see a report by a person which gave the results of his own private investigation and consultation with the CoG officials which informed of their previous investigation of the incidents at the time and also of their attempts to warn 3ABN management about the inadvisability of them including Tommy in their lineup. I also have information from a different source that there are copies of the registered letter they sent to 3ABN in the hands of a researcher/attorney. I doubt that the actual document will be released until he has a complete enough set of documents for print publication or for legal action, but I will check on this if I have opportunity.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 9 2006, 09:36 AM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 9 2006, 07:53 AM)

Then post the Alyssa Shelton letter that has supposedly been sent broadly to church officials and we can put molestation on the table. Seems to me this letter is public knowledge. But you want to spare her? Then you admonish us for closing the thread where you want to discuss all the dirty on Melody Shelton. You can't have it both ways,

What we asked was that her name not be put on the board..... we have referred to her statement elsewhere by identifying her as either Linda's daughter or as Danny's step-daughrter. And what we passed on was her own request. As a matter of fact, there is no such person as "Alyssa Shelton" .... this is NOT her name. And what I had understood you to say previously was that if we had documentation we could send it to you privately .... and it had seemed that the implication was that once you had satisfied yourself that there was real documentation then you would allow discussion. Now you are saying that the documentation itself must be publicly posted? What we had hoped was that the issues surrounding how abuse affects the reactions of the one abused ... especially of children who are brought up in a home where intimacies regularly cross the line beyond what most of us would consider appropriate bahaviour..... could be discussed in general, without using specific people as objects of scrutiny. It was unfortunate, IMO, that this did not happen. I don't know if it is too late for it to happen or not..... or perhaps it is too early. Perhaps this won't happen here until after things appear in print. I guess at this point we'll just have to wait and see.

As to the comparison to Melody .... Melody's history is already a matter of public record. And she is a vital part of the "Shelton Dynasty" that writes their own rules for their own behaviour at the same time as they preach about the "Ten Commandments".

QUOTE

Let me remind everybody. I run a message board here, have been for 8 years. I am not on a mission to find the true on 3abn or bring down the Shelton clad. I commend you for taking up this cause for truth and exposing the wrongs at 3abn, try to understand that most of us (those members than have around here for awhile) don't share in your zest for this mission many of you have undertaken. There are a lot more things going on in the Adventist church and BSDA than 3abn.

And I commend you for allowing this kind of discussion to go on here. And certainly one thing that "makes it work" is what you just said above ... that you are "not on a mission". In your position as owner of the board, your neutrality is just as important as is the sense of "mission" that some of us have. To focus for a moment on your last sentence above..... There is indeed "a lot more things going on in the Adventist church"..... and while some of that "lot more" is very good, some of it is comparable in ways we wish were not true, to the problems that we see at 3ABN. Our church has, with few exceptions, adhered to a "policy" of keeping everything "swept under the rug".... not informing the laity when there were problems .... except when laity have themselves been the agents of uncovering and publicizing the "hidden" events. I don't know what it will take for the official church to respond to increasing pressures from laity for public disclosure and lines of accountability set up such that such hidden things can no longer be hidden. Will the 3ABN Saga be the catalyst which will finally force the church to re-examine the way it "does business"? I don't know, and I don't want to put more importance on this Saga than it should have, for the efforts to expose their problems are certainly not the only efforts by laity to alter church structure and make it more open, more responsive, and more publicaly accountable in all that it does.

What I want to point out here is that I think boards like this, wiith their ability to put information out into the public domain, may find their role in the church changing and that they will themselves become "agents of change", not merely in individual situations like the rule of the Shelton Dynasty, but in the whole church system of doing business.

QUOTE

We are going to moderate these discussion the way we see fit. We reserve the right to make rules and change our minds it we want to....and I really don't owe you any explains when you protest, so don't always or even most of the time expect me to response to your emails, PM and public protest. Just go with the flow.

I appreciate you need for flexibility as things change. And I'm trying to "go with the flow" .... but having been out of cybercontact for 10 days means I have a lot of "catching up" to do in order to find where "the flow" is going. .... I'll do my best. Thanks for your patience.

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 10:03 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 9 2006, 11:36 AM)

What we asked was that her name not be put on the board..... we have referred to her statement elsewhere by identifying her as either Linda's daughter or as Danny's step-daughrter. And what we passed on was her own request.

So we don't put the name (at the victim's request), but we do identify her. I won't name Calvin, but I can identify him as "one of the people who run this board" ??

QUOTE

There is indeed "a lot more things going on in the Adventist church"..... and while some of that "lot more" is very good, some of it is comparable in ways we wish were not true, to the problems that we see at 3ABN. Our church has, with few exceptions, adhered to a "policy" of keeping everything "swept under the rug".... not informing the laity when there were problems

Once again, I am confused. Is 3ABN is part of the church or it is not? Is 3ABN a privately run corporation which the church has to inform their members about or is it not? If 3ABN is not, then why not just assign it the status that we assign certain fringe outfits that we ignore? How exactly is the church supposed to inform its members about an organization outside its purview?

QUOTE

What I want to point out here is that I think boards like this, wiith their ability to put information out into the public domain, may find their role in the church changing and that they will themselves become "agents of change".

The key word is information. What you are putting out is "insinuations" disguised as "information" and not really useful. Why not just state the facts exactly as they are instead of adding, as it were, spice to every sentence?

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 9 2006, 02:54 PM

The fictitious "Margaret Gray" on another board was continually asking for names and identities.

It seemed to be an obsession.

Margaret used different names over the years. But the question was always the same "give me a name" blah blah blah.

Most people got tired of hearing that request after awhile.

Margaret, I understand, is a young, male, lawyer in California, who has done work for Danny Shelton.

Posted by: Fran Sep 9 2006, 02:54 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 11:03 AM)

So we don't put the name (at the victim's request), but we do identify her. I won't name Calvin, but I can identify him as "one of the people who run this board" ??
Once again, I am confused. Is 3ABN is part of the church or it is not? Is 3ABN a privately run corporation which the church has to inform their members about or is it not? If 3ABN is not, then why not just assign it the status that we assign certain fringe outfits that we ignore? How exactly is the church supposed to inform its members about an organization outside its purview?
The key word is information. What you are putting out is "insinuations" disguised as "information" and not really useful. Why not just state the facts exactly as they are instead of adding, as it were, spice to every sentence?

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Has phishing become the norm? What you want are names and more names. Is that for slander or liable evidence. Maybe the poster will spill the beans, right?

Just curious.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 9 2006, 04:51 PM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 9 2006, 01:54 PM)

Has phishing become the norm? What you want are names and more names. Is that for slander or liable evidence. Maybe the poster will spill the beans, right?

Just curious.

I think I understand what phishing means although not positive. What does PM mean?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 9 2006, 05:05 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 9 2006, 03:51 PM)

I think I understand what phishing means although not positive. What does PM mean?

Could be....
PM = Private messaging (as in your control panal, sending/receiving a private message in your mail box)

Posted by: Clay Sep 9 2006, 05:05 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 9 2006, 04:51 PM)

I think I understand what phishing means although not positive. What does PM mean?

PM = private message

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 9 2006, 05:14 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 9 2006, 04:05 PM)

Could be....
PM = Private messaging (as in your control panal, sending/receiving a private message in your mail box)

Thanks

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 9 2006, 04:05 PM)

PM = private message

And thanks to you

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 9 2006, 07:48 AM)

There are times when I sense a sort of "sliding scale" as to what are considered "facts" and what is considered "speculation". To me there is a definite difference, and all that I posted above I would consider as being facts.... since they represent information that was given to me as to actual occurrances .... as contrasted with things which someone has "reasoned" "might be" what had happened given something that they consider "circumstantial evidence' (which would be my understanding of what would be considered "speculation". Does that coincide with your "working definition of these terms? If not, then hopefully you can help me understand what yours is.

When you are given information that purports to be from actual occurances, are you 100% positive that these pieces of information are authentic? Is there any way they could be lies?

A letter or a piece of paper isn't the same as first hand knowledge unless you can verify its authenticity.

If you have such authentic, verifiable documents I agree with Clay, or was it Calvin that you should post them so they can see the light of day.

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 09:41 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 9 2006, 03:54 PM)

The fictitious "Margaret Gray" on another board was continually asking for names and identities.

It seemed to be an obsession.

Margaret used different names over the years. But the question was always the same "give me a name" blah blah blah.

Most people got tired of hearing that request after awhile.

Margaret, I understand, is a young, male, lawyer in California, who has done work for Danny Shelton.

Mainly because I can verify the information on my own and judge it on its own merits. If I know a person is real, verified and contactable, then facts versus slander is made clear.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 9 2006, 03:54 PM)

Has phishing become the norm? What you want are names and more names. Is that for slander or liable evidence. Maybe the poster will spill the beans, right?

Just curious.

I don't think you know what phishing is. I don't want names and more names. What I want is verifiable information and I'm not getting that.
I have no axe to grind and no agenda.
But I guess you choose not to believe that.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 9 2006, 10:40 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 11:41 PM)

....I have no axe to grind and no agenda.
But I guess you choose not to believe that.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Yeah...sure....okay....if you say so.....

sna

Posted by: Clay Sep 10 2006, 12:47 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 10:41 PM)

Mainly because I can verify the information on my own and judge it on its own merits. If I know a person is real, verified and contactable, then facts versus slander is made clear.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com
I don't think you know what phishing is. I don't want names and more names. What I want is verifiable information and I'm not getting that.
I have no axe to grind and no agenda.
But I guess you choose not to believe that.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

yes you do have an agenda... you just stated it... you want verifiable info.... which means you don't believe what you have read thus far... since that is the case, I don't think you are going to get what you want.....

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 01:43 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 10 2006, 01:47 AM)

yes you do have an agenda... you just stated it... you want verifiable info.... which means you don't believe what you have read thus far... since that is the case, I don't think you are going to get what you want.....

True, verifiable information is my agenda. The truth is what I'm after, regardless of who proves to be right. And since what I've read thus far isn't verifiable, I'm not getting what I want.
But you state something plainly, whereas others add to what should be plain statements and thereby make their entire posting suspect.

Posted by: Clay Sep 10 2006, 01:55 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 01:43 AM) ☐

True, verifiable information is my agenda. The truth is what I'm after, regardless of who proves to be right. And since what I've read thus far isn't verifiable, I'm not getting what I want.
But you state something plainly, whereas others add to what should be plain statements and thereby make their entire posting suspect.

start with what is verifiable.... danny got a divorce on the grounds of "spiritual adultery" and did so in Guam..... why?

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 02:37 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 10 2006, 02:55 AM) ☐

start with what is verifiable.... danny got a divorce on the grounds of "spiritual adultery" and did so in Guam..... why?

The speculation for the why is the unverifiable part. So now who do we turn to for the verifiable truth?

Posted by: Clay Sep 10 2006, 06:15 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 02:37 AM) ☐

The speculation for the why is the unverifiable part. So now who do we turn to for the verifiable truth?

NO its not.... he said it was for "spiritual adultery" now does that exist?

Posted by: Johann Sep 10 2006, 06:36 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 10 2006, 02:15 PM) ☐

NO its not.... he said it was for "spiritual adultery" now does that exist?

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 10 2006, 07:59 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 09:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Interesting post, however, I will not go there at this time.

Posted by: Ralph Sep 10 2006, 10:36 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 05:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Thanks, Johann for your question. It may not be answered immediately, but it is one that I will keep in mind as a possibility.

Posted by: lurker Sep 10 2006, 10:53 AM

I knew someone with a similar personality as Danny's who could be made to do almost anything if you just inflated his ego. He didn't know who his enemies were because they knew how to "work him". He thought they were devoted to him. Instead they were trying to use him for their own agendas. He passed away before they accomplished their goals.

Posted by: Johann Sep 10 2006, 12:50 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 10 2006, 06:53 PM)

I knew someone with a similar personality as Danny's who could be made to do almost anything if you just inflated his ego. He didn't know who his enemies were because they knew how to "work him". He thought they were devoted to him. Instead they were trying to use him for their own agendas. He passed away before they accomplished their goals.

Could there be people posing as friends, even worshipping him as a prophet, and yet trying to get rid of him after Linda is out of the way?

Posted by: sister Sep 10 2006, 01:55 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 10 2006, 06:53 PM)

I knew someone with a similar personality as Danny's who could be made to do almost anything if you just inflated his ego. He didn't know who his enemies were because they knew how to "work him". He thought they were devoted to him. Instead they were trying to use him for their own agendas. He passed away before they accomplished their goals.

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 01:50 PM)

Could there be people posing as friends, even worshipping him as a prophet, and yet trying to get rid of him after Linda is out of the way?

After Linda was removed from the ministry, a "friend" of Danny's who fits the above description perfectly, made the following comment on a 3ABN live program, with direct reference to Linda Shelton's departure: "Now the ministry has been purged!"

Is it time for another purging at 3ABN and for a certain couple to take their "rightful place", at the head of "their" ministry, as ordained by God, since He has only used Danny to prepare it for them? Is it finally time for her dream to be realized? When will Danny realize that he is being sucker punched?

TVsnack.

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 03:36 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 10 2006, 07:15 AM)

NO its not.... he said it was for "spiritual adultery" now does that exist?

The only spiritual adultery I know of is where you are unfaithful to God.

The closest thing I know to the kind Danny referred to would be language in the divorce petition alleging "alienation of affection." I don't know if this was there in their divorce papers. I think I read somewhere that "mutually irreconcilable" was what was used, but I'm not sure about it.

You have stated many times in the past that you think the whole situation was conducted unfairly with reference to Linda. I agree with the "conducted unfairly" part to a certain extent. Mainly because, if I was in that situation, I would have just kept my mouth shut - no letters, no references to anybody while on air, nothing.

Does handling a situation incorrectly make a person into an incarnation of the devil? Some people on this forum think that I am a Danny stooge. I just don't quite buy anybody's party line, whether it be Danny's or anti-Danny's. For example, his marrying a woman barely 2 years after his separation and with an age difference like that did raise questions in my mind as to whether he really knew that "perception is reality." And then again, some "story" postings in this forum that would have been better not written also raise questions in my mind.

Steffan Philip

Posted by: inga Sep 10 2006, 04:42 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 04:36 PM) ☐

if I was in that situation, I would have just kept my mouth shut - no letters, no references to anybody while on air, nothing.

That would have been the more honorable thing for Dan to do.

QUOTE

Does handling a situation incorrectly make a person into an incarnation of the devil?

No one here used the words "incarnation of the devil."

However, Walt Thompson, in a widely circulated letter, drew a parallel between Linda Shelton and her supporters and Lucifer and his supporters.

You also appear to assume that Danny's relationship with Linda is the main problem. Most of us realize that it's not. It functions more like a red herring to keep us from noticing the real problems associated with the handling of donor funds.

QUOTE

For example, his marrying a woman barely 2 years after his separation and with an age difference like that did raise questions in my mind as to whether he really knew that "perception is reality."

If you'll check around a bit, you can find out that he didn't wait 2 years to start keeping company with Brandy who "worked" for 3ABN, albeit briefly. Maybe someone else on this board can tell just when he was first seen with Brandy. I can't blame folks too much for assuming that a relationship with Brandy pre-dates his abrupt dismissal of Linda. It sure looked like he knew her before, judging by appearances.

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 07:53 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 10 2006, 05:42 PM) ☐

> That would have been the more honorable thing for Dan to do. No one here used the words "incarnation of the devil."
>
> However, Walt Thompson, in a widely circulated letter, drew a parallel between Linda Shelton and her supporters and Lucifer and his supporters.

After having read everything on this forum, are you seriously implying that all those storytellers don't think of him as nothing less?

> QUOTE
>
> You also appear to assume that Danny's relationship with Linda is the main problem. Most of us realize that it's not. It functions more like a red herring to keep us from noticing the real problems associated with the handling of donor funds.

Let's see. Clay writes, "my problem is with how Linda was treated." He repeated that in other postings. So that is not the main problem?
Donor funds? I'm sorry, but 3ABN is a private organization. It has a board of directors that I would presume know how things go. Yet what do I hear on this forum? Danny "owns" the board, the local church, the local conference, the General Conference - mainly because he has a wealthy supporter who will withhold funds from Global Mission? My wife spoke to Mike Ryan to ask him if this could indeed be possible. He denied it and actually laughed about it.

> QUOTE
>
> If you'll check around a bit, you can find out that he didn't wait 2 years to start keeping company with Brandy who "worked" for 3ABN, albeit briefly. Maybe someone else on this board can tell just when he was first seen with Brandy. I can't blame folks too much for assuming that a relationship with Brandy pre-dates his abrupt dismissal of Linda. It sure looked like he knew her before, judging by appearances.

My point exactly. 2 years was too soon. It should have been more like 5 or 10.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 11 2006, 05:41 AM

> QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 07:53 PM) ☐
>
> After having read everything on this forum, are you seriously implying that all those storytellers don't think of him as nothing less?

Hal Steenson was once preaching about the Sunshine Skyway that crosses Tampa bay. One of the two spans had been hit by a barge and had fallen into the shark infested Tampa Bay far below.

A bus full of people shot right off the edge even after someone had desperately tried to flag the bus down. But the bus driver only put his foot on the gas and drove faster, totally mistaking the desperate screams of the pedestrian standing in the roadway.

Hal Steenson continued:

"We shout, "The bridge is out," when we see people driving in that direction. We don't whisper it."

Hal used that as a reference to preaching the Gospel. It's not something to be whispered. You shout, "The bridge is out" with a sense of urgency.

Well, I think the storytellers you mentioned are shouting "The bridge is out." They don't want unsuspecting people to go right off the edge. Unfortunately, the Adventist Church, like the bus driver, is just laughing at the foolish pedestrian and putting its foot on the gas. The results of doing that will be seen later.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 06:18 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 11 2006, 01:41 PM)

Unfortunately, the Adventist Church, like the bus driver, is just laughing at the foolish pedestrian and putting its foot on the gas. The results of doing that will be seen later.

There will be plenty of shouting in 3-4 days. Stay tuned!

Posted by: Clay Sep 11 2006, 07:42 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 07:18 PM)

There will be plenty of shouting in 3-4 days. Stay tuned!

sounds interesting..... can hardly wait....

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 07:49 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 12 2006, 03:42 AM)

sounds interesting..... can hardly wait....

Am bursting to tell you, but I got to have some patience.

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 11 2006, 08:04 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 05:49 PM)

Am bursting to tell you, but I got to have some patience.

Johann....stop torturing us! rofl

Posted by: cottageK Sep 11 2006, 08:12 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 07:49 PM)

Am bursting to tell you, but I got to have some patience.

How will we find out? Will it be from public sources? From here on bsda? Believe me, I'll be staying tuned.....!

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 11 2006, 08:19 PM

QUOTE(cottageK @ Sep 11 2006, 07:12 PM)

How will we find out? Will it be from public sources? From here on bsda? Believe me, I'll be staying tuned.....!

You'll know,

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 11 2006, 08:24 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 11 2006, 09:19 PM)

You'll know,

Can't wait...

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 08:28 PM

QUOTE(cottageK @ Sep 12 2006, 04:12 AM)

How will we find out? Will it be from public sources? From here on bsda? Believe me, I'll be staying tuned.....!

There are plenty of media avenues available, and there is sufficient material to last for a long time. I trust BSDA will be one of those avenues. If nothing else, then to refer to where the material is available.

Posted by: cottageK Sep 11 2006, 08:34 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 08:28 PM)

There are plenty of media avenues available, and there is sufficient material to last for a long time. I trust BSDA will be one of those avenues. If nothing else, then to refer to where the material is available.

So, should I be watching 3ABN channel this week.....? Would that be a source to monitor? Thursday Night Live??? 'Course maybe it won't come from 3ABN itself. Will just have to be vigilant, huh?

Posted by: msraccoon Sep 11 2006, 08:35 PM

Johann, is 3-4 days a certain timeframe? Or could it stretch out to much longer?

You have certainly stirred the pot for us now!!!!

msraccoon

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 11 2006, 08:40 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 09:28 PM)

There are plenty of media avenues available, and there is sufficient material to last for a long time. I trust BSDA will be one of those avenues. If nothing else, then to refer to where the material is available.

Like a book written by Linda herself? That would afford a rather lengthy discussion.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 08:44 PM

QUOTE(cottageK @ Sep 12 2006, 04:34 AM)

So, should I be watching 3ABN channel this week.....? Would that be a source to monitor? Thursday Night Live??? 'Course maybe it won't come from 3ABN itself. Will just have to be vigilant, huh?

Depends on how long Mollie and co keep quiet. They may not permit Danny on the stage by then.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 11 2006, 08:45 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 07:40 PM)

Like a book written by Linda herself? That would afford a rather lengthy discussion.

If she were to do that, it would only be an added bonus.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 08:46 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 12 2006, 04:40 AM)

Like a book written by Linda herself? That would afford a rather lengthy discussion.

Linda is still under the GAG order! She is not involved.

Posted by: Freedom Sep 11 2006, 10:54 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 04:18 PM)

There will be plenty of shouting in 3-4 days. Stay tuned!

Long OVERDUE!

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 12 2006, 05:47 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 11 2006, 09:45 PM)

If she were to do that, it would only be an added bonus.

A very interesting bonus I suspect!

Posted by: västergötland Sep 18 2006, 03:14 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 12 2006, 02:18 AM)

There will be plenty of shouting in 3-4 days. Stay tuned!

Anyone shouting yet?

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 18 2006, 06:29 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 18 2006, 06:14 AM)

Anyone shouting yet?

Good question...

Posted by: JustTana Sep 18 2006, 08:29 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 18 2006, 07:29 AM)

Good question...

Well MsHoly1: I don't seem to get it yet. Oh well, my comment is that perhaps the 'shouting' will not take place until after the Doug/Dwight meetings are over this week. And while I was really livid about Danny and Tommy being on the program the first two nights, I am hoping that the presence of the blond gal who plays so well and is going to be reading the scripture that Mollie used to do signals a change in personnel which will be to our liking and to God's Glory. But that's just my thoughts. What do any of you think?

JustTana

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 08:48 AM

Johann, that is very interesting.... it is very much possible that someone else has been playing up all of this from the beginning to bring about a divorce and thus divide/destroy the impact of the 3ABN ministry....

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 06:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

That certainly places a "new dress on this puppy" for sure....and makes more sense....

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 09:04 AM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 18 2006, 09:29 AM)

Well MsHoly1: I don't seem to get it yet. Oh well, my comment is that perhaps the 'shouting' will not take place until after the Doug/Dwight meetings are over this week. And while I was really livid about Danny and Tommy being on the program the first two nights, I am hoping that the presence of the blond gal who plays so well and is going to be reading the scripture that Mollie used to do signals a change in personnel which will be to our liking and to God's Glory. But that's just my thoughts. What do any of you think?

JustTana

I, too, have been wondering how long this "coupe" has been in the works,

So who would likely stand to benefit from 3ABN "Crumbling"? Would it be:

The General COnference?

Mollie and Hal Steenson, who have controlle it(through Danny) from the beginnng?

Other PENTACOSTAL MINISTRIES who would love to buy it out "lock, stock, and barrell"?

Danny has been under the influence of Hal and especially Mollie, since they helped him get started, (provided the first set of cameras andvideo gear)(on loan).

WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"?

.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 09:10 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 09:48 AM)

Johann, that is very interesting.... it is very much possible that someone else has been playing up all of this from the beginning to bring about a divorce and thus divide/destroy the impact of the 3ABN ministry....

That certainly places a "new dress on this puppy" for sure....and makes more sense....

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 07:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 07:18 PM)

There will be plenty of shouting in 3-4 days. Stay tuned!

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 18 2006, 07:29 AM)

Good question...

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 18 2006, 04:14 AM)

Anyone shouting yet?

Patiently, waiting 6 days later....

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 18 2006, 10:32 AM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 18 2006, 11:29 AM)

Well MsHoly1: I don't seem to get it yet. Oh well, my comment is that perhaps the 'shouting' will not take place until after the Doug/Dwight meetings are over this week. And while I was really livid about Danny and Tommy being on the program the first two nights, I am hoping that the presence of the blond gal who plays so well and is going to be reading the scripture that Mollie used to do signals a change in personnel which will be to our liking and to God's Glory. But that's just my thoughts. What do any of you think?

JustTana

I have been meaning to watch the Doug/Dwight Meetings (as you call them) but I always forget and it's almost finished when I tune in. I'll try to watch tonight. Kelly Smith Mowrer is a great pianist...she looks like she's thoroughly enjoying herself when she plays.

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 10:48 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 18 2006, 12:32 PM)

I have been meaning to watch the Doug/Dwight Meetings (as you call them) but I always forget and it's almost finished when I tune in. I'll try to watch tonight. Kelly Smith Mowrer is a great pianist...she looks like she's thoroughly enjoying herself when she plays.

Have you heard anything about how well or how badly things went at the 3ABN Rally in Desert Hot Springs a week ago???

Posted by: September Sep 18 2006, 11:03 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:48 AM)

Have you heard anything about how well or how badly things went at the 3ABN Rally in Desert Hot Springs a week ago???

I haven't heard anything...but I did check out the 3ABN website this morning and the announcement about that event is still there...which is interesting. Usually they update their website almost immediately upon a new week.

Posted by: Lee Sep 18 2006, 11:05 AM

"WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"? (quoted by "justme")

No one would benefit, except Satan and his evil angels. It would retard the work of God, bring dishonor to His name and many souls would be lost.

Posted by: September Sep 18 2006, 11:13 AM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 01:05 PM)

"WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"? (quoted by "justme")

No one would benefit, except Satan and his evil angels. It would retard the work of God, bring dishonor to His name and many souls would be lost.

The Lord can save those souls in spite of 3ABN I don't know that by 3ABN going under that would cause many souls to be lost. 3ABN doesn't save people--it never has. God has used 3ABN--yes and God uses many avenues...but I don't think that God is limited to 3ABN. JMO

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 11:30 AM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 10:05 AM)

"WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"? (quoted by "justme")

No one would benefit, except Satan and his evil angels. It would retard the work of God, bring dishonor to His name and many souls would be lost.

I disagree with you. You can not state a comment like "many souls would be lost". You don't know that. 3abn is a TOOL of God, that has been used in spite of the people running the place. That glorifys God in itself, do you not have faith to know that God will still get HIS work done?

Satan is waging the battle, because PEOPLE work with him to accomplish his evil, but we know that God wins the WAR in the end, and God is the one that cares for each of HIS children. We are sinners, who have an oppertunity to work with God - it's a priviledge, but it's not up to us to do it all. Keep that in mind when you give so much credibility to an ORGANIZATION. It is just a building with people and satelites. God is bigger then all of that man-made junk.

(edited) Let's not be of the "oh ye of little faith" thinking.

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 18 2006, 09:32 AM)

I have been meaning to watch the Doug/Dwight Meetings (as you call them) but I always forget and it's almost finished when I tune in. I'll try to watch tonight. Kelly Smith Mowrer is a great pianist...she looks like she's thoroughly enjoying herself when she plays.

You can go to amazingfacts website and see the archives for each night. They post them about 2.5 hours after the live meeting is done. Each night is there now, but last nights video went heywire not long into it (3abn must have had some problems happening).

http://www.mostamazingprophecies.com/Resources/ProgramArchives/tabid/165/Default.aspx for each nights presentation.
Keep an eye on Danny. He was on the first two nights, but not last night.

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 11:36 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 09:48 AM)

Johann, that is very interesting.... it is very much possible that someone else has been playing up all of this from the beginning to bring about a divorce and thus divide/destroy the impact of the 3ABN ministry....

That certainly places a "new dress on this puppy" for sure....and makes more sense....

3abn as a private business is only valuable if it continues to bring in money.... to suggest that there is a conspiracy to overthrow 3abn, one must overlook or forget that the current mess was started by the powers that be at 3abn in their public spin regarding Linda Shelton being let go.....

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 11:52 AM

Still makes more sense ...and was not my original suggestion...

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 12:36 PM)

3abn as a private business is only valuable if it continues to bring in money.... to suggest that there is a conspiracy to overthrow 3abn, one must overlook or forget that the current mess was started by the powers that be at 3abn in their public spin regarding Linda Shelton being let go.....

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 07:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

So, again.....

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 08:48 AM)

Johann, that is very interesting.... it is very much possible that someone else has been playing up all of this from the beginning to bring about a divorce and thus divide/destroy the impact of the 3ABN ministry....

That certainly places a "new dress on this puppy" for sure....and makes more sense....

Posted by: Freedom Sep 18 2006, 11:53 AM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 09:05 AM)

"WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"? (quoted by "justme")

No one would benefit, except Satan and his evil angels. It would retard the work of God, bring dishonor to His name and many souls would be lost.

Lee,

Doesn't it bring dishonor to His name to have the corruption going on in the name of christianity, unethical behaviour, and from what I've read, questionable fiancical management?

3ABN has been a great tool, however, to save face to the church, there needs to be major changes.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 11:54 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 10:30 AM)

I disagree with you. You can not state a comment like "many souls would be lost". You don't know that. 3abn is a TOOL of God, that has been used in spite of the people running the place. That glorifys God in itself, do you not have faith to know that God will still get HIS work done?

Satan is waging the battle, because PEOPLE work with him to accomplish his evil, but we know that God wins the WAR in the end, and God is the one that cares for each of HIS children. We are sinners, who have an oppertunity to work with God - it's a priviledge, but it's not up to us to do it all. Keep that in mind when you give so much credibility to an ORGANIZATION. It is just a building with people and satelites. God is bigger then all of that man-made junk.

You sound like the "ya of little faith" type.

The Samaritan woman who met Jesus at Jacob's well was also a sinner. Talk about promiscuous! Not only had she already had many husbands, was most likely a prostitute, but she was also living with a man who was not her husband. And yet, Jesus used her testimony to bring many of the townfolk out to meet Him. But then an interesting thing happened. John 4:42 recounts:

"They said to the woman,'We no longer believe just because of what you said; now we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this man really is the Savior of the world.' "

Yes, God is bigger than all of the man-made junk, an organization, but He certainly can also use the testimony of sinners, even the "sinners" who are in power at 3abn. Perhaps you should just let God decide when the time is right to no longer use the 3abn testimony to bring souls to hear Him for themselves. You could also give folks credit for having the brains to seek out truth for themselves once they get there.

When you haughtily threw out your "ye of little faith" type barb at Lee for her post, you once again showed me a spirit that lurks here too much of the time. Smacks of the If-you-don't-believe-the-way-I-do- there-must-be-something-terribly-wrong-with-you spirit. Very counter-productive on an open forum such as this, IMHO.

Now those of you who have that spirit can roast away at me as much as your little hearts desire. I remain dedicated to finding the truth in spite of it.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 12:00 PM

Good point....

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 11:54 AM)

The Samaritan woman who met Jesus at Jacob's well was also a sinner. Talk about promiscuous! Not only had she already had many husbands, was most likely a prostitute, but she was also living with a man who was not her husband. And yet, Jesus used her testimony to bring many of the townfolk out to meet Him. But then an interesting thing happened. John 4:42 recounts:

"They said to the woman,'We no longer believe just because of what you said; now we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this man really is the Savior of the world.' "

Yes, God is bigger than all of the man-made junk, an organization, but He certainly can also use the testimony of sinners, even the "sinners" who are in power at 3abn. Perhaps you should just let God decide when the time is right to no longer use the 3abn testimony to bring souls to hear Him for themselves. You could also give folks credit for having the brains to seek out truth for themselves once they get there.

When you haughtily threw out your "ye of little faith" type barb at Lee for her post, you once again showed me a spirit that lurks here too much of the time. Smacks of the If-you-don't-believe-the-way-I-do- there-must-be-something-terribly-wrong-with-you spirit. Very counter-productive on an open forum such as this, IMHO.

Now those of you who have that spirit can roast away at me as much as your little hearts desire. I remain dedicated to finding the truth in spite of it.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 12:01 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 10:54 AM)

The Samaritan woman who met Jesus at Jacob's well was also a sinner. Talk about promiscuous! Not only had she already had many husbands, was most likely a prostitute, but she was also living with a man who was not her husband. And yet, Jesus used her testimony to bring many of the townfolk out to meet Him. But then an interesting thing happened. John 4:42 recounts:

"They said to the woman,'We no longer believe just because of what you said; now we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this man really is the Savior of the world.' "

Yes, God is bigger than all of the man-made junk, an organization, but He certainly can also use the testimony of sinners, even the "sinners" who are in power at 3abn. Perhaps you should just let God decide when the time is right to no longer use the 3abn testimony to bring souls to hear Him for themselves. You could also give folks credit for having the brains to seek out truth for themselves once they get there.

When you haughtily threw out your "ye of little faith" type barb at Lee for her post, you once again showed me a spirit that lurks here too much of the time. Smacks of the If-you-don't-believe-the-way-I-do- there-must-be-something-terribly-wrong-with-you spirit. Very counter-productive on an open forum such as this, IMHO.

Now those of you who have that spirit can roast away at me as much as your little hearts desire. I remain dedicated to finding the truth in spite of it.

No one is interested in roasting anyone. Least of all me. What I said has nothing to do with "believe my way or something is wrong with you". Lee made a very black and white statement that required a reply. You see what you want to see.

You on the other hand seem to be so defensive, it makes me wonder what you have to be so angry about.

Keep it simple. God is and has had His way with this "organization" and will continue to.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 12:13 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 10:30 AM)

You sound like the "ya of little faith" type.

So what type of statement is that?

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:01 AM)

No one is interested in roasting anyone. Least of all me. What I said has nothing to do with "believe my way or something is wrong with you". Lee made a very black and white statement that required a reply. You see what you want to see.

You on the other hand seem to be so defensive, it makes me wonder what you have to be so angry about.

Keep it simple. God is and has had His way with this "organization" and will continue to.

I beg to differ. When someone has a different point of view on this board or asks the wrong question, far too often they are judged harshly. Some begin to charge that the poster is actually DS or one of his "minions" or phishing. Certainly they couldn't actually have an honest differing point of view. Country Bumpkin has been told she has low intelligence, that some are sorry for her because she is so slow to comprehend the truth.

Now, since I have questioned the attack on Lee, I am being defensive. Am I angry? Nope, just pointing out that making such a harsh judgement on Lee was inappropriate. What's next, that I am gong to be accused of being DS? My husband will get a chuckle out of that. rofl

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:01 AM)

Keep it simple. God is and has had His way with this "organization" and will continue to.

Then how about letting HIM decide when to bring it down - or not - in His own time?

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 12:20 PM

No you will not, your points are well-taken and it has been a bit edgy, putting it rather mildly, for those who have different perspectives.

The challenge in a situation like this is how to find a balance, allow for verity, and still allow those who have genuinely been hurt to express themselves. I have my own opinions about all of this, but I think the hope is to give EVERYONE an opportunity to have his/her say. I also agree that even if you do not agree, there is a way as Christian you can speak your peace without "making their belief of what you say" a "lithmous test" for being a Christian, because it is not.

If you feel someone pushing things too far and is not following the Board Rules set out by Calvin, hit the report button....

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 12:13 PM)

So what type of statement is that?
I beg to differ. When someone has a different point of view on this board or asks the wrong question, far too often they are judged harshly. Some begin to charge that the poster is actually DS or one of his "minions" or phishing. Certainly they couldn't actually have an honest differing point of view. Country Bumpkin has been told she has low intelligence, that some are sorry for her because she is so slow to comprehend the truth.

Now, since I have questioned the attack on Lee, I am being defensive. Am I angry? Nope, just pointing out that making such a harsh judgement on Lee was inappropriate. What's next, that I am gong to be accused of being DS? My husband will get a chuckle out of that. rofl

Then how about letting HIM decide when to bring it down - or not - in His own time?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 12:24 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 11:05 AM)

So what type of statement is that?

It's a statement that reflects a thinking that says God can't do things unless it's this way...narrow thinking. Am I wrong?

A hard fact proclamation was made "souls will be lost". How can that be declared simply because of an organization that may not be around because of wrong doings? Have there not been many such things that have happened over the history of time? Has God been limited by these organizations to save people? That is what I meant by being "ye of little faith". Deciding that God can't save people if this organization is no more. This is God's work. He will use everything and anything, but is not limited to if an organization exists or doesn't' exist. I have a hard time with that type of thinking. It the kind of thinking that Dan thrives on and counts on for people to keep sending in those dollars.

If you see it as a "harsh judgement" then you read it the way you choose. Jesus said it too when people were narrow minded. We all need to open to the thinking that God is in control either way we look at it, and is not controlled by if 3abn is here today and gone tomorrow.

Why make more of it then it is? If you feel that you need ANY organization to exist no matter what's going on in the background to bring souls to Jesus, despite any corruption there is behind it, do you think that the ends justifys the means too?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 12:31 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 11:20 AM)

No you will not, your points are well-taken and it has been a bit edgy putting it mildly for those who have different perspectives.

The challenge in a situation like this is how to find a balance, allow for verity, and still allow those who have genuinely been hurt to express themselves. I have my own opinions about all of this, but I think the hope is to give EVERYONE an opportunity to have his/her say. I also agree that even if you do not agree, there is a way as Christian you can speak your peace without "making their belief of what you say" a "lithmous test" for being a Christian, because it is not.
If you feel someone pushing things too far and is not following the Board Rules set out by Calvin, hit the report button....

Thank you, Simplysaved! I have never been an expert at debating but I believe that when someone uses the tactic of demeaning someone with an opposing point of view it weakens their own position.

I know that it is sometimes hard to stay calm with such a hot-button issue, but when other posters are having their say they should not be attacked in the way that CB, Lee and others have been.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 12:39 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 11:31 AM)

Thank you, Simplysaved! I have never been an expert at debating but I believe that when someone uses the tactic of demeaning someone with an opposing point of view it weakens their own position.

I know that it is sometimes hard to stay calm with such a hot-button issue, but when other posters are having their say they should not be attacked in the way that CB, Lee and others have been.

For the record; my comment was not at tactic to demean anyone. This is a discussion board. A question was asked. An answer given. My reply was to broaded a blanket statement, and if it was "demeaning" to Lee, my apologies.

Also, just because someone doesn't agree with you, don't interpet that as a tactic to demean you either, or as you say "be attacked". When there are words only, no facial expressions or gestures, comments could be misunderstood or unclear. To assume you are being attacked is unfair without more dialoge. JMO.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 12:46 PM

Fair enough. We all need to remember to pray before you post....

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 12:39 PM)

For the record; my comment was not at tactic to demean anyone. This is a discussion board. A question was asked. An answer given. My reply was to broaded a blanket statement, and if it was "demeaning" to Lee, my apologies.

Also, just because someone doesn't agree with you, don't interpet that as a tactic to demean you either, or as you say "be attacked". When there are words only, no facial expressions or gestures, comments could be misunderstood or unclear. To assume you are being attacked is unfair without more dialoge. JMO.

O.K. with all of that said....

Carry on....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 12:47 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:24 AM)

It's a statement that reflects a thinking that says God can't do things unless it's this way...narrow thinking. Am I wrong?

A hard fact proclamation was made "souls will be lost". How can that be declared simply because of an organization that may not be around because of wrong doings? Have there not been many such things that have happened over the history of time? Has God been limited by these organizations to save people? That is what I meant by being "ye of little faith". Deciding that God can't save people if this organization is no more. This is God's work. He will use everything and anything, but is not limited to if an organization exists or doesn't' exist. I have a hard time with that type of thinking. It the kind of thinking that Dan thrives on and counts on for people to keep sending in those dollars.

If you see it as a "harsh judgement" then you read it the way you choose. Jesus said it too when people were narrow minded. We all need to open to the thinking that God is in control either way we look at it, and is not controlled by if 3abn is here today and gone tomorrow.

Why make more of it then it is? If you feel that you need ANY organization to exist no matter what's going on in the background to bring souls to Jesus, despite any corruption there is behind it, do you think that the ends justifys the means too?

sonshineoneme,
You certainly have the right to disagree with Lee's "souls will be lost" statement but it would have been kinder, in my opinion, if you would have used your skills in presenting the opposing argument I have highlighted in your post instead of throwing out the "ye of little faith" barb at her.

Sure, Jesus used "harsh judgement" with narrow minded people. The difference is He could see the hearts and, being the Son of God, our Creator and Savior, He has the right to judge others. I believe we need to tread carefully in this area.

How about if we let the Lord decide if He wants to use an earthly organization or not? If we disagree we could drop our ideas into His "My Ideas For Running The Universe" suggestion box.

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 12:56 PM

It's happening again. we are getting our focus off Jesus and letting the "Enemy OF Souls" side track us.

We will do well to remember this:

Danny is not the enemy, he is cooperating with the enemy.
3ABN is not the enemy, it is merely the "APPLE" on the tree.
The "Serpent" has come to Danny and offered to make him indispensible in the work of God. He bit!
3ABN tastes sweet in his mouth. He will not let go of it. It wlll be his undoing.

In Africa they know how to catch a wiley and quick-footed monkey and "have him for dinner". (monkey burgers). They put the monkey's favorite food into a gourd that has hole in it just barely large enough for amonkeys hand to slide into it. When the monkey grabs the food inside the gourd his hand forms a fist. A fist wont come back out. The monkey is stuck because the gourd is tied to a tree. If the monkey would let go of his "prize" he could be freed and be on his way. BUT HE WONT LET GO.

Sounds like Danny at 3ABN! (still monkeyin' around with his "prizes".

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 12:58 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 11:47 AM)

sonshineoneme,

How about if we let the Lord decide if He wants to use an earthly organization or not? If we disagree we could drop our ideas into His "My Ideas For Running The Universe" suggestion box.

(I guess we aren't done yet)
I have never thought that the Lord was not behind how this is coming out. I believe He is. I believe he has worked all things together, and I believe He will have His will done, period. I have no problem with how it comes out, because I believe He is in control. This is why I won't go down any particular route and say something like Lee said "souls will be lost". That is simply not true and is not giving credit to God's plan in all things.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 01:08 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:56 AM)

It's happening again. we are getting our focus off Jesus and letting the "Enemy OF Souls" side track us.

We will do well to remember this:

Danny is not the enemy, he is cooperating with the enemy.
3ABN is not the enemy, it is merely the "APPLE" on the tree.
The "Serpent" has come to Danny and offered to make him indispensible in the work of God. He bit! 3ABN tastes sweet in his mouth. He will not let go of it. It will be his undoing.

In Africa they know how to catch a wiley and quick-footed monkey and "have him for dinner". (monkey burgers). They put the monkey's favorite food into a gourd that has hole in it just barely large enough for amonkeys hand to slide into it. When the monkey grabs the food inside the gourd his hand forms a fist. A fist wont come back out. The monkey is stuck because the gourd is tied to a tree. If the monkey would let go of his "prize" he could be freed and be on his way. BUT HE WONT LET GO.

Sounds like Danny at 3ABN! (still monkeyin' around with his "prizes".

1. What evidence do you have to support the conclusion that we are getting our focus off of Jesus and letting the enemy of souls side track us? Please explain.

2. I'm not sure I understand where you are going with this metaphor.
Once Danny has the 3abn apple pried out of his hands, does that mean the next president/director will be falling prey to the serpent's temptation?

This may be clear to most here on BSDA but I'm just not quite getting it. Sorry if I am being slow to understand.

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 01:14 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 11:52 AM)

Still makes more sense ...and was not my original suggestion...

So, again.....

it makes no sense at all... the drama started by 3ABN issuing a terse statement about Linda's departure..... thats where it started..... unless you are suggesting that those that crafted that statement were trying to sabotage 3ABN.....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 01:21 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:58 AM)

(I guess we aren't done yet)
I have never thought that the Lord was not behind how this is coming out. I believe He is. I believe he has worked all things together, and I believe He will have His will done, period. I have no problem with how it comes out, because I believe He is in control. This is why I won't go down any particular route and say something like Lee said "souls will be lost". That is simply not true and is not giving credit to God's plan in all things.

We are in total agreement. I will believe He is behind how this is coming out even if Danny is left at the helm of 3abn when all is said and done.

Of course if Danny is guilty of some of the worst accusations hinted at here in some of the posts, I would not expect him to left in charge.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 01:56 PM

It makes no sense to you...and that's fine....

I agree and have said from the beginning that there is more to the story than we know on both sides...and probably do not need to know....

The question Johann asked (possibly rhetorically), as a true key player, is more than valid---IMHO.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 02:14 PM)

it makes no sense at all... the drama started by 3ABN issuing a terse statement about Linda's departure..... thats where it started..... unless you are suggesting that those that crafted that statement were trying to sabotage 3ABN.....

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 07:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Posted by: Lee Sep 18 2006, 01:56 PM

Oh yes, souls will be lost. There may even be souls who are on this forum who will leave their faith because of what is happening here.

A better suggestion would be that there be a change in leadership at 3ABN (if the accusations are true) so that the context of the different programming could continue for those who watch 3ABN faithfully, who have not made their decision to follow the Lord. I believe when Linda was asked to leave 3ABN that the whole station reeled back and forth like a reed in the wind. Many non-SDA's phoned 3ABN wanting to know what happened. Yes, we are not to follow a man, but nevertheless, people do it. Many non-SDA people were disappointed that Linda was gone. Some souls may have stopped watching 3ABN because of it.

To wish for the whole station to go down is to give Satan victory. Those out in the world who are watching and longing to know God better (who know nothing about Danny), and who are in the valley of decision may forever reject the truth (especially if Danny's problems were aired to the public) and may never come back to the truth.

We are told in the SOP that we are to work in the cities and towns and that if someone doesn't do this work, souls will be lost. If 3ABN were to close down, souls definitely will be lost.

This is a very serious thing.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 02:02 PM

I do agree in this context: 3ABN provides a viable means of ministry that at this point in Adventist Missions has not been duplicated.....no disrestpect to Hope TV, but it is not there yet....the name that people associate with Seventh-day Adventism is Christ first....and then 3ABN..... just keepin' it real.

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 02:56 PM)

Oh yes, souls will be lost. There may even be souls who are on this forum who will leave their faith because of what is happening here.

A better suggestion would be that there be a change in leadership at 3ABN (if the accusations are true) so that the context of the different programming could continue for those who watch 3ABN faithfully, who have not made their decision to follow the Lord. I believe when Linda was asked to leave 3ABN that the whole station reeled back and forth like a reed in the wind. Many non-SDA's phoned 3ABN wanting to know what happened. Yes, we are not to follow a man, but nevertheless, people do it. Many non-SDA people were disappointed that Linda was gone. Some souls may have stopped watching 3ABN because of it.

To wish for the whole station to go down is to give Satan victory. Those out in the world who are watching and longing to know God better (who know nothing about Danny), and who are in the valley of decision may forever reject the truth (especially if Danny's problems were aired to the public) and may never come back to the truth.

We are told in the SOP that we are to work in the cities and towns and that if someone doesn't do this work, souls will be lost. If 3ABN were to close down, souls definitely will be lost.

This is a very serious thing.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 02:11 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 12:56 PM)

Oh yes, souls will be lost. There may even be souls who are on this forum who will leave their faith because of what is happening here.

A better suggestion would be that there be a change in leadership at 3ABN (if the accusations are true) so that the context of the different programming could continue for those who watch 3ABN faithfully, who have not made their decision to follow the Lord. I believe when Linda was asked to leave 3ABN that the whole station reeled back and forth like a reed in the wind. Many non-SDA's phoned 3ABN wanting to know what happened. Yes, we are not to follow a man, but nevertheless, people do it. Many non-SDA people were disappointed that Linda was gone. Some souls may have stopped watching 3ABN because of it.

To wish for the whole station to go down is to give Satan victory. Those out in the world who are watching and longing to know God better (who know nothing about Danny), and who are in the valley of decision may forever reject the truth (especially if Danny's problems were aired to the public) and may never come back to the truth.

We are told in the SOP that we are to work in the cities and towns and that if someone doesn't do this work, souls will be lost. If 3ABN were to close down, souls definitely will be lost.

This is a very serious thing.

Jesus works in each individuals life, through their entire life. We all have situations can take us alway from him. It's not just how you find Jesus that matters, but staying with him through think and thin, through confusion and pain, dissolution and shock. NO ONE is exempt from that experience(s) and everyone is tried by fire. I do not underestimate God's hand in any of it - He seeks to save us all, not find a way to keep us from finding him. He knows each heart. No one will be lost that does not CHOSE to be lost. And if they leave HIM because of another human being, then He knows what all is in their heart, and He will judge that. Does he not have many way to reach people? Did he not demonstrate this in the years he lived his life and walked among men? Mrs White also says many will be in heaven that never heard the name Jesus. We need to keep our minds open, otherwise we will decide how people are lost and saved. This is God's war over sin. Not ours. He is in control. He does not lay the guilt on us for others choices. We are used by God to share Jesus's gift of salvation for us. But God deals with the heart issues. No one is saying "3abn must go" and certainly, if it is to stay, take new leadership, new names even, it is still just a tool. There are many tools on this planet dealing with the sin problem and helping people find their loving saviour. That is the bottom line.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 18 2006, 02:38 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 03:02 PM)

I do agree in this context: 3ABN provides a viable means of ministry that at this point in Adventist Missions has not been duplicated.....no disrestpect to Hope TV, but it is not there yet....the name that people associate with Seventh-day Adventism is Christ first....and then 3ABN..... just keepin' it real.

If you were really keepin' it real... EGW would have been up there next to CHrist... if not before him...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 02:39 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 02:08 PM)

1. What evidence do you have to support the conclusion that we are getting our focus off of Jesus and letting the enemy of souls side track us? Please explain.

2. I'm not sure I understand where you are going with this metaphor.
Once Danny has the 3abn apple pried out of his hands, does that mean the next president/director will be falling prey to the serpent's temptation?

This may be clear to most here on BSDA but I'm just not quite getting it. Sorry if I am being slow to understand.

Dear PB:
"Proof" is only in the eyes of the beholder. If it is not evident by beholding it is pointless to poit it out.

We have gone off track by denegrating each other. We not looking at the real issue. The real issue is that Satan doesn't want the gospel to go to the world. Unfortunatesly he has the cooperation of too many of those who are trying to do just that. Satan manages to get people to look at themselves or each other, rather than to keep their focus on Jesus. Satan is the problem. Jesus is the answer.

When we personally attack each other on this forum we are playing into satan's hands. We MUST allow each other room to position ourselves into a position of comprehension. It may take some of us a little longer to "CATCH ON" than it does for others. There is alot of hostility "popping" up all of a sudden. Some "posters" are quick to judge and to belittle. That is getting off focus in this forum.

#ABN has an opportunity to survive IF God wants it to do so. If God is closing the door for 3ABN it because God has good reason. God has a thousand ways to get the Gospel out to the world, of which we know nothing. 3ABN has been a wonderful too, for a while. Nothing is immportal, not even 3ABN.

#ABN has been the APPLE of the eye for some individuals. It can be used to strengthen our spiritual health or it can spoil it.

Whether anyone watching 3ABN or being a casual ovserver is beside the point. Some will be strengthened in observing 3ABN's problems because they a re turning to God for strength and understanding, and for new sources of inspiration.
Some will become discouraged, because they look at the problems instead of at the solution, which is Jesus, God.

Proof. only evidence. lots of evidence. Nothing can be proven if someone doesn't see the same way. It may be proof between two people who agree, but it is only sevidence or speculation in someone else's eyes. We believe what we choose to believe. That's why there so many agnostics and atheists. We all see the same evidences. Our faith makes the decision in our minds.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 02:52 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 01:39 PM)

Dear PB:
"Proof" is only in the eyes of the beholder. If it is not evident by beholding it is pointless to poit it out.

We have gone off track by denegrating each other. We not looking at the real issue. The real issue is that Satan doesn't want the gospel to go to the world. Unfortunatesly he has the cooperation of too many of those who are trying to do just that. Satan manages to get people to look at themselves or each other, rather than to keep their focus on Jesus. Satan is the problem. Jesus is the answer.
When we personally attack each other on this forum we are playing into satan's hands. We MUST allow each other room to position ourselves into a position of comprehension. It may take some of us a little longer to "CATCH ON" than it does for others. There is alot of hostility "popping" up all of a sudden. Some "posters" are quick to judge and to belittle. That is getting off focus in this forum.#ABN has an opportunity to survive IF God wants it to do so. If God is closing the door for 3ABN it because God has good reason. God has a thousand ways to get the Gospel out to the world, of which we know nothing. 3ABN has been a wonderful too, for a while. Nothing is immportal, not even 3ABN.

#ABN has been the APPLE of the eye for some individuals. It can be used to strengthen our spiritual health or it can spoil it.

Whether anyone watching 3ABN or being a casual ovserver is beside the point. Some will be strengthened in observing 3ABN's problems because they a re turning to God for strength and understanding, and for new sources of inspiration.
Some will become discouraged, because they look at the problems instead of at the solution, which is Jesus, God.

Proof. only evidence. lots of evidence. Nothing can be proven if someone doesn't see the same way. It may be proof between two people who agree, but it is only sevidence or speculation in someone else's eyes. We believe what we choose to believe. That's why there so many agnostics and atheists. We all see the same evidences. Our faith makes the decision in our minds.

I completely agree with you.

If it appeared that I was on the attack in any of my previous posts, I apologize, for that was exactly what I was posting against!

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 02:53 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 02:56 PM)

It makes no sense to you...and that's fine....

I agree and have said from the beginning that there is more to the story than we know on both sides...and probably do not need to know....

The question Johann asked (possibly rhetorically), as a true key player, is more than valid---IMHO.

what you are suggesting is that someone in the inner circle, whispered in Mr. Shelton's ear that he could rid himself of Linda by doing X, Y, and Z..... and that person knowing that Mr. Shelton would pursue that course of action, and the consequences would then blow up in his face, causing him possibly to be removed so that then they could take over? Is that what you are suggesting?

That scenario might make sense IF those waiting in the wings could take over and restore 3ABN or even make it more viable from a business standpoint.... it would not make sense if 3ABN were to go under and everyone on that gravy train stopped getting paid, and I would have to think that the one whispering in Mr. Shelton's ear is definitely getting paid, so why would they sabotage their meal ticket?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 18 2006, 03:20 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 11:05 AM)

"WHO would benefit the most from seeing 3ABN "go under"? (quoted by "justme")

No one would benefit, except Satan and his evil angels. It would retard the work of God, bring dishonor to His name and many souls would be lost.

I completely agree. Souls will be lost. Sonshineonme has said that the struggle going on at 3ABN currently is a "battle." I fully agree. And what is a battle? Is it a safe place to be? To the contrary, battles are dangerous. In this case, it's a spiritual battle, wielding spiritual danger. In this case, it involves a ministry with world-wide scope. I certainly agree that God will get HIS work done, but on the other hand, that can never mean that all souls will be safely returned to Him when the battle's over.

How many souls were lost when Korah, Dathan, and Abiram stood up against Moses? At least 15,000 people perished in that "battle" between God and Satan, with those who allowed the spirit of rebellion into their hearts. And in this case, it was God causing their demise. May we stand in the gap, as did Moses and Aaron, in pleading for mercy for those who remain.

Posted by: Lee Sep 18 2006, 03:21 PM

Yes, sunshineonme, God seeks after the lost. I agree here. But God uses people to do His work in saving souls. We are told to work in the large cities because many are dying without any hope and they will not be saved. They will not be saved because we neglected our duty. Yes, 3ABN is a tool but I'd say it is a pretty big one!! I think Hope is a big one also. The potential is great.

You said in your post, "no one is saying 3ABN must go." But I've read it in several posts on this board as well as the other one. Several have said 3ABN is so polluted that it must come down completely. I just don't happen to agree with that kind of reasoning (I'm not saying you said this).

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 03:27 PM

What I have done is respond to Johann's question....and it is still valid. If it would have come from a spectator, it would have definitely been suspect.

Satan will use any means necessary, as has been stated to divert people from our purpose as Christians. Why would it not be possible indeed that someone manipulated an already unhealthy relationship to move toward divorce versus help them work through their personal situation---or at least try--outside of Adventism circles? Of course it is more than possible....

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 03:53 PM)

what you are suggesting is that someone in the inner circle, whispered in Mr. Shelton's ear that he could rid himself of Linda by doing X, Y, and Z..... and that person knowing that Mr. Shelton would pursue that course of action, and the consequences would then blow up in his face, causing him possibly to be removed so that then they could take over? Is that what you are suggesting?

That scenario might make sense IF those waiting in the wings could take over and restore 3ABN or even make it more viable from a business standpoint.... it would not make sense if 3ABN were to go under and everyone on that gravy train stopped getting paid, and I would have to think that the one whispering in Mr. Shelton's ear is definitely getting paid, so why would they sabotage their meal ticket?

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 07:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Posted by: princessdi Sep 18 2006, 03:33 PM

HopeTV would be there if GC was not busy supporting Danny's independent ministry, instead of boosting their own. That is all they have to do. Take all those shows from 3ABN and put them on their own existing network. Then get them a spot on cable just like the Mormons and the Catholics. It could be "there" in a few months, if they just tried a little bit

---

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 01:02 PM)

I do agree in this context: 3ABN provides a viable means of ministry that at this point in Adventist Missions has not been duplicated.....no disrestpect to Hope TV, but it is not there yet....the name that people associate with Seventh-day Adventism is Christ first....and then 3ABN..... just keepin' it real.

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 03:37 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 04:27 PM)

What I have done is respond to Johann's question....and it is still valid. If it would have come from a spectator, it would have definitely been suspect.

Satan will use any means necessary, as has been stated to divert people from our purpose as Christians. Why would it not be possible indeed that someone manipulated an already unhealthy relationship to move toward divorce versus help them work through their personal situation---or at least try--outside of Adventism circles? Of course it is more than possible....

Johann's question hints at the scenarios I have suggested.... I asked you if that's what you were saying.... given the amount of money that 3ABN has generated, why would someone "on the inside" who is getting paid, want to see that end..... that is my question.....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 18 2006, 03:37 PM

Perhaps we all remember September 11, 2001 very clearly. It stands out in our mind because of the significance of the event. Well, the day I heard that Danny and Linda were breaking up, and that Linda would no longer be on the set, I was struck with the significance of the blow in a very similar way. Do you know what one of my first thoughts was? It was that I had not been faithful. It was that Adventists/Christians had not been faithful to their duty to support 3ABN and its leadership through intercessory prayer. We should be praying for our leaders. Our leaders are the special targets of the enemy. It is our duty to support them in the spiritual battle, just as it is our privilege to support them in other ways.

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 18 2006, 03:39 PM

I respectfully submit a couple of thoughts.

First, saying "souls will be lost" as some of you have, seems to be derived from non-Adventist theology. Many of our brothers and sisters in other denominations believe that "Original Sin" leads to being born damned--but I don't think Adventists believe that, do we? (See 1 Jn 2:2, 2 Cor 5:19, Titus 2:11, especially 1 Tim 4:10, and many others).

Don't we believe that a person must live according to the light they have? If so, only God knows a person's true condition, because only God knows what someone really "knows" or is even capable of knowing. How many thousands of people have rejected (or tried to reject) Christ because of how they were treated by Christians? Is a God of love going to hold it against them--particularly if

He knows that if they knew Who He really is, they wouldn't?

So, if people turn away from 3ABN because of this whole mess, they're still in God's hands--the safest place to be. Unless I'm wrong and God would toss a person aside because they were turned off by someone else's behavior ....

People will definitely be hurt--especially in the churches I attend, where a lot of people have promoted 3ABN without relief for the rest of us. I can't help thinking that maybe one reason this came about was the out-and-out idolatry that so many people in the Adventist church have fallen into, regarding our media figures on the channel. Anyone in public ministry has to be careful of idolizing themselves, too.

But God isn't dependent on satellite TV or anything else to reach people. It's anyone's privilege to help the Lord in His work, but it's His work, not ours.

And NOT 3ABN's. Or any other media outlet's.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 03:44 PM

Naw...it is not as simple as switcheroo.... 3ABN has the SDA market and has had the market for now 20+ ? That like saying if TBN went off the air, they could easily be replaced with another similar format TV program.

> QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 18 2006, 03:33 PM)
>
> HopeTV would be there if GC was not busy supporting Danny's independent ministry, instead of boosting their own. That is all they have to do. Take all those shows from 3ABN and put them on their own existing network. Then get them a spot on cable just like the Mormons and the Catholics. It could be "there" in a few months, if they just tried a little bit

If you have ever been in corporate America or church administration, you already know the answer to that one....

> QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 03:37 PM)
>
> Johann's question hints at the scenarios I have suggested.... I asked you if that's what you were saying.... given the amount of money that 3ABN has generated, why would someone "on the inside" who is getting paid, want to see that end..... that is my question.....

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 03:46 PM

> QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 18 2006, 04:39 PM)
>
> I respectfully submit a couple of thoughts.
>
> First, saying "souls will be lost" as some of you have, seems to be derived from non-Adventist theology. Many of our brothers and sisters in other denominations believe that "Original Sin" leads to being born damned--but I don't think Adventists believe that, do we? (See 1 Jn 2:2, 2 Cor 5:19, Titus 2:11, especially 1 Tim 4:10, and many others).

Don't we believe that a person must live according to the light they have? If so, only God knows a person's true condition, because only God knows what someone really "knows" or is even capable of knowing. How many thousands of people have rejected (or tried to reject) Christ because of how they were treated by Christians? Is a God of love going to hold it against them--particularly if He knows that if they knew Who He really is, they wouldn't?

So, if people turn away from 3ABN because of this whole mess, they're still in God's hands--the safest place to be. Unless I'm wrong and God would toss a person aside because they were turned off by someone else's behavior ....

People will definitely be hurt--especially in the churches I attend, where a lot of people have promoted 3ABN without relief for the rest of us. I can't help thinking that maybe one reason this came about was the out-and-out idolatry that so many people in the Adventist church have fallen into, regarding our media figures on the channel. Anyone in public ministry has to be careful of idolizing themselves, too.

But God isn't dependent on satellite TV or anything else to reach people. It's anyone's privilege to help the Lord in His work, but it's His work, not ours.

And NOT 3ABN's. Or any other media outlet's.

agreed Soul..... we forget that... the bible tells us that God is not willing that ANY should perish.... which means he will move heaven if need be to ensure that no one does perish..... sometimes I think we think too highly of ourselves and our methods....

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 03:47 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 04:44 PM)

Naw...it is not as simple as switcheroo.... 3ABN has the SDA market and has had the market for now 20+ ? That like saying if TBN went off the air, they could easily be replaced with another similar format TV program.
If you have ever been in corporate America or church administration, you already know the answer to that one....

ahhh you mean some would do it just outta spite... now that is something I had not thought about.... the "spite" factor....

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 03:52 PM

"Haterade", baby.....and he may not have even known it....

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 04:47 PM)

ahhh you mean some would do it just outta spite... now that is something I had not thought about.... the "spite" factor....

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 07:36 AM)

It is not impossible that someone else goaded Danny into using such unfounded reasons in order to get him out of the picture too at the end?

Posted by: princessdi Sep 18 2006, 04:06 PM

With some being so very persistent that 3ABN must exist in some form in order to ge thte message out, I had the same thoughts, SoulEspresso. I find it quite unsettling that people have more faith in 3ABN than they do in God to handle His buisness. this shake may indeed be warrranted for some very different reason than we believe.

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 18 2006, 02:39 PM)

I respectfully submit a couple of thoughts.

First, saying "souls will be lost" as some of you have, seems to be derived from non-Adventist theology. Many of our brothers and sisters in other denominations believe that "Original Sin" leads to being born damned--but I don't think Adventists believe that, do we? (See 1 Jn 2:2, 2 Cor 5:19, Titus 2:11, especially 1 Tim 4:10, and many others).

Don't we believe that a person must live according to the light they have? If so, only God knows a person's true condition, because only God knows what someone really "knows" or is even capable of knowing. How many thousands of people have rejected (or tried to reject) Christ because of how they were treated by Christians? Is a God of love going to hold it against them--particularly if He knows that if they knew Who He really is, they wouldn't?

So, if people turn away from 3ABN because of this whole mess, they're still in God's hands--the safest place to be. Unless I'm wrong and God would toss a person aside because they were turned off by someone else's behavior ....

People will definitely be hurt--especially in the churches I attend, where a lot of people have promoted 3ABN without relief for the rest of us. I can't help thinking that maybe one reason this came about was the out-and-out idolatry that so many people in the Adventist church have fallen into, regarding our media figures on the channel. Anyone in public ministry has to be careful of idolizing themselves, too.
But God isn't dependent on satellite TV or anything else to reach people. It's anyone's privilege to help the Lord in His work, but it's His work, not ours.

And NOT 3ABN's. Or any other media outlet's.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 04:23 PM

Yea...it's called LAODECIAN MENTALITY....If we as a church had the vision for HopeTV 20 years ago, there would have been more than one option.....as it stands in the 21st Century, satelite, internet, and cable are the most accessible in the least amount of time ways in which the Message of Christ can be transmitted, outside of direct contact in your neighborhood, door to door witnessing---and even books. We read e-mail documents more than we sit down to read hard cover books or literature in handouts.

Whatever faults and specifics of the Vision, I do believe God gave Danny the vision. HopeTV is a viable and necessary tool, but definitely has some catching up to do....Look at all of the spin offs to 3ABN---to other countries in different languages....yes God can use anybody, but chose Danny.

Where I will agree is that God sets up kings and kingdoms and takes them down....I just do not believe that 3ABN IMHO will be (not whether or not it can be) replaced by HopeTV.

The edge 3ABN has is the fact that it is an independent ministry that does not "need" the SDA church as a denomination to make it happen, and yet it works inpartnership for the spreading of the Gospel. It has neutrality and yet a responsibility at the same time. A non-Adventist will always view it as more credible and question (on some subconscious level) a denominational cable station as biased--across the board.

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 18 2006, 04:06 PM)

With some being so very persistent that 3ABN must exist in some form in order to ge thte message out, I had the same thoughts, SoulEspresso. I find it quite unsettling that people have more faith in 3ABN than they do in God to handle His buisness. this shake may indeed be warrranted for some very different reason than we believe.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 04:41 PM

Just read the OP...

...and I believe it is Matthew 18 where Christ tells us to go to each other 1st.....

Miss Inga....

....just read your post and now I have to say I agree with you.

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 02:14 PM)

Wintley's counsel was wise. However, Danny is using it to make it appear that he is not defending himself when, in the very act of telling about the counsel he is actually defending himself and wrapping a mantle of righteous innocense around himself. In actual fact, his regular references to his "situation" and Linda's supposed adultery ("seduced by a professional") are not only self-defense but attack on Linda.

If he had lived by Wintley's counsel from the beginning, this discussion probably wouldn't be happening at all ...

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 05:22 PM

The work of reaching the world for Jesus is intended to be a one-on-one relationship. Sometimes people come to a church and asked to be baptized without ever having taken Bible studies. They learned all our teachings on 3ABN. BUT they are rare and far between. Most souls who come to Jesus come as result of a relationship with another Christian. SOme 1900 years before satellites were up, Jesus told us to go into all the world, etc.

When 3ABN had three satellites they bounced off to get it to other countries, Danny called THEM "THREE ANGELS FLYING IN THE MIDST OF HEAVEN". They do fly in the midst of heaven but they are only slaves of what is sent to them.

God's work WILL be finished by INDIVIDUALS who would rather tell about Jesus than eat.

When we are so tired of all this high-tech seed spreaders we will do it for far less money and with far greater results, IN PERSON!

It has been nice to have 3ABN but we need to get off our duffs and "GO TELL" about Jesus.

The cities? Oh YES the cities! Work them from 'outposts" as we were instructed, Individuals going in groups to hold small meetings, and to go into BARS and TAVERNS to find souls who are desperate for God's love.

Jesus was/is our example. No better way to reach a broken heart than to be eyeball to eyeball with that broken heart.

Weep with them, Cry with them. Pray with them.

A TV SET CAN'T DO THAT!!!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 18 2006, 06:58 PM

.

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 04:22 PM) ☐

The work of reaching the world for Jesus is intended to be a one-on-one relationship. Sometimes people come to a church and asked to be baptized without ever having taken Bible studies. They learned all our teachings on 3ABN. BUT they are rare and far between. Most souls who come to Jesus come as result of a relationship with another Christian. SOme 1900 years before satellites were up, Jesus told us to go into all the world, etc.

Jesus was/is our example. No better way to reach a broken heart than to be eyeball to eyeball with that broken heart.

Weep with them, Cry with them. Pray with them.

A TV SET CAN'T DO THAT!!!

In my humble opinion, there is room for both. I also am of the opinion that there are more than a few who have heard and learned the message from 3abn. Sure, out of 6 billion + on this planet, the percentage might be low, but I don't think it is so rare as some might believe.

Posted by: justme Sep 18 2006, 07:25 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 08:58 PM)

In my humble opinion, there is room for both. I also am of the opinion that there are more than a few who have heard and learned the message from 3abn. Sure, out of 6 billion + on this planet, the percentage might be low, but I don't think it is so rare as some might believe.

PB,
I concurr! Every possible means should be used. Thousands opf ways to sow seed of Jesus' love. Thank you!

Even inviting someone to watch 3ABN is a personal invitation.
I personally like to record 3ABN programs for distribution to friends usong either VHS or DVD. What a wonderful way to be personal AND HiTech. We CAN have it both ways!

IMHO your are right!

.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 07:25 PM

I think that was probably true in the U.S. in the past, but that CHANGING....more and more people are accepting Christ through the electronic media...

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 06:22 PM)

The work of reaching the world for Jesus is intended to be a one-on-one relationship. Sometimes people come to a church and asked to be baptized without ever having taken Bible studies. They learned all our teachings on 3ABN. BUT they are rare and far between. Most souls who come to Jesus come as result of a relationship with another Christian. SOme 1900 years before satellites were up, Jesus told us to go into all the world, etc.

When 3ABN had three satellites they bounced off to get it to other countries, Danny called THEM "THREE ANGELS FLYING IN THE MIDST OF HEAVEN". They do fly in the midst of heaven but they are only slaves of what is sent to them.

God's work WILL be finished by INDIVIDUALS who would rather tell about Jesus than eat.

When we are so tired of all this high-tech seed spreaders we will do it for far less money and with far greater results, IN PERSON!

It has been nice to have 3ABN but we need to get off our duffs and "GO TELL" about Jesus.

The cities? Oh YES the cities! Work them from 'outposts" as we were instructed, Individuals going in groups to hold small meetings, and to go into BARS and TAVERNS to find souls who are desperate for God's love.

Jesus was/is our example. No better way to reach a broken heart than to be eyeball to eyeball with that broken heart.

Weep with them, Cry with them. Pray with them.

A TV SET CAN'T DO THAT!!!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 18 2006, 07:45 PM

But the counselors on standby can....don't know if 3ABN does, but TBN does.....

Some SDA's that I know are Prayer Partners for TBN here in Nashville....

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 06:22 PM)

The work of reaching the world for Jesus is intended to be a one-on-one relationship. Sometimes people come to a church and asked to be baptized without ever having taken Bible studies. They learned all our teachings on 3ABN. BUT they are rare and far between. Most souls who come to Jesus come as result of a relationship with another Christian. SOme 1900 years before satellites were up, Jesus told us to go into all the world, etc.

When 3ABN had three satellites they bounced off to get it to other countries, Danny called THEM "THREE ANGELS FLYING IN THE MIDST OF HEAVEN". They do fly in the midst of heaven but they are only slaves of what is sent to them.

God's work WILL be finished by INDIVIDUALS who would rather tell about Jesus than eat.

When we are so tired of all this high-tech seed spreaders we will do it for far less money and with far greater results, IN PERSON!

It has been nice to have 3ABN but we need to get off our duffs and "GO TELL" about Jesus.

The cities? Oh YES the cities! Work them from 'outposts" as we were instructed, Individuals going in groups to hold small meetings, and to go into BARS and TAVERNS to find souls who are desperate for God's love.

Jesus was/is our example. No better way to reach a broken heart than to be eyeball to eyeball with that broken heart.

Weep with them, Cry with them. Pray with them.

A TV SET CAN'T DO THAT!!!

Posted by: Ralph Sep 18 2006, 09:55 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:30 AM)

You can go to amazingfacts website and see the archives for each night. They post them about 2.5 hours after the live meeting is done. Each night is there now, but last nights video went heywire not long into it (3abn must have had some problems happening).

http://www.mostamazingprophecies.com/Resources/ProgramArchives/tabid/165/Default.aspx for each nights presentation.
Keep an eye on Danny. He was on the first two nights, but not last night.

Thanks for the URL. I always appreciate it when I can see a program when I am free.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 18 2006, 10:17 PM

QUOTE(September @ Sep 18 2006, 12:13 PM)

The Lord can save those souls in spite of 3ABN I don't know that by 3ABN going under that would cause many souls to be lost. 3ABN doesn't save people--it never has. God has used 3ABN--yes and God uses many avenues...but I don't think that God is limited to 3ABN. JMO

Amen, September!

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 18 2006, 09:29 AM)

I am hoping that the presence of the blond gal who plays so well and is going to be reading the scripture that Mollie used to do signals a change in personnel which will be to our liking and to God's Glory.
JustTana

I have to tell you that Mollie hasn't taped that program in a couple of years. When the station started producing all of the virtual sets, Mollie wanted her set redone. When it was finished, she was so ticked off by how it looked that she demanded it be redone. Then, after it was redone (slightly, I might add) she asked Kelly to take over since she felt she didn't have time. Kelly has been taping the program for almost a year now...FYI

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 02:14 PM)

it makes no sense at all... the drama started by 3ABN issuing a terse statement about Linda's departure..... thats where it started..... unless you are suggesting that those that crafted that statement were trying to sabotage 3ABN.....

I have to say that I don't think those involved saw the destruction of 3ABN in mind during the "crafting" of the statement - but that's JMO.

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 18 2006, 02:56 PM)

> To wish for the whole station to go down is to give Satan victory.

I'm not sure where you've seen anyone here wishing for the "whole station to go down." I haven't seen it. Yes, many of the people here believe that if the administration is crooked that those involved in the wrongdoing should be removed, but I don't believe many people wish for the station to go down.

But just for the record - God does not need 3ABN. If it were to "go down" God in his infinite wisdom would have already put something else in place...don't you worry about that!

> QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 18 2006, 04:37 PM)
>
> Johann's question hints at the scenarios I have suggested.... I asked you if that's what you were saying.... given the amount of money that 3ABN has generated, why would someone "on the inside" who is getting paid, want to see that end..... that is my question.....

Don't forget that POWER is the ultimate motive.

Posted by: sister Sep 18 2006, 11:15 PM

> QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 18 2006, 11:17 PM)
>
> Don't forget that POWER is the ultimate motive.

HOTY, thanks for bringing this up again. It is spelled P-O-W-E-R. There is one person who stands in the way of a certain individual usurping the Throne of Power at 3ABN and that is Danny. And the usurper? HOTY for you this is too easy, the answer is Mollie Steenson.

An open letter to Danny Shelton:

Danny, think about it. Who has always been looking for more power? And who was so willing to take over more of you duties, since you are such an important man? Mollie. There was a time when you felt she had overstepped her authority. But she pulled back just a little bit, convinced you that she was only supporting you and continued whispering in your ear that you have been called by God for a special purpose. What she neglected to tell you was that you would eventually become the final rung for her to climb over on her way to fulfill the dream that "GOD" had given her so long ago. Remember how she helped you "purge" the ministry of Linda? Linda stood in her way. Your plans and hers fit together perfectly. Now the tables are turned and it is time for you to be "purged" from the ministry. Think about it Danny, think long and hard.

Mollie has a dream, Danny. And your part in that dream is coming to an end. God told her that one day she and Hal would have a world-wide television ministry. She had been given the administrative skills and Hal the preaching charisma.

Over the years you have allowed her to gradually take over the entire business operation of 3ABN,

Hal is already in the pastoral department and the two of them are spending more time in front of the camera. Danny, can you operate 3ABN without Mollie? No. Can she and Hal run it without you? That has always been the plan... Your task was to build up the ministry for Mollie and Hal, and now that you have accomplished that, it is time for Mollie and Hal's dream to be realized. Think about it Danny... You are the only one that stands between Mollie and what she believes God has provided for them.

Mollie lead you down the garden path and you went so willingly. When you realize all of this is true it will be too late. Danny, the wolves are already at the door. No, sorry, they are right there with you... Think about it.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 11:30 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 18 2006, 10:15 PM)

HOTY, thanks for bringing this up again. It is spelled P-O-W-E-R. There is one person who stands in the way of a certain individual usurping the Throne of Power at 3ABN and that is Danny. And the usurper? HOTY for you this is too easy, the answer is Mollie Steenson.
An open letter to Danny Shelton:

Danny, think about it. Who has always been looking for more power? And who was so willing to take over more of you duties, since you are such an important man? Mollie. There was a time when you felt she had overstepped her authority. But she pulled back just a little bit, convinced you that she was only supporting you and continued whispering in your ear that you have been called by God for a special purpose. What she neglected to tell you was that you would eventually become the final rung for her to climb over on her way to fulfill the dream that "GOD" had given her so long ago. Remember how she helped you "purge" the ministry of Linda? Linda stood in her way. Your plans and hers fit together perfectly. Now the tables are turned and it is time for you to be "purged" from the ministry. Think about it Danny, think long and hard.

Mollie has a dream, Danny. And your part in that dream is coming to an end. God told her that one day she and Hal would have a world-wide television ministry. She had been given the administrative skills and Hal the preaching charisma.

Over the years you have allowed her to gradually take over the entire business operation of 3ABN, Hal is already in the pastoral department and the two of them are spending more time in front of the camera. Danny, can you operate 3ABN without Mollie? No. Can she and Hal run it without you? That has always been the plan... Your task was to build up the ministry for Mollie and Hal, and now that you have accomplished that, it is time for Mollie and Hal's dream to be realized. Think about it Danny... You are the only one that stands between Mollie and what she believes God has provided for them.

Mollie lead you down the garden path and you went so willingly. When you realize all of this is true it will be too late. Danny, the wolves are already at the door. No, sorry, they are right there with you... Think about it.

Danny, it's not to late. Repentence is for you as well as anyone you have set your satelites up to reach across the world - head your own words, before it goes any further. Humble yourself honestly to the Lord and repent, tell the truth, confess and bring restoration. Pray for the strength to do what is right, and make right what you have done wrong through your pride.

2 Kings 22:19
You were sorry and humbled yourself before the LORD when you heard what I said against this city and its people, that this land would be cursed and become desolate. You tore your clothing in despair and wept before me in repentance. So I have indeed heard you, says the LORD.

2 Chronicles 32:26
Then Hezekiah repented of his pride, and the people of Jerusalem humbled themselves. So the LORD's anger did not come against them during Hezekiah's lifetime.

Job 42:6
I take back everything I said, and I sit in dust and ashes to show my repentance."

Psalm 7:12
If a person does not repent, God will sharpen his sword; he will bend and string his bow.

Psalm 50:22
Repent, all of you who ignore me, or I will tear you apart, and no one will help you.

Psalm 51:17
The sacrifice you want is a broken spirit. A broken and repentant heart, O God, you will not despise.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 19 2006, 12:51 AM

If what you have presented (highlighted in blue) is correct, was it God or a god that spoke this?

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 18 2006, 11:15 PM)

HOTY, thanks for bringing this up again. It is spelled P-O-W-E-R. There is one person who stands in the way of a certain individual usurping the Throne of Power at 3ABN and that is Danny. And the usurper? HOTY for you this is too easy, the answer is Mollie Steenson.
An open letter to Danny Shelton:

Danny, think about it. Who has always been looking for more power? And who was so willing to take over more of you duties, since you are such an important man? Mollie. There was a time when you felt she had overstepped her authority. But she pulled back just a little bit, convinced you that she was only supporting you and continued whispering in your ear that you have been called by God for a special purpose. What she neglected to tell you was that you would eventually become the final rung for her to climb over on her way to fulfill the dream that "GOD" had given her so long ago. Remember how she helped you "purge" the ministry of Linda? Linda stood in her way. Your plans and hers fit together perfectly. Now the tables are turned and it is time for you to be "purged" from the ministry. Think about it Danny, think long and hard.

Mollie has a dream, Danny. And your part in that dream is coming to an end. God told her that one day she and Hal would have a world-wide television ministry. She had been given the administrative skills and Hal the preaching charisma.

Over the years you have allowed her to gradually take over the entire business operation of 3ABN, Hal is already in the pastoral department and the two of them are spending more time in front of the camera. Danny, can you operate 3ABN without Mollie? No. Can she and Hal run it without you? That has always been the plan... Your task was to build up the ministry for Mollie and Hal, and now that you have accomplished that, it is time for Mollie and Hal's dream to be realized. Think about it Danny... You are the only one that stands between Mollie and what she believes God has provided for them.

Mollie lead you down the garden path and you went so willingly. When you realize all of this is true it will be too late. Danny, the wolves are already at the door. No, sorry, they are right there with you... Think about it.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 19 2006, 01:20 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 18 2006, 07:13 PM)

I beg to differ. When someone has a different point of view on this board or asks the wrong question, far too often they are judged harshly. Some begin to charge that the poster is actually DS or one of his "minions" or phishing. Certainly they couldn't actually have an honest differing point of view. Country Bumpkin has been told she has low intelligence, that some are sorry for her because she is so slow to comprehend the truth.

Ive also seen some of this..

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 19 2006, 01:39 AM

...and again

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 18 2006, 12:20 PM)

No you will not, your points are well-taken and it has been a bit edgy, putting it rather mildly, for those who have different perspectives.

The challenge in a situation like this is how to find a balance, allow for verity, and still allow those who have genuinely been hurt to express themselves. I have my own opinions about all of this, but I think the hope is to give EVERYONE an opportunity to have his/her say. I also agree that even if you do not agree, there is a way as Christian you can speak your peace without "making their belief of what you say" a "lithmous test" for being a Christian, because it is not.

If you feel someone pushing things too far and is not following the Board Rules set out by Calvin, hit the report button....

....and e-mail Calvin if you continue to have concerns.....No matter who it is by or who it is to (i.e. if it is being done to another member) ....

For clarification, you go to the post that you have concerns with, and then hit the Report Button on the left-hand side at the bottom.

Posted by: sister Sep 19 2006, 06:06 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 19 2006, 01:51 AM)

If what you have presented (highlighted in blue) is correct, was it God or a god that spoke this?

It is true...

Ask Mollie and the answer is GOD. Ask me and the answer is directly the opposite.

The reason Mollie gave someone, off camera about four to five years ago, for becoming a SDA was the following:

I did not become a Seventh-Day Adventist because of the Sabbath or Ellen White, I became a Seventh-Day Adventist because this ministry is on the cutting edge.

The above statement from Mollie explains why it was possible to still hear her speaking in tongues, on the 3ABN compound, after she was baptised (even though Danny advised her not to do so). And now she is not only on the 3ABN board, but also the Illinois Conference board. Quite an accomplishment in such a short period of time. But it all is a part of the plan... It has been so easy for her to manipulate Danny. All she has to do is massage his ego by reminding him of the position God has given him at 3ABN, what she neglects to tell him is that his days are numbered, just like Linda's were... And the dream? Now that Danny's part has ended, it is time to cleanse the ministry again...

Posted by: lurker Sep 19 2006, 06:40 AM

I once heard Mollie Quote Proverbs 13:22 "The wealth of the sinner is stored up for the righteous." At the time I remember thinking, "She thinks she is righteous." I wonder if she thinks that Danny is the sinner?

Posted by: justme Sep 19 2006, 07:26 AM

For many, many years the Shelton Clan worked in the crops and fields. It was hard work. They stuck together like glue. They also loved music and had a deep craving to do music before the public. The best opportunities for music groups are to perform music for churches. That means GOSPEL MUSIC! Some of the Sheltons became "ministers" of small congregations and, of course, brought the Shelton Families in to do some music. They invited mostly each other to do the music. Hopes were high that one day they could do some recording, and travel around, and maybe even be on TV. That would help sell recordings and get more bookings for concerts.

Suddenly, one day, Danny got the idea to build a TV station that would be under his own control. As he traveled about talking about it he met other "evangelists", also charismatic, who thought the idea was "fantastic"!

But the Sheltons had no money for a "start up" ministry/ company/ corporation. BUT they knew someone who knew how to raise money, lots of it, (especially to buy two new matching blue Cadillacs, all from donations). Guess who! Hal and Mollie also had a video system that they used to produce TV programs to put on TV. They so-called "DONATED" the video equipment to DAnny, who had none and needed some. PLUS they had the right to use it as well as Danny. AND they got themselves positions of importance in the organization all in the process.

As time goes on, Danny, the "carpenter", as he calls himself, didn't have the "business" savvy that Hal and Mollie had, so he soaked up whatever they told him. It worked, wellll. Money came in because of the "miracle stories" that Hal taught Danny to recite. (the "donated video cameras, etc") that was the "BAIT" for all hearers to jump onto the bandwagon and become supporters. And what did the Adventists want more than anything in the whole world, their own TV station. Support came in BIG TIME. People sold their homes, sold their properties, they even sacrificed their retirement plans, and "volunteered" to build Dannys big country home. The script-writers for all this big hullabaloo were the Steensons. Danny was the "FACE" and "SHILL" for the Steensons.

Unfortunately, along the way, in order to keep Danny sucked in and giving those convincing "sales pitches", which he was good at, they had to tell him HE was the "CHOSEN ONE". IF he once had a moment to stop and look at himself and look at the Lord, he would have seen what God was trying to tell him. His halo was pinching!

Now to add to the milieu we still have the "Shelton Gang", the ambitious musicians who see "Uncle Danny" as the answer to all their musical and public appearance aspirations. So "Uncle Dan" is besieged with a family who can't see why they can't become as famous as he is. Dsnny is proud of his family and wants to help them, and he is in position to have whatever he wants. (as long as the Steemsons get what they want, too). Danny did, and they did!

Add to this on-going scenario the fact that many "self-inspired experts" also "volunteered" to present their own programs; family, children, music, preaching, etc. etc. and you now a bevy of "talent" who can't wait to become celebrities. Add to this the few really fine ministries that "keep their act together and their noses clean" and we have a full compliment of programing.

But, oops, there is a fly in the ointment. Someone is seein throgh it all. She can see through the "clutter", the "con games", here is a dissenting voice. And the dissenting voice has a problem with a child. While seeking help for the child she is blind-sided by "so-called friends", and those who have "conned" their way to the top. It calls for action. "Let's use this Doctor as a wedge to get rid of her". It worked. (almost)(God was awake and at His post).

Now, nobody who has a personal interest in this "ministry/business" has the "B - - -" to speak up for God. They all jump onto the "Let's do all we can to justify this dismissal, and save our "gluteus maximus's" so we can keep our POWER and MONEY and FAME", bandwagon.

When it all comes to the big crash, Danny stands there, with his chin hanging down on his ankles asking, "HOW?", "WHY?", "WHO?" "ME?". "Where is God through all this?". "I thought God was opening doors for me." He was, but you went where "YOUR EXPERTS TOLD YOU TO GO".

Danny, GOD was and is right there, this whole time, ... trying to get your attention, ALONE! That was the "still small voice". The one voice drowned out by the charismatic leaders you hired.

You need to get some callouses on your knees. And give it all back to God to do with as HE wishes. He mau give it bacak, He may not. Accept whatever He gives you. Let go of the "bait in the gourd" and withdraw your hand from the trap. God still loves you, and He always will. But He is a God of "tough love". REAL LOVE! Accept Him completely, NOW! PLEASE!

Posted by: saharafan Sep 19 2006, 07:54 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 19 2006, 12:06 PM) ☐

It is true...

Ask Mollie and the answer is GOD. Ask me and the answer is directly the opposite.

The reason Mollie gave someone, off camera about four to five years ago, for becoming a SDA was the following:

I did not become a Seventh-Day Adventist because of the Sabbath or Ellen White, I became a Seventh-Day Adventist because this ministry is on the cutting edge.

The above statement from Mollie explains why it was possible to still hear her speaking in tongues, on the 3ABN compound, after she was baptised (even though Danny advised her not to do so). And now she is not only on the 3ABN board, but also the Illinois Conference board. Quite an accomplishment in such a short period of time. But it all is a part of the plan... It has been so easy for her to manipulate Danny. All she has to do is massage his ego by reminding him of the position God has given him at 3ABN, what she neglects to tell him is that his days are numbered, just like Linda's were... And the dream? Now that Danny's part has ended, it is time to cleanse the ministry again...

I was already guessing since some time that Johann and others were probably referring to the Steensons. However, that reminds me of something I have written somewhere else:

QUOTE

I would really be interested to learn more about that "pentecostal" influence at 3ABN, about "visions and dreams" by its leaders like Danny. I would appreciate a thorough analysis of pentecostal doctrine, ideology and thelogy personally held and directly or indirectly taught by them on air. I think this is a very important and critical point that should not be underestimated. If this is true, 3ABN can become a major tool for Satan to deceive many Adventists and finally get them to accept those pentecostal concepts, if 3ABN should go on with this present leadership and continue to grow in influence and number of viewers.

In light of this I would submit that, although I certainly hope and pray that 3ABN under new leadership will remain and become even more a tool in God's hands to reach multitudes with the true and undiluted Adventist message, and a real blessing for our SDA church, however, if this would not be possible, it might be better that it "goes down" rather than becomming a tool in the hand of the enemy of souls to subtly deceive many of its viewers, including many Adventists, and to provide a major inroad for pentecostal concepts and practics into the SDA church. It is important that we all pray that this issue is resolved to God's glory.

PS: I really would be glad if I could see Linda on Hope TV one day resuming her public ministry there...

Posted by: Freedom Sep 19 2006, 08:15 AM

[color=#FF0000]Yes, 3ABN CAN be run WITHOUT Mollie. There are very capable people to assist with the adminstrative assistant/general manager duties.
People that are humble, honest and wanting to help with the work of the Lord. Not there OWN agenda.

Danny, if Mollie and Hal weren't there, God will provide the right people! Trust God and have faith that he will send the right people.

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 18 2006, 10:15 PM)

HOTY, thanks for bringing this up again. It is spelled P-O-W-E-R. There is one person who stands in the way of a certain individual usurping the Throne of Power at 3ABN and that is Danny. And the usurper? HOTY for you this is too easy, the answer is Mollie Steenson.
An open letter to Danny Shelton:

Danny, think about it. Who has always been looking for more power? And who was so willing to take over more of you duties, since you are such an important man? Mollie. There was a time when you felt she had overstepped her authority. But she pulled back just a little bit, convinced you that she was only supporting you and continued whispering in your ear that you have been called by God for a special purpose. What she neglected to tell you was that you would eventually become the final rung for her to climb over on her way to fulfill the dream that "GOD" had given her so long ago. Remember how she helped you "purge" the ministry of Linda? Linda stood in her way. Your plans and hers fit together perfectly. Now the tables are turned and it is time for you to be "purged" from the ministry. Think about it Danny, think long and hard.

Mollie has a dream, Danny. And your part in that dream is coming to an end. God told her that one day she and Hal would have a world-wide television ministry. She had been given the administrative skills and Hal the preaching charisma.

Over the years you have allowed her to gradually take over the entire business operation of 3ABN, Hal is already in the pastoral department and the two of them are spending more time in front of the camera. Danny, can you operate 3ABN without Mollie? No. Can she and Hal run it without you? That has always been the plan... Your task was to build up the ministry for Mollie and Hal, and now that you have accomplished that, it is time for Mollie and Hal's dream to be realized. Think about it Danny... You are the only one that stands between Mollie and what she believes God has provided for them.

Mollie lead you down the garden path and you went so willingly. When you realize all of this is true it will be too late. Danny, the wolves are already at the door. No, sorry, they are right there with you... Think about it.

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 19 2006, 09:27 AM

QUOTE

I would really be interested to learn more about that "pentecostal" influence at 3ABN, about "visions and dreams" by its leaders like Danny. I would appreciate a thorough analysis of pentecostal doctrine, ideology and thelogy personally held and directly or indirectly taught by them on air. I think this is a very important and critical point that should not be underestimated. If this is true, 3ABN can become a major tool for Satan to deceive many Adventists and finally get them to accept those pentecostal concepts, if 3ABN should go on with this present leadership and continue to grow in influence and number of viewers.

Hmm ... sounds like we're treading on dangerous ground here.

I've been lurking here long enough that I believe the leadership situation at 3ABN is deplorable, and frankly I can't wait to see if anything interesting happens after Most Amazing Prophecies is done. If the Steensons are the puppet masters of this whole situation (I'm not saying they're not!), that's wrong too. I don't want to get flamed, so don't think I'm defending anyone at 3ABN.

But I do think an important principle is at stake.

What makes me really uncomfortable is the implication that anyone with strong roots in another denomination has "suspect" theology. Jesus Himself got accused of being animated by a false spirit. Who are we to judge Another's servant?

Worse, who are we to say that what any given Pentecostal Christian "hears" is not from the Lord? Don't we run the risk of blaspheming the Holy Spirit if we're wrong?

If you know your Adventist history, you know we had a lot of the same stuff going on at the beginning that the charismatic churches have now.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 19 2006, 10:07 AM

I am going to differ with you just a bit on this one.... the issue is about a person's conversion first to Christ and then to the faith they claim. It has less to do with where a person has come from as do they believe what they say they do or are they "using the means available" to spread apostasy and corrupt what is in place. Sorry, but IMHO, this is more serious of an issue than anything else that has been presented (as a whole). If a person or people who do not share the belief system of the church are in authority (in general) the vision of the ministry is corrupt.

Let me be more specific: If a person is in leadership, in any capacity, it is more than reasonable to expect them to believe in the philosophy of the organization 100%--and the direction of the leadership. Jesus stated "a house divided against itself cannot stand"....it is a problem--a big problem.

If a person is in church leadership, but is "speaking in tongues" there is a big problem....this is not about music, or about a person who speaks in tongues and is Pentecostal. This is about whether you believe the message or not....if you do not, you are not fit to be a leader in that capacity. This is like me as a SDA Christian moving up into Catholic Church hierarchy....or me becoming the Director of an abortion clinic....or as a Black woman joining the Arian Nation.

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 19 2006, 09:27 AM)

Hmm ... sounds like we're treading on dangerous ground here.

I've been lurking here long enough that I believe the leadership situation at 3ABN is deplorable, and frankly I can't wait to see if anything interesting happens after Most Amazing Prophecies is done. If the Steensons are the puppet masters of this whole situation (I'm not saying they're not!), that's wrong too. I don't want to get flamed, so don't think I'm defending anyone at 3ABN.

But I do think an important principle is at stake.

What makes me really uncomfortable is the implication that anyone with strong roots in another denomination has "suspect" theology. Jesus Himself got accused of being animated by a false spirit. Who are we to judge Another's servant?

Worse, who are we to say that what any given Pentecostal Christian "hears" is not from the Lord?

Don't we run the risk of blaspheming the Holy Spirit if we're wrong?

If you know your Adventist history, you know we had a lot of the same stuff going on at the beginning that the charismatic churches have now.

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 19 2006, 10:42 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 19 2006, 10:07 AM)

I am going to differ with you just a bit on this one.... the issue is about a person's conversion first to Christ and then to the faith they claim. It has less to do with where a person has come from as do they believe what they say they do or are they "using the means available" to spread apostasy and corrupt what is in place. Sorry, but IMHO, this is more serious of an issue than anything else that has been presented (as a whole). If a person or people who do not share the belief system of the church are in authority (in general) the vision of the ministry is corrupt.

Let me be more specific: If a person is in leadership, in any capacity, it is more than reasonable to expect them to believe in the philosophy of the organization 100%--and the direction of the leadership. Jesus stated "a house divided against itself cannot stand"....it is a problem--a big problem.

I'm not sure we're so far apart. Like I said, I don't approve of what's going on. And if the Steensons have a leadership role in a church whose doctrines they don't support, well, they need to be outed.

bot

QUOTE

If a person is in church leadership, but is "speaking in tongues" there is a big problem....this is not about music, or about a person who speaks in tongues and is Pentecostal. This is about whether you believe the message or not....if you do not, you are not fit to be a leader in that capacity. This is like me as a SDA Christian moving up into Catholic Church hierarchy....or me becoming the Director of an abortion clinic....or as a Black woman joining the Arian Nation.

Maybe I'm misunderstanding you, so if I am, I welcome the correction. Do you have to disbelieve in speaking in tongues to be an Adventist? Is that a doctrinal thing with us?

I know our evangelists have trampled all over charismatics in their attempt to win people to our church (they love the Acts 2 passage on tongues and do their best to ignore 1 Cor 14), but they seem to love to kick other denominations down to make ours look taller b --as if biblical doctrine weren't enough. GP.g

Like I said, maybe I'm missing your point. Someone who doesn't believe the 28 beliefs of the Adventist church shouldn't be in a leadership role--agreed. If the Steensons don't believe, they shouldn't be in leadership roles at 3ABN even if 3ABN isn't organically connected to the Adventist church.

I was more arguing with the viewpoint of, "Charismatics as such are patent unbelievers and will corrupt the message by speaking in tongues and believing in dreams and visions. Clearly they're of the devil." Hmm ... maybe I'm ofl

---

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 19 2006, 10:50 AM

Having worked among people groups not of our faith, and having observed their relative lack of freedom to study the issues for themselves, and then to abide by the convictions of their own educated conscience, there is one thing I much appreciate about the Seventh-day Adventist church. It may not be unique to Adventists, but this trait may simply be more prevalent among us, than in most any other religious group--and that is, freedom of conviction.

I see some comments here which show decided conviction. I'm happy to have the privilege, both Biblically, and through the latitude granted by the church, to have a different conviction. That said, some of the "doctrinal" differences among even our own leaders may be surprising to some people, and I would say it might especially surprise those of other denominations who feel more pressure to accept their leaders' and/or traditional beliefs.

As an Adventist, I'm happy to believe and state openly, for example, that I have the gift of tongues. I can speak in tongues. Tongues, like any of the other spiritual gifts, is meant to be developed into usefulness for Christ's service. Those who have the give of healing must educate themselves and improve upon that gift as doctors or health professionals. Those who have the gift of teaching are teachers--but not without an education. So it is with tongues. I didn't learn to speak in multiple tongues overnight--rather it takes time to develop the gift.

I do not agree 100% with the traditional church doctrines, and, to be the more honest, I don't know anyone who does. We all have some differences, mostly minor. The big question, then, to my mind is whether or not those differences are of such a character as to have a corrupting influence on others, or to lead them into apostasy of some form or another. Some differences of beliefs/Biblical understanding among our leaders actually strengthen the church, just like the roof which would not be held up if all the pillars were in one place, but is quite stable when each pillar takes a different position. Well, that's my humble viewpoint on tongues and theology among the leadership.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 19 2006, 10:51 AM

I knew I liked you name!!! Go on a preach!! Welcome to BSDA!!!

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 19 2006, 09:42 AM)

I'm not sure we're so far apart. Like I said, I don't approve of what's going on. And if the Steensons have a leadership role in a church whose doctrines they don't support, well, they need to be outed. bot

Maybe I'm misunderstanding you, so if I am, I welcome the correction. Do you have to disbelieve in speaking in tongues to be an Adventist? Is that a doctrinal thing with us?

I know our evangelists have trampled all over charismatics in their attempt to win people to our church (they love the Acts 2 passage on tongues and do their best to ignore 1 Cor 14), but they seem to love to kick other denominations down to make ours look taller [x] t --as if biblical doctrine weren't enough. [x] GP.g

Like I said, maybe I'm missing your point. Someone who doesn't believe the 28 beliefs of the Adventist church shouldn't be in a leadership role--agreed. If the Steensons don't believe, they shouldn't be in leadership roles at 3ABN [r] even if 3ABN isn't organically connected to the Adventist church.

I was more arguing with the viewpoint of, "Charismatics as such are patent unbelievers and will corrupt the message by speaking in tongues and believing in dreams and visions. Clearly they're of the devil." Hmm ... maybe I'm [x] ofl [x]

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 19 2006, 11:17 AM

This is a very interesting discussion! One phrase keeps playing in my mind, something about "presenting the undiluted truth".

If the claims against the pentacostal element seeking power are true, what will this mission statement become...presenting the semi-diluted truth?

Just rhetorically wondering...

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 19 2006, 11:30 AM

We are not far apart at all...which is why I stated "differ just a bit"...I enjoy the ministry provided by Joel Osteen (love him), Pastor Donnie McClurkin (really love him--but I digress [r]) and accept whole heartedly their view points....and present beliefs. While there are many things in which we agree as Christians, there are other things in which we do not (ex. Sunday vs. Sabbath) in order for me to be comfortable with them as my direct pastor (which to me is very different than listening to someone speak on occassion), one of us would have to embrace the faith of the other. I also listen to the Holy Spirit thrrough scripture and prayer to tell me when to turn it off...

I am sorry that evangelists you have heard have not been respectful to other faiths...which IMO is very different from calling out scriptural error. My brother is pentecostal so I am well-versed. I have had positive and negative experiences with those who are pentecostal, in particular those who claimed to be SDA but clearly there were other issues and agenda (which is not important here).

I am also not "traditional SDA Chrisitian" in my expression of worship....but I am in beliefs. Having a pastor that believed smoking is O.K. would be a problem for me or that living together was not a big deal....or that it is O.K. to gossip or lie and not address it.

I believe in dreams and visions (that is scpture), but what I know is that if God has a vision for me, I will not have to lie, cheat, or manipulate to get it. I also believe in prophets and EGW...but that if you are people will tell YOU....you do not have to advertise or charge a small fee. If you are it will come to pass. God also stated that people would rise up "false prophets and deceive many".

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 19 2006, 10:42 AM)

I'm not sure we're so far apart. Like I said, I don't approve of what's going on. And if the Steensons have a leadership role in a church whose doctrines they don't support, well, they need to be outed.

bot

Maybe I'm misunderstanding you, so if I am, I welcome the correction. Do you have to disbelieve in speaking in tongues to be an Adventist? Is that a doctrinal thing with us? To publically speak in an "unknown language" no one else can understand in the middle of church as a sign of having the Holy Spirit, yes it is against the Bible according to 1 Cor 14--and against what we as Adventists believe.

I know our evangelists have trampled all over charismatics in their attempt to win people to our church (they love the Acts 2 passage on tongues and do their best to ignore 1 Cor 14), but they seem to love to kick other denominations down to make ours look taller t --as if biblical doctrine weren't enough. GP.g

Like I said, maybe I'm missing your point. Someone who doesn't believe the 28 beliefs of the Adventist church shouldn't be in a leadership role--agreed. If the Steensons don't believe, they shouldn't be in leadership roles at 3ABN even if 3ABN isn't organically connected to the Adventist church.

I was more arguing with the viewpoint of, "Charismatics as such are patent unbelievers and will corrupt the message by speaking in tongues and believing in dreams and visions. Clearly they're of the devil." Hmm ... maybe I'm ofl

Posted by: watchbird Sep 19 2006, 01:22 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 19 2006, 01:02 PM)

The issue of whether or not speaking in tongues is biblical should be addressed in the Adventist forum....

Let's get back on topic.

Since we are not really addressing this in isolation, but in regard to how it fits into the 3ABN environment, it seems to me that it is very much "on topic" for this forum. And as I think I mentioned in my other post, it is not the "speaking in tongues" that concerns me anywhere near so much as the accompanying belief system that is essentially cultish ... using "cult" in the sense of setting up a leader whom everyone follows unquestionably since he is also considered to have direct connections with God that the rest of us poor mortals do not have.

As I understand it, the "speaking in tongues" part of the charismatic movement has been seen in many different religious groups .... both Christian and non-Christian.... and seems to adapt quite well to whatever belief system that the practitioners have. So part of the answer for Christians seeking an understanding of whether it should be part of their practices has to do with the similarities that can be noted with non-Christian religions....and as such, you are probably right, it would belong in a theological forum.

But that isn't really the question here. The type of Pentecostalism at 3ABN, while it seems to have the most ties to the Assemblies of God Church, also has certain characteristics of what is sometimes called the "signs and wonders" movement..... where miracles and signs and thoughts and impressions are all seen to be the authoritative stamp of God's approval on an individual or on a practice.

This is, admittedly, very attractive to some Adventists, and some Adventists have even been lured over into what is sometimes called the "Third Wave of the Spirit".... which encampasses many of the current crop of faith healers and found its most extreme expression in some of the Vinyard churches and in some of the Assemblies of God churches. The last I knew, the AoG official church had separated from those extremes and I have not seen any signs of that invading 3abn. But the false doctrines of godlike powers and privileges that are held are defniitely beyond the pale of Adventism, IMO.

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 07:07 PM

okay this topic can continue discussing the pentecostal or perceived pentecostal influence at 3ABN.... and the other comments dealing specifically with speaking in tongues has been moved to the Theology section..... found here

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=11113

Posted by: justme Oct 2 2006, 10:57 PM

In my conversations with Mollie and Hal in particular, I have been concerned at their lack of knowledge of the Bible and of the EGW writings, in which they would find tremendous insight and wisdom into how God leads His work on earth. Their misapplication of the principles of the Day of Pentecost is getting them into a state of self delusion. One in which their "feelings" or "emotions" are makin their decisions for them. Their lack of Biblical "knowledge" is hurting their performance. Rrelative to Biblical knowledge is the premise that acquaintance with, or memorization of scripture, is not the same as "knowledge". To "know" is to experience something. "Adam KNEW his wife Eve, ..". Adam "experienced" a working, living relationship with her. When scripture, the Bible, becomes a fully involved experience with us we have the KNOWLEDGE (the experience) of what it does in our lives. The more we read and study with the guidance of prayer and submission and humility, the more we KNOW of God.

In chemistry class we studied the atoms and their reactions and formulae. Then we went into the laboratory to "EXPERIMENT/EXPERIENCE" what was happening. Mere didactics are fodder for imaginations, but true KNOWLEDGE comes from the EXPERIENCE.

The repeated use of the word "anointed" simply does not make it so. When the anointing of the Holy Spirit comes upon people grounded in the Bible, they bear the "fruits of the Spirit", Gal. 4, Love, Joy, Peace, Longsuffering, etc.

Can someone tell me where God anointed "things" in the Bible. The Apostles were anointed, yes, but where are there ever THINGS anointed? Objects, songs, ministeries, places, etc. The Ark was Holy. The ground under Moses was Holy. etc. But "THINGS"?

Am I missing something. When Mollie says 'This song is anointed..". or This "plan" or "Idea" is anointed... how does she do that!

Is this Charismatic preaching on 3ABN...?

Such fruits are not evident in Danny nor in his leadership.

Jesus said,
"My people perish for lack of knowledge."

Posted by: beartrap Oct 3 2006, 08:21 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 2 2006, 11:57 PM)

he repeated use of the word "anointed" simply does not make it so. When the anointing of the Holy Spirit comes upon people grounded in the Bible, they bear the "fruits of the Spirit", Gal. 4, Love, Joy, Peace, Longsuffering, etc.

Can someone tell me where God anointed "things" in the Bible. The Apostles were anointed, yes, but where are there ever THINGS anointed? Objects, songs, ministeries, places, etc. The Ark was Holy. The ground under Moses was Holy. etc. But "THINGS"?

Am I missing something. When Mollie says 'This song is anointed..". or This "plan" or "Idea" is anointed... how does she do that!

Is this Charismatic preaching on 3ABN...?

Such fruits are not evident in Danny nor in his leadership.

Jesus said,
"My people perish for lack of knowledge."

What is evidence of God's annointing? I challenge anyone to name any one person who has reached as many people with SDA doctrine as Danny Shelton. Has the Seventh-day Adeventist Church itself reached as many people as Danny with its own doctrine in the last hundred and fifty years? No? Has the SDA Church grown by over 100% in the 20 years of 3ABN's existence? does all of this mean that the word of 3ABN/DannyShelton hold a true and unchallengable annointing? How important is the spreading of our SDA doctrine? Does the broadest dissemination of our SDA truths in the history of our denomination equal God's annointing? How can anyone argue that? If Adventist doctrine is the endtime truth, Then Danny Shelton can be nothing less than God's endtime messenger to the church and to the world. How could he be anything but God's annointed one?

Posted by: AmeliaLD Oct 3 2006, 08:45 PM

I must be dumb as a stump because I can't tell if you're truly backing DS or being sarcastic as all get out.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 3 2006, 09:04 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Oct 3 2006, 09:21 PM)

What is evidence of God's annointing? I challenge anyone to name any one person who has reached as many people with SDA doctrine as Danny Shelton. Has the Seventh-day Adeventist Church itself reached as many people as Danny with its own doctrine in the last hundred and fifty years? No? Has the SDA Church grown by over 100% in the 20 years of 3ABN's existence? does all of this mean that the word of 3ABN/DannyShelton hold a true and unchallengable annointing? How important is the spreading of our SDA doctrine? Does the broadest dissemination of our SDA truths in the history of our denomination equal God's annointing? How can anyone argue that? If Adventist doctrine is the endtime truth, Then Danny Shelton can be nothing less than God's endtime messenger to the church and to the world. How could he be anything but God's annointed one?

What if we stopped focusing on this, "the annoited one" and answered your broader questions. Have the other people appearing on 3ABN done a good and commendable work for the Lord? Have the "chefs" and he preachers and the individuals giving testimony to the working of God in their lives reached the hearts of even one unreached individual?

The focus is always on the negative and never explores the positive. The assumptions seem to be that everyone involved in 3ABN is "wrong" or "deluded" or "complicit" in some effort to delude thousands. Is there a truth in the middle - I think there might be. Is there truth that has been hidden on both sides - I think that is a given. The fact remains that as long as the acrimonious nature of all sides continues there will be no healing for all of those involved. Until there is prayerful consideration and acceptance of God's leading and not a focus on trying to force His hand in "our direction" all of those involved will continue to experience pain and lose and abandonment and a distance from God.

Who cares if it is Danny! Who cares if it is Doug! Who cares if it is Linda! not God . . . He only wants to reach those not yet aware of His all consuming love! In the mean time His heart aches that we spend time in these endeavors.

- fhb

Posted by: justme Oct 3 2006, 09:10 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Oct 3 2006, 10:21 PM)

What is evidence of God's annointing? I challenge anyone to name any one person who has reached as many people with SDA doctrine as Danny Shelton. Has the Seventh-day Adeventist Church itself reached as many people as Danny with its own doctrine in the last hundred and fifty years? No? Has the SDA Church grown by over 100% in the 20 years of 3ABN's existence? does all of this mean that the word of 3ABN/DannyShelton hold a true and unchallengable annointing? How important is the spreading of our SDA doctrine? Does the broadest dissemination of our SDA truths in the history of our denomination equal God's annointing? How can anyone argue that? If Adventist doctrine is the endtime truth, Then Danny Shelton can be nothing less than God's endtime messenger to the church and to the world. How could he be anything but God's annointed one?

That's a good question, actually each one is. Who has reached as many people with SDA doctrine as Danny Shelton? Let's see, there;s HMS Richards and The Voice of Prophecy", there's Bill Fagal and his ministery in New York, there's George Vandeman and "It Is Written", and "Amazing Facts" has been giving out the SDA Doctrine before most us were born.

If you listen to Danny Shelton, he doesn't even claim to reach "that many" people with SDA Doctrine. He says that 3ABN, the satellites, have the POTENTIAL" of reaching "millions". That is true. But how many of those millions are watching 3ABN and the SDA Doctrines? How many have satellite receivers? Many have tv's, but is iit broadcast to them?

How many is not the point? There eare other televangelists who reach far more viewers than 3ABN telling people about Jesus. SDA Doctrine means nothing until someone knows Jesus personally. For some 140 years we have been teaching prophecy which we know so well. But what does it mean if we don't "know" Jesus. Billy Graham teaches only Jesus, because only Jesus can save us. SDA Doctrine comes later if we still care about Jesus enough to learn more.

Posted by: sonshineonme Oct 3 2006, 09:12 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 2 2006, 09:57 PM)

In my conversations with Mollie and Hal in particular, I have been concerned at their lack of knowledge of the Bible and of the EGW writings, in which they would find tremendous insight and wisdom into how God leads His work on earth. Their misapplication of the principles of the Day of Pentecost is getting them into a state of self delusion. One in which their "feelings" or "emotions" are makin their decisions for them. Their lack of Biblical "knowledge" is hurting their performance. Rrelative to Biblical knowledge is the premise that acquaintance with, or memorization of scripture, is not the same as "knowledge". To "know" is to experience something. "Adam KNEW his wife Eve, ..". Adam "experienced" a working, living relationship with her. When scripture, the Bible, becomes a fully involved experience with us we have the KNOWLEDGE (the experience) of what it does in our lives. The more we read and study with the guidance of prayer and submission and humility, the more we KNOW of God.

In chemistry class we studied the atoms and their reactions and formulae. Then we went into the laboratory to "EXPERIMENT/EXPERIENCE" what was happening. Mere didactics are fodder for imaginations, but true KNOWLEDGE comes from the EXPERIENCE.

The repeated use of the word "anointed" simply does not make it so. When the anointing of the Holy Spirit comes upon people grounded in the Bible, they bear the "fruits of the Spirit", Gal. 4, Love, Joy, Peace, Longsuffering, etc.

Can someone tell me where God anointed "things" in the Bible. The Apostles were anointed, yes, but where are there ever THINGS anointed? Objects, songs, ministeries, places, etc. The Ark was Holy. The ground under Moses was Holy. etc. But "THINGS"?

Am I missing something. When Mollie says 'This song is anointed..". or This "plan" or "Idea" is anointed... how does she do that!

Is this Charismatic preaching on 3ABN...?

Such fruits are not evident in Danny nor in his leadership.

Jesus said,
"My people perish for lack of knowledge."

....yes bear, maybe you should "finish" your comment? Is it REALLY about DS and 3abn, or is it something else....coincidence in fact and Danny can "claim" the glory of his mininstry? Or is it that in spite of DS, God has only used this tool to reach people? That it's the programs that have done the work via satelite, which can be put out there by anyone - or maybe that it draws and feeds a particular group of people and maybe that is what the SDA church has turned into? Tell us more...

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 3 2006, 09:13 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 3 2006, 10:10 PM)

How many is not the point? There eare other televangelists who reach far more viewers than 3ABN telling people about Jesus. SDA Doctrine means nothing until someone knows Jesus personally.

Yes, yes, yes and amen a thousand times! Even He says this!!!!

- fhb

Posted by: Cheri4Grace Oct 3 2006, 09:36 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 08:04 PM)

What if we stopped focusing on this, "the annoited one" and answered your broader questions. Have the other people appearing on 3ABN done a good and commendable work for the Lord? Have the "chefs" and he preachers and the individuals giving testimony to the working of God in their lives reached the hearts of even one unreached individual?

The focus is always on the negative and never explores the positive. The assumptions seem to be that everyone involved in 3ABN is "wrong" or "deluded" or "complicit" in some effort to delude thousands. Is there a truth in the middle - I think there might be. Is there truth that has been hidden on both sides - I think that is a given. The fact remains that as long as the acrimonious nature of all sides continues there will be no healing for all of those involved. Until there is prayerful consideration and acceptance of God's leading and not a focus on trying to force His hand in "our direction" all of those involved will continue to experience pain and lose and abandonment and a distance from God.

Who cares if it is Danny! Who cares if it is Doug! Who cares if it is Linda! not God . . . He only wants to reach those not yet aware of His all consuming love! In the mean time His heart aches that we spend time in these endeavors.

- fhb

I am involved in a number of huge projects right now... i follow God around in awe most the time. The only time i am fearful is when i have to rely on the Body of Christ ... not all of it but as i read through these post i shake my head and long to be back on the streets where you know who your friends are...
i want to say thank you for you ending statement ... who cares... there is so much work to do and people are truly dying... we are the body of Christ... let's pray for healing for all parties.
as i wrote that i thought of Jonah ... he so didn't want the folks to heal... are we of the same spirit... i guess God will still work with us... how cool is God

---

Posted by: justme Oct 3 2006, 10:01 PM

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 3 2006, 11:36 PM)

I am involved in a number of huge projects right now... i follow God around in awe most the time. The only time i am fearful is when i have to rely on the Body of Christ ... not all of it but as i read through these post i shake my head and long to be back on the streets where you know who your friends are...
i want to say thank you for you ending statement ... who cares... there is so much work to do and people are truly dying... we are the body of Christ... let's pray for healing for all parties.
as i wrote that i thought of Jonah ... he so didn't want the folks to heal... are we of the same spirit... i guess God will still work with us... how cool is God

C4G,
Bless you. I too learned on the street who my friends were. And I learned in church who they weren't. OOps need explainaing. There are people in every church who are there for the social atmosphere. That's OK, but, as you said, don't look horizontally for strength, unless you're providing it for a friend.

As I have posted so many times, it's time we look to God for wisdom and understanding.

What I see here is a conflict in what we usually call "the end justify's the actions". Jesus does not teach that, He called them "hypocrites" whic we all are, because we do one thing and pray for another'. But those hypocrites we not willing to call farud FRAUD, etc. They excused their actions with their positions.

C4G, you have a great attitude, keep posting!

Posted by: justme Oct 4 2006, 11:39 AM

I have been trying to encourage Cheri to keep posting here. We need her kindness and her input.

"Folks of the forum, I PM'd Cheri4Grace and encouraged her to stay with us for the blessings I thought she could bring. This was her reply to me.

"JM. Thank you so much for your kind words... I have been to 3ABN many times over the years ... they have so blessed and supported True Step (the ministry i founded the ministry God founded. I love and respect so many people there... i know the , to some degree, the magnitude of 3ABN world wide. It really is amazing.
I do not know much about anyone's private life... at 3ABN, Amazing Facts, Voice of Prophecy, or It Is Written... i know all these folks through ministry.
I believe like all of us God continues to love on and help all of us to grow pass all our junk and it hurts me to see or hear people slamming them.
Ministry is hard (not because of God... wow God so blesses) but because of the devil and those he uses... he attacks in every area... every day if possible.. but God says in Isa 57 i know all your sins and i will heal you anyway...
God's only passion is that we get it and chose to heal.
I am not smart enough to avoid getting stuck in the mud hear...lol i feel that i will be hurt and through my own ego or damage i will want to hurt back... God forgive me for that.
I really just want to know how to unregister... i will pray for all of us... because the time is short and people are in need of our love

i am on my way to Texas to do 2 home interventions with meth addicts... their family is praying that these kids will see God and chose to stop using and return to God.i was invited by a man and his wife whose brother died of his meth addiction... i am traveling with a mother who baried her son for the same addiction and a recovered meth addict who knows that God can change everything... No one will film or put this on any television show... the Church will not know or see this intervention... and no one but God and their families even are aware of the pain these kids are experiencing or causing... bring hope to these hopeless situations...that's my passion... my ministry and i cannot get involved in all this other junk ... it even hurts me to read it to hear about it over the last couple years so many people ask me what i know... that even hurts me... i know we need to be in pray!!! not only for them but for us[/QUOTE][/QUOTE]

i am so sorry about your sister... my sister Joni has her own lab and is so addicted. I wish she would allow God in... let Him heal her. She is now 48 and looks like a cancer victim. But she feels she is fine and i need to "butt" out...
God allows us freedom of choice even if that freedom places us in bondage.

I pray for you and your family ...

Yes you can post my reply... we have the freedom of speech here but i pray that that freedom doesn't put us in bondage.
God is so incredible that He hangs in there with us... Good Bye

I have been blessed here too, thanks"".

*
We hurt her enough to drive her away. Is that what we want to do here?
*
Maybe we can keep in mind the power for hurt and for help when we post or when we reply.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 4 2006, 05:24 PM

JM,
I also tried to encourage her to stay after she first posted here with her concerns about the spirit she sees here at times. I'm saddened that she was attacked today for posting her feelings and observations instead of being embraced and allowed her point of view.

Some on the forum are concerned about protecting Linda's daughter from the trauma of confronting her attacker and yet seem to think nothing of jabbing at someone who may be one of God's more fragile warriors.

If there were personal questions that needed answers from Cheri, perhaps it would have been more kind to PM her instead of airing them in open, at least until she got her "forum legs" and wouldn't feel blindsided by them.

That's just the feeling I got. Some folks are tough, some are more vulnerable.

Posted by: Clay Oct 4 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Oct 4 2006, 06:24 PM)

JM,

I also tried to encourage her to stay after she first posted here with her concerns about the spirit she sees here at times. I'm saddened that she was attacked today for posting her feelings and observations instead of being embraced and allowed her point of view.

Some on the forum are concerned about protecting Linda's daughter from the trauma of confronting her attacker and yet seem to think nothing of jabbing at someone who may be one of God's more fragile warriors.

If there were personal questions that needed answers from Cheri, perhaps it would have been more kind to PM her instead of airing them in open, at least until she got her "forum legs" and wouldn't feel blindsided by them.

That's just the feeling I got. Some folks are tough, some are more vulnerable.

understandable.... the problem is newbies come on, see something delicious that they want to or feel compelled to comment on and then when the responses to that comment come it they are unprepared to deal with it.... sort of jumping into the deep end of the pool and then realizing that your feet won't touch the bottom or if they do your head will be underwater....

I don't know the solution to that problem... some people can handle themselves and give as good as they get, others are offended that people have the nerve to respond to something they thought was insightful, deep, and full of spirituality....

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 4 2006, 07:23 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 10:04 PM)

Who cares if it is Danny! Who cares if it is Doug! Who cares if it is Linda! not God . . . He only wants to reach those not yet aware of His all consuming love! In the mean time His heart aches that we spend time in these endeavors.

- fhb

If I may say - you spend a good deal of "time in these endeavors" yourself.

Posted by: princessdi Oct 4 2006, 10:07 PM

I still likes you, HOTY!!!!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 4 2006, 05:23 PM)

If I may say - you spend a good deal of "time in these endeavors" yourself.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 4 2006, 11:26 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Oct 4 2006, 11:07 PM)

I still likes you, HOTY!!!!

You are adorable, Di...

I look forward to your sassy replies. But my wife holds the gold medal for "Queen Sassy!"

gif

Posted by: princessdi Oct 5 2006, 05:41 PM

I know that's right, HOTY! LOL!!!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 4 2006, 09:26 PM)

You are adorable, Di...

I look forward to your sassy replies. But my wife holds the gold medal for "Queen Sassy!"

gif

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

157

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Why The Silence?

Posted by: Uncle Sam Oct 3 2006, 12:36 PM

Where has everyone gone? I have been waiting for something to happen and it is so silent????

Posted by: seraph|m Oct 3 2006, 12:49 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Oct 3 2006, 02:36 PM)

Where has everyone gone? I have been waiting for something to happen and it is so silent????

If you have something on your mind by all means share. Maybe there are no new updates. One thing is certain, folk here are more than willing to speak their minds when they have something to say.

Posted by: Clay Oct 3 2006, 12:51 PM

aint nothing happening.... so its quiet...

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 3 2006, 03:01 PM

What you hear is the sound of everyone holding their breath while waiting - patiently of course...

Posted by: simplysaved Oct 3 2006, 03:06 PM

So when is the Board Meeting scheduled....

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 3 2006, 04:01 PM)

What you hear is the sound of everyone holding their breath while waiting - patiently of course...

Posted by: Nuggie Oct 3 2006, 03:48 PM

Well, everything that can be said has been said and Danny's still in power and 3ABN is still in tact...so, we're right back where we started, right?

Posted by: watchbird Oct 3 2006, 06:27 PM

QUOTE(Nuggie @ Oct 3 2006, 03:48 PM)

Well, everything that can be said has been said and Danny's still in power and 3ABN is still in tact...so, we're right back where we started, right?

Not at all. when we started we were few in number and very few things had been said. Now we are much greater in number and a LOT more things have been said.

There are many unknowns. And we all get tired of the wait. But we still put our trust in the Lord and trust that He will indeed bring justice for the oppressed and release for the captives. What is He waiting for? I don't know..... though there are several things that I suspect.

Meanwhile, it won't hurt for us to take a bit of a breather.... but let's not forget either the victims that we know about and that far greater number that stand in the shadows out of sight and wait wearily for their deliverance, exhonoration, vindication..... and even restitution and restoration of what they have lost.

While we are waiting, I'm wondering if there are those who would like to add their stories to the ones that have already been told. If so, perhaps this would be a good thread for them to do it in.

Posted by: vonessa Oct 3 2006, 06:49 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 3 2006, 07:27 PM)

Not at all. when we started we were few in number and very few things had been said. Now we are much greater in number and a LOT more things have been said.

There are many unknowns. And we all get tired of the wait. But we still put our trust in the Lord and trust that He will indeed bring justice for the oppressed and release for the captives. What is He waiting for? I don't know..... though there are several things that I suspect.

Meanwhile, it won't hurt for us to take a bit of a breather.... but let's not forget either the victims that we know about and that far greater number that stand in the shadows out of sight and wait wearily for their deliverance, exhonoration, vindication..... and even restitution and restoration of what they have lost.

While we are waiting, I'm wondering if there are those who would like to add their stories to the ones that have already been told. If so, perhaps this would be a good thread for them to do it in.

You are so right. There are those who have tried to say that all of this came to nothing and whatnot. My guess is that they are part of the 3ABN and want people to go away thinking it has all been told. The silence does not mean that there is nothing more coming. It is the calm before the storm hits. Then that which we have gathered to witness will come forth in its fury.

Now I do not know what is coming, but we have been shown present truths in the past of the inner workings that go on behind closed doors and we can expect to learn more. Those who leave now and feel that all has been told are simply jumping out of the frying pan . . . and into the fire reserved for the hosts watchbird mentioned.

In the meantime, we can take a breather, but let us give thanks for the knowledge we have been given to this date.

"For yet a little while, and that that shall come will come, and will not tarry."

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 3 2006, 07:30 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 3 2006, 07:27 PM)

There are many unknowns. And we all get tired of the wait. But we still put our trust in the Lord and trust that He will indeed bring justice for the oppressed and release for the captives. What is He waiting for? I don't know..... though there are several things that I suspect.

Meanwhile, it won't hurt for us to take a bit of a breather.... but let's not forget either the victims that we know about and that far greater number that stand in the shadows out of sight and wait wearily for their deliverance, exhonoration, vindication..... and even restitution and restoration of what they have lost.

Or, another possiblity is that this is God's will. I wouldn't for a minute attempt to minimize anyones personal pain - we have all been there to some degree or another. However, you make this sound more like GitMo than the independent ministry of 3ABN, which regardless of which side of the debate you fall on has reached many and brought them to the foot of the cross. Your hyperbole tries to paint a picture of Stalin-like scorched earth policy.

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors. There are many possibilities and only half of them get "air time" here. The assumption here seems to be that God will bring down either Danny or 3ABN altogether, a lot of assuming to know what God sees, wants, and will do. Is it possible that in the end He will make a decision that makes someone unhappy - absolutely, I expect it. The reason I expect it is because we as human beings want what we want and on occasion lose perspective and there by severe our belief that God is in charge. After all, if He were doing what was "right" it would match up with what I think should happen. We all fall into that mindset during our sanctification process (Mrs. W. said, after all, that that is a process that takes a life time).

I know I invite the wrath of the jilted and legitimately pained with this comment - but it is none-the-less true. God IS in charge and He will do all that needs doing in the process of making sure that all on the face of the earth have the chance to hear His word and experience His love. We can not force our will, our need for retribution, and at worst our vengence on God - He will not accept it and will focus on His mission . . . to save all of mankind that He can. His is a plan for all of us and not for me or you alone. I can not force my needs, wants, desires, ideas on God.

Maybe that old cliche (oh, how I hate cliches) is applicable - "Let go and let God" . . .

Then again maybe I am a deluded fool - in which case, move on to the next post.

-fhb

- fhb

Posted by: justme Oct 3 2006, 07:38 PM

QUOTE(Nuggie @ Oct 3 2006, 04:48 PM)

> Well, everything that can be said has been said and Danny's still in power and 3ABN is still in tact...so, we're right back where we started, right?

Apparently, but not, quite, actually... the latest information reaching me is that independent professional investigating has been looking into the 3ABN Saga and is gathering quite a bit of first-hand information. The information is getting more wide spread, and goes deeper than first thought, and, "gets stinkier by the day". (quote).

I was JUST told that "within a month" we can expect to receive (what is being called) a "petition". To go to many, many emails. It will make known what WE have discovered right here in this forum. Many of the relatively-obscure or little-known items about 3ABN have "fallen off" the forum threads recently, for lack of activity or "time-expired"(?). However, many of the most heinous reports that were on the forum have been verified and are expected to be included in the upcoming "petition".

People are STILL coming forward to be interviewed. They relate their own horrible experiences, just as we have seen here.

Investigation into each person who is in a leadership position at 3ABN is actually taking place. That which is being learned IS appalling. While the investigation continues ("in progress") it is not good to be more specific just yet.

Now, just as we have thought...
As a result og the most recent investigation, the "vindication" of the former 3ABN Vice President (3ABNVP) was expected to be made available by now. That was what you have been anticipating but didn't know that's what it was/is. BUT, because of the scope of information being uncovered, there is so much MORE coming to light, not about her, but about the "principal players" i.e. the leadership of 3ABN, that it is taking more time to do the job. At least in terms of what the masses need to know, it continues to grow.

One of the first and most encouraging investigations has been the one tha was done "looking into the honesty and truthfulness of the former Vice President and Co-Founder of 3ABN". At-length interviews (interrogation) using professional interrogating techniques, have revealed no untruthfulness in anything she has said. If you have ever seen someone wiggle and squirm, stammer and stutter during questioning then you know what has been going on at 3ABN But not by Linda Shelton . Honest and truthful people can't be "tripped up". And Linda Shelton passed the truthfulness test "with flying colors".

It further validates that her conduct should never have come into question". In short, she did not commit "spiritual adultery". She did not commit "actual adultery". She was faithful to her vows in her marriage to the President of 3ABN. It is expected to be made very clear in the upcoming "petition".

As someone here has said, .."There is a rumbling" just over the horizon...

Quiet anticipation ... almost holding our breaths.

The sad truth is just around the corner, it really IS ...

(Editorial comment:
Some who will hear what is coming will be devastated. It may test their faith. It will be painful. It is very far reaching. Upon hearing it some will rejoice. Some will weep. Some will gasp. Some will pray. And some will do all of the above. Yet, for some there likely will be, at first, shock, disbelief, maybe $ome will panic(not a typo). But, please let's all remember that God loves each one involved in the 3ABN Saga. Not for what they have done. Not because they have worked at 3ABN, But because He still loves each one. There will be suffering and gnashing of teeth, maybe ranting and raving, but, let's not rejoice in their suffering, for surely it is coming sooner than they think.

Let's pray that each one of them will repent, turn from their ways, be contrite, confess, make restitution, and "be there with Jesus" when the "Great Controversy between Christ and Satan" is ended.

We can hope that "by not letting all this slip away" those involved at 3ABN WILL be able to be in Heaven and then to send a 'Thank you" to BSDA for not "letting them get away with it after all at the poeril of their souls".

Jesus died for EVERYONE. God is not willing that ANY should perish, but that ALL should repent."

We ALL do want what is best from God's point of view, don't we?

(ESPECIALLY Pray for "healing justice" for the hearts of "the children".

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 3 2006, 07:47 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 06:30 PM)

Or, another possiblity is that this is God's will. I wouldn't for a minute attempt to minimize anyones personal pain - we have all been there to some degree or another. However, you make this sound more like GitMo than the independent ministry of 3ABN, which regardless of which side of the debate you fall on has reached many and brought them to the foot of the cross. Your hyperbole tries to paint a picture of Stalin-like scorched earth policy.

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors. There are many possibilities and only half of them get "air time" here. The assumption here seems to be that God will bring down either Danny or 3ABN altogether, a lot of assuming to know what God sees, wants, and will do. Is it possible that in the end He will make a decision that makes someone unhappy - absolutely, I expect it. The reason I expect it is because we as human beings want what we want and on occasion lose perspective and there by severe our belief that God is in charge. After all, if He were doing what was "right" it would match up with what I think should happen. We all fall into that mindset during our sanctification process (Mrs. W. said, after all, that that is a process that takes a life time).

I know I invite the wrath of the jilted and legitimately pained with this comment - but it is none-the-less true. God IS in charge and He will do all that needs doing in the process of making sure that all on the face of the earth have the chance to hear His word and experience His love. We can not force our will, our need for retribution, and at worst our vengence on God - He will not accept it and will focus on His mission . . . to save all of mankind that He can. His is a plan for all of us and not for me or you alone. I can not force my needs, wants, desires, ideas on God.

Maybe that old cliche (oh, how I hate cliches) is applicable - "Let go and let God" . . .

Then again maybe I am a deluded fool - in which case, move on to the next post.

-fhb

- fhb

FHB, I don't see how anybody who carefully reads your post could get riled to wrath. It was all well stated.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 3 2006, 08:11 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 07:30 PM)

Or, another possiblity is that this is God's will. I wouldn't for a minute attempt to minimize anyones personal pain - we have all been there to some degree or another. However, you make this sound more like GitMo than the independent ministry of 3ABN, which regardless of which side of the debate you fall on has reached many and brought them to the foot of the cross. Your hyperbole tries to paint a picture of Stalin-like scorched earth policy.

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors. There are many possibilities and only half of them get "air time" here. The assumption here seems to be that God will bring down either Danny or 3ABN altogether, a lot of assuming to know what God sees, wants, and will do. Is it possible that in the end He will make a decision that makes someone unhappy - absolutely, I expect it. The reason I expect it is because we as human beings want what we want and on occasion lose perspective and there by severe our belief that God is in charge. After all, if He were doing what was "right" it would match up with what I think should happen. We all fall into that mindset during our sanctification process (Mrs. W. said, after all, that that is a process that takes a life time).

I know I invite the wrath of the jilted and legitimately pained with this comment - but it is none-the-less true. God IS in charge and He will do all that needs doing in the process of making sure that all on the face of the earth have the chance to hear His word and experience His love. We can not force our will, our need for retribution, and at worst our vengence on God - He will not accept it and will focus on His mission . . . to save all of mankind that He can. His is a plan for all of us and not for me or you alone. I can not force my needs, wants, desires, ideas on God.

Maybe that old cliche (oh, how I hate cliches) is applicable - "Let go and let God" . . .

Then again maybe I am a deluded fool - in which case, move on to the next post.

-fhb

- fhb

Or maybe you are attempting to confuse issues by making it appear that we cannot know the difference between right and wrong..... and therefore cannot have any idea what God's will is in the situations surrounding the 3ABN Saga. Sorry fhb, but your conglomeration of cliches may sound erudite and even pious on a quick read .... too bad they neither fit the circumstances nor fit with each other.

Oh well..... I suppose you had to try. Too bad you couldn't have kept more in line with facts.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 3 2006, 08:48 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 3 2006, 09:11 PM)

Or maybe you are attempting to confuse issues by making it appear that we cannot know the difference between right and wrong..... and therefore cannot have any idea what God's will is in the situations surrounding the 3ABN Saga. Sorry fhb, but your conglomeration of cliches may sound erudite and even pious on a quick read .... too bad they neither fit the circumstances nor fit with each other.

Oh well..... I suppose you had to try. Too bad you couldn't have kept more in line with facts.

I have no desire to confuse - I think you mistake an alternative view with a desire to "run interference" - I have no need to, nor would I waste my time to do such. I do believe there are disingenuous postings going on here designed to titillate and keep people "tuned in" in order to try and "increase the numbers." If, as you claim your case is true, it will play out just that way.

Watchbird, if nothing happens to 3ABN and it continues to thrive and reach people around the world, will you assume God has abandoned you? Will you be angry with Him for not bringinig down Danny and/or 3ABN? You assume that either or both will happen - what if it doesn't?

I am curious where you feel I insinuate (because you can only be assuming to be reading it between the lines since I have not said such explicitly) that you do not know right from wrong. I merely suggest that your emotional connection, the pain you feel - either personally or vicariously - may be clouding your view - it has happened to me in my life. I don't call into question your growing relationship with your God, nor do I question your sincerity - I only suggest that there is an alternative possibility, take it or leave it.

Can I portend to know God's will, only so much as I read in scripture that His will is to save mankind. Other than that is to say I know the particulars of His plan and can tell you that this or that is an act of God. Insurance companies claim to know the will of God because they include in their policies "acts of God." They can't determine what is an act of God and what is the result of the laws of nature He put into play at the beginning of the world and then again at the fall of man into a sinful existence. The truth is that we do not know His particulars - "I shall come as a thief in the night."

Facts in this case are sparse. As stated before I can not accept things such as "The Televangalist" or the "Unauthorized History" as irrefutable evidence. I will read the letters from Johan, Dr. Thompson, and "the doctor" with the filter that they are written by people who have an interest to defend - whether personal or institutional. You seem to demand that I believe you consonent and vowel - can't do that. Or, that I accept verbatum the "testimony" of the "offended" without the qualification that they may have an ax to grind. You assume a lot - and this leads me to believe that you view me and those who come here as being easily malleable and naive. Just as in the discussion about "tongues" or the validity of Mrs. White . . . each of us arrives at our current position from a process of integrity. I can not question your process with your God, nor can I question the process of Clay or Calvin or HOTY or sister or anyone else here - each of us work out our relationship with God prayerfully and personally.

In the end, God will have His way. It may look nothing like any of us have thought it might. The fact is, that we are merely mirrors that reflect the character of Him we have given our hearts to. That mirror will lead others to Him or not - it is after all a simple proposition.

- fhb

Posted by: justme Oct 3 2006, 08:50 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 3 2006, 10:11 PM) ☐

Or maybe you are attempting to confuse issues by making it appear that we cannot know the difference between right and wrong..... and therefore cannot have any idea what God's will is in the situations surrounding the 3ABN Saga. Sorry fhb, but your conglomeration of cliches may sound erudite and even pious on a quick read .... too bad they neither fit the circumstances nor fit with each other.

Oh well..... I suppose you had to try. Too bad you couldn't have kept more in line with facts.

fhb and pb, thank you for making my point even stronger. It is good to be able to express it "in other words". It has to be God's will. I know that what is happening IS God's will. There's no disputing that. God IS in charge. As you both so nicely point out, what we see and ho we percieve it is based upon our own personal perspective. If we all stood in a straight line looking in the same direction we would each see it differently.

Of course it is not GitMo. Never could be. But it is a very serious matter, actually a bunch of serious matters. Who knows how it will come out in the end. Only God. And He wants us to remember that He loves each one of these souls. Not one of them will tell you that all is right with God. They still ask an interest in our prayers and we can keep them there.

As is now already becoming evident there will be a lot of hosiliity emmanating when it does come out, whichever way it goes. As we all have seen in recent years, in the face of all evidence and proof, people will "walk" away from the consequences of their deeds.

IF that happens here, and we each have truly given the results to God, then we have to accept it as "done",(for now).

Truly I have no suggestion as to how to solve it. I stopped trying to tell God what to do years ago. What He does has become a mystery to me. How does solve things is way beyond my imagination, and by far so much better than what I wanted.

Thanks for the reminders, you guys ...

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 3 2006, 09:09 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 3 2006, 09:50 PM)

IF that happens here, and we each have truly given the results to God, then we have to accept it as "done",(for now).

Truly I have no suggestion as to how to solve it. I stopped trying to tell God what to do years ago. What He does has become a mystery to me. How does solve things is way beyond my imagination, and by far so much better than what I wanted.

Thanks for the reminders, you guys ...

Beautifully put JM. We can only accept that God is in charge and that we aren't privy to all the details (and I would guess that that is a very good thing!).

Prayer and faith in the power of our God is what is needed. Thank God you and I don't have to solve it and that He will - I know I could never find a solution . . . Solomon I am not!

Won't it be wonderful to have all the mystery solved when it is finally all over and what we have to look forward to is a new world of perfection!

- fhb

Posted by: Cheri4Grace Oct 3 2006, 10:08 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 08:09 PM)

Beautifully put JM. We can only accept that God is in charge and that we aren't privy to all the details (and I would guess that that is a very good thing!).

Prayer and faith in the power of our God is what is needed. Thank God you and I don't have to solve it and that He will - I know I could never find a solution . . . Solomon I am not!

Won't it be wonderful to have all the mystery solved when it is finally all over and what we have to look forward to is a new world of perfection!

- fhb

Some may know me... some not... but i have been around 3ABN for years. This story may not make since to anyone but i have to say it because it was interesting to me... I worked on Teen Pathway, Live, Today, and Up Close... many times. I have been to 3ABN tons and love the ministry. I have traveled all over the world working with addicts and families... people at risk. I have watch God work in ways that have silenced me and grown my faith.
but the 10 years or so that LS was there... she never talked with me off the set... how strange that seemed to me... as soon as the camera's came on we were best friends but when the lights were off she simply walked away. It may mean nothing ... it has always bothered me though

Posted by: simplysaved Oct 3 2006, 10:25 PM

No...you just made Linda Shelton human....and not a perfect saint as she is portrayed by some to most....human.

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 3 2006, 10:08 PM)

Some may know me... some not... but i have been around 3ABN for years. This story may not make since to anyone but i have to say it because it was interesting to me... I worked on Teen Pathway, Live, Today, and Up Close... many times. I have been to 3ABN tons and love the ministry. I have traveled all over the world working with addicts and families... people at risk. I have watch God work in ways that have silenced me and grown my faith.
but the 10 years or so that LS was there... she never talked with me off the set... how strange that seemed to me... as soon as the camera's came on we were best friends but when the lights were off she simply walked away. It may mean nothing ... it has always bothered me though

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 3 2006, 10:43 PM

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 3 2006, 09:08 PM)

Some may know me... some not... but i have been around 3ABN for years. This story may not make since to anyone but i have to say it because it was interesting to me... I worked on Teen Pathway, Live, Today, and Up Close... many times. I have been to 3ABN tons and love the ministry. I have traveled all over the world working with addicts and families... people at risk. I have watch God work in ways that have silenced me and grown my faith.
but the 10 years or so that LS was there... she never talked with me off the set... how strange that seemed to me... as soon as the camera's came on we were best friends but when the lights were off she simply walked away. It may mean nothing ... it has always bothered me though

Cheri, I thought that was you! Your testimony and work with the youth, the addicted and the downtrodden has been such an inspiration to me and many others. The need is so great. God bless you for being a willing vessel.

It's hard to know why you had that experience with LS. I wonder if there are others here who have had similar experiences with her. Perhaps Sister can provide some illumination.

Posted by: beartrap Oct 3 2006, 10:57 PM

Good evening to you Cheri!

Would you agree that someone who needed to be removed from the official 3ABN payroll for PR reasons was placed on a payroll that removed her from the official 3ABN payroll yet kept her in the 3ABN financial loop?

By the way Cheri, I have long admired you despite that little payroll thingy. You have done much for many in associciation with Danny despite the many things that are 180 degrees opposed to what you espouse. May your ministry do much good in spite of the wrong that is promoted and loved by the those who make Cheri Peters who she is to the world!

Posted by: sonshineonme Oct 3 2006, 11:06 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 06:30 PM) ☐

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors. There are many possibilities and only half of them get "air time" here. The assumption here seems to be that God will bring down either Danny or 3ABN altogether, a lot of assuming to know what God sees, wants, and will do. Is it possible that in the end He will make a decision that makes someone unhappy - absolutely, I expect it. The reason I expect it is because we as human beings want what we want and on occasion lose perspective and there by severe our belief that God is in charge. After all, if He were doing what was "right" it would match up with what I think should happen. We all fall into that mindset during our sanctification process (Mrs. W. said, after all, that that is a process that takes a life time).

- fhb

Who are you to make a statement like this - makes me wonder....do I really have to say it out loud that LINDA DIDN'T HIRE A PI FROM THE EAST COAST? Sounds like a testing of the crowd's response? I'm sure you know this....and to say it as though you know this to be true is a deep concern. Makes me really wonder about the other things you say....actually, I don't wonder, I know. You sound like DS who says things are fact when they are infact lies...hmm? Are you spending too much time "assuming" things as well?

Posted by: Panama_Pete Oct 3 2006, 11:18 PM

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 3 2006, 10:08 PM)

she never talked with me off the set... how strange that seemed to me... as soon as the camera's came on we were best friends but when the lights were off she simply walked away. It may mean nothing ... it has always bothered me though

By the way, Cheri, I really enjoy your contributions on 3ABN - especially your interviews. I know for sure that I have never heard Linda say one unkind or negative thing about you, if it matters.

Linda's a very fast walker, but so am I. When I saw her walking away, I walked behind her and talked, anyway. I didn't "read" her body language as rejection. But yes, she walks away. It was almost funny to see Dee Hilderbrand - in those high heels - walking behind Linda and trying to keep up. Linda would be wearing flats and walking faster than a wildfire going through a hayfield. Linda would be listening to Dee the whole time as Dee clopped along in those heels. How you women can do that I'll never know.

Later, when Linda saw me out in public, she would cross the room to say hello to me. She also said kind things about me to others. So, don't let it bother you. She did it to all of us and I know for sure it meant nothing.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Oct 3 2006, 11:33 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Oct 3 2006, 11:06 PM)

LINDA DIDN'T HIRE A PI FROM THE EAST COAST

No, Linda didn't hire anyone.

Another point of clarification.

There are at least 160 people working at 3ABN, in various locations, and I'm sure nobody here wants to "bring down 3ABN" so that they all lose their jobs, etc. The "bring down" comment originally surfaced in a someone's casual question, but has somehow taken on a life of its own, as though it's part of someone's agenda or goal.

Posted by: sister Oct 3 2006, 11:33 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Oct 3 2006, 11:57 PM)

Good evening to you Cheri!

Would you agree that someone who needed to be removed from the official 3ABN payroll for PR reasons was placed on a payroll that removed her from the official 3ABN payroll yet kept her in the 3ABN financial loop?

Hello Cheri, perhaps you would like to explain the above comment by Bear. We welcome your explaination. It should be quite interesting...

Sister

Posted by: beartrap Oct 3 2006, 11:38 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Oct 4 2006, 12:06 AM)

You sound like DS who says things are fact when they are infact lies...hmm? Are you spending too much time "assuming" things as well?

Hmmmm... Every attorney learns in law school that one of the downfalls that will bring a lawer down very quickly is the fallacy of assumed premise.

Is it possible that an assumed premise on the part of many Adventists is that when Danny says something, he is saying something that is backed by the the word of God, or indisputable proof? Is the indisputable credibility of Danny Shelton an assumed premise for many actions and assumptions that have destroyed the lives and reputations of many people? Have 3ABN board members and programmers, such as Nick Miller and yourself, fallen for this fallacy?

Could this assumed premise have anything to do with the fact that DannySelton/3ABN has done more than any other entity, including the SDA church, to spread SDA doctrine to the world? Is he not supporting and spreading your (Cheri Peters') philosophy to the world in a way the the SDA church itself cannot do?

Posted by: Cheri4Grace Oct 4 2006, 12:10 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Oct 3 2006, 11:33 PM)

Hello Cheri, perhaps you would like to explain the above comment by Bear. We welcome your explaination. It should be quite interesting...

Sister

I have no idea... but it' s clear to me that whoever speaks up in this forum will get attack. I work for God ... who loves me and continues to heal me. I also feel passionately about helping those lost in addiction and dysfunction to see Jesus and chose recovery.
I believe the Holy Spirit works with us all to help us break free from all the junk that keeps us in bondage... our sin. And Jesus teaches us how to love rather then hate... it's the work of a life time.
I feel so much hate in here that it scares me to even be here... i don't want to be caught up in it... i am not smart enough for sure i get support from a number of sources but have not been on anyone's payroll... except the ministry i founded... i am not sure what Bear is referring to... but wanted to set things straight before i say Good Bye and please take care of yourselves.

If anyone can tell me how to get my name off this site i would so appreciate it... i don't even want someone to be able to twist things. I really feel fear here ... and i know that my only motive is to follow God and be ready when He comes

---

Posted by: beartrap Oct 4 2006, 12:28 AM

Hmmm.

Posted by: beartrap Oct 4 2006, 12:52 AM

Yep

Posted by: Ralph Oct 4 2006, 02:03 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 06:30 PM) ☐

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case

An old lawyer's trick.....Using a Maybe and then throwing in a blatant lie, hoping (usually correctly) that the reader will not notice the "Maybe" and will allow the lie to fester in the subconscious. No, I did not say you were lying. I merely said that it was an old lawyer's trick that is used to deceive.

Instead of going that direction, please either give us verifiable facts or say nothing.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 4 2006, 07:53 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 3 2006, 11:33 PM) ☐

No, Linda didn't hire anyone.

Another point of clarification.

There are at least 160 people working at 3ABN, in various locations, and I'm sure nobody here > wants to "bring down 3ABN" so that they all lose their jobs, etc. The "bring down" comment originally surfaced in a someone's casual question, but has somehow taken on a life of its own, as though it's part of someone's agenda or goal.

It probably should also be pointed out that whenever the "bring down 3abn" concept arose, it was in the context that Danny tightly identifies 3abn as "his baby" and declares that no one will "take his baby away from him". If this is true, and there is no way to get Danny and his coherts out of 3abn, then the only way to solve the problem of Danny "representing" the SDA church would be to cut all ties with 3abn.

There may turn out to be no choice anyhow .... but again, this is a "wait and see" area. Meanwhile, we continue to probe around to try and find the true extent of the problems .... and to spread as much information as is legal and appropriate so as many as possible can be warned.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 4 2006, 08:12 AM

> QUOTE(Ralph @ Oct 4 2006, 12:03 AM)
>
> An old lawyer's trick.....Using a Maybe and then throwing in a blatant lie, hoping (usually correctly) that the reader will not notice the "Maybe" and will allow the lie to fester in the subconscious. No, I did not say you were lying. I merely said that it was an old lawyer's trick that is used to deceive.
>
> Instead of going that direction, please either give us verifiable facts or say nothing.

Just a small point, Ralph. I have been reading posts here since August and have noticed that many folks have put out their own opinions as well as suppositions. If only verifiable facts, as you request, were posted here, I'm afraid that the 3abn forum on BSDA would be rather small.

FHB, are you an old lawyer?

Posted by: summertime Oct 4 2006, 08:13 AM

!Won't it be wonderful to have all the mystery solved when it is finally all over and what we have to look forward to is a new world of perfection!

- fhb
[/quote]

Yes, God is in charge of His world. After all he created it. Could it be that Satan is striving to take charge just as he did with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden? We really do not know the timespan of the battle that went on in Heaven before Satan was finally banned from Heaven forever. Could it be that Satan, for the time being, is in control of what is happening at 3ABN?. Is God beholding the results of this battle as He tries to regain the souls of those at 3ABN who have done much which could bring down the station that has meant so much to so many? Is God still striving to change their wrongs into a period of conversion and confession? But He will not wait forever. I am still waiting and praying for Danny and Co. to forsake their ways and let the world know what they have done and what they are doing so that 3ABN can still be a banner for God. But right now it seems that their time is short and we know that God knows the truth. I think that God is still tugging at their heartstrings to bring them around. Could it ever happen? Right now it doesn't seem likely.

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 4 2006, 08:16 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Oct 3 2006, 11:25 PM)

No...you just made Linda Shelton human....and not a perfect saint as she is portrayed by some to most....human.

Now you're lying on folks, Sarah.. no one has presented Linda as a candidate for canonization... nor has any suggested she was without spot or blemish. If someone has reason to be 'anti-Danny' that does not make him 'pro-Linda' because many have issue with Danny for reasons that have nothing to do with Linda.

As for her reasons to not be off-camera friends with cheri4grace... isnt it a bit presumptuous of you to assume it's Linda's fault or some inherent flaw in her? You dont know either of them from a can of paint and have only one side of this to go on... so you are not in a position to truthfully make the claim you have here... it very well could be cheri4grace's fault as readily as it could be Linda's.

You don't know either way.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: calvin Oct 4 2006, 08:28 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Oct 4 2006, 08:16 AM)

Now you're lying on folks, Sarah.. no one has presented Linda as a candidate for canonization... nor has any suggested she was without spot or blemish. If someone has reason to be 'anti-Danny' that does not make him 'pro-Linda' because many have issue with Danny for reasons that have nothing to do with Linda.

As for her reasons to not be off-camera friends with cheri4grace... isnt it a bit presumptuous of you to assume it's Linda's fault or some inherent flaw in her? You dont know either of them from a can of paint and have only one side of this to go on... so you are not in a position to truthfully make the claim you have here... it very well could be cheri4grace's fault as readily as it could be Linda's.

You don't know either way.

In His service,
Mr. J

Let's not characterize anybody as lying. We are all stating opinions here.

Posted by: summertime Oct 4 2006, 08:41 AM

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 3 2006, 10:08 PM)

Some may know me... some not... but i have been around 3ABN for years. This story may not make since to anyone but i have to say it because it was interesting to me... I worked on Teen Pathway, Live, Today, and Up Close... many times. I have been to 3ABN tons and love the ministry. I have traveled all over the world working with addicts and families... people at risk. I have watch God work in ways that have silenced me and grown my faith.

but the 10 years or so that LS was there... she never talked with me off the set... how strange that seemed to me... as soon as the camera's came on we were best friends but when the lights were off she simply walked away. It may mean nothing ... it has always bothered me though

I have seen you on Teenpathways and listened to your story about how you came off the streets and clilmbed your way to the top. Up until now I have greatly admired you and your story. But have you ever thought about all the responsibilities that the VP of Production of 3ABN could have had which gave her little time to stand around and talk? Besides, Linda has said herself that since she has gone through this turmoil that she has learned a lot about being more cordial and compassionate. I am surprised that your personal feelings about not being close with Linda offscreen should be brought forward now. Personal feelings of neglect of recognition just does not fit in with the persona I have admired on Teen Pathways. I guess that sometimes it just helps to tell others about hidden. deep seated feelings.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 4 2006, 09:06 AM

QUOTE(calvin @ Oct 4 2006, 06:28 AM)

Let's not characterize anybody as lying. We are all stating opinions here.

Amen, Calvin. It appears that nerves have been trod upon and some "opinions" are moving towards attack mode. Might be prudent for all of us to follow Clay's advice of a week or so ago to carefully read what we are about to post and pray about it before we do.

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 4 2006, 09:55 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Oct 4 2006, 10:41 AM)

I am surprised that your personal feelings about not being close with Linda offscreen should be brought forward now. Personal feelings of neglect of recognition just does not fit in with the persona I have admired on Teen Pathways. I guess that sometimes it just helps to tell others about hidden. deep seated feelings.

Her expressing them here also begs the question of whether she has expressed them to Linda...or ever even tried to... or if she just allowed resentment to fester once she felt slighted in this...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: vonessa Oct 4 2006, 10:51 AM

I am troubled that we have given too much quarter to those who would use this opportunity to support Danny Shelton and 3ABN. There are clear issues and raising questions against those who know what happened is a ploy of the enemy.

Yes, we can ask intelligent questions about who, when, where and whatnot, but we know where those stand who raise questions as to the higher criticism of whether this should be discussed at all. That simply leads to doubt and will not lead us to a constructive resolution of the current conflagration. We need to stop this criticism of who is right. It is like reading the bible and rooting for David instead of goliath. We all know that David was doing the Lord's will and we know now that Linda was doing the Lord's will. If you want golliath to win, just move on and start your own forum or whatever. We have no interest in seeing whatyou have to say.

Posted by: Clay Oct 4 2006, 12:03 PM

QUOTE(vonessa @ Oct 4 2006, 11:51 AM)

I am troubled that we have given too much quarter to those who would use this opportunity to support Danny Shelton and 3ABN. There are clear issues and raising questions against those who know what happened is a ploy of the enemy.

Yes, we can ask intelligent questions about who, when, where and whatnot, but we know where those stand who raise questions as to the higher criticism of whether this should be discussed at all. That simply leads to doubt and will not lead us to a constructive resolution of the current conflagration. We need to stop this criticism of who is right. It is like reading the bible and rooting for David instead of goliath. We all know that David was doing the Lord's will and we know now that Linda was doing the Lord's will. If you want golliath to win, just move on and start your own forum or whatever. We have no interest in seeing whatyou have to say.

all sides will be heard until this saga has run its course.... we have an interest in what everyone has to say be they for 3abn or against... that's why its a discussion... now if someone posts something you don't like, ignore it or post a rebuttal.....

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 4 2006, 07:19 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Oct 4 2006, 09:16 AM)

If someone has reason to be 'anti-Danny' that does not make him 'pro-Linda' because many have issue with Danny for reasons that have nothing to do with Linda.

Amen and Amen!

This is not a magnetized case where Dan is on one side and Linda the other. Not everyone is moving in a direction in relation to them.

Posted by: Loud Cry Oct 4 2006, 10:51 PM

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors.

I guess you didn't know that Linda did not "hire" the "Private Investigator" He (they) are independently working on this for reasons that have not been discussed in this forum yet.

Just so ya know....."he" is a "they". They had been asked by several parties to investigate specific issues since July 2004. They opted out, other than a cursory e-mail inquiry or two. The heat began in earnest in March 2006, following the re-marriage of Danny Shelton, and they again opted out. It was not until the arrival on August 21, 2006 at 4:30 pm on their fax machine of a signed copy of the Pastor Dryden letter that they began to informally investigate; And then someone else (a conference president) sent them a signed copy of the Allyssa letter.

(The Pastor Dryden letter is from the Pastor of the Ezra Church of God that brought the charges against Tommy Shelton for the molestation of young boys in four of five Church of God Pastorates that Tommy had served in.)

This was followed by witnesses of various issues contacting them and adding to the collage of information by the droves. The associates spoke about the findings and pointed out that with each contact and every leaf turned they were being over-run with allegations of inappropriate actions taken and financial issues of significant magnitude and felt compelled to pursue each and every allegation to it's most logical conclusion. The decision was made to proceed head-long in to the investigation and to establish minimum requirements for reform to disengage. They firmly believe that for some reason the Lord lead them to a very unusual run of information from the widest possible disbursement of sources and documents. It has been profound and certainly nothing close to what they had originally intended, however, in a month they have been absolutely amazed at the doors that have opened before them making it remarkably possible to move this entire bundle of issues to what they hope will be a speedy and equitable solution for Linda, Allyssa and the Remnant Church.

There will be a an announcement shortly regarding empanelling a tribunal under the auspices of ASI to which they will be able to give evidence and call witnesses. The specifics and dates are yet to be worked out, but it is another shocking development for the 3ABN board to agree to this. The 3ABN board has agreed in principal to empanel a tribunal under the auspices of ASI. ASI has tentatively agreed to sponsor such a panel, but the specifics are still unresolved and is yet to be fully formulated.

They (the Investigators) pray the Lord God to be with all the parties as they prepare for this very important event.

All that you have read in this post is straight from the horses mouth, so to speak.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 4 2006, 11:18 PM

Wow...
Now how was that going to hinder or slow things down to be announced to us here? I say shout it from the rooftops!

Posted by: Loud Cry Oct 4 2006, 11:33 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Oct 4 2006, 09:18 PM)

Wow...
Now how was that going to hinder or slow things down to be announced to us here? I say shout it from the rooftops!

I'm just learning how to use this site. I will post this info where it can be read by more folks, I'm just not sure how or where to do that.

Posted by: Loud Cry Oct 5 2006, 01:35 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 3 2006, 06:30 PM)

Maybe the private investigator from the east coast hired by Linda hasn't been able to put together a case - maybe there isn't anything to the rumors.
fhb

Look folks, it must be understood that NO ONE HIRED ANYONE. However, I do believe that at one time Danny Shelton hired someone to find some dirt on Linda and others. He didn't tell me that himself but I have it from a reputable source that that's a fact.)

So let's understand this now, NO ONE has been hired by ANYONE to do ANYTHING...PERIOD!!!

But rest assured, the doors that the Lord God of heaven has opened are being vigilantly pursued.

There is a GROUP investigating, and the entire group are self appointed reformers who are firmly committed to rooting out corruption within the church and/or it's supporting ministries, when it is revealed to them.

For more on this you can go to where the new topics are and read about the Investigator of 3ABN.

Posted by: September Oct 5 2006, 05:47 AM

Can you be more specific on what are "self appointed reformers"? Are these people lay people or are they investigators? My only fear is that if they are lay people that Danny will blow them off and say that they are just peons who don't know anything.

Meanwhile, I'll continue to pray..it looks like a huge mess is coming to light.

Posted by: summertime Oct 5 2006, 08:54 AM

[

(The Pastor Dryden letter is from the Pastor of the Ezra Church of God that brought the charges against Tommy Shelton for the molestation of young boys in four of five Church of God Pastorates that Tommy had served in.)

[/quote] Can charges against anyone for the molestation of young boys just be dropped without the molestor being punished in any way? Can the parents stop the charges from being brought to the courts just to protect the boys? I thought that breaking the law when minors are involved goes before the courts regardless of circumstances. Could the charges brought before the courts concerning Rep Foley just be dropped if the parents of the boys requested it?

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

158

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ 3abn Fall Campmeeting

Posted by: sister Sep 28 2006, 06:59 PM

3ABN Fall Campmeeting begins in a few minutes. Interesting events always seen to happen around campmeeting time. Right, Johann? One woman is victimized and publicly humiliated. Another woman gives birth "prematurely", and is praised for her desire to sing on stage less than 24 hours later. The third Mrs. Shelton was baptized during campmeeting. I wonder what surprises Danny has in store for us this year? Not only is he scheduled to speak tonight, but he will also have the sermon on Sabbath morning.

And remember, the 3ABN board is scheduled to meet on Sunday... I hear the roar of distant thunder heading toward T'ville...

Posted by: seeshell Sep 28 2006, 07:32 PM

I may be wrong for letting it bother me, but they are already asking for money...for the 10 Commandments project.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 28 2006, 08:08 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 28 2006, 07:59 PM)

And remember, the 3ABN board is scheduled to meet on Sunday... I hear the roar of distant thunder heading toward T'ville...

And thunder perhaps?

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 28 2006, 08:49 PM

I'm going to be praying on Sunday ... that painful truths will not be swept under the (bulging?) rug, that reality will prevail, and that God will have His way with 'em all ...

Posted by: sister Sep 28 2006, 08:59 PM

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 28 2006, 09:49 PM)

I'm going to be praying on Sunday ... that painful truths will not be swept under the (bulging?) rug, that reality will prevail, and that God will have His way with 'em all ...

I think we can all join you in that prayer, SoulEspresso. Amen...

Posted by: Johann Sep 28 2006, 09:51 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 29 2006, 02:59 AM)

3ABN Fall Campmeeting begins in a few minutes. ....

I'm watching 3ABN on the net. There is nothing from Thompsonville right now?

Posted by: sister Sep 28 2006, 09:59 PM

Well, tonight the sermon was by Pastor Gilley. If you keep track of those things, his church was the sight of a big 3ABN beg-a-thon in Dallas, Texas. Back then he was comparing Danny to the great men of Scripture, that the Lord had called to fulfill a special purpose. If memory serves me correctly, he equated Danny Shelton to King David and Moses, as was done a week or so prior to that by Shelly Quinn and John Lomacang on a Thursday night live.

Now back to tonight's sermon... Well folks, the theme for tonight was money, money and more money. Basically, the more sacrificially we give, the more the Lord will give us to give and the more we can give on to worthy causes. Now, did you catch that? And whose hands are outstretched, ready, willing and worthy to receive those funds? Why Danny Shelton, of course...

Poor Danny... Did you all know that he has to go bargain hunting for his suits? But Pastor Gilley assured us that Danny is a wise shopper and goes to the best stores and comes away with a beautiful suit of high quality for sixty-five dollars. Now that is a pretty good trick, I know I have been suit shopping. Just for fun, let's consider the possibility that Danny bought that suit the weekend that he was in Dallas with Pastor Gilley. There might be some hidden costs that could be factored in. Would it be unfair to add in the cost for the private jet that took DanBran to Dallas for the beg-a-thon? Then in addition to their regular salary, the two pilots received ministry funds to cover the following expenses: hotel, rental car and per diem for the weekend. Also add on a rental car for DanBran and other misc. expenses and the "savings" on the "bargain suit" seems nothing more than a red herring attempting to misdirect our attention away from the other extravagances that the 3ABN donors have paid for over the years. Oh, and don't forget that Danny is not paid a sacrificial salary, unlike most of the workers, and can afford to buy what he needs without haunting the bargin suit racks at Dillards.

So, in conclusion, it is difficult to get excited over the "bargain suit" when you know how Danny has channeled so much ministry money through his pockets over the years. Sorry, Dan, it was a good try, but you are going to have to do much better than that in order to fool all the people, all the time... You need to work on your showmanship, even P.T. Barnum didn't believe it was possible to fool all the people, all the time...

Posted by: seeshell Sep 28 2006, 10:12 PM

Poor taste, poor judgment, but they sure are giving it the old college try!

Posted by: sister Sep 28 2006, 11:50 PM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 28 2006, 11:12 PM)

Poor taste , poor judgment , but they sure are giving it the old college try!

Poor Danny... oo Sorry, poor doesn't seem to be one of Danny's problems, no matter what Pastor Gilley would have us believe. Does Danny think everyone watching him is having a: blon .

Sorry Shell, no offense intended, I just don't think of you as "blond".

Posted by: västergötland Sep 29 2006, 12:44 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 29 2006, 04:59 AM)

Now back to tonight's sermon... Well folks, the theme for tonight was money, money and more money. Basically, the more sacrificially we give, the more the Lord will give us to give and the more we can give on to worthy causes. Now, did you catch that? And whose hands are outstretched, ready, willing and worthy to receive those funds? Why Danny Shelton, of course...

The infamy stepps of tv evangelism. Starts with being a plain teleevangelist, moves on to being a prosperity teleevangelist and ends at being a miracle healing prosperity preaching teleevangelist...

Posted by: seeshell Sep 29 2006, 08:21 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 29 2006, 12:50 AM)

Poor Danny... oo Sorry, poor doesn't seem to be one of Danny's problems, no matter what Pastor Gilley would have us believe. Does Danny think everyone watching him is having a: blon .

Sorry Shell, no offense intended, I just don't think of you as "blond".

LOL, none taken, sis!

I didn't watch the whole thing last night, but I did catch a bit of the "suit drama". How are these people getting sucked into praising a man like this?

Posted by: justme Sep 29 2006, 11:26 AM

Opening night. Camp meeting part 1.

Did you catch Shelly Quinn's "beg" for "10-commandment partners" who will "pledge" $10.00 - $1,00.00 per week to go toward "10-Commandment Weekends in major metropolitan cities" and the to follow up with "Prophecy" seminars. They have been planning this for months, but ,

"We THOUGHT that we knew where we were going this year. But it would SEEM that the Lord, ... we ..., ... none of us could just get settled in on it,... and the MORE we prayed the more we were sure that WEREN'T YET IN TUNE WITH GOD.

"If you have ,... if you live in a city , and you've prayed, and you feel the Lord would like us to host it there, please send in your information , .. your church , ..your conference, ..who you think , ...where would be a good idea , ..just send it to us and we'll pray over it, because , if we don't do it this year, MAYBE we'll be at your place next year.

But what I wanted to do was read a few comments here , from Ellen White , she says , in Evangelism pg 29,

'Oh, that God's people had a sense of the impending destruction of thousands of cities now almost given to idolatry ...' and she also said, 'At the present time there is not a thousandth part being done in working the cities that should be done, and that would be done if men and women would do their whole duty. Work while you can, My brethren, Enter the cities while you can. In the cities that have already been entered there are many who have never heard the message of truth. There are many other, who, if given the opportunity, might hear and accept the message of salvation. .

These, our last efforts for the work of God in the earth, must bear decidedly the impress of the Divine. Soon the way will be hedged up. These cities will be closed to the gospel message. Wake up the church members that they may unite in doing a definite and self-denying work. Time is short. We must continue to evangelize with power.'

"I ... just asked Danny, ... bless his heart, I put him on the spot back there, ... I asked him earlier, I said,

'Danny do you mind if I call for special partners in this work? '

'We would like to have Special Ten Commandments Weekend Partners, and, what the Lord has laid on my heart is there are many people who COULD give $10 a month, beginning this month, that would go toward this project, $10 for the 10 commandments project each month to help finance this great work. Some of you could give a hundred dollars a month and some even more. But what we want to remember is what Jesus said in Matthew 5:18,19, that He said , "Assuredly I say to you , Til heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tiddle will by no means pass from the law 'til all is fulfilled. Whoever therefore breaks one of the least of these commandments and teaches men to do so shall be called "The Least" in the kingdom of heaven. But whoever DOES and teaches them, he shall be called "Great" in the kingdom of heaven."

'Again I wanta thank all of you who participated this year in the "10 Commandments Project". May you be called Great in the kingdom of heaven."

'And I pray that many people will join us, and please, .. we, .. we ask for your prayers. I hope that you'll just,... as the Lord lays this on your heart, ...lift it up every day, ..every time God brings it to your remembrance, because there is great work to be done, and short time to do it. We MUST evangelize with power.
Thank you".

applause .....

I have comments in regards to this, but I'll wait until you chew on it first.
Especially about the part of' "breaking the least of these commandments and teaching men to do so (by example, in particular).

Posted by: västergötland Sep 29 2006, 02:06 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 29 2006, 07:26 PM)

'We would like to have Special Ten Commandments Weekend Partners, and, what the Lord has laid on my heart is there are many people who COULD give $10 a month, beginning this month, that would go toward this project, $10 for the 10 commandments project each month to help finance this great work. Some of you could give a hundred dollars a month and some even more. But what we want to remember is what Jesus said in Matthew 5:18,19, that He said , "Assuredly I say to you , Til heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tiddle will by no means pass from the law 'til all is fulfilled. Whoever therefore breaks one of the least of these commandments and teaches men to do so shall be called "The Least" in the kingdom of heaven. But whoever DOES and teaches them, he shall be called "Great" in the kingdom of heaven."

Whats the underlined got to do with anything? Subtle threats or what?

Posted by: sister Sep 29 2006, 02:40 PM

Round 2:

Friday Night Live on 3ABN
7:00 - 9:00 PM Central Time
Sermon by Wintley Phipps

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 29 2006, 06:02 PM

Justme,
I couldn't believe Shelly Quinn when she started in asking for money. And of course it was an idea she just thought of, to ask people to give to the 10 commandments project. But then when Mollie came out and went through her sanctuary bit for worship. Give me a break By the time she got to the holy of holies and said we could now know we were in the prescense of God and He would speak directly to us the group came out to sing. Did any one notice that no one was smiling except Bran. Danny's sister looked like she wished she was anywhere but there. They all looked about to die. Sorry that was my impression When we were all prepared to hear from God, Gilley comes out and basically tells us we need to give money to worthy causes (3abn). I just couldn't get over the whole evening. My dear hubby asked why I was watching. He tuned out at the beginning with the good ole southern gospel music and Danny saying we are just going to have a little fun. Hubby's comment this morning was 3abn has become a forum for the Shelton family, nothing more. I missed the suit business but I did hear about all of Gilley's cars, So sad he only has a Huyandi. Maybe Danny could give him some money to buy another Lincoln.

A question I had last night was are the employees of 3abn suppose to attend campmeeting? It didn't look like there were all that many people there and the ones I saw were the perfect people to reach deep into their humble pockets and help Danny. Hopefully those who arn't actually working have a choice to attend or not.

It did seem to me from the applause after songs that most people didn't seem to care for the musical presentations before the actual service started. I havn't watched any other 3abn campmeetings so don't know if this is normal. Maybe these older folk were uncomfortable with clapping after musical numbers.

Also thought it interesting that we all got to meet the latest addition to Melody's family

As sister said I'm ready for round 2 tonight.

Does anyone think it is interesting that tonight and tomorrow Danny is having black speakers? Maybe there is somthing to that urban channel he is talking about. Maybe he just discovered another untapped mountain of revenue [x] rofl [x] rofl Kill us with kindness Danny!!!

TB

Posted by: Ralph Sep 29 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 29 2006, 06:02 PM)

Does anyone think it is interesting that tonight and tomorrow Danny is having black speakers? Maybe there is somthing to that urban channel he is talking about. Maybe he just discovered another untapped mountain of revenue [x] rofl [x] rofl Kill us with kindness Danny!!!

TB

And kill us with music. Are you too young to remember when "This Old House" was a dance tune?

Posted by: justme Sep 29 2006, 09:26 PM

A question I had last night was are the employees of 3abn suppose to attend campmeeting? It didn't look like there were all that many people there and the ones I saw were the perfect people to reach deep into their humble pockets and help Danny. Hopefully those who arn't actually working have a choice to attend or not.

Truly Blonde,
Usually one would expect that employees would be expected to attend to show full support of the business.

On the other hand it would be better if those seats were filled with people who have money in their pockets, which is not true of the employees' pockets.

When the cameras pan the audience you see mostly older people who have money and time and who seldom speak up against falsehood. They have grown up to be compliant, they were trustworthy, trusting, and now gullible to what "sounds" like what they want to hear". They are easily moved by emotion, music, and grandchildren. (Look at all those little mouths 3ABN has to feed.)

Also, if the employees attended they might be asked embarrassing "questions". 3ABN Employees will NOT answer questions from you, when they are out doing a "beggathon".

Posted by: sister Sep 29 2006, 09:42 PM

Round 2:

After watching tonight's program one thought impressed me: how easy it would be to remove Danny, Melody, all the rest of the Shelton clan, Mollie Steenson, Shelly Quinn and John Lomacang from 3ABN.

Anyone with some talent and on air experience could have lead out in the program just as well as Danny. Bran is so silent, she would not be missed. There are many more talented singers than Dan, Melody and the rest of the Shelton clan, who would be willing to sing at camp meeting. Without Dan, the type of comments that originate from Mollie, Shelly and John to support the "holiness" of Danny are not necessary nor is the type of "sermon" delivered by Pastor Gilley. Yesterday's program was nothing more than a shameless, bold faced beg-a-thon.

The singing and preaching of Whitley Phipps tonight was like a breath of fresh air in room that has been closed up for too long: there was no call for sacrificial giving, deifying of Danny or justification of his actions. It was a sermon that ended with a call for unity in the church: regardless of race, ethnicity or national origin.

On Sunday, Pastor Phipps and the other members of the 3ABN board will meet in session, unfortunately still chaired by Walt Thompson. Hopefully, they will realize that it is past time to open wide the windows at 3ABN, let in the light of day and purge this ministry from the administration that has kept it in bondage for so long. It is time for accountability.

Dan, you know what you have done. Step aside, repent and allow the Lord to humble you before it is too late... This is my prayer for you.

Sister

Posted by: beartrap Sep 30 2006, 02:15 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 29 2006, 10:26 PM) ☐

and grandchildren. (Look at all those little mouths 3ABN has to feed.)

Tears

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 30 2006, 08:25 AM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 29 2006, 06:02 PM)

Justme,
I couldn't believe Shelly Quinn when she started in asking for money. And of course it was an idea she just thought of, to ask people to give to the 10 commandments project.

Why not? She's one of the authors of Ten Commandments Under Attack . She probably gets royalties for every copy of the book distributed. Why wouldn't you, in an indirect way, up your own income if you had the chance? The whole "Ten Commandments Commission" thing is just a thinly disguised ploy for money, in my opinion.

The title of the book is meant to appeal to the emotions of the under-educated.

The Commandments Under Attack, By Pacific Press.

http://www.adventistreview.org/article.php?id=503

"The book released by Pacific Press Publishing Association, The Ten Commandments Under Attack, is written by twelve prominent Adventist evangelists and meant to be shared with non-Adventists. Authors include Doug Batchelor, Dwight Nelson, Lonnie Melashenko, Ty Gibson, Shelley Quinn , and Mike Tucker, and the foreword is written by Mark Finley, a vice president of the General Conference. The book is meant to be a witnessing tool to non-Adventist Christians and so has been kept small—only 80-pages and pocket-size, with an offer for free Bible study guides."

"Witnessing Tool" means, in Adventism, that you , dear supporter, are to purchase these in quantity even if you cannot afford to do so.

When you have a chance, please read the article about Ron Wexler, Ten Commandments Commission at:

http://www.spectrummagazine.org/weblog/060602blogosphere.html
http://www.spectrummagazine.org/weblog/060602blogosphere.html

---

Posted by: justme Sep 30 2006, 11:02 AM

WOW, WOW, WOW
IS THAT REALLY DANNY UP THERE (in a necktie, no less) RAMBLING ON ABOUT "DESTRUCTION BY DECEIPT". THE VERY THING HE AND THE 3ABN BOARD HAVE BEEN DOING TO LINDA SHELTON, THE CO-FOUNDER OF 3ABN.

Hang on to your hats ...!

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 30 2006, 11:23 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 30 2006, 02:02 PM)

WOW, WOW, WOW
IS THAT REALLY DANNY UP THERE (in a necktie, no less) RAMBLING ON ABOUT "DESTRUCTION BY DECEIPT". THE VERY THING HE AND THE 3ABN BOARD HAVE BEEN DOING TO LINDA SHELTON, THE CO-FOUNDER OF 3ABN.

Hang on to your hats ...!

Ramblin' Dan is on a roll...he is quite the extemporaneous speaker, isn't he? Bless his heart... wow...now he and his wife are singing a duet...well...he certainly has the ability to go on with business as usual.

Posted by: Johann Sep 30 2006, 03:18 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 30 2006, 04:25 PM)

When you have a chance, please read the article about Ron Wexler, Ten Commandments Commission at:

http://www.spectrummagazine.org/weblog/060602blogosphere.html
http://www.spectrummagazine.org/weblog/060602blogosphere.html

This article indicates that the Ten Commandment Day is merely a money making affair. . . So what are the consequences?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 30 2006, 03:42 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 30 2006, 02:18 PM)

This article indicates that the Ten Commandment Day is merely a money making affair. . . So what are the consequences?

I read the article as well and it appears that for the Wexler contingency for sure it was just a money-making affair. I certainly would hope that wasn't the same reason Mark Finley, Doug Batchelor, etc. were involved.

What is it with that Hebrew numerology stuff? I just wonder how many base their beliefs on that superstitious mumbo jumbo!

= 620 OooEeeOoo.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 30 2006, 06:35 PM

Wait a minute! Brandy can sing?!!!

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 30 2006, 09:23 AM)

Ramblin' Dan is on a roll...he is quite the extemporaneous speaker, isn't he? Bless his heart... wow...now he and his wife are singing a duet...well...he certainly has the ability to go on with business as usual.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 30 2006, 07:19 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 30 2006, 07:35 PM)

Wait a minute! Brandy can sing?!!!

It is an important skill for a tv personality after all...

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 30 2006, 07:27 PM

There is a young guy, Ivor Myers, who is preaching at camp meeting. He said he was a rapper. I've never heard of him. I am enjoying his message.

Posted by: justme Sep 30 2006, 07:29 PM

Sing?
Bet they been "making beautiful music" for some time.

Wonder when HER CD will come out. What would the title be?

Posted by: lurker Sep 30 2006, 08:53 PM

Danny just flatters those he wants to influence. Did you notice the plaques and the recognition of all the board members. Putting Doug Batchelor's picture on the front of the 3ABN magazine etc. Having the black speakers (who were truly inspired speakers and very good.) Bet they wouldn't be there though if he didn't feel threatened by the talk on blacksda.

I have noticed that he gives publicity to whoever he is currently "courting". You will see them featured in the 3ABN magazine or they will be featured on air. It doesn't last though. Usually it is only as long as he needs them or as long as they support him.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 30 2006, 09:03 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 30 2006, 08:29 PM)

Sing?
Bet they been "making beautiful music" for some time.
Wonder when HER CD will come out. What would the title be?

I believe that she has already been involved with productions at the 3ABN Sound Center - but not a cd of her own. Dan isn't about to let another woman become important. She isn't supposed to bring anything to the table - just decorate it.

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 30 2006, 09:48 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 30 2006, 07:53 PM)

Danny just flatters those he wants to influence. Did you notice the plaques and the recognition of all the board members. Putting Doug Batchelor's picture on the front of the 3ABN magazine etc. Having the black speakers (who were truly inspired speakers and very good.) Bet they wouldn't be there though if he didn't feel threatened by the talk on blacksda.

I have noticed that he gives publicity to whoever he is currently "courting". You will see them featured in the 3ABN magazine or they will be featured on air. It doesn't last though. Usually it is only as long as he needs them or as long as they support him.

I think you are right. Danny is feeling threatened by blacksda so he is trying to get the black vote by using these speakers. Thankfully both Wintly and Ivor are sincere Christians who won't let Danny get to them.

Ivor Meyers was a rapper who was offered an 8 record deal. His group was making it big. One of their friends was also into rap but had been raised an Adventist. He started talking to Ivor's band and he said they would be doing pot and drinking and at the same time studying the Bible. They were baptised but still didn't know what the Bible was all about and what God really wanted in their life. They kept studying and what you saw tonight was the change that God makes in people when they sincerely accept Him as their Savior. He has a web site and sells DVD's. We watched his first DVD and it was very moving. On his DVD he has pictures of his rap group and his days when he had dred locks and was a rapper, then there are pictures of him after his conversion what a change. His first DVD is all about music (all kinds of music) and how Saten is using music (including christian rap and regga to lead people into spiritualism. Very eye opening. Reccomend it for everyone to see.

Question: Is the man that is with Melody holding her baby the father of that baby and her husband? Just wondering

TB

Posted by: Ralph Sep 30 2006, 10:17 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 30 2006, 07:27 PM)

There is a young guy, Ivor Myers, who is preaching at camp meeting. He said he was a rapper. I've never heard of him. I am enjoying his message.

I'd never heard of him before this week when a friend brought over a DVD in which he told his conversion story. It was a fantastic story. Company came this evening, so I only heard part of tonight's sermon, but certainly enjoyed what I did hear.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 30 2006, 10:19 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 30 2006, 06:27 PM)

There is a young guy, Ivor Myers, who is preaching at camp meeting. He said he was a rapper. I've never heard of him. I am enjoying his message.

I tried to find a good picture of Ivor during his "Boogiemasters" years but couldn't. I did find several of the groups music videos on Youtube.com by doing a search of the site for them. Their music is still very popular in some circles as I found out on youtube.com.

Here is a link to Ivor's history.

http://plusline.org/article.php?id=4874

Posted by: princessdi Sep 30 2006, 10:30 PM

Ok, but I just recently found out that Danny called himself can sing.

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 30 2006, 06:19 PM)

It is an important skill for a tv personality after all...

Posted by: caribbean sda Oct 1 2006, 03:33 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Oct 1 2006, 01:19 AM)

I tried to find a good picture of Ivor during his "Boogiemasters" years but couldn't. I did find several of the groups music videos on Youtube.com by doing a search of the site for them. Their music is still very popular in some circles as I found out on youtube.com.

Here is a link to Ivor's history.

http://plusline.org/article.php?id=4874

Thanks for the link, PB. Ivor truly has a "story to tell to the nations," and he is doing a great job of taking the "Advent Message" to the world. May God continue to bless him and his ministry.

ps. never heard of his rap group or any of their songs...wonder if I need to turn in my card?

Posted by: lurker Oct 1 2006, 07:22 AM

Try boogiemonsters not boogiemasters. After his conversion he wrote religious lyrics to rap for a while until he decided God wanted him to do something different. Interesting lyrics.
http://www.lyricsstyle.com/b/boogiemonsters/markofthebeastiirsv.html

Posted by: justme Oct 1 2006, 07:34 AM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 30 2006, 11:03 PM)

I believe that she has already been involved with productions at the 3ABN Sound Center - but not a cd of her own. Dan isn't about to let another woman become important. She isn't supposed to bring anything to the table - just decorate it.

Is so sad that he is so insecure that he has to deprive those around him from reaching their own full potential.

It's so hard to see the "mending broken people" part, when, for so long, the opposite has been true .

Pray that God will be able to get through to the 3ABN BOARD for once and get things straightened up.

P.S. Ivor has somethings 3ABN can learn, if they'll listen. Problem is, while he's preaching, they're backstage making more plans to raise and spend more money.

Nice "Autumn Skin", thanks.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Oct 1 2006, 08:21 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 1 2006, 07:34 AM)

It's so hard to see the "mending broken people" part, when, for so long, the opposite has been true .
Pray that God will be able to get through to the 3ABN BOARD for once and get things straightened up.

My observation is that 3ABN does not have a Board of Directors in the same way we think of them.

I expect that the board members will come together today at some person's house, read carefully screened and prepared reports from each department, if they don't fall asleep during the presentations, and then they will leave Mr. Shelton to run his private business any way he wishes.

That's all that I expect to happen today. However, it would be nice to be pleasantly surprised.

Maybe, if they don't fall asleep first, they may all hear some rambling about attacks by Satan and his minions. But, if they all fall asleep, they will be spared the misery of listening to it all.

Posted by: justme Oct 1 2006, 09:10 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Oct 1 2006, 10:21 AM)

My observation is that 3ABN does not have a Board of Directors in the same way we think of them.

I expect that the board members will come together today at some person's house, read carefully screened and prepared reports from each department, if they don't fall asleep during the presentations, and then they will leave Mr. Shelton to run his private business any way he wishes.

That's all that I expect to happen today. However, it would be nice to be pleasantly surprised.

Maybe, if they don't fall asleep first, they may all hear some rambling about attacks by Satan and his minions. But, if they all fall asleep, they will be spared the misery of listening to it all.

Does anyone know what to expect today according to the 3ABN TV schedule it says:

3:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 1st Hour 2006 Fall Camp Meeting /
4:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 2nd Hour 2006 Fall Camp Meeting /

what else is there to say?

Posted by: September Oct 1 2006, 09:33 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Oct 1 2006, 11:10 AM)

Does anyone know what to expect today according to the 3ABN TV schedule it says:

3:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 1st Hour 2006 Fall Camp Meeting /
4:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 2nd Hour 2006 Fall Camp Meeting /

what else is there to say?

That's probably their re-broadcast of the Thursday night "live" from Campmeeting

Posted by: justme Oct 1 2006, 10:37 AM

QUOTE(September @ Oct 1 2006, 11:33 AM)

That's probably their re-broadcast of the Thursday night "live" from Campmeeting

Does 3ABN ever make public any of the decisions the board makes?

Posted by: Uncle Sam Oct 1 2006, 11:32 AM

I did not watch ALL of the campmeeting, so I may have missed it but...I did not see anything unusual. They sang too much for my liking but that is not new. Danny had his grandkids on, which I assume he is a proud grandfather. Brandy was on quite a bit but that is probably something we need to get used to. If I am not mistaken she went to 3ABN so Danny could help her with her music career???

Did I miss anything? Did Danny "repent" or anything????

Posted by: Clay Oct 1 2006, 11:55 AM

probably not..... but my question is why do some of you guys (and gals) insist on watching something that turns your stomach so? Is this some form of self punishment or what?

Posted by: Uncle Sam Oct 1 2006, 12:41 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 1 2006, 10:55 AM)

probably not..... but my question is why do some of you guys (and gals) insist on watching something that turns your stomach so? Is this some form of self punishment or what?

There are many aspects of 3ABN that I enjoy. What I don't enjoy is when Danny gets on and rambles on defending himself, or when others get on defending him....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 1 2006, 01:02 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Oct 1 2006, 05:22 AM)

Try boogiemonsters not boogiemasters. After his conversion he wrote religious lyrics to rap for a while until he decided God wanted him to do something different. Interesting lyrics.
http://www.lyricsstyle.com/b/boogiemonsters/markofthebeastiirsv.html

Thanks for the correction. It was late when I posted that. I knew his group was the Boogiemonsters. Guess that may be why I couldn't Yahoo and image of the group. rofl YouTube.com has music videos posted of both before exposure to the Lord and after. It's interesting to see their musical take on the Great Controversy. Before they realized that the Rap Concert venue wasn't conducive to spiritual health, they would talk about the Great Controversy and even throw them out to the crowd!

So, God can use even backslidden, drunken potheads to plant the seeds of His Kingdom. Praise the Lord!

Posted by: Freedom Oct 1 2006, 04:22 PM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 30 2006, 10:48 PM)

I think you are right. Danny is feeling threatened by blacksda so he is trying to get the black vote by using these speakers. Thankfully both Wintly and Ivor are sincere Christians who won't let Danny get to them.

Ivor Meyers was a rapper who was offered an 8 record deal. His group was making it big. One of their friends was also into rap but had been raised an Adventist. He started talking to Ivor's band and he said they would be doing pot and drinking and at the same time studying the Bible. They were baptised but still didn't know what the Bible was all about and what God really wanted in their life. They kept studying and what you saw tonight was the change that God makes in people when they sincerely accept Him as their Savior. He has a web site and sells DVD's. We watched his first DVD and it was very moving. On his DVD he has pictures of his rap group and his days when he had dred locks and was a rapper, then there are pictures of him after his conversion what a change. His first DVD is all about music (all kinds of music) and how Saten is using music (including christian rap and regga to lead people into spiritualism. Very eye opening. Reccomend it for everyone to see.

Question: Is the man that is with Melody holding her baby the father of that baby and her husband? Just wondering
TB

Without black, no color has any depth. But if you mix black with everything, suddenly there's shadow - no, not just shadow, but fullness. You've got to be willing to mix black into your palette if you want to create something that's real.
Amy Grant

Posted by: Loud Cry Oct 4 2006, 10:14 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Oct 1 2006, 10:32 AM)

> I did not watch ALL of the campmeeting, so I may have missed it but...I did not see anything unusual. They sang too much for my liking but that is not new. Danny had his grandkids on, which I assume he is a proud grandfather. Brandy was on quite a bit but that is probably something we need to get used to. If I am not mistaken she went to 3ABN so Danny could help her with her music career???
>
> Did I miss anything? Did Danny "repent" or anything????

Hi ya all....my first time posting, although I have been reading for weeks. Anyway, just want to comment on the statement that Brandy went to 3ABN to further her music carreer. She did not go to 3ABN for that reason, at least not at first, or not openly, and maybe not even knowingly. She went there because she was going through a "crisis" and Danny invited her there to "work", he offered her a job, at least that's what they both told me in February '06. He did have plans to record a song she wrote, that he went on and on about. Personally, I don't think Brandy had a realistic understanding of what she was getting into. I may be wrong, but she seemed to me to be pretty naive, submissive, sort of "I'm sure lucky to be here with Danny Shelton, he's really somebody...." I might guess by now that she might like to turn the clock back and get off this sinking ship before it's too late. I think she's in way over her head. And yes, Brandy has worked at the Sound Center on her CD but I'm not she's finished her recording.

As far as having to get used to seeing Brandy on TV...well I don't think it will be too much longer before we are relieved of ever seeing Danny and his entourage anywhere but behind bars! Brandy may get away as she was last on the scene, but the rest of 'em....well, we'll just have to wait and see.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 4 2006, 11:23 PM

> QUOTE(Loud Cry @ Oct 4 2006, 11:14 PM)
>
> I don't think Brandy had a realistic understanding of what she was getting into. I may be wrong, but she seemed to me to be pretty naive, submissive, sort of "I'm sure lucky to be here with Danny Shelton, he's really somebody...."

I think it's a common thought that Brandy is innocent of 99.9% of everything. Naivete is her biggest fault.

If you're reading, Brandy, I really do wish you all the best! I'm sorry for the situation you find yourself in - but it isn't too late...

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

159

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ 3abn Presents "the Battle ..." Don't Miss It

Posted by: watchbird Aug 13 2006, 10:35 AM

From the program guide on the 3ABN Website, http://www.3abn.org/broadcast_schedule.cfm comes this announcement (times are given in Central Standard Time..... adjust appropriately for your own time zone.

3:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 1st Hour --- The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelley Quin, Walter Thompson

4:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 2st Hour --- The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelley Quin, Walter Thompson

Some interesting things have been reported (and some interesting questions and speculations have been created) about what has been said on this program.

Here is your chance to see for youself ..... and even to make a video or audio tape and/or a transcription. Don't miss it.

Gather round..... sna

TVsnack.

.....

Posted by: September Aug 13 2006, 11:35 AM

I have a huge favor...we don't get 3ABN since it went off Sky Angel and the speakers on my computer are funky--they work when they want to work...would someone mind taping this program for me and I would pay for it? If so, let me know and I'll PM you.

Thanks!

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 13 2006, 11:35 AM)

From the program guide on the 3ABN Website, http://www.3abn.org/broadcast_schedule.cfm comes this announcement (times are given in Central Standard Time..... adjust appropriately for your own time zone.

3:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 1st Hour --- The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelley Quin, Walter Thompson

4:00 PM 3ABN Today LIVE - 2st Hour --- The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelley Quin, Walter Thompson

Some interesting things have been reported (and some interesting questions and speculations have been created) about what has been said on this program.

Here is your chance to see for youself ..... and even to make a video or audio tape and/or a transcription. Don't miss it.

Gather round..... sna

TVsnack.

.....

Posted by: Hersheys99 Aug 13 2006, 11:43 AM

QUOTE

I have a huge favor...we don't get 3ABN since it went off Sky Angel and the speakers on my computer are funky--they work when they want to work...would someone mind taping this program for me and I would pay for it? If so, let me know and I'll PM you.

I don't either but if you go to their web site you can listen to it from there. I have it on in the background right now waiting for the program to start. DUH if I read better I would have seen you said your speakers don't always work right. Think I need to go back to bed! Maybe you'll get lucky today & your speakers will work right!!

Posted by: September Aug 13 2006, 12:10 PM

Okay, I get the stupid award for the day...I think it helps to turn the volume up...the speakers are working! I probably shouldn't be left alone with myself today

Posted by: Hersheys99 Aug 13 2006, 12:23 PM

QUOTE

Okay, I get the stupid award for the day...I think it helps to turn the volume up...the speakers are working! doh.gif I probably shouldn't be left alone with myself today

Too funny now I don't feel so alone I'm always doing stupid stuff like that things that make me go

Posted by: msraccoon Aug 13 2006, 12:30 PM

Thanks so much, watchbird, for posting this topic. I will watch via my only option, the internet.

This website is the only way I hear about special programs.

msraccoon

Posted by: watchbird Aug 13 2006, 05:08 PM

QUOTE(msraccoon @ Aug 13 2006, 12:30 PM)

Thanks so much, watchbird, for posting this topic. I will watch via my only option, the internet.

This website is the only way I hear about special programs.

msraccoon

You're welcome.

I'll be interested in the thoughts of those who watched it. Though I suppose it may take some time for some of us to collect our thoughts enough to share them.

Posted by: PaperTigers Aug 13 2006, 06:39 PM

against my better judgement i watched it... thought i was going to be sick...
but made it through...

TVsnack.

i think i'm going to go behind the couch until the drama begins.

sofa1.gif

Posted by: Hersheys99 Aug 13 2006, 07:06 PM

Well IMO it was nothing more than Damage Control. I think its coming at them from all sides & they have to do what they can to get the spotlight off of Danny so lets lay it on those that are Persecuting him!

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 13 2006, 07:42 PM

I watched a lot of it - till I got a long distance phone call, but read the "transcript" and learned a great deal. 1st of all, NOTHING is Danny's fault. It's the "persecutors" fault - all of it. This is all about the poor tragedy of poor Danny - the "chosen" one (their words) and if you don't believe and honor the "chosen one" then adversity will come upon you (upon WHO?).

I learned that even if Brandi writes something out on paper, she is still not aloud to read it aloud - it has to be read for her. I'm sorry to say, if she writes something out that is supposedly meaningful, then she should be encouraged to read it to everyone, otherwise she gives the appearance of a frightened child, and she is on stage after all - and that is another question....WHY is she there. If she is not comfortable being out in the eye of all, then why is she? Does she not have a choice? I get very tired of Danny using her as a....a....well, I can't put my finger on it exactly - it just isn't right, whatever it is. Something is very wrong here.

I learned that when you bring out all the big guns to do the fighting for "the chosen" one, the "chosen one" is really the puppeteer pulling strings in front of the world to see. Each one had their own subtlety to add - and some not so subtle. And of course, if you bring out all the "important" people, that is to say indirectly that this is IMPORTANT. Well, duh, you got that right. It's called MILK IT MILK IT MILK IT till you get it into the heads of all the people that you have fooled for so long that "it's all lies - see, how the devil works"....I could continue, but honestly, it makes me sick. And then there is Dr. Thompson, who said nothing more then "yes, ahem, I do what you need" or something to that affect (and that is NO lie) - keeping busy doing what needs to be done - after they discussed how far he came to sit there the whole time - from WI to IL. Whew, long drive! Bless his soul. bo

Alright, this is bringing the carnal nature out in me, and I will tuck it back in now, I have already felt sick enough to share a bucket with all my friends today that felt the same as we "endured" heresy going on in front of us.

I honestly pray that this situation, that is being played out before more then just the SDA church, but all angles in heaven and earth, and other worlds I might add, "stage 3" (abn) is going on and all are wondering, how will God's people respond? What will people learn (finally). What will God use out of all this to really save people, bring them to Him (God that is) and teach us? The Lord wastes nothing. He is saddened I am sure - by the whole darn mess (pardon my kosher cursing). But, like Calvin says, and so many times I could use this when it comes to 3abn/Danny Shelton - "It's all been said before". There are countless stories (examples) in the bible that make 3abn look like a re-run (and I am not talking about the 3abn live today show that is going to replay and replay to make sure the brainwashing gets in deep). If we know our bibles, we can spot the evil around us - those stories are lessons for now and time to come. Lets hope that God saves us all through this mess, and that His will is done.

my pennys worth of thougts...

p.s. I am sure glad I have bsda in my life now. (although my husband thinks I am addicted...hmm, maybe so. There are healthy addictions, right?? RIGHT???)

Posted by: tall73 Aug 13 2006, 09:01 PM

So is this transcript publicly available?

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 13 2006, 09:13 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 13 2006, 08:01 PM)

So is this transcript publicly available?

You'll notice my smiley after I said that? There were several of us watching this together, and for the section I missed while on the phone, I was able to go back through what the people I was watching this with said was being said. Make sense? That was the transcript that I was referring to. I did save that 20 page record of what was said among all of us watching, but I don't think I would consider that the type of transcript you are talking of. Now, if someone was able to tape this program, it would be better to watch it as there is nothing like first hand expirience.

p.s. my guess is it will be on again....

Posted by: PaperTigers Aug 13 2006, 09:34 PM

i'm upset that i missed the part about him taking a "vacation" "absence" whatever it was that was said

---

Posted by: princessdi Aug 13 2006, 09:48 PM

It was slid in there at the very beginning of the second hour. Not really represented like a vacation, but something akin to the "self imposed" leave that Jimmy Swaggart took to reconsecrate and get in touch with what God wants for he and Brandy. He didn't really push it as a vacation, even though he called it that at least once. I think they really wanted people to think of them as vicitms who could not even minister in peace, and had to get away to escape all of these attacks. Maybe even with a little martydom thrown in for distances himself from 3ABN so they will no longer be under attack because of him.

> QUOTE(PaperTigers @ Aug 13 2006, 07:34 PM)
>
> i'm upset that i missed the part about him taking a "vacation" "absence" whatever it was that was said

---

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 13 2006, 09:51 PM

I don't watch 3ABN at all so I can honestly say that I won't be seeing this program.
Did he say how long he would be gone....

Posted by: princessdi Aug 13 2006, 09:52 PM

Didn't mention "going" anywhere. Just trying to calssify the time taken in some way.

> QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 13 2006, 07:51 PM)
>
> What was it that was said about a vacation. Is he leaving to go somewhere?
> I don't watch 3ABN at all so I can honestly say that I won't be seeing this program. Did he say how long he would be gone....

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 13 2006, 09:56 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 13 2006, 08:51 PM)

I don't watch 3ABN at all so I can honestly say that I won't be seeing this program.
Did he say how long he would be gone....

I don't watch it either, only online today as there was a group of us that wanted to hear this for ourselves. That being said, I missed the time frame - my understanding was 3 monthes, but someone else can confirm this

Posted by: princessdi Aug 13 2006, 10:14 PM

Actually what Danny said was, "a few weeks, a month or two". I took that to mean the time is yet un specified. Vacations you plan for, make arrangements, etc.

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 13 2006, 08:56 PM)

I don't watch it either, only online today as there was a group of us that wanted to hear this for ourselves. That being said, I missed the time frame - my understanding was 3 monthes, but someone else can confirm this

Posted by: inga Aug 13 2006, 11:59 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 13 2006, 11:14 PM)

Actually what Danny said was, "a few weeks, a month or two". I took that to mean the time is yet un specified. Vacations you plan for, make arrangements, etc.

That's a good observation, PrincessDi.

Some originally reported "three months."

Can anyone verify that the words "three months" were actually said in the original broadcast? (It's possible that today's version was altered.)

Posted by: Clay Aug 14 2006, 05:17 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Aug 13 2006, 11:59 PM)

That's a good observation, PrincessDi.

Some originally reported "three months."

Can anyone verify that the words "three months" were actually said in the original broadcast? (It's possible that today's version was altered.)

I watched a tidbit, saw John L.'s sermon if you want to call it that.... IMO John L has become nothing more than a pulpit prostitute and Mr. Shelton would be his ummmmm manager (read pimp). While I am no prophet, I believe they have stopped doing the Lord's work some time ago.... btjm

---

Posted by: watchbird Aug 14 2006, 05:44 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 14 2006, 05:17 AM)

I watched a tidbit, saw John L.'s sermon if you want to call it that.... IMO John L has become nothing more than a pulpit prostitute and Mr. Shelton would be his ummmmm manager (read pimp). While I am no prophet, I believe they have stopped doing the Lord's work some time ago.... btjm

You shoulda caught Shelly's "tidbits and sermon"..... that's where the applications and implications and just plain heretical doctrines were displayed in all their marvelous technicolor spinning.....

And the beat goes on..... b

Posted by: summertime Aug 14 2006, 07:49 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 14 2006, 05:44 AM)

You shoulda caught Shelly's "tidbits and sermon"..... that's where the applications and implications and just plain heretical doctrines were displayed in all their marvelous technicolor spinning.....

And the beat goes on..... b

Are we talking about the 'John the Baptist' tidbit and sermon or was there more that could be posted here for those of us who missed it?

Posted by: watchbird Aug 14 2006, 08:15 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Aug 14 2006, 07:49 AM)

Are we talking about the 'John the Baptist' tidbit and sermon or was there more that could be posted here for those of us who missed it?

Well, John the Baptist was the main part of the sermon. What I meant by "tidbit" was the little speech she made when she talked about the "prayer cards".

Having been involved with what Adventists called the "Spiritual Warfare and Deliverance Ministry" at one time, and having researched that down to the aberrant doctrinal underpinnings, I am very sensitized to the false teachings on prayer that have entered our church from the Pentecostals, with Roger Morneau being one of the doorways through which it entered. So the fact that they were using his book as the giveaway book of the evening was red flag enough to me, but then when Shelly started talking about the importance of what she called "Intercessory Prayer" ... I started taking notes.

And sure enough, there was the link to the concept of us "being like Christ in this world" ... including his mediatorial role, which she more than merely alluded to, as she was explaining her initial statement that "our greatest calling is to Intercessory Prayer." And after speaking of Jesus role of a mediator who was "praying for us", she went on to describe in characteristic Pentecostal terms, how God has "put self-imposed handcuffs on himself" so that he does not act except in answer to our prayers, and that "Intercessory Prayer is the 'key' that unlocks these handcuffs". (Phrases in quotes above are direct quotes as I wrote them down in my notes.)

She went on to speak of how when we commune with God, we become one with God ... and given the things that have been said by various ones in this 3ABN Pentecostal group, as well as the immediate context, which I unfortunately didn't get written out, this had the distinct impression of going well beyond the becoming one with God in our motives, actions, etc. and giving a mystical "oneness" that smacks of some of the old gnostic teachings (and is prevelant in some Christian circles even today).

With Shelly being the "heir apparent" to the throne ... at least so far as preachers are concerned ... this seems to me of vital importance to those who are considering who should stay and who should go .... if we ever do get to the "housecleaning" stage. This is why, if anyone has a sound recording and can make a written transcription, I would appreciate it greatly.

Posted by: västergötland Aug 14 2006, 08:47 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 14 2006, 03:15 PM)

Having been involved with what Adventists called the "Spiritual Warfare and Deliverance Ministry" at one time, and having researched that down to the aberrant doctrinal underpinnings, I am very sensitized to the false teachings on prayer that have entered our church from the Pentecostals, with Roger Morneau being one of the doorways through which it entered. So the fact that they were using his book as the giveaway book of the evening was red flag enough to me, but then when Shelly started talking about the importance of what she called "Intercessory Prayer" ... I started taking notes.

Could you explain more on this. Why is the kind of prayer Morneau wrote about a red flag?

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 08:57 AM

Now, Watchbird is right about being sensitive to the "penecostal" influences. She pointed out several things as we were watching. I have no such senstivity or even that I agree with the premise, and I see a future opportunity for a "spirited" discussion , but I disgress. However, I don't think the story of John the Baptist in modern terms was just to get the audiences attention. I know many a speaker who do this quite well. Shelly had an agenda. For those who are aware al that was missing was the names.....to protect the.....innocent.....or is it the guilty? Danny as John The Baptist? Help us!

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 14 2006, 06:15 AM)

Well, John the Baptist was the main part of the sermon. What I meant by "tidbit" was the little speech she made when she talked about the "prayer cards".

Having been involved with what Adventists called the "Spiritual Warfare and Deliverance Ministry" at one time, and having researched that down to the aberrant doctrinal underpinnings, I am very sensitized to the false teachings on prayer that have entered our church from the Pentecostals, with Roger Morneau being one of the doorways through which it entered. So the fact that they were using his book as the giveaway book of the evening was red flag enough to me, but then when Shelly started talking about the importance of what she called "Intercessory Prayer" ... I started taking notes.

And sure enough, there was the link to the concept of us "being like Christ in this world" ... including his mediatorial role, which she more than merely alluded to, as she was explaining her initial statement that "our greatest calling is to Intercessory Prayer." And after speaking of Jesus role of a mediator who was "praying for us", she went on to describe in characteristic Pentecostal terms, how God has "put self-imposed handcuffs on himself" so that he does not act except in answer to our prayers, and that "Intercessory Prayer is the 'key' that unlocks these handcuffs". (Phrases in quotes above are direct quotes as I wrote them down in my notes.)

She went on to speak of how when we commune with God, we become one with God ... and given the things that have been said by various ones in this 3ABN Pentecostal group, as well as the immediate context, which I unfortunately didn't get written out, this had the distinct impression of going well beyond the becoming one with God in our motives, actions, etc. and giving a mystical "oneness" that smacks of some of the old gnostic teachings (and is prevelant in some Christian circles even today).

With Shelly being the "heir apparent" to the throne ... at least so far as preachers are concerned ... this seems to me of vital importance to those who are considering who should stay and who should go .... if we ever do get to the "housecleaning" stage. This is why, if anyone has a sound recording and can make a written transcription, I would appreciate it greatly.

Posted by: lurker Aug 14 2006, 09:09 AM

This was posted on the maritime forumin two different posts:
Repeatedly throughout the two hours of 3ABN Today Live, the idea was expressed that we do not need to respond to lies and accusations that people hurl against us. The battle is the Lord's, and we should let Him take care of it.

And yet Shelley had these words to say in the second hour:

Quote:

"As a faithful witness for God, he spoke out against a couple who had entered into a sinful relationship. Now the woman entangled in this situation became offended. She was embittered, and she felt scorned. And you know, there's something about her, that she was unconcerned about her relationship in the eyes of the Lord. Her worry revolved more around the possibility of losing her prominent position. So what did she do? She devised a plan to eliminate this one who had exposed her, and she enlisted the help of her young daughter. Now prompted by her mother, this daughter became entangled in the web of deceit, and she set out to set her mother's position and save it by destroying this man of God. What we see here is that the scheme was to go forward and go straight for the throat and have his head served up on a platter. Does this story sound familiar to you? To whom am I referring? John the Baptist, of course. ..."

"Now her mother's using her as a pawn. ..."

"Now how could such a holy, Spirit-filled man, who was hand-picked by God, and called to such an important ministry, fall victim to such vile persecution? Why would God allow it?" (Shelley Quinn on 3ABN Today Live, 2nd hour, replayed at 4pm CDT, Sunday, August 13, 2006)

What was she really getting at?

So it is quite clear that John's sermon about Moses was all about Danny, since he indicated as such. Thus, we would be overly naive if we didn't also conclude that Shelley's sermon was also about Danny.

That being so, one would naturally conclude that the couple involved in the sinful relationship was Linda Shelton and the Norwegian doctor, and that Danny was the one who condemned that relationship.

Thus we haye here Linda being offended because her important position at 3ABN was threatened, and she has been embittered instead of being concerned about her relationship with the Lord.

And now Linda's daughter is involved in the web of deceit as both Linda and she go straight for Danny's throat.

Am I reading too much into it?

Posted by: watchbird Aug 14 2006, 09:17 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Aug 14 2006, 08:47 AM)

Could you explain more on this. Why is the kind of prayer Morneau wrote about a red flag?

That is not exactly what I said....or at least it wasn't what I meant to say. What I meant was that I since I knew the kinds of things that Morneau wrote about prayer .... and knew that there were many of them with which I disagreed .... then the fact that they were giving away that book indicated to me (waved a red flag) as to what kinds of things they believed about prayer.

But to discuss all of those would take a lot more time than I have available at the moment. Probably the best I can do for now is to point you to the pages on the SDAnet/At Issue website, one on the topic of http://sdanet.org/atissue/prayer/index.htm and the other on the topic called http://sdanet.org/atissue/prayer/index.htm, which presents some material, including a couple book recommendations, on the related topics of prayer, the casting out of demons, and the differences between these beliefs and practices as presented in scripture and as held by some Pentecostals.... including some Adventists.

Since the Pentecostal version of all of these concepts, and more, seem to be held in by those directing 3ABN, reading these materials would be good background for understanding some of the sometimes mystifying things we are hearing coming from 3ABN persons ... both Adventist and non-Adventist.

Posted by: justme Aug 14 2006, 09:23 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Aug 14 2006, 11:09 AM)

This was posted on the maritime forumin two different posts:
Repeatedly throughout the two hours of 3ABN Today Live, the idea was expressed that we do not need to respond to lies and accusations that people hurl against us. The battle is the Lord's, and we should let Him take care of it.

And yet Shelley had these words to say in the second hour:
Quote:

"As a faithful witness for God, he spoke out against a couple who had entered into a sinful relationship. Now the woman entangled in this situation became offended. She was embittered, and she felt scorned. And you know, there's something about her, that she was unconcerned about her relationship in the eyes of the Lord. Her worry revolved more around the possibility of losing her prominent position. So what did she do? She devised a plan to eliminate this one who had exposed her, and she enlisted the help of her young daughter. Now prompted by her mother, this daughter became entangled in the web of deceit, and she set out to set her mother's position and save it by destroying this man of God. What we see here is that the scheme was to go forward and go straight for the throat and have his head served up on a platter. Does this story sound familiar to you? To whom am I referring? John the Baptist, of course. ..."

"Now her mother's using her as a pawn. ..."

"Now how could such a holy, Spirit-filled man, who was hand-picked by God, and called to such an important ministry, fall victim to such vile persecution? Why would God allow it?" (Shelley Quinn on 3ABN Today Live, 2nd hour, replayed at 4pm CDT, Sunday, August 13, 2006)

What was she really getting at?
So it is quite clear that John's sermon about Moses was all about Danny, since he indicated as such. Thus, we would be overly naive if we didn't also conclude that Shelley's sermon was also about Danny.
:scratchchin:

That being so, one would naturally conclude that the couple involved in the sinful relationship was Linda Shelton and the Norwegian doctor, and that Danny was the one who condemned that relationship.

Thus we have here Linda being offended because her important position at 3ABN was threatened, and she has been embittered instead of being concerned about her relationship with the Lord.

And now Linda's daughter is involved in the web of deceit as both Linda and Alyssa go straight for Danny's throat.

Am I reading too much into it?

AS I recall, in the Old Teasament there once was a man of God (Samuel?) who had a problem he couldn't solve, so he listened to "Soothe-Sayer", or "Supernatural Resource" , a.k.a. "witch". To whom does "this chosen one" listen most for his advice, his praises, his ego needs, .. is it MS, or SQ, or ... who fits the description of the one who gives "The Chosen One" his "supernatural" marching orders?

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 09:24 AM

As Re' was say, You "dead on pernt". See how the story has bee twisted ever so slightly in that the actual Herodias wanted John the Baptist dead. Also, there was never any deciet, John told the truth and Herodias wanted him dead for it. Salome did not deceive Herod. Her and her mother merely took advantage of an opportunity. Herod was busy lusting after his step-daughter and asked the girl to dance(maybe this portion of the story instead more closely follows current events, Shelly may have been concentrating on the wrong part of the story) Offering her up to half of his kingdom. Anyway, You got it!!! 1,000 pts for you Lurker!!! Ooops!!! wrong thread!!!!

QUOTE(lurker @ Aug 14 2006, 07:09 AM)

This was posted on the maritime forumin two different posts:
Repeatedly throughout the two hours of 3ABN Today Live, the idea was expressed that we do not need to respond to lies and accusations that people hurl against us. The battle is the Lord's, and we should let Him take care of it.

And yet Shelley had these words to say in the second hour:
Quote:

"As a faithful witness for God, he spoke out against a couple who had entered into a sinful relationship. Now the woman entangled in this situation became offended. She was embittered, and she felt scorned. And you know, there's something about her, that she was unconcerned about her relationship in the eyes of the Lord. Her worry revolved more around the possibility of losing her prominent position. So what did she do? She devised a plan to eliminate this one who had exposed her, and she enlisted the help of her young daughter. Now prompted by her mother, this daughter became entangled in the web of deceit, and she set out to set her mother's position and save it by destroying this man of God. What we see here is that the scheme was to go forward and go straight for the throat and have his head served up on a platter. Does this story sound familiar to you? To whom am I referring? John the Baptist, of course. ..."

"Now her mother's using her as a pawn. ..."

"Now how could such a holy, Spirit-filled man, who was hand-picked by God, and called to such an important ministry, fall victim to such vile persecution? Why would God allow it?" (Shelley Quinn on 3ABN Today Live, 2nd hour, replayed at 4pm CDT, Sunday, August 13, 2006)

What was she really getting at?
So it is quite clear that John's sermon about Moses was all about Danny, since he indicated as such. Thus, we would be overly naive if we didn't also conclude that Shelley's sermon was also about Danny.

That being so, one would naturally conclude that the couple involved in the sinful relationship was Linda Shelton and the Norwegian doctor, and that Danny was the one who condemned that relationship.

Thus we have here Linda being offended because her important position at 3ABN was threatened, and she has been embittered instead of being concerned about her relationship with the Lord.

And now Linda's daughter Alyssa is involved in the web of deceit as both Linda and Alyssa go straight for Danny's throat.

Am I reading too much into it?

Posted by: watchbird Aug 14 2006, 09:26 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 14 2006, 08:57 AM)

Now, Watchbird is right about being sensitive to the "penecostal" influences. She pointed out several things as we were watching. I have no such senstivity or even that I agree with the premise, and I see a future opportunity for a "spirited" discussion , but I disgress. However, I don't think the story of John the Baptist in modern terms was just to get the audiences attention. I know many a speaker who do this quite well. Shelly had an agenda. For those who are aware al that was missing was the names.....to protect the.....innocent.....or is it the guilty? Danny as John The Baptist? Help us!

Yes indeed. And this is the main thing we should get from this ...and I think it was exactly what Danny wanted us to get from it.

My additional point is that we can understand much more clearly exactly what she was saying and why she was saying it if we understand her terms in their Pentecostal meanings rather than depending on our Adventist use of the terms. "Anointing" for example, has quite a different meaning in Pentecostal circles than it does in mainstream Adventism. Again, I'll refer you to the urls I gave in my previous post as ones that will help you learn the difference in as brief a time as possible.

Posted by: Denny Aug 14 2006, 09:30 AM

Its a pity in their haste to gag Linda they did not gag themselves

---

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 10:18 AM

Ahhhh Gotcha' Watchbird. You are correct in your example. Might this be even an attempt to "attract" more than Adventist, say the TBN crowd, which, BTW, tend to be more "giving". It might make sense, if trouble is a brewin' as it is on the SDA front. Say GC gets it together and starts to air it's own programming on HopeTVand convinces Amazing Facts, etc to do the same.

> QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 14 2006, 08:26 AM)
>
> Yes indeed. And this is the main thing we should get from this ...and I think it was exactly what Danny wanted us to get from it.
>
> My additional point is that we can understand much more clearly exactly what she was saying and why she was saying it if we understand her terms in their Pentecostal meanings rather than depending on our Adventist use of the terms. "Anointing" for example, has quite a different meaning in Pentecostal circles than it does in mainstream Adventism. Again, I'll refer you to the urls I gave in my previous post as ones that will help you learn the difference in as brief a time as possible.

Posted by: Hersheys99 Aug 14 2006, 11:00 AM

> QUOTE
>
> Its a pity in their haste to gag Linda they did not gag themselves :thumbdown:

Right on Denny!!

Posted by: calvin Aug 14 2006, 11:16 AM

I hope we are not over analyzing this program, reading more into it than what is there and creating our own feeding frizzy. We seem to be attaching some external motive behind nearly every phrase that was said. Maybe he is tired, wants some rest, spend some quality time with his new wife. As they say, "sometimes a cigar is just a cigar".

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 14 2006, 11:21 AM

> QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 14 2006, 10:16 AM)

I hope we are not over analyzing this program, reading more into it than what is there and creating our own feeding frizzy. We seem to be attaching some external motive behind nearly every phrase that was said. Maybe he is tired, wants some rest, spend some quality time with his new wife. As they say, "sometimes a cigar is just a cigar".

That IS a possibility Calvin, except for the fact that it just so happens that last week the command was given to "get the mess straightened out down there" or it will be done by someone else (I won't give names). So, I know this has every thing to do with that. It is my gut belief that this is part of their strategy to "fix" the mess they are in. I just hope that all parties that should now be involved ARE getting in and getting it taken care of.

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 12:59 PM

Yeah I would say that, also, Calvin, but then the story about Herodias and Salome make no sense, and JL's sermon about the ungrateful COI giving Moses a hard time. Also, he really could have just said, "You know when Brandy and I got married, it wasn't a good time for a decent honeymoon or time alone, so we are taking it now",a nd people would have really understood that. There were too many qualifiers, and he didn't phrase it like a vacation. Like I said it was phrased something akin to Jimmy Swaggart self imposed censure. Spending the time listening to the Lord, etc.

You maybe right, but with their forces gathered, and the sermon's to bolster a discouraged Danny, I think for those to which they meant, clear messages were sent. Men are not usualy sensitive to subtlities of this sort. Just as an example: My Mom had a foster daughter, we will call Jane. Jane had a falling out one day with one of other girl cousins in the family, we will call Sally. Now what Jane did to get get back at Sally, was to start talking to the other kids about something that was happeneing in our family the next day, but that sally would not be able to attend. As Jane talked she also lead the kids out of the room they were in, into the hallway area. Now she continued this with several topics in which Sally could not take part. The results, Sally came into the living and told ther aunt that Jane and the other kids didn't like her, which was Jane's planned message for Sally. Sally got Jane's message loud and clear, but to the other kids, they were just talking about all the fun they were going to have and they never even noticed Sally was left out.

Sometimes, it is only meant to look like a cigar to those who were not meant to get the message. There are plenty here for whom that message was meant. Kind of a passive-aggressive thing. The offender appears competely innocent, while dropping emotional bombs the size of Hiroshima.

QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 14 2006, 10:16 AM)

I hope we are not over analyzing this program, reading more into it than what is there and creating our own feeding frizzy. We seem to be attaching some external motive behind nearly every phrase that was said. Maybe he is tired, wants some rest, spend some quality time with his new wife. As they say, "sometimes a cigar is just a cigar".

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 14 2006, 01:07 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 14 2006, 11:59 AM)

....You maybe right, but with their forces gathered, and the sermon's to bolster a discouraged Danny, I think for those to which they meant, clear messages were sent.....
Sometimes, it is only meant to look like a cigar to those who were not meant to get the message. There are plenty here for whom that message was meant. Kind of a passive-aggressive thing. The offender appears competely innocent, while dropping emotional bombs the size of Hiroshima.

You said it very well Di. Thank you

Posted by: Clay Aug 14 2006, 01:53 PM

If they wanted to try to compare Danny to someone, they should have used Joseph the husband of Mary...

Remember this (emphasis mine):

QUOTE

Mat 1:18-20 The birth of Jesus Christ took place in this way. His mother Mary had been promised to Joseph in marriage. But before they were married, Mary realized that she was pregnant by the Holy Spirit. (19) Her husband Joseph was an honorable man and did not want to disgrace her publicly. So he decided to break the marriage agreement with her secretly. (20) Joseph had this in mind when an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream. The angel said to him, "Joseph, descendant of David, don't be afraid to take Mary as your wife. She is pregnant by the Holy Spirit.

Joseph being an honorable man, had JUST cause to call off the marriage because she was pregnant, but he did NOT want to EMBARRASS her so he was going to do it secretly..... while contemplating how he was going to do that, the angel appeared to him in a dream....

Now compare that with what Mr. Shelton did.... While John L is comparing him to Moses, its clear that he cannot even be compared with Joseph, the husband of Mary, earthly father of Jesus... an honorable man..... nuff said....

Posted by: Freedom Aug 14 2006, 07:37 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 14 2006, 11:59 AM)

Yeah I would say that, also, Calvin, but then the story about Herodias and Salome make no sense, and JL's sermon about the ungrateful COI giving Moses a hard time. Also, he really could have just said, "You know when Brandy and I got married, it wasn't a good time for a decent honeymoon or time alone, so we are taking it now",a nd people would have really understood that. There were too many qualifiers, and he didn't phrase it like a vacation. Like I said it was phrased something akin to Jimmy Swaggart self imposed censure. Spending the time listening to the Lord, etc.

You maybe right, but with their forces gathered, and the sermon's to bolster a discouraged Danny, I think for those to which they meant, clear messages were sent. Men are not usualy sensitive to subtlities of this sort. Just as an example: My Mom had a foster daughter, we will call Jane. Jane had a falling out one day with one of other girl cousins in the family, we will call Sally. Now what Jane did to get get back at Sally, was to start talking to the other kids about something that was happeneing in our family the next day, but that sally would not be able to attend. As Jane talked she also lead the kids out of the room they were in, into the hallway area. Now she continued this with several topics in which Sally could not take part. The results, Sally came into the living and told ther aunt that Jane and the other kids didn't like her, which was Jane's planned message for Sally. Sally got Jane's message loud and clear, but to the other kids, they were just talking about all the fun they were going to have and they never even noticed Sally was left out.

Sometimes, it is only meant to look like a cigar to those who were not meant to get the message. There are plenty here for whom that message was meant. Kind of a passive-aggressive thing. The offender appears competely innocent, while dropping emotional bombs the size of Hiroshima.

Danny did take personal time off in the end of April. They went to Florida. And this wasn't for surgery or recovering from knee surgery.

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 08:00 PM

Ok, but the point is he didn't describe this time off as a vacation, not by activity, and barely by name.

QUOTE(Freedom @ Aug 14 2006, 06:37 PM)

Danny did take personal time off in the end of April. They went to Florida. And this wasn't for surgery or recovering from knee surgery.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 14 2006, 09:01 PM

This reminds me of the time that Linda was taking "some time off."

Posted by: princessdi Aug 14 2006, 09:28 PM

.....flesh and blood did not give this to you.....

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 14 2006, 08:01 PM)

This reminds me of the time that Linda was taking "some time off."

Posted by: Jvat Aug 14 2006, 09:29 PM

Did Linda take some time off?

Posted by: awesumtenor Aug 14 2006, 10:05 PM

QUOTE(Jvat @ Aug 14 2006, 10:29 PM)

Did Linda take some time off?

That was the original story for her absence prior to their firing her, I believe...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Aug 15 2006, 02:37 AM

For those who still haven't seen for themselves the broadcast we are talking about here .... you have another chance this morning, August 15.

Times given are USA Central Standard Time.

8:00 AM 3ABN Today LIVE - 1st Hour The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelley Quin, Walter Thompson
9:00 AM 3ABN Today LIVE - 2nd Hour The Battle Is The Lord's / Danny Shelton *, John Lomacang, Mollie Steinson, Moses Primo, Shelly Quin, Walter Thompson

Posted by: summertime Aug 15 2006, 06:45 AM

QUOTE(Freedom @ Aug 14 2006, 07:37 PM)

Danny did take personal time off in the end of April. They went to Florida. And this wasn't for surgery or recovering from knee surgery.

Apparently Brandy came from the State of Florida---was her older child there with her father, and could Brandy have been visiting her parents?. We do not hear mnuch about Brandy's parents. I assume she has a Mother and Father and if they went to Florida maybe they went to visit her family. Also, does the youngest girl have a father who might live in Florida. I assume if she does have a father there she would want to visit him on occasion.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 15 2006, 07:08 AM

It looks like they are repeating that program right now!

Posted by: msraccoon Aug 15 2006, 04:17 PM

Well, I watched this 2 hour whatever Sunday, and it was hard to do.

My history of 3ABN is that I viewed it for years on SkyAngel. I used to TAPE it so I could fast forward thru Danny's incessant, pompous babbling. I always hoped that Linda could shut him up and keep him from hogging the conversation with guests like Doug Batchelor.

Needless to say, I gave up and quit watching long before Linda was booted out. My 6th sense told me something was very wrong with Danny. I had a neighbor come in and notice Danny on TV once. She told me he was crazy and why was I watching.

So this was the first time I have seen Brandi the wallflower. Yes, what is she doing on the set? She is no Linda. I could hardly take her presence, little as it was.

Dr Thompson, so hesitant in his speech, still comes across as Danny's puppet.
Mollie's segment put me to sleep (really).

I have much more on my mind but enough for now.

msraccoon

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 15 2006, 04:51 PM

QUOTE(msraccoon @ Aug 15 2006, 03:17 PM)

My history of 3ABN is that I viewed it for years on SkyAngel. I used to TAPE it so I could fast forward thru Danny's incessant, pompous babbling. I always hoped that Linda could shut him up and keep him from hogging the conversation with guests like Doug Batchelor.
Needless to say, I gave up and quit watching long before Linda was booted out. My 6th sense told me something was very wrong with Danny. I had a neighbor come in and notice Danny on TV once. She told me he was crazy and why was I watching.

msraccoon

I feel your pain and suffering...what you stated here has always been my feeling too. I am in recovery now as I have discovered I have not been the only one....makes me wonder just how many of us there are that have always felt this way....when I told Linda this is how I felt, I felt a bit bad inside, two reasons - not a nice thing to hear about your husband, and the other reason was maybe it was ME? I think not. Actually, I know not. Somes gots it, somes don't.

Posted by: Johann Aug 16 2006, 05:15 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 16 2006, 12:51 AM)

I feel your pain and suffering...what you stated here has always been my feeling too. I am in recovery now as I have discovered I have not been the only one....makes me wonder just how many of us there are that have always felt this way....when I told Linda this is how I felt, I felt a bit bad inside, two reasons - not a nice thing to hear about your husband, and the other reason was maybe it was ME? I think not. Actually, I know not. Somes gots it, somes don't.

People, let's not complaimn too much. We have all reason to rejoice!

Today I talked to an editor I sold a dish to so that he could watch 3ABN - about 3 years ago. He told me how much he'd appreciated the programs then, until Linda disappeared.

- Now 3ABN is not worth the time it takes to watch it, he told me, except for a few of the music programs which my wife enjoys. But I am so happy I can get HOPE with the same equipent.

So let's not despair, but rather turn to HOPE! Let everybody know there is HOPE. Therefore we no longer need 3ABN!

Posted by: Lucyladye Aug 16 2006, 05:40 PM

I do not have access to HOPE TV or 3ABN except through Internet...and am thankful I have the choice of HOPE. Some of these people who side with Danny don't know half of what they think they know if they are continuously surprised at what they are learning.

Posted by: Ralph Aug 17 2006, 10:03 PM

QUOTE(Lucyladye @ Aug 16 2006, 04:40 PM)

...Some of these people who side with Danny don't know half of what they think they know if they are continuously surprised at what they are learning.

What does Danny have that I don't see? I could be duped into falling for something that John Lomacang or Shelly Quinn said -- but Danny? -- I don't think so. And yet he has a lot of seemingly intellignet people who apparently believe his every word. What am I missing? any-

---

Posted by: Clay Aug 18 2006, 01:01 AM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Aug 17 2006, 11:03 PM)

What does Danny have that I don't see? I could be duped into falling for something that John Lomacang or Shelly Quinn said -- but Danny? -- I don't think so. And yet he has a lot of seemingly intellignet people who apparently believe his every word. What am I missing? any-that is our curse as humans.... every since Eve was deceived by that serpent, we humans are quite gullible, easily duped, readily believing that we can get something for nothing, which is why people continue to get conned out of their money...

Posted by: Jvat Aug 18 2006, 09:15 AM

Ralph, apparently Danny is just blessed with the gift of the garb. And some people, lots apparently, may be taken in by that.

Posted by: SandyColorado Aug 18 2006, 12:42 PM

I do want to make a comment about Danny taking a vacation. He mentioned one time several years ago that him and Linda had never had a real vacation. I remember my husband and I thinking that was terrible that they hadn't taken time to get away - just the two of them.

Guess things will be different with Brandy now. She must be worth taking a vacation with...

Posted by: Clay Aug 18 2006, 12:46 PM

QUOTE(SandyColorado @ Aug 18 2006, 01:42 PM)

I do want to make a comment about Danny taking a vacation. He mentioned one time several years ago that him and Linda had never had a real vacation. I remember my husband and I thinking that was terrible that they hadn't taken time to get away - just the two of them.

Guess things will be different with Brandy now. She must be worth taking a vacation with...

yeah.... maybe... if that's what it is.... it could be a war counsel.... I think they said they were at war... or something like that....

Posted by: Chez Aug 18 2006, 09:05 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Aug 17 2006, 11:03 PM)

And yet he has a lot of seemingly intellignet people who apparently believe his every word. What am I missing?

So did David Koresh.

Posted by: Ralph Aug 18 2006, 11:38 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 18 2006, 11:46 AM)

yeah.... maybe... if that's what it is.... it could be a war counsel.... I think they said they were at war... or something like that....

You may be right. I'll have to listen to what they said again. But surely you can't fool all the people all of the time. There appear to be some pretty big names backing him. There's gotta be something keeping them loyal. Money? Seeking high position? Fear? Ignorance? -- I want to believe that our church leaders are men of integrity.

QUOTE(Chez @ Aug 18 2006, 08:05 PM)

So did David Koresh.

Chez, that scares me.

Posted by: Clay Aug 18 2006, 11:47 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Aug 19 2006, 12:38 AM)

You may be right. I'll have to listen to what they said again. But surely you can't fool all the people all of the time. There appear to be some pretty big names backing him. There's gotta be something keeping them loyal. Money? Seeking high position? Fear? Ignorance? -- I want to believe that our church leaders are men of integrity.
Chez, that scares me.

wasn't it you that brought up the issue of gullibility? that's all I am saying... the leaders may be men of integrity.... then again they may not be... they may be gullible..... very gullible....

Posted by: BrotherBill Aug 19 2006, 08:55 AM

QUOTE(msraccoon @ Aug 15 2006, 05:17 PM)

My history of 3ABN is that I viewed it for years on SkyAngel. I used to TAPE it so I could fast forward thru Danny's incessant, pompous babbling. I always hoped that Linda could shut him up and keep him from hogging the conversation with guests like Doug Batchelor.

Needless to say, I gave up and quit watching long before Linda was booted out. My 6th sense told me something was very wrong with Danny. I had a neighbor come in and notice Danny on TV once. She told me he was crazy and why was I watching.

msraccoon

I could not agree with your post more. First, NO ONE shuts Danny up. He just is a talking machine, and that is so frustrating, particularly when there is a much more powerful Christian witness there like Doug Batchelor who could be doing the talking.

What frustrated me probably more than anything were the campmeetings when you had all these outstanding Speakers and Singers available, but then Danny would give the sermon, and his family would do most of the singing. What's with that?

Posted by: summertime Aug 19 2006, 01:22 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 18 2006, 01:01 AM)

that is our curse as humans.... every since Eve was deceived by that serpent, we humans are quite gullible, easily duped, readily believing that we can get something for nothing, which is why people continue to get conned out of their money...

Or we hear him say that he was spoken to by God, and that makes us sit up and take notice. Until now---we know better

---

Posted by: Johann Sep 12 2006, 04:10 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 14 2006, 09:53 PM)

If they wanted to try to compare Danny to someone, they should have used Joseph the husband of Mary...

Remember this (emphasis mine):
Joseph being an honorable man, had JUST cause to call off the marriage because she was pregnant, but he did NOT want to EMBARRASS her so he was going to do it secretly..... while contemplating how he was going to do that, the angel appeared to him in a dream....

Now compare that with what Mr. Shelton did.... While John L is comparing him to Moses, its clear that he cannot even be compared with Joseph, the husband of Mary, earthly father of Jesus... an honorable man..... nuff said....

I reminded the administration of 3ABN of the story of Joseph and appealed to them to treat Linda that way too - right at the beginning. They would not listen, because it seemed like they were forced to follow an agenda - to get rid of Linda at all costs.

Here I am referring to a post that is 4 weeks old. Am I disturbing? Seems like I hear the stillnesss that has settled over BSDA - the stillness before the STORM!

Posted by: Freedom Sep 12 2006, 05:01 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 12 2006, 02:10 PM)

> I reminded the administration of 3ABN of the story of Joseph and appealed to them to treat Linda that way too - right at the beginning. They would not listen, because it seemed like they were forced to follow an agenda - to get rid of Linda at all costs.
>
> Here I am referring to a post that is 4 weeks old. Am I disturbing? Seems like I hear the stillnesss that has settled over BSDA - the stillness before the STORM!

rofl rofl rofl

KARBOOM, CRASH, THUNDER

Roll of thunder hear our cries.....

and in the roar of the storm, etc.
Someone in AUTHORITY in the room shouts, ORDER, ORDER in .....

Posted by: justme Sep 13 2006, 09:36 PM

According to a satellite system installer. Sky Angel doesn't miss 3ABN in their lineup. According to the satellite dish installer, "When the founder of Sky Angel, Robert, passed away recently, his children took over the administration of the satellite ministry.. Robert's daughter got 'fed up" with Danny Shelton and his attitudes and "pulled the plug" on 3ABN because it no longer fit their requirements as a Christian Satellite Television Ministry."

Apparently there have been so many questions about Sky Angel that the installers have been on the phone with technical assistance people at Sky Angel to solve technical problems. Of the 10 or so channels that "went down" on the Sky Angel satellite, only two or three could not be "restored", one of them being 3ABN.

Whether 3ABN was gone forever from Sky Angel because of technical; problems or because of Danny Shelton's attitudes is of lesser concern. But it should be of enormous interest to 3ABN that the very satellite system and re-broadcaster that put 3ABN onto the world scene in the very first place, has been taken away from them. 3ABN should consider these circumstances in light of the actions taken by the administrative staff at 3ABN. A good, l o n g look!

Remember that Sky Angel partnered with DISH Network to use the DISH Network satellite receivers and technical support from DISH to make it all happen. Now, of all things, Danny has the nerve to ask us to pressure DISH Network to let 3ABN into the regular DISH Network Programming Lineup. I spoke with Art Sahl about Danny's proposal. Art was very "kind" in his response when he said that DISH is in "negations" with Sky Angel about the situation. He did not say that it would depend upon the viewer's requests. 3ABN has been made Sky Angel look bad, so why would DISH want to carry 3ABN when the viewer ship is dropping off, anyway. Why would DISH want 3ABN programming that may eventually cause viewers to drop the premium DISH channels?

Now it is time for 3ABN to look at Danny and his "advisors", who helped him get into this mess. See if they want more of the same.

Few things have disappointed me as much of the years as seeing what 3ABN has done to itself. It is heartbreaking to see the seeds they have been sowing. Now it's time for the harvest, a very bitter harvest indeed.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 4 2006, 07:25 AM

While the latter posts in this thread veered somewhat from the original topic of the thread, since we are currently addressing the information about Alyssa's statement, it seemed a good idea to bump this up to the front page so it will be handier.... both for comment and for reading the history of our previous comments.

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

160

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ I Will Wait Patiently...

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 18 2006, 10:31 PM

Okay - Okay

I keep reading that we need to wait just a few days for a big revelation at 3ABN.

Well I for one am getting antsy. So what gives? Is it happening or not?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 18 2006, 10:35 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 18 2006, 09:31 PM)

Okay - Okay

I keep reading that we need to wait just a few days for a big revelation at 3ABN.

Well I for one am getting antsy. So what gives? Is it happening or not?

Now HOTY, you know patience is a Virtue? Don't you want to be virtuous?

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 18 2006, 10:41 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 18 2006, 11:35 PM)

Now HOTY, you know patience is a Virtue? Don't you want to be virtuous?

Darn - I know the correct answer - but I just don't wanna!

Posted by: princessdi Sep 18 2006, 10:50 PM

Breathe, HOTY, Breathe....You can do it.....Breathe.....

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 18 2006, 08:41 PM)

Darn - I know the correct answer - but I just don't wanna!

Posted by: västergötland Sep 19 2006, 12:52 AM

Im wondering, if someone prophesies that within so and so many days X is going to happen and then so and so many days goes past and double that and X has still not happened. Then, is the prophet or the prophecy wrong? Would such cast doubt on the prophet when the prophecies do not add up? Does it make a difference what the circumbstances are?

Questions, questions...

Posted by: Johann Sep 19 2006, 06:53 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 19 2006, 08:52 AM)

Im wondering, if someone prophesies that within so and so many days X is going to happen and then so and so many days goes past and double that and X has still not happened. Then, is the prophet or the prophecy wrong? Would such cast doubt on the prophet when the prophecies do not add up? Does it make a difference what the circumbstances are?

Questions, questions...

I merely get a glimpse of what is going on, watching through a slit from the outside. I now see a delay, partly due to technical problems. . .

Posted by: justme Sep 19 2006, 07:55 AM

If it happens too soon will it affect the meeting at PMC?

Do they stilll need 3ABN to finish taping and broadcasting the "Most Amazing Prophecies"?

Posted by: Freedom Sep 19 2006, 07:59 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 19 2006, 05:53 AM)

I merely get a glimpse of what is going on, watching through a slit from the outside. I now see a delay, partly due to technical problems. . .

And those technical problems are?

Posted by: Johann Sep 19 2006, 08:01 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 19 2006, 03:55 PM)

If it happens too soon will it affect the meeting at PMC?

Do they stilll need 3ABN to finish taping and broadcasting the "Most Amazing Prophecies"?

All of the equipment and staff are still there. One person is not indispensable.

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 19 2006, 08:31 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 19 2006, 11:01 AM)

All of the equipment and staff are still there. One person is not indispensable.

so true, Johann...God's work WILL continue with or without 3ABN. There is no denying that 3ABN is a great avenue for reaching souls with the Gospel of Jesus Christ...but it is not the only vehicle that can be used for this purpose.

I know that here in the Virgin Islands, the church members are blissfully unaware of all the "behind the scenes" goings on at 3ABN. They knew Dan and Linda had split up...and they now know that he has married a much younger wife...but I'm not sure that they are aware of the "spiritual adultery" reason that has been offered as the motive for the break between Danny and Linda. The rumor here was that Linda left Danny and ran off with someone. I don't know how it got started or how it made its way to the Virgin Islands...but the brethren here are still watching and financially supporting 3ABN.

3ABN is very, very popular here. Both local cable systems in the VI are carrying 3ABN, and a local Christian radio station (owned by an Adventist) is a 3ABN radio affiliate. I have personally received calls in the media ministry department of my church from non-SDAs who, after watching various programs on the network, are interested in further study and materials...but that doesn't negate the fact that the house of 3ABN needs to be put in order.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 19 2006, 09:12 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 19 2006, 08:31 AM)

so true, Johann...God's work WILL continue with or without 3ABN. There is no denying that 3ABN is a great avenue for reaching souls with the Gospel of Jesus Christ...but it is not the only vehicle that can be used for this purpose.

I know that here in the Virgin Islands, the church members are blissfully unaware of all the "behind the scenes" goings on at 3ABN. They knew Dan and Linda had split up...and they now know that he has married a much younger wife...but I'm not sure that they are aware of the "spiritual adultery" reason that has been offered as the motive for the break between Danny and Linda. The rumor here was that Linda left Danny and ran off with someone. I don't know how it got started or how it made its way to the Virgin Islands...but the brethren here are still watching and financially supporting 3ABN.

It got started by the announcements made on the 3ABN website at the time, and explicitly on worldwide TV by Danny himself. Probably a most significant moment came at the June 2004 3ABN Campmeeting when Danny pointed to Johann and Arild in the congregation, calling them "demons", the men who had "stolen my wife from me", and then turned to Mark Finley and asked him to pray that God would bring Linda back to him. We now know, of course, that Linda had not even left Danny at that time..... that she was only not at the campmeeting because Danny had made it very plain that he wanted her to be absent. And we also know that the two men were a very well respected and proper Adventist administrator and doctor, respectively. And that Danny in fact was trying to get rid of Linda and did not even want Mark's prayer to be answered affirmatively. But how could the congregation know that.... either the one physically at the 3ABN Campmeeting or those watching live all around the world. How would ANY of us know the truth had not Johann been willing to stand up.... and keep standing up.... for Linda not only then, but until this very day!

QUOTE

3ABN is very, very popular here. Both local cable systems in the VI are carrying 3ABN, and a local Christian radio station (owned by an Adventist) is a 3ABN radio affiliate. I have personally received calls in the media ministry department of my church from non-SDAs who, after watching various programs on the network, are interested in further study and materials...but that doesn't negate the fact that the house of 3ABN needs to be put in order.

I think you have demonstrated one reason that we have to continue to spread the word of truth about 3ABN so that more may hear things gradually rather than being hit with a larger shock than they can handle. So patience is still the order of the day ... so sorry HOTY .... I also am one who tends to pray the "patience prayer" in terms of "Lord GIVE me PATIENCE.... RIGHT NOW!"

But as we said so often a few months ago and have neglected to reiterate recently .... the wheels of justice grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small. Justice will come. God does rule. There are many aspects to the "grinding process" that we cannot be privy to, nor can we make public all that we know is going on. Our role is to keep spreading the information, a little bit at a time, as people can bear it. When the time is right, God will bring about a more drastic information explosion, and finally an even more action oriented "explosion".

In the meantime, do not weary. We know Whose side we are on. And we know He will not forever allow his name to be "taken in vain" as we have seen it handled at 3ABN ... and not only merely by Danny Shelton.

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 19 2006, 06:53 AM)

I merely get a glimpse of what is going on, watching through a slit from the outside. I now see a delay, partly due to technical problems. . .

QUOTE(Freedom @ Sep 19 2006, 07:59 AM)

And those technical problems are?

Well ..... maybe "technical" wasn't the best choice of words. Not sure how to supply a better word though, without telling Danny too much. So perhaps we should just say once again .... it's a matter of waiting and using the time to develop our patience.

Posted by: messenger Sep 19 2006, 09:54 AM

About patience - here is practical definition:

Patience is accepting a difficult situation without giving God a deadline to remove it.

Yet, the cry from the hearts of many of those who have been wounded and hurt by the 3abn "steamroller" is still, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doest thou not judge....? (see Revelation 6:10).

What an opportunity to join in intercessory prayer for the convicting power of the Holy Spirit as sin, wrong, and injustice are being exposed. Remember, sin is like a cancer...it is not until it is diagnosed that it can be treated. Only when sin and wrong are exposed can Jesus as our Great Physician bring healing. This applies to both individuals, organizations,and movements.
When sin is deliberately hidden and covered up, God cannot be glorified. But when sin is acknowledged, confessed, and repented of - then God can truly be glorified. Isn't this also part of the three angels' messages - Fear God, and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment is come?

Let not anyone proclaiming the "judgment hour message" resist when the judgment comes to their own house.

About patience - here is practical definition:

Patience is accepting a difficult situation without giving God a deadline to remove it.

Yet, the cry from the hearts of many of those who have been wounded and hurt by the 3abn "steamroller" is still, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doest thou not judge....? (see Revelation 6:10).

What an opportunity to join in intercessory prayer for the convicting power of the Holy Spirit as sin, wrong, and injustice are being exposed. Remember, sin is like a cancer...it is not until it is diagnosed that it can be treated. Only when sin and wrong are exposed can Jesus as our Great Physician bring healing. This applies to both individuals, organizations,and movements.
When sin is deliberately hidden and covered up, God cannot be glorified. But when sin is acknowledged, confessed, and repented of - then God can truly be glorified. Isn't this also part of the three angels' messages - Fear God, and give glory to Him, for the hour of His judgment is come?

Let not anyone proclaiming the "judgment hour message" resist when the judgment comes to their own house.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 19 2006, 10:03 AM

Quote for the day: [x]

QUOTE

"In the annals of human history, the growth of nations, the rise and fall of empires, appear as if dependent on the will and prowess of man; the shaping of events seems, to a great degree, to be determined by his power, ambition, or caprice. But in the word of God the curtain is drawn aside, and we behold, above, behind, and through all the play and counterplay of human interest and power and passions, the agencies of the All-merciful One, silently, patiently working out the counsels of His own will." -- Prophets and Kings, 499

Now THAT'S a promise!

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 19 2006, 11:34 AM

I must say, I am still not sure who is telling the truth. When I read here I can see where this could be true than I hear the ther side and I can see their side. It is all very confusing for me. I wish all of this would come to a head so it could be easier to see. One thing that I struggle with is, at "the campmeeting" and shortly thereafter, Danny looked sincerely sad and hurt, is he THAT good of an actor?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 19 2006, 11:39 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 19 2006, 11:34 AM)

I must say, I am still not sure who is telling the truth. When I read here I can see where this could be true than I hear the ther side and I can see their side. It is all very confusing for me. I wish all of this would come to a head so it could be easier to see. One thing that I struggle with is, at "the campmeeting" and shortly thereafter, Danny looked sincerely sad and hurt, is he THAT good of an actor?

Yes, indeed.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 19 2006, 11:40 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 19 2006, 09:34 AM)

I must say, I am still not sure who is telling the truth. When I read here I can see where this could be true than I hear the ther side and I can see their side. It is all very confusing for me. I wish all of this would come to a head so it could be easier to see. One thing that I struggle with is, at "the campmeeting" and shortly thereafter, Danny looked sincerely sad and hurt, is he THAT good of an actor?

Uncle Sam,
I hear you!

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 19 2006, 11:54 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 19 2006, 02:34 PM)

> One thing that I struggle with is, at "the campmeeting" and shortly thereafter, Danny looked sincerely sad and hurt, is he THAT good of an actor?

When you consider all that he stands to lose...

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 19 2006, 07:29 PM

> QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 19 2006, 12:34 PM)
>
> I must say, I am still not sure who is telling the truth. When I read here I can see where this could be true than I hear the ther side and I can see their side. It is all very confusing for me. I wish all of this would come to a head so it could be easier to see. One thing that I struggle with is, at "the campmeeting" and shortly thereafter, Danny looked sincerely sad and hurt, is he THAT good of an actor?

Remember - he has had 20 years to perfect his skill.

Posted by: Clay Sep 19 2006, 07:47 PM

> QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 19 2006, 07:29 PM)
>
> Remember - he has had 20 years to perfect his skill.

are we not all actors, and isn't life but a stage....

Posted by: Johann Sep 20 2006, 02:05 AM

> QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 19 2006, 06:31 AM)
>
> Okay - Okay
>
> I keep reading that we need to wait just a few days for a big revelation at 3ABN.
>
> Well I for one am getting antsy. So what gives? Is it happening or not?

What do I see when peeking through the slit today? Several Scripture references come to mind of which I see a fulfillment, even if not all can be revealed yet.

Matt. 7:21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.
22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?

23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

I see glimses of conversion where someone turns completely around and gives a true testimony. It seems like I see the gnashing of teeth and wish that the mountains fall down and cover those who do not repent from their deception. . . There is still an opportunity to repent and start telling the truth. Rely on God's mercy and conversion.

Posted by: howdy Sep 20 2006, 03:05 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 20 2006, 03:05 AM)

What do I see when peeking through the slit today? Several Scripture references come to mind of which I see a fulfillment, even if not all can be revealed yet.

Matt. 7:21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.
22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works?
23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

I see glimses of conversion where someone turns completely around and gives a true testimony. It seems like I see the gnashing of teeth and wish that the mountains fall down and cover those who do not repent from their deception. . . There is still an opportunity to repent and start telling the truth. Rely on God's mercy and conversion.

I for one am becoming skeptcal of Johann. Now we are seeing riddles. Cant help but wonder can we if he actually knows something

howdy

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 20 2006, 03:14 PM

QUOTE(howdy @ Sep 20 2006, 02:05 PM)

I for one am becoming skeptcal of Johann. Now we are seeing riddles. Cant help but wonder can we if he actually knows something

howdy

Try not to be skeptical...there is nothing to be skeptical over. Just be patient, all things in their right time. The "delay" is actually a good thing!

Posted by: Clay Sep 20 2006, 03:22 PM

QUOTE(howdy @ Sep 20 2006, 04:05 PM)

I for one am becoming skeptcal of Johann. Now we are seeing riddles. Cant help but wonder can we if he actually knows something

howdy

howdy,
I use to ask when is all this going to happen, I have learned to ignore the predictions..... time will tell.... asking won't make it happen any sooner, that is IF anything is going to happen.... but that's just me....

Posted by: Observer Sep 20 2006, 06:26 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 20 2006, 02:22 PM)

howdy,
I use to ask when is all this going to happen, I have learned to ignore the predictions..... time will tell.... asking won't make it happen any sooner, that is IF anything is going to happen.... but that's just me....

Honest people, with knowledge of what is going on are making predictions. However, the situation is developing every day. New information is coming to light. As it does, further time has to elapse to integrate it into the whole. The result is that time-lines are pushed back.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 20 2006, 06:32 PM

QUOTE(Observer @ Sep 20 2006, 05:26 PM)

Honest people, with knowledge of what is going on are making predictions. However, the situation is developing every day. New information is coming to light. As it does, further time has to elapse to integrate it into the whole. The result is that time-lines are pushed back.

Posted by: Clay Sep 20 2006, 06:37 PM

QUOTE(Observer @ Sep 20 2006, 07:26 PM)

Honest people, with knowledge of what is going on are making predictions. However, the situation is developing every day. New information is coming to light. As it does, further time has to elapse to integrate it into the whole. The result is that time-lines are pushed back.

yeah yeah yeah..... making predictions, after predictions, after predictions.... that would make the one predicting either a false prophet or a tease....

resist the urge to predict.... when it happens, it will happen... if it will happen....

Posted by: sister Sep 20 2006, 06:56 PM

QUOTE(Observer @ Sep 20 2006, 07:26 PM)

Honest people, with knowledge of what is going on are making predictions. However, the situation is developing every day. New information is coming to light. As it does, further time has to elapse to integrate it into the whole. The result is that time-lines are pushed back.

When new developments occur that change a time-line, questions may arise concerning the reliability of the messenger. This is why it is not always wise to make predictions in regard to when an event will occur. In this case, perhaps out of his own excitement and desire to share information, Johann has jumped the gun a bit in predicting when a major announcement in regard to 3ABN would occur. That doesn't alter the fact that an announcement will be made concerning 3ABN. When will it occur? It might be better to just stop speculating on a specific time for now and say it will be made when the information is available.

This incident should give no one cause to question Johann's truthfulness concerning testimonies he has made concerning what he has personally experienced in the 3ABN saga. I believe his intentions were honorable, but his announcement was premature because of circumstances beyond his control.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 20 2006, 07:25 PM

First - I trust Johann as well as others who post here on the inside of what is happening with 3ABN and have not questioned the validity of the information. I also understand there could be developments in this "case" which would cause things to be held up. However, it is difficult to hear so much about things unraveling but not see the results nor be able to be let in on the details (which will never be revealed by 3ABN you must know).

Of course for people who know what's happening it does seem that it would be much easier to be patient. All the steps are logical because they know what's happening while others don't know the day to day developments because of the need to keep them quiet for now.

I can't see that if we were within days of hearing an announcement - that 3ABN administration had to obviously be aware of - that total secrecy is still necessary. Can't some of the details be let out of the bag?

Just asking - no ulterior motive...

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 20 2006, 07:28 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 20 2006, 06:25 PM)

First - I trust Johann as well as others who post here on the inside of what is happening with 3ABN and have not questioned the validity of the information. I also understand there could be developments in this "case" which would cause things to be held up. However, it is difficult to hear so much about things unraveling but not see the results nor be able to be let in on the details (which will never be revealed by 3ABN you must know).

Of course for people who know what's happening it does seem that it would be much easier to be patient. All the steps are logical because they know what's happening while others don't know the day to day developments because of the need to keep them quiet for now.

I can't see that if we were within days of hearing an announcement - that 3ABN administration had to obviously be aware of - that total secrecy is still necessary. Can't some of the details be let out of the bag?

Just asking - no ulterior motive...

HOTY HOTY HOTY....

Posted by: calvin Sep 20 2006, 07:58 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 20 2006, 08:25 PM)

Can't some of the details be let out of the bag?

Wow, this anticipation, like waiting for the second coming!

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Sep 20 2006, 08:36 PM

At least at the 2nd coming we know WHAT will happen With this situation we don't know what OR when

Richard

Posted by: calvin Sep 20 2006, 08:50 PM

You got that right Richard!

Posted by: watchbird Sep 20 2006, 09:00 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 20 2006, 07:58 PM)

Wow, this anticipation, like waiting for the second coming!

Ah yes ... the Blessed Hope ... for which we all await, and which has been announced as "soon" ever since the time of Paul the Apostle.

But it is sure..... and it is also sure that all wickedness will meet its complete end at that time.

Will some wickedness be brought to an end before that time? Will God act in magnificant and obvious ways as he did in the days of Korah or Annanias and Sapphira, or Herod, who allowed people to acclaim him as speaking with the voice of God?

Or will God allow wickedness to work itself out to the end, providing a testing gound for some, a stumbling block for others, and in general demonstrating how evil looks when clothed in "garments of light". After all, God said it would happen..... so someone has to do it.

It's one of those "stay tuned" situations.

TVsnack.

But really ... Psalm 73 says it all.

Posted by: calvin Sep 20 2006, 10:28 PM

You got quite a flare for words there Watchbird and an imagination too. Never would have read all this into whatever is suppose to be coming about 3ABN.

Posted by: howdy Sep 20 2006, 10:42 PM

sigh

Posted by: västergötland Sep 20 2006, 11:52 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 21 2006, 03:58 AM)

Wow, this anticipation, like waiting for the second coming!

It would have been a good thing if the secound comming where to create this much anticipation. And perhaps it would be a good thing if the 3abn story would experience the kind of fatigue that the expectation of the secound comming is experiencing..

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 21 2006, 08:31 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 21 2006, 12:52 AM)

It would have been a good thing if the secound comming where to create this much anticipation. And perhaps it would be a good thing if the 3abn story would experience the kind of fatigue that the expectation of the secound comming is experiencing..

What I keep thinking back to is the origianl statement which claimed that Linda had already been vindicated, "Linda HAS been vindicated!"

If that is the case and the vindication has happened (and it isn't some sort of self-vindication) then why can it not be public knowledge - or why isn't it already public knowledge. It seems that the public would need to know for it to be a real vindication.

- fhb

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 21 2006, 08:38 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 21 2006, 07:31 AM)

What I keep thinking back to is the origianl statement which claimed that Linda had already been vindicated, "Linda HAS been vindicated!"

Whatever you do, don't stop thinking...

If that is the case and the vindication has happened (and it isn't some sort of self-vindication) then why can it not be public knowledge - or why isn't it already public knowledge. It seems that the public would need to know for it to be a real vindication.

I thought the name of this thread was "I will wait patiently"?
Have you ever thought about all the things you don't know about yet, that you will know at some point? Is a pot of stew done when all the ingredients are first tossed into the pot and the heat is just turned on?

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 21 2006, 08:47 AM fhb>What I keep thinking back to is the origianl statement which claimed that Linda had already been vindicated, "Linda HAS been vindicated!"

QUOTE

ssom>>Whatever you do, don't stop thinking...

fhb>If that is the case and the vindication has happened (and it isn't some sort of self-vindication) then why can it not be public knowledge - or why isn't it already public knowledge. It seems that the public would need to know for it to be a real vindication.

ssom>>I thought the name of this thread was "I will wait patiently"?
Have you ever thought about all the things you don't know about yet, that you will know at some point? Is a pot of stew done when all the ingredients are first tossed into the pot and the heat is just turned on?

Either she has or she hasn't. If she hasn't then there is nothing to tell and people need to "fess up." If she has then it should be public knowledge.

Please don't get me wrong, I am not waiting on pins and needles. Personally, I don't believe anything of significance has happened - but people are being "mesmerized" with tantalizing "prophesies" and cryptic comments designed to titillate. To quote Bill Moyers:

"Once you decide to titillate instead of illuminate... you create a climate of expectation that requires a higher and higher level of intensity."

- fhb

- fhb

Posted by: västergötland Sep 21 2006, 08:51 AM

How long does it take to cook a 3abn stew?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 21 2006, 08:53 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 21 2006, 07:51 AM)

How long does it take to cook a 3abn stew?

Until it's done.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 21 2006, 09:06 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 21 2006, 07:47 AM)

Either she has or she hasn't. If she hasn't then there is nothing to tell and people need to "fess up." If she has then it should be public knowledge.

Please don't get me wrong, I am not waiting on pins and needles. Personally, I don't believe anything of significance has happened - but people are being "mesmerized" with tantalizing "prophesies" and cryptic comments designed to titillate. To quote Bill Moyers:

"Once you decide to titillate instead of illuminate... you create a climate of expectation that requires a higher and higher level of intensity."

- fhb

- fhb

Will it help you for me to say "yes, she is being vindicated" but "no, you can't know everything you want to know at this point"? No matter what anybody tells you or anyone, it won't change anything at this minute.

You can believe what you want, either way - that nothing of significance has happened or that people are being mesmerized etc. It makes no difference. Truth is truth, it is coming together. And it would have been a wise thing for Danny and the Board to have never done this in the first place, because it will be much worse now.

Human beings are impatient. It's never easy to wait. It's like knowing you are getting something for Christmas because you saw the wrapped box in your parents closet and you are just dieing to open it, you don't know what's inside....but you still have to wait. There is no harm in anticipation or waiting. And if you don't want to your present, you don't have to take it. It is still there, none the less.

Posted by: justme Sep 21 2006, 09:18 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 21 2006, 11:06 AM)

Will it help you for me to say "yes, she is being vindicated" but "no, you can't know everything you want to know at this point"? No matter what anybody tells you or anyone, it won't change anything at this minute.

You can believe what you want, either way - that nothing of significance has happened or that people are being mesmerized etc. It makes no difference. Truth is truth, it is coming together. And it would have been a wise thing for Danny and the Board to have never done this in the first place, because it will be much worse now.

Human beings are impatient. It's never easy to wait. It's like knowing you are getting something for Christmas because you saw the wrapped box in your parents closet and you are just dieing to open it, you don't know what's inside....but you still have to wait. There is no harm in anticipation or waiting. And if you don't want to your present, you don't have to take it. It is still there, none the less.

I guess we're just holding it up to our ear and "shaking" it a little to see what's coming inside the box.

Just like at Christmse, it's worth the waiting, usually. But it's all bout the anticipation, that makes it so special and unforgetable.

shake
shake

shake [x]
...

Posted by: Clay Sep 21 2006, 09:24 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 21 2006, 08:47 AM)

Either she has or she hasn't. If she hasn't then there is nothing to tell and people need to "fess up." If she has then it should be public knowledge.

Please don't get me wrong, I am not waiting on pins and needles. Personally, I don't believe anything of significance has happened - but people are being "mesmerized" with tantalizing "prophesies" and cryptic comments designed to titillate. To quote Bill Moyers:

"Once you decide to titillate instead of illuminate... you create a climate of expectation that requires a higher and higher level of intensity."

- fhb

- fhb

like that quote, may have to use it.... and personally I would agree that there has been a degree of titillation with this saga..... btjm....

Posted by: summertime Sep 21 2006, 09:26 AM

Could it be that even the angels are standing on the four corners of the fiasco of 3ABN, waiting for some to forsake their wrongs and make things right, so that the wind should not completely destroy the whole of 3ABN when "He just is not done with them yet?" God wants to save us all, even Danny, but the day of destruction will come. We have to remember that Jesus did not die to destroy us all--He died to save us all. Maybe He is waiting for those at 3ABN to come to seek forgiveness, but He will not wait forever. Along with the rest of you, I am anxious to see all this 3ABN lawlessness come to an end. It is hard for us to be patient when we know so many people have been hurt.

Posted by: Clay Sep 21 2006, 09:30 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 21 2006, 09:26 AM)

Could it be that even the angels are standing on the four corners of the fiasco of 3ABN, waiting for some to forsake their wrongs and make things right, so that the wind should not completely destroy the whole of 3ABN when "He just is not done with them yet?" God wants to save us all, even Danny, but the day of destruction will come. We have to remember that Jesus did not die to destroy us all--He died to save us all. Maybe He is waiting for those at 3ABN to come to seek forgiveness, but He will not wait forever. Along with the rest of you, I am anxious to see all this 3ABN lawlessness come to an end. It is hard for us to be patient when we know so many people have been hurt.

a bit dramatic don't you think?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 21 2006, 09:48 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 21 2006, 09:26 AM)

Could it be that even the angels are standing on the four corners of the fiasco of 3ABN, waiting for some to forsake their wrongs and make things right, so that the wind should not completely destroy the whole of 3ABN when "He just is not done with them yet?" God wants to save us all, even Danny, but the day of destruction will come. We have to remember that Jesus did not die to destroy us all--He died to save us all. Maybe He is waiting for those at 3ABN to come to seek forgiveness, but He will not wait forever. Along with the rest of you, I am anxious to see all this 3ABN lawlessness come to an end. It is hard for us to be patient when we know so many people have been hurt.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 08:30 AM)

a bit dramatic don't you think?

I'm with Summertime on that one. There are many facets to things. People are making choices everyday concerning this mess. Pray for everybody. Like most things, there is much more to it then what is "seen" on top.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 21 2006, 09:50 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 10:24 AM)

like that quote, may have to use it.... and personally I would agree that there has been a degree of titillation with this saga..... btjm....

Have fun with it, it's a good one ot have on hand!

Posted by: Clay Sep 21 2006, 09:53 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 21 2006, 09:48 AM)

I'm with Summertime on that one. There are many facets to things. People are making choices everyday concerning this mess. Pray for everybody. Like most things, there is much more to it then what is "seen" on top.

cryptic language is sooooo annoying.....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 21 2006, 10:51 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 08:24 AM)

like that quote, may have to use it.... and personally I would agree that there has been a degree of titillation with this saga..... btjm....

I'm concerned that if the titillation reaches too high a level of intensity, some here will start having strokes. Perhaps patience would be a healthier state for us all.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 08:53 AM)

cryptic language is sooooo annoying.....

Amen!

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 21 2006, 03:02 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 21 2006, 10:18 AM)

I guess we're just holding it up to our ear and "shaking" it a little to see what's coming inside the box.

shake
shake shake [x]
...

Shaking is old-school and a good way to damage the goods!

What you do is unwrap it, peek inside, then wrap it back up and wait for Christmas!

Posted by: Nuggie Sep 21 2006, 03:18 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 09:24 AM)

like that quote, may have to use it.... and personally I would agree that there has been a degree of titillation with this saga..... btjm....

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 21 2006, 09:30 AM)

a bit dramatic don't you think?

OK?!? Angels standing on four corners...holding back the winds? Okie dokie, then. Think I'll back slowly out of this thread...

Posted by: princessdi Sep 21 2006, 03:21 PM

Bad, bad HOTY!!!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 21 2006, 02:02 PM)

Shaking is old-school and a good way to damage the goods!

What you do is unwrap it, peek inside, then wrap it back up and wait for Christmas!

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 22 2006, 10:01 AM

We don't know invisible factors. The visible factor is the Most Amazing Prophecies seminar.

TVsnack.

As noted by others elswhere, people are coming to that thing, and of course the powers that be tableta don't want to jeopardize conversions.

I've never been a fan of 3ABN, which doubtless makes my own attitude towards this whole fiasco y quite suspect ... read: sinful. After all, "Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth." s

Here's the problem, as Danny & Co are finding out (we hope! since not everyone is privy to the information that others have and can't share): "There is nothing concealed that will not be disclosed, or hidden that will not be made known. What you have said in the dark will be heard in the daylight, and what you have whispered in the ear se in the inner rooms will be proclaimed from the roofs." Luke 12.

tom

However this comes out, I hope they handle it carefully. Where I live, 3ABN is like an oracle of God for a lot of people. Maybe they need the rug jerked out from under them ... gently?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 04:25 PM

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 22 2006, 10:01 AM)

However this comes out, I hope they handle it carefully. Where I live, 3ABN is like an oracle of God for a lot of people. Maybe they need the rug jerked out from under them ... gently?

Our purpose here on BSDA and elsewhere has been to try and bring enough information to light so that as many as possible of those people who think that "3ABN is like an oracle of God" will be gently coaxed to move away from the "rug" before it is "jerked" away to reveal all that has been swept under it for lo, these many years.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 23 2006, 07:35 PM

Elsewhere is basically Maritime SDA OnLine, as I think we are now basically the only two forums permitting these 3ABN topics.

Posted by: AmeliaLD Sep 24 2006, 01:37 PM

Won't we all feel a little used if the climax of this play is far more dissapointing than what we expected because of the buildup?

paraphrasing Matthew: things will happen but the end is still to come.

Even soaps on TV can take years to end a story line.

Posted by: Johann Sep 24 2006, 01:43 PM

QUOTE(AmeliaLD @ Sep 24 2006, 09:37 PM)

Won't we all feel a little used if the climax of this play is far more dissapointing than what we expected because of the buildup?

paraphrasing Matthew: things will happen but the end is still to come.

Even soaps on TV can take years to end a story line.

Don't give up yet. True, the end is still to come. . .

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 01:46 PM

QUOTE(AmeliaLD @ Sep 24 2006, 02:37 PM)

Won't we all feel a little used if the climax of this play is far more dissapointing than what we expected because of the buildup?

paraphrasing Matthew: things will happen but the end is still to come.

Even soaps on TV can take years to end a story line.

the end is never as good as we imagine.... usually.....

Posted by: Johann Sep 24 2006, 01:50 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 09:46 PM)

the end is never as good as we imagine.... usually.....

What do you base this on? Avoiding disappointments?

Posted by: beartrap Sep 24 2006, 03:41 PM

"Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning."
Sir Winston Churchill, Speech in November 1942

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 04:31 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 24 2006, 03:41 PM)

> "Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning."
> Sir Winston Churchill, Speech in November 1942

Interesting. For some reason I have always like the way it was put by a novelist whose name I do not recall.....

"What he had thought would be the end of the beginning, turned out instead to be the beginning of the end."

Posted by: justme Sep 24 2006, 06:39 PM

I'm not sure you understood what I meant when I said I understand what you said I meant.
Because I understood you understood what I sad when you said you understood me.
But, what I you said I said was not what I meant you to understand.
You understood what I meant when I said I understand you the first time.
The second time I understood you I understood you meant you understood me the second time, so I understood what you meant the first time.
Now I understand you meant to understand the first time but misunderstood me.
Now I understand, do you?

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 06:47 PM

rofl

> QUOTE(justme @ Sep 24 2006, 06:39 PM)
>
> I'm not sure you understood what I meant when I said I understand what you said I meant.
> Because I understood you understood what I sad when you said you understood me.
> But, what I you said I said was not what I meant you to understand.
> You understood what I meant when I said I understand you the first time.
> The second time I understood you I understood you meant you understood me the second time, so I understood what you meant the first time.
> Now I understand you meant to understand the first time but misunderstood me.
> Now I understand, do you?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 07:35 PM

> QUOTE(justme @ Sep 24 2006, 06:39 PM)
>
> I'm not sure you understood what I meant when I said I understand what you said I meant.
> Because I understood you understood what I sad when you said you understood me.
> But, what I you said I said was not what I meant you to understand.

You understood what I meant when I said I understand you the first time.
The second time I understood you I understood you meant you understood me the second time, so I understood what you meant the first time.
Now I understand you meant to understand the first time but misunderstood me.
Now I understand, do you?

Nope..... I don't even understand who is "you" in this little "explanation".
Oh well..... we all need a humor break.....

Posted by: Ralph Sep 24 2006, 10:03 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 24 2006, 07:35 PM)

Nope..... I don't even understand who is "you" in this little "explanation".
Oh well..... we all need a humor break.....

Yeh, I know I am ofl but that reminded me of the lines of an old lyric

I was looking back to see if you were looking back to see
If I was looking back to see if you were looking back at me

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Sep 25 2006, 05:30 AM

Does anyone have any idea how much this 3abn/Danny issue is being discussed outside of the internet? Is this a hot topic at our collages and other institutions? In our conference offices? How about our churches in general?

Richard

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 06:18 AM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 25 2006, 05:30 AM)

Does anyone have any idea how much this 3abn/Danny issue is being discussed outside of the internet? Is this a hot topic at our collages and other institutions? In our conference offices? How about our churches in general?

Richard

From what I have seen..... which is admittedly not a large sampling so far as numbers go, but does include churches in distinctly different areas of the country, and even of the world..... it is hardly mentioned outside of the internet. Which is the reason that the internet in general and BSDA in particular is so important.

In general there are those who watch 3abn ..... and there are those who do not. There are those who watch 3abn selectively, only watching programming of major Adventist evangelists and/or preachers..... and there are those who turn it on as background to their day and watch it indescrimently all day long. Some of these watchers are "true believers".... that is they depend on 3abn for their spiritual guidance and information..... and some are just there for the atmosphere. Some who previously watched have, for various reasons, as you have heard here on BSDA, discontinued or greatly lessened their watching.

Those who watch and those who don't watch..... unless they have personal or internet information tend to know only what 3abn has said about themselves, and the amount they "know" varies, of course, from a vague, "I heard..... " to having listened to and believed all that has been said either on 3abn or in their "news letters" for the past two plus years especially, and generally from the authorized "history books" which have long been available.

But this doesn't really answer your question, it only sets a background for what I have observed.... and that is that there is little if any dialogue between these various groups of persons, either publicly or privately. It seems to be one of those things (like "politics and religion") which are generally agreed should be "off limits" in "polite society". So at church potlucks or other gatherings where those of varied opinions might be gathered, there is hardly a mention of it, and if there should be it has been my (limited) experience that there will be at least one "true believer" around who will very quickly make their presence known and their closed ears apparent.

In my even more limited experience in Conference offices, I find such a total absence of any knowledge about the issue that I have to assume that the same pattern of no-speak exists there also. Colleges and University people in general have much more pressing things to think about than the problems of an independent ministry which they have no perceived ability to do anything about. And there is, so far as I can tell, total silence from the pulpits of the land.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 07:25 AM

Not here in Nashville...or in most places that I know....

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 25 2006, 05:30 AM)

Does anyone have any idea how much this 3abn/Danny issue is being discussed outside of the internet? Is this a hot topic at our collages and other institutions? In our conference offices? How about our churches in general?

Richard

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 25 2006, 09:20 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 25 2006, 07:18 AM)

And there is, so far as I can tell, total silence from the pulpits of the land.

I don't have time to respond to any answers to my post right now.

However, just remember that there is a full-time, conference president voting on the 3ABN Board, plus a couple of conference ministers involved.

These people are full-time Adventist Church employees.

How can the organized Adventist Church comment on the deeds of its very own full-time employees? Imagine the legal implications of doing that?

Remember, the Norwegian doctor did not sign away his legal rights the way Linda Shelton did. And the Norwegian doctor has plenty of money to do anything he chooses to do.

Total silence by the Adventist Church may be the only option at this point.

Just a thought.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 10:12 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 25 2006, 09:20 AM)

I don't have time to respond to any answers to my post right now.

However, just remember that there is a full-time, conference president voting on the 3ABN Board, plus a couple of conference ministers involved.

These people are full-time Adventist Church employees.

How can the organized Adventist Church comment on the deeds of its very own full-time employees? Imagine the legal implications of doing that?

There are no "legal" implications of doing that. There may be interior "political" considerations, and each man has to decide for himself as to whether he wants to endanger his further career in the church administration bullpen by speaking out on something without first getting the consensus of the whole group. But who knows whether or not in the end it may be the brave who will stand safe and tall and the weak who will fall. Again it is something that we have to "wait and see".

QUOTE

Remember, the Norwegian doctor did not sign away his legal rights the way Linda Shelton did. And the Norwegian doctor has plenty of money to do anything he chooses to do.

Total silence by the Adventist Church may be the only option at this point.

Just a thought.

It is all too true that until "the word" is passed at GC level, that not many pastors will have the courage to speak out against that which has not been spoken against from "on high".

However .... how many pastors.... and other church employees..... do you find totally silent on everything which has not been ordered from above? I could give examples of where pastors defy "church orders" and preach very strongly against things of which they disapprove.... even inviting seminarists to present on subjects to which the "SDA pulpits" have been "officially closed" for over 20 years. No, the lack of directive from above is not sufficient reason for the strange malaise that keeps people in an inactive condition such as we have witnessed over the last two years.

But the question as I understood it had to do in general with the amount of attention and discussion that was going on among the people in various SDA venues. And the answer has to be that there is more suppression of discussion ... either voluntarily by those who don't want to stick their neck out, or who are advised by their pastors to not agitate on the subject.

BUT .....

I am not being fair to some who have indeed "stuck their neck out" on these issues .... though without their express permission I do not feel free to name names if they have not already been identified on BSDA by others.

Let's start with Upper Columbia Conference, where Mabel Dunbar, the Director of Women's Ministries, and President of Polly's Place, has been openly supportive of Linda ever since she first met her in St Louis in 2005 ... and who has also in turn been supported by the President of that conference, Max Torkelson. Let's also mention the Family Ministries Director of another conference. Let's also remember the unnamed pastors who have supported Linda and invited her to their churches .... even in the face of opposition from her enemies. And we could also mention some by name from Divisions outside the NAD where prominent persons in church administrative positions have been active in resisting the spread of the 3abn virus in their territories.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 25 2006, 11:43 AM

I am from TN it is only mentioned around here when Danny gets on defending himself. Than people start asking "What is going On?" That is how I started asking questions and found this site. So, he is hurting himself...

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 25 2006, 04:56 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 25 2006, 11:12 AM)

> But the question as I understood it had to do in general with the amount of attention and discussion that was going on among the people in various SDA venues. And the answer has to be that there is more suppression of discussion ... either voluntarily by those who don't want to stick their neck out, or who are advised by their pastors to not agitate on the subject.

I believe you are right about the suppression of discussion. Unquestionably, it is happening. How it is happening is a bit baffling at the moment.

Posted by: paleface Sep 25 2006, 05:34 PM

Whenever I open the 3abn topic for discussion in my private e-mails, the sand starts flying from whom I send my message to with, "I don't want to hear about it and don't tell me anything more!" The hole gets dug so fast, the other individual goes out of sight in denial or attack me as spreading "gossip." I just let the subject drop.

On the postive side, there are others whom will observe and we compare notes.

Posted by: Johann Sep 25 2006, 06:09 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 26 2006, 01:34 AM)

Whenever I open the 3abn topic for discussion in my private e-mails, the sand starts flying from whom I send my message to with, "I don't want to hear about it and don't tell me anything more!" The hole gets dug so fast, the other individual goes out of sight in denial or attack me as spreading "gossip." I just let the subject drop.

On the postive side, there are others whom will observe and we compare notes.

In many cases it is only the minority who is willing to hear the truth. Does that mean we must compromise? Does that mean we should keep quiet? Do votes decide what is right?

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 25 2006, 09:53 PM

I am from the Upper Columbia Conference also and when my husband or I bring up 3abn we get different types of responses, They range from wanting to know what is going on, to this should not be brought up in church because it makes 3abn look bad. They then add that the Lord is in control and if he wants 3abn brought down he will bring it down and if he doesn't, nothing we do will make a difference. I think this is a cop out. It is a way to deny any responsibility. We arn't involved in 3abn so therefore we shouldn't have any need to see things made right at 3abn. It only affects those who have worked or are working at 3abn. What about Dr. Sam saying Danny didn't have bible grounds for remarriage? That affects all of us I would think. Thank goodness we have a wonderful pastor who feels there is a problem at 3abn and isn't afraid to say so. He calls sin by it's right name. Also I was glad to hear about our conference president's support.

Having grown up in a pastor's household I do understand why it is difficult for pastor's to stand up and be counted without the GC's permission. The GC is their employer and they can take away your job if you are not on the same page as they are. I would imagine that is one reason so many of the people on this web page are posting under assumed names. Maybe Danny can't take away their jobs because they don't work at 3abn any more but he probably has other things to hold over their heads.

By the way. My mother told me that Saturday Dwight Nelson told the tv audience that Danny and is wife were leaving for Australia(She thought that was what he said) Have any of you heard anything about this? Like maybe Johann or Sister or Watchbird.

TB

Posted by: justme Sep 26 2006, 09:23 AM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 25 2006, 11:53 PM)

I am from the Upper Columbia Conference also and when my husband or I bring up 3abn we get different types of responses, They range from wanting to know what is going on, to this should not be brought up in church because it makes 3abn look bad. They then add that the Lord is in control and if he wants 3abn brought down he will bring it down and if he doesn't, nothing we do will make a difference. I think this is a cop out. It is a way to deny any responsibility. We arn't involved in 3abn so therefore we shouldn't have any need to see things made right at 3abn. It only affects those who have worked or are working at 3abn. What about Dr. Sam saying Danny didn't have bible grounds for remarriage? That affects all of us I would think. Thank goodness we have a wonderful pastor who feels there is a problem at 3abn and isn't afraid to say so. He calls sin by it's right name. Also I was glad to hear about our conference president's support.

Having grown up in a pastor's household I do understand why it is difficult for pastor's to stand up and be counted without the GC's permission. The GC is their employer and they can take away your job if you are not on the same page as they are. I would imagine that is one reason so many of the people on this web page are posting under assumed names. Maybe Danny can't take away their jobs because they don't work at 3abn any more but he probably has other things to hold over their heads.

By the way. My mother told me that Saturday Dwight Nelson told the tv audience that Danny and is wife were leaving for Australia(She thought that was what he said) Have any of you heard anything about this? Like maybe Johann or Sister or Watchbird.

TB

I just checked the Saturday night program. No mention of it.
Now I'll check the Sabbath AM meeting.
stay tuned
.
.

Posted by: sister Sep 26 2006, 10:06 AM

Danny and Brandy are making an Australia and New Zealand tour. Time to increase the donations with miracle stories directly from the horses mouth. Did I say horses? Well, shut my mouth. I am sure the "miracle" of Danny's horses or rather how he paid for them, is not a subject for the land down under. LOL rofl rofl rofl

---

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 26 2006, 10:31 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 26 2006, 12:06 PM)

Danny and Brandy are making an Australia and New Zealand tour. Time to increase the donations with miracle stories directly from the horses mouth. Did I say horses? Well, shut my mouth. I am sure the "miracle" of Danny's horses or rather how he paid for them, is not a subject for the land down under. LOL rofl rofl rofl

Isn't the Fall Campmeeting this weekend...starting on September 28? Dan and Bran won't be there? Guess Mollie will be runnin' things, eh?

Posted by: Fran Sep 26 2006, 10:37 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 26 2006, 10:06 AM)

Danny and Brandy are making an Australia and New Zealand tour. Time to increase the donations with miracle stories directly from the horses mouth. Did I say horses? Well, shut my mouth. I am sure the "miracle" of Danny's horses or rather how he paid for them, is not a subject for the land down under. LOL rofl rofl rofl

Maybe they are house hunting?

Maybe they are checking the climates of Russia, Australia and New Zealand. Maybe they are tired of IL.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 10:49 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 26 2006, 10:31 AM)

Isn't the Fall Campmeeting this weekend...starting on September 28? Dan and Bran won't be there? Guess Mollie will be runnin' things, eh?

Really? You mean they have already gone? What is their itinery? It's not on the 3abn website. And Danny is listed several times in the campmeeting lineup, and then again in Santa Cruz later in October. Whuts up guys?!???

"Dan and Bran"..... love it. Sounds like breakfast cereal. rofl

---

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 11:01 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 26 2006, 05:37 PM)

Maybe they are house hunting?

Maybe they are checking the climates of Russia, Australia and New Zealand. Maybe they are tired of IL.

I hear Argentina is popular with refugees...

Posted by: paleface Sep 26 2006, 11:02 AM

Johann:
I have a cronic case of "Foot in Mouth Disease" and I am too dumb to back up when confronted! I am not called "Rubber Lips" for nothing. I shall continue to enlighten my fellow man who is interested in 3abn.

Posted by: sister Sep 26 2006, 12:54 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 26 2006, 11:31 AM)

Isn't the Fall Campmeeting this weekend...starting on September 28? Dan and Bran won't be there? Guess Mollie will be runnin' things, eh?

Down Under schedule for 3ABN Rallys or Danny's Miracle Beg-a-thons:

Venues for 3ABN Rally 2006
Dates: October 28 to 31, 2006
Attending from 3ABN USA: Danny and Brandy Shelton, CA and Irma Murray
Attending from 3ABN Australia: John and Rosemary Malkiewycz

October 28, 2006
Sabbath School 9:00am, Divine Service 10:30am followed by fellowship lunch
Bunbury SDA Church - Cnr Vittoria and Woodley Roads, Glen Iris, Bunbury, Western Australia
Contact: Steve Billington, ph (08) 9797 2335

5:00pm
Livingston SDA Church - Nicholson Road (adjacent Ranford Road), Canning Vale, Western Australia
Contact: David Aitken, ph (08) 9455 4245

October 29, 2006, 5:00pm
Wahroonga SDA Church - 183 Fox Valley Road, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia
Contact: Pr Lloyd Grolimund, ph (02) 9487 1374

October 30, 2006, 7:30pm
Lilydale SDA Church - 608 Hull Road, Lilydale, Victoria
Contact: Jenny Heyde, ph (03) 9735 0309

October 31, 2006, 7:30pm
Ilam (pronounced eye-lam) SDA Church - 26 Ilam Road, Ilam, Christchurch, New Zealand
Contact: John and Lois Shearer, ph (03) 318 1913

Info from 3ABN Australia: http://www.3abnaustralia.org.au

Posted by: Brenda Sep 26 2006, 01:29 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 27 2006, 04:54 AM)

Down Under schedule for 3ABN Rallys or Danny's Miracle Beg-a-thons:

Venues for 3ABN Rally 2006
Dates: October 28 to 31, 2006
Attending from 3ABN USA: Danny and Brandy Shelton, CA and Irma Murray
Attending from 3ABN Australia: John and Rosemary Malkiewycz

October 28, 2006
Sabbath School 9:00am, Divine Service 10:30am followed by fellowship lunch
Bunbury SDA Church - Cnr Vittoria and Woodley Roads, Glen Iris, Bunbury, Western Australia
Contact: Steve Billington, ph (08) 9797 2335

5:00pm
Livingston SDA Church - Nicholson Road (adjacent Ranford Road), Canning Vale, Western Australia
Contact: David Aitken, ph (08) 9455 4245

October 29, 2006, 5:00pm
Wahroonga SDA Church - 183 Fox Valley Road, Wahroonga, New South Wales, Australia
Contact: Pr Lloyd Grolimund, ph (02) 9487 1374

October 30, 2006, 7:30pm
Lilydale SDA Church - 608 Hull Road, Lilydale, Victoria
Contact: Jenny Heyde, ph (03) 9735 0309

October 31, 2006, 7:30pm
Ilam (pronounced eye-lam) SDA Church - 26 Ilam Road, Ilam, Christchurch, New Zealand
Contact: John and Lois Shearer, ph (03) 318 1913
Info from 3ABN Australia: http://www.3abnaustralia.org.au

I find it interesting to look at where the meetings "Down Under" are being held. Bunbury, where the main Sabbath meeting is being held is a town a little way south of the capital of WA, Perth. The only meeting in Perth is an evening one.

The greatest concentration of SDAs in this country is in the Greater Sydney Conference and their only meeting in Sydney is on a Sunday night - albeit in one of the larger churches in the Conference.

There are many more SDAs in Auckland, in the North Island of NZ, than Christchurch in the South Island, which is the only NZ stop.

Just a comment, I am sure these locations have been chosen with reason.

Posted by: sister Sep 26 2006, 04:11 PM

QUOTE(Brenda @ Sep 26 2006, 02:29 PM)

I find it interesting to look at where the meetings "Down Under" are being held. Bunbury, where the main Sabbath meeting is being held is a town a little way south of the capital of WA, Perth. The only meeting in Perth is an evening one.

The greatest concentration of SDAs in this country is in the Greater Sydney Conference and their only meeting in Sydney is on a Sunday night - albeit in one of the larger churches in the Conference.

There are many more SDAs in Auckland, in the North Island of NZ, than Christchurch in the South Island, which is the only NZ stop.

Just a comment, I am sure these locations have been chosen with reason.

Brenda,

Maybe you can get the word out to the Australian pastors about the info on BSDA concerning 3ABN, it might be an eye opener for them. Just a thought...

Sister

Posted by: justme Sep 26 2006, 04:48 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 26 2006, 10:23 AM)

I just checked the Saturday night program. No mention of it.
Now I'll check the Sabbath AM meeting.
stay tuned
.
.

I didn't hear anythung about "Dan n Bran" going to Australia in MAP program #9 at church time Sabbath, not in MAP program #10. There was an early Sabbath morning program, of mostly music but I missed the opening 1/2 hour of it.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 26 2006, 09:18 PM

I think the 3ABN campmeeting could be very interesting. Stay tuned this weekend.

Posted by: Johann Sep 26 2006, 11:37 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 26 2006, 07:02 PM)

Johann:
I have a cronic case of "Foot in Mouth Disease" and I am too dumb to back up when confronted! I am not called "Rubber Lips" for nothing. I shall continue to enlighten my fellow man who is interested in 3abn.

It takes courage when they call you names. Just stand for TRUTH. This is the only thing that counts in the long run!

Posted by: Freedom Sep 26 2006, 11:37 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 26 2006, 10:18 PM)

I think the 3ABN campmeeting could be very interesting. Stay tuned this weekend.

Umm, okay so it's later in Oct. they're going to Australia.
At first I thought maybe they were going there instead of campmeeting and to escape the 3abn board meeting!
Unless the board meeting has been changed?

Are the areas in Australia they are visiting near Australia 3abn "camp"?

Posted by: beartrap Sep 26 2006, 11:37 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 26 2006, 11:49 AM)

"Dan and Bran"..... love it. Sounds like breakfast cereal. rofl

Kind like the Australian Adventist Weetbix cereal?

Posted by: Brenda Sep 26 2006, 11:43 PM

QUOTE(Freedom @ Sep 27 2006, 03:37 PM)

Umm, okay so it's later in Oct. they're going to Australia.
At first I thought maybe they were going there instead of campmeeting and to escape the 3abn board meeting!
Unless the board meeting has been changed?

Are the areas in Australia they are visiting near Australia 3abn "camp"?

I do not know if there is a 3ABN camp here - the stated meeting places are all regular churches. The choice of venue makes me think they have chosen areas where the 'faithful' congregate.

Posted by: Freedom Sep 27 2006, 06:32 AM

QUOTE(Brenda @ Sep 27 2006, 12:43 AM)

I do not know if there is a 3ABN camp here - the stated meeting places are all regular churches. The choice of venue makes me think they have chosen areas where the 'faithful' congregate.

3ABN australia "camp" - 3ABN has representatives in australia. If I understand correctly the have a broadcast site there.

Is this correct?

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 27 2006, 08:18 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 27 2006, 12:37 AM)

Kind like the Australian Adventist Weetbix cereal?

Attache Image

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 27 2006, 08:20 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 27 2006, 11:18 AM)

Attache Image

Seems like I've started something...

Posted by: watchbird Sep 27 2006, 09:16 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 27 2006, 08:18 AM)

Attache Image

that ..... !!!!! .....

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 27 2006, 08:20 AM)

Seems like I've started something...

Seems like you did indeed..... but it took an artist with a flair for marketing to give us the box cover design..... and information. Who did it? Was that you, Pete? Or is this one of lifes little mysteries that shall go into the "stay tuned" and "wait patiently" file?

Anyhow ... Fantastic..... wow.gif .... TVsnack.

Posted by: vonessa Sep 27 2006, 09:34 AM

I keep dropping in to see this new information and what have you, but I get nothing. It is like waiting at a station and not knowing whether its coming or not.

Otherwise there is nothing new to say. Just the same old, same old going around in circles. Wake me up when it gets going.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 27 2006, 09:48 AM

QUOTE(vonessa @ Sep 27 2006, 09:34 AM)

I keep dropping in to see this new information and what have you, but I get nothing. It is like waiting at a station and not knowing whether its coming or not.

Otherwise there is nothing new to say. Just the same old, same old going around in circles. Wake me up when it gets going.

There, there, dearie..... snuggle up with your blankie..... ..... and take your rest. If you don't show up when the train whistle blows, we'll send for you.

Or .....

You could join in the behind the scenes activity by contacting and dialoguing with those you know who don't know. Working makes the waiting seem to go more quickly. And who knows .... some little word that you might say in some ear that is more significant than you know just might act to "hasten the day" of "its" coming. Review the suggestions of what individuals can do. Be creative in developing your own "action plan". Remember that even though things here may seem "old hat" to you, there are still thousands of persons who have no idea that there is so much they don't know. Go out into the highways and hedges and let them know about BSDA. You don't have to tell them what is being said here. Just invite them to "come and see". And stand by, ready to help guide them through the maze if they ask for help.... but mainly, just keep busy while you are developing your patience till the time when what others are doing can be revealed.

tableta

Posted by: jodi Sep 27 2006, 11:05 AM

Stay tuned. Oct. 1 should prove to be an interesting day!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 27 2006, 11:16 AM

Because.....?

QUOTE(jodi @ Sep 27 2006, 11:05 AM)

Stay tuned. Oct. 1 should prove to be an interesting day!

Posted by: sister Sep 27 2006, 01:45 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 27 2006, 12:16 PM)

Because.....?

October 1, 2006 is the next scheduled meeting of the 3ABN Board...

Posted by: Johann Sep 27 2006, 04:25 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 27 2006, 09:45 PM)

October 1, 2006 is the next scheduled meeting of the 3ABN Board...

Business as usual?

Posted by: Brenda Sep 27 2006, 04:32 PM

QUOTE(Freedom @ Sep 27 2006, 10:32 PM)

3ABN australia "camp" - 3ABN has representatives in australia. If I understand correctly the have a broadcast site there.

Is this correct?

There are certainly representatives here, who promote the acquisition of the satellite dish - I am not sure how much more that couple do for 3ABN.

I am not aware of what else 3ABN have here - in all honesty I have not been motivated to find out.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 27 2006, 04:39 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 27 2006, 03:25 PM)

Business as usual?

I'm thinking not

Posted by: Johann Sep 27 2006, 04:51 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 28 2006, 12:39 AM)

I'm thinking not

Why not?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 27 2006, 05:12 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 27 2006, 03:51 PM)

Why not?

Well, shall we say, it should NOT be business as usual...lets hope it's not.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 27 2006, 06:15 PM

The next board meeting - maybe

bot

Posted by: summertime Sep 27 2006, 06:21 PM

[quote name='sonshineonme' date='Sep 27 2006, 05:12 PM' post='154062']
Well, shall we say, it should NOT be business as usual...lets hope it's not.]

How many dollars will it take to fly that jet to Australia, pay for the gas, hire the pilot and then pay for expenses for the 3ABN President and his party to sightsee the vast areas of interest in the country of AUstralia.?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 27 2006, 06:24 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 27 2006, 05:15 PM)

The next board meeting - maybe

bot

I like the white flag one...guess we will see....

And summertime, when you said
"How many dollars will it take to fly that jet to Australia, pay for the gas, hire the pilot and then pay for expenses for the 3ABN President and his party to sightsee the vast areas of interest in the country of AUstralia.?"

THE ANSWER IS M A N Y - the donors money hard at work!

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 27 2006, 08:41 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 27 2006, 07:24 PM)

And summertime, when you said
"How many dollars will it take to fly that jet to Australia, pay for the gas, hire the pilot and then pay for expenses for the 3ABN President and his party to sightsee the vast areas of interest in the country of AUstralia.?"
THE ANSWER IS M A N Y - the donors money hard at work!

Come on, it is obvious that the plane 3ABN leases couldn't even make the flight from LA to Hawaii, much less the 18+ hours it takes to reach Australia.

- fhb

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 27 2006, 08:47 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 06:41 PM)

Come on, it is obvious that the plane 3ABN leases couldn't even make the flight from LA to Hawaii, much less the 18+ hours it takes to reach Australia.

- fhb

That's what I was thinking. Perhaps he can get it refueled in flight.

Posted by: paleface Sep 27 2006, 08:52 PM

Did Danny take his jet to Russia? Is Trinity also traveling with Danny and Brandy or is she in school?

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 27 2006, 09:32 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 27 2006, 09:47 PM)

That's what I was thinking. Perhaps he can get it refueled in flight.

Okay, I have avoided using these at all costs, but PB you get one . . . . . and Paleface, if the thing can't get to Hawaii from LA, there is no way it's making it across the Atlantic either . . .

- fhb

Posted by: princessdi Sep 27 2006, 09:41 PM

I think I missed something. Why is this obvious?

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 06:41 PM)

Come on, it is obvious that the plane 3ABN leases couldn't even make the flight from LA to Hawaii, much less the 18+ hours it takes to reach Australia.

- fhb

Posted by: beartrap Sep 27 2006, 09:55 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 10:32 PM)

there is no way it's making it across the Atlantic either . . .

- fhb

Actually it can. Even a turboprop like a King Air with a shorter range can go back and forth to Europe if it stops in Iceland for gas.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 27 2006, 10:04 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 27 2006, 10:55 PM)

Actually it can. Even a turboprop like a King Air with a shorter range can go back and forth to Europe if it stops in Iceland for gas.

Fair enough, no argument. But when did the contingent from 3ABN leave for Russia? When did they arrive and when was the first responsibility there? They would have had to have flown from IL to NY then to Iceland then to the UK and possibly to Berlin or Paris from there and then on to Moscow with another necessary stop or two in there somewhere. Easy enough to figure out. I am guessing they left one day arrived the next - not enough time to fly their jaunty little plan to Russia.

- fhb

Posted by: beartrap Sep 27 2006, 10:52 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 11:04 PM)

Fair enough, no argument. But when did the contingent from 3ABN leave for Russia? When did they arrive and when was the first responsibility there? They would have had to have flown from IL to NY then to Iceland then to the UK and possibly to Berlin or Paris from there and then on to Moscow with another necessary stop or two in there somewhere. Easy enough to figure out. I am guessing they left one day arrived the next - not enough time to fly their jaunty little plan to Russia.

- fhb

LOL! Not saying they did, just saying they can. In fact, I would be shocked if they tried to use a Citation VI for a transcontinental flight. To my knowledge they never have. Generally the company jet takes them to St. Louis and Delta takes them through one of the big hubs like Atlanta, then to Frankfurt Germany, on to Moscow, and then a twelve hour over-night train ride to Nizhny Novgorod where Julia Outkina is a most welcome sight.

Posted by: paleface Sep 27 2006, 11:10 PM

Beartrap My Hero! My Hero! Thank you for your input.
Hubby is wondering if anyone has a photo of this jet? We would like to see what this leased 3ABN company jet looks like. Hear! Hear!
With such a long flight, should two jet pilots be on board?

Posted by: sister Sep 27 2006, 11:30 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 28 2006, 12:10 AM)

Beartrap My Hero! My Hero! Thank you for your input.
Hubby is wondering if anyone has a photo of this jet? We would like to see what this leased 3ABN company jet looks like. Hear! Hear!
With such a long flight, should two jet pilots be on board?

I agree with Bear. I do not see them taking the 3ABN jet to Australia. I believe that the company jet always has two pilots on board whenever it flies and however long it stays at the destination.

Now, Paleface, you might wonder if Danny flies economy class to Australia...

Posted by: vonessa Sep 27 2006, 11:52 PM

Great is Thy faithfulness, O God my Father;
There is no shadow of turning with Thee;
Thou changest not, Thy compassions, they fail not;
As Thou hast been, Thou forever will be.

Refrain

Great is Thy faithfulness!
Great is Thy faithfulness!
Morning by morning new mercies I see.
All I have needed Thy hand hath provided;
Great is Thy faithfulness, Lord, unto me!

Summer and winter and springtime and harvest,
Sun, moon and stars in their courses above
Join with all nature in manifold witness
To Thy great faithfulness, mercy and love.

Refrain

Pardon for sin and a peace that endureth
Thine own dear presence to cheer and to guide;
Strength for today and bright hope for tomorrow,
Blessings all mine, with ten thousand beside!

Refrain

Posted by: JesseB Sep 28 2006, 12:05 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 27 2006, 09:52 PM)

LOL! Not saying they did, just saying they can. In fact, I would be shocked if they tried to use a Citation VI for a transcontinental flight. To my knowledge they never have. Generally the company jet takes them to St. Louis and Delta takes them through one of the big hubs like Atlanta, then to Frankfurt Germany, on to Moscow, and then a twelve hour over-night train ride to Nizhny Novgorod where Julia Outkina is a most welcome sight.

Citation VI

Type: Light corporate jet
Performance: 495 mph - Max speed
Performance: 467 mph - Max cruising speed
Flying Altitude: 35,200ft

Range: 2696 miles
Lavatory: Yes - Enclosed
Capacity: Flightcrew of two. Typical main passenger cabin seating for six, or optionally up to nine
Toll Free: 1.866.LEAR.JET - info@aircharternetwork.com

Is it used exclusively by 3ABN and where is it based? The photo I tried would not paste.

(

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 27 2006, 09:52 PM)

LOL! Not saying they did, just saying they can. In fact, I would be shocked if they tried to use a Citation VI for a transcontinental flight. To my knowledge they never have. Generally the company jet takes them to St. Louis and Delta takes them through one of the big hubs like Atlanta, then to Frankfurt Germany, on to Moscow, and then a twelve hour over-night train ride to Nizhny Novgorod where Julia Outkina is a most welcome sight.

Citation VI

Type: Light corporate jet
Performance: 495 mph - Max speed
Performance: 467 mph - Max cruising speed
Flying Altitude: 35,200ft
Range: 2696 miles
Lavatory: Yes - Enclosed
Capacity: Flightcrew of two. Typical main passenger cabin seating for six, or optionally up to nine
Toll Free: 1.866.LEAR.JET - info@aircharternetwork.com

(

Posted by: paleface Sep 28 2006, 12:26 AM

Sister:
Not! First class only.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 28 2006, 12:30 AM

It is used exclusively by 3ABN and it is based in Marion, IL. Hitting the jetstreams going West to East, it will go around 600mph, and although is normal cruising altitude is around 35,000 feet, I've flown at 41,000 feet in it. Range can vary with load and prevailing winds, but I doubt anyone would want to take it further than 2,500 miles unless it was an emergency.

Posted by: paleface Sep 28 2006, 12:47 AM

Bearface:
I found a photo of said jet. That is quite a bird! The info read this would seat seven people and had a tie down potty chair. It takes a quite a chunk of change to pay for this pacticular bird.

Since 3abn has exclusive rights to the jet, does that means the pilots have to be on notice 24/7 for Danny's convience?

Sorry Beartrap, I know you are not Bearface as it is 1:00 am here I am ready for bed. I am in woozy land. Good night.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 28 2006, 12:52 AM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 28 2006, 01:42 AM)

Bearface:
I found a photo of said jet. That is quite a bird! The info read this would seat seven people and had a tie down potty chair. It takes a quite a chunk of change to pay for this pacticular bird.

Since 3abn has exclusive rights to the jet, does that means the pilots have to be on notice 24/7 for Danny's convience?

Yes, it has four recliners and a three seat couch up by the galley. LOL! I've seen worse airplane potties. It takes $40,000 per month to lease it. The pilots do other work as well, but they stay on call. the head pilot lives in Bowling Green Kentucky and has to fly his own plane up to Marion when Danny needs him.

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 28 2006, 01:47 AM)

Sorry Beartrap, I know you are not Bearface as it is 1:00 am here I am ready for bed. I am in woozy land. Good night.

rofl Thats alright, as long as you don't call me a bearbehind.

Posted by: Johann Sep 28 2006, 02:52 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 28 2006, 07:30 AM)

I agree with Bear. I do not see them taking the 3ABN jet to Australia. I believe that the company jet always has two pilots on board whenever it flies and however long it stays at the destination.

Now, Paleface, you might wonder if Danny flies economy class to Australia...

Back in 2003 I was asked to meet Danny and Linda in Iceland from where we'd fly together to Denmark and France/Switzerland in the company jet. I understood this was to be their first overseas flight in their own jet. Then shortly before rendesvous I was informed by Mollie htat they had discovered their jet was not equipped to land on European airports. This equipment, I was told, was too expensive for private jets, which are only equipped to land on US airports.

So Linda, Danny, and Tommy flew in their private jet to an airport in the East from where they came to Iceland by the commercial airline.

At that time they had the smaller private jet. I presume the same applies to their present plane, but I am not sure.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 28 2006, 07:35 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 10:32 PM)

.... there is no way it's making it across the Atlantic either . . .

- fhb

The route across the Atlantic for private aircraft is from Saint Johns, Newfoundland, to Reykjavik, Iceland, and then on to Northern Europe's mainland. From there, private jets can get to Australia, if they choose to do so.

I knew of a female pilot who used that route across the Atlantic (more that 25 years ago).

So, now you know why the Sheltons were going to fly their private plane to Iceland to meet Johann there. It's just a common stop on the way to Europe. If Johann says the Sheltons were going to fly to Iceland in their own jet, that's enough for me.

As for the expensive aviation equipment needed for European airports, I'm sure Mr. Shelton could find the money somewhere. That's not the problem. The problem would be the time involved to do the job, train the flight crew, and do the paperwork, etc.. The devil is always in the details.

I'm adding a map so aircraft newbies can get the general idea of the route to Australia. Most of the route is the red line, and the route across the Atlantic is almost the same as the blue line, with a stop in Newfoundland.

For those who have an interest in the route:

More recently, it's become known as a "torture" route. Once across the Atlantic, the CIA can fly their private planes all the way to Turkey, India, and on to the rest of Asia, Australia and New Zealand, if they want to "disappear" someone.

This the Reykjavik Transit page showing CIA planes that cross the Atlantic.

http://reykjaviktransit.blogspot.com/2005_11_01_reykjaviktransit_archive.html

---

Posted by: västergötland Sep 28 2006, 08:27 AM

Hmm, doesnt that flight plan cross places like southern Russia, Afghanistan, Iran and Pakistan. Places where it might not be all that straightforward to get a flight permit?

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 28 2006, 08:40 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 28 2006, 08:27 AM)

Hmm, doesnt that flight plan cross places like southern Russia, Afghanistan, Iran and Pakistan. Places where it might not be all that straightforward to get a flight permit?

Good point.

Basically, please note that I used the words "general idea" when I posted that map. Don't confuse that red line with any actual, concrete, unchangable, specific flight plan. You always have to fly around the current trouble spots.

In fact, you can't even fly a private plane near New York City or Washington DC. It's closed space - at least some areas are.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 28 2006, 08:45 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 28 2006, 08:35 AM)

The route across the Atlantic for private aircraft is from Saint Johns, Newfoundland, to Reykjavik, Iceland, and then on to Northern Europe's mainland. From there, private jets can get to Australia, if they choose to do so.
I knew of a female pilot who used that route across the Atlantic (more that 25 years ago).
So, now you know why the Sheltons were going to fly their private plane to Iceland to meet Johann there. It's just a common stop on the way to Europe. If Johann says the Sheltons were going to fly to Iceland in their own jet, that's enough for me.
As for the expensive aviation equipment needed for European airports, I'm sure Mr. Shelton could find the money somewhere. That's not the problem. The problem would be the time involved to do the job, train the flight crew, and do the paperwork, etc.. The devil is always in the details.
I'm adding a map so aircraft newbies can get the general idea of the route to Australia. Most of the route is the red line, and the route across the Atlantic is almost the same as the blue line, with a stop in Newfoundland.
For those who have an interest in the route:
More recently, it's become known as a "torture" route. Once across the Atlantic, the CIA can fly their private planes all the way to Turkey, India, and on to the rest of Asia, Australia and New Zealand, if they want to "disappear" someone.
This the Reykjavik Transit page showing CIA planes that cross the Atlantic.
http://reykjaviktransit.blogspot.com/2005_11_01_reykjaviktransit_archive.html

Thanks for the clarification and political science/geography lesson. Now, I would wonder how many people (other than the CIA) fly this route. How realistic an endeavor is it - unless you want as close to total secrecy and anonymity as possible. Doesn't strike me that 3ABN is looking for either. So back to the orginal underlying point from my initial response to this - the question was raised as to the cost to "supporters" for the trip to Australia. Most individuals flying to AUS or NZ travel the Pacific route, the 3ABN plane can not make that flight. And, I am most certain that the crew from 3ABN isn't going to take the four or five days it would take to fly the Atlantic route you identified (btw, looking at that route I think it could be called the torture route just from all the up and down you would have to endure.)

As for the sightseeing idea, all the events are held Oct. 28 through 31, with travel time to get from one to the other. The logical question to ask and discover an answer for would be - when do they leave, when do they return. That would give you all you would need to avoid the speculative nature of the original comment which implied the sightseeing was a forgone conclusion.

QUOTE

How many dollars will it take to fly that jet to Australia, pay for the gas, hire the pilot and then pay for expenses for the 3ABN President and his party to sightsee the vast areas of interest in the country of AUstralia.?

- fhb

PS, Just noticed V's comment below . . . it does seem as though some of that route would be rather problematic without some official subversive government acronym on your dossier.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 28 2006, 08:53 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 28 2006, 04:40 PM) ☐

Good point.

Basically, please note that I used the words "general idea" when I posted that map. Don't confuse that red line with any actual, concrete, unchangable, specific flight plan. You always have to fly around the current trouble spots.

In fact, you can't even fly a private plane near New York City or Washington DC. It's closed space - at least some areas are.

Not all of those places are trouble spots. Some just dislike either christians or americans or both...

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 28 2006, 10:27 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 28 2006, 08:45 AM)

Thanks for the clarification and political science/geography lesson. Now, I would wonder how many people (other than the CIA) fly this route.

My point was this: Johann said that the Sheltons were planning to fly to Europe on their private jet. There's no reason to question that. As for reaching Australia on a private jet, that's entirely possible, too. That's really all I'm saying. Wealthy Europeans and Australians have private jets and fly everywhere. It's not even a point of contention. Why make it one?

QUOTE

I am most certain that the crew from 3ABN isn't going to take the four or five days it would take to fly the Atlantic route you identified

You were also certain that small, private, jet airplanes can't cross the Atlantic.

As for your being "most certain" about the 3ABN flight crew not wanting to fly, you really can't be certain of anything unless you, yourself, are that pilot. How many flight crews would rather sit at home doing nothing? Why not fly Danny to Uganda, and India, and Australia if 3ABN has projects in all three places? What's stopping them? Absolutely nothing. How can I make that more clear?

Posted by: summertime Sep 28 2006, 11:34 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 27 2006, 08:41 PM)

Come on, it is obvious that the plane 3ABN leases couldn't even make the flight from LA to Hawaii, much less the 18+ hours it takes to reach Australia.

- fhb

Thanks for the information--Just goes to show how Flying illiterate I am. I was not sure if there were stops they could land along the way to refuel. I guess I need to get an atlas to study the route from Illinois to Australia.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 28 2006, 11:58 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 28 2006, 11:34 AM)

Just goes to show how Flying illiterate I am.

That was the whole point of Fally's spotlight in the first place.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 28 2006, 12:02 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 28 2006, 11:27 AM)

As for your being "most certain" about the 3ABN flight crew not wanting to fly, you really can't be certain of anything unless you, yourself, are that pilot. How many flight crews would rather sit at home doing nothing? Why not fly Danny to Uganda, and India, and Australia if 3ABN has projects in all three places? What's stopping them? Absolutely nothing. How can I make that more clear?

You may have misunderstood, I wasn't referencing the "flight crew", but rather the crew from 3ABN who would be doing the traveling: Danny, et. al. These are the people who wouldn't want to make the journey in such a manner.

I wasn't challenging your knowledge of the possibility of such a flight, as you have adequately pointed out that my original comment wasn't correct - but I am challenging the notion (not presented by you) that 3ABN would even consider such a flight. As for being clear on the possibilities, you certainly are - could that possibility prove problematic, yes as pointed out by V'land.

My original point was not to poke fun at Summertime either - but an attempt to add some perspective before things spun off into a speculative nosedive (pun intended). Hers would be a conclusion many might arrive at not knowing that the plane is not one you would choose to make such a lengthy flight. Re-reading my first post, I would have left off the "Come on" and "obvious" parts, which, while seeemingly condescending, more correctly grew out of a reaction based on my postion that there is far to much speculative commentary/opinion going on - and not as an indictment of Summertime (and Summertime, if it felt that way in reading, my apologies.) I used this once before, so please excuse the redundancy:

"Once you decide to titillate instead of illuminate... you create a climate of expectation that requires a higher and higher level of intensity" (Bill Moyers)

As much as there is a desire to view every 3ABN or Danny action with some level of growing disdain, I really do not think that anyone would choose to fly to Australia/NZ in such a circuitous route. And there in is the point I was making and not one on the intellectual veracity of Summertime.

- fhb

Posted by: västergötland Sep 28 2006, 03:44 PM

There is a small and exclusive group of people that would acctually fly such a plane from western US to Australia, just for the thrill of it. I believe they might be related to the folks who climb Mt Everest and those who try to walk across the antarctic continent.
It is highly doubtfull that anyone discussed in this thread is of this breed however.

Posted by: summertime Sep 28 2006, 04:11 PM

My original point was not to poke fun at Summertime either - but an attempt to add some perspective before things spun off into a speculative nosedive (pun intended). Hers would be a conclusion many might arrive at not knowing that the plane is not one you would choose to make such a lengthy flight. Re-reading my first post, I would have left off the "Come on" and "obvious" parts, which, while seeemingly condescending, more correctly grew out of a reaction based on my postion that there is far to much speculative commentary/opinion going on - and not as an indictment of Summertime (and Summertime, if it felt that way in reading, my apologies.) I used this once before, so please excuse the redundancy:

- fhb
[/quote] Never fear that I need apologizes for my inadequacies----I am glad to learn as I walk in other peoples shoes. Have a Happy Sabbah

Posted by: AmeliaLD Oct 1 2006, 08:50 PM

Wasn't something s'posed to happen today?

Posted by: Cheri4Grace Oct 1 2006, 10:39 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 19 2006, 08:12 AM)

It got started by the announcements made on the 3ABN website at the time, and explicitly on worldwide TV by Danny himself. Probably a most significant moment came at the June 2004 3ABN Campmeeting when Danny pointed to Johann and Arild in the congregation, calling them "demons", the men who had "stolen my wife from me", and then turned to Mark Finley and asked him to pray that God would bring Linda back to him. We now know, of course, that Linda had not even left Danny at that time..... that she was only not at the campmeeting because Danny had made it very plain that he wanted her to be absent. And we also know that the two men were a very well respected and proper Adventist administrator and doctor, respectively. And that Danny in fact was trying to get rid of Linda and did not even want Mark's prayer to be answered affirmatively. But how could the congregation know that.... either the one physically at the 3ABN Campmeeting or those watching live all around the world. How would ANY of us know the truth had not Johann been willing to stand up.... and keep standing up.... for Linda not only then, but until this very day!
I think you have demonstrated one reason that we have to continue to spread the word of truth about 3ABN so that more may hear things gradually rather than being hit with a larger shock than they can handle. So patience is still the order of the day ... so sorry HOTY .... I also am one who tends to pray the "patience prayer" in terms of "Lord GIVE me PATIENCE.... RIGHT NOW!"

But as we said so often a few months ago and have neglected to reiterate recently .... the wheels of justice grind slowly, but they grind exceeding small. Justice will come. God does rule. There are many aspects to the "grinding process" that we cannot be privy to, nor can we make public all that we know is going on. Our role is to keep spreading the information, a little bit at a time, as people can bear it. When the time is right, God will bring about a more drastic information explosion, and finally an even more action oriented "explosion".

In the meantime, do not weary. We know Whose side we are on. And we know He will not forever allow his name to be "taken in vain" as we have seen it handled at 3ABN ... and not only merely by Danny Shelton.
Well ..... maybe "technical" wasn't the best choice of words. Not sure how to supply a better word though, without telling Danny too much. So perhaps we should just say once again .... it's a matter of waiting and using the time to develop our patience.

I have only been on this site a couple times.... i am not sure i get it ... the conversation seems so wrong to be. it feels as if ... it's just wrong.
I was told about the site and that people were talking about Danny and Brandy in a way that was negative. i thought it could be one or two people but my goodness... i am ashamed to read this stuff. I believe the devil has a hold on this thread

Jesus hope for us is to love one another... to jump into a couple marriage problems and think we know what happen is rediculous. Watch out for you own soul...

Posted by: Ralph Oct 2 2006, 01:56 AM

QUOTE(Cheri4Grace @ Oct 1 2006, 10:39 PM)

I have only been on this site a couple times.... i am not sure i get it ... the conversation seems so wrong to be. it feels as if ... it's just wrong.
I was told about the site and that people were talking about Danny and Brandy in a way that was negative. i thought it could be one or two people but my goodness... i am ashamed to read this stuff. I believe the devil has a hold on this thread

Jesus hope for us is to love one another... to jump into a couple marriage problems and think we know what happen is rediculous. Watch out for you own soul...

I can see why you are having problems. You mentioned that you have only visited this site a couple times. I have followed this tragedy since it started to unfold when Linda just seemed to disappear from 3ABN. I have watched how the testimony of witness after witness has fitted like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle into "The Televangelist" which I first read on May 19, 2005. Spend a few hours reading the "pinned" articles at the very top. Study them thoroughly before going farther.

I wish BSDA was just a gossip site. I wish all the negative things that are mentioned were pure fabrications. Unfortunately that is not the case.

If 3ABN belonged to any other church group, I would be concerned for Linda, but would leave it at that. But there is so much more at stake.

As a counselor commented, "If your church doesn't clean it up, the media will." We are not only looking at moral issues that the media revels in, but we could be looking at issues that may be of interest to the IRS. Neither the media nor the IRS will have any mercy.

So I not only fear for 3ABN and many wonderful people who work there. I fear for our church. Some of our church leaders, right up to GC level are aware of what is going on, and seem to be at a loss to know what to do. The media will not be so kind. What will the fallout be? Who will trust the evangelists who are featured on 3ABN and how many people who think of 3ABN as their church will be severely distressed when "the anointed one" proves to be a sham?

A storm is coming, and we are not prepared to meet it. Danny, please pay attention to the roar in the distance.

Ralph Seland

ps welc

Posted by: summertime Oct 2 2006, 01:36 PM

QUOTE

So I not only fear for 3ABN and many wonderful people who work there. I fear for our church. Some of our church leaders, right up to GC level are aware of what is going on, and seem to be at a loss to know what to do. The media will not be so kind. What will the fallout be? Who will trust the evangelists who are featured on 3ABN and how many people who think of 3ABN as their church will be severely distressed when "the anointed one" proves to be a sham?

A storm is coming, and we are not prepared to meet it. Danny, please pay attention to the roar in the distance.

Ralph Seland

ps welc

I hope that you are right that the church leaders simply just do not know what to do about the 3ABN mess. I hope that the evangelists on 3ABN are blind to what is going on there and are simply going about the job of speaking for the Lord. I am truely worried about this because if they are going to be truthful about the message then they need to stop thier idolizing of the Shelton and Co. and tell the truth. In case they simply do not know, I wonder where they have been for the last 2 years. I see people around me becoming discouraged about the ehtics of our church as time goes by.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 2 2006, 05:23 PM

QUOTE(AmeliaLD @ Oct 1 2006, 09:50 PM)

Wasn't something s'posed to happen today?

I am guessing that there was no board meeting and that nothing happened - but then I am not in the loop so I could be wrong. But, the silence seems to indicate that there is a "holding pattern" in effect . . . maybe the east coast investigation team hasn't found anything, or enough of anything, to present a report.

Of course the above is pure speculation so in advance, take it as merely that - just a guess.

On a more factual note, campmeeting seemed to offer some real spiritual meat, and it doesn't matter who it came from - it was there period.

- fhb

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 05:32 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 2 2006, 06:23 PM)

On a more factual note, campmeeting seemed to offer some real spiritual meat, and it doesn't matter who it came from - it was there period.

- fhb

campmeetting offered real spiritual meat in your opinion.... and since many sda's might be vegetarian, don't you mean spiritual vegameat?

Posted by: SoulEspresso Oct 2 2006, 06:35 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 2 2006, 04:32 PM)

campmeetting offered real spiritual meat in your opinion.... and since many sda's might be vegetarian, don't you mean spiritual vegameat?

As George Knight likes to say, "We've got the beast and the image to the beast, and neither of them are good for you." But I think fhb was speaking more positively ... I didn't see any of it myself ...

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Oct 2 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 2 2006, 06:32 PM)

campmeetting offered real spiritual meat in your opinion.... and since many sda's might be vegetarian, don't you mean spiritual vegameat?

HA! Okay, maybe it offered a nice Primesteak or a basket of bbq'd Frichick.

- fhb

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 06:50 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Oct 2 2006, 07:47 PM)

HA! Okay, maybe it offered a nice Primesteak or a basket of bbq'd Frichick.

- fhb

lol..... glad you took it in the spirit in which it was offered.... rofl

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

161

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Is It All About 3abn?

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 23 2006, 10:41 PM

I am curious. We have had a serious influx of new members who are interested in 3ABN but "seem" to have little interest in actually socializing with the rest of BlackSDA as a family in Christ.

True, where you post is your business, but it begs the question... do we really have any interest in fellowship, discussion or seeking to share ones with the rest of your BlackSDA family? Is this what we can expect in heaven?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 23 2006, 10:55 PM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 23 2006, 10:41 PM)

I am curious. We have had a serious influx of new members who are interested in 3ABN but "seem" to have little interest in actually socializing with the rest of BlackSDA as a family in Christ.

True, where you post is your business, but it begs the question... do we really have any interest in fellowship, discussion or seeking to share ones with the rest of your BlackSDA family? Is this what we can expect in heaven?

As I have some as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN, I found BSDA on the internet because of the discussion of 3ABN. However, I have made posts since then to other topics, with little response. Perhaps it's not just us "newbies" finding the action in the 3ABN forum. ? For example, I have yet to receive any comments on my interpretation of "hell" in the topic of "Hell here and now". (I don't know how to paste in the links to other topics yet.)

Actually, I'm happy that I found BSDA, because I'm currently quite isolated and have no adult Sabbath School to attend, and will likely be in this situation for many more months, perhaps years. I am looking forward to participating in some of the Bible discussions here, and I wish to say thank you to all who are supporting these forums and making them open to folks like me. God bless!

Posted by: princessdi Sep 23 2006, 11:04 PM

As I have some as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN, I found BSDA on the internet because of the discussion of 3ABN. However, I have made posts since then to other topics, with little response. Perhaps it's not just us "newbies" finding the action in the 3ABN forum. ? For example, I have yet to receive any comments on my interpretation of "hell" in the topic of "Hell here and now".
Fear not, GC a lot of folks are not online over the weekend and especially Saturday nights.

(I don't know how to paste in the links to other topics yet.)

Just to go the page that contains the link and copy the address and either just paste it directly to your post or use the Insert Link option at the top of the "reply" box.

Actually, I'm happy that I found BSDA, because I'm currently quite isolated and have no adult Sabbath School to attend, and will likely be in this situation for many more months, perhaps years. I am looking forward to participating in some of the Bible discussions here, and I wish to say thank you to all who are supporting these forums and making them open to folks like me. God bless!

Looking forward to reading more of your posts, also!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 23 2006, 11:06 PM

Looking for it as we speak....My apologies...

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 23 2006, 10:55 PM)

As I have some as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN, I found BSDA on the internet because of the discussion of 3ABN. However, I have made posts since then to other topics, with little response. Perhaps it's not just us "newbies" finding the action in the 3ABN forum. ? For example, I have yet to receive any comments on my interpretation of "hell" in the topic of "Hell here and now". (I don't know how to paste in the links to other topics yet.)

Actually, I'm happy that I found BSDA, because I'm currently quite isolated and have no adult Sabbath School to attend, and will likely be in this situation for many more months, perhaps years. I am looking forward to participating in some of the Bible discussions here, and I wish to say thank you to all who are supporting these forums and making them open to folks like me. God bless!

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 23 2006, 11:13 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 12:55 AM)

As I have some as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN, I found BSDA on the internet because of the discussion of 3ABN. However, I have made posts since then to other topics, with little response. Perhaps it's not just us "newbies" finding the action in the 3ABN forum. ? For example, I have yet to receive any comments on my interpretation of "hell" in the topic of "Hell here and now". (I don't know how to paste in the links to other topics yet.)

Actually, I'm happy that I found BSDA, because I'm currently quite isolated and have no adult Sabbath School to attend, and will likely be in this situation for many more months, perhaps years. I am looking forward to participating in some of the Bible discussions here, and I wish to say thank you to all who are supporting these forums and making them open to folks like me. God bless!

It's nice to know some folk are wading into other parts of the BSDA pool. Since I have not been on of late I'll have to check those topics out.

We have a regular Sabbath School lesson study on Friday nights here in "Live Chat" which I facilitate, more often than not. Awesumtenor leads out with help from laryfromgary and calvin. You are more than welcome to join us. The class usually slows down a bit over the summer, due to folks going on vacation etc... but we should be getting into full swing again pretty soon. Please stop by. You'll see the details in my signature welcome.gif

btw h

Posted by: sister Sep 23 2006, 11:17 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 23 2006, 11:55 PM)

As I have some as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN, I found BSDA on the internet because of the discussion of 3ABN. However, I have made posts since then to other topics, with little response. Perhaps it's not just us "newbies" finding the action in the 3ABN forum. ? For example, I have yet to receive any comments on my interpretation of "hell" in the topic of "Hell here and now". (I don't know how to paste in the links to other topics yet.)

Actually, I'm happy that I found BSDA, because I'm currently quite isolated and have no adult Sabbath School to attend, and will likely be in this situation for many more months, perhaps years. I am looking forward to participating in some of the Bible discussions here, and I wish to say thank you to all who are supporting these forums and making them open to folks like me. God bless!

Since you brought up the topic, what are those as-yet unrevealed connections to 3ABN? I assume that if you were not willing to share this information you would have remained silent in regard to it.

welc

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 23 2006, 11:44 PM

I mentioned that only to clarify how I found this forum, and to help seraph|m see that my interest in the 3ABN topic was not merely that of a bystander. However, so far I have not yet felt free to speak openly. I'm sure all will agree that the topic is quite sensitive, with both moral and legal ramifications of anything said. I am trying to determine who to trust, and I may wish in the future to contact someone privately. (I think that is possible, right?) Please do not ask more, as I feel I must be plenty cautious given the situation.

Posted by: Freedom Sep 24 2006, 03:56 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 12:44 AM)

I mentioned that only to clarify how I found this forum, and to help seraph|m see that my interest in the 3ABN topic was not merely that of a bystander. However, so far I have not yet felt free to speak openly. I'm sure all will agree that the topic is quite sensitive, with both moral and legal ramifications of anything said. I am trying to determine who to trust, and I may wish in the future to contact someone privately. (I think that is possible, right?) Please do not ask more, as I feel I must be plenty cautious given the situation.

There are others here that can relate to your concerns about speaking openly and whom to trust. Keep reading and post when you feel "safe" to do so.

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 24 2006, 04:42 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 24 2006, 12:41 AM)

I am curious. We have had a serious influx of new members who are interested in 3ABN but "seem" to have little interest in actually socializing with the rest of BlackSDA as a family in Christ.

True, where you post is your business, but it begs the question... do we really have any interest in fellowship, discussion or seeking to share ones with the rest of your BlackSDA family? Is this what we can expect in heaven?

A group of us had this very conversation in LC several days ago. Yes, it is certainly true that the exploding topic of 3ABN has brought additional members to BSDA who, in my opinion, would not have ordinarily joined this forum. If these members are honest, they would not disagree with me.

While it is true that a member can post wherever he or she chooses to, it would be so nice if other topics and discussions were considered worthy of their input. BSDA has an international membership and we can only benefit from the various, and cultrally disverse views and opinions of each other. And while the Forum is called "Black SDA," the topics are not restricted or limited to input of Black members. All members are encouraged to participate in any topic or discussion in this forum.

I have been a member since April and it's like I've never left. I have learned so much and benefitted from the thoughts and ideas of the membership. You won't agree with everything or everyone...but you will be challenged to think, and the arcade is always available to provide the much welcomed relief...

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 04:55 AM

I find this forum to be alive in non-3abn related topics aswell as in the chatroom. Unfortunately I havent been able to attend as much lately for computer-technical reasons. (Cant figure out how to properly uppdate Debian...)

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 05:09 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 24 2006, 04:55 AM)

I find this forum to be alive in non-3abn related topics aswell as in the chatroom. Unfortunately I havent been able to attend as much lately for computer-technical reasons. (Cant figure out how to properly uppdate Debian...)

Thomas we have (or I have since I cant speak for everyone) enjoyed your participation here.... hope you stick around for many a year.....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 05:52 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 24 2006, 04:55 AM)

I find this forum to be alive in non-3abn related topics aswell as in the chatroom. Unfortunately I havent been able to attend as much lately for computer-technical reasons. (Cant figure out how to properly uppdate Debian...)

Skip Debian...try Ubuntu! It's the best IMO. (I know, you might not have the option...just a suggestion if you wish to try something new.) ofl

---

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 06:25 AM

Green, I guess the reason I have these problems is I am trying something new. Tried Fedora last time and there the graphics worked while update was a pain. This time graphics dont work and only the updates needed to be done outside of X are a pain. Would have tried Mandriva if its start CD would acctually start on my computer... Will try to remember Ubuntu next time I try something new on the linux computer.

Clay, Thank you. Likely will be around unless something radically changes in my life circumbstances.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 06:47 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 24 2006, 04:42 AM)

A group of us had this very conversation in LC several days ago. Yes, it is certainly true that the exploding topic of 3ABN has brought additional members to BSDA who, in my opinion, would not have ordinarily joined this forum. If these members are honest, they would not disagree with me.

While it is true that a member can post wherever he or she chooses to, it would be so nice if other topics and discussions were considered worthy of their input. BSDA has an international membership and we can only benefit from the various, and cultrally disverse views and opinions of each other. And while the Forum is called "Black SDA," the topics are not restricted or limited to input of Black members. All members are encouraged to participate in any topic or discussion in this forum.

I have been a member since April and it's like I've never left. I have learned so much and benefitted from the thoughts and ideas of the membership. You won't agree with everything or everyone...but you will be challenged to think, and the arcade is always available to provide the much welcomed relief...

I was a member way back when BSDA was an email list, and only dropped out then because it got too engrossing, and I simply couldn't keep up with that and other things in my life. And like Carribean, when I "came back" it was like I had never been away. Though admittedly, I came this time because BSDA had opened its arms to the 3abn topics, and have seldom ventured out of this area. However, that is not a matter of considering other areas either un"worthy" or unattractive. Quite the contrary. It is a simple matter of time and amount of "brain-span" available. And since I am sadly neglecting my responsibilities in a number of areas of life, the more time that passes the more urgent it is that I get back to those. So I doubt if I will be venturing out into other areas of BSDA any time soon, certainly not before 2007 (when the "Christmas rush" is over). But I do very much appreciate the "family" atmosphere here and hope that sometime in the future I'll be able to spend more time in both the lighter areas and in the more profound ones. In the meantime, thank you once more to Calvin and all his crew, not only for providing a wide open forum where all can come to discuss 3ABN matters, but also for the wide variety of forums they provide, and the way they manage to keep everything running smoothly..... most of the time..... and find ways to smooth out the "bumps" when they do occur. Blessings on each and every one of you.

Posted by: September Sep 24 2006, 09:08 AM

Okay I'll be honest...I came here because the topic of 3ABN was open here and I've been waiting to hear how Linda was vindicated. I'm not here because I want to stand and gawk at 3ABN's failures--but I do want to see how the Lord works everything out.

To be honest, I have checked out the other forums--and have been in LC a few times--but like with some friendships, if there's not a whole lot in common the friendship is more 'distant' if you will. Since I am not an SDA there are discussions that I simply cannot identify with--things I have no idea what are being talked about and that gets overwhelming to me.

You may wonder why I should take such an interest in 3ABN while not being an Adventist...well, when we used to get 3ABN Linda really ministered to me on her front porch. She had a heart connection with Jesus and that appealed greatly to me. When I found out that she was let go--and the subsequent divorce--it hurt me deeply. Ever since then, I have wanted to see how the Lord was going to work this out--because I knew that Linda was innocent. The experieces she had on 3ABN are unfortunately close to some in my own life. I was never vindicated--no one came to aid my cause even though it was widely known. I have a burning desire to help, where I can, those who are victimized but are silenced through no fault of their own. I have written letters, passed on information, and have been doing what I can to help.

So that is primarily why I'm here. I don't 'do' message boards really--just don't have the time nor the desire.

September

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 09:18 AM

Thanks for your honesty and do understand many points that you touched on....There are other members here that are also not SDA, so please do not let that be a reason for you to not participate in discussions or start your own thread. Being a genuine Christian is the most important thing.... just glad that for whatever reasons you are here.

QUOTE(September @ Sep 24 2006, 10:08 AM)

Okay I'll be honest...I came here because the topic of 3ABN was open here and I've been waiting to hear how Linda was vindicated. I'm not here because I want to stand and gawk at 3ABN's failures--but I do want to see how the Lord works everything out.

To be honest, I have checked out the other forums--and have been in LC a few times--but like with some friendships, if there's not a whole lot in common the friendship is more 'distant' if you will. Since I am not an SDA there are discussions that I simply cannot identify with--things I have no idea what are being talked about and that gets overwhelming to me.

You may wonder why I should take such an interest in 3ABN while not being an Adventist...well, when we used to get 3ABN Linda really ministered to me on her front porch. She had a heart connection with Jesus and that appealed greatly to me. When I found out that she was let go--and the subsequent divorce--it hurt me deeply. Ever since then, I have wanted to see how the Lord was going to work this out--because I knew that Linda was innocent. The experieces she had on 3ABN are unfortunately close to some in my own life. I was never vindicated--no one came to aid my cause even though it was widely known. I have a burning desire to help, where I can, those who are victimized but are silenced through no fault of their own. I have written letters, passed on information, and have been doing what I can to help.

So that is primarily why I'm here. I don't 'do' message boards really--just don't have the time nor the desire.

September

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 09:21 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 24 2006, 06:55 AM)

(Cant figure out how to properly uppdate Debian...)

Switch to SuSE 10 or Ubuntu

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Lubega Sep 24 2006, 09:31 AM

QUOTE(September @ Sep 24 2006, 11:08 AM)

Okay I'll be honest...I came here because the topic of 3ABN was open here and I've been waiting to hear how Linda was vindicated. I'm not here because I want to stand and gawk at 3ABN's failures--but I do want to see how the Lord works everything out.

To be honest, I have checked out the other forums--and have been in LC a few times--but like with some friendships, if there's not a whole lot in common the friendship is more 'distant' if you will. Since I am not an SDA there are discussions that I simply cannot identify with--things I have no idea what are being talked about and that gets overwhelming to me.

You may wonder why I should take such an interest in 3ABN while not being an Adventist...well, when we used to get 3ABN Linda really ministered to me on her front porch. She had a heart connection with Jesus and that appealed greatly to me. When I found out that she was let go--and the subsequent divorce--it hurt me deeply. Ever since then, I have wanted to see how the Lord was going to work this out--because I knew that Linda was innocent. The experieces she had on 3ABN are unfortunately close to some in my own life. I was never vindicated--no one came to aid my cause even though it was widely known. I have a burning desire to help, where I can, those who are victimized but are silenced through no fault of their own. I have written letters, passed on information, and have been doing what I can to help.

So that is primarily why I'm here. I don't 'do' message boards really--just don't have the time nor the desire.

September

September I would like to say this; I have never read nor seen anyone that sincerely dose the work of the Lord to be fairly treated. They are usually hurt by those that hate the Lord but call on His name as being a part of Him or they are killed by those that say they are doing the work of god. Which god are they working for? In this life we must all remember that where the truth is spoken few will gather together but where lies are spoken many shall join. Keep praying, we really don't know who is right and who is wrong all we know it what we read, hear, and yes make-up. Only God, Danny and Linda know the truth. But you know maybe only God knows.....

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 24 2006, 09:58 AM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 24 2006, 06:42 AM)

A group of us had this very conversation in LC several days ago. Yes, it is certainly true that the exploding topic of 3ABN has brought additional members to BSDA who, in my opinion, would not have ordinarily joined this forum. If these members are honest, they would not disagree with me.

While it is true that a member can post wherever he or she chooses to, it would be so nice if other topics and discussions were considered worthy of their input. BSDA has an international membership and we can only benefit from the various, and cultrally disverse views and opinions of each other. And while the Forum is called "Black SDA," the topics are not restricted or limited to input of Black members. All members are encouraged to participate in any topic or discussion in this forum.

I have been a member since April and it's like I've never left. I have learned so much and benefitted from the thoughts and ideas of the membership. You won't agree with everything or everyone...but you will be challenged to think, and the arcade is always available to provide the much welcomed relief...

Thank you CSDA, very well said. We can all learn and grow through interaction with each other.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 24 2006, 10:38 AM

QUOTE(September @ Sep 24 2006, 11:08 AM)

Okay I'll be honest...I came here because the topic of 3ABN was open here and I've been waiting to hear how Linda was vindicated. I'm not here because I want to stand and gawk at 3ABN's failures--but I do want to see how the Lord works everything out.

To be honest, I have checked out the other forums--and have been in LC a few times--but like with some friendships, if there's not a whole lot in common the friendship is more 'distant' if you will. Since I am not an SDA there are discussions that I simply cannot identify with--things I have no idea what are being talked about and that gets overwhelming to me.

You may wonder why I should take such an interest in 3ABN while not being an Adventist...well, when we used to get 3ABN Linda really ministered to me on her front porch. She had a heart connection with Jesus and that appealed greatng to work this out--because I knew that Linda was innocent. The experiecly to me. When I found out that she was let go--and the subsequent divorce--it hurt me deeply. Ever since then, I have wanted to see how the Lord was goies she had on 3ABN are unfortunately close to some in my own life. I was never vindicated--no one came to aid my cause even though it was widely known. I have a burning desire to help, where I can, those who are victimized but are silenced through no fault of their own. I have written letters, passed on information, and have been doing what I can to help.

So that is primarily why I'm here. I don't 'do' message boards really--just don't have the time nor the desire.

September

That's kewl. I too have experienced some of the issues you've stated above and, though one is not always vindicated before men, I thank the Lord Jesus He is our advocate before the Father who is just and righteous in all He does.

Though the op does not speak of "friendships" but our being family in Christ Jesus, bear the following in mind:

Pro 18:24 A man [that hath] friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend [that] sticketh closer than a brother.

Posted by: September Sep 24 2006, 10:54 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 24 2006, 12:38 PM)

That's kewl. I too have experienced some of the issues you've stated above and, though one is not always vindicated before men, I thank the Lord Jesus He is our advocate before the Father who is just and righteous in all He does.

Though the op does not speak of "friendships" but our being family in Christ Jesus, bear the following in mind:

Pro 18:24 A man [that hath] friends must shew himself friendly: and there is a friend [that] sticketh closer than a brother.

I realize that I probably sounded like I'm not interested in friendships here...that's not true at all I didn't mean to come across that way.

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Sep 24 2006, 11:01 AM

I too am one of those who came here because of the 3abn topic. I'd never heard of this site until reading about it on Maritime. As a white person who lives in the country I likely cannot relate to many of the topics on other threads. Just my $0.02.

Richard

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 11:17 AM

Where does the issue of unity as a church body (worldwide) fall into this? A crisis cannot be the only time that we as Christians--and SDA Christians can come together and fellowship...IOW when the 3ABN drama is over, will you and all of the others that have joined to chat in the 3ABN Forum suddenly disappear? We hope not....

> QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 24 2006, 11:01 AM)
>
> I too am one of those who came here because of the 3abn topic. I'd never heard of this site until reading about it on Maritime. As a white person who lives in the country I likely cannot relate to many of the topics on other threads. Just my $0.02.
>
> Richard

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 11:54 AM

> QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 24 2006, 09:17 AM)
>
> Where does the issue of unity as a church body (worldwide) fall into this? A crisis cannot be the only time that we as Christians--and SDA Christians can come together and fellowship...IOW when the 3ABN drama is over, will you and all of the others that have joined to chat in the 3ABN Forum suddenly disappear? We hope not....

I didn't know about BSDA or any of the other similar forums until a friend told me about the 3abn forum. I joined the very next day which was 4 weeks ago. Just last week, since I had some time off, I decided to peek around at what other threads were here and found "The Lighter Side". It has been a hoot! I have enjoyed the banter and the opportunity to get to know many of you on a different level.

Unfortunately, if I tried to branch out to any other discussions I'm afraid my husband would pull the plug on my computer! He is deservedly realous for my attention. I told him to speak up if he feels like I am spending too much time here and he has!

My dear one is not interested in things spiritual at this time so not only have I been finding out lots of information on the 3abn situation, I also have been enjoying the spiritual exchange tremendously. If he requests that I step away from the computer, I'm afraid I will have to request that he then be willing to fill my spiritual discussion needs himself.

Posted by: lurker Sep 24 2006, 05:41 PM

I love Blacksda, all of it. I hear what you say. I don't say much. I'd say more if I wasn't so busy laughing at life along with y'all and enjoying what you add to this place. So many fun people in one place. Couldn't be better!

Posted by: princessdi Sep 24 2006, 07:39 PM

September, I believe I have been in LC when you are there. I quite enjoyed the conversation. Sarah, put it very well. Being SDA is not a pre-requisite(sp) to being a member or participating. Just ask what is not clear, no one minds explaining in posts or LC(which is definitely more fast pace). That makes even more discussion, and you will soon find out that you are not alone. Just jump in as much or as little as you feel comfortable!

QUOTE(September @ Sep 24 2006, 07:08 AM) ☐

Okay I'll be honest...I came here because the topic of 3ABN was open here and I've been waiting to hear how Linda was vindicated. I'm not here because I want to stand and gawk at 3ABN's failures--but I do want to see how the Lord works everything out.

To be honest, I have checked out the other forums--and have been in LC a few times--but like with some friendships, if there's not a whole lot in common the friendship is more 'distant' if you will. Since I am not an SDA there are discussions that I simply cannot identify with--things I have no idea what are being talked about and that gets overwhelming to me.

You may wonder why I should take such an interest in 3ABN while not being an Adventist...well, when we used to get 3ABN Linda really ministered to me on her front porch. She had a heart connection with Jesus and that appealed greatly to me. When I found out that she was let go--and the subsequent divorce--it hurt me deeply. Ever since then, I have wanted to see how the Lord was going to work this out--because I knew that Linda was innocent. The experieces she had on 3ABN are unfortunately close to some in my own life. I was never vindicated--no one came to aid my cause even though it was widely known. I have a burning desire to help, where I can, those who are victimized but are silenced through no fault of their own. I have written letters, passed on information, and have been doing what I can to help.

So that is primarily why I'm here. I don't 'do' message boards really--just don't have the time nor the desire.

September

Posted by: rwelchcrs Sep 24 2006, 08:16 PM

I think my first contact with BSDA was last year when I posted a prayer request for my son in Iraq. He's back now, and doing well. Thank you for your prayers. Some of you responded with messages of encouragment and I really appreciate that. It was during the process of perusing the other threads that I came across the 3ABN topic. You must admit it's a hot topic that holds universal interest to many Adventists. Also, this is only one of two websites that has the courage to discuss this timely issue. There used to be three. BSDA is providing a sounding and information board for a volatile issue that historically would never have seen the light of day.
I do visit some of the other threads and have found some to be a blessing.
Don't assume the high volume of hits on the 3ABN topic indicate a lack of interest in the other threads. Actually, your willingness to carry this discussion is probably leading to a greater interest in the rest of the threads. Just because we don't post on the others doesn't mean we're not reading them.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 24 2006, 08:49 PM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 24 2006, 01:01 PM)

I too am one of those who came here because of the 3abn topic. I'd never heard of this site until reading about it on Maritime. As a white person who lives in the country I likely cannot relate to many of the topics on other threads. Just my $0.02.

Richard

Not to ANY of the topics on other threads? Nothing on health, nothing on relationships, prayer for others, or praise and testimonies of Gods goodness? Nothing? OK.

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 25 2006, 08:41 AM

QUOTE

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 24 2006, 01:01 PM) *

I too am one of those who came here because of the 3abn topic. I'd never heard of this site until reading about it on Maritime. As a white person who lives in the country I likely cannot relate to many of the topics on other threads. Just my $0.02.

Richard

I hate to disagree with you but if you just start looking you'll find a lot of good things here. I originally came here because of the 3ABN threads & I'm white & live in the country as well!!!! BUT I have met some super people on here & am making some good friends from it all. I enjoy ALL OF BSDA forums not just this one. Some of course more than others but I can relate to a lot of the topics on here & I participate in a lot of them as well now. In fact I go to the other parts of the board more now than I do this thread. I love BSDA & am glad I am part of it now.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 08:48 AM

...and you know that I am glad you're hear Hershey Bar!!!! hug.gif

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 25 2006, 08:41 AM)

I hate to disagree with you but if you just start looking you'll find a lot of good things here. I originally came here because of the 3ABN threads & I'm white & live in the country as well!!!! BUT I have met some super people on here & am making some good friends from it all. I enjoy ALL OF BSDA forums not just this one. Some of course more than others but I can relate to a lot of the topics on here & I participate in a lot of them as well now. In fact I go to the other parts of the board more now than I do this thread. I love BSDA & am glad I am part of it now.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 25 2006, 09:14 AM

You are fine, September. Looking forward to chatting more with you and the other newer members here.

QUOTE(September @ Sep 24 2006, 09:54 AM)

I realize that I probably sounded like I'm not interested in friendships here...that's not true at all I didn't mean to come across that way.

Posted by: Denny Sep 25 2006, 09:22 AM

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 25 2006, 03:41 PM)

I hate to disagree with you but if you just start looking you'll find a lot of good things here. I originally came here because of the 3ABN threads & I'm white & live in the country as well!!!! BUT I have met some super people on here & am making some good friends from it all. I enjoy ALL OF BSDA forums not just this one. Some of course more than others but I can relate to a lot of the topics on here & I participate in a lot of them as well now. In fact I go to the other parts of the board more now than I do this thread. I love BSDA & am glad I am part of it now.

Hear, hear Hershey, the only 'black section' on this forum is in The Black experience even then anyone can post in there. The rest of the sections are all universal we all either married single and have famalies, have a local church, like music into health and technology, got jokes, like to be entertained and read books or just chill. These are not black issues at all.

Posted by: seeshell Sep 25 2006, 05:19 PM

Admittedly, I first came here for the 3ABN threads as well...I found BSDA while searching online for 3ABN info. At first I had limited interest in other sections, but I guess you all can tell I overcame the lack of interest! rofl I do feel a bit funny posting so much, sometimes, as this is Black SDA, and I am not black and I don't want to seem like I'm trying to take over or anything...

Tip to newbies...if you want to get "noticed" just try saying something controversial...that'll get you noticed! I found that out the hard way. ...Just kidding...it may be true, but I don't want to go to inciting others to start arguments!!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 08:12 PM

Girl please! BlackSDA just ensures that the "Black perspective" is included...but is certainly not limited to Blacks...and don't feel like you are taking over....none of us can.

You better keep on posting!

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 25 2006, 06:19 PM)

Admittedly, I first came here for the 3ABN threads as well...I found BSDA while searching online for 3ABN info. At first I had limited interest in other sections, but I guess you all can tell I overcame the lack of interest! rofl I do feel a bit funny posting so much, sometimes, as this is Black SDA, and I am not black and I don't want to seem like I'm trying to take over or anything...

Tip to newbies...if you want to get "noticed" just try saying something controversial...that'll get you noticed! I found that out the hard way. ...Just kidding...it may be true, but I don't want to go to inciting others to start arguments!!

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 25 2006, 10:21 PM

I too came to this site because Dr. Sam put a little blurb in one of his newsletters to come here to hear Lind's side of the story. I think I was in a state of shock after reading the pinned letters and so have been reading faithlfully every couple of days. When I came to this site I knew very little about posting and the language of threads(still know very little) I tried to join the chat room but couldn't make that happen. Havn't figured out the shout box yet. Discovered the arcade but most of the games are beyond me I can handle the bubble cherry game (sort of). Havn't figured out what all the shorthand stands for yet but am trying. Found the heathen family tree and joined. I CAN READ so I read the different threads. Havn't felt comfortable posting except in 3abn and the heathen family I think mostly because you all are so good at it. I feel inadequate.(sp) I don't understand how you can all be so quick witted when you have no idea who you are talking to. I couldn't figure out how to put a quote in my post until Ralph sent a personal message. Thank you. Havn't figured out how to read someone's posts without looking through the whole thread. I think I must be to old Can't even figure out what all the smiley faces mean. All of my kids are wizes on the computer have their own web pages and post all the time. They tell me I am hopeless. Anyway, I think your site is wonderful and I love being here and as I learn more I hope to contribute more to other threads. BTW I also am white Duh! and live in the country.

TB

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 25 2006, 11:04 PM

For any, who may have missed the point of my thread, it is a blessing that you were drawn to BSDA, regardless of the reason. But the blessing does not end with what drew us here. We will all be blessed even more as we venture out of our comfort zone and learn to fellowship together throughout BSDA.

Posted by: Johann Sep 26 2006, 06:56 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 07:04 AM)

For any, who may have missed the point of my thread, it is a blessing that you were drawn to BSDA, regardless of the reason. But the blessing does not end with what drew us here. We will all be blessed even more as we venture out of our comfort zone and learn to fellowship together throughout BSDA.

BSDA is great! May the Lord increase "our" tribe.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 26 2006, 07:59 AM

You are too funny! rofl ...and I like it!

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 25 2006, 11:21 PM)

I too came to this site because Dr. Sam put a little blurb in one of his newsletters to come here to hear Lind's side of the story. I think I was in a state of shock after reading the pinned letters and so have been reading faithlfully every couple of days. When I came to this site I knew very little about posting and the language of threads(still know very little) I tried to join the chat room but couldn't make that happen. Havn't figured out the shout box yet. Discovered the arcade but most of the games are beyond me I can handle the bubble cherry game (sort of). Havn't figured out what all the shorthand stands for yet but am trying. Found the heathen family tree and joined. I CAN READ so I read the different threads. Havn't felt comfortable posting except in 3abn and the heathen family I think mostly because you all are so good at it. I feel inadequate.(sp) I don't understand how you can all be so quick witted when you have no idea who you are talking to. I couldn't figure out how to put a quote in my post until Ralph sent a personal message. Thank you. Havn't figured out how to read someone's posts without looking through the whole thread. I think I must be to old Can't even figure out what all the smiley faces mean. All of my kids are wizes on the computer have their own web pages and post all the time. They tell me I am hopeless. Anyway, I think your site is wonderful and I love being here and as I learn more I hope to contribute more to other threads. BTW I also am white Duh! and live in the country.

TB

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 26 2006, 08:12 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 01:04 AM)

For any, who may have missed the point of my thread, it is a blessing that you were drawn to BSDA, regardless of the reason. But the blessing does not end with what drew us here. We will all be blessed even more as we venture out of our comfort zone and learn to fellowship together throughout BSDA.

I could not have said it better myself...even if I tried. When we venture out of our comfort zone we will come to the realization that we are more alike than not...

Posted by: seeshell Sep 26 2006, 09:25 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 25 2006, 08:12 PM)

Girl please! BlackSDA just ensures that the "Black perspective" is included...but is certainly not limited to Blacks...and don't feel like you are taking over....none of us can.

You better keep on posting!

Thanks simplys, I will stick around. You're right, no one could really "take over"...nooooo, I don't think that would be permitted. Too many vocal folk about!

Posted by: summertime Sep 26 2006, 09:42 AM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 26 2006, 09:25 AM)

Thanks simplys, I will stick around. You're right, no one could really "take over"...nooooo, I don't think that would be permitted. Too many vocal folk about!

I just want to break into this conversation long enough to say that this forum has taught me a lot---I used to wonder how all races would interact when we all get to heaven---Now, BSDA and MSDAOL have given me the answer--we will all be anxious to visit with each other in our new mansions---Yea, Clay, maybe I am being a little dramatic--you have been in inspiration to us all. I have learned a lot from you.

Posted by: Denny Sep 26 2006, 09:58 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 26 2006, 04:42 PM)

I just want to break into this conversation long enough to say that this forum has taught me a lot---I used to wonder how all races would interact when we all get to heaven---Now, BSDA and MSDAOL have given me the answer--we will all be anxious to visit with each other in our new mansions---Yea, Clay, maybe I am being a little dramatic--you have been in inspiration to us all. I have learned a lot from you.

and there will be no segregated areas the concept of 'race' will not exist in fact there will only be one race - homo sapien

---

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 10:42 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 26 2006, 09:58 AM)

and there will be no segregated areas the concept of 'race' will not exist in fact there will only be one race - homo sapien

Or maybe homo resurrectien????? ..... (..... angel.gi ....

wow.gif

Posted by: summertime Sep 26 2006, 10:52 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 26 2006, 09:58 AM)

and there will be no segregated areas the concept of 'race' will not exist in fact there will only be one race - homo sapien

But how are we going to be known as we are known? Does not Sister White say that we will recognize and know one another in heaven?

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 26 2006, 11:00 AM

rofl

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 26 2006, 10:42 AM)

Or maybe homo resurrectien????? .... angel.gi ....

wow.gif

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 11:57 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 26 2006, 09:58 AM)

and there will be no segregated areas the concept of 'race' will not exist in fact there will only be one race - homo sapien

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 26 2006, 10:52 AM)

But how are we going to be known as we are known? Does not Sister White say that we will recognize and know one another in heaven?

And scripture at least strongly implies that we will be reunited with those we knew on earth, though it also strongly suggests that our bodies will be much different after resurrection than before. (See 1 Cor 15). As to the concept of "race".... I would guess that Denny was using the term in the negative way we have come to use it on this earth. In fact, God made all "races" of men, and there is little reason to expect that there will not be the same range of colors in heaven as there are here..... but there will be no stigma attached to any color, and all will love the color they are.... and quite possibly we'll have greater ability to change our appearance there than what we do here. But basically, our bodies will be different..... glorified, immortal, spiritual .... whatever those terms mean. Except for the "immortal" part, we probably have little or no comprehension of even what they might mean.

But scripture still promises..... "we shall know as we are known".

Actually, all I want is the BE THERE! I could care less if I'm white, black, brown, blue, green, or purple!

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 12:42 PM

What about shiny bronze?

Posted by: Clay Sep 26 2006, 01:40 PM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 26 2006, 10:42 AM)

I just want to break into this conversation long enough to say that this forum has taught me a lot---I used to wonder how all races would interact when we all get to heaven---Now, BSDA and MSDAOL have given me the answer--we will all be anxious to visit with each other in our new mansions---Yea, Clay, maybe I am being a little dramatic--you have been in inspiration to us all. I have learned a lot from you.

well thank you.... I want to say that I have enjoyed all the "newbies" and have found it exciting to learn your posting styles, and how you all interact.... I hope that you all stick around for awhile because your presence does make us all better just because you are here....

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 26 2006, 06:55 PM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 26 2006, 11:58 AM)

and there will be no segregated areas the concept of 'race' will not exist in fact there will only be one race - homo sapien

Sis, there is CURRENTLY only ONE race of men...

Act 17:26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

Can we PLEASE stop the bald face lie that there is more than one race. The whole point of making distinctions about "race" is to continue perpetuating the lie that some "races" are better than others. According to my Father all nations of men are made of one blood. According to my Father --

Gal 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.
Col 3:11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond [nor] free: but Christ [is] all, and in all.

Sis I am just saying we don't want to keep that lie going.

Posted by: sister Sep 26 2006, 08:39 PM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 07:55 PM)

Sis, there is CURRENTLY only ONE race of men...

Act 17:26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

Can we PLEASE stop the bald face lie that there is more than one race. The whole point of making distinctions about "race" is to continue perpetuating the lie that some "races" are better than others. According to my Father all nations of men are made of one blood. According to my Father --

Gal 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

Col 3:11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond [nor] free: but Christ [is] all, and in all.

Sis I am just saying we don't want to keep that lie going.

I agree with you completely. We are definitely one blood, from common ancestry.

Posted by: JustTana Sep 26 2006, 08:41 PM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 08:55 PM)

Sis, there is CURRENTLY only ONE race of men...

Act 17:26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

Can we PLEASE stop the bald face lie that there is more than one race. The whole point of making distinctions about "race" is to continue perpetuating the lie that some "races" are better than others. According to my Father all nations of men are made of one blood. According to my Father --

Gal 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.
Col 3:11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond [nor] free: but Christ [is] all, and in all.

Sis I am just saying we don't want to keep that lie going.

That's fer sure! But I have found the two times I have been to a make up-store (Merle Norman) and another, more sophisticated one (with a free coupon!) I was certainly surprised at how differently the two make-up artists saw me. I had a fairly sallow complection as a young girl and expected that the MU artist would use that feature to my advantage by giving my face a lightly tanned look. Well the Merle Norman gal did a very good job. But the other gal decided to take all of the color out of my face and when she was done I literally looked like a clown! Back then I was not a very kind person when something like that surprised me and I walked out of the store exclaiming that I looked like a CLOWN. The poor girl was so-o-o-o embarrassed and I was ashamed of my own self when I got back into my car. Poor girl had done the best she could with what she had. But I should have gone back into the store and apologized to her.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 26 2006, 08:53 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 26 2006, 10:41 PM)

That's fer sure! But I have found the two times I have been to a make up-store (Merle Norman) and another, more sophisticated one (with a free coupon!) I was certainly surprised at how differently the two make-up artists saw me. I had a fairly sallow complection as a young girl and expected that the MU artist would use that feature to my advantage by giving my face a lightly tanned look. Well the Merle Norman gal did a very good job. But the other gal decided to take all of the color out of my face and when she was done I literally looked like a clown! Back then I was not a very kind > person when something like that surprised me and I walked out of the store exclaiming that I looked like a CLOWN. The poor girl was so-o-o-o embarrassed and I was ashamed of my own self when I got back into my car. Poor girl had done the best she could with what she had. But I should have gone back into the store and apologized to her.

Uhhh OK.

> QUOTE(sister @ Sep 26 2006, 10:39 PM)
>
> I agree with you completely. We are definitely one blood, from common ancestry.

Common?

Posted by: sister Sep 26 2006, 09:57 PM

> QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 09:53 PM)
>
> Common?

Shared or common. We all share the same ancestry or have common ancestry. Not in the immediate sense. Don't worry, Sister is not your Auntie's or your brother's wife's other persona. Of course, you can never really be sure...

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 26 2006, 10:50 PM

> QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 05:55 PM)
>
> Sis, there is CURRENTLY only ONE race of men...
>
> Act 17:26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;
>
> Can we PLEASE stop the bald face lie that there is more than one race. The whole point of making distinctions about "race" is to continue perpetuating the lie that some "races" are better than others. According to my Father all nations of men are made of one blood. According to my Father --
>
> Gal 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.
> Col 3:11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond [nor] free: but Christ [is] all, and in all.
>
> Sis I am just saying we don't want to keep that lie going.

AMEN!! (But it will be fun to see if there are a variety of pigments in heaven and on the new earth)

Posted by: västergötland Sep 27 2006, 01:29 AM

Why not, there are now and only prejudice makes it an issue.

Posted by: Denny Sep 27 2006, 04:36 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 27 2006, 01:55 AM)

Sis, there is CURRENTLY only ONE race of men...

Act 17:26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

Can we PLEASE stop the bald face lie that there is more than one race. The whole point of making distinctions about "race" is to continue perpetuating the lie that some "races" are better than others. According to my Father all nations of men are made of one blood. According to my Father --

Gal 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.
Col 3:11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond [nor] free: but Christ [is] all, and in all.

Sis I am just saying we don't want to keep that lie going.

Yeah but we don't practise it the fact there is need for a site called BlackSDA says it all

---

Posted by: Clay Sep 27 2006, 05:37 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 27 2006, 05:36 AM)

Yeah but we don't practise it the fact there is need for a site called BlackSDA says it all truizm.....

Posted by: lurker Sep 27 2006, 06:33 AM

I always thought that looks and color was a strange way to sort people out. But there is a difference in culture and the way we see things that often leads to misunderstandings and we sometimes assume people have certain sterotypes of us in their heads when they may or may not.

The descendent of a southern white sharecropper and the descendent of the southern black sharecropper may have more in common than either one has with the son or daughter who has inherited the advantages and the tastes of an upper class upbringing.

Posted by: Clay Sep 27 2006, 06:54 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 27 2006, 06:33 AM)

I always thought that looks and color was a strange way to sort people out. But there is a difference in culture and the way we see things that often leads to misunderstandings and we sometimes assume people have certain sterotypes of us in their heads when they may or may not.

The descendent of a southern white sharecropper and the descendent of the southern black sharecropper may have more in common than either one has with the son or daughter who has inherited the advantages and the tastes of an upper class upbringing.

color was chosen because it was easy to identify and discriminate against those who were not the "right" color.... it is definitely an artificial barrier but one that is useful for the acquiring and maintaining power.... at least that is how it has manifested itself here in the U.S.

Posted by: Denny Sep 27 2006, 07:23 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 27 2006, 01:33 PM)

I always thought that looks and color was a strange way to sort people out. But there is a difference in culture and the way we see things that often leads to misunderstandings and we sometimes assume people have certain sterotypes of us in their heads when they may or may not.

The descendent of a southern white sharecropper and the descendent of the southern black sharecropper may have more in common than either one has with the son or daughter who has inherited the advantages and the tastes of an upper class upbringing.

Maybe true but their treatment by society on first contact is not shared... e.g.a racist society does not see upper class black man just 'a black man' or even worst a N.....r.

Posted by: summertime Sep 27 2006, 07:25 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 27 2006, 06:54 AM)

color was chosen because it was easy to identify and discriminate against those who were not the "right" color.... it is definitely an artificial barrier but one that is useful for the acquiring and maintaining power.... at least that is how it has manifested itself here in the U.S.

If this is true then---SHAME ON US God does not want it to be that way.

Posted by: Denny Sep 27 2006, 07:41 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 27 2006, 02:25 PM)

If this is true then---SHAME ON US God does not want it to be that way.

The church and society has never let what God wants get in the way of a good conflict

---

Posted by: lurker Sep 27 2006, 08:36 AM

So can our society change? Can our church change? Have you seen any signs of change? How can we indiviually as blacks or as whites affect change?

Posted by: vonessa Sep 27 2006, 09:37 AM

When it comes to change, whatever you or I do or say here is as irrelevant as putting the bacon the wrong way in the pan. It still gets fried if there's a fire under it. It won't if it don't.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 27 2006, 09:43 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 27 2006, 07:36 AM)

So can our society change? Can our church change? Have you seen any signs of change? How can we indiviually as blacks or as whites affect change?

Can small minds grow broader? Anything is possible. There will always be those of weak intellect until the Great Day.

Posted by: lurker Sep 27 2006, 09:43 AM

Ok. There is a pan, a fire and bacon (beef bacon or stripples?). And Blacksda is a small segment of society. Can we put out the fire or take the bacon out of the pan? Should we?

I saw 9-11 as a real unifying factor of Americans for awhile. Much less so now.

I see white families with more mixed marriages. How can you not love those grandkids?

I see more affluent and professional people of color. This includes foreign doctors and professionals.

I see many stuck in poverty and self destructive behavior in both races.

I see us all having to compete more in the international marketplace.

I see many black individuals having a more positive self image.

I see more whites disapproving of "Archie Bunkerism".

I see people whose attitudes sometimes change overnight for the better or for the worse based on their current experiences with others.

And yes, my son has been "profiled at airports". All isn't positive for sure.

Posted by: meadbd Sep 27 2006, 10:06 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 27 2006, 09:36 AM)

So can our society change? Can our church change? Have you seen any signs of change? How can we indiviually as blacks or as whites affect change?

==========
Change...or Revival...starts with me!

I give myself completely to Jesus and let His Holy Spirit use me and give me a kind and loving heart. I rejoice in my wonderful Savior and His blessed salvation! My one aim is to please Him in all things. 1 Cor. 13:4-8a is now my life. As 2 Cor. 5:17 says "I am a new creation...the old is gone and the new has come"! What I was I am not any more. Praising and serving my Lord is what I do...and reaching others with His mighty love and compassion. This new Christian life just can't be beat.

Even so, Come, Lord Jesus!

Bill

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 27 2006, 11:38 AM

QUOTE(summertime @ Sep 26 2006, 08:42 AM)

I just want to break into this conversation long enough to say that this forum has taught me a lot---I used to wonder how all races would interact when we all get to heaven---Now, BSDA and MSDAOL have given me the answer--we will all be anxious to visit with each other in our new mansions---Yea, Clay, maybe I am being a little dramatic--you have been in inspiration to us all. I have learned a lot from you.

I am just wondering how we will find each other when we get to those mansions. Do you think the names on the mansions will say: simplysaved, Hersheys 99, Watchbird, Sister, Falliable Human being, Princess Di, Princess DrRe etc. Of course Johanns, will probably just say Johann.

TB

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 27 2006, 11:47 AM

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 27 2006, 02:38 PM)

I am just wondering how we will find each other when we get to those mansions. Do you think the names on the mansions will say: simplysaved, Hersheys 99, Watchbird, Sister, Falliable Human being, Princess Di, Princess DrRe etc. Of course Johanns, will probably just say Johann.

TB

...one way to find out...let's all plan to be there

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 27 2006, 11:49 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 27 2006, 04:54 AM)

color was chosen because it was easy to identify and discriminate against those who were not the "right" color.... it is definitely an artificial barrier but one that is useful for the acquiring and maintaining power.... at least that is how it has manifested itself here in the U.S.

When I was attending one of our West Coast SDA colleges decades ago, my roommates and I wanted to take choir together. The only class that still had three openings when we were registering was Spiritual Singers. We signed up and were warmly accepted in spite of the fact that we were of lighter pigment (one light beige, one dark beige and one medium brown.) then the rest. We went on all of the many class performance trips to various churches around the bay area. While notice was taken of our pigmentally challenged state in each of the venues, we were welcomed and always fed afterwards, either in potlucks or in members' homes, just like the rest of the choir.

We began to socialize outside of practice sessions and performances, sometimes hanging around the fountain and talking about the state of the world, the fear we all shared about the Zodiac killer lurking around our campus, sometimes eating together in the cafeteria.

One afternoon, one of my roommates and I were called to come up to the administration offices to speak with the head pastor of the college church. When we arrived we were surprised to find not only the pastor but the president of the college as well! They went into a long discussion about the dangerous ground we were treading upon by socializing with the other students in the Spiritual Singers. They warned us about the disdain from society we would experience if we continued to travel down the road they were sure we were on. Then, they told us that our parents were sacrificing to send us to college and had entrusted them with our welfare. What would those parents think if they found out we were in danger of becoming "unequally yoked". With a stern warning they commanded us to cease and desist our dangerous activities.

I explained to these two men that I, for one, was not socializing romantically with anyone at the school. I also explained that I had been given permission from my socially radical father that I could fall in love with anyone I wanted to, no matter the race.

I have to admit that I was quite mortified at this confrontation. I had been under the naïve impression that our church would have a more progressive view of racism since we were all "one in Christ". It was a wake-up call that opened my eyes quite a bit.

We continued enjoying our choir and friends for the remainder of our time with them. At the end of the year we were shocked to learn that while all of the other choir groups had coverage in the yearbook, the Spiritual Singers were not allowed to be included. This was a clear case of discrimination in my eyes and a source of deep dismay for the teacher and the choir alike.

I truly believe that things are a lot better now. I know they are in my own church. While living abroad in a developing nation the year after my college choir experience I came to the realization that culture, not color, is actually the difference between the peoples of the world. It was so easy to spot the Americans, no matter what color, because they were behaving as Americans. That was decades ago and thanks to the technological wonders of mass communication today, even the cultures are becoming so much more similar.

Of course, the state of mind of our fellow citizens determines how they treat those of different pigments as well as those of different cultures, religions...etc. IMO

Posted by: lurker Sep 27 2006, 11:55 AM

I'd be happy with just a little tent in the new earth and a sign that says, "lurker" or whatever. I'd be happy to lurk around heaven. I'd be happy to be a bug on the wall. It amazes me that when we talk about it in sabbath school, everybody thinks they will be on the inside of the New Jerusalem looking out at the lost. Nobody thinks it might be the other way around.

That will be the real us-them division. Just two groups of people- the saved and the lost.

I sure want to be there. But I tell you, if God sees that I would be one that would mess up the scene, just wipe me out now. Sure am sick of this hot mess on toast where we hurt and get hurt. Where we feel we have to put our defenses up until we get to know each other and can find out how we are perceived.

Posted by: Nuggie Sep 27 2006, 11:55 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 27 2006, 11:49 AM)

When I was attending one of our West Coast SDA colleges decades ago, my roommates and I wanted to take choir together. The only class that still had three openings when we were registering was Spiritual Singers. We signed up and were warmly accepted in spite of the fact that we were of lighter pigment (one light beige, one dark beige and one medium brown.) then the rest. We went on all of the many class performance trips to various churches around the bay area. While notice was taken of our pigmentally challenged state in each of the venues, we were welcomed and always fed afterwards, either in potlucks or in members' homes, just like the rest of the choir.

We began to socialize outside of practice sessions and performances, sometimes hanging around the fountain and talking about the state of the world, the fear we all shared about the Zodiac killer lurking around our campus, sometimes eating together in the cafeteria.

One afternoon, one of my roommates and I were called to come up to the administration offices to speak with the head pastor of the college church. When we arrived we were surprised to find not only the pastor but the president of the college as well! They went into a long discussion about the dangerous ground we were treading upon by socializing with the other students in the Spiritual Singers. They warned us about the disdain from society we would experience if we continued to travel down the road they were sure we were on. Then, they told us that our parents were sacrificing to send us to college and had entrusted them with our welfare. What would those parents think if they found out we were in danger of becoming "unequally yoked". With a stern warning they commanded us to cease and desist our dangerous activities.

I explained to these two men that I, for one, was not socializing romantically with anyone at the school. I also explained that I had been given permission from my socially radical father that I could fall in love with anyone I wanted to, no matter the race.

I have to admit that I was quite mortified at this confrontation. I had been under the naïve impression that our church would have a more progressive view of racism since we were all "one in Christ". It was a wake-up call that opened my eyes quite a bit.

We continued enjoying our choir and friends for the remainder of our time with them. At the end of the year we were shocked to learn that while all of the other choir groups had coverage in the yearbook, the Spiritual Singers were not allowed to be included. This was a clear case of discrimination in my eyes and a source of deep dismay for the teacher and the choir alike.

I truly believe that things are a lot better now. I know they are in my own church. While living abroad in a developing nation the year after my college choir experience I came to the realization that culture, not color, is actually the difference between the peoples of the world. It was so easy to spot the Americans, no matter what color, because they were behaving as Americans. That was decades ago and thanks to the technological wonders of mass communication today, even the cultures are becoming so much more similar.

Of course, the state of mind of our fellow citizens determines how they treat those of different pigments as well as those of different cultures, religions...etc. IMO

Unbelievable...

Posted by: Clay Sep 27 2006, 01:08 PM

thanks for sharing PB, you put your finger on the one fear that many white people have both now (in some places) and historically... that would be that their daughters may become romantically with a black male..... and that just won't do.....

Posted by: Brenda Sep 27 2006, 01:38 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 28 2006, 05:08 AM)

thanks for sharing PB, you put your finger on the one fear that many white people have both now (in some places) and historically... that would be that their daughters may become romantically with a black male..... and that just won't do.....

How have black families felt in the past when their daughters became involved with white males?

I have a racially mixed family - my 2 elder children are adopted from Southern Asia, the younger 2 are white caucasian. My (second) husband is Indonesian/Chinese - one grandson is half Samoan. I believe that colour is not an issue for me.

But the stresses could arise with different cultures/values if the association is too close. The Polynesian way of often sharing anything requested with the extended family would not go down well with me, and I tend not to react happily when males assume they are superior by virtue of their gender.

Is colour seen as a marker for values/a way of life?

Posted by: lurker Sep 27 2006, 03:14 PM

I think poverty and desertion were always the fear. That the grandparents would be financially and physically responsible for the raising of the children. Many a child of an unmarried or deserted mother was raised as her sibling to hide "her shame" from outsiders and protect the familiy's pride. It was harder to do that with mixed children.

Posted by: seeshell Sep 27 2006, 04:11 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 27 2006, 02:08 PM)

thanks for sharing PB, you put your finger on the one fear that many white people have both now (in some places) and historically... that would be that their daughters may become romantically with a black male..... and that just won't do.....

I have the feeling my mother would have thought it was just fine. But, then I met the skinny white guy and the rest is history.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 27 2006, 06:09 PM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 27 2006, 05:11 PM)

I have the feeling my mother would have thought it was just fine. But, then I met the skinny white guy and the rest is history.

nice...

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 27 2006, 09:13 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 27 2006, 01:49 PM)

Then, they told us that our parents were sacrificing to send us to college and had entrusted them with our welfare. What would those parents think if they found out we were in danger of becoming "unequally yoked".

As an aside, didn't we have a thread once were some insisted that there could not have been such sentiments in the remnant church, to consider marrying outside one's ethnicity as being "unequally yoked?"

I now return you to your regularly scheduled program...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 27 2006, 09:29 PM

QUOTE(Richard Sherwin @ Sep 24 2006, 01:01 PM)

I too am one of those who came here because of the 3abn topic. I'd never heard of this site until reading about it on Maritime. As a white person who lives in the country I likely cannot relate to many of the topics on other threads. Just my $0.02.

Richard

There are those who benefit from your continuing to think so... but the reality is if you choose to see brothers and sisters in Christ first and foremost rather than starting and stopping with outward appearance, then you will find there is little you dont have in common... you are a white man from the country; I am a black man from NYC... and yet, we both have:

- One body
- One Spirit
- One Hope
- One Lord
- One Faith
- One Baptism
- One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in us all

The question we have to ask ourselves is whether we are going to fix our attention and our focus on what we see or if we are going to walk by faith and not by sight; for as the Apostle Paul says in 2Cor chapter 4, we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.

Something to consider...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 27 2006, 09:48 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 27 2006, 11:29 PM)

There are those who benefit from your continuing to think so... but the reality is if you choose to see brothers and sisters in Christ first and foremost rather than starting and stopping with outward appearance, then you will find there is little you dont have in common... you are a white man from the country; I am a black man from NYC... and yet, we both have:

- One body
- One Spirit
- One Hope
- One Lord

- One Faith
- One Baptism
- One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in us all

The question we have to ask ourselves is whether we are going to fix our attention and our focus on what we see or if we are going to walk by faith and not by sight; for as the Apostle Paul says in 2Cor chapter 4, we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.

Something to consider...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: inga Sep 28 2006, 01:36 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 27 2006, 09:36 AM)

So can our society change? Can our church change? Have you seen any signs of change?

Depends very much on where you live -- in North America or the world.

I've spent years in various parts of the country and have found it interesting how some areas are virtually colorblind, whereas in other areas, some loudly proclaim their condition of being "unprejudiced," thereby proclaiming their deep prejudices to my ears. (The idea that one should be prejudiced but isn't doesn't even enter the minds of those who truly are less prejudiced than the average.)

Btw, every single one of us is "prejudiced." That is, we all have some ready-made "pre-judgments" in our minds. It's impossible to function in life without some "prejudices." Realizing this can make us more aware of unjust prejudices ....

Posted by: Denny Sep 28 2006, 06:12 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 27 2006, 08:08 PM)

thanks for sharing PB, you put your finger on the one fear that many white people have both now (in some places) and historically... that would be that their daughters may become romantically with a black male..... and that just won't do.....

Or even worse Junior will actually want to marry a black woman (historically we were only 'fit ' for other uses....)

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 29 2006, 10:57 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 27 2006, 09:29 PM)

- One body
- One Spirit
- One Hope
- One Lord
- One Faith
- One Baptism
- One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in us all

... but not One Conference.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 1 2006, 05:27 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 27 2006, 09:29 PM)

There are those who benefit from your continuing to think so... but the reality is if you choose to see brothers and sisters in Christ first and foremost rather than starting and stopping with outward appearance, then you will find there is little you dont have in common... you are a white man from the country; I am a black man from NYC... and yet, we both have:

- One body
- One Spirit
- One Hope
- One Lord
- One Faith
- One Baptism
- One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in us all

...

AND ONE FAMILY / BROTHERHOOD (in Christ)

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Ellen White Quote

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 14 2006, 07:08 AM

Our Pastor shared this with us last night at prayer meeting. It gave me something to think about with all of this exposing of Danny's sins.....just thought I would share.

Australian Years 1893-1900 pages 134, 135. The origional letter is referenced as Letter 48, 1894. She was writing to Elder Littlejohn,

She wrote 12 pages so these are just a couple of paragraphs.

"Elder Littlejohn, you have undertaken to point out the defects of Reformers and pioneers in the cause of God. No one should trace the lines which you have done. You have made public errors and defects of the people of God and in so doing have dishonored God and Jesus Christ. I would not for my right arm have given to the world that which you have written. You have not been conscience of what would be the influence of your work...
The Lord did not call upon you to present these things to the public as a correct history of our people. Your work will make it necessary for us to put forth labor to show why these brethern took the extreme position that they did, and call up the circumstances that vindicate those upon whom your articles have laid suspicion and reproach. ...

God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethern with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who made the misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethern are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 07:39 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 07:08 AM) ☐

Our Pastor shared this with us last night at prayer meeting. It gave me something to think about with all of this exposing of Danny's sins.....just thought I would share.
Australian Years 1893-1900 pages 134, 135. The origional letter is referenced as Letter 48, 1894. She was writing to Elder Littlejohn,

She wrote 12 pages so these are just a couple of paragraphs.

"Elder Littlejohn, you have undertaken to point out the defects of Reformers and pioneers in the cause of God. No one should trace the lines which you have done. You have made public errors and defects of the people of God and in so doing have dishonored God and Jesus Christ. I would not for my right arm have given to the world that which you have written. You have not been conscience of what would be the influence of your work...
The Lord did not call upon you to present these things to the public as a correct history of our people. Your work will make it necessary for us to put forth labor to show why these brethern took the extreme position that they did, and call up the circumstances that vindicate those upon whom your articles have laid suspicion and reproach. ...

> God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethern with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who made the misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethern are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.

Context is such an important factor in "rightly dividing the word of truth"..... and even more so in applying the "word of truth" to circumstances which are far different than the original situation calling for the "testimony".

When Ellen White wrote testimonies to individuals, she wrote to correct that particular individual. And since some strayed from the path on the one side and some on the other, she wrote quite opposite things to those on each side of the path. And even in her lifetime it was quite common for those who needed the counsel on the one side to pick up the counsel to those straying in the opposite direction ..... and vice versa.

Ellen at times "hid" the sins of her brethren..... and at times exposed them. And she has counsel which is generalized to the church for when it is appropriate for us to choose between the same courses of action. In general, the "rules" are the same as those laid down in scripture .... sin must be exposed to the same extent to which it has affected other people (or that it has the potential for harming other people).

It is, IMO, cruelty of the rankest order for someone to add to the stress of the burdens that those of us carry..... who, either because we were directly victimized by the Shelton gang or have seen enough so that we simply can no longer stand aside without doing whatever it takes to get the evils we have seen (and any others that we haven't yet seen) expunged from the "camp"..... by applying such out of context quotes to us. If one is going to quote Ellen White, then please choose from her statements which reproves sin and which lays upon those who are aware of it the responsibility of reproving, exposing, and removing it from among us.

And if you really want to get personal .... using a "rake" instead of a "pitchfork" when handling her bundles of statements ..... then how about pulling them to yourselves instead of accusing us who are attempting to warn innocent victims (or victims to be). For example ... what about "criticism and condemnation of the brethren"..... and sisters..... who are standing on the Lord's side against continued evil?..... Will it not also be "counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ."

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 14 2006, 07:56 AM

> QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 07:08 AM) ☐
>
> Our Pastor shared this with us last night at prayer meeting. It gave me something to think about with all of this exposing of Danny's sins.....just thought I would share.
> Australian Years 1893-1900 pages 134, 135. The origional letter is referenced as Letter 48, 1894. She was writing to Elder Littlejohn,
>
> She wrote 12 pages so these are just a couple of paragraphs.
>
> "Elder Littlejohn, you have undertaken to point out the defects of Reformers and pioneers in the cause of God. No one should trace the lines which you have done. You have made public errors and defects of the people of God and in so doing have dishonored God and Jesus Christ. I would not for my right arm have given to the world that which you have written. You have not been conscience of what would be the influence of your work...
> The Lord did not call upon you to present these things to the public as a correct history of our people. Your work will make it necessary for us to put forth labor to show why these brethern took the extreme position that they did, and call up the circumstances that vindicate those upon whom your articles have laid suspicion and reproach. ...

God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethern with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who made the misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethern are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.

It depends on the circumstances and to whom she is speaking. If she's inside a church, she might say one thing.

"I have received letters questioning me in regard to the proper attitude to be taken by a person offering prayer to the Sovereign of the universe. Where have our brethren obtained the idea that they should stand upon their feet when praying to God? One who has been educated for about five years in Battle Creek was asked to lead in prayer before Sister White should speak to the people. But as I beheld him standing upright upon his feet while his lips were about to open in prayer to God, my soul was stirred within me to give him an open rebuke. Calling him by name, I said, "Get down upon your knees." This is the proper position always." (Selected Messages, Vol. 2, p. 311)

To someone else, working in the wheat fields, she might say the opposite.

"It is not always necessary to bow upon your knees in order to pray. Cultivate the habit of talking with the Saviour when you are alone, when you are walking, and when you are busy with your daily labor. "(The Ministry of Healing, pp. 510, 511)

As for Elder Littlejohn, I don't know what the issues were.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 14 2006, 08:06 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 06:39 AM)

Context is such an important factor in "rightly dividing the word of truth"..... and even more so in applying the "word of truth" to circumstances which are far different than the original situation calling for the "testimony".

When Ellen White wrote testimonies to individuals, she wrote to correct that particular individual. And since some strayed from the path on the one side and some on the other, she wrote quite opposite things to those on each side of the path. And even in her lifetime it was quite common for those who needed the counsel on the one side to pick up the counsel to those straying in the opposite direction ..... and vice versa.

Ellen at times "hid" the sins of her brethren..... and at times exposed them. And she has counsel which is generalized to the church for when it is appropriate for us to choose between the same courses of action. In general, the "rules" are the same as those laid down in scripture .... sin must be exposed to the same extent to which it has affected other people (or that it has the potential for harming other people).

It is, IMO, cruelty of the rankest order for someone to add to the stress of the burdens that those of us carry..... who, either because we were directly victimized by the Shelton gang or have seen enough so that we simply can no longer stand aside without doing whatever it takes to get the evils we have seen (and any others that we haven't yet seen) expunged from the "camp"..... by applying such out of context quotes to us. If one is going to quote Ellen White, then please choose from her statements which reproves sin and which lays upon those who are aware of it the responsibility of reproving, exposing, and removing it from among us.

And if you really want to get personal .... using a "rake" instead of a "pitchfork" when handling her bundles of statements ..... then how about pulling them to yourselves instead of accusing us who are attempting to warn innocent victims (or victims to be). For example ... what about "criticism and condemnation of the brethren"..... and sisters..... who are standing on the Lord's side against continued evil?..... Will it not also be "counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ."

I found this.....notice first paragraph

We are to direct the weapons of our warfare against our foes, but never to turn them toward those who are under marching orders from the Kings of kings, who are fighting manfully the battles of the Lord of lords. Let no one aim at a soldier whom God recognizes, whom God has sent forth to bear a special message to the world and to do a special work. The soldiers of Christ may not always reveal perfection in their step, but their mistakes

-286-

should call out from their fellow comrades not words that will weaken, but words that will strengthen, and will help them to recover their lost ground. They should not turn the glory of God to dishonor, and give an advantage to the bitterest foes of their King. {5MR 285.2}

Let not fellow-soldiers be severe, unreasonable judges of their comrades, and make the most of every defect. Let them not manifest satanic attributes in becoming accusers of the brethren. We shall find ourselves misrepresented and falsified by the world, while we are maintaining the truth and vindicating God's downtrodden law; but let no one dishonor the cause of God by making public some mistake that the soldiers of Christ may make, when that mistake is seen and corrected by [the] ones who have taken some false position. . . . God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethren with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who makes a misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethren are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.--Letter 48, 1894. (To Elder W. H. Littlejohn, June 3, 1894.) {5MR 286.1}

Posted by: Denny Sep 14 2006, 08:17 AM

In that case if you take EGW as your guru for all things Adventist the concept based on what you just posted one could argue our practise of disfellowshipping which involves dealing with defects should not take place....

Context is the key, might as well say the bible text that talks about pluck out your eye if it offends you means to literally pluck out your eye.

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 03:06 PM)

I found this.....notice first paragraph
We are to direct the weapons of our warfare against our foes, but never to turn them toward those who are under marching orders from the Kings of kings, who are fighting manfully the battles of the Lord of lords. Let no one aim at a soldier whom God recognizes, whom God has sent forth to bear a special message to the world and to do a special work. The soldiers of Christ may not always reveal perfection in their step, but their mistakes

-286-

should call out from their fellow comrades not words that will weaken, but words that will strengthen, and will help them to recover their lost ground. They should not turn the glory of God to dishonor, and give an advantage to the bitterest foes of their King. {5MR 285.2}

Let not fellow-soldiers be severe, unreasonable judges of their comrades, and make the most of every defect. Let them not manifest satanic attributes in becoming accusers of the brethren. We shall find ourselves misrepresented and falsified by the world, while we are maintaining the truth and vindicating God's downtrodden law; but let no one dishonor the cause of God by making public some mistake that the soldiers of Christ may make, when that mistake is seen and corrected by [the] ones who have taken some false position. . . . God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethren with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who makes a misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethren are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.--Letter 48, 1894. (To Elder W. H. Littlejohn, June 3, 1894.) {5MR 286.1}

There is a difference between mistakes and treating someone badly and bad behaviour... such of the above is used by too many church members to sweep blatant wrongdoings practised by church members under the carpet....

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 14 2006, 08:26 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 08:06 AM)

I found this.....notice first paragraph
We are to direct the weapons of our warfare against our foes, but never to turn them toward those who are under marching orders from the Kings of kings, who are fighting manfully the battles of the Lord of lords. Let no one aim at a soldier whom God recognizes, whom God has sent forth to bear a special message to the world and to do a special work. The soldiers of Christ may not always reveal perfection in their step, but their mistakes
-286-

should call out from their fellow comrades not words that will weaken, but words that will strengthen, and will help them to recover their lost ground. They should not turn the glory of God to dishonor, and give an advantage to the bitterest foes of their King. {5MR 285.2}

Let not fellow-soldiers be severe, unreasonable judges of their comrades, and make the most of every defect. Let them not manifest satanic attributes in becoming accusers of the brethren. We shall find ourselves misrepresented and falsified by the world, while we are maintaining the truth and vindicating God's downtrodden law; but let no one dishonor the cause of God by making public some mistake that the soldiers of Christ may make, when that mistake is seen and corrected by [the] ones who have taken some false position. . . . God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethren with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who makes a misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethren are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.--Letter 48, 1894. (To Elder W. H. Littlejohn, June 3, 1894.) {5MR 286.1}

So, basically, we are to understand from this quote that Linda Shelton (and others) had special marching orders from the Lord and that Danny Shelton should not have turned his "weapons of warfare" against her and them.

That is what you meant to say, isn't it? Or, by chance, do you interpret these paragraphs a little differently? Since I don't know Ellen White's context, it's difficult to say.

Posted by: Observer Sep 14 2006, 08:33 AM

Re: "You have made public errors and defects of the people of God and in so doing have dishonored God and Jesus Christ. "

It was 3-ABN, Danny, and Dr. Walter Thompson who have taken this public. They have publicly accused Linda. How many years has this gone on? Recently I was watching a program on 3-ABN, and it was a very good one. In that interview, Danny turned it to Linda when he made a comment regarding his ex-wife, and how a professional seduced her.

The God I worship is a God of truth and justice. That God calls for people to take a stand for what is right. When that wrong has been done in public, making it right, speaking for truth and justice must be done in public.

If you really knew the real story, you would know that there is much more than what many here have said. Many have been very careful to respond only as necessary, and have not gotten into non-appropriate stuff.

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 08:42 AM

nothing like introducing the "fear factor" via egw into the discussion..... will this ever end?

Posted by: Denny Sep 14 2006, 08:51 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 14 2006, 03:42 PM)

nothing like introducing the "fear factor" via egw into the discussion..... will this ever end?

the adventist 'checkmate'

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 09:05 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 08:06 AM)

I found this.....notice first paragraph
We are to direct the weapons of our warfare against our foes, but never to turn them toward those who are under marching orders from the Kings of kings, who are fighting manfully the battles of the Lord of lords. Let no one aim at a soldier whom God recognizes, whom God has sent forth to bear a special message to the world and to do a special work. The soldiers of Christ may not always reveal perfection in their step, but their mistakes should call out from their fellow comrades not words that will weaken, but words that will strengthen, and will help them to recover their lost ground. They should not turn the glory of God to dishonor, and give an advantage to the bitterest foes of their King. {5MR 285.2}
-286-

Let not fellow-soldiers be severe, unreasonable judges of their comrades, and make the most of every defect. Let them not manifest satanic attributes in becoming accusers of the brethren. We shall find ourselves misrepresented and falsified by the world, while we are maintaining the truth and vindicating God's downtrodden law; but let no one dishonor the cause of God by making public some mistake that the soldiers of Christ may make, when that mistake is seen and corrected by [the] ones who have taken some false position. . . . God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethren with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who makes a misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethren are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.--Letter 48, 1894. (To Elder W. H. Littlejohn, June 3, 1894.) {5MR 286.1}

I think the clause I bolded is the key as to whether this applies to those of us who are making the Shelton sins public knowledge. There have been people who worked privately and earnestly with Danny Shelton for years. And this has been especially true for the last two plus years. Yet he has never acknowledged his "mistakes", he has never corrected his practices, he has never returned that to the Lord's coffers that which he has stolen and either used for his own glory or put into his private bank accounts. And the saddest part of this story is that he has hidden all of his sins behind a supposed "mandate from the Lord" that has exempted him from applying the commandments (he claims to teach) to his own self and kin and friends..... No .... maybe the saddest part of the story is that so many church leaders in high places have aided and abetted him in his transgressions. How about showing us the things that Ellen has to say about people who give their support to people like this?

And if you really wish to check out the Littlejohn context, a visit to the Ellen White Estate website may find material already posted on it, or if not, an email to one of the contacts there will bring you more of the story. But from the line that I bolded, it is quite apparent that what he had done was to expose mistakes which had already been repented of and turned from. That is not the case with the Shelton mess. Defenses, dips in a baptismal tank, a few changes in the handling of finances..... these do not absolve sin nor wipe away the financial debts that are already owed.

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 09:16 AM power run amuk.... and no one stepped up to question it until it was toooooo late....

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 09:48 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 14 2006, 08:42 AM) ☐

nothing like introducing the "fear factor" via egw into the discussion..... will this ever end?

It's not just the "fear factor" that concerns me, it is the turning Ellen White on her head and using her words in ways that she would never condone .... by attacking the very ones who are standing on God's side..... that..... to put it mildly..... bugs me.

Will it ever end? If you mean the rule by the Shelton Dynasty? Yes. That will come to an end. How, I don't know, and I have no idea how much damage the church will suffer for not having acted promptly in severing themselves from him. What I am very sure of is that the longer official voices delay in making an announcement to the church at large denouncing Danny Shelton and all who support and defend him.... forbidding Adventist churches from allowing him on their premises.... and that Adventists ministries, ministers, and evangelists are to no longer have anything to do with 3ABN ..... the more damage will be done when circumstances finally force them to this action. There was a time when there could have been some "heros". I am quite postitive that that time has long since passed. The "do nothing" posture has cost our church more than it may realize for decades to come.

But if by "will this ever end?" you mean will this taking the quotes of Ellen White and using them in ways never intended by her..... then no. Unfortunately that will never end so long as we are in the very imperfect world. Both her friends and enemies handled her words in the same way when she was alive..... and both her friends and enemies still do the same today.

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 14 2006, 08:51 AM)

the adventist 'checkmate'

Only if we allow it to be so. The game is not over just because someone pulls out an egw quotation. Actually, the most effective method to meet such things are what I call "fighting fire with fire". And I'm not speaking of engaging in a "flame war" with egw quotes as the weapons. I'm speaking of looking up the context of quotes that are misapplied, showing how they were intended to be applied, and only in that context, giving examples of her counsel that really does fit the situation of today.

What would Ellen do if she were here today? What would she do if she were asked to speak at a 3abn rally? Off hand, without doing some serious research (which unfortunately I don't dare take the time to do now), I think of the story that Roger Coon tells in his inimitable way when giving presentations on Ellen White .... something he did for years before .... and actually after ... he retired from White Estate several years ago.

It involved the case of a man with morals quite comparable to those of the Shelton clan .... And seemingly, his problems were somewhat well known.... for .... but I'm getting ahead of my story....

As Roger tells it .... complete with shrugging an invisible "shawl" around his shoulders and going through other postural motions that those who saw her in person described her as making ...

On this particular occasion, Ellen stood up to speak before a very large audience, and as usual, looked around the audience, arranged her notes on the podium, adjusted her shawl, cleared her throat, and opened her mouth, and ..... nothing came out.

She looked a bit surprised, went through the same preparations as before, opened her mouth to speak, and ..... still nothing came out.

According to the first hand witness to this..... who was a very alert and inquisitive boy at the time, but of course was an old man when he first told the experience to Roger.... this happened at least three times .... each time her look of puzzlement increased, and her visual "inspection" of the audience lengthened. At last, she turned around, and slowly looked down the long row of men seated behind her. Then suddenly, pointing directly at one of them, she spoke, loud and clear....

"How DARE you?!? How DARE you seat this man on the platform when I am going to speak?!? And either under the glare of her eyes, the pointing of the finger, or additional words from her mouth (memory is not clear at this point), the man rose, hunched as though he would like to disappear right there, but instead ran down the aisle and outside the building.

Roger goes on to give the details of "the rest of the story"..... which are immaterial here, and which I don't recall enough to recount even if I thought it appropriate, which I don't.

The point I want to make is that Ellen White, while being as one researcher called it, "so redemptively minded, that she frequently did not expose sin which really needed to be exposed", still had her limits. And she did NOT allow herself to appear to condone a hardened sinner by appearing on the same platform with him..... as some of our current leaders have unfortunately done.

So please ... any of you who have the inclination to call Ellen to your support in casting stones at those of us who are standing in support of the victims and against the perpetrators of wrong-doing such as is hard for most of us to even comprehend..... cool it. We are not on trial here. We are "about our Father's business"..... and our Father is the God of Light and Truth ... not the "father of lies".

Posted by: justme Sep 14 2006, 10:16 AM

Someone help find this for me, but I remember reading from EGW that she also pointed out that a certain minister "Was not fit", to take the pulpit, "mount the desk" as she put it, because he practiced "self abuse" in private, something which no other soul knew about.

If impure sexual practices disqualify one from "speaking from the pulpit", the someone in Illinois better be careful.

She also says that knowing of sinful practices within organizations that claim to be doing God's work, and NOT speaking up about it is "tant amount" to supporting those sins.

Does anyone recall the letter someone posted where Danny said something really CRASS about Linda's "menstrual cycles" and also that "she would spread h _ _ _ _ _ s for anyone who came along"! I think it's off the forum by now. I can't find it today. What a disgusting remark, from the "chosen one". (chosen by whom???)

To ignore the problem is to support it.
To support the messenger is to support the message.
What IS the message coming from Danny? ("mind your own bees wax"?)

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 14 2006, 10:50 AM

You are right we could get into a EGW quoting match. It just made me think when the Pastor mentioned this to us last night. I feel that this mess can take over "our" life and ruin us spiritually. I know I for one have gotten caught up in this and it has taken time away from more important things. Maybe you can handle this, I can't.

I know there of plenty of times that sins were pointed out and where sins were not pointed out. When they were exposed the ones doing the exposing didn't want to do it, it hurt them to have to do it. It seems to me that some are excited to "bring Danny down". If all of this is true, yes, he needs to be held accountable. But let's make sure in the process of all of this we don't lose our salvation....

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 12:02 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 10:50 AM)

You are right we could get into a EGW quoting match. It just made me think when the Pastor mentioned this to us last night. I feel that this mess can take over "our" life and ruin us spiritually. I know I for one have gotten caught up in this and it has taken time away from more important things. Maybe you can handle this, I can't.

> I know there of plenty of times that sins were pointed out and where sins were not pointed out. When they were exposed the ones doing the exposing didn't want to do it, it hurt them to have to do it. It seems to me that some are excited to "bring Danny down". If all of this is true, yes, he needs to be held accountable. But let's make sure in the process of all of this we don't lose our salvation....

You make some excellent points here. And it is certainly true that being involved in anything that is negative can have negative influences in one's own life .... and this is true even when the cause for which one fights is right and good. I have felt it necessary a few other times in my life to work earnestly against something .... and it has always had negative effects on my life .... both psychologically and physically .... but never spiritually. In order to endure I find it necessary to walk very closely with God and to focus on the positive good that can be accomplished .... so I come through times like these spiritually stronger than before even though I am drained both emotionally and physically.

I really don't know of anyone here who is "excited" about bringing Danny down. I think there are a great number of us who will feel a great relief when not only Danny, but ALL of the wrongdoers are "brought down" and the threats, not only to individuals, but to our church as a whole have been removed and restitution and healing can get underway. But "excitement" .... I think that is not a good word for the feelings. I'm not at all sure that you even dimly comprehend the pain and suffering that many have endured and are still enduring now.... or you would not even suggest such a word as "excitement". I do think that there will be many who will rejoice when this episode has been successfully concluded. I think scripture gives us permission .... and even injunctions .... to rejoice when our enemies have been destroyed and their victims have been exhonerated. Let's not deny them those opportunities to praise God with a joyful heart for His deliverance.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 14 2006, 03:16 PM

> QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 14 2006, 07:42 AM) ☐
>
> nothing like introducing the "fear factor" via egw into the discussion..... will this ever end?

It's all about motive - how someone decides to USE her statements. If the dead could roll in their graves, I'm sure hers would be a cavern by now.

BTW Uncle Sam's EGW postings could be directed at all parties involved - those that have publicly attempted to villify Linda and some of those posting here.

Wise counsel can be misused. (And I'm not suggesting that Uncle Sam misused it or not!!!)

Posted by: jodi Sep 15 2006, 11:38 PM

> QUOTE(justme @ Sep 14 2006, 11:16 AM) ☐
>
> Someone help find this for me, but I remember reading from EGW that she also pointed out that a certain minister "Was not fit", to take the pulpit, "mount the desk" as she put it, because he practiced "self abuse" in private, something which no other soul knew about.
>
> If impure sexual practices disqualify one from "speaking from the pulpit", the someone in Illinois better be careful.

She also says that knowing of sinful practices within organizations that claim to be doing God's work, and NOT speaking up about it is "tant amount" to supporting those sins.

Does anyone recall the letter someone posted where Danny said something really CRASS about Linda's "menstrual cycles" and also that "she would spread h _ _ _ _ _ s for anyone who came along"! I think it's off the forum by now. I can't find it today. What a disgusting remark, from the "chosen one". (chosen by whom???)

To ignore the problem is to support it.
To support the messenger is to support the message.
What IS the message coming from Danny? ("mind your own bees wax"?)

That quote is in Barbara Kerr's pinned "Open Letter" which is still posted. Danny made that statement to her personally in a phone conversation. Pretty disgusting, isn't it??

I am hoping that after this weekend at PMC in Berrien, our church leaders will not use 3ABN any more....perhaps the only reason this weekend has continued as planned is that it has taken many months of preparation and committment.

I personally know of his MANY lies and did write to him about 1 1/2 years ago regarding a specific situation but he never responded...not surprising, since I had written proof.

I have prayed long and hard for God to handle all of this in His own way (and in His time) and now I see events moving very quickly. It won't be long before all will be made public and I do praise God for Linda's vindication. IT HAS HAPPENED!!!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 06:37 PM

Very well said!

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 11:50 AM) ☐

You are right we could get into a EGW quoting match. It just made me think when the Pastor mentioned this to us last night. I feel that this mess can take over "our" life and ruin us spiritually. I know I for one have gotten caught up in this and it has taken time away from more important things. Maybe you can handle this, I can't.

I know there of plenty of times that sins were pointed out and where sins were not pointed out. When they were exposed the ones doing the exposing didn't want to do it, it hurt them to have to do it. It seems to me that some are excited to "bring Danny down". If all of this is true, yes, he needs to be held accountable. But let's make sure in the process of all of this we don't lose our salvation....

Posted by: justme Sep 17 2006, 07:54 PM

QUOTE(jodi @ Sep 16 2006, 12:38 AM)

That quote is in Barbara Kerr's pinned "Open Letter" which is still posted. Danny made that statement to her personally in a phone conversation. Pretty disgusting, isn't it??

I am hoping that after this weekend at PMC in Berrien, our church leaders will not use 3ABN any more....perhaps the only reason this weekend has continued as planned is that it has taken many months of preparation and committment.

I personally know of his MANY lies and did write to him about 1 1/2 years ago regarding a specific situation but he never responded...not surprising, since I had written proof.

I have prayed long and hard for God to handle all of this in His own way (and in His time) and now I see events moving very quickly. It won't be long before all will be made public and I do praise God for Linda's vindication. IT HAS HAPPENED!!!

... Linda's VINDICATION ...
When did it happen?
Where?
How?
Please elaborate, PLEASE ... thank you...

About the MAP series at PMC, have you noticed how "DRAWN" Danny looks in his face. He appears to be under a cloud. Never smiled.
Also I noticed that Danny came trotting out when Dwight turned and called for John Lomacang. Danny was not even mentioned as yet. Danny looks like he has seen a ghost. He moves stiffly and somberly.

They asked him to give the opening prayer but first he gave the "History of 3ABN" from his perspective.

Posted by: paleface Sep 17 2006, 08:06 PM

I noticed that Danny nor John looked liked they were not having a good experience. Also did you notice that on Friday night that Danny did not receive even a polite applause from the audience. Sat. night was better. Both Doug and Dwight were nurvous as well.

Posted by: justme Sep 17 2006, 08:56 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 17 2006, 09:06 PM)

I noticed that Danny nor John looked liked they were not having a good experience. Also did you notice that on Friday night that Danny did not receive even a polite applause from the audience. Sat. night was better. Both Doug and Dwight were nurvous as well.

When it was John's turn to introduce Danny, danny was looking hard into John's eyes. John held the gaze as if to say, "What now?" or "Is everything OK?"

It is obviously straining for them.

And all the "Thank you's" from Doug and Dwight thanking 3ABN for the production help.

Wouldn't it be a shame if "the crash" came furing this week of such wonderful programs on "MAP"?!

Posted by: Mel Sep 19 2006, 11:22 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 09:48 AM)

What would Ellen do if she were here today? What would she do if she were asked to speak at a 3abn rally? Off hand, without doing some serious research (which unfortunately I don't dare take the time to do now), I think of the story that Roger Coon tells in his inimitable way when giving presentations on Ellen White

Here's the story I believe you were recalling, copied from Roger's little book "A Gift of Light"-- I've preceeded it by a shorter, related story opening the chapter where Dr. Coon recounts these incidents of public rebuke by the prophet.

==========

In the early 1870s James and Ellen White were visiting summer camp meetings in Wisconsin and Minnesota. They had arrived on the grounds of one encampment after the meetings had begun. The people were assembled, probably in a large circus-type tent, and the speaker was well into his message.

The Whites paused momentarily on the edge of the gathering. Then Ellen took the arm of James, and together they walked down the center aisle, all the way down to the front row of seats. James took his seat, but Ellen remained standing. Looking up at the minister and pointing her finger at him in a way that only prophets can point, she interrupted the sermon. In an exceedingly loud voice she said, "You have no business to be standing by that desk. You are not a fit man to be bringing a message to these people."

The speaker stopped short. Amazement crossed the faces of all in the congregation. Had the people known (as they later learned) that Ellen White had never met or even seen this man before, nor did she know anything about him except what the Lord had revealed to her in vision, their awe would have been compounded.

Mrs. White earlier had only heard the sound of this man's voice in vision. And then the Lord had instructed her that when she heard this voice, she was to deliver this message: "Tell him that he is not a fit man to preach to the people. There is a woman in another state who calls him husband and a child who calls {35} him father, and there is a woman here on this campground who calls him husband and a child who calls him father."

When Ellen White delivered that message, the preacher bolted from the platform and disappeared. His sermon, like Schubert's Symphony No. 8, remained forever unfinished.

Sitting in the congregation that morning was the speaker's own brother. He now came forward and admitted that what Ellen White had said was true. The speaker had indeed been living a double life for some time, and most certainly he deserved this unusual rebuke. The Spirit of God blessed that camp meeting, and a great revival of godliness and holy living followed in its wake. 31 [see footnotes at end]

Harold M. Blunden was about 12 or 13 and living in North Fitzroy, Australia, when word came that the American prophet would speak on the following Sabbath afternoon. Harold was skeptical about modern-day prophets, certainly about American prophets, and especially about female prophets! Harold felt, though, that he had to make up his mind for himself, so he determined to go early the next week and take a seat on the second row right on the aisle. He wanted to see and hear everything that happened.

That afternoon there was standing room only. The rostrum was filled with church officials, and only two seats in the center were empty. The train bringing Ellen White had been delayed two hours. The ministers present kept the congregation's attention by songs, prayers, testimonies, and brief remarks. Finally the door opened, and the diminutive woman prophet walked in, holding the arm of a distinguished American missionary, A. G. Daniells. Daniells introduced her from the pulpit and then retired to take one of the empty seats behind. Ellen White stood at the desk, laid her manuscript down, adjusted her shawl and manuscript, looked up at the people, smiled, and opened her mouth to speak. But no words came out.

She looked somewhat surprised, as did her hearers. Slowly she scanned the audience, then looked down at the pulpit, adjusted {41} her manuscript and shawl, looked up, smiled, and opened her mouth to speak. Again no words came. A look of consternation crossed the prophet's face, and a ripple of anxiety spread through the congregation.

Again she scanned her audience, this time more slowly—intently, as if looking for someone in particular. This time she didn't stop upon reaching the far side, but turned around and looked at the faces of the ministers in the seats behind her. Nathaniel Davis, a tall, lanky man, was sitting on the end. She turned to Daniells and said in disbelief, "What is this man doing on the platform with me?" Since her back was to the congregation, few caught the strange remark. But Harold Blunden, on the second row, heard the question and was dumbfounded. Why shouldn't Nathaniel Davis be on the same platform with her? he questioned silently. Davis was a leader, even if he was a relatively new Adventist. He was editor of the Australian Adventist magazine Signs of the Times. He had every right to be on that platform!

Suddenly Nathaniel Davis stood to his full height, towering above the diminutive American. He scowled and gave her the most hateful look one human could ever give another. He then turned on his heel, stalked off the platform, down the aisle, and out the chapel door.

Unperturbedly, Ellen White turned back to the pulpit, adjusted her manuscript and shawl, looked up, smiled, opened her mouth, and the words finally came. The people sat as if entranced for the hour and a quarter during which she spoke. At the close they crowded around her at the door to meet her personally.

Young Harold did not head for the door. He headed for the platform instead. He just had to know the meaning of this strange development. He hadn't heard a word of the entire sermon, because his thoughts bumped against themselves in his head. And this is what he learned.

Nathaniel Davis had problems—serious problems—and Ellen White had written him a five-page letter on August 16, {42} 1897. She had started it at 3:00 a.m. Paragraph 1 on page 2 began at 2:30 a.m. the day following. Then she continued the letter two days later. Mrs. White spelled out Brother Davis's problems with money, spiritualism, and loose morals. ("Your course is immoral. You are bringing disgrace upon the cause of truth. . . . You are a dangerous man to be left to yourself anywhere.")36 As a mother might plead with a wayward son, Ellen White urged this new convert to mend his errant ways. But he had not heeded her advice. That Sabbath afternoon he was a living representative of the kingdom of darkness. God would not allow His ambassador from the kingdom of light to speak until Nathaniel Davis was banished!37

"I never had any problems or questions about Ellen White after that!" Harold Blunden mused after telling me this story. "Some doubted and disbelieved there in Australia, but my mind was made up. And I never had occasion to change it! I know. I was there. I was an eyewitness."

Blunden died shortly after telling me his story, at the age of 89, never knowing what had happened to Nathaniel Davis. Nor did I, until some years later. One day one of my colleagues, knowing of my interest in the rest of the story, came into my office. He excitedly waved a document in his hand. When Ellen White left Australia in 1900, the church workers gave her a large loose-leaf autograph album as a farewell gift. Each page had been inscribed by someone whom Mrs. White's nine-year ministry on that continent had blessed. And one of the pages was in the handwriting of Nathaniel Davis!

"It affords me the most sincere pleasure to have the privilege of putting on record my appreciation of Sister E. G. White's work and my gratitude to my heavenly Father for the messages sent through her to His people.

"The faithful witness, thus bourne, revealed to me the means whereby the bondage of Satan was broken when, owing to the influence of spiritualism, I had well nigh become a spiritual wreck.
"I have every reason to be positive in my confidence in Sister E. G. White as a true prophet. {43}
"May the Lord of love, and mercy, grace and truth, guide and guard her safely to the end, and lengthen her days so that she may continue to warn, admonish, and strengthen the remnant people of God.

"[signed] N. A. Davis
"Geelong, Victoria, Australia
"6 August 1900"38

It is as true today as it was when King Jehoshaphat first uttered the words about 850 B.C.: "Believe in the Lord your God, so shall ye be established; believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper" (2 Chronicles 20:20).

==========
FootNotes:
31. Denton E. Rebok, "The Spirit of Prophecy in the Remnant Church," in Our Firm Foundation (Washington, D.C.: Review and Herald Pub. Assn., 1953), vol. 1, pp. 233, 234. This story came to Arthur L. White through veteran pioneer leader George B. Starr; White subsequently shared it orally with Rebok

37. Harold Blunden related this story in part of his sermon "Guidance for Earth's Last Generation," published by the White Estate for the annual Spirit of Prophecy Emphasis Day, April 12, 1958, pp. 6, 7.

38. This autograph album is today preserved in the archives of the White Estate main office in Silver Spring, MD and is viewable there

---

Posted by: Johann Sep 20 2006, 01:35 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 18 2006, 04:56 AM) ☐

When it was John's turn to introduce Danny, danny was looking hard into John's eyes. John held the gaze as if to say, "What now?" or "Is everything OK?"

It is obviously straining for them.

And all the "Thank you's" from Doug and Dwight thanking 3ABN for the production help.

Wouldn't it be a shame if "the crash" came furing this week of such wonderful programs on "MAP"?!

There is a strong indication you may have heard a swan song.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 20 2006, 02:24 AM

The reason that many (as is becoming clear in some posts spread out) share serious concerns because the nature of some to many posts have been just that...instead of praying for deliverance of whatever issues are there....This point in general is one of the areas that we as a SDA church have failed miserably on...we seem to be praying less and less for those that are struggling---or for those that are in need of healing. Because the bottom line is only God has been perfect and blameless in everything that has happened...and not any of the players, in one way or another.

In this sense we as a church share in responsibility for all that has happened. We dropped the ball...with all of the talk about our church being judgemental and how we should act when various situations arise, what I have read has been exactly that--judgemental and unforgiving---making fun at the blows and set-backs. That speaks volumes to the testimony and witness.....and relationship with Christ.

It would be something to see threads in this forum (and I have read a few posts) where those who have been wronged have and/or are working through their hurt---at the sole expense of Satan, and not a person.

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 12:02 PM)

You make some excellent points here. And it is certainly true that being involved in anything that is negative can have negative influences in one's own life .... and this is true even when the cause for which one fights is right and good. I have felt it necessary a few other times in my life to work earnestly against something .... and it has always had negative effects on my life .... both psychologically and physically .... but never spiritually. In order to endure I find it necessary to walk very closely with God and to focus on the positive good that can be accomplished .... so I come through times like these spiritually stronger than before even though I am drained both emotionally and physically.

I really don't know of anyone here who is "excited" about bringing Danny down. I think there are a great number of us who will feel a great relief when not only Danny, but ALL of the wrongdoers are "brought down" and the threats, not only to individuals, but to our church as a whole have been removed and restitution and healing can get underway. But "excitement" .... I think that is not a good word for the feelings. I'm not at all sure that you even dimly comprehend the pain and suffering that many have endured and are still enduring now.... or you would not even suggest such a word as "excitement". I do think that there will be many who will rejoice when this episode has been successfully concluded. I think scripture gives us permission .... and even injunctions .... to rejoice when our enemies have been destroyed and their victims have been exhonerated. Let's not deny them those opportunities to praise God with a joyful heart for His deliverance.

The act of forgiveness and self-accountability will bring about the healing that many seek....and not the removal of Danny Shelton. JMHO

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 22 2006, 07:26 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 20 2006, 02:24 AM)

...
In this sense we as a church share in responsibility for all that has happened. We dropped the ball...with all of the talk about our church being judgemental and how we should act when various situations arise, what I have read has been exactly that--judgemental and unforgiving---making fun at the blows and set-backs. That speaks volumes to the testimony and witness.....and relationship with Christ.
...
The act of forgiveness and self-accountability will bring about the healing that many seek....and not the removal of Danny Shelton. JMHO

And how might the following events from the Bible be seen?

Peter condemning Ananias and Sapphira for their secret sin (their sin was not a "public" one)
Nathan the prophet dealing straightly with David over Bathsheba
Achan's secret sin, discovered and dealt with by the leadership (after innocents died)
David's sin in numbering the people (the people were punished instead of David)

In each case above, sin was dealt with STRICTLY. Whether the sins were public, or private, God dealt with them either directly, or through others under His influence (e.g. the church leadership). Some of those sins would seem small in our eyes today...but not so with God. In three of the four, God required the death of innocent people for the sin of the perpetrator. So, I guess, my question is, how many will perish as a result of sins committed in such a responsible position as the leadership of 3ABN? And should the church body, especially the leadership, be duty-bound to deal with those sins, lest many more perish while the rottenness festers? I agree, that God is a forgiving God, but there is a limit to His forbearance.

I have lived in countries where disfellowship is unheard of, due to the culture and the taboo of "losing face"--which essentially amounts to a great sin of pride...pride which must be protected like an open sore against any insult. However, the churches also seem to be weaker for the lack of cleansing from many open sins. I feel we would do well to study Christ's counsel through the prophets and apostles of the Bible as to how to keep our church a safe haven for souls seeking truth. May we never fear to call sin by its right name. And may we not forget that "whom the Lord loveth, he correcteth." ...or should I be quoting "love covereth all sins"? (Prov. 3:12, 10:12)

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 22 2006, 09:22 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 22 2006, 06:26 AM)

I have lived in countries where disfellowship is unheard of, due to the culture and the taboo of "losing face"--which essentially amounts to a great sin of pride...pride which must be protected like an open sore against any insult. However, the churches also seem to be weaker for the lack of cleansing from many open sins. I feel we would do well to study Christ's counsel through the prophets and apostles of the Bible as to how to keep our church a safe haven for souls seeking truth. May we never fear to call sin by its right name. And may we not forget that "whom the Lord loveth, he correcteth." ...or should I be quoting "love covereth all sins"? (Prov. 3:12, 10:12)

How about this? "Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them." Ephesians 5:11.

As for pride, well, isn't it the quintessential Adventist sin? Our "original sin"? From the moment we began, even before 1844, we thought of ourselves as being somehow "different" (we wouldn't say "better" but that's what a person thinks who wants to be different). Any group that self-identifies as "the remnant people of God" is in serious spiritual danger. Not necessarily wrong, mind you, but deep peril nonetheless.

I say that as a pastor. I just got done with seminary in Andrews 18 months ago. You'd think that a place where men and women are learning to serve God in public ministry would be a deeply spiritual place--I can assure you it's not. I believe it's the arrogance--not as much on the part of the faculty, not at all. But we students ... God help us. Regardless of whether we were "conservative" or "liberal" we all knew we were "right" and therefore "different" (read: "superior") to the others. bot

So when I'm calling out the sin of arrogance and pride so rampant among "God's remnant people," don't think ill of me. I'm calling out my own cherished sin.

QUOTE

It seems to me that some are excited to "bring Danny down". If all of this is true, yes, he needs to be held accountable. But let's make sure in the process of all of this we don't lose our salvation....

QUOTE

I really don't know of anyone here who is "excited" about bringing Danny down. I think there are a great number of us who will feel a great relief when not only Danny, but ALL of the wrongdoers are "brought down" and the threats, not only to individuals, but to our church as a whole have been removed and restitution and healing can get underway. But "excitement" .... I think that is not a good word for the feelings. I'm not at all sure that you even dimly comprehend the pain and suffering that many have endured and are still enduring now.... or you would not even suggest such a word as "excitement". I do think that there will be many who will rejoice when this episode has been successfully concluded. I think scripture gives us permission .... and even injunctions .... to rejoice when our enemies have been destroyed and their victims have been exhonerated. Let's not deny them those opportunities to praise God with a joyful heart for His deliverance.

I'm not at all close to the situation at 3ABN, so I can't speak personally to that level of pain. My own emotions, reading this stuff, seeing Danny's pale, drawn face last night on MAP, do border on excitement. That's probably inappropriate.

If indeed, though, it happens that
1) wrongdoers who have been hiding deliberate and damaging sin, hurting others, are brought down
2) the church is led into greater transparency and honesty
3) our satellite channels are all theologically accountable and
3) the out-and-out idolatry ("celebrity worship") of the faces on 3ABN, by people I go to church with, ends ....

... can I not rejoice?

Even more, can I not rejoice at the relief of the pain of the people on these boards who have been hurt?

It is probably a sin to rejoice at the pain of those who will be brought down, but then such sins were enshrined in God's word without the qualifications I've offered for my own. See Psalm 137.8-9; Psalm 139:21-22.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 22 2006, 11:39 AM

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 22 2006, 08:22 AM)

How about this? "Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them." Ephesians 5:11.

That's a great passage. It almost seems to be calling for us to expose deeds of darkness. But then I read on a bit further and begin to wonder... just who is to expose them?

Ephesians 5:11-14 Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them. For it is shameful even to mention what the disobedient do in secret. But everything exposed by the light becomes visible, for it is light that makes everything visible. This is why it is said:
"Wake up, O sleeper, rise from the dead,
and Christ will shine on you."

I don't have an extensive education in the scriptures to be sure, but it seems that it is Christ, the Light, who will be doing the exposing. Perhaps our job is to become reflections of His Light by being connected to His kingdom. Just a thought.

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 22 2006, 08:22 AM)

How about this? "Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them." Ephesians 5:11.

So when I'm calling out the sin of arrogance and pride so rampant among "God's remnant people," don't think ill of me. I'm calling out my own cherished sin.
I'm not at all close to the situation at 3ABN, so I can't speak personally to that level of pain. My own emotions, reading this stuff, seeing Danny's pale, drawn face last night on MAP, do border on excitement. That's probably inappropriate.

If indeed, though, it happens that
1) wrongdoers who have been hiding deliberate and damaging sin, hurting others, are brought down
2) the church is led into greater transparency and honesty
3) our satellite channels are all theologically accountable and
3) the out-and-out idolatry ("celebrity worship") of the faces on 3ABN, by people I go to church with, ends ....

... can I not rejoice?

Even more, can I not rejoice at the relief of the pain of the people on these boards who have been hurt?

It is probably a sin to rejoice at the pain of those who will be brought down, but then such sins were enshrined in God's word without the qualifications I've offered for my own. See Psalm 137.8-9; Psalm 139:21-22.

I certainly am a proponent of justice and if there are those on 3abn who have hidden deliberate and damaging sin, the civil courts and the Heavenly Courts certainly must pass judgement on them. If that includes "bringing them down", so be it. It is also the civil responsibility of those who have been wronged, who are the victims of any heinous crime to bring the charges forward to be dealt with.

Is there a difference between idolizing (celebrity worship) and revering? I think of dear H.M.S. Richards Sr. whose work as a man of God brought deep spiritual joy to so many. I revered this man! God's character was written all over his life.

As I have said on this forum in the past, I have received spiritual blessings from some of 3abn's programming. I do not idolize any of the presenters but I have grown to feel that some are part of my larger family, the family of God, to some degree. I have not had the face-to-face exposure that some here have, and I certainly don't discount that wrongs very well may have been perpetrated. To this end I am constantly praying that God will intervene in a way He sees fit.

I'm not pulling the covers over my head. I'm still here on BSDA trying my best to determine what the truth is to the best of my ability.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 22 2006, 11:48 AM

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 22 2006, 04:22 PM)

How about this? "Have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them." Ephesians 5:11.

As for pride, well, isn't it the quintessential Adventist sin? Our "original sin"? From the moment we began, even before 1844, we thought of ourselves as being somehow "different" (we wouldn't say "better" but that's what a person thinks who wants to be different). Any group that self-identifies as "the remnant people of God" is in serious spiritual danger. Not necessarily wrong, mind you, but deep peril nonetheless.

I say that as a pastor. I just got done with seminary in Andrews 18 months ago. You'd think that a place where men and women are learning to serve God in public ministry would be a deeply spiritual place--I can assure you it's not. I believe it's the arrogance--not as much on the part of the faculty, not at all. But we students ... God help us. Regardless of whether we were "conservative" or "liberal" we all knew we were "right" and therefore "different" (read: "superior") to the others.

bot

So when I'm calling out the sin of arrogance and pride so rampant among "God's remnant people," don't think ill of me. I'm calling out my own cherished sin.

This is kind of worrying IMO.
Id wonder, is this also a problem in those parts of the world where the church is growing or is the general public tollerance towards religious arrogance higher in those places?

Posted by: Clay Sep 22 2006, 12:01 PM

PRIDE..... we have nothing on Nebuchadnezzar....

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 22 2006, 02:15 PM

On the expose them part, there is a process to be followed, however, where do we go, what do we do when an attempt had been made to follow the process, however, tight control over the local church itself by the offender/s nullified that process?

Posted by: Jewel50 Sep 23 2006, 07:16 AM

Revealing "the mistakes" of others...I just cringe when I read that kind of stuff. Yes I dont believe in revealing that so and so made a big mistake in say marrying out side of his/her faith. That to me is a mistake. But what Danny and others have done at 3ABN and are still doing it NOT considered "a mistake". These things need to be brought out in the open and something done about them. For those of you who think that TOP officials need to be doing this work well dont be so naive as to to think that our TOP officials..not all...but there are those who will just sweep the sins under the rug so to speak. And yes I can testify to that as it happend to me. However bad it was to me persoanlly it has paled in comparison to what is happeining and has happend at 3ABN. Truth will come out. Either here in this Earth or at the end of time when the unconfessed sins of ALL have not been confessed and repented of and they or me will be crying for the rocks to fall on them or me. Only then it will be to late to help anyone. Sweeping the sins under the rug like what others are hoping will happen to 3ABN will not change this fact.

QUOTE

Nehemiah was chosen by God because he was willing to co-operate with the Lord as a restorer. Falsehood and intrigue were used to pervert his integrity, but he would not be bribed. He refused to be corrupted by the devices of unprincipled men, who had been hired to do an evil work. He would not allow them to intimidate him into following a cowardly course. When he saw wrong principles being acted upon, he did not stand by as an onlooker, and by his silence give consent. He did not leave the people to conclude that he was standing on the wrong side. He took a firm, unyielding stand for the right. He would not lend one jot of influence to the perversion of the principles that God has established. Whatever the course others might pursue, he could say, "So did not I, because of the fear of God." {RH, May 2, 1899 par. 6}

QUOTE

The greatest want of the world is the want of men-- men who will not be bought or sold, men who in their inmost souls are true and honest, men who do not fear to call sin by its right name, men whose conscience is as true to duty as the needle to the pole, men who will stand for the right though the heavens fall. {Ed 57.3}

QUOTE

Those who have in the fear of God ventured out to faithfully meet error and sin, calling sin by its right name, have discharged a disagreeable duty with much suffering of feelings to themselves; but they get the sympathy of but few and suffer the neglect of many. The sympathizers are on the wrong side, and they carry out the purposes of Satan to defeat the design of God. {3T 328.2}

QUOTE

Cleanse the camp of this moral corruption, if it takes the highest men in the highest positions. God will not be trifled with. Fornication is in our ranks; I know it, for it has been shown me to be strengthening and extending its pollutions. There is much we will never know; but that which is revealed makes the church responsible and guilty unless they show a determined effort to eradicate the evil. Cleanse the camp, for there is an accursed thing in it.

The words of God to Joshua are: "Neither will I be with you anymore, except ye destroy the accursed from among you. Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against tomorrow: for thus saith the Lord God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you." These things are written for our benefit, upon whom the ends of the world are come. {TM 428}

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 23 2006, 07:38 AM

Well, to continue those messages from the Spirit of Prophecy with a stronger one on the same theme:

QUOTE

Joshua and the elders of Israel were in great affliction. They lay before the ark of God in most abject humility because the Lord was wroth with His people. They prayed and wept before God. The Lord spoke to Joshua: "Get thee up; wherefore liest thou thus upon thy face? Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed My covenant which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff. Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed: neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you." {3T 264.3}

Duty to Reprove Sin

I have been shown that God here illustrates how He regards sin among those who profess to be His commandment-keeping people. Those whom He has specially honored with witnessing the remarkable exhibitions of His power, as did ancient Israel, and who will even then venture to disregard His express directions, will be subjects of His wrath. He would teach His people that disobedience and sin are exceedingly offensive to Him and are not to be lightly regarded. He shows us that when His people are found in sin they should at once take decided measures to put that sin from them, that His frown may not rest upon them all. But if the sins of the people are passed over by those in responsible positions, His frown will be upon them, and the people of God, as a body, will be held responsible for those sins. In His dealings with His people in the past the Lord shows the necessity of purifying the church from wrongs. One sinner may diffuse darkness that will exclude the light of God from the entire congregation. When the people realize that darkness is settling upon them, and they do not know the cause, they should seek God earnestly, in great humility and self-abasement, until the wrongs which grieve His Spirit are searched out and put away. {3T 265.1}

The prejudice which has arisen against us because we have reproved the wrongs that God has shown me existed, and the cry that has been raised of harshness and severity, are unjust. God bids us speak, and we will not be silent. If wrongs are apparent among His people, and if the servants of God pass on indifferent to them, they virtually sustain and justify the sinner, and are alike guilty and will just as surely receive the displeasure of God; for they will be made responsible for the sins of the guilty. In vision I have been pointed to many instances where the displeasure of God has been incurred by a neglect on the part of His servants to deal with the wrongs and sins existing among them. Those who have excused these wrongs have been thought by the people to be very amiable and lovely in disposition, simply because they shunned to discharge a plain Scriptural duty. The task was not agreeable to their feelings; therefore they avoided it. {3T 265.2}

Now that's powerful.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 23 2006, 11:38 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 23 2006, 06:38 AM)

Well, to continue those messages from the Spirit of Prophecy with a stronger one on the same theme:
Now that's powerful.

Yes, I agree it is powerful!

Something that really caught my attention in the part of the quote that you highlighted was:

QUOTE

If wrongs are apparent among His people, and if the servants of God pass on indifferent to them, they virtually sustain and justify the sinner, and are alike guilty and will just as surely receive the displeasure of God; for they will be made responsible for the sins of the guilty.

It appears to me that she isn't speaking of those sins that are speculation or supposed but those that are "evident, clear, manifest, open, obvious, indisputable"(from my Thesaurus).

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 23 2006, 03:03 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 17 2006, 10:06 PM)

I noticed that Danny nor John looked liked they were not having a good experience. Also did you notice that on Friday night that Danny did not receive even a polite applause from the audience. Sat. night was better. Both Doug and Dwight were nurvous as well.

I only watched the "first" night...after the "look" of that I just couldn't be there....

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 20 2006, 04:24 AM)

.....It would be something to see threads in this forum (and I have read a few posts) where those who have been wronged have and/or are working through their hurt---at the sole expense of Satan, and not a person.

...but what if the person is allowing Satan to work through them? Then is it still not the person?

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 20 2006, 04:24 AM)

The act of forgiveness and self-accountability will bring about the healing that many seek....and not the removal of Danny Shelton. JMHO

So we should forgive him, let Linda forgive him, and let him remain as the Pastor? Little girls have been put out the church for less (I know I was). ...now what type of example is it to keep a leader like this in a high position of regard?

I really want this one explained.....

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 03:45 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 20 2006, 02:24 AM)

The act of forgiveness and self-accountability will bring about the healing that many seek....and not the removal of Danny Shelton. JMHO[/color]

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 23 2006, 03:03 PM)

So we should forgive him, let Linda forgive him, and let him remain as the Pastor? Little girls have been put out the church for less (I know I was). ...now what type of example is it to keep a leader like this in a high position of regard?

I really want this one explained.....

I'm not sure I understand what SimplySaved was meaning either, but since she was responding to a post of mine I'll give it a try. She had highlighted this statement from that.....

"I really don't know of anyone here who is "excited" about bringing Danny down. I think there are a great number of us who will feel a great relief when not only Danny, but ALL of the wrongdoers are "brought down" and the threats, not only to individuals, but to our church as a whole have been removed and restitution and healing can get underway."

What I meant to say was that timewise ..... once the wrongdoers were "brought down" then "healing can get underway".

What it SEEMS to me is that she may have thought I meant that it was the "brought down" part that would CAUSE the healing. And in that context I could agree that "forgiveness" would be the thing that would "bring about the healing"..... not the punishment of the wrongdoers.

But as to what you were extrapolating from that..... No! Forgiving does NOT mean excusing. Forgiving does NOT mean that the guilty one is allowed to "go free" with no just consequences. And forgiving certainly does NOT mean leaving the guilty one in a position of trust and leadership which not only gives a wrong message to everyone regarding the seriousness of sin but gives the guilty one more opportunity to victimize others.

And it should be remembered that only the injured party has any right to forgive! God, of course, is ALWAYS one of the "injured parties"..... which is why he has the right (and ability) to forgive all.... and even to take their just punishment upon Himself and let the sinner go free, in the sense of the final eternal punishment or salvation. But not even God Himself "forgives" in the sense of excusing wrongdoing.

But we humans only have the "right" to fogive those who trespass against US.... individually. We have no right and no ability and no commandment to forgive those who trespass against someone else! In fact, it would be sin for us to do so..... We have seen the quotations.... both from scripture and from Ellen White.... which tell us of our obligation to identify and combat sin wherever we find it. We only find Biblical injunctions to forgive those who trespass against us.

We can bind up the wounds of the wounded. We can give them a sympathetic ear and hug. But we cannot forgive for them.

We can bring a sinner to justice. We can remove him from positions of trust. We can do all in our power to ensure that he can do no more harm. But we cannot forgive him for anything other than what he has done to us personally. It is way past time for us to learn more properly the dynamics of sin and forgiveness and justice and punishment, and stop wallowing in a "guilt pit" every time we see sin and realize that we have a responsibility to "call sin by its right name" and stand up and be counted on the side of righteousness.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 23 2006, 03:58 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 23 2006, 02:03 PM)

I only watched the "first" night...after the "look" of that I just couldn't be there....

[/color]

...but what if the person is allowing Satan to work through them? Then is it still not the person?

So we should forgive him, let Linda forgive him, and let him remain as the Pastor? Little girls have been put out the church for less (I know I was). ...now what type of example is it to keep a leader like this in a high position of regard?

I really want this one explained.....

Just a point...Danny is not a pastor.

In my opinion, if a leader of a ministry has sinned but then asks for forgiveness from all he has hurt by his sin and truly repents, truly turns away from the sin and commits himself to walking with Christ he should be allowed to remain at his post. Of course there are limits as to what type of sin this would include.

If there is sin that has victimized the innocent, is against the law and needs to be prosecuted and punished, that leader should step down and walk with Christ through his incarceration.

I don't think this would apply to "a man of the cloth" though. Perhaps one who has been ordained by an organization has to be held to a higher standard because he represents more than just himself. Just a thought...probably not an answer Re.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 04:35 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 23 2006, 03:58 PM)

Just a point...Danny is not a pastor.

In my opinion, if a leader of a ministry has sinned but then asks for forgiveness from all he has hurt by his sin and truly repents, truly turns away from the sin and commits himself to walking with Christ he should be allowed to remain at his post. Of course there are limits as to what type of sin this would include.

If there is sin that has victimized the innocent, is against the law and needs to be prosecuted and punished, that leader should step down and walk with Christ through his incarceration.

I don't think this would apply to "a man of the cloth" though. Perhaps one who has been ordained by an organization has to be held to a higher standard because he represents more than just himself. Just a thought...probably not an answer Re.

You make a good point. However..... when the denomination's "most prominent evangelist" repeatedly calls the leader of a "ministry" the "face of Adventism", and when that leader accepts the title, "the anointed one" from his co-workers, then he should be held to the same standards as any ordained pastor.

This may be one of the weaknesses of the denominational structure as it is now..... that there are no clearly defined standards of conduct or channels of accountability for Adventists who set up their own ministries. This, we should note again, is in contrast to many other independent Evangelical ministries, who have set up a very strict code of ethics for themselves, and have bound themselves together by ties of accountability and ethics, even without being part of the same "denominational structure".

We err greatly, IMO (and in the opinions of an increasing number of Adventists) in that we do not have such a system of accountability lines .... not even for our conference leaders, much less for ministries owned and operated by individuals or small groups.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 23 2006, 06:30 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 20 2006, 03:24 AM)

The act of forgiveness and self-accountability will bring about the healing that many seek....and not the removal of Danny Shelton. JMHO

"Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy."

Timons of Athens, William Shakespear

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 23 2006, 07:40 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 23 2006, 04:58 PM)

Just a point...Danny is not a pastor.

In my opinion, if a leader of a ministry has sinned but then asks for forgiveness from all he has hurt by his sin and truly repents, truly turns away from the sin and commits himself to walking with Christ he should be allowed to remain at his post. Of course there are limits as to what type of sin this would include.

If there is sin that has victimized the innocent, is against the law and needs to be prosecuted and punished, that leader should step down and walk with Christ through his incarceration.

I don't think this would apply to "a man of the cloth" though. Perhaps one who has been ordained by an organization has to be held to a higher standard because he represents more than just himself. Just a thought...probably not an answer Re.

Ok...not an "ordained" Pastor - but one who stands in a "likeness" of a Pastor/leader....

As long as this is the same "answer" that is done for all..... Young ladies (like me) and others....
Wait? You mean this isn't the way it's done for all.....
Then Danny should suffer the same fate as others (me) had to....

JMO

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 23 2006, 07:49 PM

QUOTE

Just a point...Danny is not a pastor.

That is only true on paper. In the sight of God he is most certainly a pastor. A pastor means "shepherd". In fact, in Spanish, it is the same word for pastor and shepherd--both "pastor". Pastor has the same root as our English word pasture, and can be thought of as one who "feeds the flock". Danny, in his position of trust, is feeding many every day with his words, whether they be truth-filled or empty. One day, he, as all of us, will have to answer God's question "where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock?" (Jer. 13:20)

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20:28)

Posted by: paleface Sep 23 2006, 08:10 PM

Princess Dr Re, my heart hurts for your pain. From personal experience, I notice that more harsh words and hurt comes from the Saints within the church than from those without.

Reaction: I mearly changed my membership to another Conf. thus my tithe and freewill offerings and loyalities going to said Conf.

Did you attend meetings at PM during the weekly evenings? Could you hear everything that Pastor Doug said clearly? We taped all of the messages for passing around in our area.

Posted by: justme Sep 23 2006, 10:15 PM

Many years ago, in California, I met the Adventist artist, Elfred Lee. I have received an email that relates an experience Elfred Lee had, around the time he was doing a mural in Washington,DC. I will post it here and now.

It relates to the topic of the

VALIDITY OF ELLEN WHITE:[/b]

[b]"Subject: Who is this Ellen White?
Shared by Edwin de Kock
Artist Elfred Lee's Testimony of Rabbi Joe Kagan's Endorsement of EllenG. White "I met Rabbi Joe Kagan at Weimar Institute in CA. His family had come from Eastern Europe where his aunt had been raped while a priest stood over her with a crucifix saying, "This is what you get for killing Christ." So you can imagine the feeling of many Jews towards Christianity. American Christians are not at all like Europeans. His family moved to the US while he was young. At age 13 he debuted at Carnegie Hall as a cantor. He had a beautiful, tenor voice. He received a very high education and became a rabbi. I met him in his later years in 1978 after he had been on Ronald Reagan's staff in Sacramento as their research man. If there were any questions about any subject, he was the one that did the research and found the answers. He had a very negative attitude towards Christianity. He would never touch the New Testament. However, he knew the Jewish Old Testament (Torah) extremely well as a highly educated rabbi would. One day he got hold of a book called Patriarchs and Prophets by Ellen G. White. He read it with astonishment and wanted to know who this Ellen White was. That is when I met him. He was asking who is this Ellen G. White and what university did she attend.

We told him she only had a 3rd grade education. "Then where did she learn Hebrew?" he asked. We told him that she never knew Hebrew, but was the most prolific female writer in history and that this was only one of her books. He was amazed at her knowledge, saying that the information in this book (Patriarchs and Prophets) is Mishnaic. The Mishnah is part of the Hebrew scholarship. He said the Mishnah had only been translated into English 30 years ago and that only high-level rabbis knew this information. This is the history of my people and it is very, very accurate. He also said that you have to know Hebrew to be able to write like this because her sentence structure is not English, it's Hebrew. The rhythm the meter, the arrangement of words and expressions are not English. He said it's as if she wrote in Hebrew and it was translated into English.

My family and I developed a strong friendship with Joe, his wife and son. As we studied the Bible and some Ellen White books together one day, he said, "I am convinced that Ellen White was inspired by the same source that inspired the Hebrew prophets. I want to become a Christian. I accept Jesus Christ as my Messiah." Now, he would not have come to Christ through reading the Bible. Even though the Hebrew Bible is full of prophecies pointing to the Messiah, it took Ellen White's writings to prove to him that Jesus Christ was the fulfillment of all the Hebrew prophecies. And only then did he pick up the New Testament and read about his Jewish Messiah.

Many times I saw him cry. I was in the middle of a painting commission for a large mural called "Christ The Way of Life" for the world headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventist church in Washington DC. He became very involved with that painting. The painting had originally been inspired by James and Ellen White who had commissioned an engraver to do a black and white drawing of the subject. He confirmed to me that Ellen White's concept was very accurate on the whole plan of salvation in both the Old and New Testament, but that the engraver had misrepresented her concepts. So he helped me in many details to make the painting historically and theologically accurate; especially regarding the sanctuary section, the Hebrew writing on the cross and the last supper scene. He told me to paint Jesus and his disciples at an oriental style table, sitting on mats on the floor - not Roman couches as the medieval artists painted. Further, he said their heads would be covered and he made sure I painted the wine, the unleavened bread and the bitter herbs and their symbolism exactly as they would have been.

He approved of the whole painting and we had an unveiling ceremony at the Auburn SDA church in late 1979. He had written a song to go with the painting and sat at the organ as we unveiled the painting. He wept as he sang the words of Jesus on the cross quoting Isaiah, "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?" He sang and sang and wept and wept, his whole body shaking. There was not a dry eye in the whole church. His voice was so beautiful. The original painting hangs in the new SDA world headquarters in Silver Spring, Maryland where they have posters and bible studies of the painting. I could never have done it without the inspiration of Rabbi Kagan and Ellen White. I wish they were still alive! We were at his secret baptism in the Bear River above Sacramento on Saturday night Dec 22 1979. There were four of us present. He could not even tell his wife and son that he was now a Christian. As he came up out of the cold water praising God and singing to his new Messiah, he said, "I am now a completed Jew. I have now accepted the Old and New Testament and the Messiah that all Jewish prophets told us about!"

I was recently in Europe giving some workshops on art and some of my archeological work in the Middle East. I happened to meet a Jewish family from Israel. Shalom David was originally from Iraq and his wife from Chile. They were now attending a college in Europe where I met with quite a bit of opposition to the writings of Ellen White. This Jewish family invited me to their home for Shabbat (Friday night supper.) It was a most enjoyable occasion as his wife and beautiful children sang and celebrated the arrival of Sabbath as Jews have done for thousands of years. I told them the story of Rabbi Kagan and he got very excited. He said, "The same thing happened to me! I would have rather burned the bible then touch it! I wanted nothing to do with Christianity, but I also read the writings of Ellen White and the Spirit of God was on that woman. Her writings are as if she wrote in Hebrew. You can definitely hear the Hebrew rhythm, meter and expressions in her books. I also believe she was inspired by the same source as the Hebrew prophets. And she has helped me fall in love with Jesus Christ, my Messiah."

I just met yesterday with a rabbi living here in California - Rabbi Ben. It was a follow up to a Sabbath meal I was invited to this last Sabbath with him and a group of Adventists. He went through the whole ceremony at the meal just like Rabbi Kagan and my new friend (Shalom David) in Europe had. So yesterday we were talking over Hebrew ceremonies and how they are still effective in healing disease. Rabbi Ben told me that he has also had the same experience. He hated the bible but that Ellen White brought him to Christ and helped him read the New Testament and fall in love with the Messiah. He also told me that he had gone to visit one of the most influential rabbis in America who is in his 90s who must remain unnamed. While in this rabbi's library talking, he was scanning the many, many books on his walls and there he saw the book Patriarchs and Prophets by Ellen white. Rabbi Ben asked him about it and where he had gotten it, "Why do you have this book by a Christian author?" The rabbi said, "This as a very authoritative source on our history." I recently shared this testimony on T.V. at 3 Angels Broadcasting Network. My phone has been ringing day and night by interested people from as far away as India and Australia saying, "we want to know more about Joe Kagan and Ellen White."

The book Patriarchs and Prophets can be found in any Adventist Book Center or at the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists on old Columbia Pike, Silver Spring, Maryland. Posters of "Christ The Way of Life" can be found there. See it online at <http://www.elfredleereligiousart.com/>

The Joy of the Lord is my Strength"

Nehemiah 8:10

International Prayer Ministry

PrWarrior4Him@aol.com".

F Y I

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 24 2006, 12:33 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 23 2006, 09:49 PM)

That is only true on paper. In the sight of God he is most certainly a pastor. A pastor means "shepherd". In fact, in Spanish, it is the same word for pastor and shepherd--both "pastor". Pastor has the same root as our English word pasture, and can be thought of as one who "feeds the flock". Danny, in his position of trust, is feeding many every day with his words, whether they be truth-filled or empty. One day, he, as all of us, will have to answer God's question "where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock?" (Jer. 13:20)

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20:28)

Simply because he has access to a large viewing audience and gets to speak his mind, as he wills, does not make it true that, "in the sight of God a pastor". It simply means he has a willingly captive audience who may not have the discernment to turn away...

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 01:21 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 24 2006, 12:33 AM)

Simply because he has access to a large viewing audience and gets to speak his mind, as he wills, does not make it true that, "in the sight of God a pastor". It simply means he has a willingly captive audience who may not have the discernment to turn away...

Well, as God allowed Judas to be called a disciple, so he has allowed Danny to be in a leadership role for many, making him as their shepherd/pastor. Zechariah 11 talks about the shepherds who have no concern for the sheep, and refers to "foolish shepherds" and "idol shepherds". [As I said before, "shepherd" and "pastor" are synonomous.] Therefore, saying one is as a pastor makes no statement as to their qualifications for that role. In fact, perhaps we ALL are ordained of God to that role of "pastor" as a "kindom of priests" (Ex. 19:6).

However, you make a good point, and if I follow the New Testament on the subject, perhaps I should correct my wording and call Danny a "hireling". (John 10) Here again, we might all be under the same title, so there's no cause for comparison. Jesus' words should speak to each of us.

BTW--since someone is bound to ask--the similarity I seem to see between Judas and Danny is that they were both "self-called" if I understand correctly. I'm not equating them in any other sense here.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 01:49 AM

The bible says that Jesus called Judas... so he was a disciple.....

QUOTE

Luke 6:12-16 And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. (13) And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles; (14) Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, (15) Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, (16) And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

QUOTE

John 6:70-71 Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you twelve, and one of you is a devil? (71) He spake of Judas Iscariot the son of Simon: for he it was that should betray him, being one of the twelve.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 04:42 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 01:49 AM) ☐

The bible says that Jesus called Judas... so he was a disciple.....

Yes, that is true. Yet the Bible also says "By whom we have received grace and apostleship, for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name: Among whom are ye also the called of Jesus Christ." (Romans 1:5-6)

Has not God called everyone? Many are called, but few are chosen. Jesus did not choose Judas, but accepted him when Judas came seeking.

QUOTE

"While Jesus was preparing the disciples for their ordination, one who had not been summoned urged his presence among them. It was Judas Iscariot, a man who professed to be a follower of Christ. . . . Judas believed Jesus to be the Messiah; and by joining the apostles, he hoped to secure a high position in the new kingdom. . . . " (Conflict and Courage, 285)

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 05:05 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 04:42 AM)

Yes, that is true. Yet the Bible also says "By whom we have received grace and apostleship, for obedience to the faith among all nations, for his name: Among whom are ye also the called of Jesus Christ." (Romans 1:5-6)

Has not God called everyone? Many are called, but few are chosen. Jesus did not choose Judas, but accepted him when Judas came seeking.

the bible says Jesus chose Judas.... you bring me a quote from egw that says different.... whom do I believe..... NOT egw..... either the bible is correct or not.... but egw does NOT trump the bible....

at the risk of generalizing.... the response is typical adventist christian... for some reason people feel uncomfortable with the fact that Jesus chose Judas... not sure why.... so they find a way to say he was different, that his chosing was different...

Jesus chose him.... so let the gymnastics begin....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 06:35 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 05:05 AM)

the bible says Jesus chose Judas.... you bring me a quote from egw that says different.... whom do I believe..... NOT egw..... either the bible is correct or not.... but egw does NOT trump the bible....

at the risk of generalizing.... the response is typical adventist christian... for some reason people feel uncomfortable with the fact that Jesus chose Judas... not sure why.... so they find a way to say he was different, that his chosing was different...

Jesus chose him.... so let the gymnastics begin....

Well, if you want some gymnastics, tell me without contradicting yourself who hardened Pharoah's heart! Sometimes the Bible is open to interpretation, and sometimes the wording used is not necessarily as simple to understand as taking it at face value. I accept your point. And yet, I understand the same passages differently. I don't see any conflict between EGW and the Bible on this point. She is telling us what happened, historically, which Mark only remotely implies in the following passage: (Mark 3:13-19)

QUOTE

And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him whom he would: and they came unto him. And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach, And to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils: And Simon he surnamed Peter; And James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James; and he surnamed them Boanerges, which is, The sons of thunder: And Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Canaanite, And Judas Iscariot, which also betrayed him: and they went into an house.

Ellen White is talking about this same ordination service. It is evident that Judas tagged along with those whom Jesus had called, and was accepted into their company and ordained along with them. Jesus did not refuse Judas, even though Judas had come "uninvited". Perhaps you would agree that there can be a difference between those called and those actually ordained here.

Again, in Luke, we have almost the same story: (Luke 6:13-16)

QUOTE

And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles; Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

Here the distinction is even more clear between those called and those chosen. It is as if there were many disciples (followers) from which to choose, and He accepted just twelve of them. We are told, of course, of Jesus' specific invitation to some of those disciples, calling them by name, and saying "Follow me." Where did Jesus call Judas in like manner?

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 06:37 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 24 2006, 01:30 AM)

"Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy."
Timons of Athens, William Shakespear

Someone should have remembered to tell God.

On secound thought, it would seem our only hope lies in God not reasonging like that...

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 07:07 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 23 2006, 06:30 PM)

"Nothing emboldens sin so much as mercy."
Timons of Athens, William Shakespear

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 24 2006, 06:37 AM)

Someone should have remembered to tell God.

On secound thought, it would seem our only hope lies in God not reasonging like that...

Think once more and you will realize that it was God who told us that in the first place. (Sorry I don't have a text on the tip of my fingers, but perhaps others will supply those for us.)

Shakespeare only commented on what was obvious to the observer. But God is a God of Love.... which includes mercy, and he is willing to let it "embolden sin", knowing that it will also cause some sinners to change their ways and abandon their sin and turn and follow Him.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 07:35 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 05:05 AM)

the bible says Jesus chose Judas.... you bring me a quote from egw that says different.... whom do I believe..... NOT egw..... either the bible is correct or not.... but egw does NOT trump the bible....

at the risk of generalizing.... the response is typical adventist christian... for some reason people feel uncomfortable with the fact that Jesus chose Judas... not sure why.... so they find a way to say he was different, that his chosing was different...

Jesus chose him.... so let the gymnastics begin....

No gymnastics..... just a comment. IMO "people feel uncomfortable with the fact that Jesus chose Judas" as one of the twelve because they can't handle having at least two of their presupositions challenged..... 1) that had Jesus known of Judas's betrayal he would not have chosen him, and 2) (which is probably most basic and important), they can't accept the idea that God may not have perfect detailed knowledge of the future, but that He is honest in the opportunities he gives to human beings to make real decisions and to develop their character in one direction or another... not merely so that other humans can see the results, but also so that He, Himself, can see what they will do.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 08:04 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 06:35 AM)

Well, if you want some gymnastics, tell me without contradicting yourself who hardened Pharoah's heart! Sometimes the Bible is open to interpretation, and sometimes the wording used is not necessarily as simple to understand as taking it at face value. I accept your point. And yet, I understand the same passages differently. I don't see any conflict between EGW and the Bible on this point. She is telling us what happened, historically, which Mark only remotely implies in the following passage: (Mark 3:13-19)
Ellen White is talking about this same ordination service. It is evident that Judas tagged along with those whom Jesus had called, and was accepted into their company and ordained along with them. Jesus did not refuse Judas, even though Judas had come "uninvited". Perhaps you would agree that there can be a difference between those called and those actually ordained here.

Again, in Luke, we have almost the same story: (Luke 6:13-16)
Here the distinction is even more clear between those called and those chosen. It is as if there were many disciples (followers) from which to choose, and He accepted just twelve of them. We are told, of course, of Jesus' specific invitation to some of those disciples, calling them by name, and saying "Follow me." Where did Jesus call Judas in like manner?

gymnastics.... the bible says Jesus chose... I am going with that one.... just because there is no detailed description of Jesus calling Judas as he did Peter, does not mean it didn't happen.....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 08:11 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 24 2006, 07:35 AM)

No gymnastics..... just a comment. IMO "people feel uncomfortable with the fact that Jesus chose Judas" as one of the twelve because they can't handle having at least two of their presupositions challenged..... 1) that had Jesus known of Judas's betrayal he would not have chosen him, and 2) (which is probably most basic and important), they can't accept the idea that God may not have perfect detailed knowledge of the future, but that He is honest in the opportunities he gives to human beings to make real decisions and to develop their character in one direction or another... not merely so that other humans can see the results, but also so that He, Himself, can see what they will do.

I am not at all "uncomfortable" with the idea that Jesus might have chosen Judas. As it stands, I don't believe that Jesus chose him in the same manner with which He selected the others, but I would have no problem, if such were truly the case, with the other scenario. Jesus did know the future, which is why He later commented on having chosen the twelve and one was a devil. (John 6:70) So I have no problem with either 1) or 2) stated above.

However, here's some other possibles that some might be uncomfortable with if, in fact, we determine that Jesus called Judas instead of Judas volunteering himself: 1) Were there only eleven who were truly qualified and Jesus had to pick an inferior character just to reach the magic number 12? 2) Was there someone else more qualified, of a better metal, who Jesus rejected, just to secure Judas? 3) Did Jesus pick Judas only to fulfill messianic prophecies, knowing full well what Judas would do?

Personally, I think Ellen White wrote the truth. Judas had a great deal of pride. As such, he certainly would have deemed himself an asset to Jesus and his uncultured band of men. Why wouldn't he have volunteered, if this was the Messiah? Everyone in his day believed the Messiah would be a king to set them free from the Romans. Judas wanted some of that honor. And his "class" made the disciples think he would be a good companion as well...they could not see his heart the way Jesus certainly did.

The more important question for us is, are we volunteering to do things for God without His invitation? Perhaps God can work through it, in spite of ourselves, but it is never safe to go without His permission. Ask Balaam.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 08:14 AM

the important question is when there is a contradiction between the bible and egw who will you believe?

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 08:26 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 24 2006, 02:07 PM)

Think once more and you will realize that it was God who told us that in the first place. (Sorry I don't have a text on the tip of my fingers, but perhaps others will supply those for us.)

Shakespeare only commented on what was obvious to the observer. But God is a God of Love.... which includes mercy, and he is willing to let it "embolden sin", knowing that it will also cause some sinners to change their ways and abandon their sin and turn and follow Him.

God gives mercy becourse it is in His nature to do so. We as humans is another topic entierly. Giving this quote in a topic discussing wether we are to offer mercy towards those at 3ABN or not gives the impression of "not". It gives the impression that it would endanger us to forgive Danny and the others at 3ABN. It is possible that this is not how it was intended but in such case a few words of comment wouldnt have been to much to ask of beartrap.

As for texts to quote on the area of forgiveness, let me offer this one.

http://www.blueletterbible.org/cgi-bin/popup.pl?book=Luk&chapter=11&verse=4&version=kjv
And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 24 2006, 08:47 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 08:14 AM)

the important question is when there is a contradiction between the bible and egw who will you believe?

In this case, of course, I don't see a contradiction. However, I do not believe there is never an apparent contradiction (there may be outright contradictions, but I feel they would be difficult to prove so). I have already posted previously some examples of Biblical contradictions. Who will you believe when the Bible contradicts itself? Such as that gymnastic exercise I referred to earlier, where it is said of Pharoah that God hardened his heart or that Pharoah hardened his heart. In this case, I believe it is a matter of misinterpreting the wording. I can easily imagine a similar sentence constructed like this: The heat angered the passenger. Who/what made the passenger angry? Obviously the passenger chose to be angry. Pharoah, likewise, chose to harden his heart in God's presence (i.e. God hardened Pharoah's heart). So, back to Judas, did Jesus call him? or did he call himself? It's open to interpretation.

BTW, where does the Bible say Jesus chose Judas? I can't find any form of the words "call" or "chose" associated with Judas in that sense.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 08:57 AM

I like your spiritual logic....

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 09:47 AM)

In this case, of course, I don't see a contradiction. However, I do not believe there is never an apparent contradiction (there may be outright contradictions, but I feel they would be difficult to prove so). I have already posted previously some examples of Biblical contradictions. Who will you believe when the Bible contradicts itself? Such as that gymnastic exercise I referred to earlier, where it is said of Pharoah that God hardened his heart or that Pharoah hardened his heart. In this case, I believe it is a matter of misinterpreting the wording. I can easily imagine a similar sentence constructed like this: The heat angered the passenger. Who/what made the passenger angry? Obviously the passenger chose to be angry. Pharoah, likewise, chose to harden his heart in God's presence (i.e. God hardened Pharoah's heart). So, back to Judas, did Jesus call him? or did he call himself? It's open to interpretation.

BTW, where does the Bible say Jesus chose Judas? I can't find any form of the words "call" or "chose" associated with Judas in that sense.

and I have to agree....there is not an inconsistency....

Posted by: Lubega Sep 24 2006, 09:20 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 24 2006, 10:47 AM)

In this case, of course, I don't see a contradiction. However, I do not believe there is never an apparent contradiction (there may be outright contradictions, but I feel they would be difficult to prove so). I have already posted previously some examples of Biblical contradictions. Who will you believe when the Bible contradicts itself? Such as that gymnastic exercise I referred to earlier, where it is said of Pharoah that God hardened his heart or that Pharoah hardened his heart. In this case, I believe it is a matter of misinterpreting the wording. I can easily imagine a similar sentence constructed like this: The heat angered the passenger. Who/what made the passenger angry? Obviously the passenger chose to be angry. Pharoah, likewise, chose to harden his heart in God's presence (i.e. God hardened Pharoah's heart). So, back to Judas, did Jesus call him? or did he call himself? It's open to interpretation.

BTW, where does the Bible say Jesus chose Judas? I can't find any form of the words "call" or "chose" associated with Judas in that sense.

Read Luke 6:13-16 in the KJV

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 09:31 AM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 23 2006, 05:40 PM)

Ok...not an "ordained" Pastor - but one who stands in a "likeness" of a Pastor/leader....

As long as this is the same "answer" that is done for all..... Young ladies (like me) and others....
Wait? You mean this isn't the way it's done for all.....
Then Danny should suffer the same fate as others (me) had to....

JMO

You've got a good point there, Re. Guess perhaps it is a regional thing for me. In my church they baptize a person even if they haven't given up smoking yet. They won't let the person hold a church position until they have moved far enough along in their spiritual journey, but they are welcomed into the membership of fellow sinners seeking the kingdom. West Coast SDA churches seem to be more liberal in that regard (and I praise the Lord for it).

I guess I should say that, to me, Danny is different than an ordained pastor. To many others he is seen as the same.

I certainly can identify with you being harshly judged by the organization. Although I wasn't disfellowshipped when I was a young lady for sins they thought I had committed, I certainly was shunned! This was decades ago and on a completely different continent.

I hope you have been welcomed back into the fold by now! Some day the churches who got their high and mighty panties all bunched up and forgot that they were sinners, too, will certainly have some reckoning to deal with IMO!!!

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 23 2006, 05:49 PM)

That is only true on paper. In the sight of God he is most certainly a pastor. A pastor means "shepherd". In fact, in Spanish, it is the same word for pastor and shepherd--both "pastor". Pastor has the same root as our English word pasture, and can be thought of as one who "feeds the flock". Danny, in his position of trust, is feeding many every day with his words, whether they be truth-filled or empty. One day, he, as all of us, will have to answer God's question "where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock?" (Jer. 13:20)

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20:28)

Point taken.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 09:37 AM

Scripture is not the issue as Steve already posted that (but Green Cochoa may have missed that)....the point of contention seems to be whether or not one accepts the specifics of how Judas got there included in EGW quote posted as well as the fact that he was "called' and "chosen".

As Christ is also God, he not only knew it would be Judas but also wanted to save him...IMHO

QUOTE(Lubega @ Sep 24 2006, 10:20 AM)

Read Luke 6:13-16 in the KJV

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 09:56 AM

Does God know in advance who will and who wont be saved? If no, could it be possible that Jesus still had hopes that His influence on the life of Judas would change him?

In any case, Judas is evidence A of what Paul writes that God came to us while we where yet sinners. That Jesus accepted and walked and ate with Judas (in case He didnt know for sure from the beginning He still did this after knowing for sure) despite the way their relationship ended ought to give hope for anyone. Gods mercy in big enough for all humans to fit in. May we become more like Him in this.

/Thomas

Posted by: Lubega Sep 24 2006, 10:01 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 24 2006, 11:37 AM)

Scripture is not the issue as Steve already posted that (but Green Cochoa may have missed that)....the point of contention seems to be whether or not one accepts the specifics of how Judas got there included in EGW quote posted as well as the fact that he was "called' and "chosen".

As Christ is also God, he not only knew it would be Judas but also wanted to save him...IMHO

Ok but I was not addressing the "topic" as a whole just the question the person asked

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 24 2006, 11:56 AM)

Does God know in advance who will and who wont be saved? If no, could it be possible that Jesus still had hopes that His influence on the life of Judas would change him?

In any case, Judas is evidence A of what Paul writes that God came to us while we where yet sinners. That Jesus accepted and walked and ate with Judas (in case He didnt know for sure from the beginning He still did this after knowing for sure) despite the way their relationship ended ought to give hope for anyone. Gods mercy in big enough for all humans to fit in. May we become more like Him in this.

/Thomas

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 10:20 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 23 2006, 11:15 PM)

Many years ago, in California, I met the Adventist artist, Elfred Lee. I have received an email that relates an experience Elfred Lee had, around the time he was doing a mural in Washington,DC. I will post it here and now.

It relates to the topic of the

VALIDITY OF ELLEN WHITE:[/b]

[b]"Subject: Who is this Ellen White?
Shared by Edwin de Kock

Artist Elfred Lee's Testimony of Rabbi Joe Kagan's Endorsement of EllenG. White "I met Rabbi Joe Kagan at Weimar Institute in CA. His family had come from Eastern Europe where his aunt had been raped while a priest stood over her with a crucifix saying, "This is what you get for killing Christ." So you can imagine the feeling of many Jews towards Christianity. American Christians are not at all like Europeans. His family moved to the US while he was young. At age 13 he debuted at Carnegie Hall as a cantor. He had a beautiful, tenor voice. He received a very high education and became a rabbi. I met him in his later years in 1978 after he had been on Ronald Reagan's staff in Sacramento as their research man. If there were any questions about any subject, he was the one that did the research and found the answers. He had a very negative attitude towards Christianity. He would never touch the New Testament. However, he knew the Jewish Old Testament (Torah) extremely well as a highly educated rabbi would. One day he got hold of a book called Patriarchs and Prophets by Ellen G. White. He read it with astonishment and wanted to know who this Ellen White was. That is when I met him. He was asking who is this Ellen G. White and what university did she attend.

We told him she only had a 3rd grade education. "Then where did she learn Hebrew?" he asked. We told him that she never knew Hebrew, but was the most prolific female writer in history and that this was only one of her books. He was amazed at her knowledge, saying that the information in this book (Patriarchs and Prophets) is Mishnaic. The Mishnah is part of the Hebrew scholarship. He said the Mishnah had only been translated into English 30 years ago and that only high-level rabbis knew this information. This is the history of my people and it is very, very accurate. He also said that you have to know Hebrew to be able to write like this because her sentence structure is not English, it's Hebrew. The rhythm the meter, the arrangement of words and expressions are not English. He said it's as if she wrote in Hebrew and it was translated into English.

My family and I developed a strong friendship with Joe, his wife and son. As we studied the Bible and some Ellen White books together one day, he said, "I am convinced that Ellen White was inspired by the same source that inspired the Hebrew prophets. I want to become a Christian. I accept Jesus Christ as my Messiah." Now, he would not have come to Christ through reading the Bible. Even though the Hebrew Bible is full of prophecies pointing to the Messiah, it took Ellen White's writings to prove to him that Jesus Christ was the fulfillment of all the Hebrew prophecies. And only then did he pick up the New Testament and read about his Jewish Messiah.

Many times I saw him cry. I was in the middle of a painting commission for a large mural called "Christ The Way of Life" for the world headquarters of the Seventh Day Adventist church in Washington DC. He became very involved with that painting. The painting had originally been inspired by James and Ellen White who had commissioned an engraver to do a black and white drawing of the subject. He confirmed to me that Ellen White's concept was very accurate on the whole plan of salvation in both the Old and New Testament, but that the engraver had misrepresented her concepts. So he helped me in many details to make the painting historically and theologically accurate; especially regarding the sanctuary section, the Hebrew writing on the cross and the last supper scene. He told me to paint Jesus and his disciples at an oriental style table, sitting on mats on the floor - not Roman couches as the medieval artists painted. Further, he said their heads would be covered and he made sure I painted the wine, the unleavened bread and the bitter herbs and their symbolism exactly as they would have been.

He approved of the whole painting and we had an unveiling ceremony at the Auburn SDA church in late 1979. He had written a song to go with the painting and sat at the organ as we unveiled the painting. He wept as he sang the words of Jesus on the cross quoting Isaiah, "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?" He sang and sang and wept and wept, his whole body shaking. There was not a dry eye in the whole church. His voice was so beautiful. The original painting hangs in the new SDA world headquarters in Silver Spring, Maryland where they have posters and bible studies of the painting. I could never have done it without the inspiration of Rabbi Kagan and Ellen White. I wish they were still alive! We were at his secret baptism in the Bear River above Sacramento on Saturday night Dec 22

1979. There were four of us present. He could not even tell his wife and son that he was now a Christian. As he came up out of the cold water praising God and singing to his new Messiah, he said, "I am now a completed Jew. I have now accepted the Old and New Testament and the Messiah that all Jewish prophets told us about!"

I was recently in Europe giving some workshops on art and some of my archeological work in the Middle East. I happened to meet a Jewish family from Israel. Shalom David was originally from Iraq and his wife from Chile. They were now attending a college in Europe where I met with quite a bit of opposition to the writings of Ellen White. This Jewish family invited me to their home for Shabbat (Friday night supper.) It was a most enjoyable occasion as his wife and beautiful children sang and celebrated the arrival of Sabbath as Jews have done for thousands of years. I told them the story of Rabbi Kagan and he got very excited. He said, "The same thing happened to me! I would have rather burned the bible then touch it! I wanted nothing to do with Christianity, but I also read the writings of Ellen White and the Spirit of God was on that woman. Her writings are as if she wrote in Hebrew. You can definitely hear the Hebrew rhythm, meter and expressions in her books. I also believe she was inspired by the same source as the Hebrew prophets. And she has helped me fall in love with Jesus Christ, my Messiah."

I just met yesterday with a rabbi living here in California - Rabbi Ben. It was a follow up to a Sabbath meal I was invited to this last Sabbath with him and a group of Adventists. He went through the whole ceremony at the meal just like Rabbi Kagan and my new friend (Shalom David) in Europe had. So yesterday we were talking over Hebrew ceremonies and how they are still effective in healing disease. Rabbi Ben told me that he has also had the same experience. He hated the bible but that Ellen White brought him to Christ and helped him read the New Testament and fall in love with the Messiah. He also told me that he had gone to visit one of the most influential rabbis in America who is in his 90s who must remain unnamed. While in this rabbi's library talking, he was scanning the many, many books on his walls and there he saw the book Patriarchs and Prophets by Ellen white. Rabbi Ben asked him about it and where he had gotten it, "Why do you have this book by a Christian author?" The rabbi said, "This as a very authoritative source on our history." I recently shared this testimony on T.V. at 3 Angels Broadcasting Network. My phone has been ringing day and night by interested people from as far away as India and Australia saying, "we want to know more about Joe Kagan and Ellen White."

The book Patriarchs and Prophets can be found in any Adventist Book Center or at the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists on old Columbia Pike, Silver Spring, Maryland. Posters of "Christ The Way of Life" can be found there. See it online at <http://www.elfredleereligiousart.com/>

The Joy of the Lord is my Strength"

Nehemiah 8:10

International Prayer Ministry

PrWarrior4Him@aol.com".

F Y I

There is already a thread on this email... I'll find and post the link later...and what I said there, I will repeat here... If EGW were to see this it would make her sick... because her intent in all she said and did was not so people would ask "who is this Ellen White?" but rather that they ask "who is this Jesus?".

It is men who have put her on a pedestal and directed a spotlight on her and elevated her to semi-deity status in the years since she died... but were she alive her response to this would be that of the angel to John in Rev 19... " See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant..."She refused such while she lived but she has been made the posthumous pope of Adventism, complete with ex cathedra infallibility... and there are some who would even deign to make her co-redemptrix, believing that believing EGW alone is enough to get one walking the golden streets of the New Jerusalem.

Another thing in this is her writings being seen as Talmudic in nature, since the Talmud is post exilic rabbinical interpretations of scripture and not scripture itself, it is at best problematic for those who view them as on a par with (if not de facto greater than) scripture...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 11:31 AM

QUOTE(Lubega @ Sep 24 2006, 07:20 AM)

Read Luke 6:13-16 in the KJV

I read in both KJV and NIV.

NIV
Romans 6:13When morning came, he called his disciples to him and chose twelve of them, whom he also designated apostles: 14Simon (whom he named Peter), his brother Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, 15Matthew, Thomas, James son of Alphaeus, Simon who was called the Zealot, 16Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

KJV
Romans 6:13And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles;
14Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,
15Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, 16And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.
When Jesus chose his 12 disciples out of the many men and women who were His followers, He knew that they were babes in the truth and had lots of growing to do. Look at the sons of thunder who bickered for lofty positions, Peter's temper, all of their lack of faith and their misunderstanding of what Messiah was there to do.

On their journey with Him, they each had the opportunity to become enlightened to the actual plan and decide which kingdom they were going to choose to be a part of. Obviously, Judas ultimately decided to trust in his own interpretation of what Christ's mission was and decided to force the issue. He had every opportunity to become a solid and true disciple like the others.

At least this is how I interpret the verses.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 11:45 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 01:31 PM)

I read in both KJV and NIV.

NIV
Romans 6:13When morning came, he called his disciples to him and chose twelve of them, whom he also designated apostles: 14Simon (whom he named Peter), his brother Andrew, James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, 15Matthew, Thomas, James son of Alphaeus, Simon who was called the Zealot, 16Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

KJV
Romans 6:13And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles;
14Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,
15Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alphaeus, and Simon called Zelotes, 16And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.
When Jesus chose his 12 disciples out of the many men and women who were His followers, He knew that they were babes in the truth and had lots of growing to do. Look at the sons of thunder who bickered for lofty positions, Peter's temper, all of their lack of faith and their misunderstanding of what Messiah was there to do.

On their journey with Him, they each had the opportunity to become enlightened to the actual plan and decide which kingdom they were going to choose to be a part of. Obviously, Judas ultimately decided to trust in his own interpretation of what Christ's mission was and decided to force the issue. He had every opportunity to become a solid and true disciple like the others.

At least this is how I interpret the verses.

But in that interpretation Judas was chosen just as the other 11 were, correct?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 12:00 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 09:31 AM) ☐

I guess I should say that, to me, Danny is different than an ordained pastor. To many others he is seen as the same.

And I agree. Being an ordained pastor implies that one has completed courses of study so they are conversant not only with scripture, but the many roles and duties and obligations of ministry.... AND that at one time, at least, they performed in a manner to convince the officials of the hiring conference that they were not only qualified, but in a special sense of the words, had been "called" by God to the work of Pastoral Ministry.

Danny is different in several ways. He is not trained. He did not go through any period of submitting himself to the Conference administrators and demonstrating his qualifications for ministry. And he was never recognized as being a pastor. He has, of course, never claimed to be an ordained minister. But that has not stopped him from lifting himself up to the level of one who sits in judgment on what messages should be sent around the world as representing Adventism..... including refusing to air programming from the Adventist media center and from Pastor's from some of the largest of the denomination's churches. He has refused to even consider having consultants in even an advisory capacity for examining the doctrinal content of prospective programming for 3ABN. And while he does not claim to be "ordained" to this work, he claims the Pentecostal term of "anointed of God" .... putting himself on a par with Biblical characters such as Moses, David, and John the Baptist.

The church has also treated him "differently" than it does other independent ministries. It has not taken any notice of the multiple moral problems that exist in his ministry.... including his own activities. It has allowed him to be called "the face of Adventism"..... even in the face of revelations about his activities that make true Adventists cringe when they hear the appelation. They have "winked" at reports of the diversion of tithes.... in spite of all they have said against anyone giving their tithes in any way other than through the official tithe envelope channels.

Why?

"How long O Lord, How long?"

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 24 2006, 12:14 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 24 2006, 11:00 AM)

And I agree. Being an ordained pastor implies that one has completed courses of study so they are conversant not only with scripture, but the many roles and duties and obligations of ministry.... AND that at one time, at least, they performed in a manner to convince the officials of the hiring conference that they were not only qualified, but in a special sense of the words, had been "called" by God to the work of Pastoral Ministry.

Danny is different in several ways. He is not trained. He did not go through any period of submitting himself to the Conference administrators and demonstrating his qualifications for ministry. And he was never recognized as being a pastor. He has, of course, never claimed to be an ordained minister. But that has not stopped him from lifting himself up to the level of one who sits in judgment on what messages should be sent around the world as representing Adventism..... including refusing to air programming from the Adventist media center and from Pastor's from some of the largest of the denomination's churches. He has refused to even consider having consultants in even an advisory capacity for examining the doctrinal content of prospective programming for 3ABN. And while he does not claim to be "ordained" to this work, he claims the Pentecostal term of "anointed of God" .... putting himself on a par with Biblical characters such as Moses, David, and John the Baptist.

The church has also treated him "differently" than it does other independent ministries. It has not taken any notice of the multiple moral problems that exist in his ministry.... including his own activities. It has allowed him to be called "the face of Adventism"..... even in the face of revelations about his activities that make true Adventists cringe when they hear the appelation. They have "winked" at reports of the diversion of tithes.... in spite of all they have said against anyone giving their tithes in any way other than through the official tithe envelope channels.

Why?

"How long O Lord, How long?"

I still just don't get it. If Danny has done all that he has been accused of, why don't the wronged take legal action. If they are why all the secrecy? If there is such hard evidence what are they worried about? If the evidence is there why won't the "leaders" believe it? I see some of them being blinded but not all of them. I understand Dr. B spoke out but I hate to say it he doesn't have much credibility with most SDA's I know....

Posted by: JustTana Sep 24 2006, 12:17 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 08:39 AM)

Context is such an important factor in "rightly dividing the word of truth"..... and even more so in applying the "word of truth" to circumstances which are far different than the original situation calling for the "testimony".

When Ellen White wrote testimonies to individuals, she wrote to correct that particular individual. And since some strayed from the path on the one side and some on the other, she wrote quite opposite things to those on each side of the path. And even in her lifetime it was quite common for those who needed the counsel on the one side to pick up the counsel to those straying in the opposite direction ..... and vice versa.

Ellen at times "hid" the sins of her brethren..... and at times exposed them. And she has counsel which is generalized to the church for when it is appropriate for us to choose between the same courses of action. In general, the "rules" are the same as those laid down in scripture .... sin must be exposed to the same extent to which it has affected other people (or that it has the potential for harming other people).

It is, IMO, cruelty of the rankest order for someone to add to the stress of the burdens that those of us carry..... who, either because we were directly victimized by the Shelton gang or have seen enough so that we simply can no longer stand aside without doing whatever it takes to get the evils we have seen (and any others that we haven't yet seen) expunged from the "camp"..... by applying such out of context quotes to us. If one is going to quote Ellen White, then please choose from her statements which reproves sin and which lays upon those who are aware of it the responsibility of reproving, exposing, and removing it from among us.

And if you really want to get personal .... using a "rake" instead of a "pitchfork" when handling her bundles of statements ..... then how about pulling them to yourselves instead of accusing us who are attempting to warn innocent victims (or victims to be). For example ... what about "criticism and condemnation of the brethren"..... and sisters..... who are standing on the Lord's side against continued evil?..... Will it not also be "counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ."

Dear Watchbird:

I totally agree with you on this. People need to understand that those ' Selected Messages' of Sister White are, in truth, books with collected quotes designed to highlight an agenda of the collector/s. These persons have an agenda which may or may not agree with the context of each of the quotations selected for publication in a particular book and it would do those who use them a great deal of good to go to the original passage to see what her original meaning really was. "Adventist Home", "Child Guidance", and several other of these types of books are of this 'ilk' and I do not trust them. Since there are many areas of EGW's writings which I find irritating at the least you might sense a bit of acrimony against the 'dear' lady.

I'm sorry if this offends many of you, (and I expect it to!), so please do not write me to complain about this post. But I do also recognize that I have much learning to do, too

Quite frankly, I also believe that while God did give her information that we all need about our relationship with God, there was much that the world was not yet able to accept regarding the power in His Word. This is POWER that is available to us today when our understanding is opened with the discerning gifts of the Holy Spirit.

So now, when using EGW to criticize those who are in right standing with God which is noted by their commitment to 3ABN (not to the Shelton Gang) please realize that, as has been stated in this thread before, I believe, and has also been Linda's goal, it is the preservation of the ministry which is at stake here.

Please be careful and kind. EGW can be a cruel tool in the hands of the wong people when applied to people who do not deserve it but are often not quite confident enough in themselves, perhaps, or in their understanding of God's true will for them: indeed, all of us, when it comes to knowing when to stand up for truth have been so conditioned by Satan to think that to want anything for ourselves is selfishness that it oftens clouds our sense of propriety. Be sure that you are not one of those 'beating down the faithful' with her words used in an unkind way.

JustTana

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 12:39 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 24 2006, 02:17 PM)

Dear Watchbird:

I totally agree with you on this. People need to understand that those ' Selected Messages' of Sister White are, in truth, books with collected quotes designed to highlight an agenda of the collector/s. These persons have an agenda which may or may not agree with the context of each of the quotations selected for publication in a particular book and it would do those who use them a great deal of good to go to the original passage so see what her original meaning really was. "Adventist Home", "Child Guidance", and several other of these types of books are of this 'ilk' and I do not trust them. Since there are many areas of EGW's writings which I find irritating at the least you might sense a bit of acrimony against the 'dear' lady.

Your acrimony is not against her... on this topic, at least... it is with those who are making the compilations and the agendae they put forth while trying to hide in the shadow of EGW in an attempt to give said agendae legitimacy.

As Watchbird mentioned before, those same passages in context are often talking about something that has nothing to do with how the passage is being applied. Those making the application try to say if you disagree with their application you are disagreeing with EGW (and thus by extension and implication the Lord God Almighty Himself) but the fact is neither God nor EGW is the one making the application and it is the application of the writing with which you differ not what the writing says in it's context.

Some folks insist on being obtuse and acting like the distinction is merely semantic... but it is not.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: JustTana Sep 24 2006, 12:44 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 01:39 PM)

Your acrimony is not against her... on this topic, at least... it is with those who are making the compilations and the agendae they put forth while trying to hide in the shadow of EGW in an attempt to give said agendae legitimacy.

As Watchbird mentioned before, those same passages in context are often talking about something that has nothing to do with how the passage is being applied. Those making the application try to say if you disagree with their application you are disagreeing with EGW (and thus by extension and implication the Lord God Almighty Himself) but the fact is neither God nor EGW is the one making the application and it is the application of the writing with which you differ not what the writing says in it's context.

Some folks insist on being obtuse and acting like the distinction is merely semantic... but it is not.

In His service,
Mr. J

Dear Awesometenor:

Thank you for those kind words.

JT

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 01:02 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 10:45 AM)

But in that interpretation Judas was chosen just as the other 11 were, correct?

In His service,
Mr. J

Correct.

Posted by: justme Sep 24 2006, 01:12 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 11:20 AM)

There is already a thread on this email... I'll find and post the link later...and what I said there, I will repeat here... If EGW were to see this it would make her sick... because her intent in all she said and did was not so people would ask "who is this Ellen White?" but rather that they ask "who is this Jesus?".

It is men who have put her on a pedestal and directed a spotlight on her and elevated her to semi-deity status in the years since she died... but were she alive her response to this would be that of the angel to John in Rev 19... " See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant..."She refused such > while she lived but she has been made the posthumous pope of Adventism, complete with ex cathedra infallibility... and there are some who would even deign to make her co-redemptrix, believing that believing EGW alone is enough to get one walking the golden streets of the New Jerusalem.

>
> Another thing in this is her writings being seen as Talmudic in nature, since the Talmud is post exilic rabbinical interpretations of scripture and not scripture itself, it is at best problematic for those who view them as on a par with (if not de facto greater than) scripture...
>
> In His service,
> Mr. J

"awsometenor", let me apologize for duplicating this email. I try so hard to keep up, but I failed again. I will say that I agree with you that EGW should nOT be placed on a par with the Bible, and she told us so herself.

If she had seen this she would be pleased to know that, after so many years and years of rejecting Jesus and the entire New Testament, a Rabbi had heard the voice of the God of Israel THROUGH her pen. Because God spoke through her pen in a "form" that the Rabbi could relate to, he was able to see the God he was looking for.

This post has so little to do with EGW and so much to do with the way God was able to reach the Rabbi. God Himself is very much evident in this post. The God of Abraham and Isaac knew that someday such a Rabbi would need to see God this way that God prepared a message for him way in advance. God just happened to use EGW.

My mention of the "Vindication" of EGW is to show how far ahead of the need God had used her in a very unique way to reach just such an Rabbi.

It was truly amazing for that man who was a MASON of the MASONIC ORDER to see EGW give with her own hand the very secret sign known only to higher order MASONS. BUT such a story does not place her upon any kind of pedestal. Only certain individuals how have tendency toward being "Groupies" make heroes out of ordinary people.

Ellen would be happy to know that a Rabbi was able to see JESUS as Savior and Lord through something she wrote. It will serve us all well to remember that she never did "enjoy: writing the things she was given. It was very hard work, long and laborious.

Selected Messages are just that, selected messages. Selected not by EGW but by ... , well, people who believe that the gospel can be "Condensed and Encapsulated" for a quick meal. They are from her pen, but out of context, good messages if used properly.

You are correct in pointing out that she would turn over in her grave if she thought she were "elevated" in some way. She actually wondered st times if her pen would ever be read and understood and taken to heart. She was actually shown things like this story of the Rabbi who actually would come to see Jesus through her pen.

Oh, would that we each could see some "uplifting of Jesus through our own pens". So that maybe one heart would be touched and opened to Him. Sometimes it takes words placed in a certain "tone" or "meter" that means something.

It still amazes me how ineffective we are with the words we choose so carefully, but how effectively God can interpret them beyond our wildest comprehension. I don't know if EGW words, or style, or meter, were the key to the Rabbis' understanding or whether it was placed into his heart by the Holy Spirit to see what God had been trying to show him for years.

The great miracle of communication is a gift from God.

Thanks again for your point, and for posting it again from your previous post.

JMHO (which isn't worth much.)
it's "justme"

(Maybe I should just back out and read, and stop trying to post. I hate to upset you so. I am new to this. I have really bad eyes. It's hard to see things as clearly as I would like. It's obviously causing problems for the forum. I will just stick to reading yours. Thanks for your help.)

I see a place to "Register".
How does one "Un-Register"?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 24 2006, 01:16 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 24 2006, 12:17 PM)

Dear Watchbird:

I totally agree with you on this. People need to understand that those ' Selected Messages' of Sister White are, in truth, books with collected quotes designed to highlight an agenda of the collector/s. These persons have an agenda which may or may not agree with the context of each of the quotations selected for publication in a particular book and it would do those who use them a great deal of good to go to the original passage to see what her original meaning really was. "Adventist Home", "Child Guidance", and several other of these types of books are of this 'ilk' and I do not trust them. Since there are many areas of EGW's writings which I find irritating at the least you might sense a bit of acrimony against the 'dear' lady.

I'm sorry if this offends many of you, (and I expect it to!), so please do not write me to complain about this post. But I do also recognize that I have much learning to do, too

What you say above about EGW compilations is all too true, and goes directly against her express instructions as to how to use her writings. It is, however, unfortunate that you used "Selected Messages" as a label of these books, since the three books with this specific title was, in fact, a series that broke sharply with the tradition of collecting sentences and paragraphs, and instead not only selected whole "messages", but also at times gave a bit of context for them.

I fully agree, however, that the specific titles you gave (and a few others as well), certainly do deserve the "bit of acrimony" that you exhibit..... howbeit as awesumtenor noted, it should be directed at the compilers rather than at the author of the original statements. Fortunately, we are no longer limited to the compilations and indexes created by human preferences and prejudices, but we have everything available and searchable on-line. And eventually, we will have all the unpublished documents available in the same way..... plus it is my understanding that there will be contextual information about every person and situation which is addressed. So while there will doubtless still be those that misuse her writings, there will be less and less excuse to fall for the "lines" they throw out.

QUOTE

Quite frankly, I also believe that while God did give her information that we all need about our relationship with God, there was much that the world was not yet able to accept regarding the power in His Word. This is POWER that is available to us today when our understanding is opened with the discerning gifts of the Holy Spirit.

I'm not exactly sure why you have capitalized "power". There is information and knowledge and research methods that are available to us today that were not available in past centuries. And there the guidance of the Holy Spirit is still available to us today as it has been ever since Pentecost, so yes, I think we should be ever expanding our understanding of scripture as well as our doctrines, rather than tying so tightly to the past understandings that we are like a ship that has not cast off the tie-down lines from the dock.

QUOTE

So now, when using EGW to criticize those who are in right standing with God which is noted by their commitment to 3ABN (not to the Shelton Gang) please realize that, as has been stated in this thread before, I believe, and has also been Linda's goal, it is the preservation of the ministry which is at stake here.

The question remains to be seen whether Danny and "the Shelton Gang" can be separated from 3ABN so that that entity can pass into new ownership and go on being a ministry of the Adventist church..... or whether Danny and 3abn are so entwined that the separation has to come between the Adventist church and 3abn. Whichever it is, there is a sense in which the true "ministry" will go on..... whether that ministry is to be found carrying a 3ABN logo or a HOPE or some other logo, but one which will openly identify itself as a supporting ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist church and will enter into full and reciprocal contractual agreements with the church such that it can with some validity be called "the face of Adventism" to the world.

QUOTE

Please be careful and kind. EGW can be a cruel tool in the hands of the wong people when applied to people who do not deserve it but are often not quite confident enough in themselves, perhaps, or in their understanding of God's true will for them: indeed, all of us, when it comes to knowing when to stand up for truth have been so conditioned by Satan to think that to want anything for ourselves is selfishness that it oftens clouds our sense of propriety. Be sure that you are not one of those 'beating down the faithful' with her words used in an unkind way.

JustTana

Well stated.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 24 2006, 01:23 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 24 2006, 02:14 PM)

I still just don't get it. If Danny has done all that he has been accused of, why don't the wronged take legal action. If they are why all the secrecy? If there is such hard evidence what are they worried about? If the evidence is there why won't the "leaders" believe it? I see some of them being blinded but not all of them. I understand Dr. B spoke out but I hate to say it he doesn't have much credibility with most SDA's I know....

Um, what does Dr. B's credibility have to do with what watchbird stated?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 01:24 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 24 2006, 03:12 PM)

(Maybe I should just back out and read, and stop trying to post. I hate to upset you so. I am new to this. I have really bad eyes. It's hard to see things as clearly as I would like. It's obviously causing problems for the forum. I will just stick to reading yours. Thanks for your help.)

I see a place to "Register".
How does one "Un-Register"?

Dont unregister... and FWIW, I am not upset... I am opinionated to a fault on occasion and sometimes wrong but never in doubt... but I am not upset and while those not familiar with me may not catch it, I derive great pleasure in discussing things with people whose perspective and mine may not jibe. Your opinions are causing me no angst... and as Patrick Henry once said, I may not agree with what you say but I will defend to the death your right to say them. BSDA does not seek to be monolithic and it's strength is it's diversity... not just in the backgrounds of the members but also in the perspectives and opinions those members hold.

Hope this helps.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: justme Sep 24 2006, 01:28 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 03:24 PM)

Dont unregister... and FWIW, I am not upset... I am opinionated to a fault on occasion and sometimes wrong but never in doubt... but I am not upset and while those not familiar with me may not catch it, I derive great pleasure in discussing things with people whose perspective and mine may not jibe. Your opinions are causing me no angst... and as Patrick Henry once said, I may not agree with what you say but I will defend to the death your right to say them. BSDA does not seek to be monolithic and it's strength is it's diversity... not just in the backgrounds of the members but also in the perspectives and opinions those members hold.

Hope this helps.

In His service,
Mr. J

YUP! it does.

P.S. I'm kinda losing any expectation that anything will come of all this stuff at 3ABN.

As usual it likely will be swept under the rug.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 01:31 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 24 2006, 01:28 PM)

YUP! it does.

P.S. I'm kinda losing any expectation that anything will come of all this stuff at 3ABN.

As usual it likely will be swept under the rug.

and you might be right.....

Posted by: Johann Sep 24 2006, 01:37 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 24 2006, 08:14 PM)

I still just don't get it. If Danny has done all that he has been accused of, why don't the wronged take legal action. If they are why all the secrecy? If there is such hard evidence what are they worried about? If the evidence is there why won't the "leaders" believe it? I see some of them being blinded but not all of them. I understand Dr. B spoke out but I hate to say it he doesn't have much credibility with most SDA's I know....

I'd sure like to agree with you, US. Have you ever taken legal action? It seems so easy, but when you are up against an institution which can afford a battery of defending lawyers, it takes more money than most of them have combined to take legal action. Besides that a legal action takes forever. I think it is called due process, but perhaps someone will correct me on this?

Certain top leaders I have spoken to fear repercussions. . . Some state that they are not able to do anything because 3ABN is a private institution and not under the church. Others claim they can do nothng because their pastoral pledge demands confidentiality, so they cannot reveal what they know about the case.

Fortunately help is well under way. At first we thought it was merely a matter of a few days, but it has taken just a few more, according to those involved. Pray for justice.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 01:38 PM

But that is no reason to leave BSDA....God is in control....No matter what happens.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 01:31 PM)

and you might be right.....

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 24 2006, 01:28 PM)

YUP! it does.

P.S. I'm kinda losing any expectation that anything will come of all this stuff at 3ABN.

As usual it likely will be swept under the rug.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 01:42 PM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 24 2006, 11:17 AM)

SNIP... Since there are many areas of EGW's writings which I find irritating at the least you might sense a bit of acrimony against the 'dear' lady.
.....

Please be careful and kind. EGW can be a cruel tool in the hands of the wong people when applied to people who do not deserve it but are often not quite confident enough in themselves, perhaps, or in their understanding of God's true will for them: indeed, all of us, when it comes to knowing when to stand up for truth have been so conditioned by Satan to think that to want anything for ourselves is selfishness that it oftens clouds our sense of propriety. Be sure that you are not one of those 'beating down the faithful' with her words used in an unkind way.

JustTana

My great grandfather and great grandmother took their four children and went over the hill from their California home to Elmshaven to visit with Sister White. She told them they must stop having children for the mother was in poor health. This was true but the family didn't hold much stock in the counsel because her lung condition was always better when she was pregant.

They had two more children. When the youngest was only two, the young mother suddenly died of a heart attack. The family became divided on the issue of Sister White. Some continued to believe she was inspired counsel for us (my grandfather was one) the others grew away from the church in their attempts to disprove what she taught about our health message, etc. At family reunions down the years, at least when that generation was still around, there would be lively and sometimes acrimonious debates over the issue.

So, now science explains why my great grandmother felt better while she was pregnant - her immune system was altered to accomodate a baby so her asthma subsided during these times. That didn't help the heart condition that was was getting worse with each pregnancy, though.

To look back on the significant impact that the simple counsel had on a family that now numbers in the hundreds is stunning!

Thought you might find it interesting.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 01:45 PM

was that inspired counsel? Or was it an observation?

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 24 2006, 01:45 PM

Wow!

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 01:42 PM)

My great grandfather and great grandmother took their four children and went over the hill from their California home to Elmshaven to visit with Sister White. She told them they must stop having children for the mother was in poor health. This was true but the family didn't hold much stock in the counsel because her lung condition was always better when she was pregant.

They had two more children. When the youngest was only two, the young mother suddenly died of a heart attack. The family became divided on the issue of Sister White. Some continued to believe she was inspired counsel for us (my grandfather was one) the others grew away from the church in their attempts to disprove what she taught about our health message, etc. At family reunions down the years, at least when that generation was still around, there would be lively and sometimes acrimonious debates over the issue.

So, now science explains why my great grandmother felt better while she was pregnant - her immune system was altered to accomodate a baby so her asthma subsided during these times. That didn't help the heart condition that was was getting worse with each pregnancy, though.

To look back on the significant impact that the simple counsel had on a family that now numbers in the hundreds is stunning!

Thought you might find it interesting.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 01:47 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 03:42 PM)

My great grandfather and great grandmother took their four children and went over the hill from their California home to Elmshaven to visit with Sister White. She told them they must stop having children for the mother was in poor health. This was true but the family didn't hold much stock in the counsel because her lung condition was always better when she was pregant.

They had two more children. When the youngest was only two, the young mother suddenly died of a heart attack. The family became divided on the issue of Sister White. Some continued to believe she was inspired counsel for us (my grandfather was one) the others grew away from the church in their attempts to disprove what she taught about our health message, etc. At family reunions down the years, at least when that generation was still around, there would be lively and sometimes acrimonious debates over the issue.

So, now science explains why my great grandmother felt better while she was pregnant - her immune system was altered to accomodate a baby so her asthma subsided during these times. That didn't help the heart condition that was was getting worse with each pregnancy, though.

To look back on the significant impact that the simple counsel had on a family that now numbers in the hundreds is stunning!

Thought you might find it interesting.

Would it be right for someone to extrapolate from the advice given your great grandparents that people should not have children because EGW told them to stop having children?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Johann Sep 24 2006, 01:48 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 09:42 PM)

To look back on the significant impact that the simple counsel had on a family that now numbers in the hundreds is stunning!

Thought you might find it interesting.

I sure do, PB. Thank you for sharing it with us.!

Posted by: västergötland Sep 24 2006, 01:53 PM

Not all pastors walk the path of education. Some get ordained after they for several years worked as pastors but without the education. They do the job well and it gets noticed and they are ordained. If the conference in Illinois feels that Danny has faithfully done pastoral work trough 3abn, it might be possible that he would be ordained on that merit. (Well, maybe not Danny...)

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 01:56 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 12:45 PM)

was that inspired counsel? Or was it an observation?

I don't know. What I do know is that if she had followed the advice - inspired or observed - I do believe my great grandmother could have lived much longer and there certainly wouldn't have been the spiritual division in the family. Of course, two family members would not have been born. The son lived his life as an eccentric hermit while the daughter married and had many children and grandchildren who are quite militant in their thoughts against the SDA church and EGW! (Understandable I guess since she wouldn't have been born if the counsel had been followed!)

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 12:47 PM)

Would it be right for someone to extrapolate from the advice given your great grandparents that people should not have children because EGW told them to stop having children?
In His service,
Mr. J

Wouldn't make sense unless the people had both athsma and an unknown ticking time bomb of a heart problem. That would sort of be like trying to paint a rose on a thimble with a paint roller!

Posted by: AmeliaLD Sep 24 2006, 01:58 PM

QUOTE

the bible says Jesus chose Judas.... you bring me a quote from egw that says different.... whom do I believe..... NOT egw..... either the bible is correct or not.... but egw does NOT trump the bible....

Amen

Judas was chosen.

QUOTE

John 6:70

70 Then Jesus replied, "Have I not chosen you, the Twelve? Yet one of you is a devil!" 71 (He meant Judas, the son of Simon Iscariot, who, though one of the Twelve, was later to betray him.)

And Jesus knew ahead of that, that Judas would betray him

QUOTE

John 6:64

64 Yet there are some of you who do not believe." For Jesus had known from the beginning which of them did not believe and who would betray him.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 24 2006, 03:18 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 24 2006, 03:56 PM)

Wouldn't make sense unless the people had both athsma and an unknown ticking time bomb of a heart problem. That would sort of be like trying to paint a rose on a thimble with a paint roller!

But people do this very thing all the time; they take something EGW said that was a specific piece of counsel to a specific set of circumstances and they extrapolate a universal application that all are expected to abide by lest they be deemed rejecting the counsel of God through His prophet...

This is the inherent danger and flaw in using EGW's writings as if they are some kind of theological trump card, overriding and outweighing everything and anything else.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 24 2006, 03:50 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 24 2006, 02:45 PM)

was that inspired counsel? Or was it an observation?

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 04:18 PM)

....This is the inherent danger and flaw in using EGW's writings as if they are some kind of theological trump card, overriding and outweighing everything and anything else.

Whew....folks is droppin' serious knowledge today.....

I don't have to say nothing...all I need to do is just sign on and agree.....

sna

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 05:03 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 02:18 PM)

But people do this very thing all the time; they take something EGW said that was a specific piece of counsel to a specific set of circumstances and they extrapolate a universal application that all are expected to abide by lest they be deemed rejecting the counsel of God through His prophet...

This is the inherent danger and flaw in using EGW's writings as if they are some kind of theological trump card, overriding and outweighing everything and anything else.

In His service,
Mr. J

Is that human nature, or what! It is also done with the Bible. Acts 2:1 says:

"And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place."

Some could cite that this is God showing His preference for Hondas instead of Toyotas.

Context, context, context! That really is the key.

Posted by: AmeliaLD Sep 24 2006, 05:09 PM

QUOTE

Some could cite that this is God showing His preference for Hondas instead of Toyotas.

Oh come on...we all know that God would only buy American. rofl rofl rofl

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 05:18 PM

QUOTE(AmeliaLD @ Sep 24 2006, 04:09 PM)

Oh come on...we all know that God would only buy American. rofl rofl rofl

Posted by: Denny Sep 25 2006, 08:59 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 10:18 PM)

But people do this very thing all the time; they take something EGW said that was a specific piece of counsel to a specific set of circumstances and they extrapolate a universal application that all are expected to abide by lest they be deemed rejecting the counsel of God through His prophet...

This is the inherent danger and flaw in using EGW's writings as if they are some kind of theological trump card, overriding and outweighing everything and anything else.

In His service,
Mr. J

Too true Mr J and hence we got or used to have the following Do nots that entered Adventist culture

Do not have baths on Sabbath
Do not intermarry racially

(There are probably more)

Posted by: lurker Sep 25 2006, 09:05 AM

This is the first time I have heard that you can't marry out of your race. In my SDA church in Michigan this isn't an issue. And I shower every Sabbath morning before heading for church. This sounds like something out of the 1930's.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 09:16 AM

I'm from Lake Region and am currently in South Central Conference...it is not an issue here either....

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 25 2006, 10:05 AM)

This is the first time I have heard that you can't marry out of your race. In my SDA church in Michigan this isn't an issue. And I shower every Sabbath morning before heading for church. This sounds like something out of the 1930's.

I hope we all shower every morning!

The idea of Preparation Day--and being ready for the Sabbath is still valid scriptutrally, IMO. The issue is to how far in extremes you go with it...

Posted by: Denny Sep 25 2006, 09:27 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 25 2006, 04:05 PM)

This is the first time I have heard that you can't marry out of your race. In my SDA church in Michigan this isn't an issue. And I shower every Sabbath morning before heading for church. This sounds like something out of the 1930's.

the bath one was being practised up to the 1990's the other one well people don't need an excuse to reinforce existing prejudices

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 09:37 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 24 2006, 03:18 PM)

But people do this very thing all the time; they take something EGW said that was a specific piece of counsel to a specific set of circumstances and they extrapolate a universal application that all are expected to abide by lest they be deemed rejecting the counsel of God through His prophet...

This is the inherent danger and flaw in using EGW's writings as if they are some kind of theological trump card, overriding and outweighing everything and anything else.

In His service,
Mr. J

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 25 2006, 08:59 AM)

Too true Mr J and hence we got or used to have the following Do nots that entered Adventist culture

Do not have baths on Sabbath
Do not intermarry racially

(There are probably more)

While it is all too true (and sad) that such things have been done, and in some sectors may still be being done, isn't it time that we tore our eyes away from the negatives of the past and turned them instead on the positives of the trajectory of Ellen White studies for the future?

See for example, the writings of Arthur Patrick on the At Issue pages, http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/index.htm and also the MP3 files (or Google videos) of The Ellen White Summit Conference held in Oregon, Nov. 2005. http://ellenwhitesummit.foxyresearch.com/

There is definitely a new day dawning in "Ellen White Apologetics". We are not "there" yet, but I think it will help us get there more quickly if more "catch the wave" and "ride its crest", to use a Patrick metaphor.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 10:19 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 25 2006, 11:37 AM)

While it is all too true (and sad) that such things have been done, and in some sectors may still be being done, isn't it time that we tore our eyes away from the negatives of the past and turned them instead on the positives of the trajectory of Ellen White studies for the future?

See for example, the writings of Arthur Patrick on the At Issue pages, http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/index.htm and also the MP3 files (or Google videos) of The Ellen White Summit Conference held in Oregon, Nov. 2005. http://ellenwhitesummit.foxyresearch.com/

There is definitely a new day dawning in "Ellen White Apologetics". We are not "there" yet, but I think it will help us get there more quickly if more "catch the wave" and "ride its crest", to use a Patrick metaphor.

I totally agree with you, watchbird... in my experience, however, I have found that until people realize they are headed in the direction of the 'negatives of the past', they are not going to see any need on their part to alter that direction...

One could argue that such a myopia is an inevitable result of the "we have the truth" mindset that is so prevalent among us... but that would be another topic for another time, n'est-ce pas?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: justme Sep 25 2006, 10:20 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 25 2006, 11:16 AM)

I'm from Lake Region and am currently in South Central Conference...it is not an issue here either....

I hope we all shower every morning!

The idea of Preparation Day--and being ready for the Sabbath is still valid scriptutrally, IMO. The issue is to how far in extremes you go with it...

Here is a little background on the "Preparsation Day" and the "Not Bathing On Sabbath" thing. My grandfather was little boy when his family were friends with James and Ellen White. James and Ellen used to bring wooden toys made in their woodworking shop (James used to make chairs)to my grandfather at Christmas time. Janes and Ellen loved to say "Thank you" to the Gospel Workers she knew at thea time.

We also learned that food preparation used to be much more involved than it is today. They had no freezera or microwave ovens so they had to gather from the garden, clean, cut, slice, dice, by hand to get food ready. She suggested that it would make Sabbath much more pleasant for all if these things were done on Friday. Cooking was done in a wood burning stove, a fire had to be built, and so on.

The same is true of BATHING. The big old tub was brought on from outside (usually) so bathing could be done more discretely. It was setin tyhe middle of the floor so many times furniture had to be moved out of the way. A fire was built out doors to heat the water. Another laborious chore. The hot water hauled in to the tub. No wonder they avoided the bath except at special times.

Now we have instant hot water, the shower or tub is always ready, the food can be kept overnight in refrigerators and microwaved int ime for Sabbath lunch.

She also counselled against riding bicycles at one time because it was such a fas that people spent family food and cl;othing money on bicycles just to be "in style on the boardwalk". Bicycles were very expensive (before Monarch and Schwinn, etc) and people were wasting a lot of time riding around in circles to be seen and admired. The problem was not the bicycle, it was the personal application of it's uses. missionaries love them in the jungles to travel from village to village.

No big deal. But some people has lost the context of the practicality of her messages.

Grtandfather has some wonderful times with her and James. He said they were quite funny and laughed a lot. Willie was a great source of family humor to the Whites. Ellen as a wonderful lady!

At one time I was "clubbed over the head" by some who misused her messages, until I learned to read her in context and pray for wisdom to understand what it meant to me.

I have healed ...!

Now she is helping to heal me. I have found wonderful counsel for healing my heart and body. Ans she was right, 120 years before science learned it, that cancer was cause by a "virus".

###

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 10:54 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 25 2006, 10:19 AM)

I totally agree with you, watchbird... in my experience, however, I have found that until people realize they are headed in the direction of the 'negatives of the past', they are not going to see any need on their part to alter that direction...

Wellllll..... this may be true for some, but I'd consider it a "last resort".... and if it turned out to be a "last resort" I'd kinda suspect that it wouldn't do any good anyhow. I've found it much more productive to give the other the benefit of the doubt and put the best construction on their use of the passage.... if possible.... and then go examine the context and show how that puts a different light on the way they have applied it. Hey ... it doesn't always work ... but it's a whale of a lot easier on the head than ..... .

QUOTE

One could argue that such a myopia is an inevitable result of the "we have the truth" mindset that is so prevalent among us... but that would be another topic for another time, n'est-ce pas?
In His service,
Mr. J

Actually it is probably a part of this topic..... and part of the solution to taking Ellen in context and thus making her truly useful rather than a rusticated old tire iron not good for much other than head bashing . For all too often, the idea that "we have the truth" goes hand in hand with the idea that all truth is to be found in Ellen's writings. When if we would go with open eyes to see how her advice stacks up against that given by other Christian thinkers, we would end up having a lot more respect for both her and the other Christian thinkers.... since so often they say essentially the same things about a large number of essential areas.

Take the two specific topics on which we recently had some Ellen White quotes given ... that of the moral character of persons allowed to occupy our pulpits, and the topic of glossalalia. On both of those issues Evangelical as well as traditional Christian writers have written a LOT of material which takes the same exact positions that Ellen has taken in the quotes we saw. If we but understood that, it would both make us a lot more secure in our own belief system and in Ellen's writings, and a lot less liable to the temptations to spiritual pride as evidenced by our clinging to our suposed "uniqueness" as evidence that "we have the truth".... with the implications both that we are the only ones who have any truth and that we have no truth to learn. Both of which, I know you agree, are equally wrongheaded.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 25 2006, 10:55 AM

Watchbird, thanks so much for the links!

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

163

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ Adventism: Theology and Related Subjects _ An Ellen White Reality Check...

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 10:53 AM

In another thread, Watchbird mentioned the articles and papers written by Dr. Arthur Patrick, a noted Adventist church historian/theologian and one time Director of the Ellen G White/Seventh-day Adventist Research Center that serves the South Pacific Division, on EGW, her writings and the necessary perspective we need to have today in order to properly understand and apply the counsel handed down to us through the Testimonies.

Dr. Patrick had a series of 4 interviews with the editor of the Record which were published in the South Pacific Division Record and which are available to be read at http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-surfing.htm
and the editor of the Record wrote an editorial in the issue containing the first of the articles that carried the title of this thread.

I would encourage anyone interested to read them; I feel this is a dialog we need to have and while I recognize that some are unwilling and others are unable to deal with such a topic at this point in their walk with Christ, that cannot prevent the remainder of us from looking at this in an objective fashion, parking the preconceived notions of what we may have been taught in order to see EGW and her ministry as she saw it rather than how others chose to paint it after her death...

So... once more into the breach, dear friends...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Clay Sep 25 2006, 11:07 AM

one mo agin.....

Posted by: Clay Sep 25 2006, 11:52 AM

when did we abandon this position?

QUOTE

Most Seventh-day Adventists are well aware that White affirms Scripture as the church's only rule of faith and practice, the foundation of faith and the test of Christian experience.12 As she reflected on her role during the church's formative years, she indicated that often it was to confirm steps already taken on the basis of prayerful yet diligent Bible study. She also describes her ministry as a "lesser light" leading to the "greater light" of Scripture.13 It is instructive to observe the way in which she refused to settle theological debates even when her legitimacy was, thereby, brought into serious question. Her lifelong attitude is well illustrated by the occasion in 1901when she quite bluntly counselled assembled leaders to lay her writings aside until they understood the Scriptures.14

http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-scripture.htm

Posted by: Clay Sep 25 2006, 12:09 PM

this is a BOMBSHELL!!!!!!!

QUOTE

White states that "scenes," "views" and "representations" were disclosed to her mind in prophetic visions and dreams. Her son, William White, who more than any other person associated with her during her long literary career, described these experiences as "flashlight" or "panoramic" scenes. If her 1858 Great Controversy vision was like a two-hour video of the war between righteousness and sin, subsequently reinforced by flashbacks and similar experiences, there was every reason for her to explore and select from the multiple sources she used in writing on the Old Testament, New Testament, Christian and Adventist history. There was rationality in her reliance on literary assistants, advisers and editors in the initial process of preparing her writings for publication and in the subsequent revision of such works as the 1888 edition of The Great Controversy. When Bible and history teachers met with administrators during 1919, the recorded discussion makes it clear that such processes were remembered within the group quite adequately. However, obscurantist impulses were so apparent at the time that the records of the 1919 discussions were packaged, stored and lost to the memory even of the church's thought-leaders. So, during the next six decades, the entire Adventist community largely forgot the vibrant lessons offered by this aspect of its past. *It moved White's writings away from their historic role toward making them the definitive and authoritative encyclopaedia of Adventist thought and practice as her authority in the church increased markedly after her death.

how significant is this???? VERY!!!!!

http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-scripture.htm

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 01:21 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 25 2006, 11:52 AM)

when did we abandon this position?
http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-scripture.htm

"We" didn't. But there have been those in the church ... even some in leadership positions ..... from the very beginning, who elevated the "gifts" above scriptures. James White met this in some rather pointed articles very early on, taking the position that scripture was always above the gifts mentioned in scripture. The two lines of thought have continued within our church all through the years..... and the elevation of Ellen White was especially strong in the years immediately after her death, and remained so until the 70's when one thing and another forced the "brethren" to take a closer look at their own position statements.

Patrick was one of the leaders in taking a new look at Ellen White, though the GC Archivist, Bert Haloviak did some very fundamental work from his position as the primary reader through the unread material in the GC vault. It was Bert, in fact, who introduced the readers of today to the 1919 Bible Conference papers, via publication in Spectrum Magazine. His articles on that topic are also on the At Issue website, as well as on the GC Archives articles page.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 25 2006, 12:09 PM)

this is a BOMBSHELL!!!!!!!
how significant is this???? VERY!!!!!
http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-scripture.htm

Are you saying that Patrick's statment was a bombshell, or that the things said about the 1919 Bible Conference were a bombshell?

And does you statement merely for effect, or does it indicate that this is your first exposure to these concepts?

If the latter, you'd better don your best suit of armor as you continue on through the articles on the At Issue website .... for there are similar things scattered all over the place.

Enjoy

Posted by: västergötland Sep 25 2006, 01:53 PM

I think transcripts of the meetings refered to in Clays last quote are aviable online, maybe the WallaWallaU archives or something like that. Someone else may know more.

This link appears to be relevant http://dlearn.wwc.edu/classes/relh457/articles/bc1919/bc1919.html

---

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 03:57 PM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 25 2006, 01:53 PM)

I think transcripts of the meetings refered to in Clays last quote are aviable online, maybe the WallaWallaU archives or something like that. Someone else may know more.

This link appears to be relevant
http://dlearn.wwc.edu/classes/relh457/articles/bc1919/bc1919.html

They are also here: http://www.sdanet.org/atissue/books/1919bc/index.htm , along with an article by Bert Haloviak, "In the Shadow of the 'Daily': Background and Aftermath of the 1919 SDA Bible and History Teachers' Conference", and Chapter 38: "1919 Bible Conference/History Teachers Council", from the book, Messenger of the Lord. The Prophetic Ministry of Ellen G. White , by Herbert E. Douglass.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 25 2006, 05:25 PM

Folks ain't gonna read this in detail. I will be ignored.

Why?

Because it refutes many of the beliefs that many hold within the SDA Church!

OOOoooo!

sna

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 05:35 PM

I have said this for about a year and a half...the church does not put EGW over the Bible...a few extremist do.... So sig Watchbird!!!!

That has nothing to do with her messages not being inspired...

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 25 2006, 01:21 PM)

"We" didn't. But there have been those in the church ... even some in leadership positions ..... from the very beginning, who elevated the "gifts" above scriptures. James White met this in some rather pointed articles very early on, taking the position that scripture was always above the gifts mentioned in scripture. The two lines of thought have continued within our church all through the years..... and the elevation of Ellen White was especially strong in the years immediately after her death, and remained so until the 70's when one thing and another forced the "brethren" to take a closer look at their own position statements.

Patrick was one of the leaders in taking a new look at Ellen White, though the GC Archivist, Bert Haloviak did some very fundamental work from his position as the primary reader through the unread material in the GC vault. It was Bert, in fact, who introduced the readers of today to the 1919 Bible Conference papers, via publication in Spectrum Magazine. His articles on that topic are also on the At Issue website, as well as on the GC Archives articles page.
Are you saying that Patrick's statment was a bombshell, or that the things said about the 1919 Bible Conference were a bombshell?

And does you statement merely for effect, or does it indicate that this is your first exposure to these concepts?

If the latter, you'd better don your best suit of armor as you continue on through the articles on the At Issue website .... for there are similar things scattered all over the place.

Enjoy

Posted by: princessdi Sep 25 2006, 06:16 PM

No, not a few extremists. it is as basic as SDAs believing that a no meant diet is the only preferred, and carried some favor with God. Why do I say that? Because, the case cannot be made this his reasoning from the Bible, but is always made from EGW writings about the future state of meat, and the compiled writings of her advice for which we are not given the questions or particular situations, etc. We have made doctrine from it to the point hat it is an issue about eating/serving it on church/institution grounds. In that instance you[general] EGW's writings above the Bible, because they are not pointing to any "greater light" in the Bible. You[once again, general] have made doctrine from something she said, but has no biblical basis.

Another example is that recently there was thread started about the Bible not contradicting itself. The OP contained one Bible text and at least 4 EGW quotes. Ok about the Bible not contradicting itself? It read more like EGW not contradicting herself, or the Bible.

So, it is not a clear and concise proclamation as it is our actions. We give lip service to the fact that we don't place her writings equal or above the Bible, however, whenever we cannot make our doctrinal case from the Bible and the Bible only, in using her writings to complete that case, you have given them at least equal status. Let me just say that I do believe that she was inspired to write, but like the Bible writers not dictated what to write. So, her writings are also subject to her understanding of whatever revelations she was given. Had there been two people writing at that time we would probably have the same basic message, but from two different perspectives. The four Gospels were written by men who saw the same things happen at the same time and yet the perspective is different. The basic message is[The Good News], however, still there.

Also if it were only a few extremist, SDAs would not be widely known as a cult that follows EGW more than the Bible. That is a reputaion that has stuck for as long as I can remember. If it was only a few extremist, it would have died with them. Instead it is so prevalent the label did and still stands today. It is, I believe, one of the reasons churches are "encouraged" to have Rev. Sems. in other places than our churches, the literature for them does not identify them to be SDA in origin, etc. to spare us the first impressions. I do realize that many are held at churches and full disclosure is made, but as those who claim to have "The Truth" the practice should not be acceptable as business as usual. So this mean we are fully aware of this less than stellar reputation.

It is not a few extremist, it was and is the impression we give to the world. The only way to stop it is for us to truly understand, as a denomination, and just not in lip service the true place of her writings, as she asked. We are not of one accord on this, because we have failed to make it crystal clear from the beginning. As she said herself, her writings are for "after" you understand the Bible on it's own. It actually had meaning before she started to write several centuries later. We see the danger in trying to get that initial understanding through her writings.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 25 2006, 06:26 PM

Any denomination that is not mainstream is considered an cult...for SDA's it begins with keeping the Sabbath and then the Sanctuary, State of the Dead, etc....our beliefs are different w/o EGW....

Fortunately, that belief (of SDA being a cult) is the exception and not the rule in 2006.

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 25 2006, 06:16 PM)

No, not a few extremists. it is as basic as SDAs believing that a no meant diet is the only preferred, and carried some favor with God. Why do I say that? Because, the case cannot be made this his reasoning from the Bible, but is always made from EGW writings about the future state of meat, and the compiled writings of her advice for which we are not given the questions or particular situations, etc. We have made doctrine from it to the point hat it is an issue about eating/serving it on church/institution grounds. In that instance you[general] EGW's writings above the Bible, because they are not pointing to any "greater light" in the Bible. You[once again, general] have made doctrine from something she said, but has no biblical basis.

Another example is that recently there was thread started about the Bible not contradicting itself. The OP contained one Bible text and at least 4 EGW quotes. Ok about the Bible not contradicting itself? It read more like EGW not contradicting herself, or the Bible.

So, it is not a clear and concise proclamation as it is our actions. We give lip service to the fact that we don't place her writings equal or above the Bible, however, whenever we cannot make our doctrinal case from the Bible and the Bible only, in using her writings to complete that case, you have given them at least equal status. Let me just say that I do believe that she was inspired to write, but like the Bible writers not dictated what to write. So, her writings are also subject to her understanding of whatever revelations she was given. Had there been two people writing at that time we would probably have the same basic message, but from two different perspectives. The four Gospels were written by men who saw the same things happen at the same time and yet the perspective is different. The basic message is[The Good News], however, still there.

Also if it were only a few extremist, SDAs would not be widely known as a cult that follows EGW more than the Bible. That is a reputaion that has stuck for as long as I can remember. If it was only a few extremist, it would have died with them. Instead it is so prevalent the label did and still stands today. It is, I believe, one of the reasons churches are "encouraged" to have Rev. Sems. in other places than our churches, the literature for them does not identify them to be SDA in origin, etc. to spare us the first impressions. I do realize that many are held at churches and full disclosure is made, but as those who claim to have "The Truth" the practice should not be acceptable as business as usual. So this mean we are fully aware of this less than stellar reputation.

It is not a few extremist, it was and is the impression we give to the world. The only way to stop it is for us to truly understand, as a denomination, and just not in lip service the true place of her writings, as she asked. We are not of one accord on this, because we have failed to make it crystal clear from the beginning. As she said herself, her writings are for "after" you understand the Bible on it's own. It actually had meaning before she started to write several centuries later. We see the danger in trying to get that initial understanding through her writings.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 06:34 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 25 2006, 11:52 AM) ☐

when did we abandon this position?
http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-scripture.htm

I'll abandon that position right now. It has a false statement in it. Can you find/prove to me that Ellen White said her writings were the lesser light leading to the greater light of scripture? That is heresy.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 25 2006, 06:46 PM

No Sarah, in 2006, you can still walk into a bookstore and find us listed under cults.....everywhere. itis more the rule than the exception. Our name would be on the Rev. Sem. literature, in 2006. It is rule enough, in 2006, for GC to continue to do damage control.

those actions speak louder than your words any day.

No, any denom that is not mainstream is not called a cult. True we have no problem making these doctrinal cases from the Bible only, but it does not go for all of our belief, such as our approach to the health message. We took our cue from EGW writings, tried to make it biblical, and then tried to(and still do) one's salvation. We lost our credibility in this area because there was no biblical support for it being of salvific value. That is the epitome of putting EGW's writings above the Bible.

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 25 2006, 04:26 PM)

Any denomination that is not mainstream is considered an cult...for SDA's it begins with keeping the Sabbath and then the Sanctuary, State of the Dead, etc....our beliefs are different w/o EGW....

Fortunately, that belief (of SDA being a cult) is the exception and not the rule in 2006.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 06:53 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 25 2006, 06:16 PM)

... Let me just say that I do believe that she was inspired to write, but like the Bible writers not dictated what to write. So, her writings are also subject to her understanding of whatever revelations she was given. Had there been two people writing at that time we would probably have the same basic message, but from two different perspectives. The four Gospels were written by men who saw the same things happen at the same time and yet the perspective is different. The basic message is[The Good News], however, still there.
...

You said it! She was inspired. Well, then? "All scripture is given by inspiration of God..."

Posted by: princessdi Sep 25 2006, 07:08 PM

EGW's writings are not scripture. In fact, a whole lot of folks were writing when the Bible writers as we know them now were writing, I am sure at least some of them were inpired to write, they just didn't make the cut by the catholic priests to compile the Bible as we know it. However, no one, except for Moses, with the Ten Commandment were told "what" to write. God actually dictated to him what to write. The rest just recorded history as they saw it, including Moses before and after the writing of the !0C. They were just told "to" write. It does not change the fact that their writings were subject to their education, comprehension skills, belief systems and culture at the time of their writings.

Am I missing your point here?

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 04:53 PM)

You said it! She was inspired. Well, then? "All scripture is given by inspiration of God..."

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 07:24 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 25 2006, 07:08 PM)

EGW's writings are not scripture. In fact, a whole lot of folks were writing when the Bible writers as we know them now were writing, I am sure at least some of them were inpired to write, they just didn't make the cut by the catholic priests to compile the Bible as we know it. However, no one, except for Moses, with the Ten Commandment were told "what" to write. God actually dictated to him what to write. The rest just recorded history as they saw it, including Moses before and after the writing of the !0C. They were just told "to" write. It does not change the fact that their writings were subject to their education, comprehension skills, belief systems and culture at the time of their writings.

Am I missing your point here?

Yeah. First of all, the Ten Commandments were not "dictated" to Moses. Those have such a high status as to have been written by God's own hand, in stone no less. However, I'm sure we both agree that the Ten Commandments are not the only Scripture in existence today, just because God didn't etch any more into stone for us. So, what is your definition of "Scripture?"

First of all, trusting the Scriptures to give us a definition for Scripture is already circular reasoning. I'm sorry, but it takes a faith choice--and this is true for all of Christendom, not just Adventists. So, assuming you, like me, are willing to put your faith in those "self-proclaimed" scriptures, what are the specific texts to show what the definition of "Scripture" is? Once you have thus defined Scripture, go back and see if Ellen White's writings can fall into a different category than any of the Bible authors' writings do.

The basic problem, here, is that Adventists have misinterpreted for years the meaning of the term "spirit of prophecy" spoken of in Revelation. That has contributed to a false understanding of the role of Ellen White. We have been ever since making comparisons to the Bible that were unwarranted.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 25 2006, 07:55 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 25 2006, 08:16 PM)

No, not a few extremists. it is as basic as SDAs believing that a no meant diet is the only preferred, and carried some favor with God. Why do I say that? Because, the case cannot be made this his reasoning from the Bible, but is always made from EGW writings about the future state of meat, and the compiled writings of her advice for which we are not given the questions or particular situations, etc. We have made doctrine from it to the point hat it is an issue about eating/serving it on church/institution grounds. In that instance you[general] EGW's writings above the Bible, because they are not pointing to any "greater light" in the Bible. You[once again, general] have made doctrine from something she said, but has no biblical basis.

Another example is that recently there was thread started about the Bible not contradicting itself. The OP contained one Bible text and at least 4 EGW quotes. Ok about the Bible not contradicting itself? It read more like EGW not contradicting herself, or the Bible.

So, it is not a clear and concise proclamation as it is our actions. We give lip service to the fact that we don't place her writings equal or above the Bible, however, whenever we cannot make our doctrinal case from the Bible and the Bible only, in using her writings to complete that case, you have given them at least equal status. Let me just say that I do believe that she was inspired to write, but like the Bible writers not dictated what to write. So, her writings are also subject to her understanding of whatever revelations she was given. Had there been two people writing at that time we would probably have the same basic message, but from two different perspectives. The four Gospels were written by men who saw the same things happen at the same time and yet the perspective is different. The basic message is[The Good News], however, still there.

Also if it were only a few extremist, SDAs would not be widely known as a cult that follows EGW more than the Bible. That is a reputaion that has stuck for as long as I can remember. If it was only a few extremist, it would have died with them. Instead it is so prevalent the label did and still stands today. It is, I believe, one of the reasons churches are "encouraged" to have Rev. Sems. in other places than our churches, the literature for them does not identify them to be SDA in origin, etc. to spare us the first impressions. I do realize that many are held at churches and full disclosure is made, but as those who claim to have "The Truth" the practice should not be acceptable as business as usual. So this mean we are fully aware of this less than stellar reputation.

It is not a few extremist, it was and is the impression we give to the world. The only way to stop it is for us to truly understand, as a denomination, and just not in lip service the true place of her writings, as she asked. We are not of one accord on this, because we have failed to make it crystal clear from the beginning. As she said herself, her writings are for "after" you understand the Bible on it's own. It actually had meaning before she started to write several centuries later. We see the danger in trying to get that initial understanding through her writings.

Dead on! Too dead on! Thank you!

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 25 2006, 08:26 PM)

Any denomination that is not mainstream is considered an cult...for SDA's it begins with keeping the Sabbath and then the Sanctuary, State of the Dead, etc....our beliefs are different w/o EGW....

Fortunately, that belief (of SDA being a cult) is the exception and not the rule in 2006.

We are still considered a cult. If you look up a listing of "cults" we are still listed as a "cult". Is the B'hai religion (a sector of Islam) considered a cult?

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 09:24 PM)

.....The basic problem, here, is that Adventists have misinterpreted for years the meaning of the term "spirit of prophecy" spoken of in Revelation. That has contributed to a false understanding of the role of Ellen White. We have been ever since making comparisons to the Bible that were unwarranted.

Dead on again! So why does EG White have to be conpared to the BIBLE? Is it a way of SDA's justifying her writings as being "dead on truth" without a need of questioning?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 08:47 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 25 2006, 07:55 PM)

Dead on again! So why does EG White have to be conpared to the BIBLE? Is it a way of SDA's justifying her writings as being "dead on truth" without a need of questioning?

Lest you be overly gleeful, hahaha! rofl Actually, the "lesser light" (or the moon) and the "spirit of prophecy" are BOTH referring to scripture, which in turn is defined as Holy Spirit-inspired writings. Can you tell me, then, what the "greater light" represents?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 09:32 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 08:34 PM)

I'll abandon that position right now. It has a false statement in it. Can you find/prove to me that Ellen White said her writings were the lesser light leading to the greater light of scripture? That is heresy.

Review and Herald, Jan 20, 1903:

Many more of our larger books might have been sold if church members had been awake to the importance of the truths these books contain, and had realized their responsibility to circulate them. My brethren and sisters, will you not now make an effort to circulate these books? and will you not bring into this effort the enthusiasm that you brought into the effort to sell "Christ's Object Lessons"? In selling this book many have learned how to handle the larger books. They have obtained an experience that has prepared them to enter the canvassing field. {RH, January 20, 1903 par. 7} Sister White is not the originator of these books. They contain the instruction that during her life-work God has been giving her. They contain the precious, comforting light that God has graciously given his servant to be given to the world. From their pages this light is to shine into the hearts of men and women, leading them to the Saviour. The Lord has declared that these books are to be scattered throughout the world. There is in them truth which to the receiver is a savor of life unto life. They are silent witnesses for God. In the past they have been the means in his hands of convicting and converting many souls. Many have read them with eager expectation, and, by reading them, have been led to see the efficacy of Christ's atonement, and to trust in its power. They have been led to commit the keeping of their souls to their Creator, waiting and hoping for the coming of the Saviour to take his loved ones to their eternal home. In the future, these books are to make the gospel plain to many others, revealing to them the way of salvation. {RH, January 20, 1903 par. 8} The Lord has sent his people much instruction, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. O, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain! There would be a thousandfold greater vigilance, a thousandfold more self-denial and resolute effort. And many more would now be rejoicing in the light of present truth. {RH, January 20, 1903 par. 9}

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: princessdi Sep 25 2006, 09:38 PM

Ok, so you missed the part of the story where Moses got mad at the COI down there worshipping the golden calf and broke the wone written by God, and he had to write the second set himself. So not only did God write them he also dictated them. Scripture is the Bible, not EGW writings. this is exactly how people get confused. her writings do not hold the same weight as Biblical Scripture. She said so herself. You are tight, however, that EGW is not "The" Spirit of Prophecy. We ar eerrant in that it still stands stoday. When in the baptismal vows condidates are asked if they believe in the Spirit of Prophecy, the are asking if they believe in EGW. This is also the SOP referred to int he 28 FB.

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 06:24 PM)

Yeah. First of all, the Ten Commandments were not "dictated" to Moses. Those have such a high status as to have been written by God's own hand, in stone no less. However, I'm sure we both agree that the Ten Commandments are not the only Scripture in existence today, just because God didn't etch any more into stone for us. So, what is your definition of "Scripture?"

First of all, trusting the Scriptures to give us a definition for Scripture is already circular reasoning. I'm sorry, but it takes a faith choice--and this is true for all of Christendom, not just Adventists. So, assuming you, like me, are willing to put your faith in those "self-proclaimed" scriptures, what are the specific texts to show what the definition of "Scripture" is? Once you have thus defined Scripture, go back and see if Ellen White's writings can fall into a different category than any of the Bible authors' writings do.

The basic problem, here, is that Adventists have misinterpreted for years the meaning of the term "spirit of prophecy" spoken of in Revelation. That has contributed to a false understanding of the role of Ellen White. We have been ever since making comparisons to the Bible that were unwarranted.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 09:43 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 08:53 PM)

You said it! She was inspired. Well, then? "All scripture is given by inspiration of God..."

1. Her belief is significant beyond herself only if you believe Di's utterance is authoritative for the church.

2. While All scripture is given by inspiration, all that is given by inspiration is not scripture. Any time the word is rightly divided, it is by inspiration since spiritual things are spiritually discerned.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 10:32 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 25 2006, 09:32 PM)

...
The Lord has sent his people much instruction, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. O, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain! There would be a thousandfold greater vigilance, a thousandfold more self-denial and resolute effort. And many more would now be rejoicing in the light of present truth. {RH, January 20, 1903 par. 9}

In His service,
Mr. J

Yes, Mr. J, that's exactly what I mean. And what do you infer from that passage to be the meaning of "lesser light" and of "greater light"? Please share.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 10:50 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 25 2006, 11:32 PM)

Yes, Mr. J, that's exactly what I mean. And what do you infer from that passage to be the meaning of "lesser light" and of "greater light"? Please share.

Nothing to infer and nothing is implied; the explicit context makes it plain that she is referring to her writings as the lesser light.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 25 2006, 11:03 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 25 2006, 09:43 PM)

1. Her belief is significant beyond herself only if you believe Di's utterance is authoritative for the church.

2. While All scripture is given by inspiration, all that is given by inspiration is not scripture. Any time the word is rightly divided, it is by inspiration since spiritual things are spiritually discerned.

In His service,
Mr. J

And by so saying in 1) you imply to me one of the following:
A) You do not believe Ellen White was inspired, and therefore choose to differ with Di and myself and/or the church.

You are wishing to argue this point because you feel there is a different interpretation.
C) You simply wish to have a more authoritative (i.e. supporting evidence) source.

If A, I cannot help you, for you surely have seen much of the same evidence I myself have built my faith upon. If B, I'm concerned that you might be heading towards A, where again, I may have nothing for you. If C, what evidence do you feel you need? I'd be happy to study this part together, but realize that in the end, each of us makes a faith choice. I have made mine, and will not be moved from it. You are free to choose for yourself as well.

Point 2) you have chosen to twist the meaning of scripture. Scripture, in its very root meaning, implies written matter. You can divide the Word of Truth rightly, but your understanding through the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit does not convert to "Scripture." Scripture is simply writing done under inspiration of God for the purposes of reproof, doctrine, correction, and instruction in righteousness. If it does not have those purposes, or it was not written from inspiration of God, then it is not scripture.

I, for one, do not believe that only that contained in the "Canon" is scripture and nothing else. That simply does not follow from the Bible's own definition. It is quite possible that the Bible has left out many documents which were equally inspired by God during the same time period.

So, if as you say "all that is given by inspiration is not scripture," what is your definition of scripture?

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 25 2006, 10:50 PM)

Nothing to infer and nothing is implied; the explicit context makes it plain that she is referring to her writings as the lesser light.

In His service,
Mr. J

Well, I think you have the same view as that of multitudes of Adventists. Perhaps you are right, but as one who has studied languages extensively, I view the grammar of Ellen White's statement carefully, and find it to be ambiguous. It certainly could have the meaning you suggest. However, I also see another possibility, and I hope you and many other Adventists might allow yourselves to consider something new. For clarity and comparison to a text in scripture of similar construction, I shall requote that sentence of hers:

"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. O, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain!" -EGW

"Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 25 2006, 11:49 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 12:03 AM)

And by so saying in 1) you imply to me one of the following:
A) You do not believe Ellen White was inspired, and therefore choose to differ with Di and myself and/or the church.
You are wishing to argue this point because you feel there is a different interpretation.

C) You simply wish to have a more authoritative (i.e. supporting evidence) source.

You need to learn the difference between implication and inference. You may infer the things stated above, however that in no wise obligates me to have implied them. FWIW you are wrong on all three counts.

QUOTE

If A, I cannot help you, for you surely have seen much of the same evidence I myself have built my faith upon. If B, I'm concerned that you might be heading towards A, where again, I may have nothing for you. If C, what evidence do you feel you need? I'd be happy to study this part together, but realize that in the end, each of us makes a faith choice. I have made mine, and will not be moved from it. You are free to choose for yourself as well.

Your argument is built on a set of fallacious premises and as such requires no refutation; it is prima facie errant from the outset.

QUOTE

Point 2) you have chosen to twist the meaning of scripture. Scripture, in its very root meaning, implies written matter. You can divide the Word of Truth rightly, but your understanding through the enlightenment of the Holy Spirit does not convert to "Scripture." Scripture is simply writing done under inspiration of God for the purposes of reproof, doctrine, correction, and instruction in righteousness. If it does not have those purposes, or it was not written from inspiration of God, then it is not scripture.

I did not make the claim that if I rightly divide the word, my doing so is scripture; in fact, the bolded statement you make above in a supposed attempt to refute what I've said actually supports the argument I made... I have twisted nothing; the bible speaks of men of God who judged and prophesied and acted under inspiration of the Holy Ghost and never wrote any of it down. The inspiration which led them is the same that caused holy men of God to speak as they were moved by the Holy Ghost but their actions, decisions and counsel are not in and of themselves scripture... even if the fact that they performed said actions, made said decision and gave said counsel is noted in scripture.

QUOTE

I, for one, do not believe that only that contained in the "Canon" is scripture and nothing else. That simply does not follow from the Bible's own definition. It is quite possible that the Bible has left out many documents which were equally inspired by God during the same time period.

So, if as you say "all that is given by inspiration is not scripture," what is your definition of scripture?
Well, I think you have the same view as that of multitudes of Adventists. Perhaps you are right, but as one who has studied languages extensively, I view the grammar of Ellen White's statement carefully, and find it to be ambiguous. It certainly could have the meaning you suggest. However, I also see another possibility, and I hope you and many other Adventists might allow yourselves to consider something new. For clarity and comparison to a text in scripture of similar construction, I shall requote that sentence of hers:

"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. O, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain!" -EGW

"Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

You have not considered the context of either statement and it is arguable that your lack of consideration in that wise was by intent. I've never been one who was particularly swayed by "who are you going to believe, me or your lying eyes" type arguemnts and that is what you have offered here. If it helps you to swallow that particular camel by categorizing me based on your presumptions, then I'm glad I could be of assistance... but suffice it to say that you are so wrong... on so many levels.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 02:21 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 26 2006, 01:35 AM)

I have said this for about a year and a half...the church does not put EGW over the Bible...a few extremist do.... So sig Watchbird!!!!

That has nothing to do with her messages not being inspired...

A few?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 02:24 AM

When I said "imply to me", I meant just that. That's how it came across. You cannot refute a personal testimony, which is what that was, though of course it is possible to misunderstand it. Perhaps I misunderstood you. Or perhaps you would like to express it more clearly.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 02:29 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 02:34 AM)

I'll abandon that position right now. It has a false statement in it. Can you find/prove to me that Ellen White said her writings were the lesser light leading to the greater light of scripture? That is heresy.

How does that qualify as heresy?

Main Entry: her·e·sy Pronunciation: 'her-&-sE, 'he-r&- Function: noun
Inflected Form(s): plural -sies
Etymology: Middle English heresie, from Anglo-French, from Late Latin haeresis, from Late Greek hairesis, from Greek, action of taking, choice, sect, from hairein to take 1 a : adherence to a religious opinion contrary to church dogma b : denial of a revealed truth by a baptized member of the Roman Catholic Church c : an opinion or doctrine contrary to church dogma 2 a : dissent or deviation from a dominant theory, opinion, or practice b : an opinion, doctrine, or practice contrary to the truth or to generally accepted beliefs or standards

---

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 02:33 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 26 2006, 02:29 AM)

How does that qualify as heresy?

I'm using this defintion of heresy:

A teaching which denies a doctrine essential to the existence of the Gospel.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 02:48 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 10:33 AM)

I'm using this defintion of heresy:

A teaching which denies a doctrine essential to the existence of the Gospel.

Now I understand even less. In what way is anything that has to do with Ellen essential to the existence of a Gospel preached and shared for 1800 years before Ellen was born?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 04:20 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 26 2006, 02:48 AM)

Now I understand even less. In what way is anything that has to do with Ellen essential to the existence of a Gospel preached and shared for 1800 years before Ellen was born?

Well, to state it plainly, as no one has volunteered an answer to the question about what the "lesser light" or the "greater light" means, Ellen White may be a part of the lesser light, but the Bible is not the greater light. That was the heresy I referred to. The greater light is none other than Christ Himself. The scriptures are the lesser light, and I will freely include, along with most of Adventism, Ellen White's writings in this category as well, however, she is not the sum and total of the "lesser light" but only a part of it.

This, to me, is fundamental to an understanding of the Gospel. It is the very premise put forward in John 5:39, pointing us to eternal life, not through the scriptures, but through Christ of whom they testify.

QUOTE

"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. O, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain!" -EGW

"Search the scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

To see the parallel between these two statements a little more easily, allow me to shorten them slightly:
"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light." -EGW
"Search the scriptures; ...and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

And the lesser light is that which leads to the greater light. There can be no greater than Christ Himself.

John, in the Bible, spoke this plainly:
"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." John 1:6-9

And now, Ellen White on the same point:
"The prophet John was the connecting link between the two dispensations. As God's representative he stood forth to show the relation of the law and the prophets to the Christian dispensation. He was the lesser light, which was to be followed by a greater. The mind of John was illuminated by the Holy Spirit, that he might shed light upon his people; but no other light ever has shone or ever will shine so clearly upon fallen man as that which emanated from the teaching and example of Jesus. Christ and His mission had been but dimly understood as typified in the shadowy sacrifices. Even John had not fully comprehended the future, immortal life through the Saviour." {DA 220.2}

And perhaps we need just a little more context to the previously quoted Ellen White statement, as to take it out of its context is to invite a misinterpretation of it.

"The Lord has sent His people much instruction, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. Oh, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain! There would be a thousandfold greater vigilance, a thousandfold more self-denial and resolute effort. And many more would now be rejoicing in the light of present truth." {YRP 232.3}

Which reminds me of Isaiah 28:13 "But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little..."

Now, where's the Bible-reading smiley?

Posted by: Clay Sep 26 2006, 05:16 AM

Greenie (can I call you that?), I like that thought, the bible is not the greater light, Christ himself is..... I am gonna have to borrow that..... thanks for sharing that....

Posted by: västergötland Sep 26 2006, 05:46 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 12:20 PM)

Well, to state it plainly, as no one has volunteered an answer to the question about what the "lesser light" or the "greater light" means, Ellen White may be a part of the lesser light, but the Bible is not the greater light. That was the heresy I referred to. The greater light is none other than Christ Himself. The scriptures are the lesser light, and I will freely include, along with most of Adventism, Ellen White's writings in this category as well, however, she is not the sum and total of the "lesser light" but only a part of it.

I could see Jesus rather than the bible being the light. But this use of "lesser ligth"? Im undecided as for now.

QUOTE

This, to me, is fundamental to an understanding of the Gospel. It is the very premise put forward in John 5:39, pointing us to eternal life, not through the scriptures, but through Christ of whom they testify.

To see the parallel between these two statements a little more easily, allow me to shorten them slightly:
"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light." -EGW
"Search the scriptures; ...and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

And the lesser light is that which leads to the greater light. There can be no greater than Christ Himself.

John, in the Bible, spoke this plainly:
"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." John 1:6-9

And now, Ellen White on the same point:
"The prophet John was the connecting link between the two dispensations. As God's representative he stood forth to show the relation of the law and the prophets to the Christian dispensation. He was the lesser light, which was to be followed by a greater. The mind of John was illuminated by the Holy Spirit, that he might shed light upon his people; but no other light ever has shone or ever will shine so clearly upon fallen man as that which emanated from the teaching and example of Jesus. Christ and His mission had been but dimly understood as typified in the shadowy sacrifices. Even John had not fully comprehended the future, immortal life through the Saviour." {DA 220.2}

http://www.blueletterbible.org/cgi-bin/popup.pl?book=Jhn&chapter=5&verse=33&version=kjv*Ye sent unto John, and he bare witness unto the* truth.

http://www.blueletterbible.org/cgi-bin/popup.pl?book=Jhn&chapter=5&verse=34&version=kjv But I receive not testimony from man: but these things I say, that ye might be saved.

http://www.blueletterbible.org/cgi-bin/popup.pl?book=Jhn&chapter=5&verse=35&version=kjv He was a burning and a shining light: and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light.

http://www.blueletterbible.org/cgi-bin/popup.pl?book=Jhn&chapter=5&verse=36&version=kjv But I have greater witness than [that] of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finish, the same works that I do, bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me.

The apostle writes that the Baptist was not the ligth, Jesus said he was a burning and shining light and Ellen writes that he was the 'lesser' light. Must be some context missing here somewhere. Did anyone find any context laying around somewhere?

QUOTE

And perhaps we need just a little more context to the previously quoted Ellen White statement, as to take it out of its context is to invite a misinterpretation of it.

"The Lord has sent His people much instruction, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. Oh, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain! There would be a thousandfold greater vigilance, a thousandfold more self-denial and resolute effort. And many more would now be rejoicing in the light of present truth." {YRP 232.3}

Which reminds me of Isaiah 28:13 "But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little..."

Now, where's the Bible-reading smiley?

Upon looking at the context of Isaiah 28:13 it appears a bit more complicated than that. It starts with Isaiah prophecying Gods judgement upon "the drunkards of Ephraim". They have crowned themselves with pride but God will be the "crown of glory" for His people. Apparently everyone from peasant to priest and prophet is drunk and mocks God and Isaiah by "precept upon precept, line upon line". That which was meant to be a rest for them they see as a burden. So God trough Isaiah tells them (v14 and forward), "~you think you can hide behind self delusion and lies? think again and think right!"

Somewhat loosely paraphrased, may have missed even further context in the neighbouring chapters. (now would be the time to bring out the chainsaw if I am wrong)

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 07:06 AM

Jesus is THE LIGHT. In the Bible, this light is variously represented as "the greater light" (the sun), "the bright and morning star", the "Sun of righteousness", etc. Revelation describes Him as having eyes as a flame of fire, His countenance "was as the sun shineth in his strength."

All other "lights" are secondary, and we might even think of them as reflections of the True Light. Just as the "greater light" of creation week (the sun) is the source of light, and the "lesser light" (the moon) merely reflects that light, so also have the prophets spoken only as they have received from God. Thus, the scriptures are, and can only be, a lesser light to that of Christ, the source of all light.

And, Clay, no problem! "Greenie" is fine by me.

1 John 1:5 "This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all."

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 07:29 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 03:24 AM)

When I said "imply to me", I meant just that. That's how it came across. You cannot refute a personal testimony, which is what that was, though of course it is possible to misunderstand it. Perhaps I misunderstood you. Or perhaps you would like to express it more clearly.

If you are referring to your own perception of what I said, you are inferring, not implying. You can only imply when you are the speaker, not the hearer. As the hearer, you infer... but your inferring does not mean that I have actually implied; more often than not it simply means the hearer has inferred incorrectly, reading something into a statement that the speaker never meant to convey.

Surely you would have come across this concept a time or two in all of your extensive studies of language...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 07:39 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 08:06 AM)

Jesus is THE LIGHT. In the Bible, this light is variously represented as "the greater light" (the sun), "the bright and morning star", the "Sun of righteousness", etc. Revelation describes Him as having eyes as a flame of fire, His countenance "was as the sun shineth in his strength."

All other "lights" are secondary, and we might even think of them as reflections of the True Light. Just as the "greater light" of creation week (the sun) is the source of light, and the "lesser light" (the moon) merely reflects that light, so also have the prophets spoken only as they have received from God. Thus, the scriptures are, and can only be, a lesser light to that of Christ, the source of all light.

And, Clay, no problem! "Greenie" is fine by me.

1 John 1:5 "This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all."

The problem with this is that it is not relevant to what EGW is speaking of in the R&H from Jan 20, 1903. In that she is talking about the testimonies versus the bible, to which many have paid little heed thus making the testimonies necessary.

FWIW, I see the analogy thusly... EGW is a flashlight, which can help one find the spotlight which is scripture...which can lead one into the light of the sun of righteousness. If one is in the fullness of the light of the sun, neither the flashlight nor the spotlight make that light any greater.

Jesus is indeed the light... but in the statement at hand, in context she is not talking about Jesus; she is talking about the complementary relationship between her writings and the bible.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 07:40 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 07:06 AM)

Jesus is THE LIGHT. In the Bible, this light is variously represented as "the greater light" (the sun), "the bright and morning star", the "Sun of righteousness", etc. Revelation describes Him as having eyes as a flame of fire, His countenance "was as the sun shineth in his strength."

All other "lights" are secondary, and we might even think of them as reflections of the True Light. Just as the "greater light" of creation week (the sun) is the source of light, and the "lesser light" (the moon) merely reflects that light, so also have the prophets spoken only as they have received from God. Thus, the scriptures are, and can only be, a lesser light to that of Christ, the source of all light.

And, Clay, no problem! "Greenie" is fine by me.

1 John 1:5 "This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all."

And the scriptures are the written record of that Light, and when comparing the writings of scripture with the writings of Ellen White..... which is what the whole context of the passage you have been tearing in pieces was all about..... the writings of scripture are the GREATER witness to and record of that Light.... thus are called the "greater light".... and the writings of Ellen White are the LESSER witness that points to the scriptures as "the greater light" and through them to the same "Greater Light", that of God and His Christ which are the subject of scripture.

If you don't like calling the writings of Ellen White a "lesser light" and don't like calling the scriptures a "greater light".... so be it. That is your privilege. But if the purpose of the discussion is to determine what Ellen herself meant by the use of this symbolic language, then it is only fair to make the determination of what she meant and your judgement of what she meant as two different issues and statements. And it CERTAINLY is not appropriate for you to label those of us who accept her own definition of her use of her symbols as "heretics".

The facts are that symbols, by their very nature, can have multiple meanings and uses.... and that very often they can hold those different meanings all at the same time. That is one reason why symbols are used. They add a richness to the statements that would be lost if those multiple shades of meaning were not present.

I realize there are those who are incapable of understanding and using symbols as anything other than one more set of literal words, so bound to one dictionary meaning that all other shades of meanings... or even other definitions and connotations are considered to be wrong. I accept those who have those limitations. I do not grant them the right to claim that theirs is the only correct way to view the world of communication.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 26 2006, 07:50 AM

Preach on, Preacha!!!!

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 04:20 AM)

Well, to state it plainly, as no one has volunteered an answer to the question about what the "lesser light" or the "greater light" means, Ellen White may be a part of the lesser light, but the Bible is not the greater light. That was the heresy I referred to. The greater light is none other than Christ Himself. The scriptures are the lesser light, and I will freely include, along with most of Adventism, Ellen White's writings in this category as well, however, she is not the sum and total of the "lesser light" but only a part of it.

This, to me, is fundamental to an understanding of the Gospel. It is the very premise put forward in John 5:39, pointing us to eternal life, not through the scriptures, but through Christ of whom they testify.
To see the parallel between these two statements a little more easily, allow me to shorten them slightly:
"Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light." -EGW
"Search the scriptures; ...and they are they which testify of me." -- John 5:39

And the lesser light is that which leads to the greater light. There can be no greater than Christ Himself.

John, in the Bible, spoke this plainly:
"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light. That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." John 1:6-9

And now, Ellen White on the same point:
"The prophet John was the connecting link between the two dispensations. As God's representative he stood forth to show the relation of the law and the prophets to the Christian dispensation. He was the lesser light, which was to be followed by a greater. The mind of John was illuminated by the Holy Spirit, that he might shed light upon his people; but no other light ever has shone or ever will shine so clearly upon fallen man as that which emanated from the teaching and example of Jesus. Christ and His mission had been but dimly understood as typified in the shadowy sacrifices. Even John had not fully comprehended the future, immortal life through the Saviour." {DA 220.2}

And perhaps we need just a little more context to the previously quoted Ellen White statement, as to take it out of its context is to invite a misinterpretation of it.

"The Lord has sent His people much instruction, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. Little heed is given to the Bible, and the Lord has given a lesser light to lead men and women to the greater light. Oh, how much good would be accomplished if the books containing this light were read with a determination to carry out the principles they contain! There would be a thousandfold greater vigilance, a thousandfold more self-denial and resolute effort. And many more would now be rejoicing in the light of present truth." {YRP 232.3}

Which reminds me of Isaiah 28:13 "But the word of the Lord was unto them precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little..."

Now, where's the Bible-reading smiley?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 08:04 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 07:29 AM)

Surely you would have come across this concept a time or two in all of your extensive studies of language...

Perhaps. Therefore, absolve my faux pas at parrying perceived querulousness, s'il vous plaît, for I be no loquacious backfisch flush with pasigraphy.

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 08:17 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 10:04 AM)

Perhaps. Therefore, absolve my faux pas at parrying perceived querulousness, s'il vous plaît, for I be no loquacious backfisch flush with pasigraphy.

Wait a sec... rummage... where's that pointy hat I got on victrola fellas day...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 08:19 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 26 2006, 07:40 AM)

If you don't like calling the writings of Ellen White a "lesser light" ...And it CERTAINLY is not appropriate for you to label those of us who accept her own definition of her use of her symbols as "heretics".

Watchbird, are you addressing me? These statements seem out of character to anything I have said. I honestly am shocked you would say this. If you perceived that I called you, or anyone else, a heretic, forgive me, and I did not mean to say, imply, or infer any such thing. ??Did I get those right now?? To say that the Bible is the greater light leaves Christ out of the picture. I called that concept heresy. I never used the word you did. And there's a big difference in my mind.

Posted by: Nuggie Sep 26 2006, 08:21 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 09:04 AM)

Perhaps. Therefore, absolve my faux pas at parrying perceived querulousness, s'il vous plaît, for I be no loquacious backfisch flush with pasigraphy.

Greenie, you're funny...

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 08:25 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 10:19 AM)

To say that the Bible is the greater light leaves Christ out of the picture. I called that concept heresy.

Actually, it only leaves Christ out of the picture if one is speaking of greater vs lesser in absolute, rather than relative terms... and we all know only a Sith deals in absolutes.

The passage refers to the testimonies relative to the bible... and in that relative relationship the bible is indeed the greater light of the 2...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 26 2006, 08:32 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 08:25 AM)

Actually, it only leaves Christ out of the picture if one is speaking of greater vs lesser in absolute, rather than relative terms... and we all know only a Sith deals in absolutes.

The passage refers to the testimonies relative to the bible... and in that relative relationship the bible is indeed the greater light of the 2...

In His service,
Mr. J

To say that the Bible is the greater light, sort of sounds like you've arrived, though, doesn't it?

Nuggie, I like your signature line...nice quote!

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 09:00 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 26 2006, 10:32 AM)

To say that the Bible is the greater light, sort of sounds like you've arrived, though, doesn't it?

Only if we're going back to the whole inferred/implied thing... dunno if it's just human nature... but folk seem to have an inherent need to interpret what they read and see something beyond what is on the page...

Problem with that is it tends to miss the fact that sometimes a cigar is just a cigar... going back to the flashlight:spotlight:sun analogy... relative to the flashlight, the spotlight is a 'greater' light... relative to the sun, that same light is lesser to the point of insignificance...to view it as either greater or lesser it has to be juxtaposed against something else and comparison made and such comparison can be made accurately and without error as long that the relational basis of the comparison is kept in view... but perhaps that's another topic for another time...

DISCLAIMER: The above was made while standing on my general observation soapbox... while your statement brought it to mind I was not replying specifically to you in saying the above... just felt I needed to throw it out there...

As for arriving... umm... I was already there when you showed up

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 09:24 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 08:25 AM)

Actually, it only leaves Christ out of the picture if one is speaking of greater vs lesser in absolute, rather than relative terms... and we all know only a Sith deals in absolutes.

The passage refers to the testimonies relative to the bible... and in that relative relationship the bible is indeed the greater light of the 2...

In His service,
Mr. J

Absolutely!

btw ... what's a Sith. It sounds like a wonderfully useful word, but I'd sure like to know the context from which it came.

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 09:00 AM)

Only if we're going back to the whole inferred/implied thing... dunno if it's just human nature... but folk seem to have an inherent need to interpret what they read and see something beyond what is on the page...

Problem with that is it tends to miss the fact that sometimes a cigar is just a cigar... going back to the flashlight:spotlight:sun analogy... relative to the flashlight, the spotlight is a 'greater' light... relative to the sun, that same light is lesser to the point of insignificance...to view it as either greater or lesser it has to be juxtaposed against something else and comparison made and such comparison can be made accurately and without error as long that the relational basis of the comparison is kept in view... but perhaps that's another topic for another time...

DISCLAIMER: The above was made while standing on my general observation soapbox... while your statement brought it to mind I was not replying specifically to you in saying the above... just felt I needed to throw it out there...

As for arriving... umm... I was already there when you showed up

In His service,
Mr. J

Agreed with your general soapbox speech ... and....

As for arriving .... ummmmmm.... yes..... the statement with its context was already there and had been understood by most as saying just what we are saying it is saying .... a whale of a long time before Greenie showed up. Oh well ... maybe his name is more approriate than we realized....

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 09:25 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 26 2006, 11:19 AM)

Absolutely!

btw ... what's a Sith. It sounds like a wonderfully useful word, but I'd sure like to know the context from which it came.

Star Wars, Episode III... Obi-Wan tells Anakin that "only a Sith deals in absolutes"... the Sith are the masters of the dark side of the force...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Sep 26 2006, 12:01 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 09:25 AM)

Star Wars, Episode III... Obi-Wan tells Anakin that "only a Sith deals in absolutes"... the Sith are the masters of the dark side of the force...

In His service,
Mr. J

Hmmmm..... OK..... thanks. It does seem quite appropriate. I'll have to remember that.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 26 2006, 06:05 PM

sna

Yall all above lil' ol' dumb me nah.....

le'sigh

Posted by: seeshell Sep 26 2006, 06:10 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 10:25 AM)

Star Wars, Episode III... Obi-Wan tells Anakin that "only a Sith deals in absolutes"... the Sith are the masters of the dark side of the force...

In His service,
Mr. J

Oh great...now I'm related to a stripey red guy...sigh. sa

Posted by: princessdi Sep 26 2006, 06:14 PM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 26 2006, 05:10 PM)

Oh great...now I'm related to a stripey red guy...sigh. sa

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 26 2006, 06:19 PM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 26 2006, 08:10 PM)

Oh great...now I'm related to a stripey red guy...sigh.

Better the red guy then the....um....black guy.....

OOOOooo we are so off

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 26 2006, 07:33 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 26 2006, 09:50 AM)

Preach on, Preacha!!!!

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 26 2006, 07:44 PM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 26 2006, 08:10 PM)

Oh great...now I'm related to a stripey red guy...sigh.

No one has been called a Sith... or anything else... in this thread; that considered, what are you talking about?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: nick Sep 27 2006, 03:56 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 26 2006, 03:24 PM)

As for arriving .... ummmmmm.... yes..... the statement with its context was already there and had been understood by most as saying just what we are saying it is saying .... a whale of a long time before Greenie showed up. Oh well ... maybe his name is more approriate than we realized....

rofl rofl rofl rofl rofl rofl rofl rofl rofl

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 27 2006, 07:39 AM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 26 2006, 08:33 PM)

Some to many Black SDA churches in major cities to not place her writing before the Bible...some do not even make regular inferences to EGW....

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 26 2006, 03:21 AM)

A few?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 27 2006, 05:36 PM

Ennyway... back on topic...

Dr. Patrick makes the following point in the introduction of his essay "Re-visioning the role of EGW for Seventh-day Adventists beyond 2000":

QUOTE

Christianity offers a saving knowledge of God through Jesus Christ (John 17:3; 1 John 5:20), taught of the Holy Spirit (John 14-16). Libraries of books can be consulted about the process of disclosure (revelation), its trustworthy communication (inspiration), and the help of the Spirit for those who seek to understand and apply the message (illumination).2 Christianity has witnessed creative and destructive battles over these doctrines, few more intense than those within the United States during the first three decades of the twentieth century as Fundamentalism3 and Modernism4 engaged each other. Seventh-day Adventists belong in neither camp.5 However, with a valid concern about Modernism and an ambiguity with reference to Ellen White, many Adventists aligned themselves with the Fundamentalists. Especially since 1970, when Ellen White studies entered a new phase, this lack of clarity has threatened the unity and mission of Adventism.

Unrealistic concepts of inspiration caused many Adventists to adopt extreme positions6 with reference to Ellen White's ministry, including reversionist attitudes. The Adventist of Fundamentalist inclination, confronted with a massive amount of new information, tends to elevate an idealized past as normative for the present, requiring a strong continuity (even identity) with that past. Therefore, historical data may be seen as the cause of unnecessary problems; primary sources may appear to initiate doubt about the leading of God; probing questions may seem threatening, with even their asking categorized as evidence of lack of faith. Thus judgmental groups tend to form on the edges of the church and mount a guerrilla war, firing salvos at people and institutions.

The polar opposite to reversion is a rejectionist stance, which declares the past is so unreliable in view of present knowledge or so irrelevant to present needs that separation from it is essential. Historical data may be grasped as a weapon with which to attack the church (as in the writings of Gregory Hunt and Wallace Slattery); primary sources may be used by the rejectionist in an attempt to discredit claims about God's leading. During the resultant confusion some people quietly slip out of the church because they perceive the church as dishonest, or congregations may divide when the advocacy of opposing ideas fragments relationships, or militant individuals may leave Adventism in anger and direct long-range missiles back at them body of Christ.

Meanwhile, the church and its institutions experience turmoil. At a time when there is an enormous need to comprehensively support creationism, great effort may be expended to prop up a peripheral idea--the chronology of Archbishop James Ussher (1581-1656). When health and educational institutions need creative help to express Adventist values to patients and students, they may be threatened by well-meaning authors and administrators responding to negative reports which often turn out to be rumors. With unity under threat, bewildered leaders may grasp promising solutions offered in books like Omega and Receiving the Word, only to witness intensified conflict and a tarnishing of the church's credibility.7 Adventist ministers, historians, scientists, and religion teachers at times find hazardous the professions for which they prepared with great effort and outlay. Accountability is essential, as is a creative tension between academic freedom and academic responsibility. But to be effective, these professionals and their institutions also need accurate understanding from laity and leaders if the church is to proceed coherently with the fulfillment of its mission.

This point begs the following question... how then does the church pilot it's way through this latter day Scylla and Charibdis without being dashed on the rocks of either the reversionist or rejectionist sides? How do we stay on that middle path and avoid either extreme? Can those extremes even be avoided at all?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Clay Sep 27 2006, 06:19 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 27 2006, 05:36 PM)

Ennyway... back on topic...

Dr. Patrick makes the following point in the introduction of his essay "Re-visioning the role of EGW for Seventh-day Adventists beyond 2000":
This point begs the following question... how then does the church pilot it's way through this latter day Scylla and Charibdis without being dashed on the rocks of either the reversionist or rejectionist sides? How do we stay on that middle path and avoid either extreme? Can those extremes even be avoided at all?

In His service,
Mr. J

i don't know that it is possible.... as you have noted, there is a polarization taking place and each polar opposite ain't moving towards the center.... so both fight for the extremes...

Posted by: watchbird Sep 27 2006, 06:53 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 27 2006, 05:36 PM)

Ennyway... back on topic...

Dr. Patrick makes the following point in the introduction of his essay "Re-visioning the role of EGW for Seventh-day Adventists beyond 2000":
This point begs the following question... how then does the church pilot it's way through this latter day Scylla and Charibdis without being dashed on the rocks of either the reversionist or rejectionist sides? How do we stay on that middle path and avoid either extreme? Can those extremes even be avoided at all?

In His service,
Mr. J

Keep reading. The answer is in the other option.... "Re-visioning" the role. And there are a LOT of practical suggestions in the material, as well as a lot of reporting on how various individuals.... including scholars..... are going about it.

Patrick was on the "bleeding edge" of Ellen White studies back in the early 80's.... and even got his hands slapped a few times. But he has outlasted his critics, and is being joined by many others ..... especially in his own country, but also in the United States and elsewhere.

Will ALL join in the "re-visioning"? ..... of course not. But as more and more material is brought out which utilizes this thought framework there is more for the rest of us to focus upon. And here, as in life in general, "where you look is where you go". One can focus on criticizing either of the extremes..... and be drawn into one or the other "camp". Or one can focus on the new and help establish "re-visioning" as the view of choice for future generations.

It's our individual choice.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 27 2006, 09:13 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 27 2006, 09:39 AM)

Some to many Black SDA churches in major cities to not place her writing before the Bible...some do not even make regular inferences to EGW....

More do take her over the Bible than don't -
GC proved that in several sermons.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 29 2006, 06:15 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 27 2006, 09:39 AM)

Some to many Black SDA churches in major cities to not place her writing before the Bible...some do not even make regular inferences to EGW....

Well, is it "some or many"? And have you attend all of those some or many churches you speak of to make said statement? Yes/No or, have tried but it became to tiresome and or costly doing all that traveling? Please share.

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 29 2006, 06:40 PM

QUOTE(seraph|m @ Sep 29 2006, 05:15 PM)

Well, is it "some or many"? And have you attend all of those some or many churches you speak of to make said statement? Yes/No or, have tried but it became to tiresome and or costly doing all that traveling? Please share.

I can't speak to black churches in urban areas, not having been to even one in a long time. But in my experience, it depends on the local body.

Right now I live in a very rural part of the country where some congregations use her all the time, to the point of using her to interpret the Bible, and some don't. I think it mostly depends on the lay leadership (since the pastors aren't necessarily there every Sabbath).

It was the same thing when I lived overseas. Individual congregations vary in flavor elsewhere too.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 29 2006, 07:12 PM

QUOTE(SoulEspresso @ Sep 29 2006, 08:40 PM)

I can't speak to black churches in urban areas, not having been to even one in a long time [x] s.
But in my experience, it depends on the local body.

Right now I live in a very rural part of the country where some congregations use her all the time, to the point of using her to interpret the Bible, and some don't. I think it mostly depends on the lay leadership (since the pastors aren't necessarily there every Sabbath).

It was the same thing when I lived overseas. Individual congregations vary in flavor elsewhere too.

Though this is true, I was asking SS because her statement suggests she knows for a fact what is or is not going on in some to must churches. Hoping to get some clarification from her. You know, get it straight from the horses mouth so to speak.

Posted by: Clay Sep 29 2006, 07:55 PM

the fact is that her writings are used incorrectly.... and they are used in a manner she would not have liked... Now let's deal with the issues of the church covering up the leaderships reservations about her writings and how they should be used.... not to mention they met about it then buring the minutes of the meeting for decades....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 30 2006, 01:53 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 29 2006, 07:55 PM)

the fact is that her writings are used incorrectly.... and they are used in a manner she would not have liked... Now let's deal with the issues of the church covering up the leaderships reservations about her writings and how they should be used.... not to mention they met about it then buring the minutes of the meeting for decades....

And God's Word is often used incorrectly as well. And tithe gets used incorrectly. And the spiritual gifts get used for selfish purposes. And God's grace is abused. Christ's sacrifice will be in vain for many.

Fact is: we live on a sinful planet in the midst of a war. Fact is, Ellen White didn't like that, nor does God, nor do I.

Posted by: Clay Sep 30 2006, 02:13 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Sep 30 2006, 01:53 AM)

And God's Word is often used incorrectly as well. And tithe gets used incorrectly. And the spiritual gifts get used for selfish purposes. And God's grace is abused. Christ's sacrifice will be in vain for many.

> Fact is: we live on a sinful planet in the midst of a war. Fact is, Ellen White didn't like that, nor does God, nor do I.

and?

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 30 2006, 09:12 AM

The fact remains that many....Many - more than not... (per my visitation of at least 50 different churches in the north to the south; east to west) have stated a Bible scripture; and then stated something akin to...

"We know this to be a fact because EG White also states...."

OR

"Sister White says.....and this we know is true...."

That is it. Point Blank.

Posted by: HUGGINS130 Sep 30 2006, 02:12 PM

sna deep thoughts thus far!!!

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 30 2006, 04:05 PM

Then they wonder why some people have a problem & quit attending church when its their self righteous attitudes that caused it or should I say Holier than thou attitudes.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 30 2006, 04:25 PM

> QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 30 2006, 06:05 PM)
>
> Then they wonder why some people have a problem & quit attending church when its their self righteous attitudes that caused it or should I say Holier than thou attitudes.

sna

Posted by: västergötland Oct 1 2006, 01:58 AM

> QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 30 2006, 04:12 PM)
>
> The fact remains that many....Many - more than not... (per my visitation of at least 50 different churches in the north to the south; east to west) have stated a Bible scripture; and then stated something akin to...

"We know this to be a fact because EG White also states...."

OR

"Sister White says.....and this we know is true...."

That is it. Point Blank.

That sounds just wrong...

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 1 2006, 08:28 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Oct 1 2006, 02:58 AM)

That sounds just wrong...

Yes...it sounds wrong.
...but it is repeated many Sabbaths in many churches.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 1 2006, 08:49 AM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Oct 1 2006, 08:28 AM)

Yes...it sounds wrong.
...but it is repeated many Sabbaths in many churches.

Would you consider it "self-righteous" or "wrong" to quote, say, Exodus 20:8 and James 2:10 and then say that we know that the Sabbath is God's law and it's wrong to break it?

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 1 2006, 10:21 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 1 2006, 10:49 AM)

Would you consider it "self-righteous" or "wrong" to quote, say, Exodus 20:8 and James 2:10 and then say that we know that the Sabbath is God's law and it's wrong to break it?

What I feel is "wrong" is to say that the Bible is "Right" due to this "agreeing" with EG White..... or even taking it further....

"This is against the Bible - however EG White says it this way so...it must be right..."

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 1 2006, 10:39 AM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Oct 1 2006, 10:21 AM)

What I feel is "wrong" is to say that the Bible is "Right" due to this "agreeing" with EG White..... or even taking it further....

"This is against the Bible - however EG White says it this way so...it must be right..."

And do you have a list of things that are "against" the Bible which Ellen White says?

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 1 2006, 08:18 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 1 2006, 11:39 AM)

And do you have a list of things that are "against" the Bible which Ellen White says?

I only need the one for now.....

EG White's "judgement" on people that eat meat having a "lesser spirituality" and "animalistic tendencies" and "passions" that are caused strictly by the eating of meat.

Since no where in the Bible does it say that someone eating meat is a "lower" CHRISTian I believe this is contradictory. (Also note that JESUS ate meat. So when EG White spoke this statement - she was also speaking about my LORD & SAVIOR JESUS).

...but nobody (except for one) will address this.....

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 1 2006, 08:55 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Oct 1 2006, 09:18 PM)

I only need the one for now.....

EG White's "judgement" on people that eat meat having a "lesser spirituality" and "animalistic tendencies" and "passions" that are caused strictly by the eating of meat.

Since no where in the Bible does it say that someone eating meat is a "lower" CHRISTian I believe this is contradictory. (Also note that JESUS ate meat. So when EG White spoke this statement - she was also speaking about my LORD & SAVIOR JESUS).

...but nobody (except for one) will address this.....

And she also perpetuates the lie that Mary Magdalene was a woman of ill-repute... not to mention commingling the woman of Nain in Luke 7, Mary Magdalene and Mary the sister of Martha and Lazarus as if they were one in the same person.... when it is clear in scripture that they are not...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: alramwill Oct 1 2006, 08:55 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Oct 1 2006, 08:18 PM)

I only need the one for now.....

EG White's "judgement" on people that eat meat having a "lesser spirituality" and "animalistic tendencies" and "passions" that are caused strictly by the eating of meat.

Since no where in the Bible does it say that someone eating meat is a "lower" CHRISTian I believe this is contradictory. (Also note that JESUS ate meat. So when EG White spoke this statement - she was also speaking about my LORD & SAVIOR JESUS).

...but nobody (except for one) will address this.....

Good response....I was thinking the same thing.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 1 2006, 10:10 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Oct 1 2006, 08:18 PM)

I only need the one for now.....

EG White's "judgement" on people that eat meat having a "lesser spirituality" and "animalistic tendencies" and "passions" that are caused strictly by the eating of meat.

Since no where in the Bible does it say that someone eating meat is a "lower" CHRISTian I believe this is contradictory. (Also note that JESUS ate meat. So when EG White spoke this statement - she was also speaking about my LORD & SAVIOR JESUS).

...but nobody (except for one) will address this.....

Perhaps it will ease your mind a little to know that Ellen White does not counter the Bible on this issue. The Bible itself recognizes that the eating of meat is not best. (It is one of the seven "gray issues" I have found in the Bible and posted in another thread.) For a start, consider that meat was not in the original diet, nor will it be eaten in heaven. We are trying to prepare for life in heaven, right? The children of Israel provide a clear example of the moral/spiritual decline which results from the use of flesh foods. The story of the quail is an appropriate study here. I grant you that God Himself has allowed the use of meat, but permission is not the same as recommendation. In the case of the Israelites, God had provided them something better, and they complained and wanted to go back to that which was worse. Because of their insistence, God gave them their way, "but sent leanness to their souls." This is always the case whenever we choose a lower standard, not just with meat, but with any other aspect of Christian life. God may permit certain things, but when we cling to that which is not best while at the same time have something better available, do you think He is happy and glorified?

QUOTE

"They soon forgat his works; they waited not for his counsel: But lusted exceedingly in the wilderness, and tempted God in the desert. And he gave them their request; but sent leanness into their soul." Psalm 106:13-15

Our bodies are the temple of God. We should take care of it as best we can. I am a lifelong vegetarian who almost made the difficult choice to commence the eating of meat while in a foreign country deprived of adequate protein in the diet. I had felt myself growing weaker over time, and perhaps, if I had not found a good source of imported beans, it would have been best for me to eat some meat (which is not even palatable to me!). We must take care of our bodies with the best that we have. If, however, one has something better than meat available, they accept a lower standard for their body temple to continue in its use.

The Bible may not always say what we like to hear--but that should serve to increase our respect for it.

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 1 2006, 10:47 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 2 2006, 12:10 AM)

Perhaps it will ease your mind a little to know that Ellen White does not counter the Bible on this issue. The Bible itself recognizes that the eating of meat is not best. (It is one of the seven "gray issues" I have found in the Bible and posted in another thread.) For a start, consider that meat was not in the original diet, nor will it be eaten in heaven.

Grains and vegetables werent part of the original diet either and the entrance of sin caused the whole of creation on the earth to suffer under it's curse... yet you have no issue with their consumption; in fact you endorse and recommend it...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 1 2006, 10:53 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Oct 1 2006, 10:47 PM)

Grains and vegetables werent part of the original diet either and the entrance of sin caused the whole of creation on the earth to suffer under it's curse... yet you have no issue with their consumption; in fact you endorse and recommend it...

In His service,
Mr. J

You sound defensive. Especially since I did not say would you say I said. Nor does the Bible say what you say it does. Read Genesis 1:29 carefully, and then tell me what part of that diet does NOT include grains and beans.

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 12:25 AM

Greenie said:

QUOTE

For a start, consider that meat was not in the original diet, nor will it be eaten in heaven. We are trying to prepare for life in heaven, right? The children of Israel provide a clear example of the moral/spiritual decline which results from the use of flesh foods.

Well a couple of points... we are not the original people so consequently our bodies may not respond to the "original diet" like the original people's bodies did.... The original clothing was nakedness.... not endorsing that I see....

We are not preparing for heaven, we are being prepared for heaven... there is a significant difference...

The issue of quail and the COI used in this discussion is way off base... given that while in captivity they developed habits and tastes, and worship practices that God had to re-educate them, it was not moral decline... unless you are saying that the whole captive experience impacted them and they had to become reacquainted with what God wanted from them..... so it wasn't the food, it was the overall experience....

Posted by: Denny Oct 2 2006, 05:32 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 2 2006, 07:25 AM)

Greenie said: Well a couple of points... we are not the original people so consequently our bodies may not respond to the "original diet" like the original people's bodies did.... The original clothing was nakedness.... not endorsing that I see....

We are not preparing for heaven, we are being prepared for heaven... there is a significant difference...

The issue of quail and the COI used in this discussion is way off base... given that while in captivity they developed habits and tastes, and worship practices that God had to re-educate them, it was not moral decline... unless you are saying that the whole captive experience impacted them and they had to become reacquainted with what God wanted from them..... so it wasn't the food, it was the overall experience....

Plus if God thought that the COI eating meat contributed to their spiritual decline He would not have made it a part of their rituals e.g Passover.
Amazing how people who are so eager to endorse the original diet say very little or nothing about bringing back original gender relationships but seem to prefer the Paulian model.

And even if the whole of humanity became vegetarians we would still be a bunch of sinners who happened to be vegetarian; there would be no spiritual 'increase' or decline in immoral behaviour.

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 05:42 AM

true..... folks want to adhere to the pre sin diet and the post sin relationship.... interesting what we pick and choose to make our practice.....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 2 2006, 07:56 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 2 2006, 05:42 AM)

true..... folks want to adhere to the pre sin diet and the post sin relationship.... interesting what we pick and choose to make our practice.....

You won't hear me telling everyone to become vegetarian...certainly not for their own personal level, at least. I do, however, greatly appreciate our churches and institutions providing vegetarian cuisine, because it can appeal to everyone. Meat eaters can eat non-meat dishes, at least once in a while! I feel like it should be left to the Holy Spirit to convict each of us of the things in our lives that we need to change. God knows how much and how fast we can individually handle those changes in our lives, and I'm sure glad He is patient with me. I, for example, gave up milk a few years ago. The proverbial straw to break the camel's back for me was learning that a relative had died of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease. I have been much more stable in physical and emotional health since I've been weaned.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 2 2006, 08:19 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 25 2006, 09:38 PM)

Ok, so you missed the part of the story where Moses got mad at the COI down there worshipping the golden calf and broke the wone written by God, and he had to write the second set himself. So not only did God write them he also dictated them....

Did I now? I'm a little suprised that no one else answered this...so...may the Bible defend itself:

Deuteronomy
10:1 At that time the LORD said unto me, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood.
10:2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark.
10:3 And I made an ark of shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.
10:4 And he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, the ten commandments, which the LORD spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

Don't forget that not only did God write the commandments on two tables of stone TWICE, He also proclaimed them audibly to all the host of Israel, in their hearing. Hundreds of thousands of people witnessed this, and had Moses later misrepresented them in any way (of course God's own handwriting was stored in the ark), someone would have doubtless corrected him.

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 08:53 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 2 2006, 08:19 AM)

Did I now? I'm a little suprised that no one else answered this...so...may the Bible defend itself:

we knew you wanted to answer the question in your own unique way Greenie.....

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 2 2006, 09:06 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 2 2006, 12:53 AM)

You sound defensive. Especially since I did not say would you say I said. Nor does the Bible say what you say it does. Read Genesis 1:29 carefully, and then tell me what part of that diet does NOT include grains and beans.

LOL... I sound defensive? You've been nothing but since you opened your mouth... nevertheless...

Gen 1:29 And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat.

I was incorrect; grains were part of the original diet... 'every herb bearing seed' is more accurately rendered 'grass bearing ' or in modern english every grain.

Beans and other plants that require cultivation (the sweat of man's brow) did not become part of the diet until after sin.

In His service,
Mr. J

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 2 2006, 02:25 AM)

Greenie said: Well a couple of points... we are not the original people so consequently our bodies may not respond to the "original diet" like the original people's bodies did.... The original clothing was nakedness.... not endorsing that I see....

Not to mention these bodies we currently inhabit cannot enter heaven; this mortal must put on immortality and this corruptible must put on incorruption.

Bottom line the argument is thin... but not unexpected from one who by his own admission was culturally a vegetarian first and then later acquired the purported theological rationalization for that cultural stance. As one who has been a vegetarian all his life, GC has never seen meat eating objectively... and in all likelihood has never tried to; that is why he keeps standing up all the traditional strawmen and then patting himself on the back for a job well done when he has knocked them down...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: LeePaDee Oct 2 2006, 12:31 PM

GREEENCO WROTE:
For a start, consider that meat was not in the original diet, nor will it be eaten in heaven. We are trying to prepare for life in heaven, right?
------There will be no marriage in heaven ... are you advocating that we practice "no marriage" these days??

Posted by: Vada Oct 2 2006, 02:15 PM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 26 2006, 02:53 AM)

In another thread, Watchbird mentioned the articles and papers written by Dr. Arthur Patrick, a noted Adventist church historian/theologian and one time Director of the Ellen G White/Seventh-day Adventist Research Center that serves the South Pacific Division, on EGW, her writings and the necessary perspective we need to have today in order to properly understand and apply the counsel handed down to us through the Testimonies.

Dr. Patrick had a series of 4 interviews with the editor of the Record which were published in the South Pacific Division Record and which are available to be read at http://sdanet.org/atissue/white/patrick/egw-surfing.htm
and the editor of the Record wrote an editorial in the issue containing the first of the articles that carried the title of this thread.

I would encourage anyone interested to read them; I feel this is a dialog we need to have and while I recognize that some are unwilling and others are unable to deal with such a topic at this point in their walk with Christ, that cannot prevent the remainder of us from looking at this in an objective fashion, parking the preconceived notions of what we may have been taught in order to see EGW and her ministry as she saw it rather than how others chose to paint it after her death...

So... once more into the breach, dear friends...

In His service,
Mr. J

Dr Patrick's assessment of Ellen White and her writings seems to be much the same as Dr Graeme Bradford's. Someone has just directed us to this official statement by the White Estate.

http://www.whiteestate.org/issues/more-prophet.asp
A NOTICE REGARDING MORE THAN A PROPHET
Dr. Graeme Bradford, retired professor from the Theology Department of Avondale College, recently authored a privately-published book entitled, More Than a Prophet: How We Lost and Found Again the Real Ellen White. The Foreword and advertising incorrectly state that the manuscript was evaluated favorably by officers of the Ellen G. White Estate. In actuality, while recognizing elements of the book on which we can agree, the White Estate staff has strong concerns regarding several of the viewpoints expressed in the book.

Included among these concerns are the following:
· The book expresses the view that prophets in the New Testament and beyond generally carry less authority than Old Testament prophets, and that the individual and/or congregation must separate the wheat from the chaff in the messages even of genuine prophets. Such a view confirms people in the human tendency to accept what they like in inspired writings and to reject as "chaff" the things with which they disagree.
· The book suggests that because Ellen White used sources in her writings relating to history, prophecy, health, or theology, the views she expressed may have originated more from her contemporaries than divine inspiration. Her depiction of end-time events, for example, as found in The Great Controversy, is portrayed as deriving primarily from the expectations of 19th century North American Adventists, having little application to today's global society.
· While the White Estate staff recognizes that Ellen White was fallible and subject to human frailties—not unlike the biblical prophets—we maintain that certain positions taken in the book do not fairly reflect the understanding of Ellen White and her associates regarding her prophetic ministry, and fail to represent fully Ellen White's prophetic contributions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church.
A review of More Than a Prophet will be offered at this site in the future. For a well-balanced discussion of God's system of communication with human beings, we recommend The Voice of the Spirit, by the former director of the White Estate, Dr. Juan Carlos Viera, and Messenger of the Lord, by Dr. Herbert E. Douglass.

Posted by: SoulEspresso Oct 2 2006, 02:30 PM

QUOTE(Vada @ Oct 2 2006, 01:15 PM)

http://www.whiteestate.org/issues/more-prophet.asp
A NOTICE REGARDING MORE THAN A PROPHET
Dr. Graeme Bradford, retired professor from the Theology Department of Avondale College, recently authored a privately-published book entitled, More Than a Prophet: How We Lost and Found Again the Real Ellen White. The Foreword and advertising incorrectly state that the manuscript was evaluated favorably by officers of the Ellen G. White Estate. In actuality, while recognizing elements of the book on which we can agree, the White Estate staff has strong concerns regarding several of the viewpoints expressed in the book.
Included among these concerns are the following:
· The book expresses the view that prophets in the New Testament and beyond generally carry less authority than Old Testament prophets, and that the individual and/or congregation must separate the wheat from the chaff in the messages even of genuine prophets. Such a view confirms people in the human tendency to accept what they like in inspired writings and to reject as "chaff" the things with which they disagree.
· The book suggests that because Ellen White used sources in her writings relating to history, prophecy, health, or theology, the views she expressed may have originated more from her contemporaries than divine inspiration. Her depiction of end-time events, for example, as found in The Great Controversy, is portrayed as deriving primarily from the expectations of 19th century North American Adventists, having little application to today's global society.
· While the White Estate staff recognizes that Ellen White was fallible and subject to human frailties—not unlike the biblical prophets—we maintain that certain positions taken in the book do not fairly reflect the understanding of Ellen White and her associates regarding her prophetic ministry, and fail to represent fully Ellen White's prophetic contributions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church.
A review of More Than a Prophet will be offered at this site in the future. For a well-balanced discussion of God's system of communication with human beings, we recommend The Voice of the Spirit, by the former director of the White Estate, Dr. Juan Carlos Viera, and Messenger of the Lord, by Dr. Herbert E. Douglass.

Well, all due respect to the White Estate, but they've got a long history of inflating her role and authority ($ a factor, perhaps?) ... and Messenger of the Lord is not a balanced book. It's hagiography. Bradford's stuff is a little better, what I've seen of it anyway.

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 2 2006, 02:42 PM

QUOTE(Vada @ Oct 2 2006, 04:15 PM)

Dr Patrick's assessment of Ellen White and her writings seems to be much the same as Dr Graeme Bradford's. Someone has just directed us to this official statement by the White Estate.

http://www.whiteestate.org/issues/more-prophet.asp
A NOTICE REGARDING MORE THAN A PROPHET
Dr. Graeme Bradford, retired professor from the Theology Department of Avondale College, recently authored a privately-published book entitled, More Than a Prophet: How We Lost and Found Again the Real Ellen White. The Foreword and advertising incorrectly state that the manuscript was evaluated favorably by officers of the Ellen G. White Estate. In actuality, while recognizing elements of the book on which we can agree, the White Estate staff has strong concerns regarding several of the viewpoints expressed in the book.
Included among these concerns are the following:
· The book expresses the view that prophets in the New Testament and beyond generally carry less authority than Old Testament prophets, and that the individual and/or congregation must separate the wheat from the chaff in the messages even of genuine prophets. Such a view confirms people in the human tendency to accept what they like in inspired writings and to reject as "chaff" the things with which they disagree.
· The book suggests that because Ellen White used sources in her writings relating to history, prophecy, health, or theology, the views she expressed may have originated more from her contemporaries than divine inspiration. Her depiction of end-time events, for example, as found in The Great Controversy, is portrayed as deriving primarily from the expectations of 19th century North American Adventists, having little application to today's global society.
· While the White Estate staff recognizes that Ellen White was fallible and subject to human frailties—not unlike the biblical prophets—we maintain that certain positions taken in the book do not fairly reflect the understanding of Ellen White and her associates regarding her prophetic ministry, and fail to represent fully Ellen White's prophetic contributions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church.
A review of More Than a Prophet will be offered at this site in the future. For a well-balanced discussion of God's system of communication with human beings, we recommend The Voice of the Spirit, by the former director of the White Estate, Dr. Juan Carlos Viera, and Messenger of the Lord, by Dr. Herbert E. Douglass.

You'd think that some could do just a little better than guilt by association as a means of discrediting...

Riddle me this, batman...

If the views of Dr. Patrick and anyone else who diverges from the .org party line are so dismissable, why did the transcripts of the 1919 Bible Conference lie hidden for 64 years? The issues raised by Dr. Patrick, Dr. Bradford and others are not new; they are merely new to this generation of Adventists. Had the information they are addressing been brought out 65 years ago as it should have been, in all likelihood, there is no "The White Lie" because Ellen White would not have be set up as someone worthy of worship... yeah I know; I've already heard it.... the whole 'we dont worship EGW' spiel...

and from many of those spouting it they sound like the current administration on torture... the track record is patently inconsistent with the claim.

The church, IMO, has so embraced the ellenolatrist view that they have no choice but to try to discredit anything that could do damage to that view or call it into question...

The church disagrees with Dr Bradford... and by associative extension Dr. Patrick... but given that the points they make were not initiated by them but rather were items of concern for those who worked with Sis. White going back 100 years from today, concerns that the church saw fit to bury in favor of the revisionist, infallible posthumous pope of Adventism slant speaking ex cathedra ex sepulchra and hoping that none of the concerns which were widely known in the church prior to 1920 and buried since saw the light of day...

Why is that?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Clay Oct 2 2006, 02:52 PM

as Soul Espresso hinted... follow the money... and the other factor, but elevating her writings the powers that be could control the members... literally causing many to stop thinking and rely on egw for everything from dress, to diet, to proper marriage activity..... and the dollars keep rolling in....

Posted by: Mel Oct 3 2006, 09:34 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 29 2006, 07:55 PM)

the fact is that her writings are used incorrectly.... and they are used in a manner she would not have liked... Now let's deal with the issues of the church covering up the leaderships reservations about her writings and how they should be used.... not to mention they met about it then burying the minutes of the meeting for decades....

Here's some historical research and facts that speak to this matter. Following are the first 8 or 9 paragraphs of a chapter on the 1919 Bible Conference/History Teacher's Council from Dr. Herb Douglass's book "Messenger of the Lord". It was particularly interesting for me to note the circumstances and motivations around the "burying of the minutes for decades". The balance of this chapter (indeed the whole book) can be found on the White Estate's website at http://www.whiteestate.org/books/mol/Chapt38.html -Mel

P.S. Just noticed the following comment by SoulExpresso, "...Messenger of the Lord is not a balanced book. It's hagiography...". I have not seen anything like that in the little I've read in this book. Mind sharing some examples of what has struck you as the book's hagiographic lack of balance...? Thanks... -Mel

Chapter 38
Hermeneutics/7
1919 Bible Conference/History Teachers Council

The Locked-up Manuscript
The Fruit of Ellen White's Ministry
The Core Issue

Dark Cloud of Verbal Inspiration
What Should We Learn From the 1919 Conference/Council?
W. C. White Not Present
Downside of Verbal Inspiration
Endnotes
Study Questions

"The 'pioneer position' urged that the writings could not be divided into 'inspired' and 'uninspired' sections, but seemed to have no real means of dealing with apparent discrepancies. The 'new view position,' with its emphasis upon context, offered a means of explaining those apparent discrepancies. Each side seemed to have additional concepts that could have been useful to the other. Sufficient opportunity for a dialogue seemed to be present."1

In 1919 a Bible Conference was held July 1-19, and a Teachers Council July 20-August 1. About sixty-five people attended these two meetings, not all present for both. About twenty-eight teachers are listed in attendance at the Council, representing fourteen colleges (2- and 4-year).2

Stenographers transcribed not only the lectures but also much of the ensuing discussions—a massive record of 2,494 pages. However, nearly half of these pages are duplicates, with the first copy totaling 1,308 pages. Of the 1,308 pages, about 1,100 are from the Bible Conference, the remainder from the Council.3

This material lay unnoticed in the General Conference archives until a year after the establishment of the General Conference Archives in 1983. Why were these records placed in the archives? The answer lies in the record itself. Many delegates talked freely, often in strong disagreement. Some would make comments that they would moderate after discussion. The judgment of many suggested that no possible good could come from publicizing the disagreements among leading Adventist thinkers over such colorful topics as "the Eastern question." Some believed that it would be "a rather hazardous thing to throw this out all over." Others wanted the material reduced about fifty percent and provided to the delegates only. Some wanted a synopsis sent to all church members, and others wanted nothing sent out.

After listening to the discussion, A. G. Daniells, president of the General Conference and chairman of the Bible Conference, said: "I sometimes think it would be just as well to lock this manuscript up in a vault, and have anyone who wishes to do so come there for personal study and research."4

The Locked-up Manuscript

It is more than interesting that the president's suggestion (which was eventually followed) was made subsequent to a spirited discussion regarding such subjects as the Eastern question and the Arian-Trinity controversy.5 Unfortunately, some have used Daniells' statement to include the discussion on the authority and inspiration of Ellen White, a discussion that took place on July 30 and August 1, two weeks after Daniells's suggestion "to lock up this manuscript."

The two-day discussion in the Teachers Council on the role and function of Ellen White illuminated how Christians through the centuries, especially since the Reformation, have been in disagreement as to how God speaks through His prophets. One of the Adventist advantages is that Adventists lived very closely to Ellen White throughout her seventy-year ministry. They saw all aspects of her life and work. But even then, some Adventists strongly advocated the verbal inspiration position while others, more keenly aware of the process of revelation/inspiration, maintained the thought-inspiration position. This fundamental contention lay at the bottom of the discussion in 1919.

With W. E. Howell as chair of the Council, Daniells was asked to make the opening statement. He referred to his confidence in Ellen White even though he "had perplexities through the forty years" of his ministry, "but time has helped me to understand; and I have concluded that we do not see from the Lord's standpoint."

One of his concerns was the charge that he himself was a "doubter of the Testimonies" because he did not believe that they were verbally inspired.6 He appealed to the teachers: "Oh, I would feel terribly to have this denomination lose its true, genuine, proper faith in this gift that God gave to this church in these messages that have come to us. I want that we shall stay by this clear through to the end."7

< s n i p >

Endnotes for the above excerpts...

1. Bert Haloviak, "Background and Aftermath of the 1919 Bible and History Teachers Conference," an unpublished paper, 1979.

2. Robert W. Olson, "The 1919 Bible Conference and Bible and History Teachers Council," available from the E. G. White Estate.

3. Ibid.

4. Stenographic report of the 1919 Bible Conference and Bible and History Teachers Council, p. 912.

5. The Eastern question refers to the interpretation of the "king of the North" in Daniel 11. Most had been preaching strongly, especially in evangelism, that the "king" was Turkey; others believed that the "king" referred to the activities of the Papacy at the end of time; see Schwarz, Light Bearers, pp. 400-402.

6. See pp. 16, 120, 173, 375, 376, 421 for a discussion of the difference between verbal inspiration and thought inspiration.

7. One of Daniells's most lasting contributions to this church was his book, The Abiding Gift of Prophecy.

8. As an example of such "demonstrations," Daniells referred to the story of Ellen White holding a "heavy Bible" on her outstretched hand. J. N. Loughborough records this miracle in his Rise and Progress of Seventh-day Adventists (pages 103, 104) and later in The Great Second Advent Movement (pages 236, 237) based on interviews he had with eyewitnesses of the event. Cursory readers of this discussion have mistakenly concluded that Daniells questioned the historicity of the event. They have missed Daniells's point, which he clarified later in the discussion when specifically asked whether he was discrediting the miracle or stating that he would not use such manifestations as a "proof" of inspiration. He replied, "No, I do not discount them nor disbelieve them; but they are not the kind of evidence I would use with students or with unbelievers. . . . I do not question them, but I do not think they are the best kind of evidence to produce." (Spectrum, vol. 10, No. 1, p. 37.)

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 16 2006, 05:38 PM

Just a quick note - When I went to Elmshaven; the home of EG White - it was stated that the story of her holding a giant bible for hours while preaching on one hand was an exaggeration. They did show her "Bible" - but it was stated by her own relatives that the story had been blown out of proportion (in other words - stretched/a lie).

sna

Posted by: Lubega Oct 16 2006, 06:22 PM

WOW that is news to me. Tell me this, Why do they allow the church to print things like that if they have no truth to them? It the church bot

But really why?

TVsnack.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 16 2006, 06:51 PM

QUOTE(Lubega @ Oct 16 2006, 06:22 PM)

WOW that is news to me. Tell me this, Why do they allow the church to print things like that if they have no truth to them? ...

They have truth. But some folks have exaggerated, that's all. Did they say at Elmshaven that she had held the Bible for about 15-30 minutes? That's what I learned in grade school. Not hours. But we all tried to hold out a large dictionary which would have been equivalent of her family Bible, and we couldn't hold it at arm's length more than a minute. I'd say it was a miracle...I don't know even any grown men who would hold such a weight at arms length for 15 minutes. (I had never heard the "hours" figure before, so that was news to me....)

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 19 2006, 09:09 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 16 2006, 07:51 PM)

They have truth. But some folks have exaggerated, that's all. Did they say at Elmshaven that she had held the Bible for about 15-30 minutes? That's what I learned in grade school. Not hours. But we all tried to hold out a large dictionary which would have been equivalent of her family Bible, and we couldn't hold it at arm's length more than a minute. I'd say it was a miracle...I don't know even any grown men who would hold such a weight at arms length for 15 minutes. (I had never heard the "hours" figure before, so that was news to me....)

When I saw the Bible - (replica of same in case) and was given the tour - it was stated that it was held for 5 TO 10 MINUTES and that it wasn't held by ONE HAND but switched back and forth BETWEEN BOTH OF HER HANDS

...by HER OWN RELATIVES.....

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 19 2006, 11:57 PM

Heh...let's see you do that! Switch it back and forth between your hands, still holding it out at ARMS LENGTH for, let's say 5 minutes! I'd like to see this! You might actually be able to do it, if you are extremely determined and don't mind a little sweat poppin' out on your forehead! rofl I doubt you'd feel too comfortable though.

Heh, when I was in school, one of my teachers used to inflict punishments on us for our mischiefs such as "the wall sit", the "dying cockroach", or the "duck waddle!" Hahaha....none of those was pleasant. Any of you get such punishments? Maybe I'm giving clues to my age now...hahaha... The wall sit was only for a minute usually, maybe two...and if you ever got up to three, you were getting pretty uncomfortable!

As for the relatives...a prophet is not without honor, except in his own house...in Jesus' words. I guess I don't give the relatives any more credibility than any other witness--maybe less. To me, a book that size at arm's length for even 10 minutes, if you wish are wishing to play down those numbers, is still nothing short of a miracle for a woman whose weakness and frailty is well-documented. BTJM.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 20 2006, 04:28 AM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Oct 20 2006, 01:57 AM)

Heh...let's see you do that! Switch it back and forth between your hands, still holding it out at ARMS LENGTH for, let's say 5 minutes! I'd like to see this! You might actually be able to do it, if you are extremely determined and don't mind a little sweat poppin' out on your forehead! rofl I doubt you'd feel too comfortable though.

Heh, when I was in school, one of my teachers used to inflict punishments on us for our mischiefs such as "the wall sit", the "dying cockroach", or the "duck waddle!" Hahaha....none of those was pleasant. Any of you get such punishments? Maybe I'm giving clues to my age now...hahaha... The wall sit was only for a minute usually, maybe two...and if you ever got up to three, you were getting pretty uncomfortable!

As for the relatives...a prophet is not without honor, except in his own house...in Jesus' words. I guess I don't give the relatives any more credibility than any other witness--maybe less. To me, a book that size at arm's length for even 10 minutes, if you wish are wishing to play down those numbers, is still nothing short of a miracle for a woman whose weakness and frailty is well-documented. BTJM.

Go to Elmshaven. Again - we chose to believe what we want to. While in the tour they (EGW's relatives) also spoke of her not being a "prophet" but having "words from GOD" - and her hate of the elevation to "prophet" (her actual direct command to not do so also).

We call the woman a "prophet" - when she herself stated not to.
We believe what we want; even when given factual information by those that have the true story.

Frail? Naw. Slightly unhealthy due to a head injury - possible. I'll give you that. ...but not frail (per her own relatives again....) Not discrediting the "story" (clutch the invisible/missing pearls!) but showing the fallicy of it and still the story being the basis of a miracle. A true miracle doesn't need embellishment.

Who am I to believe you over them (her own descendents/relatives)? Then again - who are you to believe me who took the tour - spoke directly with her direct descendents (who hold original documents that have not been seen by "outsiders of the family") - over the stories, (proven) lies, and fables that you have heard over the years of your life?

sna

Posted by: Denny Oct 20 2006, 05:23 AM

Whether EGW held the bible for 10 seconds or 10 hours the fact that some Adventists seem to need these stories to bolster the truth of her messages or that yes EGW was a true whatever to me is no better than people making a trip to Lourdes to see visions etc.... And we like to look down on churches that have that kind of thing don't we.... Good thing the dead know nothing cos Sista Ellen would turn in her grave.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Oct 20 2006, 09:18 AM

Hmmm....

Some food for thought:

And this is the record of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, Who art thou? And he confessed, and denied not; but confessed, I am not the Christ. And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? And he answered, No. Then said they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to them that sent us. What sayest thou of thyself? He said, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Esaias. And they which were sent were of the Pharisees. And they asked him, and said unto him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou be not that Christ, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

* * * *

And Jesus answered and said unto them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things. The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him? But if we shall say, Of men; we fear the people; for all hold John as a prophet. And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

* * * *

Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.

Posted by: watchbird Oct 20 2006, 10:21 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Oct 20 2006, 07:23 AM)

Whether EGW held the bible for 10 seconds or 10 hours the fact that some Adventists seem to need these stories to bolster the truth of her messages or that yes EGW was a true whatever to me is no better than people making a trip to Lourdes to see visions etc.... And we like to look down on churches that have that kind of thing don't we.... Good thing the dead know nothing cos Sista Ellen would turn in her grave.

One of the great mysteries of the Adventist church is why the EGW Estate, which was originally founded to "carry out the instructions of Ellen White" regarding the use of her materials in perpetuity, so quickly and so thoroughly disobeyed those orders and have continued to "shoot her in the foot" to this very day.

Examples ... she was VERY explicit in forbidding the excerpting of her works.... even going so far as to say that "I have not written a book of proverbs".... and urging people to examine the context, not only of any specific statement, but also comparing that with other statements on the same subject. Yet the books of bound excerpts rolled from the presses ... are still sold ... and books even more fitting the description "proverbs" are still being assembled and marketed.

Meanwhile ... back on the ranch .... people like Craig Newborn, Jon Paulien, George Knight, Woodrow Whidden, Arthur Patrick, and Greame Bradford ... to name but a few ... are working diligently to "save" the real Ellen for future generations. And while the EGW Estate is also working towards the same goal.... and making it much easier to attain.... by making all the source material available to researchers... and working on making it all available to everyone... they are at the same time, picking and choosing whom they will support and whom they will refuse to support, thus calling into question not only the integrity of the persons they cast doubts upon, but upon their own integrity as well.

For a very current and explicit example of this, please take a look at the official EGW Estate webpage, http://www.ellenwhite.com/ and note the item marked with a "new" gif that reads .....

More Than A Prophet
Official White Estate Statement
Dr. Graeme Bradford, retired professor from the Theology Department of Avondale College, recently authored a privately-published book entitled, More Than a Prophet: How We Lost and Found Again the Real Ellen White. http://www.ellenwhite.com/issues/more-prophet.asp

It is very short ... very vague ... please read before continuing to the info below....

TVsnack.

Now ... once you have ruminated on the statement above a bit.... go read Graeme Bradford's response.... which you will find at http://www.sdanet.org/atissue/white/bradford/response.htm

This will take longer. Take your time.

TVsnack.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 20 2006, 04:47 PM

sna

Well!

Posted by: Lubega Oct 21 2006, 12:01 AM

Now ... once you have ruminated on the statement above a bit.... go read Graeme Bradford's response.... which you will find at http://www.sdanet.org/atissue/white/bradford/response.htm

This will take longer. Take your time.

TVsnack.

[/quote]
I tried to open this site and it would not load. I would love to read it if you can check it and see what the problem may be. plea

WOW once I copied it into my reply to you then it opened. So disregard my last post I will go and read now. Carry on

---

Posted by: watchbird Oct 21 2006, 03:09 AM

QUOTE(Lubega @ Oct 21 2006, 02:01 AM)

Now ... once you have ruminated on the statement above a bit.... go read Graeme Bradford's response.... which you will find at http://www.sdanet.org/atissue/white/bradford/response.htm

This will take longer. Take your time.

TVsnack.

I tried to open this site and it would not load. I would love to read it if you can check it and see what the problem may be. plea

WOW once I copied it into my reply to you then it opened. So disregard my last post I will go and read now. Carry on

My bad. Really scrambled link code.

Thanks much for waking me up..... ..... all fixed now!

Carry on.....

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Oct 21 2006, 10:55 AM

I thought it was just my computer - I fixed it and found it too....

Oopse!

Maybe I should tell folks when I do that.....

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 21 2006, 03:26 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Oct 21 2006, 05:09 AM)

My bad. Really scrambled link code.

Thanks much for waking me up..... ..... all fixed now!

Carry on.....

Carrying on, aye... Looking at the now properly rendered link, one finds some things of interest:

QUOTE

QUOTE

*2. "The book suggests that because Ellen White used sources in her writings relating to history, prophecy, health, or theology, the views she expressed may have originated more from her contemporaries than divine inspiration. Her depiction of end-time events, for example, as found in The Great Controversy, is portrayed as deriving primarily from the expectations of 19th century North American Adventists, having little application to today's global society."

Here again the White Estate have not fairly represented what I am saying. I would encourage those who want to understand more on Ellen White's ministry the above related items to go to their nearest Research Centre and ask for the papers presented at the "1982 International Prophetic Guidance Workshop". They should especially spend time with the paper presented by the then Director of the White Estate Dr Robert Olson on "Inerrancy in Inspired Writings." They should also listen to the taped recording of the presentation and the discussion that follows. If they do they will hear not only Robert Olson but also Arthur White, Kenneth Wood, Jim Nix, etc discussing these issues. I am amazed that the White Estate should challenge me in many of the above areas when they so openly and freely discussed them in their 1982 workshop.

If they were going to hide these papers and presentations away to avoid their becoming public, why did they bother to allow the research at all? Given the copious amount of references to EGW Estate materials in Dr. Bradford's work, it seems to me that the Estate is lacking in their maintaining the legacy of EGW if they find a work largely researched in their archives and presenting material they maintain so unpalatable...

QUOTE

In 1982 the White Estate called an "International Prophetic Guidance Workshop" to help meet the threat posed by Walter Rae and others. Many fine papers were presented and I would encourage each reader to not only read these papers but also to listen to the audio tapes of the ensuing discussions.

I have referred to a paper by Roger Coon on page 213 here is its outline:

Re-education of church members needed

In the 1982 International Prophetic Guidance Workshop, Roger Coon presented a paper that called for the re-education of church membership in understanding the function of Ellen White□s writings.

The first part of the paper sets out the problems listed, in part, here

A. The Crisis in Hermeneutic

1. Most Seventh-day Adventists probably have a seriously impaired view of inspiration/revelation.

Bias toward strictly verbal (mechanical dictation) position.

2. Danger when they discover factual data contrary to their view:

Instead of adjusting their theory to fit demonstrated facts,[sic]

Discard prophet[sic] instead of bad theory (throw out baby with bathwater)

B. The Crisis in Credibility:

2. Danger to Church member who hears the charges:

Credibility of EGW challenged

Credibility of high church leaders (past/present) challenged.

B. Methodological Approaches That Tend To Build Credibility:

1.Openness: total honesty/candor

a. Admit the honestly made mistakes of the past:

Putting EGW upon pedestal above Bible writers
Misuse of some statements
(the words that I speak . . . " etc.)
Demonstrate her personal fallibility
Demonstrate her personal vulnerability

a. Honestly face controversial issues; don□t duck them:

b. Deal openly with the existence of some things "hard to be understood"8

The workshop where this paper and others were presented was a high point in the church□s attempt to come to grips with the reality of the problems regarding Ellen White and her function and authority. Unfortunately, what Coon and others were advocating was not really taken up. As in the 1919 Conference so in the 1982 Conference. In both cases there was a determination > to share the material with the membership at large, but in both cases the material was assigned to the too hard basket with the feeling that the membership could not handle the new information. So the bulk of the Adventist membership has little knowledge of the information that has come to hand over the past two decades and are left vulnerable when forced to face the evidence placed before them in a negative way.

The bolded statement begs a single question: WHY????????????????

It's like the old Fram oil filter commercials; the church was presented with a choice... both in 1919 and in 1982... pay now... or pay later... and in both instances they chose to pay later with disastrous consequences... even with the loss of those who would have found the material difficult to handle in 1919... or even in 1982 it would have been better for the church to put it out there. The response of some in this forum to these things makes that clear... at least to me it does.

in His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: watchbird Oct 21 2006, 06:10 PM

> QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Oct 21 2006, 05:26 PM)
>
> Carrying on, aye... Looking at the now properly rendered link, one finds some things of interest: "Here again the White Estate have not fairly represented what I am saying. I would encourage those who want to understand more on Ellen White's ministry the above related items to go to their nearest Research Centre and ask for the papers presented at the "1982 International Prophetic Guidance Workshop". They should especially spend time with the paper presented by the then Director of the White Estate Dr Robert Olson on "Inerrancy in Inspired Writings." They should also listen to the taped recording of the presentation and the discussion that follows. If they do they will hear not only Robert Olson but also Arthur White, Kenneth Wood, Jim Nix, etc discussing these issues. I am amazed that the White Estate should challenge me in many of the above areas when they so openly and freely discussed them in their 1982 workshop . "
>
> If they were going to hide these papers and presentations away to avoid their becoming public, why did they bother to allow the research at all? Given the copious amount of references to EGW Estate materials in Dr. Bradford's work, it seems to me that the Estate is lacking in their maintaining the legacy of EGW if they find a work largely researched in their archives and presenting material they maintain so unpalatable...
> The bolded statement begs a single question: WHY????????????????

In searching for an answer to "WHY??????", it will be helpful to note the implications of the statement above I have bolded.

The striking thing about the negative review of Bradford's book is not that it is an indication of an attitude of general negativity by the White Estate... but that is is so unexpected, given their own work in the same areas that he covers in his book, and that others have done and are currently doing. The wonderment is in the inconsistency they are showing by putting this negative comment on their site... obviously even before they have done a thorough review of the book.

If you will go to their website, http://www.ellenwhite.com/ and choose "Issues and Answers" from their left hand menu, you will see a wealth of material which is there for the same purpose as Bradford wrote his book.... to combat the myths that have grown up around Ellen White and put her in a more "human" light.

So why do this to his book? I can only conclude that it must have more to do with personalities and politics than it does with his content. But that is, admittedly, only a guess. The important thing, IMO, is that we do not take the EGW Estate negative comment about his book either as an official position of "the church" nor do we use it to make a blanket condemnation of them, since there is much they are doing that is along the very same line.

I'm not sure how much information to put in a single post ... I have some other reference material, but perhaps that would be best left for another time. In the meantime I invite us to wander through the url above.... I think we'll find some interesting stuff.

QUOTE

It's like the old Fram oil filter commercials; the church was presented with a choice... both in 1919 and in 1982... pay now... or pay later... and in both instances they chose to pay later with disastrous consequences... even with the loss of those who would have found the material difficult to handle in 1919... or even in 1982 it would have been better for the church to put it out there. The response of some in this forum to these things makes that clear... at least to me it does.

in His service,
Mr. J

I don't think the two occasions can really be seen as this identical. While it is true that the 1919 materials lay completely unheard of until Haloviak started his task of going through the old boxes that were stored in what was to become the "archives", the 1982 materials were the results of studies already going on by a wide assortment of Adventist scholars. And the study done then resulted in a new openness rather than in further suppression. And the climate for open studies and new ways of handling Ellen White materials loosened up considerably after this time.

Tomorrow I'll post some other source material that is available on-line along these lines, as well as some other information about Bradford's book and what some others are saying about it.

Posted by: Clay Oct 23 2006, 09:14 AM

we are still waiting.... on the additional info I mean... where are you WB?

Posted by: watchbird Oct 23 2006, 04:30 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 23 2006, 11:14 AM)

we are still waiting.... on the additional info I mean... where are you WB?

Don't you know that "tomorrow never comes"?
Sorry about that.... been flyin' here and there ... Just walked in the door a few moments ago..... I'll get back to it soon..... hopefully not prophetic time.....

Posted by: watchbird Oct 23 2006, 08:11 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 23 2006, 11:14 AM)

we are still waiting.... on the additional info I mean... where are you WB?

Well ... by now I have quite lost my chain of thought ... or at least it has gotten so tangled in other chains of thought that I'm really not quite sure where I had intended to go next or where to start.

But I'm quite sure I intended to bring the urls of Bacchiocchi's website pages where he introduced and gave a few chapters from Bradford's book as well as some testimonials FOR the book... which help balance out the negative things hinted at by the rather vague EGW Estate statement.

It would probably be helpful if someone would cut out the appropriate portions of Bacchs newsletter and post it here, so it would be easier for others to read and compare.. and if someone else doesn't do it first I might do that myself.... but for tonight I'll just give the urls and a brief description of what is in each. Thanks to Thomas, btw, for initially pointing out which newsletter numbers they were. I would never have found them otherwise.

Bacchiocchi first addressed it in his newsletter number 150, "Ellen White and the Trinity". where there are several paragraphs giving some backgound on both the book and the author and the purpose for which it is written. http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_150.htm

In newsletter number 151, Bacchiocchi repeats his order information for the book and then gives the text of chapters 11 and 12 of Graeme Bradford's book, which address issues having to do with "The Credibility of Ellen White." http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_151.htm

Newsletter number 152 gives chapter 24, "Ellen White and the Bible. "
http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_152.htm

In newsletter number 155, Bacchiocchi shares some responses of favorable experiences people have reported with reading __More Than A Prophet__
http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_155.htm

There is also an essay on "Ellen White's Theological Growth", which is taken from chapter 15.

What is not clear to me (since I don't have the book and cannot make actual comparisons) is whether or not the chapters Bacchiocchi includes are the actual chapters from Graeme's book or are Bacch's approximation or paraphrase of them. Maybe someone here has a copy of his book and could enlighten us on that.

Enjoy the reads..... see you tomorrow....

Posted by: Clay Oct 24 2006, 09:23 AM

read it... the question then is in light of her own view of herself why did the church find it necessary to embellish the perception of who she was to the point that she was some superhuman prophetess not to be questioned ever?

Posted by: Denny Oct 24 2006, 09:26 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Oct 24 2006, 04:23 PM)

read it... the question then is in light of her own view of herself why did the church find it necessary to embellish the perception of who she was to the point that she was some superhuman prophetess not to be questioned ever?

One word, two syllables, beings with C

Posted by: beanchild Oct 27 2006, 12:35 PM

uhh, so what is the two syllable word?

Posted by: LeePaDee Oct 27 2006, 01:05 PM

cash... nope that can't be it
... and I callz m'sef an Angle-ish teacher ... sometimes I crack me up!!

Posted by: Clay Oct 27 2006, 01:41 PM

QUOTE(beanchild @ Oct 27 2006, 01:35 PM)

uhh, so what is the two syllable word?

con-trol

Posted by: laryfromGary Oct 30 2006, 11:31 AM

As I have read the history of this denomination and the controversy concerning story of Elen White being, or not being, a prophet. I have come to the conclusion that there are some in this church who desires to keep the image of her being a prophet, as many of our older members, those who came after the Miniapolis conference where the first meeting concerning her writings were discussed and the subsequent teaching/promoting her writings as on the same level as the biblical prophets began, and those of us who just see her as one of the founding members of this denomination who helped form the doctirnes of our church. This on going battle between the White Library, and those who make use of her writings to formulate their own personal use [Both sides for the purpose of selling books [to make money in order not to get a REAL job, is nothing but a battle of small minded men with an ego complex who are like children arguing over who has the best bike. It is nothing but a "tempest in a tea pot" It means nothing as far as my salvation is concerned because I have already made up my mind as far as she is or is not a prophet.

This childish behavior will do nothing but 1.} Cause them to lose their salvation becaue the whole thing has nothing to do with Christ and the plan of saving the lost, and 2} Will keep this denomination in a mind set of those who formed the church over 100 years ago.

I think it is time to put this whole thing in a sealed box and store away in locked room. Whether she was a prophet or not has nothing to do with getting people ready to meet the Lord.

Posted by: awesumtenor Oct 30 2006, 12:00 PM

QUOTE(laryfromGary @ Oct 30 2006, 12:31 PM)

> 2} Will keep this denomination in a mind set of those who formed the church over 100 years ago.

Actually the mindest is of about 85 years ago, after she died. Those that formed this church believed in the idea of progressive truth and as such held no doctrine so dear that they would not toss it overboard if their continued study showed it to be wrong. It was only after EGW died that the faction whose position now holds sway in much of the church became ascendant.

> QUOTE
>
> I think it is time to put this whole thing in a sealed box and store away in locked room. Whether she was a prophet or not has nothing to do with getting people ready to meet the Lord.

Ironically, it was putting things " in a sealed box" and storing them "away in a locked room" that allowed these mindsets to become entrenched...

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: beanchild Oct 30 2006, 03:28 PM

> QUOTE(laryfromGary @ Oct 30 2006, 01:31 PM) ☐
>
> ...
> I think it is time to put this whole thing in a sealed box and store away in locked room. Whether she was a prophet or not has nothing to do with getting people ready to meet the Lord.

sometimes things have to be brought into the open. things that stay in locked boxes too much tend to mildew and go bad. sunlight i hear is cleansing...

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

164

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Somthing Interesting...

Posted by: September Sep 13 2006, 09:21 PM

I did a Google search tonight on Danny and came up with the following on Wikipedia:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/3ABN

3ABN
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Jump to: navigation, search
Three Angels Broadcast Network
Type Television, Radio
Country United States
Availability International
Founder Danny and Linda Shelton
Key people Danny Shelton
Launch date November 23, 1986
Website 3abn.org

The Three Angels Broadcasting Network, or 3ABN for short, is a not-for-profit, 24-hour multimedia Christian ministry, an American television and radio network which primarily focuses on Christian programming. Its aim is to broadcast the Good News of Jesus Christ worldwide. Among of what offered by 3ABN includes Christian music, inspirational themes from the Bible for both the adults and children, dealing with family issues, Christian lifestyles, and as well as principles of healthy living.

Although it is independently owned and operated (not funded by any church or denominational group), most of the 3ABN staff are the members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

History
The network's sign on occurred on November 23, 1986, after two years of planning and construction of a satellite uplink site in Thompsonville, Illinois. Initially focusing on satellite broadcasting for the United States, 3ABN has since taken several affiliates on, which broadcast directly into television markets on VHF and UHF stations worldwide.

The network makes claim to a successful weekly program in Russia, begun in 1993. It also expanded into radio and satellite television in Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Middle East in approximately 1999-2000. The 3ABN radio network is growing rapidly in affiliates due to the FCC allowing for low power FM stations.

The president of the network throughout its existence has been Danny Shelton, 54, who hosts the network's flagship program, 3ABN Today. Shelton co-founded the ministry with his wife at the time, Linda Shelton. Danny and Linda Shelton were divorced in June 2004. The divorce, and Danny Shelton's subsequent marriage to a woman over twenty years his junior, has caused controversy among parts of the network's religious base. His remarriage to Brandy Lynn Elswick, 33, on March 8, 2006, occured on the set of 3ABN Presents in a non-broadcast ceremony.

3ABN was banned from carriage by cable and DBS by the government of India in May 2006. The Indian Cable Television Networks (Regulation) Act of 1995 specifically forbids carriage of networks that disparage groups or religions. 3ABN as a network, and Danny Shelton in several of his books, have attacked the Catholic Church, saying that the Pope is the Antichrist of biblical apocalypse.

This stand is accordance to the believe of the early protestant reformer such as Martin Luther, John Calvin, Thomas Cranmer, John Knox, Cotton Mather, and John Wesley.

3ABN has also recently been removed from carriage on the Dominion Sky Angel DBS system which is available on the Dish Network platform. 3ABN has now launched a write-in campaign encouraging viewers and Seventh-day Adventists to write Dish Network requesting that 3ABN be placed on its lineup.

Programming overall on the network is Christian and health oriented, and broadcasts 24 hours a day.

Posted by: justme Sep 13 2006, 09:32 PM

According to a satellite system installer. Sky Angel doesn't miss 3ABN in their lineup. According to the satellite dish installer, "When the founder of Sky Angel, Robert, passed away recently, his children took over the administration of the satellite ministry.. Robert's daughter got 'fed up" with Danny Shelton and his attitudes and "pulled the plug" on 3ABN because it no longer fit their requirements as a Christian Satellite Television Ministry."

Apparently there have been so many questions about Sky Angel that the installers have been on the phone with technical assistance people at Sky Angel to solve technical problems. Of the 10 or so channels that "went down" on the Sky Angel satellite, only two or three could not be "restored", one of them being 3ABN.

Whether 3ABN was gone forever from Sky Angel because of technical; problems or because of Danny Shelton's attitudes is of lesser concern. But it should be of enormous interest to 3ABN that the very satellite system and re-broadcaster that put 3ABN onto the world scene in the very first place, has been taken away from them. 3ABN should consider these circumstances in light of the actions taken by the administrative staff at 3ABN. A good, l o n g look!

Remember that Sky Angel partnered with DISH Network to use the DISH Network satellite receivers and technical support from DISH to make it all happen. Now, of all things, Danny has the nerve to ask us to pressure DISH Network to let 3ABN into the regular DISH Network Programming Lineup. I spoke with Art Sahl about Danny's proposal. Art was very "kind" in his response when he said that DISH is in "negations" with Sky Angel about the situation. He did not say that it would depend upon the viewer's requests. 3ABN has been made Sky Angel look bad, so why would DISH want to carry 3ABN when the viewer ship is dropping off, anyway. Why would DISH want 3ABN programming that may eventually cause viewers to drop the premium DISH channels?

Now it is time for 3ABN to look at Danny and his "advisors", who helped him get into this mess. See if they want more of the same.

Few things have disappointed me as much of the years as seeing what 3ABN has done to itself. It is heartbreaking to see the seeds they have been sowing. Now it's time for the harvest, a very bitter harvest indeed.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 13 2006, 09:50 PM

Regarding Septembers original post here, it appears that this was entered into this encyclopedia more recently. I wonder if it will be added too in the coming days, weeks and months? Who's job is it to come up with the information and submit it?

Posted by: västergötland Sep 14 2006, 01:05 AM

Anyone who knows something about a subject is welcome to write an article about it, withing sertain guide rules of course. Read more here http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wikipedia:Contributing_to_Wikipedia
and http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wikipedia:Your_first_article

Posted by: September Sep 14 2006, 06:03 AM

Yes, it did appear to have been written more recently--that's what I found interesting about it. If you google Danny Shelton, his 'hot mess' is all over the internet!

Oh, and if you read one of the letters that Danny sent me--I asked him about Sky Angel booting him off and he said that Sky Angel viewers represented only a very small portion of the viewing audience....another lie I presume!

Posted by: justme Sep 14 2006, 12:34 PM

Usually along with mention of the problems concerning finances, the name of "Subway" comes up. Is there a "Subway" store interwoven here somewhere? Does 3ABN have something to do with a "Subway" store?

Posted by: sister Sep 14 2006, 01:47 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 14 2006, 01:34 PM)

Usually along with mention of the problems concerning finances, the name of "Subway" comes up. Is there a "Subway" store interwoven here somewhere? Does 3ABN have something to do with a "Subway" store?

3ABN owns property in West Frankfort, Ill. One of their tenants is a Subway restaurant.

Posted by: Fran Sep 14 2006, 04:08 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 14 2006, 01:34 PM)

Usually along with mention of the problems concerning finances, the name of "Subway" comes up. Is there a "Subway" store interwoven here somewhere? Does 3ABN have something to do with a "Subway" store?

Well, yes, he is the Land Lord. The auditors found that there was no rental/lease income on their accounting books. Just who got that money and kept it for themselves? There is a gym, Barber Shop and maybe more. Somewhere, I have that information. I will have to see if I can find it.

I wonder where the money went. Don't you?

Posted by: Richard Sherwin Sep 14 2006, 04:20 PM

A Subway that is closed during the Sabbath eh?

Richard

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 14 2006, 05:17 PM

Well I don't think they were closed on Sabbath & regardless they serve MEAT which goes against everything they teach against at 3ABN!

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 05:46 PM

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 14 2006, 05:17 PM)

Well I don't think they were closed on Sabbath & regardless they serve MEAT which goes against everything they teach against at 3ABN!

Oh don't be picky! You don't REALLY expect what they do to line up with what they TEACH, now do you? They're too pious to wear wedding rings, too .... and I hear Danny is a real gourmet cook when it comes to fish .... or isn't that MEAT?

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 14 2006, 05:56 PM

QUOTE

Oh don't be picky! You don't REALLY expect what they do to line up with what they TEACH, now do you? They're too pious to wear wedding rings, too .... and I hear Danny is a real gourmet cook when it comes to fish .... or isn't that MEAT?

rofl What was I thinking!! rofl

Posted by: Ralph Sep 14 2006, 06:20 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 05:46 PM)

Oh don't be picky! You don't REALLY expect what they do to line up with what they TEACH, now do you? They're too pious to wear wedding rings, too .... and I hear Danny is a real gourmet cook when it comes to fish .... or isn't that MEAT?

The general public does not classify fish as meat. If you mention that you do not eat meat, some will ask, "OK, what kind of fish can I serve you?"

Remember "Meatless Fridays"? Fish is served on Friday.

Posted by: justme Sep 14 2006, 09:36 PM

A SUBWAY SANDWICH SHOP... well,wellwellll. A healh food restaurant on 3ABN property.

I wonder if the 3ABN employees get an "employee discount".

If they offer an "Adventist Discount", traditionally they ADD 10% to the total.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 14 2006, 10:12 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 06:46 PM)

Oh don't be picky! You don't REALLY expect what they do to line up with what they TEACH, now do you? They're too pious to wear wedding rings, too .... and I hear Danny is a real gourmet cook when it comes to fish .... or isn't that MEAT?

Danny got Nathan hooked (LOL, pun inteneded) on fishing, and tried to do the same with my oldest son. I must say that Danny does cook up a good batch of fish, although somewhat bland. I prefer a little pepper with mine. He catches the fish from his own pond (built with 3ABN excavation equipment), cleans them, cooks them, and serves them (in the house largely built with 3ABN labour).

As to wedding rings? What do wedding and marriages mean anyway? A rings signifies an unbroken circle. That would not apply in the Shelton family, and indeed could be considedred offensive to them. Of course they are banned.

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 14 2006, 05:08 PM)

Well, yes, he is the Land Lord. The auditors found that there was no rental/lease income on their accounting books. Just who got that money and kept it for themselves? There is a gym, Barber Shop and maybe more. Somewhere, I have that information. I will have to see if I can find it.

I wonder where the money went. Don't you?

Fran, one of the stores in the 3ABN block is a 3ABN thrift store called the "browse Around Shop." Is there any staement on that?

Posted by: Freedom Sep 14 2006, 10:41 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 09:12 PM)

Danny got Nathan hooked (LOL, pun inteneded) on fishing, and tried to do the same with my oldest son. I must say that Danny does cook up a good batch of fish, although somewhat bland. I prefer a little pepper with mine. He catches the fish from his own pond (built with 3ABN excavation equipment), cleans them, cooks them, and serves them (in the house largely built with 3ABN labour).

As to wedding rings? What do wedding and marriages mean anyway? A rings signifies an unbroken circle. That would not apply in the Shelton family, and indeed could be considedred offensive to them. Of course they are banned.
Fran, one of the stores in the 3ABN block is a 3ABN thrift store called the "browse Around Shop." Is there any staement on that?

rofl rofl rofl rofl

Eating fish (meat)! Even catching the fish himself. Hey doesn't that mean killing the fish to eat it?

My Bible says, thou shall not kill - hey Danny that's in the "Ten Commandments".

As for wedding rings and Shelton's, I'm leaving that one alone!!!
rofl rofl rofl

Thanks for the laughter tonight!

Posted by: västergötland Sep 15 2006, 01:08 AM

QUOTE(Freedom @ Sep 15 2006, 05:41 AM)

rofl rofl rofl rofl

Eating fish (meat)! Even catching the fish himself. Hey doesn't that mean killing the fish to eat it?

My Bible says, thou shall not kill - hey Danny that's in the "Ten Commandments".

As for wedding rings and Shelton's, I'm leaving that one alone!!!
rofl rofl rofl

Thanks for the laughter tonight!

Now thats a bit unfair. Killing and eating animals isnt anywhere comparable with the ten commandment prohibition on killing.

deu 12:15 Nevertheless, you may slaughter your animals in any of your towns and eat as much of the meat as you want, as if it were gazelle or deer, according to the blessing the LORD your God gives you. Both the ceremonially unclean and the clean may eat it. 16 But you must not eat the blood; pour it out on the ground like water. 17 You must not eat in your own towns the tithe of your grain and new wine and oil, or the firstborn of your herds and flocks, or whatever you have vowed to give, or your freewill offerings or special gifts. 18 Instead, you are to eat them in the presence of the LORD your God at the place the LORD your God will choose—you, your sons and daughters, your menservants and maidservants, and the Levites from your towns—and you are to rejoice before the LORD your God in everything you put your hand to. 19 Be careful not to neglect the Levites as long as you live in your land.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 01:16 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 11:12 PM)

Danny got Nathan hooked (LOL, pun inteneded) on fishing, and tried to do the same with my oldest son. I must say that Danny does cook up a good batch of fish, although somewhat bland. I prefer a little pepper with mine. He catches the fish from his own pond (built with 3ABN excavation equipment), cleans them, cooks them, and serves them (in the house largely built with 3ABN labour).

I hope the donors did not build Danny a house he personally owns, "on the 3ABN clock"

Posted by: Freedom Sep 15 2006, 03:39 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 14 2006, 11:16 PM)

I hope the donors did not build Danny a house he personally owns, "on the 3ABN clock"

Yes, they did Panama _Pete.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 15 2006, 07:42 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 14 2006, 11:16 PM)

I hope the donors did not build Danny a house he personally owns, "on the 3ABN clock"

QUOTE(Freedom @ Sep 15 2006, 04:39 AM)

Yes, they did Panama _Pete.

Other than not being sure what the "on the 3ABN clock means," this seems rather obvious. Did Danny build a house with money he earned from his work at 3ABN? Of course. The same way HOTY pays his bills with money he earns at 3ABN. All of that money (HOTY included) coming in of course from donors.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 08:22 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 07:42 AM)

Other than not being sure what the "on the 3ABN clock means," this seems rather obvious. Did Danny build a house with money he earned from his work at 3ABN? Of course. The same way HOTY pays his bills with money he earns at 3ABN. All of that money (HOTY included) coming in of course from donors.

Don't know how HOTY got brought into this conversation..... but I'll just say that there is a world of difference between using the salary paid by 3abn for work supposedly done for 3abn to pay bills with and build houses with, and buy whatever one wants to buy..... and paying other employees to do work on personal items from the coffers of 3abn.

"On the 3ABN clock" means just that ... that an employee who is charging his time to 3ABN is not actually working FOR 3abn, but is working for Danny Shelton on items that Danny Shelton should be paying for out of his own salary.

Of course we all know that you can't stretch a 50,000 a year salary to cover the expenditures that Danny makes .... and the list of "perks".... including "free labor" and free use of 3ABN equipment is long .... but not all are aware of that, so it is well to repost some of those details once in a while .... just to keep the record straight.

Posted by: Servant Sep 15 2006, 08:33 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 08:42 AM)

Other than not being sure what the "on the 3ABN clock means," this seems rather obvious. Did Danny build a house with money he earned from his work at 3ABN? Of course. The same way HOTY pays his bills with money he earns at 3ABN. All of that money (HOTY included) coming in of course from donors.

Several things are abundantly clear to those who have followed this saga as it has unfolded 1) 3ABN misappropriated funds solicited from thousands of trusting viewers 2) Linda was also responsible and is accountable as well.

IMO, even though Linda is the larger 'victim' in the Danny and Linda saga, Linda is also accountable, that being she was certainly aware monies sacrifically given were used for their personal advantage.

3ABN needs to completely clean house and begin with fresh, consecrated, christians at the helm.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 09:06 AM

QUOTE(Servant @ Sep 15 2006, 09:33 AM)

Several things are abundantly clear to those who have followed this saga as it has unfolded
1) 3ABN misappropriated funds solicited from thousands of trusting viewers

2) Linda was also responsible

3ABN got rid of Linda so easily that it indicates how little power or influence she exercised over Danny or the 3ABN board.

Remember that 3ABN does have a board of directors, at least in a manner of speaking.

There are people on that board who understand finances. Don't you think Ellsworth McKee, chairman of the board of that Little Debbie company could have understood the 3ABN books if he wanted to? Don't you think his McKee Baking Company has accountants and finance experts? It's one of the largest baking companies in the world.

What about Bill Hulsey and his company? No accountants?

What about May Chung and her real estate interests. Has she no understanding of debits and credits and real estate finance or cash flow?

What are these board members doing at 3ABN if they have no influence regarding finances? What do they actually do ? What function do they serve? Are they blameless, or just safely in the shadows?

I totally agree with your major point, however, that 3ABN needs a complete house cleaning.

Posted by: icedragon Sep 15 2006, 09:22 AM

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 14 2006, 06:56 PM)

rofl What was I thinking!! rofl

Man this line of conversation is really stupid. It just seem petty and trite. who cares if 3abn has a subway resturant? Food is a health not moral issue. give me a break. when I hear this it make me think you are just gossiping and trashing on danny and 3abn for it's own sake. Its a sport and fun. 3 points if you find some trivial matter about 3abn, 6 points if you find something trival about the programming, and a whopping 10 points if you score a blow about Danny. GGGGoooaaaaaalllllllllll!!!!!! This is not worthy of talking about. sitck to the substantive stuff. like the moral, spiratual or the financial abuse. that is real stuff

Posted by: Hersheys99 Sep 15 2006, 09:33 AM

QUOTE

> Man this line of conversation is really stupid. It just seem petty and trite. who cares if 3abn has a subway resturant? Food is a health not moral issue. give me a break. when I hear this it make me think you are just gossiping and trashing on danny and 3abn for it's own sake. Its a sport and fun. 3 points if you find some trivial matter about 3abn, 6 points if you find something trival about the programming, and a whopping 10 points if you score a blow about Danny. GGGGoooaaaaaalllllllllll!!!!!! This is not worthy of talking about. sitck to the substantive stuff. like the moral, spiratual or the financial abuse. that is real stuff

Well then you totally just don't get it. I NEVER said that food was a moral issue or even implied that. What I am saying is IF YOU PREACH this on your network & YOU don't allow any of those said products to be brought in by your employees then WHY would you rent your building spaces or make money off someone that GOES AGAINST what you are PREACHING?? Totally does not make sense & to me makes you a hypocrite. If it is okay to have a subway that serves pork & other things they say are wrong then you better not be having any association with it IMO.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 10:03 AM

> QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 15 2006, 09:22 AM) ☐
>
> Man this line of conversation is really stupid. It just seem petty and trite. who cares if 3abn has a subway resturant? Food is a health not moral issue. give me a break. when I hear this it make me think you are just gossiping and trashing on danny and 3abn for it's own sake. Its a sport and fun. 3 points if you find some trivial matter about 3abn, 6 points if you find something trival about the programming, and a whopping 10 points if you score a blow about Danny. GGGGoooaaaaaalllllllllll!!!!!! This is not worthy of talking about. sitck to the substantive stuff. like the moral, spiratual or the financial abuse. that is real stuff

Please don't think that many of us have missed the "point" you have made here by skipping back over a half-dozen or more posts on some of what you have labeled "substantive stuff" to get to the posts that struck you as trite. Remember the BSDA motto ... "This ain't Sabbath School .... we pay attention."

Besides ... if you would read a little deeper, and with a perceptive heart rather than a critical one, you could have seen that while those few posts may have seemed to be trivial, they were actually based on two VERY important facts of "life, the universe, and everything".

1) The human psyche can only take so much heavy burdensome "substantive stuff" without having to find release and connectedness with a little ironic humor that always lurks on the edges of such falsities as we find at 3abn.

2) THE basic point that we were discussing WAS a very "substantive" one ... and that is the total absence of accountabilty in the simple matters of having one's life in harmony with one's teachings. How many good, solidly married loving couples have been insulted by having to remove their wedding rings as an act of obeisance to the "gods" of 3abn who have dictated that the Adventist church is "in apostacy" because most of our married leaders as well as laity wear wedding rings. That would still be insulting no matter how pristine and pure those who made the requirements were ... but it is nauseatingly ironic for these "laws" to be laid down by those with the alleycat type of morals practiced by a number of the 3abn leaders. And you claim that our comments had nothing to do with morals? Read again. Think again. They had everything to do with morals.

And the only way to endure in the face of such insults to our intelligence is to be able to "see the funny side" and laugh a little bit. This is no game. If you are to label it anything, label it "therapy".... the therapy that helps us keep our perspectives, our sanity, and our focus on what is right .... as contrasted with the hollow sham of "right" that is "taught" .... but not practiced .... by the Danny Shelton Dynasty.

OK ... so what will your complaint be now? You find fault with my laughter..... will you now find fault with my intense seriousness?

It will be interesting to see.

In the meantime ... I'll go back and post the serious post I was working on when I saw your complaint come popping in ahead of me.

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Sep 15 2006, 09:33 AM)

Well then you totally just don't get it. I NEVER said that food was a moral issue or even implied that. What I am saying is IF YOU PREACH this on your network & YOU don't allow any of those said products to be brought in by your employees then WHY would you rent your building spaces or make money off someone that GOES AGAINST what you are PREACHING?? Totally does not make sense & to me makes you a hypocrite. If it is okay to have a subway that serves pork & other things they say are wrong then you better not be having any association with it IMO.

Exactly. Well said. Together we'll get the message through.... b .....

Posted by: TLC Sep 15 2006, 10:17 AM

[quote name='icedragon' date='Sep 15 2006, 09:22 AM' post='152017']
Man this line of conversation is really stupid. It just seem petty and trite. who cares if 3abn has a subway resturant? Food is a health not moral issue. give me a break. when I hear this it make me think you are just gossiping and trashing on danny and 3abn for it's own sake. Its a sport and fun. 3 points if you find some trivial matter about 3abn, 6 points if you find something trival about the programming, and a whopping 10 points if you score a blow about Danny. GGGGoooaaaaaalllllllllll!!!!!! This is not worthy of talking about.

You are sooo right! Has anyone checked lately? There's not even a Subway there anymore. And who cares if there was?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 10:25 AM

Well ... if we can tear ourselves away from the b fascinating topic of diversions ....

QUOTE(Servant @ Sep 15 2006, 08:33 AM)

Several things are abundantly clear to those who have followed this saga as it has unfolded 1) 3ABN misappropriated funds solicited from thousands of trusting viewers 2) Linda was also responsible and is accountable as well.

> IMO, even though Linda is the larger 'victim' in the Danny and Linda saga, Linda is also accountable, that being she was certainly aware monies sacrifically given were used for their personal advantage.
>
> 3ABN needs to completely clean house and begin with fresh, consecrated, christians at the helm.

I would amend this to "fresh, consecrated, Seventh-day Adventist Christians .... not only "at the helm", but as new owners, directors, managers. The members of the Adventist church bought this establishment .... and they deserve to have it returned to them ... in full ... with everything that is still salvageable given over to Adventist ownership. That does not necessarily mean Conference ownership. I have no problem in principle with an independently owned supporting ministry of the Adventist church. But I think those owners should be from multi-generational Adventist heritage, that the counsels given to us about not being too quick to work new converts into positions of leadership should be strictly followed, and that ALL Pentecostal/Charismatic influences should be completely cleansed from the place. That includes everyone from Rick Odle to Shelly Quinn to Mollie Steensen to those who are not even presently claiming to be SDAs.

This new organization needs to have a completely new charter .... clear lines of accountability drawn up, and accountability in all directions .... to the official church, to the immediate workers at 3abn, to the church at large, and to the donor/supporters of the new entity. That means solid business contracts ... not mere fuzzy sloppy 'agreements of support' which puts no obligation on the future 3abn as an entity. That means theological contracts.... in which the trained scholars of the Adventist church have the deciding say over programming (as contrasted with the untrained laymen and non-sda persons who are currently making decisions as to what to show and what not to show)..... and I do not mean scholars from only one segment of Adventism .... I mean a group of scholars which include representatives from ATS type conservatives, as well as those who call themselves Progressives or Intellectuals... and the various permutations in between those. That means solid business fiscal practices and accountability .... realistic wage structures and expense accounts, careful use of donor monies, even a sense of when to say "it is enough, we can operate on what we have coming in regularly, give to other projects of your choice"... .... especially it means not encouraging Adventists to short their regular church contributions in favor of sending their monies to 3abn.

If all that cannot be done, then I think that we as Adventists are going to be much farther ahead the sooner we "cut our losses", sever ALL connections with 3ABN, and proclaim that fact far and wide all around the world by every communication means we have at out disposal .... including but not limited to all other TV nets, all media centers, all print publications, and all conference communiques.

Will we have a great grieving time over losing such an asset that has brought so much to so many? Of course we will. But we won't get through that time until the "great divorce" has taken place.... and until we get out of the "denial stage" that keeps thinking some miracle will take place so everything will be "fixed" so that what has happened won't have happened anymore without anybody having to do anything.... or have anything done to them.

Sorry. Time moves in one direction only .... that of cause and effect. And so long as we do not change the "cause" we are not going to get any different "effects" than what we have now! And the longer we wait, the more of the same kind of "effects" we will get. .... just from the mere momentum that has been established.

The magic phrase as far as diversion of funds is not "who did it" so much as it is "We will do all in our power to recover as many of the funds as possible" and redivert them back to the purpose for which they were originally given. That promise gave the conference organizations who used it instant credibility in the aftermath of the Davenport scandals. The 3abn scandals are even worse than those, but a promise like that would go a long way towards winning the hearts of former 3abn supporters to both the church and whatever new entity is formed to "receive" the assets accumulated by the various 3abn entities around the world.

But absolutely essential to the implementation of such a necessary plan is that the official church leaders get off their do-nothing duffs and "lower the boom". I have heard excuses of all kinds as to why they do not ... most of them some variation of "the laity wouldn't stand for it". I think the "laity" is ready now to move. And it would be to EVERYONE's advantage if church leadership would at least step up to the position of being cooperative team members, even if they have already lost the privilege of being leaders in this reclamation project.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 15 2006, 10:39 AM

Watchbird, that was a very insightful, well-thought out post.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 10:43 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 15 2006, 11:25 AM)

Well ... if we can tear ourselves away from the fascinating topic of diversions ....

I would amend this to "fresh, consecrated, Seventh-day Adventist Christians .... not only "at the helm", but as new owners, directors, managers. The members of the Adventist church bought this establishment .... and they deserve to have it returned to them ... in full ... with everything that is still salvageable given over to Adventist ownership. That does not necessarily mean Conference ownership. I have no problem in principle with an independently owned supporting ministry of the Adventist church. But I think those owners should be from multi-generational Adventist heritage, that the counsels given to us about not being too quick to work new converts into positions of leadership should be strictly followed, and that ALL Pentecostal/Charismatic influences should be completely cleansed from the place. That includes everyone from Rick Odle to Shelly Quinn to Mollie Steensen to those who are not even presently claiming to be SDAs.

This new organization needs to have a completely new charter .... clear lines of accountability drawn up, and accountability in all directions .... to the official church, to the immediate workers at 3abn, to the church at large, and to the donor/supporters of the new entity. That means solid business contracts ... not mere fuzzy sloppy 'agreements of support' which puts no obligation on the future 3abn as an entity. That means theological contracts.... in which the trained scholars of the Adventist church have the deciding say over programming (as contrasted with the untrained laymen and non-sda persons who are currently making decisions as to what to show and what not to show)..... and I do not mean scholars from only one segment of Adventism .... I mean a group of scholars which include representatives from ATS type conservatives, as well as those who call themselves Progressives or Intellectuals... and the various permutations in between those. That means solid business fiscal practices and accountability .... realistic wage structures and expense accounts, careful use of donor monies, even a sense of when to say "it is enough, we can operate on what we have coming in regularly, give to other projects of your choice"... .... especially it means not encouraging Adventists to short their regular church contributions in favor of sending their monies to 3abn.

If all that cannot be done, then I think that we as Adventists are going to be much farther ahead the sooner we "cut our losses", sever ALL connections with 3ABN, and proclaim that fact far and wide all around the world by every communication means we have at out disposal .... including but not limited to all other TV nets, all media centers, all print publications, and all conference communiques.

Will we have a great grieving time over losing such an asset that has brought so much to so many? Of course we will. But we won't get through that time until the "great divorce" has taken place.... and until we get out of the "denial stage" that keeps thinking some miracle will take place so everything will be "fixed" so that what has happened won't have happened anymore without anybody having to do anything.... or have anything done to them.

Sorry. Time moves in one direction only .... that of cause and effect. And so long as we do not change the "cause" we are not going to get any different "effects" than what we have now! And the longer we wait, the more of the same kind of "effects" we will get. .... just from the mere momentum that has been established.

The magic phrase as far as diversion of funds is not "who did it" so much as it is "We will do all in our power to recover as many of the funds as possible" and redivert them back to the purpose for which they were originally given. That promise gave the conference organizations who used it instant credibility in the aftermath of the Davenport scandals. The 3abn scandals are even worse than those, but a promise like that would go a long way towards winning the hearts of former 3abn supporters to both the church and whatever new entity is formed to "receive" the assets accumulated by the various 3abn entities around the world.

But absolutely essential to the implementation of such a necessary plan is that the official church leaders get off their do-nothing duffs and "lower the boom". I have heard excuses of all kinds as to why they do not ... most of them some variation of "the laity wouldn't stand for it". I think the "laity" is ready now to move. And it would be to EVERYONE's advantage if church leadership would at least step up to the position of being cooperative team members, even if they have already lost the privilege of being leaders in this reclamation project.

A "NEW' 3ABN ...would be MOST welcome! And a new charter. Was this 3ABN chartered to be a business or a ministry?

All new officers and talent.

Has anybody considered an action against 3ABN such as a "CLASS ACTION SUIT" brought by Financial Supporters Who Have "Tithe and Offerings" Receipts in their home file cabinets?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 15 2006, 10:45 AM

QUOTE(Servant @ Sep 15 2006, 07:33 AM) ☐

Several things are abundantly clear to those who have followed this saga as it has unfolded 1) 3ABN misappropriated funds solicited from thousands of trusting viewers 2) Linda was also responsible and is accountable as well.

IMO, even though Linda is the larger 'victim' in the Danny and Linda saga, Linda is also accountable, that being she was certainly aware monies sacrifically given were used for their personal advantage.

3ABN needs to completely clean house and begin with fresh, consecrated, christians at the helm.

I haven't followed this saga from the beginning, but in the short time I have been here on BSDA it has become very apparent to me that Linda, although certainly put through the wringer with her relationship crisis, is nonetheless culpable for the misdirection of donations. Even Sister has spoken to this when she reported that Linda told concerned folks that Danny should have what Danny wants (horses, etc).

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:19 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 11:45 AM)

I haven't followed this saga from the beginning, but in the short time I have been here on BSDA it has become very apparent to me that Linda, although certainly put through the wringer with her relationship crisis, is nonetheless culpable for the misdirection of donations. Even Sister has spoken to this when she reported that Linda told concerned folks that Danny should have what Danny wants (horses, etc).

i would like to have been a "fly on the wall" when Linda said that. Context and voice tone and inflection mean as much or more than just the actual words.

Likely Linda meant that Danny could have horses if HE paid for the, Sure, why not. Maybe those horses would keep him from the other "horsing around".

Personal possessions of those who want to be in a ministry should be allowed as long as they are not paid for directly by the ministry, but from the earnings of the employee.

I do get your point, that you think Linda, having been a spouse and/or employee carries some responsibility (culpability). However, there are two more interesting points to consider. Danny went to the "Bores" for his financial wishes and desires and we know that he has a "Bores" that will never say "NO" to him. The other point is that Danny sign ever single check written from 3ABN. So who else, including Linda, would know where the moneys came from or went?

Another example of "culpability" might be the use of the jet plane. Any employee of 3ABN who travels on the plane cannot be expected to "culpable" for benefitting from it's use. i.e. A child who needs special medical attention and Danny offers to fly parent and child for treatment. Is that misues of the plane? Who's responsible for THAT expense?

I just don't have these answers so I welcome some inputto help me understand particularly how Linda is culpable for 3ABN funds misuse. ... by association with Danny?

If Linda had that much clout it would hev been used elsewhere, in new programming, such as "DRUG ABUSE PREVENTION" and "Marriage Enhancement". I know she wanted there programs very much!

She lived the theme song, ""Mending Broken People".

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 15 2006, 12:15 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 15 2006, 09:22 AM)

Don't know how HOTY got brought into this conversation..... but I'll just say that there is a world of difference between using the salary paid by 3abn for work supposedly done for 3abn to pay bills with and build houses with, and buy whatever one wants to buy..... and paying other employees to do work on personal items from the coffers of 3abn.

If you notice, Watchbird, FHB brings me up quite a bit in his tantrums. From all of his insightful posts, there is no doubt in my mind that he's a lot closer to 3ABN than he wants us to believe. I'm sure he's admin trying to find out who I am since I'm one of few that admits to still being at the station.

Posted by: Fran Sep 15 2006, 12:24 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 10:45 AM)

I haven't followed this saga from the beginning, but in the short time I have been here on BSDA it has become very apparent to me that Linda, although certainly put through the wringer with her relationship crisis, is nonetheless culpable for the misdirection of donations. Even Sister has spoken to this when she reported that Linda told concerned folks that Danny should have what Danny wants (horses, etc).

Why is it so hard for people to read the IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

http://www.revenue.state.il.us/legalinform...s/pt/pt04-1.pdf

It clearly states that Linda had nothing to do with the finances of 3ABN! Please read the results. Suggestions that Linda had anything to do with Finances at 3ABN would have to stop.

Every person that writes books; makes CD's; Makes movies ... will, and should, receive royalties. Notice that Danny never received Royalties? That is a bunch of hog wash! The publisher pays royalties when there are sales of their items for sale.

I would suggest that Danny is not declaring his royalties from 3ABN as Linda was. Why would Mr. Finance set his stuff up so as to appear he will not receive any royalties, but he sets his wife up to receive royalties? To me it is obvious from this fact, that Danny did not share his gravy train with his wife.

Everyone producing a book or CD SHOULD receive royalties! That is the correct procedure. The problem was that 3ABN produced the product. This whole mess is Danny and his liking the non-profit organization, but he runs everything as a Private Company! 3ABN has a split personality, and is causing a big mess.

Follow the money! If Danny's pockets get too heavy, his pants may just fall off and expose the truth about the heavy, deep pockets.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 15 2006, 12:28 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 15 2006, 09:22 AM)

Don't know how HOTY got brought into this conversation.....

Come on, is it really that hard to figure out. The line of conversation was about Danny, his income, what he did with it, where his money comes from, etc. Complaints about how donor funds were used. Danny gets a salary - correct? Of course. He used some of it to build his house. So of course the logic extends, HOTY who claims to still be employed at 3ABN is getting paid from the donors as well. Does he own a house or a car - if so were they purchased with donor money? Of course, without the donors he doesn't have a salary.

This post is to WB, but to toss this in, HOTY - admin at 3ABN . . . if only you knew how laugable that was and how far down the wrong path you are.

- fhb

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 12:37 PM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 15 2006, 01:24 PM)

Why is it so hard for people to read the IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

http://www.revenue.state.il.us/legalinform...s/pt/pt04-1.pdf

It clearly states that Linda had nothing to do with the finances of 3ABN! Please read the results. Suggestions that Linda had anything to do with Finances at 3ABN would have to stop.

Every person that writes books; makes CD's; Makes movies ... will, and should, receive royalties. Notice that Danny never received Royalties? That is a bunch of hog wash! The publisher pays royalties when there are sales of their items for sale.

I would suggest that Danny is not declaring his royalties from 3ABN as Linda was. Why would Mr. Finance set his stuff up so as to appear he will not receive any royalties, but he sets his wife up to receive royalties? To me it is obvious from this fact, that Danny did not share his gravy train with his wife.

Everyone producing a book or CD SHOULD receive royalties! That is the correct procedure. The problem was that 3ABN produced the product. This whole mess is Danny and his liking the non-profit organization, but he runs everything as a Private Company! 3ABN has a split personality, and is causing a big mess.

Follow the money! If Danny's pockets get too heavy, his pants may just fall off and expose the truth about the heavy, deep pockets.

Fran,
Please forgive me. Now that I know where to look for it, (I am very visually handicapped). I'll try to do better...

"A PRIVATE" company?!!! WOW!. Imagine begging for millions of dollars to support a private company. Tithes and all ..!

Do you suppose Danny shared "anytjing" with Linda?

When Melody brought her baby's to see "grandpa Danny" she sat out fdrony until Linda left the house before Melody took the kids into Danny's house. Sounds like Melody has control over Danny, Danny over Linda, etc ...

Linda has her CD's on her website, although DAnny s is singing on some of them. Wonder why!?

Sorry to be an annoyance here .. just have to ask dumb questions, I guess ..

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 12:40 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 12:28 PM) ☐

Come on, is it really that hard to figure out. The line of conversation was about Danny, his income, what he did with it, where his money comes from, etc. Complaints about how donor funds were used. Danny gets a salary - correct? Of course. He used some of it to build his house. So of course the logic extends, HOTY who claims to still be employed at 3ABN is getting paid from the donors as well. Does he own a house or a car - if so were they purchased with donor money? Of course, without the donors he doesn't have a salary.

This post is to WB, but to toss this in, HOTY - admin at 3ABN . . . if only you knew how laugable that was and how far down the wrong path you are.

- fhb

Would it maybe be helpful to compare HOTY's salary ... or any of the peon's salaries.... with the top dog's salaries? And would it maybe be helpful to compare not only the kind of house that hoty lives in with Danny's house? And does HOTY really own his house, or is he just allowed to live in a "company model"? And how about comparing the perks that each receives? And the services? Maid service? Lawn service? landscaping, heavy equipment, labor on barns, maintenance, etc? I suspect there are a lot of "value received" (or not received) that has little or nothing to do with stated salaries.

And btw ... just what is the salary range there? And who has the top salaries? And why? And why isn't Danny's one of the top ones? Does he maybe have other ways of filling his pockets other than from his salary check.

But I'm getting over into Fran's territory ... I'll turn the topic over to her. I can only ask questions in these areas. She can give answers. And good solidly researched ones also.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 15 2006, 12:46 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 15 2006, 01:40 PM) ☐

Would it maybe be helpful to compare HOTY's salary ... or any of the peon's salaries.... with the top dog's salaries? And would it maybe be helpful to compare not only the kind of house that hoty lives in with Danny's house? And does HOTY really own his house, or is he just allowed to live in a "company model"? And how about comparing the perks that each receives? And the services? Maid service? Lawn service? landscaping, heavy equipment, labor on barns, maintenance, etc? I suspect there are a lot of "value received" (or not received) that has little or nothing to do with stated salaries.

And btw ... just what is the salary range there? And who has the top salaries? And why? And why isn't Danny's one of the top ones? Does he maybe have other ways of filling his pockets other than from his salary check.

All good questions - can they be answered with substantiated documentation?

However, I didn't even broach the issue of equity within the salary structure. I only commented on the line of discussion which was that Danny gets paid from donor money and people either do not like or are jealous of the way in which he has spent it. When it comes to salary the same is true of HOTY and was once true of Linda, PaperTigers, and all the other former employees. In that type of organization - donor money is what keeps paychecks going out.

- fhb

Posted by: Fran Sep 15 2006, 01:06 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 12:28 PM)

Come on, is it really that hard to figure out. The line of conversation was about Danny, his income, what he did with it, where his money comes from, etc. Complaints about how donor funds were used. Danny gets a salary - correct? Of course. He used some of it to build his house. - fhb

Please be more specific about " He used some of it to build his house."

Just HOW MUCH of HIS SALARY was spent on HIS house? Be careful here.

Posted by: sister Sep 15 2006, 01:13 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 01:46 PM)

All good questions - can they be answered with substantiated documentation?

However, I didn't even broach the issue of equity within the salary structure. I only commented on the line of discussion which was that Danny gets paid from donor money and people either do not like or are jealous of the way in which he has spent it. When it comes to salary the same is true of HOTY and was once true of Linda, PaperTigers, and all the other former employees. In that type of organization - donor money is what keeps paychecks going out.

- fhb

And in the organized church tithe is what keeps the paychecks going out. So, what is your point?

Why not broach the issue of inequality within the salary structure? Walt Thompson knows about the inequality in regards to salary structure and about workers who do not make a living wage and have to depend on Welfare to feed their children. His comment, "This is a ministry and workers should expect to earn a sacrificial salary." He completely ignores the Biblical principal that a workman is worthy of his hire. What about Moses Primo, Danny Shelton, John Lomacang and select others of the Shelton Gang: none of them are receiving sacrificial salaries or substandard medical care.

This is beginning to sound a bit like "Animal Farm" by George Orwell, "All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others." Some fly in luxurious private jets, others drive old beaters held together by rust and live in housing that would be torn down in other parts of the country. A strange organizational structure for a business that professes to be a "Christian ministry".

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 15 2006, 01:28 PM

For clarification, please: Are you proposing or suggesting, on a more general level, that all "independent ministries" of SDA church have established guidelines under which to operate? Does the SDA church have ground in which to move outside of it's direct domain and prescibe a policy for all to follow, or are you only preposing this for 3ABN?

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 15 2006, 10:25 AM)

Well ... if we can tear ourselves away from the fascinating topic of diversions ....

I would amend this to "fresh, consecrated, Seventh-day Adventist Christians .... not only "at the helm", but as new owners, directors, managers. The members of the Adventist church bought this establishment .... and they deserve to have it returned to them ... in full ... with everything that is still salvageable given over to Adventist ownership. That does not necessarily mean Conference ownership. I have no problem in principle with an independently owned supporting ministry of the Adventist church. But I think those owners should be from multi-generational Adventist heritage, that the counsels given to us about not being too quick to work new converts into positions of leadership should be strictly followed, and that ALL Pentecostal/Charismatic influences should be completely cleansed from the place. That includes everyone from Rick Odle to Shelly Quinn to Mollie Steensen to those who are not even presently claiming to be SDAs.

This new organization needs to have a completely new charter .... clear lines of accountability drawn up, and accountability in all directions .... to the official church, to the immediate workers at 3abn, to the church at large, and to the donor/supporters of the new entity. That means solid business contracts ... not mere fuzzy sloppy 'agreements of support' which puts no obligation on the future 3abn as an entity. That means theological contracts.... in which the trained scholars of the Adventist church have the deciding say over programming (as contrasted with the untrained laymen and non-sda persons who are currently making decisions as to what to show and what not to show)..... and I do not mean scholars from only one segment of Adventism .... I mean a group of scholars which include representatives from ATS type conservatives, as well as those who call themselves Progressives or Intellectuals... and the various permutations in between those. That means solid business fiscal practices and accountability .... realistic wage structures and expense accounts, careful use of donor monies, even a sense of when to say "it is enough, we can operate on what we have coming in regularly, give to other projects of your choice"... .... especially it means not encouraging Adventists to short their regular church contributions in favor of sending their monies to 3abn.

If all that cannot be done, then I think that we as Adventists are going to be much farther ahead the sooner we "cut our losses", sever ALL connections with 3ABN, and proclaim that fact far and wide all around the world by every communication means we have at out disposal .... including but not limited to all other TV nets, all media centers, all print publications, and all conference communiques.

Will we have a great grieving time over losing such an asset that has brought so much to so many?

Of course we will. But we won't get through that time until the "great divorce" has taken place.... and until we get out of the "denial stage" that keeps thinking some miracle will take place so everything will be "fixed" so that what has happened won't have happened anymore without anybody having to do anything.... or have anything done to them.

Sorry. Time moves in one direction only .... that of cause and effect. And so long as we do not change the "cause" we are not going to get any different "effects" than what we have now! And the longer we wait, the more of the same kind of "effects" we will get. .... just from the mere momentum that has been established.

The magic phrase as far as diversion of funds is not "who did it" so much as it is "We will do all in our power to recover as many of the funds as possible" and redivert them back to the purpose for which they were originally given. That promise gave the conference organizations who used it instant credibility in the aftermath of the Davenport scandals. The 3abn scandals are even worse than those, but a promise like that would go a long way towards winning the hearts of former 3abn supporters to both the church and whatever new entity is formed to "receive" the assets accumulated by the various 3abn entities around the world.

But absolutely essential to the implementation of such a necessary plan is that the official church leaders get off their do-nothing duffs and "lower the boom". I have heard excuses of all kinds as to why they do not ... most of them some variation of "the laity wouldn't stand for it". I think the "laity" is ready now to move. And it would be to EVERYONE's advantage if church leadership would at least step up to the position of being cooperative team members, even if they have already lost the privilege of being leaders in this reclamation project.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 15 2006, 01:36 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 15 2006, 02:13 PM) ☐

And in the organized church tithe is what keeps the paychecks going out. So, what is your point?

. . . "This is a ministry and workers should expect to earn a sacrificial salary." . . ignores the Biblical principal that a workman is worthy of his hire.

I worked in the SDA denominational system for almost sixteen years. We were often reminded by our superiors that the work we were doing was the mission work of God and our wages, while below "the going rate" of individuals doing the same work outside of the church, would all be recouped in the world to come. Remember the adage, "Lay not your treasure . . ."

This situation is not exclusive to the SDA church either I might add for balance. The work of the Lord is always seen as sacrifical in the earthy means area.

- fhb

Posted by: sister Sep 15 2006, 02:00 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 02:36 PM) ☐

> I worked in the SDA denominational system for almost sixteen years. We were often reminded by our superiors that the work we were doing was the mission work of God and our wages, while below "the going rate" of individuals doing the same work outside of the church, would all be recouped in the world to come. Remember the adage, "Lay not your treasure . . ."
>
> This situation is not exclusive to the SDA church either I might add for balance. The work of the Lord is always seen as sacrifical in the earthy means area.
>
> - fhb

In a discussion of 3ABN salary, the question is not about receiving a wage "below the going rate", but of receiving a "living wage". I have yet to hear of anyone in SDA denominational system that had to rely on foodstamps to feed their children or a pastor living in substandard housing or a church official driving up to a speaking appointment or meeting in an automobile that was on it's last legs.

Equating the financial situation of the majority of 3ABN employees, with a SDA denominational employee is at the very best, ridiculous. An example: I know of a pastor who worked at 3ABN full-time in the pastoral department. The salary he earned at 3ABN was about one third of what he had earned as a pastor and that does not include the medical or other benefits he received previously.

Sorry, Fallible, but your explaination just isn't flying here.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 02:00 PM

> QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 15 2006, 01:28 PM) ☐
>
> For clarification, please: Are you proposing or suggesting, on a more general level, that all "independent ministries" of SDA church have established guidelines under which to operate? Does the SDA church have ground in which to move outside of it's direct domain and prescibe a policy for all to follow, or are you only preposing this for 3ABN?

I was addressing 3abn specifically.

As for other "independent ministries", I think that probably most of them already have some checks and balances in place, and a clearly delineated line of accountability .... both for moral and ethical issues as well as for financial ones.

If they don't, they should have. And I'm not suggesting that the church move outside it's direct domain and "prescribe a policy for all to follow", but I do think that it should restrict its recommendations to those which have appropriate "policies" in all of these areas.

It is one of the myths that have surrounded the 3abn affair that says the GC or any other Conference level cannot set guidelines as to who may and who may not have access to SDA pulpits.... and even to Adventist owned venues. In the Southern Union we are quite familiar with ministries which are not allowed such access, so we KNOW that the power and authority are already vested in the Conference structure.

There are several "umbrella organizations" which provide accountability channels for their member organizations. The ASI is one such organization .... and it has direct ties to both the GC and to its member ministries or businesses. Again ... in the matter of 3abn, it did not take the responsibility that it rightfully has, to put the brakes on 3abn when it started running as a one-man dog and pony show rather than as a legitimate ministry of the Adventist church.

There may be others who also need some curbing .... but I would expect the fault to lie more on the church leadership side, which stood by and did nothing but wring their hands .... at best ... than with the whole system of independent businesses and supporting ministries which make up the bulk of the ASI membership.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 15 2006, 02:10 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 15 2006, 03:00 PM)

. . . a pastor living in substandard housing or a church official driving up to a speaking appointment or meeting in an automobile that was on it's last legs.

Well on this we will just have to accept a stalemate. Yes, I have seen exactly the things you mention. A very dear and personal pastor friend of mine has driven up in exactly that type of automobile. His wife too, was driving an older model very used car. As well, a pastor I knew was living in a home designed for four and their family totaled seven living at home - because in the market they were located that is what their dollar could afford.

How many of these individuals of whom you speak had no idea what they were deciding to enter into? How many expect much more than they received?

- fhb

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 15 2006, 03:51 PM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 15 2006, 10:24 AM)

Why is it so hard for people to read the IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

http://www.revenue.state.il.us/legalinform...s/pt/pt04-1.pdf

It clearly states that Linda had nothing to do with the finances of 3ABN! Please read the results. Suggestions that Linda had anything to do with Finances at 3ABN would have to stop.
SNIP
Follow the money! If Danny's pockets get too heavy, his pants may just fall off and expose the truth about the heavy, deep pockets.

Fran, I copied this from Sister's post of April 17, 2006 at 3:27am

Quote:
A number of years ago a cousin of Danny was running a retirement home in Michigan. He and Danny were not just related, but close friends. He left a very good job and returned to southern Illinois to help in the ministry. He was a good man and wanted to serve God. Well, as time went on he started seeing things that were just not right, so he approached Danny. On one of these occasions he brought up the issue of Danny buying horses using donations made to 3ABN. He told Danny that it just wasn't right, people had sent in their hard earned offerings to support the work of spreading the gospel and Danny was using it to buy something for his own pleasure. Linda's response to all this was that anything Danny said was right, even if he were wrong, we are like gods here. To make a long story short, the cousin/friend was fired---who needs an angel sitting on your shoulder pricking your conscience, it just gets in the way of following the little man on the other shoulder---and Danny continued buying horses and in the future, land to run them on... with ministry money.

This was the source of my post. I have read a lot of the court papers as well.

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 09:19 AM)

i would like to have been a "fly on the wall" when Linda said that. Context and voice tone and inflection mean as much or more than just the actual words.

Likely Linda meant that Danny could have horses if HE paid for the, Sure, why not. Maybe those horses would keep him from the other "horsing around".

Personal possessions of those who want to be in a ministry should be allowed as long as they are not paid for directly by the ministry, but from the earnings of the employee.

SNIP

Sister didn't mention in her post that Linda was being sarcastic, only that she probably regreted those words when they came back to bite her.

I'm certainly not trying to build a case against Linda, btw.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 15 2006, 04:09 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 02:51 PM)

Fran, I copied this from Sister's post of April 17, 2006 at 3:27am

Quote:
A number of years ago a cousin of Danny was running a retirement home in Michigan. He and Danny were not just related, but close friends. He left a very good job and returned to southern Illinois to help in the ministry. He was a good man and wanted to serve God. Well, as time went on he started seeing things that were just not right, so he approached Danny. On one of these occasions he brought up the issue of Danny buying horses using donations made to 3ABN. He told Danny that it just wasn't right, people had sent in their hard earned offerings to support the work of spreading the gospel and Danny was using it to buy something for his own pleasure. Linda's response to all this was that anything Danny said was right, even if he were wrong, we are like gods here. To make a long story short, the cousin/friend was fired---who needs an angel sitting on your shoulder pricking your conscience, it just gets in the way of following the little man on the other shoulder---and Danny continued buying horses and in the future, land to run them on... with ministry money.

This was the source of my post. I have read a lot of the court papers as well.
Sister didn't mention in her post that Linda was being sarcastic, only that she probably regreted those words when they came back to bite her.

I'm certainly not trying to build a case against Linda, btw.

If that is not what you are doing, then be most careful. If you know Linda and Danny, you would have the picture in your mind when Sister tells this particular story - read what Sister tells, and also what Fran says, and those of us who know Linda, you would understand Linda had no control over much of anything when it came to money, (which is what Danny liked) and Linda knew Danny quite well when it came to him wanting something. I'm sure he carried this ora that he deserved it and should have it. She has told me over and over (and I have already mentioned this elsewhere) that Danny is the MOST PERSISTENT man on the planet if he wants something - you can NOT make him stop, quit, give up, etc. Good traits when used correctly of course. Awful when used selfishly. You have to understand the dynamics of this relationship and personality types - Linda is soft spoken, ready to take the back seat to keep peace, trusting and was often TOLD how things would be, in spite of her confronting things head on, it was always left with how Danny wanted it. I'm sure there were times, when it was insignificant to Danny, if Linda wanted something done, or saw a good idea, she was able to discuss it. Danny is head strong, stubborn and not trusting. When Danny has his mind made up about something he wants, it happens, even when it's wrong, looks bad, etc. Linda was completely in the dark to how Danny really did the money changing - as she has told me they each had our paycheck, you put that together, and that was plenty for them to live on. If she ever wondered about this or that, I'm sure in her mind their money paid for it. I have talked to her about this a few times, and basically, it comes down to very simple thinking for her - understand, it was her honestly (she just told what she knew) about things at the court case about their status, that had Danny quite upset at her. She didn't play his game, didn't know his game, and apparently was blowing his game. She is making many discoveries as are the rest of us in all this mess. No doubt she knew some things would come around and hit Danny in the head....one more thing, she has told me "we had to be very careful and make sure we did everything right " spoken like a child who assumed everyone wanted to do the same thing.

Posted by: Tori Sep 15 2006, 05:02 PM

Hi,
I'm new to this--bulletin boards in general and this one in particular. I started reading these posts about 3 weeks ago when Adventist Today posted the Dr's letter on their site. Not sure I'm in the right place, even. But I understand there are people who will figure that part out for me.

I've never seen 3ABN. We don't get it in our area. I first heard about it several (3 or so) years ago when my mother who had been out of the Adventist church for 20 or so years started talking about it and then was rebaptized. Some of the things she talked about seemed very conservative and a little wacked, but I was happy she was back in with a group of peers she could relate to.

So, I don't have an emotional connection to Danny or Linda and come to this conversation with my own outside opinions.

I have been frustrated by the conversation because much of it has centered on whether Danny or Linda committed adultery. Typical for Adventists, I think, to get stuck on this topic. But it seems to me that there is so much there. I hate to get into hierarchy of sins, but if Linda was in an abusive relationship (and everything I've read about her leads me to think that she was) then she is definitely the victim here and I think the gist of most of the info posted here should be speaking more to that than to the accusations that she may have had an affair. The damage that an abused woman suffers in that closest of all relationships, the damage that her children suffer pales in comparison to there having been an affair. And I think we get into this mind-set (of focusing on the affair and grounds for divorce over abuse) because the Bible speaks to divorce and infidelity. It doesn't speak to abusive relationships. Probably because marriage realtionships were very different in biblical culture than they are in our culture. But just because the Bible doesn't speak to abusive relationships doesn't mean that we as Christians in our culture shouldn't take the lead in condemning them. In this area, the world is way out ahead of us.

AND, if you're trying to bring down the TV Evangelist, why not focus more on the money and mismanagement of the money? Maybe this has been done earlier. Admittedly, I haven't read everything offered here. But it really should be kept at the front of these talks. My mother is a very poor woman, but she pays her tithe. Don't know where she pays it to, (most likely to 3ABN) but I'm furious that our church wise men would allow another situation of misuse of donations to the Lord's work. Will they ever learn? Who will hold them responsible? Blinded by the camera lights.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 05:22 PM

All too true. One thing about Linda's charm is that she is "childlike", not childish. She has that wonderful childlike quality that just crawls into your heart. You just want to protect her, you want to preserve that "vulnerability" that makes you know you CAN trust her.
Apparently Dannys saw that and misunderstood her simplicity. He thought she would always be a "shadow" for him.
When she became someone in her own right and started her own programs, he feared loss of control of her. Her programs were the most popular of all. Especially rhe "Porch Visits" and "Fluffy". Still the most-missed part of the programs she ever did. Then there was Barb Kerr and LINDA, what a hoot. Charming, delightful!

Her remark about being "as gods around here" was a sarcastic reference to how Danny sees himself. She is too kind to simply say "HE". Maybe she was including Mollie and Hal in that "we" reference.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 05:34 PM

QUOTE(Tori @ Sep 15 2006, 06:02 PM)

Hi,
I'm new to this--bulletin boards in general and this one in particular. I started reading these posts about 3 weeks ago when Adventist Today posted the Dr's letter on their site. Not sure I'm in the right place, even. But I understand there are people who will figure that part out for me.

I've never seen 3ABN. We don't get it in our area. I first heard about it several (3 or so) years ago when my mother who had been out of the Adventist church for 20 or so years started talking about it and then was rebaptized. Some of the things she talked about seemed very conservative and a little wacked, but I was happy she was back in with a group of peers she could relate to.

So, I don't have an emotional connection to Danny or Linda and come to this conversation with my own outside opinions.

I have been frustrated by the conversation because much of it has centered on whether Danny or Linda committed adultery. Typical for Adventists, I think, to get stuck on this topic. But it seems to me that there is so much there. I hate to get into hierarchy of sins, but if Linda was in an abusive relationship (and everything I've read about her leads me to think that she was) then she is definitely the victim here and I think the gist of most of the info posted here should be speaking more to that than to the accusations that she may have had an affair. The damage that an abused woman suffers in that closest of all relationships, the damage that her children suffer pales in comparison to there having been an affair. And I think we get into this mind-set (of focusing on the affair and grounds for divorce over abuse) because the Bible speaks to divorce and infidelity. It doesn't speak to abusive relationships. Probably because marriage realtionships were very different in biblical culture than they are in our culture. But just because the Bible doesn't speak to abusive relationships doesn't mean that we as Christians in our culture shouldn't take the lead in condemning them. In this area, the world is way out ahead of us.

AND, if you're trying to bring down the TV Evangelist, why not focus more on the money and mismanagement of the money? Maybe this has been done earlier. Admittedly, I haven't read everything offered here. But it really should be kept at the front of these talks. My mother is a very poor woman, but she pays her tithe. Don't know where she pays it to, (most likely to 3ABN) but I'm furious that our church wise men would allow another situation of misuse of donations to the Lord's work. Will they ever learn? Who will hold them responsible? Blinded by the camera lights.

Tori,
Welcome to our discussions.
You will find that we do include all form of abuse when we speak of marital misconduct.

Case in point, from the Bible, it says thai a man is to love his wife as Christ loves the Church (His Bride) and (He) gave himself for her (the Bride/Church). Abuse happens when a man fails to fulfill that commission from God. Anything less than that IS ABUSE. It IS a violation of the marriage contract. Just as important in providing physical need is the needs of the spirit and of the heart.

Thank you for reminding us of this point.

3ABN has been described as "The most conservative place on the planet!", by someone who works there, no less,

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 15 2006, 05:43 PM

QUOTE(Tori @ Sep 15 2006, 04:02 PM)

Hi,
I'm new to this--bulletin boards in general and this one in particular. I started reading these posts about 3 weeks ago when Adventist Today posted the Dr's letter on their site. Not sure I'm in the right place, even. But I understand there are people who will figure that part out for me.

I've never seen 3ABN. We don't get it in our area. I first heard about it several (3 or so) years ago when my mother who had been out of the Adventist church for 20 or so years started talking about it and then was rebaptized. Some of the things she talked about seemed very conservative and a little wacked, but I was happy she was back in with a group of peers she could relate to.

So, I don't have an emotional connection to Danny or Linda and come to this conversation with my own outside opinions.

I have been frustrated by the conversation because much of it has centered on whether Danny or Linda committed adultery. Typical for Adventists, I think, to get stuck on this topic. But it seems to me that there is so much there. I hate to get into hierarchy of sins, but if Linda was in an abusive relationship (and everything I've read about her leads me to think that she was) then she is definitely the victim here and I think the gist of most of the info posted here should be speaking more to that than to the accusations that she may have had an affair. The damage that an abused woman suffers in that closest of all relationships, the damage that her children suffer pales in comparison to there having been an affair. And I think we get into this mind-set (of focusing on the affair and grounds for divorce over abuse) because the Bible speaks to divorce and infidelity. It doesn't speak to abusive relationships. Probably because marriage realtionships were very different in biblical culture than they are in our culture. But just because the Bible doesn't speak to abusive relationships doesn't mean that we as Christians in our culture shouldn't take the lead in condemning them. In this area, the world is way out ahead of us.

AND, if you're trying to bring down the TV Evangelist, why not focus more on the money and mismanagement of the money? Maybe this has been done earlier. Admittedly, I haven't read everything offered here. But it really should be kept at the front of these talks. My mother is a very poor woman, but she pays her tithe. Don't know where she pays it to, (most likely to 3ABN) but I'm furious that our church wise men would allow another situation of misuse of donations to the Lord's work. Will they ever learn? Who will hold them responsible? Blinded by the camera lights.

Welcome to BSDA Tori! You are very perceptive in the reading you have done - but keep reading! There are many threads, and most of what you mentioned that attention should be on has been referenced to in many areas - I think if you get all caught up (lots to read, I know!) you will see these things have been addressed, continue to be addressed and are simply facts in the whole mess that make the mess a mess! Got that??

Before you feel like no one is doing anything, that includes our "leaders", keep in mind there is much that is not seen. Like any situation, much is going on that no one talks about - people are in place in several places doing their part. We bring what we can here, discuss it as much as we can, sometimes off the subject and on to things that are insignificant in nature, but none the less, this site has been a wonderful place to gather much information to give a snapshot (aka tip of the iceberg) of what has been and is going on in the 3abn organization and the Shelton family.

Take courage - God's hand is working, he cares about each person, such as your mother, who has placed trust in 3abn to be doing what it said it has been doing, but what people will need to learn in this mess is that no one asked the important questions - they trusted and assumed the rest. That was a mistake and what has allowed the Shelton family to get away with so much. What people SEE on tv is what they perceive as the whole thing - filling in the blanks with "must be's" and "I'm sures" and "of course" to any doubts or red flags. All we can do it get educated, educate people to be more inquisitive about where they send their money, and hold people accountable for their actions. We have that right. We have a right to investigate any organization we support or may support. All we can do it do the best we can do. But we have to do something - not just go along with the ivory-tower thinking, that we have this utopia that has no problems and all is right in the world. What's worse is when people don't own up to their actions - such as Danny, who at this point has no intention of being wrong about anything. Pride goes before a fall....like I have said before, I hope to see a sincere white flag at some point. One can always hope.

I have seen this whole thing as an opportunity for each one of us to learn at least one thing. I hope we won't waste it on just Danny, but search for what we can learn, and I hope that our leaders are doing the same thing. God is still in charge - He wants us all to grow closer to Him one way or another, and He wastes no event, circumstance or life examples to teach us more of the ugliness of sin and the NEED FOR HIM in our lives. JMO. What doesn't make us more cynical, will make us stronger. I believe that because I have seen it in my own life since being a part of this mess. Pray for us all.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 15 2006, 05:55 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 15 2006, 01:28 PM)

Come on, is it really that hard to figure out. The line of conversation was about Danny, his income, what he did with it, where his money comes from, etc. Complaints about how donor funds were used. Danny gets a salary - correct? Of course. He used some of it to build his house. So of course the logic extends, HOTY who claims to still be employed at 3ABN is getting paid from the donors as well. Does he own a house or a car - if so were they purchased with donor money? Of course, without the donors he doesn't have a salary.

> This post is to WB, but to toss this in, HOTY - admin at 3ABN . . . if only you knew how laugable that was and how far down the wrong path you are.
>
> - fhb

Yes - I am paid for a service to the ministry and donor money is set aside to pay me for that service. With that money, I pay for my home, cars, cloths, etc., etc. There is a big difference between having a salary and using if for the necessities and having a salary and letting the ministry pay for everything you want.

There are what - 150-175 employees at 3ABN and maybe 10-15 that are cashing in.
And because I am still there - I am bundled in with people who are using money for their own purposes. My home is paid for by me out of my salary. I do my own lawn care. 3ABN Maintenance staff does not take care of it for me. My wife cleans the house. 3ABN Housecleaning services does not do this for me. Is there a difference - absolutely! (And as far as I know - Dan didn't put one cent from his salary into his home. Can anyone verify that?)

To FHB - So you aren't 3ABN administration - maybe you should be - I hear they're taking applications!

Posted by: Fran Sep 15 2006, 09:25 PM

Fran Asked FHB:

> QUOTE
>
> Please be more specific about " He used some of it to build HIS house."
>
> Just HOW MUCH of HIS SALARY was spent on HIS house? Be careful here.

Linda and Danny were CO-founders. Why was the house HIS house? WHO paid for it? I would challenge ANYONE at 3ABN to produce a TRUE COST OF THAT HOUSE. $138,000 was approved, but how about all those OVER-RUNS. All the 3ABN VOLUNTEERS didn't get paid for their labor. Regular employees received their regular Salary. That $138,000 did not ilclude Labor! Where on the books can you find the EXPENSES for this HOUSE? They are EVERYWHERE like the leaves of Autumn! Buried so deep and so thin they can probably NEVER see the light of day again. Be sure you check set design, other building costs. Like I said. JUST WHO WAS IT THAT PAID FOR LINDA & DANNY'S HOUSE? What was that you said? DONORS?

You know the answer! Get yourself some backbone and tell the truth! Or, you can always ignore the question as before. Be carefull where you step; your pants are getting very heavy with something, and you may step in it!

It is clearly apparent what you are doing. I just hit a point of disgust at all your accusations about Linda and other workers at 3ABN. You keep slipping up and saying things that tell on you. I for one am reading every word you say.

Don't you just wish that Lawsuit would go away? It is far too late. It is everywhere. Are you ready now for all those heavy questions?

Where there is life there is HOPE.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 15 2006, 10:36 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 15 2006, 03:09 PM)

If that is not what you are doing, then be most careful. If you know Linda and Danny, you would have the picture in your mind when Sister tells this particular story - read what Sister tells, and also what Fran says, and those of us who know Linda, you would understand Linda had no control over much of anything when it came to money, (which is what Danny liked) and Linda knew Danny quite well when it came to him wanting something. I'm sure he carried this ora that he deserved it and should have it. She has told me over and over (and I have already mentioned this elsewhere) that Danny is the MOST PERSISTENT man on the planet if he wants something - you can NOT make him stop, quit, give up, etc. Good traits when used correctly of course. Awful when used selfishly. You have to understand the dynamics of this relationship and personality types - Linda is soft spoken, ready to take the back seat to keep peace, trusting and was often TOLD how things would be, in spite of her confronting things head on, it was always left with how Danny wanted it. I'm sure there were times, when it was insignificant to Danny, if Linda wanted something done, or saw a good idea, she was able to discuss it. Danny is head strong, stubborn and not trusting. When Danny has his mind made up about something he wants, it happens, even when it's wrong, looks bad, etc. Linda was completely in the dark to how Danny really did the money changing - as she has told me they each had our paycheck, you put that together, and that was plenty for them to live on. If she ever wondered about this or that, I'm sure in her mind their money paid for it. I have talked to her about this a few times, and basically, it comes down to very simple thinking for her - understand, it was her honestly (she just told what she knew) about things at the court case about their status, that had Danny quite upset at her. She didn't play his game, didn't know his game, and apparently was blowing his game. She is making many discoveries as are the rest of us in all this mess. No doubt she knew some things would come around and hit Danny in the head....one more thing, she has told me "we had to be very careful and make sure we did everything right " spoken like a child who assumed everyone wanted to do the same thing.

Please go and read all of Sister's "We Be like God" post #7(I think) at

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?s=&showtopic=9762&view=findpost&p=126703

or at least re-read the part that I put in my post. Linda's statement was in response to the relative/friend who was questioning Danny's use of donor money for personal pleasure. That doesn't sound like she was "completely in the dark about how Danny did the money changing".

Perhaps Sister will further illuminate us all on this subject.

The picture you painted of Linda was of an awfully naive person, not hardly the type of person with the moxie I feel she must have had to co-found and help run a huge, worldwide ministry for 20 years. I believe she was and is a much stronger person than you make her out to be. She would have to be in order to withstand the trauma of these last two years!

Posted by: Lee Sep 15 2006, 10:50 PM

"Be carefull where you step; your pants are getting very heavy with something, and you may step in it!"

....ewwww.....this is disgusting.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 15 2006, 11:07 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 09:36 PM)

Please go and read all of Sister's "We Be like God" post #7(I think) at

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?s=&showtopic=9762&view=findpost&p=126703

or at least re-read the part that I put in my post. Linda's statement was in response to the relative/friend who was questioning Danny's use of donor money for personal pleasure. That doesn't sound like she was "completely in the dark about how Danny did the money changing".

Perhaps Sister will further illuminate us all on this subject.

The picture you painted of Linda was of an awfully naive person, not hardly the type of person with the moxie I feel she must have had to co-found and help run a huge, worldwide ministry for 20 years. I believe she was and is a much stronger person than you make her out to be. She would have to be in order to withstand the trauma of these last two years!

You misunderstand my word of naive - it's with regard Danny's "way" of running a business. Even while there were employees earning less then livable wages, she would tell you "well, they had to at least had minimum wage, that's the law and we had to do that", she doesn't really know what people went through, how they were treated, that was not her area, and maybe people assumed she knew these things because she was Dan's wife, but she did not bother with things that were not her job. She also got most ALL her information from Danny on anything and everything that took place. I have asked her, how did you know this or that, how something happend or who said what? Were you there? Did you see it? Talk to them? Or did you get your information from Danny on what took place? Her answer is usually "Dan told me". Then I think she gets it now - she always has believed him. She loved him, she trusted him. She may not have agreed with some of his ethics (that she saw), but she still loved him and had a heart for the ministry as her main thing - and that is still her main thing!

I have read what sister wrote, several times, I understand what she is saying. I have talked to Linda about it a few times as well. I guess you have to know Linda to understand what I'm trying to explain.

You can know about your own money, and what your husband earns, you can see him spend, charge and have things, and you assume that you must be able to afford it. Even when you see the mininstries money spent on things you question, you can tell Danny, but Danny will not like it, will argue with you, and you will be wrong in your view of looking at it. Whether you are still right about what you see, your husband see's it one way, and that is the RIGHT WAY. She was explaining that she knew Dan well enough that when he wanted something, he got it. She did not know the degree of which he has gone. She has given me several examples of things she felt were not right, but it did no good to tell Danny. These were little things she saw, she had no idea how deep and wide this kind of thinking Danny had, has went. She is just now finding out these things.

Having moxie and being naive can go co-exist at the same time. You have a person who did start a minsitry, run a ministry (production) and work long hours everyday. She gets better and better at her job through the years. She works hard and has a mission. She also knows that Danny "works" differently then she does. She is very strong - she is a surviror and has realized that this is what she was doing, by God's grace, she said to me "it was good I was in the word all the time through these years in my job" (my slight paraphrase). I know she is stong, because God strengthened her for this time and continues to make her strong, but honestly if you knew her, and she would tell you, her parents worried about her, because she is very trusting, keeps things very simple in her mind, and lives on a different level then most people do - like a child. She has faith. It's what gives her the ability to love, even when being hurt.

Posted by: Fran Sep 15 2006, 11:28 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 15 2006, 10:50 PM)

"Be carefull where you step; your pants are getting very heavy with something, and you may step in it!"
....ewwww.....this is disgusting.

Lee; rofl

Reading it this way, it is disgusting.

I was referencing an earlier post I made about pants and pockets full of money! I am sure the other would never happen in public, I hope.

I apologize for leaving the word "money" out. I forget that people don't realize I think in terms of money and numbers.

I posted another post in another thread and someone replied to it and I am still trying to figure out what I said that was wrong. With me, it could take a lifetime. I just let that one go, but this one really got me laughing. This intent was not meant as this came out. oo

Sorry.
Fran

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 11:47 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 15 2006, 11:07 PM)

She also got most ALL her information from Danny on anything and everything that took place. I have asked her, how did you know this or that, how something happend or who said what? Were you there? Did you see it? Talk to them? Or did you get your information from Danny on what took place? Her answer is usually "Dan told me". Then I think she gets it now - she always has believed him. She loved him, she trusted him.

Linda also said that, on occasion, if she was standing in Dan's doorway to his office, and listened or waited while he talked to somebody else on the phone, she sometimes learned of things going on. To her, it was just a humorous, little annectdote, but when she told that story, she was aware that she was revealing she was often outside the loop when things were going on.

They say that in in the first week of President Lyndon Johnson's administration, they gave the Vice-President, Hubert Humphrey, a jackknife and told him to go whittle in the corner for the next four years.

But with Hubert, within just a few days, as the story goes, they realized they had to confiscate the jackknife.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 11:59 PM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 15 2006, 11:28 PM)

Lee; rofl

Reading it this way, it is disgusting.

I was referencing an earlier post I made about pants and pockets full of money! I am sure the other would never happen in public, I hope.

I apologize for leaving the word "money" out. I forget that people don't realize I think in terms of money and numbers.

Sorry.
Fran

It Depends® on how you interpret it.

Posted by: Observer Sep 16 2006, 06:21 AM

My comment is a general one:

Women who are in abusive relaltionships typically believe their husbands, trust them, and really do not understand what is going on.

I can well understand how Linda simply did not know.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 16 2006, 10:12 AM

QUOTE(Observer @ Sep 16 2006, 05:21 AM)

My comment is a general one:

Women who are in abusive relaltionships typically believe their husbands, trust them, and really do not understand what is going on.

I can well understand how Linda simply did not know.

Nicely and completely said. You did that in a couple sentences, while I took too many!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 16 2006, 07:52 PM

QUOTE(Lee @ Sep 15 2006, 08:50 PM)

"Be carefull where you step; your pants are getting very heavy with something, and you may step in it!"
....ewwww.....this is disgusting.

Were you speaking to me? If so, please expand on what in the world you are basing your metaphor on.

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 16 2006, 08:12 AM)

Nicely and completely said. You did that in a couple sentences, while I took too many!

I understand about women in abusive relationships and how reality is sometimes just not apparent to them because of their survival mechanisms. It's just that, not knowing Linda personally, only who I thought I knew by watching 3abn, the post by Sister gave me pause as to what I really knew. I wasn't watching in late 2003, early 2004 when this divorce situation unfolded.

Posted by: Fran Sep 16 2006, 09:59 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 16 2006, 08:52 PM)

Were you speaking to me? If so, please expand on what in the world you are basing your metaphor on.

"P" "B";

I am afraid Lee was quoting a post I made to "F" "H" "B" about WHO paid for HIS (Danny's) house, once and WHO paid 1/2 time again.

How much the over-runs were?

Why wasn't labor paid?

Why was the house referred to HIS house?

What/Where was Linda at that time?

Was she already being prepared for the pasture?

Since my comment was about the house financing, I was speaking of money filling his big pockets and it would soon fall out and all he could do is step in it.

I am so glad you are "P"eacefully "B"ewildered today.

Lee; I apologize again. This post is to clarify the situation to "P" "B".

My original post was to "F" "H" "B"

Posted by: Lee Sep 16 2006, 10:19 PM

Whew Fran! Now I understand what you meant...

Posted by: Brother Sam Sep 22 2006, 08:01 PM

Maybe the close friends of Danny (in the church) should have the skeletons come out of their closets along with his...

Doug, Mark, Ken, John, Mollie, Walt, Bill, etc. have protected Danny, seemingly blindly, without any use of common sense or opening their minds to the evidence in front of them and other facts upon which they have refused to ponder...rather to insist in their lies until they think and talk them so long they become "truth" to them...and no longer are able to have an open mind or heart to the true facts as they come out and are in total contradiction to what they have been spreading...

What skeletons of theirs are they afraid Danny will expose if they should decide to do the right thing and confess their errors and previous words in support of him and now realize how wrong it truly was to do so...are they in so deep, they cannot get out for fear of their own secrets being exposed?

Maybe it is time for everything to come out, be exposed and for them to join Danny in their punishment and be "cast out"...

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 22 2006, 08:37 PM

QUOTE(Brother Sam @ Sep 22 2006, 09:01 PM)

Maybe the close friends of Danny (in the church) should have the skeletons come out of their closets along with his...

Doug, Mark, Ken, John, Mollie, Walt, Bill, etc. have protected Danny, seemingly blindly, without any use of common sense or opening their minds to the evidence in front of them and other facts upon which they have refused to ponder...rather to insist in their lies until they think and talk them so long they become "truth" to them...and no longer are able to have an open mind or heart to the true facts as they come out and are in total contradiction to what they have been spreading...

What skeletons of theirs are they afraid Danny will expose if they should decide to do the right thing and confess their errors and previous words in support of him and now realize how wrong it truly was to do so...are they in so deep, they cannot get out for fear of their own secrets being exposed?

Maybe it is time for everything to come out, be exposed and for them to join Danny in their punishment and be "cast out"...

And your skeletons? When shall those become public foder for public perusal? Or mine, or Clay's, or Calvin's, or Watchbird's, or Sister's? At what point will your appetite be sated?

Posted by: justme Sep 22 2006, 09:25 PM

Justice / Mercy / "Sheletons"(Skelton skeletons).

Which are we most interested in?

For nearly all our oives we have been taught to reason from cause to effect. We learn that action produces reaction. For every force there is an equal and opposite force. We are taught that 'whatever a man sows he will reap. East of here they call it "Karma". etc, etc.

In one rspect we seemt o like to see these axiomx actually come true. "Ah Haaaa! He got HIS"! "Serves 'im right." 'I told you sooooo!"

On the other hand we believe that we are forgiven only to the extent that we do forgive, Uh Ohhh.

And No one likes to see a woman misused and abused and verbally destroyed. Well, mostly no one does.

But mostly we hate to see someone in a position of power abuse that power. Ezpceially if it is in a ministry-type environment.

And "HO!-BOY!" don't follow up the abuse with an arrogant cover-up, by using the same enrtusted power given you by the "supporters".

SO, now we ahave an opportunity to see how we are inside after having gone through this metamorphosis of emotion and resasoning.
What have we learned about oueselves"
What have we learned abput our church"
What have we learned about human nature and power and money"
What have we learned about God?

Have some substituted personal study abd devotion by using 3ABN to be our "PASSIVE CHRISTIAN COMPANION?"

Will "JUSTICE" be vindicated in our eyes?
Do we want Justice or do we want Reformation? or both??

Our answers will be the basis upon what we delcare we want our own judgement to be based.
By the same rule of jusgement you use to judge other you too will be judged."

I have been told by individuals that having gone through the court systems, going to prison, etc, was the best thing that ever happened to the. That's where they learned to face themselves, and even to learn about the true God of love and forgiveness and restoration. Are we willing to tell God He can go that far, if necessary, from His perspective, to save us for Heaven???

The news that is coming shouuld give pause for each of us to see how far we are willing to let God work in our own lives.

The Saga of 3ABN can be a "stumbling block" or it can be a "step stool" to a higher experience.

Posted by: Brother Sam Sep 23 2006, 06:16 AM

I too have skeletons in my closet...but I am not trying to destroy innocent people by using "powerful" people to do my dirty work.

Maybe if you had been there and under the dictates of the ungodly leader, you would have seen the lives destroyed by his tactics...with the help of these "friends"...

Yes, I would like to see justice done or at least a true public repentance to all affected, full restitution and a change in their life style/actions.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 23 2006, 06:21 AM

Politics over principle is always hurtful... but there are politics on both sides of this scenario. JMHO

> QUOTE(Brother Sam @ Sep 23 2006, 06:16 AM) ☐
>
> I too have skeletons in my closet...but I am not trying to destroy innocent people by using "powerful" people to do my dirty work.
>
> Maybe if you had been there and under the dictates of the ungodly leader, you would have seen the lives destroyed by his tactics...with the help of these "friends"...
>
> Yes, I would like to see justice done or at least a true public repentance to all affected, full restitution and a change in their life style/actions.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 08:48 AM

> QUOTE(justme @ Sep 22 2006, 09:25 PM) ☐
>
> Justice / Mercy / "Sheletons"(Skelton skeletons).
>
> Which are we most interested in?

Justice against the evildoers..... and in favor of the victims.....

Mercy for those who repent..... and for those who have been sinned against.....

As for "Sheletons" ... or any other "skeletons" .....

I really don't care about skeletons at all..... As I put it once upon a time ....

Skeletons don't bother me!

I know just where each one is hung.....
And.....
Sometimes take
A morbid satisfaction
Out of checking through old closets
Just so see
How each one fares,
(and if it needs the dust and cobwebs cleaned away)

But.....
Finding one Alive, and Well, and Living..... where
I thought he hung.....

That bothers me.
..... ca 1971

Skeletons are nothing but bones. They harm no one, though some may feel a bit squeamish in their presence, or even guilty over what they were when alive.

Therefore, skeletons are of little or no interest to me.

What I AM interested in, however, is the live and squirming and suffering victims that are hung in some dank and heavily barricaded dungeon .... and the instruments of torture that are held in "off limits" secure areas, out of sight of other, future, unsuspecting victims.

And it is THESE kinds of things that the victims and refugees and hostages and just plain observers have been trying to bring to the light of day here on the pages of BSDA.

Those who have merely skeletons in their closets need have no fear of any who post here.

> QUOTE
> For nearly all our oives we have been taught to reason from cause to effect. We learn that action produces reaction. For every force there is an equal and opposite force. We are taught that 'whatever a man sows he will reap. East of here they call it "Karma". etc, etc.

Agreed with your first statements .... disagreed that it is the same as what is called "Karma" in the East.

> QUOTE
> In one rspect we seemt o like to see these axiomx actually come true. "Ah Haaaa! He got HIS"! "Serves 'im right." 'I told you sooooo!"

I like the way Barclay comments on our attitudes in his little devotional commentaries..... speaking of love, he explains that Love is not merely a warm fuzzy feeling toward everyone..... including evildoes..... for that would be the very antithesis of love towards those who are oppressed or treated unjustly. True love includes an equal and opposite pole of firm abhorrence, hatred even, of all that is evil. Scripture is replete with examples of rejoicing over the destruction of one's enemies.... I am not sure how or why we have dveloped a "guilt complex" such that we even feel bad about feeling good when evil is driven back in some specific area.

> QUOTE
> On the other hand we believe that we are forgiven only to the extent that we do forgive, Uh Ohhh.

No we don't! At least we should not. To say this is to misunderstand both the process of forgiveness and who is entitled (and required) to forgive whom. I highly recommend the books by Lewis B. Smedes on forgiveness for anyone who is not clear on issues regarding forgiveness.

> QUOTE
> And No one likes to see a woman misused and abused and verbally destroyed. Well, mostly no one does.

And if someone does, then it means that they are secretly abusers at heart.

> QUOTE
> But mostly we hate to see someone in a position of power abuse that power. Ezpceially if it is in a ministry-type environment.
>
> And "HO!-BOY!" don't follow up the abuse with an arrogant cover-up, by using the same enrtusted power given you by the "supporters".

Exactly.

> QUOTE
> SO, now we ahave an opportunity to see how we are inside after having gone through this metamorphosis of emotion and resasoning.
> What have we learned about oueselves"
> What have we learned abput our church"
> What have we learned about human nature and power and money"
> What have we learned about God?
> Have some substituted personal study and devotion by using 3ABN to be our "PASSIVE CHRISTIAN COMPANION?"
>
> Will "JUSTICE" be vindicated in our eyes?
> Do we want Justice or do we want Reformation? or both??

Both..... Reformation where possible..... Justice for all.

> QUOTE
> Our answers will be the basis upon what we delcare we want our own judgement to be based.
> By the same rule of jusgement you use to judge other you too will be judged."
>
> I have been told by individuals that having gone through the court systems, going to prison, etc, was the best thing that ever happened to the. That's where they learned to face themselves, and even to learn about the true God of love and forgiveness and restoration. Are we willing to tell God He can go that far, if necessary, from His perspective, to save us for Heaven???

While it is true that there are some people who will never "look up" intil they are so far down that this is the "only way to look", it is also true that some will even then "curse God and die" rather than to admit their wrong, make restitution, and truly and humbly follow God.

But .....

I show you a "better way"..... for it is not necessary for anyone to take this hard route to God..... the easier and better way is staying sensitive to God's leading from the moment we are first aware of his leading. It is not God's will that we go through the hard times to learn that his way is best.

> QUOTE
>
> The news that is coming shouuld give pause for each of us to see how far we are willing to let God work in our own lives.
>
> The Saga of 3ABN can be a "stumbling block" or it can be a "step stool" to a higher experience.

Ah yes, but..... as "it is written":

"But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea.

"Woe unto the world because of offences! for it must needs be that offences come; but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh! " .... Matthew 18:6-7 KJV

Posted by: beartrap Sep 23 2006, 09:39 AM

"Betrayals of trust, especially in the midst of power differentials and by people in whom sacred authority has been vested, are especially grievous sins that call for clear accountability and expectations of true repentance"
L. Gregory Jones, dean of Duke University Divinity School

Posted by: justme Sep 23 2006, 10:41 AM

"beartrap", "watchbird", "simplysaved", "brothersam":
Thank you for your comments. I can see we are very, very close in our thinking. I really appreciate your posts.

In regards to the "forgiveness" thing, I was remembering being taught to forgive this was because of the "Lord's prayer" reference to forgiveness. .."forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who have trespassed against us..".

Help me with understanding the "Karma" thing. I was made to understand that it's like reaping what we have sown; or even, "what goes around comes around" type thing.

Restitution!?! Absolutely, I agree. Biblically we have seen the instruction to restore SEVEN-FOLD what has been taken illegally. No wouldn't THAT go over big at 3ABN.

What if 3ABN supporters who have been supporting it for years, and have receipts were to start a "class action" law suit against 3ABN to recover misused funding. Misrepresentation of funds gathered for projects that never materialized?!?!i.e. "The Sanctuary Project", and to "refund seven times the amoubt of each receipt or cancelled check"??!!

WOW!

from what I understand about t=some of the activities reported to us here, there may be a need for some "time out" in "lockup".

As far as what 3ABN has done to Linda's last two years and to her "ministry", how do they expect to "UN-RING THAT BELL"?

..

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 23 2006, 10:53 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 23 2006, 08:39 AM)

"Betrayals of trust, especially in the midst of power differentials and by people in whom sacred authority has been vested, are especially grievous sins that call for clear accountability and expectations of true repentance"
L. Gregory Jones, dean of Duke University Divinity School

Beartrap, I have heard that there are about 150 employees/volunteers at 3abn. As an employee of 3abn do you have an idea of how many of these folks are aware of the situation there and feel trapped or bewildered by all of it. How many are in the dark?

QUOTE

What I AM interested in, however, is the live and squirming and suffering victims that are hung in some dank and heavily barricaded dungeon .... and the instruments of torture that are held in "off limits" secure areas, out of sight of other, future, unsuspecting victims.

Watchbird, I am assuming that you are speaking of the employees. Wouldn't it be like turning a blind eye not to warn them of the situation, thereby becoming accomplices? The mother who knows that her husband/boyfriend is molesting/abusing her children but lets it continue is complicit, no matter what her motivation is.

Won't the employees, once they become victims and find out others knew but did nothing to warn them, feel twice betrayed? I know I would.

Posted by: TLC Sep 23 2006, 12:22 PM

[quote name='PeacefullyBewildered' date='Sep 23 2006, 10:53 AM' post='153152']
Beartrap, I have heard that there are about 150 employees/volunteers at 3abn. As an employee of 3abn do you have an idea of how many of these folks are aware of the situation there and feel trapped or bewildered by all of it. How many are in the dark?

Beartrap is not a 3ABN employee.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 23 2006, 01:06 PM

TLC, he isn't? I thought he was.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 02:41 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 23 2006, 01:06 PM)

TLC, he isn't? I thought he was.

You are correct. He was... probably for more years than anyone else posting on this board. But now he isn't. You might want to go to his profile and read all of his posts. You would find out a lot of interesting things about him.... and about a lot of things that are interesting. And you would doubtless get a better idea as to why so many of us put so much weight on what he says. And once you did that, you just might find that you would be a lot less "bewildered". (Or at least you would be bewildered about different things and at a different level.)

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 23 2006, 03:16 PM

QUOTE(Brother Sam @ Sep 23 2006, 08:16 AM)

I too have skeletons in my closet...but I am not trying to destroy innocent people by using "powerful" people to do my dirty work.

Maybe if you had been there and under the dictates of the ungodly leader, you would have seen the lives destroyed by his tactics...with the help of these "friends"...

Yes, I would like to see justice done or at least a true public repentance to all affected, full restitution and a change in their life style/actions.

This is dead on pernt.

I really don't understand the people that just want to "let things go" and let GOD handle it.

I guess they don't realize that GOD works through people on Earth...today!

That is how he is working!

Posted by: justme Sep 23 2006, 05:51 PM

Oh, how true it is that we need to see what we generally call "justice". The bible is full of stories of men of God who "blew it" so to speak, and yet the people oif God were made to see what happens when spiritual leaders follow "self" or "other poor advise" and hurt God's children and God's work.

I don't remember any offenses that God "let go" of and failed to reveal the offense OR the punishment!

Be not deceived, God is NOT mocked, whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap". IT"S HARVEST TIME!

Forgiveness, ... yes, forgiveness means that I am not going to PERMIT the "trespass" keep me from praying for the "trespassor". If I continue to hold the trespass against my brother, AND, I fail to pray FOR his salvation, I have not forgiven him. there are those who prey FOR God to "PUNISH" trespassors" by letting the victim SEE that punishment. This does not come under the heading of "love your enemies, do good to them that hate you..". But it can be the hardest thing in the world to do.

I also struggle with my feelings when I see abuse of children, wives, animals, ... it enrages my sensibilities. I have to control my actions because the natural impulse it to RETALIATE immediately.

When I see those precious children on 'Kids Time" and all the other shows, I cringe at the idea of what some of them might have had to endure. I can't find in my heart the ability to "forgive" the offenders, but I will pray for their salvation, and for the healing of those children.

((Oh,NO!) I see Danny is back on at PMC. I gotta edit this part out of my recordings.) (Shame on me, ... sorta).

Didn't David, the Psalmist, have these fluctuating feelings, about Saul?
.
..
...

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 23 2006, 06:27 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 23 2006, 01:41 PM)

You are correct. He was... probably for more years than anyone else posting on this board. But now he isn't. You might want to go to his profile and read all of his posts. You would find out a lot of interesting things about him.... and about a lot of things that are interesting. And you would doubtless get a better idea as to why so many of us put so much weight on what he says. And once you did that, you just might find that you would be a lot less "bewildered". (Or at least you would be bewildered about different things and at a different level.)

I will do so. Thanks

Er, how do you read a person's posts on their profile? I just went to beartraps and can't find any such button. I'm bewildered. hehe.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 23 2006, 08:27 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 23 2006, 06:27 PM)

I will do so. Thanks

Er, how do you read a person's posts on their profile? I just went to beartraps and can't find any such button. I'm bewildered. hehe.

I know the feeling..... it isn't obvious on the first try. But look at the right upper corner of the profile screen..... see the box that says "profile options". Click on that, and "Find Member's posts" will be the first choice. Click on that and you will find small windows for each post.... and in the case of Beartrap, page after page of posts. You can scroll down in each window to see the full post, or if you wish to see the dialogue of which it is a part, click on the "post preview" number and you'll be taken to the post in its thread context.

Enjoy.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 24 2006, 02:11 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 23 2006, 07:27 PM) ☐

I know the feeling..... it isn't obvious on the first try. But look at the right upper corner of the profile screen..... see the box that says "profile options". Click on that, and "Find Member's posts" will be the first choice. Click on that and you will find small windows for each post.... and in the case of Beartrap, page after page of posts. You can scroll down in each window to see the full post, or if you wish to see the dialogue of which it is a part, click on the "post preview" number and you'll be taken to the post in its thread context.

Enjoy.

Thanks!

Posted by: watchbird Sep 25 2006, 07:59 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 23 2006, 10:41 AM) ☐

"beartrap", "watchbird", "simplysaved", "brothersam":
Thank you for your comments. I can see we are very, very close in our thinking. I really appreciate your posts.

In regards to the "forgiveness" thing, I was remembering being taught to forgive this was because of the "Lord's prayer" reference to forgiveness. .."forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who have trespassed against us..".

Thanks for the thanks... and as for "forgiveness".....

Ah yes..... and generations of us got a wrong idea of the forgiveness of God because of the way in which this text was taught..... seeming to make God's forgiveness predicated upon how we forgive. I know the feeling.... been there, thought that..... and even when I moved beyond that it took a long time to see a lot of the other wrong concepts about forgiveness that we have all too often "been taught"..... or perhaps that we have "caught" from those around us.

I think I mentioned it somewhere else, but I'll repeat here.... the book by Lewis B. Smedes having to do with forgiveness is simply the best bar none that I have run across. The title sounds trite, until you read the expanded subtitle Forgive and Forget: Healing the Hurts We Don't Deserve . I highly recommend it. (He has written a newer version, which probably expands on some things that might have been unclear in the first, but so far I have not read it so don't know if it adds anything of real necessity or not.

But the first is a "must read"..... and especially so for those who find themselves in a situation where they have received hurts they simply did not deserve.

Smedes answers questions we seldom ask ... for starters.... What is forgiveness? What is it not? What does it mean to "forget"? Is that possible? Is it desirable? But we can come back to that later if you wish.....

> QUOTE
>
> Help me with understanding the "Karma" thing. I was made to understand that it's like reaping what we have sown; or even, "what goes around comes around" type thing.

To understand Karma one must first understand the religious system from which the word comes, for there is no comparable concept in Christianity. Saharafan can probably help us better with this than what I can.... but as a beginning.....

The "wheel of Karma" has to do with the belief that life goes on through multitudinous reincarnations until such a time as that particular entity has completely cleansed itself of all wrongdoing.... at which time it is permitted to go back to the "whole".... as a drop of water to the ocean.... losing all of its self-identity and self-awareness in the bliss of eternal "oneness" and oblivian. There is no explanation for how the idea of wrong and right arose in the first place nor how the entity which is currently "incarnated" as a living object (insect, animal, human) managed to accumulate so much negative karma as to need yet another reincarnation. But once one's karma has been fixed for this life, there is no way of moving from one station to another (obvious when thinking of an insect changing to an animal, not at all obvious to the Christian when one thinks of moving from an "untouchable" caste to another "higher" caste of humans.) For any "good" karma that one might accumulate is only applicable to one's next incarnation, and to fail to maintain one's assigned lot in this life would work to accumulate more "bad" karma for the next. This underlies to some extent the resistance to mission work which seeks to improve the lot of the unfortunates. Fortunately there are real efforts in those countries dominated by this thought system to eliminate the caste system, so humanitarian and mission work is more welcome than at some times in the past.

> QUOTE
>
> Restitution!?! Absolutely, I agree. Biblically we have seen the instruction to restore SEVEN-FOLD what has been taken illegally. No wouldn't THAT go over big at 3ABN.
>
> What if 3ABN supporters who have been supporting it for years, and have receipts were to start a "class action" law suit against 3ABN to recover misused funding. Misrepresentation of funds gathered for projects that never materialized?!?!i.e. "The Sanctuary Project", and to "refund seven times the amoubt of each receipt or cancelled check"??!!
>
> WOW!

I had thought it was "four-fold".... but even that would be enough to call forth a WOW! were it to happen. But of course it can't. There has been so much that has been wasted that it would be impossible to even return the original amount that had been intended for a specific work.

But as to the "class action suit" that you mention..... Unfortunately, with the laws being what they are regarding the use of solicited funds, there is no way that this could happen. Very early on I asked a friend of mine who is a teacher of "criminal justice" about this, and his response was that the legal requirements were that if only 10% of the funds solicited were used for the purpose stated, they were within the law. But recently I was commenting on this to another friend who is much more involved in financial matters, being in the public accountant business, and his response was that actually it was not that high.... the requirements are more like 3 to 4 percent.

And we wonder why the "Televangelism" field is so popular and why the Televangelists are so wealthy?

Now I don't think that as Adventists we would consider this to be an ethically acceptable percentage of our funds to be used for the purpose for which it is solicited ..... just think of the outcry that we are hearing from many about the percentage of tithes and offerings that are used for overhead in our own church conference system. But because it is not legally illegal, we have to take this information to the "court of public opinion" ... or rather of church opinion.... rather than expecting it to be righted in the courts of the land.

Now if Danny has moved beyond mere "missappropriation of funds" to handling monies in ways that are illegal (and those who know say this is true), then that is a different story, and there are those who are very interested in persuing that angle..... and we wait patiently for those wheels to grind..... at the same time that we inform others as much as is appropriate about these matters.

> QUOTE
>
> from what I understand about t=some of the activities reported to us here, there may be a need for some "time out" in "lockup".
>
> As far as what 3ABN has done to Linda's last two years and to her "ministry", how do they expect to "UN-RING THAT BELL"?..

A very good question..... and don't ever forget that Linda is not the only one who has been robbed of her "last two years". There are others who have also been affected adversely .... some for much longer than two years.... and some for whom it is even more impossible to "unring the bell".
Linda must always stay a focus, but she should also be seen as symbol for those others whose pain is too private and too deep to even be exposed for the purpose of giving them comfort and sympathy.

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

165

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Response To Awesumtenor And Nuggie

Posted by: saharafan Sep 24 2006, 07:38 AM

awesumtenor, your last two posts to me were very rude, very aggressive, and very judgmental. You not only totaly misunderstand and misinterpret me, you seem to turn everything I say to mean its complete oposite.

You indirectly claim by your judgements of me that you know my secret thoughts and hidden intentions concerning everything that I posted, and that they are all evil, or bad.

You are WRONG, totaly wrong with EVERYTHING that you said about me and the intentions of my postings.

I do not at all accept your criticism because the spirit and nature and kind of your criticism of me is very similar to the criticism leveled by some against Linda Shelton when they accuse her that she didn't want to break up her "inappropriate relationship" with the Norwegian doctor to save her marriage; only the intensity for sure is much different.

I feel victimized by you because you accuse me personally (is this what "ad hominem" means?) in a very mean way.
By comparison, you kind of accuse me publically so that everybody can hear it, "JUST WHY HAVE YOU NOT YET STOPPED BEATING YOUR WIFE???", being at the same time completely ignorant of the fact that I am not even married.

Please try to stay on the sub-topic or present theme of this thread concerning the pentecostal developments at 3ABN and the "speaking in tongues".
You may object to and criticize my comments in my postings, you may criticize the quotations of EGW that I posted and their application, but please do not criticize me personally this way and do not judge my intentions that you are convinced you know better than I when you don't even know me at all.

Nuggie,
Thank you for your advice, you are probably right, it may have been wiser not to include it or to state it differently. I appreciate your comment.

I am very new to forums in general, BSDA is the first forum I realy took time to read anything on, and the first (and so far only one) that I have ever posted something on. I was brought to BSDA a few months ago by a link in one of S. Bacchiocchi's recent newsletters, because I wanted to learn more about what's going on at 3ABN and about the "divorce dispute". Originally I never thought that I would ever post anything here, I just wanted to get information. But when that "dreams and visions" thread came up, I felt strongly compelled and impressed to contribute and warn in order to help other readers not to be dangerously deceived; exactly the same is now true for this "speaking in tongues" theme here. It's really not at all about me and my "being right", it's about helping others and exposing doctrinal errors.

I added my "note" to the quotes because I didn't want to start again a discussion about the Spirit of Prophecy itself. I am very willing to discuss "on topic" the correct interpretation of those EGW quotations and their application to the present day glossolalia as practized by Pentecostals today, but I didn't want the discussion again to turn into discussing the inspiration and authority of Ellen White (and even the Bible, too) as it has happened last time I was quoting her here. The last time it almost turned a little bit into judging and ridiculing those who believe in her gift.

And I am still convinced that I would have gotten at least as much criticism, perhaps of a different nature, if I wouldn't have included it. But maybe, if I should ever post something like that again, I will think twice of what personal comment to write, and how to state it, if at all I will include one.

Posted by: Clay Sep 24 2006, 08:01 AM when a thread is closed it means that nothing else on that topic will be discussed at that moment.... starting a new thread to continue discussing the issues of the closed thread will cause you to be suspended..... as I said.... 24 hours and then we can revisit it, you can keep your comments until then.....

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

166

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Behind The Scenes

Posted by: sister Aug 16 2006, 10:44 AM

I have received the following narrative from Jorgen VanBraun. Jorgen and I agreed to start a new thread in which he will continue the work he began in "The Televengelist". As new selections become available they will be posted. I will allow Jorgen's words to speak for themselves without further comment.

Sister

The Solution

Jorgen VanBraun

The walls appear to be closing in on Danny Shelton as he and a bevy of acolytes struggle against an avalanche of accusations that continues to grow daily. In their traditional manner, they strike out ever more viciously against all who dare to expose the deeply rooted evils of "God's anointed" one, yet every rock they roll seems to become a boulder, but an unseen hand reverses the direction of those boulders, allowing their own words to condemn them. How can this scandal-ridden televangelist save his place in the Seventh-day Adventist world, and once again regain his exulted position riding atop the pinnacle of the wave of worship and adulation handed to him by a denomination who coveted the results of what he was selling and never questioned the means, allowing the end result to justify any carnage strewn along the path?

We look back over the past year and see that an exalted member of the 3ABN family engages in activities that result in a "surprise package", a little bundle of joy whose untimely appearance will verify the falsified stories concerning it's conception. Shortly thereafter this person and the other party involved in the... ahem... sensual activities are baptized within days of the discovery of the "surprise". We see the intent of this ceremony is to wash away the stain, not only of the most recent event, but those stains of the many illicit sensual activities that have occurred over the past few years, including the adultery and long term phone sex relationship. The intent is to secure silence concerning past transgressions and absolve the sinner from accountability and reaping the results connected with the offences. It can serve as a spiritual bankruptcy, where the sinner is saved in, not from her sins.

Now we see Danny Shelton on the set, surrounded by his most faithful cronies – a virtual rouges gallery who have sold their integrity, self respect, and honesty one piece at a time for the various pieces of silver they have received along the way. In their exaltation of Danny and their degradation of his "enemies" they secure their positions within his realm and the favor of its anointed ruler. In desperation, they lash out against the people whose words are bringing their tin god down and in turn threatening their own exulted positions within this kingdom where he wields absolute power. They quote scripture, making allegorical statements meant to incriminate those they so fear, seeking the downfall of his enemies through insinuation robed in a garb of lies. Danny sits in his seat beaming with pleasure while their portrayals of his status as God's anointed is applied to him, in direct contrast to the condemnation applied to those he hates.

Amidst this ruckus, it is cautiously repeated several times that good people make mistakes... comparisons are made to Moses and David. As the rhetoric resumes, the pastor's statements alludes to the fact that the prophets were not free from sin. Was not Moses himself a murderer, didn't he kill an Egyptian? Then he addresses his anointed one from God and asks the question, "Danny, have you ever murdered anyone?" A hush falls over the others gathered there awaiting his reply: "Well, not lately..." A bit flustered he carries on, "Not that I know of...well unless you mean people can kill with words?"

Danny is impressed to take some time off for spiritual renewal...

Remember this hypotheses:

1. Renewal and rebaptism wash away anything that happened before. None can bring it up again, the baptized are not culpable for past transgressions, nor is there any accountability.
2. Good people make mistakes, even the prophets of God sinned.
3. Time off for spiritual renewal.

Bearing this in mind, if a great cult leader goes up to the mountain top to "reconnect with God", returns and confesses that he did a few things wrong, and that he feels led to show his recommitment to ministry by rebaptism, do we walk away and concede that he has filed his spiritual bankruptcy? Do we say "He is once again the anointed one", all is forgiven and needs to be forgotten? Do we allow the evil to continue through a forced lip-service platitude that gives a warm feeling but leaves the fox in the hen house? Has God given Danny Shelton special dispensation, absolving him from the consequences of his actions and the requirement of restitution, unlike the rest of us?

Posted by: calvin Aug 16 2006, 01:04 PM

Is this Jorgen VanBraun a real person? Who is he? What is his connection with 3ABN?

Posted by: watchbird Aug 16 2006, 01:17 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 16 2006, 01:04 PM)

Is this Jorgen VanBraun a real person? Who is he? What is his connection with 3ABN?

He is a real person. This is not his real name. He is the same person who wrote The Televangelist ..... and he deserves to be allowed to fly "under the radar" now for the same reasons he did then. There are several of us on here who know him and will vouch for his authenticity. His "connection" with 3ABN cannot be divulged, for to do so would make his identity known. If you compare what Sister said in her introduction here to what was said in that thread about The Televangelist document (written in 2005) needing to be brought up to date, you will see that this is is the beginning of that updating process.

Posted by: justme Aug 16 2006, 01:18 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Aug 16 2006, 11:44 AM)

I have received the following narrative from Jorgen VanBraun. Jorgen and I agreed to start a new thread in which he will continue the work he began in "The Televengelist". As new selections become available they will be posted. I will allow Jorgen's words to speak for themselves without further comment.

Sister

The Solution

Jorgen VanBraun

The walls appear to be closing in on Danny Shelton as he and a bevy of acolytes struggle against an avalanche of accusations that continues to grow daily. In their traditional manner, they strike out ever more viciously against all who dare to expose the deeply rooted evils of "God's anointed" one, yet every rock they roll seems to become a boulder, but an unseen hand reverses the direction of those boulders, allowing their own words to condemn them. How can this scandal-ridden televangelist save his place in the Seventh-day Adventist world, and once again regain his exulted position riding atop the pinnacle of the wave of worship and adulation handed to him by a denomination who coveted the results of what he was selling and never questioned the means, allowing the end result to justify any carnage strewn along the path?

We look back over the past year and see that an exalted member of the 3ABN family engages in activities that result in a "surprise package", a little bundle of joy whose untimely appearance will verify the falsified stories concerning it's conception. Shortly thereafter this person and the other party involved in the... ahem... sensual activities are baptized within days of the discovery of the "surprise". We see the intent of this ceremony is to wash away the stain, not only of the most recent event, but those stains of the many illicit sensual activities that have occurred over the past few years, including the adultery and long term phone sex relationship. The intent is to secure silence concerning past transgressions and absolve the sinner from accountability and reaping the results connected with the offences. It can serve as a spiritual bankruptcy, where the sinner is saved in, not from her sins.

Now we see Danny Shelton on the set, surrounded by his most faithful cronies – a virtual rouges gallery who have sold their integrity, self respect, and honesty one piece at a time for the various pieces of silver they have received along the way. In their exaltation of Danny and their degradation of his "enemies" they secure their positions within his realm and the favor of its anointed ruler. In desperation, they lash out against the people whose words are bringing their tin god down and in turn threatening their own exulted positions within this kingdom where he wields absolute power. They quote scripture, making allegorical statements meant to incriminate those they so fear, seeking the downfall of his enemies through insinuation robed in a garb of lies. Danny sits in his seat beaming with pleasure while their portrayals of his status as God's anointed is applied to him, in direct contrast to the condemnation applied to those he hates.

Amidst this ruckus, it is cautiously repeated several times that good people make mistakes... comparisons are made to Moses and David. As the rhetoric resumes, the pastor's statements alludes to the fact that the prophets were not free from sin. Was not Moses himself a murderer, didn't he kill an Egyptian? Then he addresses his anointed one from God and asks the question, "Danny, have you ever murdered anyone?" A hush falls over the others gathered there awaiting his reply: "Well, not lately..." A bit flustered he carries on, "Not that I know of...well unless you mean people can kill with words?"

Danny is impressed to take some time off for spiritual renewal...

Remember this hypotheses:

1. Renewal and rebaptism wash away anything that happened before. None can bring it up again, the baptized are not culpable for past transgressions, nor is there any accountability.
2. Good people make mistakes, even the prophets of God sinned.
3. Time off for spiritual renewal.

Bearing this in mind, if a great cult leader goes up to the mountain top to "reconnect with God", returns and confesses that he did a few things wrong, and that he feels led to show his recommitment to ministry by rebaptism, do we walk away and concede that he has filed his spiritual bankruptcy? Do we say "He is once again the anointed one", all is forgiven and needs to be forgotten? Do we allow the evil to continue through a forced lip-service platitude that gives a warm feeling but leaves the fox in the hen house? Has God given Danny Shelton special dispensation, absolving him from the consequences of his actions and the requirement of restitution, unlike the rest of us?

Moses a murderer? Yup
David a murderer? Yup
David an adulterer? Yup
Did Moses repent of his murder? Yup
Did David repent of his murder and adultery? Yup

Did Moses "glory in his own leadership"? Nope
Did Israel exalt Moses to "anointed one" status? Nope
Did Moses flaunt his roll as leader? Nope
Did Moses WANT to be leader of Israel? Nope
Did Moses get to realize his dream of the Holy City? Nope
Did Moses have to surrender his leadership after he did his initial job leading Israel up to the gates of he Promised land? Yup

Did David choose to be leader of Israel? Nope
Did David misuse and abuse his position of power? Yup
Did Davis take advantage of the women around him? Yup
Did David suffer public humiliation for his sins? Yup
Did David suffer the consequences of his sins? Yup
Was David forgiven for his sins? Yup
Did David lose his own flesh and blood as a result of his sins? Yup

Both Moses and David were chosen by God for a particular purpose.
Moses was to lead Israel out of Egypt to a Promised land.
Did he get to go in? Nope!

David was also forgiven for his adultery and his murders. But David also had to forfeit the blessing of building the great temple as God had originally planned for David. David's sins bore the consequences even though he had been forgiven.

Did Danny choose his ministry? Yup
Was it a good ministry? Yup
Does Danny relish his roll at 3ABN? YUP
Has Danny confessed his sins openly as did Moses or David? Nope
Has Danny committed "spiritual murder"? YUP
Will Danny be forgiven, "GOK" (God Only, Knows)
Has he asked for forgiveness from Linda? good question!
Would he forgive Linda if she had anything to be forgiven for? hasn't so far.
s it time for "TCO" to relinquish his post at the ministry? Only if it goes to the original Co-founder, who has been "spitirually murdered".

Remember SOLOMON? Wisest man ever to live. He let flattery from his "staff" be his undoing as well, especially from Queen "Bathsheba". Then he let the charasmatics take over his kingdom permitting adultery and fornication in the church and in his offices.

That's good, "TCO" keep comparing yourself to God's chosen men. See what they got in the end. Broken kingdoms and heartache. and BAD, BAD PRESS. "Welcome to the club". It is YOUR HARVEST TIME!

When "the chosen one" "TCO" if you will, doesn't like to be crossed or disobeyed he fires them. WHere s the forgiveness for that dear soul, he so deeply desires for himself? Are we not told by our Precious Creator and Redeemer, Jesus, that we are forgiven only so far as we are willing to forgive others? TCO" doesn't have a clue ... he has never tried to see if it works. And what about his own Delilah? Did she figure into his "spitirual murder" of his own wife. If she committed "spiritual adultery" can his sin against Linda be called "spiritual murder"?

The difference between faith and presumption is that presumption follows itself. Faith follows the Holy Spirit, the Comforter. IF he is not feeling comforted lately maybe he is following his accuser, a familiar voice, maybe?

Comparing oneself with Moses and David makes him look even worse. Neither of them wanted the job God gave them. "TCO" glories in his job. When Moses or David were flattered by those around them, they immediately messed up. It led them away from God. So what makes "TCO" think he can handle it. Because he believes the lie himself, having heard it all these years from his Pentecostal "support group".
The programming becomes more and more Pentecostal every week. Thanks Mollie. but no thanks ..

Posted by: Fran Aug 16 2006, 02:14 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Aug 16 2006, 02:18 PM)

Comparing oneself with Moses and David makes him look even worse. Neither of them wanted the job God gave them. "TCO" glories in his job. When Moses or David were flattered by those around them, they immediately messed up. It led them away from God. So what makes "TCO" think he can handle it. Because he believes the lie himself, having heard it all these years from his Pentecostal "support group".
The programming becomes more and more Pentecostal every week. Thanks Mollie. but no thanks ..

That may be the plan; To drop the SDA bit and go Pentecostal! It could be. That would get those blasted Seventh-day Adventists a run for their money! Many would continue to give! When God said the devil would deceive the VERY ELECT HE MEANT IT! ,

---

Posted by: sister Aug 16 2006, 02:26 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 16 2006, 02:04 PM)

Is this Jorgen VanBraun a real person? Who is he? What is his connection with 3ABN?

Jorgen VanBraun is a real person. He has had a continuing intimate relationship with 3ABN, for which I am willing to vouch. There are many who assume they know his true identity or current location, but are mistaken. As I have chosen to protect my identity in order to reveal the knowledge I have concerning 3ABN, I have offered Jorgen that same protection through being his intermediary on this forum. This arrangement allows him to freely share information without the threat of retribution against him becoming a hindrance to informing the public in regard 3ABN. He has given me the responsibility to represent him and post his writings on BSDA. I have agreed to do so for his personal protection.

Posted by: calvin Aug 16 2006, 02:34 PM

thank you Sister and Watchbird for that clarification

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 2 2006, 09:24 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Aug 16 2006, 11:44 AM)

Bearing this in mind, if a great cult leader goes up to the mountain top to "reconnect with God", returns and confesses that he did a few things wrong, and that he feels led to show his recommitment to ministry by rebaptism, do we walk away and concede that he has filed his spiritual bankruptcy? Do we say "He is once again the anointed one", all is forgiven and needs to be forgotten? Do we allow the evil to continue through a forced lip-service platitude that gives a warm feeling but leaves the fox in the hen house? Has God given Danny Shelton special dispensation, absolving him from the consequences of his actions and the requirement of restitution, unlike the rest of us?

Dan is counting on exactly this.

If he "reconnects with God and is born again"- he is untouchable in many of his past action and you can bet that he'll be even better the second - er - third - er - the next time around to keep his secrets secret.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 4 2006, 08:30 AM

It seems though that he is taking his time to actually go on this so-called revival and reformation vacation.

Posted by: Jvat Sep 4 2006, 01:22 PM

Well, Dan seems to be denying everything so perhaps he does not feel that he needs that vacation right now.

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 09:42 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Aug 16 2006, 12:44 PM)

I have received the following narrative from Jorgen VanBraun. Jorgen and I agreed to start a new thread in which he will continue the work he began in "The Televengelist". As new selections become available they will be posted. I will allow Jorgen's words to speak for themselves without further comment.

Sister

The Solution

Jorgen VanBraun

The walls appear to be closing in on Danny Shelton as he and a bevy of acolytes struggle against an avalanche of accusations that continues to grow daily. In their traditional manner, they strike out ever more viciously against all who dare to expose the deeply rooted evils of "God's anointed" one, yet every rock they roll seems to become a boulder, but an unseen hand reverses the direction of those boulders, allowing their own words to condemn them. How can this scandal-ridden televangelist save his place in the Seventh-day Adventist world, and once again regain his exulted position riding atop the pinnacle of the wave of worship and adulation handed to him by a denomination who coveted the results of what he was selling and never questioned the means, allowing the end result to justify any carnage strewn along the path?

am confused here. They strike out more viciously against whom? How do they strike out viciously?

QUOTE

We look back over the past year and see that an exalted member of the 3ABN family engages in activities that result in a "surprise package", a little bundle of joy whose untimely appearance will verify the falsified stories concerning it's conception. Shortly thereafter this person and the other party involved in the... ahem... sensual activities are baptized within days of the discovery of the "surprise". We see the intent of this ceremony is to wash away the stain, not only of the most recent event, but those stains of the many illicit sensual activities that have occurred over the past few years, including the adultery and long term phone sex relationship. The intent is to secure silence concerning past transgressions and absolve the sinner from accountability and reaping the results connected with the offences. It can serve as a spiritual bankruptcy, where the sinner is saved in, not from her sins.

Who is this exalted member? Why not just name the exalted member's name? What is this little bundle of joy's name?

QUOTE

Now we see Danny Shelton on the set, surrounded by his most faithful cronies – a virtual rouges gallery who have sold their integrity, self respect, and honesty one piece at a time for the various pieces of silver they have received along the way. In their exaltation of Danny and their degradation of his "enemies" they secure their positions within his realm and the favor of its anointed ruler. In desperation, they lash out against the people whose words are bringing their tin god down and in turn threatening their own exulted positions within this kingdom where he wields absolute power. They quote scripture, making allegorical statements meant to incriminate those they so fear, seeking the downfall of his enemies through insinuation robed in a garb of lies. Danny sits in his seat beaming with pleasure while their portrayals of his status as God's anointed is applied to him, in direct contrast to the condemnation applied to those he hates.

Who are the rogues in the gallery? Are you referring to the John Lomacang sermon on John the Baptist? Does that make him a rogue in the rogue's gallery?

QUOTE

Bearing this in mind, if a great cult leader goes up to the mountain top to "reconnect with God", returns and confesses that he did a few things wrong, and that he feels led to show his recommitment to ministry by rebaptism, do we walk away and concede that he has filed his spiritual bankruptcy? Do we say "He is once again the anointed one", all is forgiven and needs to be forgotten? Do we allow the evil to continue through a forced lip-service platitude that gives a warm feeling but leaves the fox in the hen house? Has God given Danny Shelton special dispensation, > absolving him from the consequences of his actions and the requirement of restitution, unlike the rest of us?

How does that make him a cult leader? Waco, Jonestown and almost all the cults I read about had very strict control over who goes in and who comes out. The members of the cult were controlled, brain-washed and confined to the compound. How is it possible for 3abn to be called a cult when it seems that people are employed there and get to go home every night?

It is very difficult for me to take information coming from sources like these without identity verification. (Yes, yes, I know, the same insinuation that I am in the employ of 3ABN). However, people who speak out against injustice and evil, it seems, do so knowing that God is their protection and they have nothing to fear.

How is it that 3ABN employees have so much to fear? Loss of job? Name? Income? The Lord will provide and none can harm because God is their shield.

As usual, my name and email is at the end of this post.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 9 2006, 03:39 PM

> QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 10:42 AM)
>
> It is very difficult for me to take information coming from sources like these without identity verification.
>
> Steffan Philip
> steffankp@gmail.com

Identity verification?

You've asked for identities on three different threads, today.

If I said, "Jane Doe, in Peoria," how would that make life less "difficult" for you?

It seems that the phishing expedition continues.

[x] rofl

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 9 2006, 04:39 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 9 2006, 02:39 PM)

Identity verification?

You've asked for identities on three different threads, today.

If I said, "Jane Doe, in Peoria," how would that make life less "difficult" for you?

It seems that the phishing expedition continues.

rofl

Me too. We ain't as dumb as we must appear to be, aye Pete?

Posted by: Lee Sep 9 2006, 06:27 PM

I am new on this forum and haven't posted much but I have been reading all along.

It isn't just having names that I believe Steffan wants--it is having information that is clearly presented without insinuations or inuendoes. I understand not presenting real names--but when I read the "televangelist" I felt like I was reading a work of fiction. Now this new chapter reads the same way. I am reading words like "cronies" and "rogues gallery" and "cult leader" and other unkind words. I come away feeling that Jorgen actually enjoyed writing this way. These things are written seemingly with malice and hatred oozing everywhere.

I am sure you all know that envy will lead to jealousy if not checked and overcome? And that jealousy will lead to hatred, again if not checked and overcome? And that hatred will lead to murder? There are many ways in which to murder someone.

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 09:51 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 9 2006, 04:39 PM)

Identity verification?

You've asked for identities on three different threads, today.

If I said, "Jane Doe, in Peoria," how would that make life less "difficult" for you?

It seems that the phishing expedition continues.

Well, Jane Doe would be useless, eh? How about John Smith, Production Manager, 3ABN - for example? Then I could say to myself, alright then, let's hear what this person has to say.
Nope, having anonymous people constantly posting makes it difficult to even figure out what the truth is.

And I presume the truth is what we want to get at.
I don't see how else to assure you that I am not on a "phishing" expedition, other than to say I'm not.
Phishing is normally used for identity theft, in which case, I guess mine would be the first one stolen.
Strictly speaking, phishing is stealing user names and passwords and I don't see how I could do that on this forum.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

Posted by: sister Sep 9 2006, 09:58 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 10:51 PM)

Well, Jane Doe would be useless, eh? How about John Smith, Production Manager, 3ABN - for example? Then I could say to myself, alright then, let's hear what this person has to say.
Nope, having anonymous people constantly posting makes it difficult to even figure out what the truth is.
And I presume the truth is what we want to get at.
I don't see how else to assure you that I am not on a "phishing" expedition, other than to say I'm not.
Phishing is normally used for identity theft, in which case, I guess mine would be the first one stolen.
Strictly speaking, phishing is stealing user names and passwords and I don't see how I could do that on this forum.

Steffan Philip
steffankp@gmail.com

How is this for you:

Sister
various duties at 3ABN
sister.bsda@hotmail.com

This is as much as I am willing to offer, under the circumstances, take it or leave it...

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 09:59 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 9 2006, 05:39 PM)

Me too. We ain't as dumb as we must appear to be, aye Pete?

Unless Panama Pete and you have 3ABN related information that speaks to the truth (however that turns out to be), I really don't care about your identity.
But if someone says, I have this to report in 3ABN, how am I supposed to figure out whether that person is speaking the truth, or at least, verifiable truth.

In this situation, let's see what has been verified.

Linda spoke to Dr. AA for very long periods of time (she admits it). But for what reason - both sides differ.
Danny divorced Linda.
Danny remarried.

Then we have "stories" of things that go on inside 3ABN. Most people seem to forget that this was happening even when Linda was at 3ABN. The plane, the horses, the (reported) arrogance, both of them, not just one, indulged.

If you call my posts, phishing, so be it. I know it's not. But you seem to have a real problem with anyone who is not anti-Danny and pro-Linda.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 9 2006, 10:34 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 08:59 PM)

Unless Panama Pete and you have 3ABN related information that speaks to the truth (however that turns out to be), I really don't care about your identity.
But if someone says, I have this to report in 3ABN, how am I supposed to figure out whether that person is speaking the truth, or at least, verifiable truth.
In this situation, let's see what has been verified.

Linda spoke to Dr. AA for very long periods of time (she admits it). But for what reason - both sides differ.
Danny divorced Linda.
Danny remarried.

Aside from the verified facts listed above, the only additional fact that I am aware of (as a complete outsider) is that Danny's hair is no longer a reddish color but is now a true brunette. What is unknown is if it got that way through the application of Just For Men or some other method.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 9 2006, 10:42 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 9 2006, 11:34 PM)

Aside from the verified facts listed above, the only additional fact that I am aware of (as a complete outsider) is that Danny's hair is no longer a reddish color but is now a true brunette. What is unknown is if it got that way through the application of Just For Men or some other method.

rofl Shall we again bring up the topic of hair seeds? Perhaps someone could resurrect the previous discussion for PB's amusement. Anyone remember what thread that was on?

Posted by: beartrap Sep 9 2006, 10:53 PM

Here, PB. The truth shall set your laghter free!

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=9455&st=45&p=133601&#entry133601

Posted by: steffan Sep 9 2006, 10:54 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 9 2006, 10:58 PM)

How is this for you:

Sister
various duties at 3ABN
sister.bsda@hotmail.com

This is as much as I am willing to offer, under the circumstances, take it or leave it...

I'm curious about why you would want to stay in such a wicked organization if that's the case. Why not just shake the dust off your feet, as it were, and move away from this evil?

An organization filled with child molestors, evil rogues, a man who calls/thinks himself to be God? Surely you would want to run from the place?

Considering the volume of information you have posted, no that's not good enough for me. So I guess I can throw out as bogus anything you post.

Steffan Philip

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 9 2006, 11:01 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 9 2006, 09:53 PM)

Here, PB. The truth shall set your laghter free!

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=9455&st=45&p=133601&#entry133601

Thanks for the chuckles!

Posted by: beartrap Sep 9 2006, 11:24 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 11:54 PM)

I'm curious about why you would want to stay in such a wicked organization if that's the case. Why not just shake the dust off your feet, as it were, and move away from this evil?

An organization filled with child molestors, evil rogues, a man who calls/thinks himself to be God? Surely you would want to run from the place?

Considering the volume of information you have posted, no that's not good enough for me. So I guess I can throw out as bogus anything you post.

Steffan Philip

Jh oh, Sister! bot

Posted by: sister Sep 10 2006, 12:03 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 11:54 PM)

I'm curious about why you would want to stay in such a wicked organization if that's the case. Why not just shake the dust off your feet, as it were, and move away from this evil?

An organization filled with child molestors, evil rogues, a man who calls/thinks himself to be God? Surely you would want to run from the place?

Considering the volume of information you have posted, no that's not good enough for me. So I guess I can throw out as bogus anything you post.

Steffan Philip

Iow do you know if I am currently at 3ABN or not? Another assumption on your part...

So have you changed your tune? Are you now agreeing that the administration of 3ABN is so vicked that employees should all kick the dust off their feet and flee into the wilderness of southern llinois? As we speak many are attempting to do just that, but with the sacrificial income received by he majority of 3ABN employees, one must first secure another position before moving on or risk the :onsequences that their children will soon go hungry.

Are you still fishing for the identity of current and former 3ABN employees that are posting on BSDA ınd will not be satisfied until you hunt us all down? Last I heard Danny hasn't offered a finders fee yet ınd I haven't seen a poster with "Sister" on the wall in the T'ville post office with a reward listed for ny capture "dead or alive".

'our belief or disbelief does not change the truths about 3ABN that have been posted on BSDA. I am ›nly one witness and there are many others that have given their testimonies and are in agreement vith mine. Or are you calling everything that everyone has posted, that contradicts your opinion, bogus"? Time will tell...much sooner than you may imagine.

Sister

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 10 2006, 12:24 AM)

Uh oh, Sister! bot

Bear, a proper southern Illinois belle would never allow her backside to be so indecently exposed in public! sofa1.gif rofl

---

Posted by: beartrap Sep 10 2006, 12:22 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 10 2006, 01:03 AM)

Bear, a proper southern Illinois belle would never allow her backside to be so indecently exposed in public! sofa1.gif rofl

rofl

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 12:25 AM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 10 2006, 12:57 AM)

How do you know if I am currently at 3ABN or not? Another assumption on your part...

So have you changed your tune? Are you now agreeing that the administration of 3ABN is so wicked that employees should all kick the dust off their feet and flee into the wilderness of southern Illinois? As we speak many are attempting to do just that, but with the sacrificial income received by the majority of 3ABN employees, one must first secure another position before moving on or risk the consequences that their children will soon go hungry.

Are you still fishing for the identity of current and former 3ABN employees that are posting on BSDA and will not be satisfied until you hunt us all down? Last I heard Danny hasn't offered a finders fee yet and I haven't seen a poster with "Sister" on the wall in the T'ville post office with a reward listed for my capture "dead or alive".

Your belief or disbelief does not change the truths about 3ABN that have been posted on BSDA. I am only one witness and there are many others that have given their testimonies and are in agreement with mine. Or are you calling everything that everyone has posted, that contradicts your opinion, "bogus"? Time will tell...much sooner than you may imagine.

Sister

Quite correct. It was an assumption. If you're not, then you no longer have current information that would be accurate. If you are, then my previous post stands.

My tune remains the same. Truth is what I'm after and not fancifully done word pictures like the ones you have painted. I don't care which way the truth points but verifiable truth it must be. My internal radar goes into alert mode when I hear additional words added on when a plain and simple sentence will do.

Should employees leave 3ABN if it is as wicked as portrayed? Yes. Should they leave before securing another job? You tell me whether I should take money from an evil man (as your portray him) because if I don't, then they will starve. I would not. I have foregone employment (and suffered hard days) by refusing unethical money but that's just me. I trust in the Lord to provide as long as I'm doing the right thing. And exactly where did I say they should flee into the wilderness of southern Illinois? Another example of your adding on words.

Once again, I am not hunting down identities. If you speak the truth, speak it plainly, honestly and in broad daylight instead of speaking from the shadows. As I repeated earlier, it is very hard to place credence when it comes from sources that cannot be verified. And once again, adding that Danny hasn't offered a finder's fee, is another example of your adding on words.

My point is that with all the things being written, it has become almost impossible to figure out what the truth is. You are one example of someone who should have spoken plainly and left it at that. Your embellishments have made all your posts suspect. The same thing I said about you goes for all those others who are in agreement with what you wrote. If they are not verifiable, then they are bogus.

And yes, I am waiting. Waiting for the truth and circumstances to show who is indeed speaking the truth. And hopefully, even sooner than I can imagine. Let's say I imagine September 19. Can it be sooner than that? In case you wonder, that is the "2-3 weeks" written about elsewhere in this forum about Linda being completely vindicated within 2 days and details being released in that timeframe.

Steffan Philip

Posted by: beartrap Sep 10 2006, 12:52 AM

Does anyone here know who "Denny" is, and if it can be verified? How about Clay, Steffan, Calvin, and Princessdi... or anyone else? What about anything they say? How can we truly verify it? Until such time as full verification of everything posted on this site is accomplished, everyone here is declared bogus and so is everything they say. Especially you, PrincessDrRe, you are especially bogus with all of the embellishments you add to your words! Oh, and all those people who agree with you are unverifiably bogus too! rofl

---

Posted by: calvin Sep 10 2006, 08:50 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 01:25 AM)

Once again, I am not hunting down identities. If you speak the truth, speak it plainly, honestly and in broad daylight instead of speaking from the shadows. As I repeated earlier, it is very hard to place credence when it comes from sources that cannot be verified. And once again, adding that Danny hasn't offered a finder's fee, is another example of your adding on words.

My point is that with all the things being written, it has become almost impossible to figure out what the truth is. You are one example of someone who should have spoken plainly and left it at that. Your embellishments have made all your posts suspect. The same thing I said about you goes for all those others who are in agreement with what you wrote. If they are not verifiable, then they are bogus.

And yes, I am waiting. Waiting for the truth and circumstances to show who is indeed speaking the truth. And hopefully, even sooner than I can imagine. Let's say I imagine September 19. Can it be sooner than that? In case you wonder, that is the "2-3 weeks" written about elsewhere in this forum about Linda being completely vindicated within 2 days and details being released in that timeframe.

Steffan Philip

What you have here is the most comprehensive discussion on the saga of 3abn that you are going to ine anywhere. . I agree, there is a lot to this story to be skeptical about. Let me remind everyone that his is a discussion board, opinions and ideals are always welcome here. All sides are welcome to present their case. To find whatever truth is available here, you are going to have to dig for it and use your God given ability to reason, evaluate, and come to your own conclusions after you have nternalized the evidence, however suspect it may be. There is a lot of data here, much of it collaborated by insiders on the scene, some of those insiders have identified themselves and others have not. Determine for yourself how creditable the storytellers are.

Posted by: inga Sep 10 2006, 10:40 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 10:42 AM)

How does that make him a cult leader? Waco, Jonestown and almost all the cults I read about had very strict control over who goes in and who comes out. The members of the cult were controlled, brain-washed and confined to the compound. How is it possible for 3abn to be called a cult when it seems that people are employed there and get to go home every night?

Dan isn't in the same class as Koresh & Jones -- yet. However, Dan certainly appears to exercise strict control" over his employees. (Have you read the thread on "new security measures" that ndicates installation of AV recording equipment that is set up to recognize key words and phrases?) If you had read the threads available on this forum, you would know that brainwashing does happen. In act, even Dan's public broadcasts do a certain amount of "brainwashing" through his continually epeated statements that he receives direct "words from the Lord," that any criticism of the administration of 3ABN (i.e. Dan Shelton) is an attack on God, etc. Folks listening to these oft-epeated statements begin to believe them, especially if they watch only 3ABN -- which is the case for lot of folks. The main difference in Waco was that, at a certain point, folks could not leave the brainwashing sessions.

You speak of 3ABN employees getting to "go home" every night. However, where they get to go, isn't eally "home," which is where they came from in order to "serve God" by working for 3ABN at substandard wages, living in substandard housing and requiring government subsidy in order to survive.

You imply that employees have nothing to lose by just resigning and leaving. That demonstrates you have not read the personal testimonies of former employees and what Dan Shelton does to prevent hem from being employed elsewhere. Add to the equation that, by the time folks realize that they've been "had," their financial resources are used up, and they have no reserve for food and clothing, let alone moving. Thus they are not physically locked in to a compound with walls, but they are as truly locked in" by circumstances Dan Shelton controls. For the sake of their sanity they must believe that Dan is truly led by God for as long as they possibly can, as was true for many of David Koresh's victims. (I still find it difficult to believe that he snared so many apparently intelligent, reasonable people. Those at Waco were not all "kooks.")

And you wonder why employees don't come on this board giving their real names and addresses? Considering the underhanded means Dan has used to spy on people, you wonder that they suspect you of being a spy? This is one place they are believed , and that surely must be important to folks who are in such desperate circumstances.

Of course there are certain others working at 3ABN who are well-paid and/or have millions $'s available of personal means.

> QUOTE
>
> It is very difficult for me to take information coming from sources like these without identity verification. (Yes, yes, I know, the same insinuation that I am in the employ of 3ABN). However, people who speak out against injustice and evil, it seems, do so knowing that God is their protection and they have nothing to fear.

Like I said, you don't know what you're saying. Even Elder Johann Thorvaldsson, who was not dependent on 3ABN for a salary, since he worked as a European liaison as a volunteer, has paid a heavy price for opposing Dan Shelton and refusing to spread lies about Linda. Even though I've not had the honor of meeting his late wife, Irmgard, I'm convinced through her personal testimony, that she was a sweet Christian lady who loved Linda dearly and was terribly stressed by all the persecution Linda had to endure. Knowing that stress lowers the body's immune system's ability to fight cancer, I have no doubt that Dan's continual harassment of Linda and of Johann and Irmgard contributed to her untimely death.

Yes, Johann has paid a price for his "whistle-blowing."

> QUOTE
>
> How is it that 3ABN employees have so much to fear? Loss of job? Name? Income? The Lord will provide and none can harm because God is their shield.

From your posts, I'm guessing you're rather young, and make statements with the brashness and assurance of youth. Even David, the Psalmist, recognized that the "wicked prosper" while the righteous often suffer. While it is true that nothing can befall us that the Lord does not allow, it takes a mature Christian faith to deal with the fall-out. The results for 3ABN employees can be homelessness and starvation, as well as loss of reputation and income -- not just present, but future, since Dan does all in his power to make sure no one else employs them. What makes you think that God will shield 3ABN employees more than He shielded His own Son?

Until you have demonstrated that you are willing to give up all to ensure that wrongs are righted, please do not judge 3ABN employees so harshly.

Posted by: inga Sep 10 2006, 11:15 AM

> QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 9 2006, 10:59 PM) ☐
>
> But if someone says, I have this to report in 3ABN, how am I supposed to figure out whether that person is speaking the truth, or at least, verifiable truth.

Some of us happen to know enough about individuals involved that is verifiable that we accept their words as true and can judge other postings by those criteria. Others have used the good brains God gave them to put the pieces of the puzzle together. That's why we "know" more than you do.

Now, just why do you need to "know" all these things?

There is plenty of public information available that is rather problematic. If you had read the information availabe on this board, you would know of this information. Instead, you demand that persons reveal their identity and expose themselves to grave danger. What makes you think you have the right?

QUOTE

Linda spoke to Dr. AA for very long periods of time (she admits it). But for what reason - both sides differ.
Danny divorced Linda.
Danny remarried.

Then we have "stories" of things that go on inside 3ABN. Most people seem to forget that this was happening even when Linda was at 3ABN. The plane, the horses, the (reported) arrogance, both of them, not just one, indulged.

So do you consider long phone conversations with one's child's doctor as grounds for divorce? (If you do, the Bible doesn't, and 3ABN supposedly promotes a conservative Adventist view which takes the Bible literally. The only kind of "spiritual adultery" known in the Bible is for those "married to God" worshiping other gods. Perhaps that's really what Dan means -- that Linda transgressed by not worshiping Dan Shelton as god?)

You forget a few other verifiable facts:

- Linda did not marry again.
- Statements on the 3ABN website implied the worst about Linda, without giving any evidence. (And now you want evidence that their unverified implications are not true??
- Walt Thompson has sent out letters vilifying Linda and implying that Dan is the chosen of God while Linda and her supporters are equated with Lucifer.
- Danny's current wife moved in very close to him very shortly after Linda was kicked out. He started keeping company with her rather quickly, as I understand. Although she came for "employment' reasons, her "employment" record is a bit unusual, to put it charitably. (You can find the details on this board, if 3ABN employees won't tell you over the phone.)
- Publicly available records give rise to grave questions regarding millions of dollars sent to 3ABN for the ministry, millions that are not accounted for. There are other questions regarding financial misdeeds.
- Dr. Abrahamsen gave his own version of events, and his identity, his reputation in his own church and conference, and his reputation and experience as a medical doctor are verifiable. (If you don't accept this, just what kind of "verifiable information" do you expect??)
- If you con't accept Dr. Abrahamsen's testimony because he has been accused by Dan Shelton and thus would have a stake in the affair, what excuse do you have for not accepting Johann Thorvaldsson's testimony? He has absolutely no stake in this whatsover, except that he cannot abide the abuse of innocent victims. His reputation and previous record of service in the Seventh-day Adventist church is verifiable, if you care to go to the effort.
- Dan's statements on 3ABN continue to refer to his "former wife" in a derogatory manner.

What I see happening is that you ask for verification which you are unlikely to believe anyway, since it comes via this board. (There are those on this board who have given a great deal of information about their identities, with at least one having given his true name. If you are too lazy to read the posts here to find out the details, why should anyone here tell you?)

You don't have to know anything more than is widely and publicly available, and you don't even have to know that. However, if you really want to know, there's plenty of solid information on this board, verified by several parties, for you to make up your own mind.

Yes, there are emotional statements, exaggerated statements and speculation, but you shouldn't have too hard a time to sort things out if you use the brains God gave you.

This continual asking for identities and verification simply demonstrates to the users of this board that you don't care enough to do your own reading, and you just might be a Dan Shelton plant, or even an alter identity for him. (Hey, don't blame people too much for being paranoid when they have already either experienced harassment themselves or watched the harassment of others.))

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 10 2006, 04:25 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 10 2006, 11:40 AM)

Even though I've not had the honor of meeting his late wife, Irmgard, I'm convinced through her personal testimony, that she was a sweet Christian lady who loved Linda dearly and was terribly stressed by all the persecution Linda had to endure.

I can testify that this lady was, indeed, as you say, a "sweet Chrstian lady."

Posted by: Johann Sep 10 2006, 05:08 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 11 2006, 12:25 AM)

I can testify that this lady was, indeed, as you say, a "sweet Chrstian lady."

I can testify that Irmgard told Danny she wanted to give him a real good spanking for all the evil he did to Linda.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 10 2006, 05:41 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 03:08 PM)

I can testify that Irmgard told Danny she wanted to give him a real good spanking for all the evil he did to Linda.

Johann, that certainly showed Irmgard's strength of character!

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 10 2006, 07:27 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 10 2006, 06:08 PM)

I can testify that Irmgard told Danny she wanted to give him a real good spanking for all the evil he did to Linda.

My mama always told me that I would never be too old. She's threatened a few times! And how I would have loved to see Irmgard after Dan! Whew!

bot

Hey - I bet we could sell tickets!

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 07:28 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 10 2006, 11:40 AM)

Dan isn't in the same class as Koresh & Jones -- yet. However, Dan certainly appears to exercise "strict control" over his employees. (Have you read the thread on "new security measures" that indicates installation of AV recording equipment that is set up to recognize key words and phrases?)

It is standard practice in all the companies I've worked in to
a. have card swipe for entry and exit. No card, no entry, no exit.
b. record _every_ telephone conversation, with phrase recognition
c. Backup and store _every_ email that passes through company servers
d. Have video cameras in every possible location, including parking, where parking is applicable.

QUOTE

If you had read the threads available on this forum, you would know that brainwashing does happen. In fact, even Dan's public broadcasts do a certain amount of "brainwashing" through his continually repeated statements that he receives direct "words from the Lord," that any criticism of the administration of 3ABN (i.e. Dan Shelton) is an attack on God, etc. Folks listening to these oft-repeated statements begin to believe them, especially if they watch only 3ABN -- which is the case for a lot of folks. The main difference in Waco was that, at a certain point, folks could not leave the brainwashing sessions.

So I did a quick poll of people I know. Of the 28 people I asked, none of them "believed" in Danny. Sure they watched 3ABN, and Hope and LLBN, but none actually believed that just because Danny said it, it must be. Count me amongst them, making it 26. So I don't know which folks you know, obviously you don't know the folks I know.

QUOTE

You speak of 3ABN employees getting to "go home" every night. However, where they get to go, isn't really "home," which is where they came from in order to "serve God" by working for 3ABN at substandard wages, living in substandard housing and requiring government subsidy in order to survive.

So leave and get a job where you don't have to have substandard housing and government subsidies.

If you serve the Lord with all your heart, difficulties on earth are pointless. And as I pointed out before, I have personally experienced this.

> QUOTE
>
> You imply that employees have nothing to lose by just resigning and leaving. That demonstrates you have not read the personal testimonies of former employees and what Dan Shelton does to prevent them from being employed elsewhere. Add to the equation that, by the time folks realize that they've been "had," their financial resources are used up, and they have no reserve for food and clothing, let alone moving. Thus they are not physically locked in to a compound with walls, but they are as truly "locked in" by circumstances Dan Shelton controls. For the sake of their sanity they must believe that Dan is truly led by God for as long as they possibly can, as was true for many of David Koresh's victims. (I still find it difficult to believe that he snared so many apparently intelligent, reasonable people. Those at Waco were not all "kooks.")

So locked in by circumstances becomes equating 3ABN with Koresh? I know plenty of people locked in by circumstances, so they are members of a cult?

> QUOTE
>
> And you wonder why employees don't come on this board giving their real names and addresses? Considering the underhanded means Dan has used to spy on people, you wonder that they suspect you of being a spy? This is one place they are believed , and that surely must be important to folks who are in such desperate circumstances.

I don't ask for real addresses. Real names, yes. Verifiable information, yes. Addresses? Please point out where I have asked for addresses. I don't wonder about why I am thought of as a spy. I simply keep repeating that I am not. Let me get this straight. I don't believe you, but I am asked to. You don't believe me and I ask you to. Can you see how this is never going to be resolved?

> QUOTE
>
> Like I said, you don't know what you're saying. Even Elder Johann Thorvaldsson, who was not dependent on 3ABN for a salary, since he worked as a European liaison as a volunteer, has paid a heavy price for opposing Dan Shelton and refusing to spread lies about Linda. Even though I've not had the honor of meeting his late wife, Irmgard, I'm convinced through her personal testimony, that she was a sweet Christian lady who loved Linda dearly and was terribly stressed by all the persecution Linda had to endure. Knowing that stress lowers the body's immune system's ability to fight cancer, I have no doubt that Dan's continual harassment of Linda and of Johann and Irmgard contributed to her untimely death.

Like I keep saying, when I read "dressed" up narratives, I can't believe them. And it is quite a stretch to blame the unfortunate Irmgard's cancer related death to Danny. But yet you do.

> QUOTE
>
> Yes, Johann has paid a price for his "whistle-blowing."

I wonder which price. Johann himself states that Danny tried to make life difficult for him. Yet his local church and his conference rejected any interference. He continues to get his sustentation from the church. These are his words, not mine.

QUOTE

From your posts, I'm guessing you're rather young, and make statements with the brashness and assurance of youth. Even David, the Psalmist, recognized that the "wicked prosper" while the righteous often suffer. While it is true that nothing can befall us that the Lord does not allow, it takes a mature Christian faith to deal with the fall-out. The results for 3ABN employees can be homelessness and starvation, as well as loss of reputation and income -- not just present, but future, since Dan does all in his power to make sure no one else employs them. What makes you think that God will shield 3ABN employees more than He shielded His own Son?

Until you have demonstrated that you are willing to give up all to ensure that wrongs are righted, please do not judge 3ABN employees so harshly.

I'm not young and if I were, I presume I wouldn't spend so much time on this forum. And there you have it. God did not promise us riches and glory on earth for following Him. On the contrary, He said men will persecute you for My sake. What He did promise was an inner peace. So 3ABN employees suffering hardship from Danny have an exemption? They can continue working under this "evil" because people in this forum say they will be persecuted? As I pointed out before, I have taken ethical stands that have cost me my job and subsequent hardships. What did not change was the peace I had, regardless of circumstances.

As far as my being a spy, please be patient. I will reply to all other posts that directly addressed me, reveal more information concerning myself and will retire from this forum permanently.

The admins can then verify, via my IP address, that I am not lurking on this forum, reading more posts that start to make less and less logical sense.

Steffan Philip

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 10 2006, 08:08 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 10 2006, 11:40 AM)

The results for 3ABN employees can be homelessness and starvation, as well as loss of reputation and income . . .

Here is the type of hyperbole that Steffen, myself, and a few others just don't buy. When you throw this stuff out, make statements like this with absolutely no supportive material it makes it very difficult to accept your assertions.

Who has starved, lived in a car or under a bridge, who has lost reputation and how, and whose income has been eliminated as a result of working at 3ABN and being let go, fired, or left of their own volition because they have disagreed with some aspect of how 3ABN is run? (terribly constructed sentence sorry)

Now, I could say I called 3ABN and talked with Danny, Pastor John, Dr. Thompson, May Chung, Kenneth Denslow, Bill Hulsey, Ellsworth McKee, G. Ralph Thompson, Owen Troy, Larry Welch, Shelley Quinn, Brenda and the sisters, Kay Kuzma, the Steensons, Moses Primo, Mark Finley, or Doug Bacehlor (I am sure I got someones name spelled wrong there) and they assured me that the allegations are false. They could have agreed that Danny should have handled things differently, but that the running of this ministery (from the broom pusher to the board room) is in the hands of God and though humans with faults are doing the daily tasks - with God's guiding hand everything will work out the way it needs to to keep the ministry operating for the greater glory of our Heavenly Father. I could share that and the pro-Linda faction would deride and say that whomever I spoke with is a 3ABN stooge and lying to me. That begs the question - how do any of us know that those who claim to "have the true facts" are telling the truth? We don't, we can't. We have to accept on faith what you say, we have to accept on faith the words of 3ABN - the only thing we have that is "official" would be the tax documents in the case that is still pending before the appelate court in Illinois, and the divorce degree which of course will not give any detail because they are basically form documents these days - there is nothing else official, the letters form Dr. Thompson, and Dr. Abrahamsen, and Johan. The other documents here are not official, as they even titled themselves so (The Unofficial History of 3ABN), so can not be considered reliable.

You ask, no expect, those coming here to gather what they can so they can decide to support or not 3ABN to accept all you say as the unmitigated truth. There is an arrogance in that, can you not see that? Maybe you don't realize this - you have told your tale so long that you can not understand why anyone would doubt you - not thinking there is an equal and just as strong corresponding question - why should we believe you. There is offense taken when we don't accept and join in the harping. If this is indeed a place you want to share your story and your side of the issues then you must be willing and ready to accept - without malice - that there will be people who will come in here, ask pointed questions, not like your response, disagree with it, just as there will be those who accept your "testimony" as full of truth.

In a high school, debate team members are those who do not take the fact that someone is going to disagree with them personally - you can't. If you want to be taken seriously, if you want your position to carry weight, you need to be emotionless when it comes to the case against you - though not emotionless when making your case. You can not belittle, ridicule, berate, question the intellligence, integrity, or character of your opposition - in the end this will lead to you losing the support of those you wish to convince.

Yes Panama, this is lengthy, but I guarentee you I thought it through long and hard, as well as wrote and rewrote it a few times to try and be even handed and as PrincessDi asked yesterday, take it down a few notches (you were right PD, I was a bit edgy and defensive).

There are a few more thoughts I have, but will wait until I can run them through a reductionist machine so they are more concise.

- fhb

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 10 2006, 08:19 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 08:28 PM)

It is standard practice in all the companies I've worked in to
a. have card swipe for entry and exit. No card, no entry, no exit.
b. record _every_ telephone conversation, with phrase recognition
c. Backup and store _every_ email that passes through company servers
d. Have video cameras in every possible location, including parking, where parking is applicable.

This does not discribe only Fortune 500 companies or financial institutions or governmental offices - it applies ot a myriad of business in a plehora of businesses/industry/think tanks. In an age when the most valuable comodity is information, these are the safeguards to keep the product created secure as well as to make sure the post-it notes aren't headed home as a way to make shopping lists and post them on the fridge.

This is SOP in western society.

- fhb

Posted by: steffan Sep 10 2006, 10:04 PM

I tried editing this post to get the quotes come out right but it isn't happening.
So here goes

[quote name='inga' date='Sep 10 2006, 12:15 PM' post='151128']
Some of us happen to know enough about individuals involved that is verifiable that we accept their words as true and can judge other postings by those criteria. Others have used the good brains God gave them to put the pieces of the puzzle together. That's why we "know" more than you do.

Now, [b]just why do you need to "know" all these things?[/b]
[/quote]

Some of you know these people and that somehow makes everything you say verified? "John Smith verifies that Susan Q is speaking the truth" is worthless in terms of veracity.
I'm sorry, we are playing games here now? We are putting a puzzle together? How does that work with plain and honest speaking?

[quote]

There is plenty of public information available that is rather problematic. If you had read the information availabe on this board, you would know of this information. Instead, you demand that persons reveal their identity and expose themselves to grave danger. What makes you think you have the right?
[/quote]
Grave danger? Danny calls Dr. AA's church to demand something be done about it and is turned down by their church pastor and is called a nut case and he seems to be in no physical danger (Johann and/or Dr. AA, in their own words). As far as I can tell, grave danger would imply what? Death? Disfigurement? Another example of hyperbole.

[quote]
So do you consider long phone conversations with one's child's doctor as grounds for divorce? (If you do, the Bible doesn't, and 3ABN supposedly promotes a conservative Adventist view which takes the Bible literally. The only kind of "spiritual adultery" known in the Bible is for those "married to God" worshiping other gods. Perhaps that's really what Dan means -- that Linda transgressed by not worshiping Dan Shelton as god?)
[/quote]

So of course I asked my wife the same question. What if her child was being treated by a doctor? How much time would she spend on the phone with the doctor (and _not_ her son). 30 minutes, 1 hour to stretch it, maybe 2 hours. Every day? Here's her answer. 1. Find out how my son is doing 2. Thank the doctor effusively 3. Talk to my son as long as posisble. Total time for 1+2? 15 to 30 minutes. So how did 6 hours sound to her? She said that woman is foolish and crazy for even doing such a thing. Sorry, not my words, my wife's (whose question who started me on this journey of inquiry). What if she did it every day? Wife replies, you would raise a ruckus. Darn right, I would. And what if you refused to stop? No answer there and I don't think there could be one for this tangled situation.
On the other hand, Jesus said adultery can be committed in the heart and since I am not God, I don't know what was in your heart, only how long your phone conversations were.
And again, your introducing silly elements of conversation "Linda transgressed by not worshipping Dan Shelton as God" which have no real bearing on the conversation make me distrust anything you post.

[quote]
[*]Statements on the 3ABN website implied the worst about Linda, without giving any evidence. (And now you want evidence that their unverified implications are not true??
[/quote]
That's your opinion. I can read very plainly "Linda did not follow counsel" and see no implication. Your mind is bent on implication. To-may-to to-mah-to.

[quote]
[*]Walt Thompson has sent out letters vilifying Linda and implying that Dan is the chosen of God while Linda and her supporters are equated with Lucifer.
[/quote]
See above.

[quote]
[*]Danny's current wife moved in very close to him very shortly after Linda was kicked out. He started keeping company with her rather quickly, as I understand. Although she came for "employment' reasons, her "employment" record is a bit unusual, to put it charitably. (You can find the details on this board, if 3ABN employees won't tell you over the phone.)
[/quote]
Unverified bogus information.

[quote]
[*]Publicly available records give rise to grave questions regarding millions of dollars sent to 3ABN for the ministry, millions that are not accounted for. There are other questions regarding financial misdeeds.
[/quote]
When Linda was there. Linda also lied about receiving funds for the CDs she sells. Also in the same document.

[quote]
[*]Dr. Abrahamsen gave his own version of events, and his identity, his reputation in his own church and conference, his reputation in his own church and conference, and his reputation and experience as a medical doctor are verifiable. (If you don't accept this, just what kind of "verifiable information" do you expect??)
[*]If you con't accept Dr. Abrahamsen's testimony because he has been accused by Dan Shelton and thus would have a stake in the affair, what excuse do you have for not accepting Johann Thorvaldsson's testimony? He has absolutely no stake in this whatsover, except that he cannot abide the abuse of innocent victims. His reputation and previous record of service in the Seventh-day Adventist church is verifiable, if you care to go to the effort.
[/quote]
Dr. Walt T gave his own version of events and his identity, his reputation in his own church and conference, his reputation in his own church and conference, and his reputation and experience as a medical doctor are verifiable. (If you don't accept this, just what kind of "verifiable information" do you expect??)
And should I continue cutting and pasting the rest of paragraph or do you get the drift?

[quote]
[*]Dan's statements on 3ABN continue to refer to his "former wife" in a derogatory manner.
[/quote]
It's obvious you're watching 3ABN Venus and I'm watching 3ABN Mars since you seem to read a lot into things that are not even said. Like I said, there is no meeting of minds here, just mutual distrust.

[quote]
What I see happening is that you ask for verification which you are unlikely to believe anyway, since it comes via this board. (There are those on this board who have given a great deal of information about their identities, with at least one having given his true name. If you are too lazy to read the posts here to find out the details, why should anyone here tell you?)

[/quote]
"An exalted one close to Danny and a little bundle of joy"
I asked for the name of the exalted one and the name of the little bundle of joy at first. Nobody has yet named these people.
You are obviously too lazy to even read the latest posts.

[quote]
You don't have to know anything more than is widely and publicly available, and you don't even have to know that. However, if you really want to know, there's plenty of solid information on this board, verified by several parties, for you to make up your own mind.

Yes, there are emotional statements, exaggerated statements and speculation, but you shouldn't have too hard a time to sort things out if you use the brains God gave you.
[/quote]
bogus information is not made solid information just because you say so. Verification by shadows is not verification, it's just more bogus verification.

[quote]
This continual asking for identities and verification simply demonstrates to the users of this board that you don't care enough to do your own reading, and you just might be a Dan Shelton plant, or even an alter identity for him. (Hey, don't blame people too much for being paranoid when they have already either experienced harassment themselves or watched the harassment of others.))
[/quote]
So I should not ask for verification. Just drink the anti-Danny kool-aid and all will be well with me? Sorry, I'm not that kind. Your paranoia exists in your own mind and I pray that you will be cured.

And this is as good a time as any to reveal more details about myself and bid sayonara to this nasty swamp.

Steffan Philip
member of the Greater New York Conference
New York

Feel free to contact me via email since I won't be here.

And this time, for real, goodbye and God bless.

Steffan
steffankp@gmail.com

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 10 2006, 10:13 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 10 2006, 06:08 PM)

Here is the type of hyperbole that Steffen, myself, and a few others just don't buy. When you throw this stuff out, make statements like this with absolutely no supportive material it makes it very difficult to accept your assertions.

Who has starved, lived in a car or under a bridge, who has lost reputation and how, and whose income has been eliminated as a result of working at 3ABN and being let go, fired, or left of their own volition because they have disagreed with some aspect of how 3ABN is run? (terribly constructed sentence sorry)

Now, I could say I called 3ABN and talked with Danny, Pastor John, Dr. Thompson, May Chung, Kenneth Denslow, Bill Hulsey, Ellsworth McKee, G. Ralph Thompson, Owen Troy, Larry Welch, Shelley Quinn, Brenda and the sisters, Kay Kuzma, the Steensons, Moses Primo, Mark Finley, or Doug Bacehlor (I am sure I got someones name spelled wrong there) and they assured me that the allegations are false. They could have agreed that Danny should have handled things differently, but that the running of this ministery (from the broom pusher to the board room) is in the hands of God and though humans with faults are doing the daily tasks - with God's guiding hand everything will work out the way it needs to to keep the ministry operating for the greater glory of our Heavenly Father. I could share that and the pro-Linda faction would deride and say that whomever I spoke with is a 3ABN stooge and lying to me. That begs the question - how do any of us know that those who claim to "have the true facts" are telling the truth? We don't, we can't. We have to accept on faith what you say, we have to accept on faith the words of 3ABN - the only thing we have that is "official" would be the tax documents in the case that is still pending before the appelate court in Illinois, and the divorce degree which of course will not give any detail because they are basically form documents these days - there is nothing else official, the letters form Dr. Thompson, and Dr. Abrahamsen, and Johan. The other documents here are not official, as they even titled themselves so (The Unofficial History of 3ABN), so can not be considered reliable.

You ask, no expect, those coming here to gather what they can so they can decide to support or not 3ABN to accept all you say as the unmitigated truth. There is an arrogance in that, can you not see that? Maybe you don't realize this - you have told your tale so long that you can not understand why anyone would doubt you - not thinking there is an equal and just as strong corresponding question - why should we believe you. There is offense taken when we don't accept and join in the harping. If this is indeed a place you want to share your story and your side of the issues then you must be willing and ready to accept - without malice - that there will be people who will come in here, ask pointed questions, not like your response, disagree with it, just as there will be those who accept your "testimony" as full of truth.

In a high school, debate team members are those who do not take the fact that someone is going to disagree with them personally - you can't. If you want to be taken seriously, if you want your position to carry weight, you need to be emotionless when it comes to the case against you - though not emotionless when making your case. You can not belittle, ridicule, berate, question the intellligence, integrity, or character of your opposition - in the end this will lead to you losing the support of those you wish to convince.

Yes Panama, this is lengthy, but I guarentee you I thought it through long and hard, as well as wrote and rewrote it a few times to try and be even handed and as PrincessDi asked yesterday, take it down a few notches (you were right PD, I was a bit edgy and defensive).

There are a few more thoughts I have, but will wait until I can run them through a reductionist machine so they are more concise.

- fhb

FHB, I am impressed. This is solid reasoning and we all would do well to take it to heart. Well done.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 10 2006, 10:23 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 08:04 PM)

And this time, for real, goodbye and God bless.

Steffan
steffankp@gmail.com

You made some very good points. Goodbye Steffan.

Posted by: Ralph Sep 10 2006, 11:44 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 10 2006, 07:08 PM)

Now, I could say I called 3ABN and talked with Danny, Pastor John, Dr. Thompson, May Chung, Kenneth Denslow, Bill Hulsey, Ellsworth McKee, G. Ralph Thompson, Owen Troy, Larry Welch, Shelley Quinn, Brenda and the sisters, Kay Kuzma, the Steensons, Moses Primo, Mark Finley, or Doug Bacehlor (I am sure I got someones name spelled wrong there) and they assured me that the allegations are false. They could have agreed that Danny should have handled things differently, but that the running of this ministery (from the broom pusher to the board room) is in the hands of God and though humans with faults are doing the daily tasks - with God's guiding hand everything will work out the way it needs to to keep the ministry operating for the greater glory of our Heavenly Father. I could share that and the pro-Linda faction would deride and say that whomever I spoke with is a 3ABN stooge and lying to me.

Did you contact each of these people, or did you not? "Could" is such a slippery word and I notice that you used it three times in the quote. If you contacted all the people you mentioned, this is first hand information and I will sit up and take notice. But if you did not, I will just assume that this is an old debating trick where you have other people mouth your personal thoughts.

Posted by: Ralph Sep 11 2006, 12:38 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 10 2006, 09:40 AM)

You imply that employees have nothing to lose by just resigning and leaving. That demonstrates you have not read the personal testimonies of former employees and what Dan Shelton does to prevent them from being employed elsewhere. Add to the equation that, by the time folks realize that they've been "had," their financial resources are used up, and they have no reserve for food and clothing, let alone moving. Thus they are not physically locked in to a compound with walls, but they are as truly "locked in" by circumstances Dan Shelton controls.

Some good thoughts, Inga. Even under the most ideal circumstances, changing jobs and moving brings up a number of challenges.
1. Locating a job where a person can be proficient. If a person is working full time, it is often difficult to get away for an interview. If a person is in a specialized field, he may have to move hundreds of miles to find any place where he can work in his field.
2. A move is traumatic on the family. Children have been with their friends for most of their lives. To set them in a church and a new school, regardless of how nice they are, is not easy.
3. Moving is expensive, and a person always has to buy some new things for a new place. My mother said that three moves was equal to one fire.

I have a burden for the workers who are faithfully doing their work, and are scarcely aware what is happening in the upper eschalons of an organization. They are working as unto the Lord. God bless each one of them.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 11 2006, 01:38 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 10 2006, 09:08 PM)

Now, I could say I called 3ABN and talked with Danny, Pastor John, Dr. Thompson, May Chung, Kenneth Denslow, Bill Hulsey, Ellsworth McKee, G. Ralph Thompson, Owen Troy, Larry Welch, Shelley Quinn, Brenda and the sisters, Kay Kuzma, the Steensons, Moses Primo, Mark Finley, or Doug Bacehlor (I am sure I got someones name spelled wrong there) and they assured me that the allegations are false.
- fhb

You should take your advice and make some of those phone calls. That would be solid reasoning, but just saying you "could" is not.

Mark Finley was at the 2004 3ABN Campmeeting when some things were transpiring, so why not start with him? He's mentioned in Arild Abrahamsen's letter. Ask Finley what he saw and heard. What makes you think Finley will assure you of anything?

Then, ask Doug Batchelor or Amazing Facts if they donated TV equipment to Danny Shelton, in return for air time. Find out if Batchelor assures you of anything.

Ask Walter Thompson to FedEX you his "unquestionable" evidence.
Get Thompson's audio copies of the phone calls, too. Look for your assurance in the the FedEx envelope you receive from him - filled with vital evidence. (Yes, that will happen.)

http://www.chattanoogan.com/articles/article_78798.asp

"Chattanoogan - Attorneys in a $16 million lawsuit are questioning why the chairman of the board of McKee Bakery cannot give a deposition in the case. Ellsworth McKee, who is also chief administrative officer at McKee, testified Tuesday morning that he suffers from sleep apnea and has trouble staying awake...It says the problem is causing "decreased ability to concentrate and make proper decisions."

Will Ellsworth, a 3ABN board member, stay awake long enough to even talk to you about his proper decision regarding Linda Shelton? Was he even awake during his own board meeting when they fired Linda? I'm not so sure.

As for the paid management and board members of 3ABN on your list, that's all they are.

I remember when the executives of tobacco companies were assuring everyone cigarettes did not cause cancer, when, in fact, they had internal documents saying the exact opposite. How much were the assurances of these paid executives worth, in the end? Some of these tobacco executives had social status in their respective communities. But they were still lying.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 01:57 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 04:08 AM)

Now, I could say I called 3ABN and talked with Danny, Pastor John, Dr. Thompson, May Chung, Kenneth Denslow, Bill Hulsey, Ellsworth McKee, G. Ralph Thompson, Owen Troy, Larry Welch, Shelley Quinn, Brenda and the sisters, Kay Kuzma, the Steensons, Moses Primo, Mark Finley, or Doug Bacehlor

---

- fhb

'ou state you "could", but I have actually talked to 13 of the people you mention, 8 of them about this ssue. None of them have been able to convince me that 3ABN is giving a true picture of what ıappened, because they have not been able to show any valid evidense against what Irmgarad and I :xperienced, saw and heard. They have merely confirmed my conviction that the whole affair was ;taged for a certain purpose.

Posted by: lurker Sep 11 2006, 06:45 AM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 11 2006, 01:38 AM)

Some good thoughts, Inga. Even under the most ideal circumstances, changing jobs and moving brings up a number of challenges.
1. Locating a job where a person can be proficient. If a person is working full time, it is often difficult to get away for an interview. If a person is in a specialized field, he may have to move hundreds of miles to find any place where he can work in his field.
2. A move is traumatic on the family. Children have been with their friends for most of their lives. To set them in a church and a new school, regardless of how nice they are, is not easy.
3. Moving is expensive, and a person always has to buy some new things for a new place. My mother said that three moves was equal to one fire.

I have a burden for the workers who are faithfully doing their work, and are scarcely aware what is happening in the upper eschalons of an organization. They are working as unto the Lord. God bless each one of them.

'here is another reason why some may be staying at 3ABN though they are convinced that there is a ›roblem there. There may be divided families where one spouse is convinced that Danny is God's nessenger and the other spouse is convinced that a cultlike situation exists among the followers of)S. As in any cult there is concern about families being broken up if one leaves the cult and the other ;tays. One may not be able to convince the other that it is not his or her duty to stay loyal to the eader and of the danger of remaining there. That one may stay out of concern for the deceived one, ıoping to be able to protect him or her. Or they may be concerned about their children or parents who ıre in the cult.

Posted by: Freedom Sep 11 2006, 07:47 AM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 10 2006, 10:38 PM)

Some good thoughts, Inga. Even under the most ideal circumstances, changing jobs and moving brings up a number of challenges.

1. Locating a job where a person can be proficient. If a person is working full time, it is often difficult to get away for an interview. If a person is in a specialized field, he may have to move hundreds of miles to find any place where he can work in his field.
2. A move is traumatic on the family. Children have been with their friends for most of their lives. To set them in a church and a new school, regardless of how nice they are, is not easy.
3. Moving is expensive, and a person always has to buy some new things for a new place. My mother said that three moves was equal to one fire.

I have a burden for the workers who are faithfully doing their work, and are scarcely aware what is happening in the upper eschalons of an organization. They are working as unto the Lord. God bless each one of them.

Also, is the fact the if an employee tries to find work elsewhere, or does -- some of the management calls/writes to the new employer or potential employer and "bad mouths" etc., the employee.

So for an employee to leave is even more difficult!

Freedom

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 11 2006, 08:01 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 02:57 AM)

You state you "could", but I have actually talked to 13 of the people you mention, 8 of them about this issue. None of them have been able to convince me that 3ABN is giving a true picture of what happened, because they have not been able to show any valid evidense against what Irmgarad and I experienced, saw and heard. They have merely confirmed my conviction that the whole affair was staged for a certain purpose.

Okay, three responses to my posting, all focused on one paragraph and all missed the point completely.

Just to make it as concise as possible - the point of the pargraph was that it wouldn't matter to any one of you that an individual at 3ABN made the comments to me you would dismiss it out of hand because they are employed by 3ABN (which makes me wonder why you believe HOTY, after all he works there too.) In the process to deify Linda and vilify Danny I fear there is no room for the unmitigated truth. There is no willingness to listen to anyone associated with 3ABN.

Not sure if I read your sentence correctly PP, but the board members are not paid.

BTW, can any of you answer the question I asked:

QUOTE

Who has starved, lived in a car or under a bridge, who has lost reputation and how, and whose income has been eliminated as a result of working at 3ABN and being let go, fired, or left of their own volition because they have disagreed with some aspect of how 3ABN is run? (terribly constructed sentence sorry)

- fhb

Posted by: Chez Sep 11 2006, 08:35 AM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 01:25 AM)

Once again, I am not hunting down identities.

Steffan Philip

Yes, you are hunting down identities. [Tell the truth and shame the Devil.] The truth will come forth with or without these people. These folk have experienced and/or witnessed injustices or wrongs and they are speaking against it. There were people in the Branch Davidian group who experienced and witnessed wrongful acts. Many of them said nothing and some of them are not alive. Then there is the other group who have gone or will go to their graves knowing that they could have saved some people, only if they would have revealed the wrongful acts that were occurring.

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 08:28 PM)

So leave and get a job where you don't have to have substandard housing and government subsidies. If you serve the Lord with all your heart, difficulties on earth are pointless. And as I pointed out before, I have personally experienced this.

Steffan Philip

It is easy to tell people to leave a place and get a job. It is easier said than done. Why don't you offer these people a job (with a decent salary) and provide housing and other amenities for them? When I visited that community (before the break up), my husband and I had this "eery" feeling about the community. Leaving isn't always that easy.

Posted by: Chez Sep 11 2006, 08:46 AM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 11 2006, 07:45 AM)

There is another reason why some may be staying at 3ABN though they are convinced that there is a problem there. There may be divided families where one spouse is convinced that Danny is God's messenger and the other spouse is convinced that a cultlike situation exists among the followers of DS. As in any cult there is concern about families being broken up if one leaves the cult and the other stays. One may not be able to convince the other that it is not his or her duty to stay loyal to the leader and of the danger of remaining there. That one may stay out of concern for the deceived one, hoping to be able to protect him or her. Or they may be concerned about their children or parents who are in the cult.

Very Good Point!

Posted by: summertime Sep 11 2006, 10:37 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 01:57 AM)

You state you "could", but I have actually talked to 13 of the people you mention, 8 of them about this issue. None of them have been able to convince me that 3ABN is giving a true picture of what happened, because they have not been able to show any valid evidense against what Irmgarad and I experienced, saw and heard. They have merely confirmed my conviction that the whole affair was staged for a certain purpose.

Johann, I have appreciated your revealing your true indentity----I wonder how many of us really believe that fhb has truly revealed his real name as Fallible Human Being---the name sounds a little fictitious to me.

Posted by: summertime Sep 11 2006, 11:13 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Sep 4 2006, 08:30 AM)

It seems though that he is taking his time to actually go on this so-called revival and reformation vacation.

Accordng to Pastor Carter's announcement, reformation and revival has already happened---in the last week, I think.

Posted by: sister Sep 11 2006, 11:19 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 09:01 AM)

Okay, three responses to my posting, all focused on one paragraph and all missed the point completely.

Just to make it as concise as possible - the point of the pargraph was that it wouldn't matter to any one of you that an individual at 3ABN made the comments to me you would dismiss it out of hand because they are employed by 3ABN (which makes me wonder why you believe HOTY, after all he works there too.) In the process to deify Linda and vilify Danny I fear there is no room for the unmitigated truth. There is no willingness to listen to anyone associated with 3ABN.

- fhb

Fallible,

If your point is only to give a hypothetical situation (that it wouldn't matter to any one of us that an individual at 3ABN made certain comments to you, but that we would dismiss it out of hand because they are employed by 3ABN) and then by your personal observation dismiss the foundation of you hypotheses (stating that the testimony of a 3ABN employee, HOTY, is judged by you as believable by the readership of this forum), it is logically impossible to arrive at the conclusion there is no willingness to listen to anyone associated with 3ABN. In fact, you have disproved your own hypothese.

For anyone who has read the Unauthorized History of 3ABN, it is obvious that an association has existed between myself and 3ABN. In addition to myself an association has existed between Beartrap and 3ABN, between Johann and 3ABN, between PaperTigers and 3ABN, between HOTY and 3ABN, just to mention a few of the members of BSDA who are or were employed by Danny Shelton.

I have made no attempt to deify Linda. I do see her as a victim, but only one of many victims. The only suggested deification of any individual at 3ABN has been of Danny Shelton. Nor have I attempted to vilify Danny. The only vilification of Danny has been through his own actions being revealed publicly, not though the revelation, but through the reaction his behavior evokes in the reader. There is always a place for unmitigated truth, but where the public and the personal persona differ so broadly, the experience can be extremely shocking for many individuals.

Sister

Posted by: beartrap Sep 11 2006, 11:29 AM

"A wretched soul, bruised with adversity,
We bid be quiet when we hear it cry;
But were we burdened with like weight of pain,
As much or more we should ourselves complain."
William Shakespear

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 11 2006, 11:44 AM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 06:01 AM)

Okay, three responses to my posting, all focused on one paragraph and all missed the point completely.

- fhb

FHB, there were 4 responses before this. Check out mine - post #39 I believe.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 11 2006, 01:11 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 11 2006, 12:19 PM)

For anyone who has read the Unauthorized History of 3ABN, it is obvious that an association has existed between myself and 3ABN. In addition to myself an association has existed between Beartrap and 3ABN, between Johann and 3ABN, between PaperTigers and 3ABN, between HOTY and 3ABN, just to mention a few of the members of BSDA who are or were employed by Danny Shelton.

Again, you miss the context. The individuals I mention are still currently associated or working with 3ABN - actively associated. It is my understanding that beartrap, Johann, PaperTigers, and yourself are no longer there, not employed or associated with the day-to-day operations or programming. My point still stands. If I spoke with any of the people I listed and received a response that was contrarian to you own, even if it were substantiated, because of your entrenched position you would dismiss it out of hand.

The sole individual, as far as I can ascertain, who still is there and posting here is HOTY. Now, why should he be the only one from 3ABN to be trusted to "tell the truth?" It would seem to the casual observer that the answer to the question is, because he agrees with you. To disagree means to automatically be perceived as the enemy and thus a lying scoundral.

I am curious too as to the way in which the Unauthorized History equates an obvious association between you and 3ABN. As I read it, you have acted as the mouthpiece for other individuals/entities that have provided you with material to present your version of things. Do you state somewhere in there that you were/are indeed a part of the 3ABN experience?

-fhb

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 11 2006, 12:44 PM)

FHB, there were 4 responses before this. Check out mine - post #39 I believe.

I stand corrected.

Posted by: sister Sep 11 2006, 01:32 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 02:11 PM)

Do you state somewhere in there that you were/are indeed a part of the 3ABN experience?

-fhb

Yes. In fact, the only driver's licence I posess was issued in Benton, Illinois.

Posted by: sister Sep 11 2006, 01:44 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 02:11 PM)

To disagree means to automatically be perceived as the enemy and thus a lying scoundral.
-fhb

Those are your words, not mine. I have neither accused you of being an enemy or a lying scoundrel. Perhaps, misinformed would be a kinder description. I and others have spoken from experience as employees of Danny Shelton, my understanding is that your knowledge is received through watching 3ABN broadcasts, that you have not personal knowledge or association with 3ABN or Danny Shelton. Based upon those facts I could logically extrapolate that your posts are at best pure speculation or merely an uneducated opinion.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 11 2006, 02:53 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 01:11 PM)

Again, you miss the context. The individuals I mention are still currently associated or working with 3ABN - actively associated. It is my understanding that beartrap, Johann, PaperTigers, and yourself are no longer there, not employed or associated with the day-to-day operations or programming. My point still stands. If I spoke with any of the people I listed and received a response that was contrarian to you own, even if it were substantiated, because of your entrenched position you would dismiss it out of hand.

Many of these events occurred in 2004 and earlier. Some "currently associated" employees, such as Shelley Quinn, were not even at 3ABN when some of these things transpired. I place no premium simply on the fact that a person is currently employed there -- or not.

Secondly, there is no legitimate evidence. Therefore, to say "if it were substantiated" calls for a conclusion beyond the evidence 3ABN possesses. Why even go there?

Thirdly, nobody would be wasting their time here "entrenched" if 3ABN had a case.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 11 2006, 03:05 PM

QUOTE(sister @ Sep 11 2006, 02:44 PM)

To disagree means to automatically be perceived as the enemy and thus a lying scoundral.
-fhb

You are correct, they are my words. They are based on the responses often found here and from personal experience here. The accusation of being a plant, or being Hal, or being Danny, or being on the 3ABN payroll in addition to the tone of many posts will lead to the perception that you ("you" here not specifically refering to you as a person, but to those aligned on your side of the issue) do consider that individual an "enemy." The assertion that truth does not eminate from 3ABN automatically transfers to anyone who aligns themselves on that side of the issue - thus my statement.

Even your statement that I am misinformed indicates that because I seem to have a contrarian view to yours that I am wrong.

To date all of the above accusations have fallen my way (being called Danny, Hal, a plant, etc). Simply because I take a skeptical and contrarian view to the majority here. If one were to flip that coin, one might postulate that you are in deed Linda since you have such an overwhelming intimate knowledge of 3ABN and all of the people who work there. I don't think you are - but one could make a strong case for that theory.

> QUOTE(sister @ Sep 11 2006, 02:44 PM)
>
> . . . my understanding is that your knowledge is received through watching 3ABN broadcasts, that you have not personal knowledge or association with 3ABN or Danny Shelton . . .

What do you base this understanding on? I have spent more time reading the material here and other sister sites, as well as books to gain a picture of 3ABN. In fact I have never owned a dish that pulls the channel in and the cable system in my current place of residence does not carry it. I have seen programming from there on occassion over the years and attended at some of the churches they have broadcast from. One need not have a direct association with 3ABN or Danny in order to learn about them. I have talked to a number of people associated with the ministry over the years. So my understanding comes from a variety of sources - yours included.

- fhb

> QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 11 2006, 03:53 PM)
>
> Secondly, there is no legitimate evidence.

Not sure you can make this claim since you don't know what evidence they have. You have simply said, because they haven't played their hand they must not have one. That doesn't make your claim true.

Do date you can not prove they don't have it.

- fhb

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 05:26 PM

> QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 11:05 PM)
>
> Do date you can not prove they don't have it.
>
> - fhb

Quite a statement! Since I was involved in the initial happening in our own kitchen at 3ABN - and I even dare use my real name - I have seen plenty of the evidence they have crumble and new strange evidence manufactured with the help of expensive Private Investigators following me have made. You can always get what you pay for, but is it true? Not if you were there and know it isn't. You can make lotsof tricks with a spy camera, I have experienced. You can eliminate unwanted people in the picture and try to prove they are not there becauase they are not seen on the picture. Such is some of the strongest evidence Mollie Steenson and her gang have produced and told people they have.

I have heard the strongest evidence from members of the board, and I know from personal experience they are mere fabrication and falsehood.

In a few days your will all see plenty of evidence that will rock the boat. Just stay tuned. . . The Linda case will then be a mere drop in the bucket. It might send some people screaming for mercy!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 11 2006, 05:32 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 04:26 PM)

In a few days your will all see plenty of evidence that will rock the boat. Just stay tuned. . . The Linda case will then be a mere drop in the bucket. It might send some people screaming for mercy!

Okay, my interest is piqued! I hope it will answer some of the questions I have - ones that I feel very strongly about.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 05:39 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 12 2006, 01:32 AM)

Okay, my interest is piqued! I hope it will answer some of the questions I have - ones that I feel very strongly about.

Pray about it. Pray the Lord's hand will intervene where needed,and that it will strengthen His Church!

Posted by: PaperTigers Sep 11 2006, 05:43 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 11 2006, 03:11 PM)

...The sole individual, as far as I can ascertain, who still is there and posting here is HOTY. Now, why should he be the only one from 3ABN to be trusted to "tell the truth?" It would seem to the casual observer that the answer to the question is, because he agrees with you. To disagree means to automatically be perceived as the enemy and thus a lying scoundral....
-fhb

I think it all depends on who you talk to at 3ABN... if you talk to the actual employees you will get a completely different view then if you talk to those who have a vested interest in getting you to believe what they want you to believe.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 06:10 PM

QUOTE(PaperTigers @ Sep 12 2006, 01:43 AM)

I think it all depends on who you talk to at 3ABN... if you talk to the actual employees you will get a completely different view then if you talk to those who have a vested interest in getting you to believe what they want you to believe.

Have you ever considered why? Personally, I have nothing to lose or gain, either way. All I am intersted in is the truth, because a Christian must adhere to what he knows is the truth, even if the heavens may fall.

I receive my pension from the Seventh-day Adventist Church, having worked for my Lord for half a century. 3ABN could not stop my income nor my health insurance, when I was fired for refusing to lie. This is the reason I sign my real name. I can testify that many of the others are in serious danger if they use their real names. I don't mind Danny calling me his greates enemy or a liar. I am responsible to my Lord, and not to Danny. I have seen him calling others murderers, liars, and you name it. And once he bites into a person he acts like an angry dog who never lets go, regardless if the person is innocent or not. This does not only apply to Linda. Once he has spoken his word remains, as if he was a divine prophet. This is the reason some have called 3ABN a cult.

Posted by: paleface Sep 11 2006, 06:21 PM

Johann:

Sir, I have been praying, pleading with the Lord for Truth ever since June 1,2004 of why Linda disappeared. Thank you for being a faithful friend to Linda. By the way are you the faithfull caregiver of Fluffy?
May God bless you in His Service. Please let Linda know she has a whole host of us who are praying for her and her family.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 11 2006, 06:27 PM

I am at a loss here...

FHB says:
he has not worked at 3ABN
he lives hundreds of miles from 3ABN
he has only met Dan once or twice
he does not have 3ABN in his home
he only watches 3ABN on occasion and my personal favorite -
"One need not have a direct association with 3ABN or Danny in order to learn about them.

It makes no sense to me why someone who is so DETACHED from the situation - by his own admission - is so interested IN the situation.

And if they do not need to know Dan personally to learn about him - why did they come to a sight where they could learn and choose to scoff at the information. Instead we have a person willing to protect someone they DON'T know against people who DO.

Like I said, I am at a loss.

Posted by: inga Sep 11 2006, 06:33 PM

Steffan, I'll just reply to one point of your post -- a fairly clear example of how you erect straw men to knock down in order to support your point. (Your claim that we considered Danny the devil himself was another such "straw man."):

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 10 2006, 08:28 PM)

And it is quite a stretch to blame the unfortunate Irmgard's cancer related death to Danny. But yet you do.

I did not blame Danny for Irmgard's death, as you accuse me of doing. I said I have no doubt that he contributed to her untimely death. Knowing how stress prevents the body's immune system from functioning at its fullest, I am quite sure that the extreme stress experienced by Irmgard because of Danny's continual harassment of Linda and Johann served to hasten her death because the cancer was able to grow more quickly with the immune system so compromised. Please read my post again. (No. 29)

Your distortion of posts is subtle, but it is distortion nevertheless. Yes, you will find some hyperbole on this forum, as well as some speculation, but it is generally quite evident. (There is no hyperbole in my post that I can see, since each point can be backed up from my personal knowledge and/or by the experience of others on this forum.)

I wonder if you're not a pot calling the kettle black.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 06:33 PM

QUOTE(paleface @ Sep 12 2006, 02:21 AM)

Johann:

Sir, I have been praying, pleading with the Lord for Truth ever since June 1,2004 of why Linda disappeared. Thank you for being a faithful friend to Linda. By the way are you the faithfull caregiver of Fluffy?
May God bless you in His Service. Please let Linda know she has a whole host of us who are praying for her and her family.

Thank you, paleface. No, I have not taken care of Fluffy, who is taken care of by a family taking care of vistors and Fluffy right by the premises of 3ABN. Many visitors have enjoyed their hospitaily, and Fluffy is well taken care of. Shelty is with Linda, and that has been a great comfort to Linda in her great trials.

Shelty thought all men were as bad as Danny, so it took me a long time to get Shelty to "talk" to me when I visited Linda. Shelty shuddered when Danny was yelling at Linda to get out of his house, when she was not prepared to leave him nor suffer a divorce.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 11 2006, 06:34 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 11 2006, 05:27 PM)

I am at a loss here...

FHB says:
he has not worked at 3ABN
he lives hundreds of miles from 3ABN
he has only met Dan once or twice
he does not have 3ABN in his home
he only watches 3ABN on occasion
and my personal favorite -
"One need not have a direct association with 3ABN or Danny in order to learn about them.

It makes no sense to me why someone who is so DETACHED from the situation - by his own admission - is so interested IN the situation.

And if they do not need to know Dan personally to learn about him - why did they come to a sight where they could learn and choose to scoff at the information. Instead we have a person willing to protect someone they DON'T know against people who DO.

Like I said, I am at a loss.

I have been thinking about all this circling going on....back and forth in my mind I have thought, what is the point of FHB's writings - and a couple others I won't name. It's not that I don't like others to have varied opinions of what they want to believe, etc., but, it's as if you can not reason, or let be of something with these folk. I tend to think maybe they are not what they would like to appear as? Someone who just wants to read, discuss, disagree or get it? I mean, this has been one of those different shaped circular things...with no point or destination in sight - just another form of provoking for some reason - what could that be? FHB, if you don't want to accept what you read here, by people who have given testimony to their own experiences, then don't. But let it go. You can not change people's stories. Do you think they will suddenly say "oh, what was I thinking - that didn't really happen, I must have dreampt it or out right lied to you all". Don't you see, these people have stoies - testimonies, of what happened. Accept, decline or move on. You can't change the stripes on a zebra, but you sure seem to think you can "rationalize" anything away...and if everyone wants to spend more energy trying to reason with you, I believe it's pointless, because there is something about you that isn't right to me. But, that is JMO.

Posted by: PaperTigers Sep 11 2006, 06:42 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 11 2006, 07:34 PM)

I have been thinking about all this circling going on....back and forth in my mind I have thought, what is the point of FHB's writings - and a couple others I won't name. It's not that I don't like others to have varied opinions of what they want to believe, etc., but, it's as if you can not reason, or let be of something with these folk. I tend to think maybe they are not what they would like to appear as? Someone who just wants to read, discuss, disagree or get it? I mean, this has been one of those different shaped circular things...with no point or destination in sight - just another form of provoking for some reason - what could that be? FHB, if you don't want to accept what you read here, by people who have given testimony to their own experiences, then don't. But let it go. You can not change people's stories. Do you think they will suddenly say "oh, what was I thinking - that didn't really happen, I must have dreampt it or out right lied to you all". Don't you see, these people have stoies - testimonies, of what happened. Accept, decline or move on. You can't change the stripes on a zebra, but you sure seem to think you can "rationalize" anything away...and if everyone wants to spend more energy trying to reason with you, I believe it's pointless, because there is something about you that isn't right to me. But, that is JMO.

\men

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 07:08 PM

QUOTE(steffan @ Sep 11 2006, 03:28 AM) to blame the unfortunate Irmgard's cancer related death to Danny. But yet you do.

I wonder which price. Johann himself states that Danny tried to make life difficult for him. Yet his local church and his conference rejected any interference. He continues to get his sustentation from the church. These are his words, not mine.
Steffan Philip

have told before that Linda got up at Irmgard's funeral and expressed her appreciation because rmgard remained a friend when all other friends failed. It so happened, we learned from sad :xperience, that Linda was not permitted to have any other friends than those who would play a part n destroying Linda. . . (and destroying Danny too in the long run) would receive plenty of e-mails from Danny where he hurled at me all kinds of accusations, of being ı liar, accusing my friends of similar things, even being murderers. That can kill the spirit of a a sick ›erson, I can tell you! Have you ever tried that, when your wife is dying? Salary is not the only thing he soul needs. Whose local church rejected interference? What conference?

gave the union some good advice which they rejected. Some of the members there have since told ne it was good advice, and they lament the majority did not follow the advice that the higher office in he church supportred (TED). They claimed that Mark Finley had approved of what they were doing. .ater Mark Finley wrote that he had adviced to work in cooperation with HOPE. So what are you 'eferring to? The Norwegian TV had a numer of listeners before this. They lost most of them with their ıew venture. Was that an advantage?

Vhy did the Scandinavian 3ABN lose their chairman of the board? There are some similarities to)anny Shelton.

Posted by: inga Sep 11 2006, 07:12 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 10 2006, 09:19 PM)

This does not discribe only Fortune 500 companies or financial institutions or governmental offices - it applies ot a myriad of business in a plehora of businesses/industry/think tanks. In an age when the most valuable comodity is information, these are the safeguards to keep the product created secure as well as to make sure the post-it notes aren't headed home as a way to make shopping lists and post them on the fridge.

This is SOP in western society.

- fhb

'ou say that this sort of spying on employees is standard practice in many businesses, and I don't loubt you.

lowever, can you give us a good reason why this is necessary at 3ABN? I thought 3ABN was ;upposed to exist precisely for distribution "the most valuable commodity" of "information" regarding he Good News of Jesus Christ?

Maybe I just don't "get it," and you can enlightne me, FHB?

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 11 2006, 07:24 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 05:33 PM)

Thank you, paleface. No, I have not taken care of Fluffy, who is taken care of by a family taking care of vistors and Fluffy right by the premises of 3ABN. Many visitors have enjoyed their hospitaily, and Fluffy is well taken care of. Shelty is with Linda, and that has been a great comfort to Linda in her great trials.

Shelty thought all men were as bad as Danny, so it took me a long time to get Shelty to "talk" to me when I visited Linda. Shelty shuddered when Danny was yelling at Linda to get out of his house, when she was not prepared to leave him nor suffer a divorce.

Another thing that makes Linda's and my friendship unique is we both have and share a love for ;helties. I have two of them. A male and female. Anyone that has shelties knows how intuitive they 'eally are - incredibly sensitive to the "heard" they live with. I have a male, like Shelty is, and males end to go towards females (most breeds are this way) and will be more protective of that person, and ny male is very quick to defend me (with his "talking") if my husband and I are in the house together ınd he leaves the room or makes a thumping noice, or even if our voices raise at each other (not very ›ften) etc. My husband scolded my male when he was small and he has not really ever forgotten. Ay husband had no idea how sensitive these type of dogs are to tone and body language. We have ›een working on it ever sense, to assure him (the dog) that everything is ok. If there were ever a ›roblem of yelling or fighting or something of very serious nature, I have no doubt that my male ;heltie would be quite upset and would remain so for some time. These dogs are amazing at sensing vhen you are hurting emotionally or physically, and will be glued to you and not leave. Ask anyone vho has one.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 11 2006, 07:25 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 11 2006, 08:12 PM)

You say that this sort of spying on employees is standard practice in many businesses, and I don't doubt you.

However, can you give us a good reason why this is necessary at 3ABN? I thought 3ABN was supposed to exist precisely for distribution "the most valuable commodity" of "information" regarding the Good News of Jesus Christ?

Maybe I just don't "get it," and you can enlightne me, FHB?

Inga, don't you see?

Those angels - all three of them -- have been classified as "top secret."

Mum's the word.

(Used by Shakespeare in Henry VI, Part 2. 'Seal up your lips and give no words but mum'.)

Posted by: beartrap Sep 11 2006, 07:35 PM

QUOTE

I have seen programming from there on occassion over the years

We were the people making and airing the programming you saw on occassion.

QUOTE

and attended at some of the churches they have broadcast from.

We were the people often speaking in the churches they broadcast from.

QUOTE

One need not have a direct association with 3ABN or Danny in order to learn about them.

We had a direct association with 3ABN and Danny which makes us more knowledgeable about it than those whose info is only second hand, at best.

QUOTE

I have talked to a number of people associated with the ministry over the years.

We were the people associated with the "ministry" who many people like you talked to over the years.

QUOTE

So my understanding comes from a variety of sources - yours included.

So our understanding comes from living, breathing, and working 3ABN side by side with Danny, Linda, and each other. Not from a variety of other sources.

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 07:43 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 12 2006, 03:12 AM)

You say that this sort of spying on employees is standard practice in many businesses, and I don't doubt you.

However, can you give us a good reason why this is necessary at 3ABN? I thought 3ABN was supposed to exist precisely for distribution "the most valuable commodity" of "information" regarding the Good News of Jesus Christ?

Maybe I just don't "get it," and you can enlightne me, FHB?

Some claim the reason for this is fear that Linda is planning terror attacks on 3ABN! Those of you working there now, has Danny given any indication?

Posted by: cottageK Sep 11 2006, 08:24 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 07:43 PM)

Some claim the reason for this is fear that Linda is planning terror attacks on 3ABN! Those of you working there now, has Danny given any indication?

By that statement, do I detect an inference of some paranoia in the ranks of 3ABN? Linda planning terror attacks on 3ABN???? rofl

---

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 11 2006, 08:25 PM

QUOTE(cottageK @ Sep 11 2006, 09:24 PM)

By that statement, do I detect an inference of some paranoia in the ranks of 3ABN? Linda planning terror attacks on 3ABN???? rofl

"Paranoia" is putting it mildly...

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 08:32 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 12 2006, 04:25 AM)

"Paranoia" is putting it mildly...

An intersting statement. We might soon see how true it is!

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 11 2006, 08:42 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 07:32 PM)

An intersting statement. We might soon see how true it is!

Hmmmmmmmm Paranoia.....now that seems to fit perfectly!

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 11 2006, 08:46 PM

I do believe that housecleaning needs to be done in the hierarchy at 3ABN...but I'm wondering if this new information, that is about to come to light, has any potential to destroy the ministry of 3ABN. Yes, some of those at the top should be replaced, in my opinon; but I hope the ministry and the purpose for which it was founded would continue...

Posted by: Johann Sep 11 2006, 08:51 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 12 2006, 04:46 AM)

I do believe that housecleaning needs to be done in the hierarchy at 3ABN...but I'm wondering if this new information, that is about to come to light, has any potential to destroy the ministry of 3ABN. Yes, some of those at the top should be replaced, in my opinon; but I hope the ministry and the purpose for which it was founded would continue...

Pray that the Lord will intervene. His guidance is sorely needed. Let BSDA be like a prayer band around what is happening. We do not want 3ABN to become a station that works against SDA, do we?

Posted by: inga Sep 11 2006, 10:25 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 11 2006, 08:43 PM)

Some claim the reason for this is fear that Linda is planning terror attacks on 3ABN!

Posted by: Johann Sep 12 2006, 04:00 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 12 2006, 06:25 AM)

Good to have some humor! After M. L. Andreasen had spent several days at Elmshaven he was so surpriced that such a godly woman could laugh. He stated that she giggled like a schoolgirl. Lets be happy too.

Posted by: Observer Sep 16 2006, 06:30 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 11 2006, 09:25 PM)

O. K. I now understand. In a prior life, Linda was probably a member of Delta Force, and therefore wll trained as to how to do such. Well, if she was ever a member of Delta Force, they will not be able to stop her by locking the doors. She will simply rapel through a skylight.

Here she comes folks: Linda, the unmasked avenger.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 06:59 PM

A very good question...and a very real reality. This makes me think about the example of the EGW post in another thread that I will include here:

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 14 2006, 08:08 AM)

Our Pastor shared this with us last night at prayer meeting. It gave me something to think about with all of this exposing of Danny's sins.....just thought I would share.
Australian Years 1893-1900 pages 134, 135. The origional letter is referenced as Letter 48, 1894. She was writing to Elder Littlejohn,

She wrote 12 pages so these are just a couple of paragraphs.

"Elder Littlejohn, you have undertaken to point out the defects of Reformers and pioneers in the cause of God. No one should trace the lines which you have done. You have made public errors and defects of the people of God and in so doing have dishonored God and Jesus Christ. I would not for my right arm have given to the world that which you have written. You have not been conscience of what would be the influence of your work...
The Lord did not call upon you to present these things to the public as a correct history of our people. Your work will make it necessary for us to put forth labor to show why these brethern took the extreme position that they did, and call up the circumstances that vindicate those upon whom your articles have laid suspicion and reproach. ...

God will charge those who unwisely expose the mistakes of their brethern with sin of far greater magnitude than He will charge the one who made the misstep. Criticism and condemnation of the brethern are counted as criticism and condemnation of Christ.

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 11 2006, 08:46 PM)

I do believe that housecleaning needs to be done in the hierarchy at 3ABN...but I'm wondering if this new information, that is about to come to light, has any potential to destroy the ministry of 3ABN. Yes, some of those at the top should be replaced, in my opinon; but I hope the ministry and the purpose for which it was founded would continue...

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

167

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ New Info From Walter Thompson -via Msdaol

Posted by: icedragon Sep 12 2006, 03:59 PM

From: "Walt Thompson" <walttmd@wi.rr.com>
To: [Removed by GM.]
Subject: Re: 3abn
Date: [Removed by GM.]

Dear [Removed by GM.],

Thank you for your e mail sharing your frustrations with 3ABN. It is understandable that you may feel frustrated regarding the breakup of Danny and Linda. You are not alone. Had the devil sought a more effective place to point his fatal arrow, he could not have found one. He aimed at its heart, and made a direct hit. However, like the promise in Genesis 3:15, though 3ABN has been wounded, it has risen again, and stronger than ever. Praise the Lord.

Let me summarize some of the events as viewed from my perspective during the past couple years. Perhaps it will allow you to view things a bit differently.

Though we have attempted to keep the leaders of the church attuned to what has been transpiring at 3ABN, we have not said much publicly for Linda's sake. We all still care about Linda, and know she must be hurting terribly.

A little more than two years ago a live television program aired on 3abn from Green Bay, Wisconsin. During that program Linda told of meeting a special person that had changed her life. She did not give the name or the sex of that person, but we later learned that he was listening in Norway. A few months earlier, a doctor visited 3ABN from Norway. He found out about Linda's son being hooked on drugs and told Linda that if he would come to his place in Norway for a month, he would be cured. Arrangements were made and Nathan went there in Feb. 04. While there Linda and one of her closest friends went to visit and spent 3 days with them. During this time Linda and the doctor struck up a relationship that her friend became very concerned about, and eventually came to the place where she decided she needed to speak out. I have heard that testimony. I will not describe it in detail, but it was described as much more than the usual doctor - client relationship. One of the things was that Linda had made arrangements to meet the doctor in Norway to spend 10 days with him touring the pretty places in the country during the following June.

In early March Danny called me. He was very distraught as he told me what Linda was doing. I immediately traveled to 3abn to find out for myself, and for the next two to three months was there for a few days almost every week. During this time I and a small committee of the board had a number of sessions with Linda, encouraging her to break off the relationship that was ruining her home and putting a serious strain on the ministry. Pastor John L. was one of the first to counsel Linda. From the start, before meeting with Danny and Linda together he warned Linda that what she was doing was wrong, and must stop. He then spent hours counseling the two of them together. I am not sure how many other sessions were had. When I arrived, I arranged for Pastor John, Linda and Danny and I to meet together. We met, talked and prayed. Both Danny and Linda were anointed, and committed to God to do what was right. Linda promised us to cut off the relationship. Not long (I don't remember the length of time, but probably less than an hour) she was secretly on the phone to Norway with the doctor again. We had other sessions with her where she reluctantly made similar agreements, but usually said she was not going to give him up until she was sure Danny would stop interfering in her affairs - as if it was Danny's fault they were having trouble. On one occasion I was able to get the doctor on the phone. I begged him to break of the relationship. He told me he would not. We arranged for Danny and Linda to visit a marriage counselor couple out of state. They were not Adventist, but devout Christians of another faith. They were chosen so that Linda could not claim that they were biased, if Adventist. Danny and Linda spent eight hours with the counselors. They were the one's who told Linda she was committing "spiritual adultery" and that it was wrong and must be stopped at once. She made excuses, said she was doing nothing wrong. They warned her that the way she was going it would soon become physical.

Our committee of the board invited a lady friend of Linda's to sit with us, thinking that, being a woman, she would be able to make Linda comfortable. As soon as she heard Linda's story, she confided to Linda that she was wrong, and needed to correct the problem. Linda requested her to query some of the 3ABN leadership to hear their views. she did this, only to find that Linda used the negative feedback she received as evidence she was not a friend to her cause. Linda would not talk to her again - the same as she had done to the friend that went with her to Norway.

Meanwhile, all during this time, Linda was spending long hours on the phone with the doctor on international calls using phone cards, credit cards, etc. We have records of those cards and can verify the amount of time spent. Some calls were overheard by Danny when she did not know he was around. Whereas she says that she was discussing her son, the calls were, in fact not about her son, but were very personal. Arrangements were made, and tickets purchased to meet him in Florida. (We have evidence such a meeting did indeed take place) When that was discovered, they planned to meet in Las Vegas, and New York. And as you might expect, Danny was by this time checking things out pretty carefully. One night she came home all cheery. While she and Danny were getting ready for bed, she left to do something else (I have forgotten what). While out, Danny found a sack of things in the closet. Upon opening it, he found a pregnancy test kit. (He is "fixed" so he cannot have more children.) When she found out that he had discovered it, she was at first angry because he had "snooped" in her things, and then told him she had just purchased it to see his reaction. We also have evidence that the doctor had given her an expensive wristwatch.

While this was going on, Linda refusing to give up the doctor, and Danny not willing to live with a third party disrupting things, they began talking divorce. Linda's mother lived in Las Vegas (I think) and Linda began making plans to move there long enough to gain residency status and then was going to get a divorce. Discovering the possibility of getting a divorce through Guan, they jointly agreed. Danny was driven by several factors. One, she was not about to be faithful to him. She was running up huge credit card debts on joint accounts making him responsible for paying them off, and he was concerned about 3ABN and the effect the situation was causing on the ministry. It simply could not continue the way things were going. Though I and the board did not get involved in the marriage, we were very much concerned about the ministry.

All the while, this was taking a real toll on the ministry. Work was not getting done. The employees were pulled in both directions. Finally, I sent Linda a registered letter (she was not answering my e mails or phone calls). In it I told her that we were offering to send her away for counseling to a place and with people mutually acceptable. I told her that if she would not accept our offer and find help to get rid of the doctor, we would have to consider removing her from her positions. She did not respond to my letter.

At camp meeting time (the end of May), we also had a board meeting. On Friday night of camp meeting, the doctor and Johann (our European representative before this all developed) came and sat in the back row. Danny was very uncomfortable with them there, fearful they would make a scene on international television. He asked us to ask them to leave. They refused. They walked out just as the meeting was ending. I and some other people went out after them. When we got outside, Johann grabbed me by the shirt and started to shake me in anger. When other bigger people came to my support, he calmed down, and we all talked together for a half hour or so - I am not sure of the total time. In the meantime, Mark Finley spoke with the doctor. I joined them for a few minutes. While I was with Mark and the doctor, something was said that upset Johann, and he and the doctor left, angry and fast, spinning dirt as they left. Because they had begun to hand out papers of a proposed article they were planning to submit to the local newspaper discrediting 3ABN, we warned them not to come back.

The next day, Sabbath, we got hold of Johann by phone and he agreed to meet with us at a park and talk things out. The doctor was also invited, but he said he had said all he had to say the night before, and refused to come. We spent an hour or two with Johann, going over all of the events until then. Finally, I took him to the hotel where they were staying. We sat in the car and talked for some time. At that time he confessed to me that maybe he was wrong in supporting Linda. We had prayer and parted. The three of them left and returned to Springfield shortly after that.

Linda did not come to the board meeting on Sunday morning. She sent a letter instead. The board considered her letter carefully in light of all that had gone on, and unanimously agreed that she could no longer serve the ministry under these conditions, nor continue to serve on the board. (We have since been accused of refusing to let the doctor and Johann represent her at the board. No such request was ever made, either by voice or by pen.)

Linda did go to Norway for her ten-day vacation with the doctor in June. We know that. There have been many other trips back and forth by both of them since.

Linda said on her web site recently that I had told Johann a year before that I had never accused her of adultery. She was correctly quoting a portion of my statement to Johann, but what she did not bother to say is that I was defending 3ABN against an accusation that we had fired her for adultery. I was merely telling him that it was for defiance of her board that she was let go, not because of adultery, an accusation, it is true, I never stated. As you can see from the few things I have included here, we have had ample evidence to suggest adultery, but it is true, we have not seen the two of them in bed together.

Our position on the board all through this process was to take the high road and not to tell things like this to the public, attempting to protect Linda from even more hurt that she was doing to herself. In all of our public statements, we have tried to be discrete. To protect the ministry from a public confrontation, we also gave Linda a good settlement with the agreement that she would not bad mouth 3ABN. And while she has partially fulfilled her obligation, her "friends" have kept the pot boiling - contrary to her agreement.

She wrote on her web site in March that they were not divorced, that the Guam divorce was being contested. It is interesting to know that this was posted on the web site after (or about the time that) the judge's decision had been made in favor of Danny. It is also interesting that the only reason she filed suit against Danny was to get more money from him than they had agreed upon originally. One might wonder why she would file for a new divorce if it had been Danny that had insisted on it in the first place as she alleges!

Sometime fairly early on during this experience, Linda began to accuse Danny of abusing her. She told people she was afraid to stay home with him for fear he would take his gun and hurt her. On a number of occasions during their discussions she would go off in a huff to stay with her daughter in Springfield (two hours away). On at least one of those occasions, I was on the phone with Danny when she was preparing to leave, and I heard nothing suggesting abuse of any kind. I will admit that at first, Danny was "in her face" an awfully lot trying to get her to stop talking with the doctor. This stopped after their visit with the counselors. We believe that the Dr. advised Linda to use the "abuse" language to justify their relationship - and have good evidence upon which this is based. I believe it was during the GC session in Toronto when abuse was included among the justifications for divorce. If you know Danny at all, one thing he is not, is an abuser. Talk! Perhaps! But certainly not dangerous or physical.

Just to make this letter a bit more complete, let me tell you what I know about Danny's attempt to save Linda for himself - even after the divorce papers were signed. He paid off the remaining debt on her new car, her daughter's car, all of the credit cards, and other joint bills. He bought her interest in the house, helped her move to Southern Illinois, build a porch on her home there, gave her all of the things in their home including things that were really his. (He did these things with money obtained in a loan from a friend.) Over and over again he took her out to eat and did many other things to show how much he really cared for her. In fact, many of the employees and some of us on the board were concerned because of how she was leading him on and keeping him in turmoil. Over and over, she threatened him, saying, that if she was going down, she would bring him and the ministry down with him.

One more thing. Linda has said that she was not censured by her church. The fact is, her church did meet and confidentially went over all of the evidence they had, and wrote an 8 page letter outlining the reason they had to conclude that she was wrong. Rather than drop her from membership, out of concern for her, they agreed do a letter of censure.

As for Danny getting married, let me make a few more comments. Our board has been well informed on all of these things. We were the ones that unanimously let Linda go, as much as we all hated to take that step. We all love her, care about her, and continue to keep her in our prayers. We have also been fully informed about Danny and his new-found friend. I was at 3ABN the day she and her two girls arrived from Florida with all they possessed. I shared some peanut butter and grapes that I had left over as I was about to return home. My heart went out to them. Danny's eventually did too. They are really nice people who have a heart for Jesus and for hurting people. She has had a hard life. (Her twin sister is dead.) There relationship has grown since that day more than a year ago. (Contrary to rumor, there was no relationship going before that!) A number of the staff and some of us on the board advised Danny to "cool it." He tried. But Danny is a people person. He needs people around him. I have concluded that Brandy came to 3abn at the direction of either the devil or the Holy Spirit. I have had no trouble deciding which. I believe God has given Danny just what he has needed to continue to serve that ministry with the power and enthusiasm that is characteristic to him. He loves the Lord supremely, and seeks His guidance in all things. What you see of Danny on television is who he is. He is not a fake. Yes, he is human. He has human tendencies, just like you and I. Just because he is on television does not automatically take away those personal drives.

Before Danny married Brandy, our board met by conference call and went over the evidence again. It was our conclusion based upon the information we have, only some of which I have shared here, that Danny was morally free to re-marry if he wished. We were all concerned about the timing, but did not feel that was a just reason for condemning the action. Those of Church leadership with whom we have shared these things agree with our decision.

In all of the Bible, I have not been able to find a single instance where God had a prophet condemn any one for anything that was not either illegal or immoral. As our board, and leaders of the church, have carefully examined the evidence, we find nothing for which to condemn Danny either. As regarding age difference, I find nothing in the Bible or the SOP that speaks to this issue. You may remember Elder Archo Dart, a General Conference officer doing family counseling during the fifties. He married a patient of mine who was at least 20 years younger when he was in his late 70's. They had an excellent marriage. Teddy, his new wife, loved every minute of their time together - as she told me. They are both dead now.

Linda, in spite of what I have noted above, refuses to acknowledge that what she was doing was wrong - nor is she telling the facts as they happened. It is one thing to forgive and forget, but is altogether something else when one is unable to acknowledge wrong doing. Yes, and I truly would like to know what Jesus would have done differently. As I see it, we gave Linda every imaginable opportunity to remain and work with 3ABN - except for one condition. When she refused, what more is one to do? Jesus was patient with Judas too, but He did not prevent Judas from doing what he did.

For my part, I have asked God for wisdom to guide in all that we have done. I have insisted at every step that we do everything in a way that could never be honestly faulted. I believe God has honored our desire, and blessed the ministry beyond measure because we have tried so hard to be faithful. You may remember that even God lost some of his best friends (Lucifer, Ananias and Saphira and others). It hurts. But sometimes one must act to stop bad things - even when it hurts!

I hope this helps to clear the confusion. NO ONE at 3ABN wanted to get rid of Linda, least of all, Danny. I don't think there are very many people that would condemn Danny for not waiting longer to agree to divorce if they had been there and witnessed the situation. Even God has limits to His tolerance. If you have further questions or need further evidence, please let me know.

Sincerely in Jesus' precious name,

Walter Thompson MD

Chairman, 3ABN Board

****

==========

Topic and introductory part of post corrected from Dr. Ralph Thompson to Dr. Walter Thompson. - Daryl

---
Gregory
May God's will be done.

i believe this to be credible and shows motivation for divorce. while all the detalis are to there it certiantly is helpful.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 12 2006, 04:26 PM

It is so hard to know who to believe. I have one question, If Danny was so in love with Linda where was he when her son was in trouble. Why was she put in the position to be alone and vulnerable with the "Dr"? I have stepchildren and when there was a problem it pulled us together, and we have had some pretty bad situations come up with my stepson. But I have never asked my spouse to deal with it alone.

Also, why will Danny and the others not let it go? Most viewers would have no idea what is being said if Danny would just keep quiet. I know I for one had no idea until Danny kept talking to I went online and found this site. I wrote to Danny and explained this to him. He wrote back a nice response. He has written me on more than one occasion and has always been nice.

I don't know when or where Danny is interfering in Linda's life but I wish all of this would come to an end one way or another.....

Posted by: princessdi Sep 12 2006, 05:17 PM

Ok, so I called myself reading this, but I really didn't see any "new" information. So somebody explain it to me like i am 6 years old. What was "new" about this information?

Mind you this still doesn't change my mind, I am with Clay, no matter what Linda did, it is Danny's and the 3ABN boards reaction that is unchristlike. I am talking about what I know they did, not what happened behind the scenes, 3ABN's public response was deplorable! Plus there are still holes. tjomspon still claims to have proof, the same proof from two years ago, all that talking they have been doing, their proof should have been out there. Why didn't they take it to court? Now, to my little suspicious mind it just looks like they have been reading this(and other) sites, and are now incorporating that information from here into their story.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 12 2006, 06:37 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 12 2006, 05:26 PM)

It is so hard to know who to believe. I have one question, If Danny was so in love with Linda where was he when her son was in trouble. Why was she put in the position to be alone and vulnerable with the "Dr"? I have stepchildren and when there was a problem it pulled us together, and we have had some pretty bad situations come up with my stepson. But I have never asked my spouse to deal with it alone.

Also, why will Danny and the others not let it go? Most viewers would have no idea what is being said if Danny would just keep quiet. I know I for one had no idea until Danny kept talking to I went online and found this site. I wrote to Danny and explained this to him. He wrote back a nice response. He has written me on more than one occasion and has always been nice.
I don't know when or where Danny is interfering in Linda's life but I wish all of this would come to an end one way or another.....

I have a close family member who was in Green Bay the weekend that Dr. Thompson mentioned. It occurred at the Green Bay Church on Friday and Saturday, April 2, and 3, 2004. The guests who were taping a "3ABN Close-up" Friday evening were Pastor and Mrs. Corkum of the Wisconsin Conference.

Following that Friday night meeting, Danny greeted departing guests standing adjacent to the coat room, near some stairs, at one end of the Green Bay church, and Linda greeted guests inside the front doors at the opposite end of the church. Danny and Linda Shelton were actually out of eyesight of each other. Danny and Linda were avoiding each other.

Danny had previously asked for a divorce a month earlier on Sunday, March 7, 2004. By leaving that fact out, Dr. Thompson paints a different picture.

We already knew she was talking to someone about her marriage crisis by the time of the April meeting in Green Bay. Dr. Abrahamsen says so in his letter.

In part, Danny's demands for a divorce, a month earlier, was the catalyst for Linda's interaction with friends who would listen to it all.

The problem is that once you've asked for a divorce, it's far too late to start collecting information on your spouse's behavior. The horse is already out of the barn.

As for the rest of it, I don't see any new information that isn't analyzed and dealt with elsewhere.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 12 2006, 06:45 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 12 2006, 05:17 PM)

Ok, so I called myself reading this, but I really didn't see any "new" information. So somebody explain it to me like i am 6 years old. What was "new" about this information?

Mind you this still doesn't change my mind, I am with Clay, no matter what Linda did, it is Danny's and the 3ABN boards reaction that is unchristlike. I am talking about what I know they did, not what happened behind the scenes, 3ABN's public response was deplorable! Plus there are still holes. tjomspon still claims to have proof, the same proof from two years ago, all that talking they have been doing, their proof should have been out there. Why didn't they take it to court? Now, to my little suspicious mind it just looks like they have been reading this(and other) sites, and are now incorporating that information from here into their story.

I agree. I don't know why this was posted here. It really isn't all that different from the mass mailed one that we have pinned to the top. That one, so far as I know is circa May of this year. I have one that I believe is identical to this one that seemed to have been a form letter sent out during June .... at least I had two copies of it to two different people, with nothing different except the addressees and some slight difference in wording of the introductory and closing paragraphs. It's just another "smoke and mirrors" attempt. No problem at all for a "6 year old mind" .... remember the "Emperor's New Clothes"?

This is just more of the stuff. designed to addle as many brains as possible.....

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 12 2006, 07:07 PM

Being the expert at it, Satan and his pawns (whoever they may be) thrive on the game of confusion.

Posted by: September Sep 12 2006, 07:21 PM

Well, it's just the same old same old stuff...I don't believe a word of it. It's way too vague and contrary to what he says, they have trashed Linda. He even again likened her to Lucifer, Anninias and Saphira (excuse the spelling).

Like Barbara Kerr said in another post, Linda has been vindicated and we will find out shortly how...if she's been vindicated then Walt's letter is basically his last ditch effort to tell a story

Posted by: freckleface Sep 12 2006, 07:34 PM

I have just read the letter and honestly I feel like throwing up. They say they don't want to talk bad about Linda but the complete article was about trashing her.

I have also been talking to one of the Illinois conference coordinators and he tells me that Ken D. (Illinois conf. Pres.) has said that he did not vote in favor of Danny's remarriage. My question is, why? If Danny has proof to go around why is the Ill. Conf. Pres. saying he did not vote in favor of his marriage?

Danny has been saying that the 3ABN board voted unanimously on this matter. In my humble opinion if he (Danny) can lie about this, what makes us think he won't lie to us about everything else? Of course, he will mix in some truth just so he sounds credible.

By the way I am new here and have been doing quite a bit of reading in this site. Let's keep praying for some sort of justice and soon.

Posted by: PaperTigers Sep 12 2006, 07:41 PM

QUOTE(freckleface @ Sep 12 2006, 08:34 PM)

I have just read the letter and honestly I feel like throwing up. They say they don't want to talk bad about Linda but the complete article was about trashing her.

I have also been talking to one of the Illinois conference coordinators and he tells me that Ken D. (Illinois conf. Pres.) has said that he did not vote in favor of Danny's remarriage. My question is, why? If Danny has proof to go around why is the Ill. Conf. Pres. saying he did not vote in favor of his marriage?

Danny has been saying that the 3ABN board voted unanimously on this matter. In my humble opinion if he (Danny) can lie about this, what makes us think he won't lie to us about everything else? Of course, he will mix in some truth just so he sounds credible.

By the way I am new here and have been doing quite a bit of reading in this site. Let's keep praying for some sort of justice and soon.

exactly, if he'll lie about such a small minute detail... what will he NOT lie about.

welc

and i love the name freckleface!!

Posted by: justme Sep 12 2006, 07:55 PM

"There are none so blind as those who refuse to see".

"Unanimous votes"? = "puppets"

"Local church.."? = the one Danny built, (and controls)"

"He could have saved his time with this letter and just typed "DITTOS" all over the page."

"They who have no fear just don't see the problem".

"Larger "potential" audience"? = of whom?

"Quality, not quantity".

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 12 2006, 08:41 PM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 12 2006, 04:59 PM)

From: "Walt Thompson" <walttmd@wi.rr.com>
To: [Removed by GM.]
Subject: Re: 3abn
Date: [Removed by GM.]
Dear [Removed by GM.],

What is the actual and honest date of this email?

Posted by: Clay Sep 12 2006, 08:46 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 12 2006, 09:41 PM)

What is the actual and honest date of this email?

it was made up FHB just for you, so that you could spin a conspiracy theory..... just say you don't believe and wait to see if the poop hits the fan.....afterall time will tell....

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 12 2006, 08:49 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 12 2006, 09:46 PM)

it was made up FHB just for you, so that you could spin a conspiracy theory..... just say you don't believe and wait to see if the poop hits the fan.....afterall time will tell....

Such a telling response.

Ask a simple question, get no honest answer.

I am curious when in the whole timeline of things this happened - only one person here can provide that information, the poster of the entry who would know the actual date of the email.

Posted by: Clay Sep 12 2006, 08:56 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 12 2006, 09:49 PM)

Such a telling response.

Ask a simple question, get no honest answer.

I am curious when in the whole timeline of things this happened - only one person here can provide that information, the poster of the entry who would know the actual date of the email.

ıot a telling response at all..... I am skeptical of your skepticism..... and that is because I don't think ·ou are looking for answers as much as adding confusion to the mix.... consequently when I can, I am ıonna yank on your chain....

ıs for the email, it makes no difference when it was written, it contains the same lies that were told nitially.... reminds me of something my mom use to say.... why ask for the truth from someone you :now to be a liar?

Posted by: inga Sep 12 2006, 09:09 PM

While most of what is in this Walt Thompson letter has been analyzed before, some details have not been dealt with.

I wonder if we should believe what Dr. Thompson says regarding unverifiable conversations when some of the verifiable facts are not what he represents them to be?

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 12 2006, 04:59 PM)

From: "Walt Thompson" <walttmd@wi.rr.com>
To: [Removed by GM.]
Subject: Re: 3abn
Date: [Removed by GM.]
Dear [Removed by GM.],

<snip>
Arrangements were made and Nathan went there in Feb. 04. While there Linda and one of her closest friends went to visit and spent 3 days with them. During this time Linda and the doctor struck up a relationship that her friend became very concerned about, and eventually came to the place where she decided she needed to speak out. I have heard that testimony. I will not describe it in detail, but it was described as much more than the usual doctor - client relationship.

'hat persons would be Brenda Walsh. Is her testimony credible, considering she reportedly spent a lot ›f time with Danny alone and invited him (without Linda) to a birthday party while Dan and Linda were ;till married?

QUOTE

Our committee of the board invited a lady friend of Linda's to sit with us, thinking that, being a woman, she would be able to make Linda comfortable. As soon as she heard Linda's story, she confided to Linda that she was wrong, and needed to correct the problem.

don't recall this "friend" being brought in before. Who was she?

QUOTE

Meanwhile, all during this time, Linda was spending long hours on the phone with the doctor on international calls using phone cards, credit cards, etc. We have records of those cards and can verify the amount of time spent.

;eeing that overseas calls may be charged at 5x the "minutes" of local calls, this would give a very :xaggerated view of the amount of time spent. Thus "hundreds of hours," as charges, might boil down o 50 hours or less -- some of which were conversations with Irmgard and Johann, others with

Nathan, and others with Dr. Abrahamsen, with a good part of that time devoted to family therapy for addictions. So, perhaps over the course of a few months, Linda spent an actual 25 hours talking to Dr. Abrahamsen. Is that way out of line for family counseling for addictions?

> QUOTE
>
> Arrangements were made, and tickets purchased to meet him in Florida. (We have evidence such a meeting did indeed take place)

Now this is a very serious charge, and the facts should be verifiable. Did Linda, in fact, meet Dr. Abrahamsen alone in Florida?

I understood that when such a meeting was supposed to have happened Linda was, in fact, somewhere else.

It would be good to have this verified. If she was, in fact, somewhere else, then this is a complete fabrication on Dr. Thompson's part. Can we then trust his report on what Linda supposedly said and agreed to?

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 12 2006, 09:24 PM

> QUOTE(inga @ Sep 12 2006, 08:09 PM)
>
> While most of what is in this Walt Thompson letter has been analyzed before, some details have not been dealt with.
>
> I wonder if we should believe what Dr. Thompson says regarding unverifiable conversations when some of the verifiable facts are not what he represents them to be?
>
> That persons would be Brenda Walsh. Is her testimony credible, considering she reportedly spent a lot of time with Danny alone and invited him (without Linda) to a birthday party while Dan and Linda were still married?
>
> I don't recall this "friend" being brought in before. Who was she?Seeing that overseas calls may be charged at 5x the "minutes" of local calls, this would give a very exaggerated view of the amount of time spent. Thus "hundreds of hours," as charges, might boil down to 50 hours or less -- some of which were conversations with Irmgard and Johann, others with Nathan, and others with Dr. Abrahamsen, with a good part of that time devoted to family therapy for addictions. So, perhaps over the course of a few months, Linda spent an actual 25 hours talking to Dr. Abrahamsen. Is that way out of line for family counseling for addictions?Now this is a very serious charge, and the facts should be verifiable. Did Linda, in fact, meet Dr. Abrahamsen alone in Florida?
>
> I understood that when such a meeting was supposed to have happened Linda was, in fact, somewhere else.
>
> It would be good to have this verified. If she was, in fact, somewhere else, then this is a complete fabrication on Dr. Thompson's part. Can we then trust his report on what Linda supposedly said and agreed to?

I don't want to be verbally "stoned" but how do we know Linda is telling the truth? Danny has as many witnesses as Linda? It is all he said, she said. What can Danny do at this point to fix this problem? Does he have to step down or would just leaving Linda alone be enough? I have heard rumors that Linda is with the Dr. even now. How do we know that is not true? This just gets more complicated.....

Posted by: Chez Sep 12 2006, 09:40 PM

QUOTE(September @ Sep 12 2006, 07:21 PM)

Well, it's just the same old same old stuff...I don't believe a word of it. It's way too vague and contrary to what he says, they have trashed Linda. He even again likened her to Lucifer, Anninias and Saphira (excuse the spelling).
.
Like Barbara Kerr said in another post, Linda has been vindicated and we will find out shortly how...if she's been vindicated then Walt's letter is basically his last ditch effort to tell a story

Then his letter is a big, fat lie! [Lord help him.]

Posted by: Ralph Sep 12 2006, 10:20 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 12 2006, 09:24 PM)

I have heard rumors that Linda is with the Dr. even now.

You crack me up. rofl

Posted by: Johann Sep 12 2006, 10:43 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 13 2006, 05:09 AM)

While most of what is in this Walt Thompson letter has been analyzed before, some details have not been dealt with.

I wonder if we should believe what Dr. Thompson says regarding unverifiable conversations when some of the verifiable facts are not what he represents them to be?

That persons would be Brenda Walsh. Is her testimony credible, considering she reportedly spent a lot of time with Danny alone and invited him (without Linda) to a birthday party while Dan and Linda were still married?

I don't recall this "friend" being brought in before. Who was she?Seeing that overseas calls may be charged at 5x the "minutes" of local calls, this would give a very exaggerated view of the amount of time spent. Thus "hundreds of hours," as charges, might boil down to 50 hours or less -- some of which were conversations with Irmgard and Johann, others with Nathan, and others with Dr. Abrahamsen, with a good part of that time devoted to family therapy for addictions. So, perhaps over the course of a few months, Linda spent an actual 25 hours talking to Dr. Abrahamsen. Is that way out of line for family counseling for addictions?Now this is a very serious charge, and the facts should be verifiable. Did Linda, in fact, meet Dr. Abrahamsen alone in Florida?

I understood that when such a meeting was supposed to have happened Linda was, in fact, somewhere else.

It would be good to have this verified. If she was, in fact, somewhere else, then this is a complete fabrication on Dr. Thompson's part. Can we then trust his report on what Linda supposedly said and agreed to?

.et me merely state briefly here that Linda and Arild never met in Florida. In a few days I will have ⁄erified new facts which make these statements ridiculous. There is coming an avalance of them ;hortly. Stay tuned!

Posted by: inga Sep 12 2006, 10:59 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 12 2006, 11:43 PM)

Let me merely state briefly here that Linda and Arild never met in Florida.

'hat makes it a complete fabrication by the Dan Shelton/Walt Thompson camp.

Vhat does that say for the trustworthiness of the rest of the letter? (I understand that the Las Vegas ınd New York "meetings" are speculations based on laughably skimpy evidence, none of it involving the doctor.")

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 12 2006, 09:41 PM)

What is the actual and honest date of this email?

'hat's a good question, and I'm at a loss to surmise the reason for leaving out the date.

f no one supplies it here, I'll try to find out from 'GM."

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 13 2006, 12:02 AM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 12 2006, 04:59 PM)

From: "Walt Thompson" <walttmd@wi.rr.com>

A little more than two years ago a live television program aired on 3abn from Green Bay, Wisconsin. During that program Linda told of meeting a special person that had changed her life. She did not give the name or the sex of that person, but we later learned that he was listening in Norway.

This would be Green Bay SDA Church April 2 and 3, 2004. The guests on Friday Night were Pastor and Mrs. Corkum. Pastor Corkum is President of the Wisconsin Conference. That evening, they taped a "3ABN Up Close" program for the new TV series Linda had decided to develop. There was another program on Sabbath, the next day. That program aired live, I believe. Is this when the "special friend" was mentioned that 3ABN management, on their own, ascribed to the Norwegian doctor?

Posted by: icedragon Sep 13 2006, 11:09 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 12 2006, 07:45 PM)

I agree. I don't know why this was posted here. It really isn't all that different from the mass mailed one that we have pinned to the top. That one, so far as I know is circa May of this year. I have one that I believe is identical to this one that seemed to have been a form letter sent out during June .... at least I had two copies of it to two different people, with nothing different except the addressees and some slight difference in wording of the introductory and closing paragraphs. It's just another "smoke and mirrors" attempt. No problem at all for a "6 year old mind" .... remember the "Emperor's New Clothes"?

This is just more of the stuff. designed to addle as many brains as possible.....

Watchbird
I posted this here because I had not seen it else where on the site and found that the information gave more detail as to danny's side of the story. I have collected ALL the information, known to me, of first hand accounts. This was the first time I have seen a detailed explainiation from danny's side. I am not out to get Danny, I am out to get the truth and In the intrestest and Fairness to Danny I felt it approprate to post it seprately so that people could take a look at it. If it has already been posted else where I am unaware of it. I check this site at least 4 times a week and have not seen it posted. If it is "hidden" else where, then it Would seem to show a bias against Danny and that minds have already been made up, mine is not. While i think that this is more Detail from the Danny Camp it still raises guestions as to Brenda Walsh's involvement and that is Where we should focus. What was her involvement in this? Was she sent to Norway to Make up information? What did she see? Danny says that he heard conversations on the telephone? what did he hear? He says there is a clip in Green Bay, lets see it. He says there is evidence of plane tickets and arranged meeting where is it. This make claims about linda that to me make her look guilty. overspending, possible coverup there is just more info. Detail, Details, Details. This post is more detailed then Walters previous responses.

In order to establish guilt we must have 3 things.
1. Motive, - who has a reason, Why?
2. Means, - who has the ability and resources
3. Oppetunity - who has the time and circumstances

If we appply this to Danny What is his ....
Motive-Why would danny end a 20 years relationships and risk his reputation, his ministery, friendship and Job over this. That is not logical unless you establish motive.
So here it is his possible motive.: Dr. abrahm.... wanted to help linda solve problem with here son. in trying to treat him he discovered Danny was part of the problem. Danny did not like what the Dr was saying he felt threatened he felt that he was either being lied about or was going to be exposed for being an abusive or neglectful step-parent. This was too much for him to handle, his pride and desire for self preservation kicked in and he went on the attack to defend himself. In the process he took information facts, linda on the phone with the Dr. the trip to Norway, the spending and the pregenancy test to make it look like she was cheating, so he could get rid of her and not face his the reality of his bad parenting skills and the damage he and done to Linda.

The other option is Linda has motivation: so What is her motivation?

Linda for some time had been feeling like she wanted a change in her life. After being gilted by her Husband live on World TV about how he came to marry her was disillusioned, offend,hurt and humiliated. Inside she felt unappreaciated and betrayed. That combinde with the new found popularity of 3abn and the appreciation of the millions of adoring fans led her to conciously or unconciously look else where and get her need met through other means some legitmite and other not legitment. When Dr. abrahm came to visit and expressed concern for her son her heart was drawn to him because He and taken an intrest in her child who was important to her. This new found attention comined with the lack of attention from danny towards her and her children and the distance from an source of accountablity, lead to her spending more time than was aproprate with the Doctor. This eventrually lead to an inapproprate relationship. If sexual in nature there was certinaly an oppetuinty and would explain the pregnancy test. If not sexual then way past the dr./patient relaitionship. This would account for the phone calls.

Both of these are legitimate possiblities based on the evidence on hand. I do not know right now. I was really in favor of linda at first, but i must make room for the possibility I am wrong. In the intrest of obeying the Lord I do not want to bear false wittness. So until I have convincing proof I cannot say for certian. Many people have made up there mind. I have had to back off based on the evidence. This evidence cast doubht on the initial conclusions as to Danny's guilt and makes linda look not so innocent . I am sorry if that is not to peoples liking or beliefs, but I must be honest.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 13 2006, 11:36 AM

IceDragon,
While your two scenerios are obviously speculation, your point is well taken. The truth of the situation is certainly hard to pin down.

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 13 2006, 09:40 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 12 2006, 11:59 PM)

That's a good question, and I'm at a loss to surmise the reason for leaving out the date.
If no one supplies it here, I'll try to find out from 'GM."

I would be interested in where this fits into the chronology . . .

Posted by: watchbird Sep 13 2006, 10:18 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 13 2006, 11:36 AM)

IceDragon,
While your two scenerios are obviously speculation, your point is well taken. The truth of the situation is certainly hard to pin down.

Not only speculation, but speculation that flies in the face of what multiple witnesses and participants have stated. Every item Icedragon mentions has already been addressed in the various discussions on each point. The "truth" is only "hard to pin down" when one does not decide who are credible witnesses and who are not. And I disagree that we need to go into all these exercises in finding "motives" that make sense to us. We can see what happened. We can decide whether Danny and Walt have been caught in lies or not. We can decide whether we trust the witness of Johann and Beartrap and Arild as primary actors in the events of 2004 and whether we trust the witness of other observers and friends of Linda. Once we make the basic decision as to who can be counted on to tell the truth, then it matters not how much the details are embroderied or how many times they are repeated. Repetitions do not make lies into truth.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 13 2006, 10:47 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 13 2006, 09:40 PM)

I would be interested in where this fits into the chronology . . .

I have waited to speak on this thinking that Gregory would respond or someone would contact him. Since that has not happened, I'll just say that I have a letter in my possession which is word for word identical with the one posted here. The date on the letter is June 13, 2006. (I also have the addressee's name, but I'll not divulge that other than to say it was to a private individual rather than being a mass mailing as the one from Thompson that we have pinned seems to be.)

I also have another one which came to me a few days later that is identical to this one except for the opening and closing paragraphs. This one is also addressed to an individual. This leads me to think that this must have been a basic form letter which was slightly adapted when sent out to individuals.

As for how it fits into the "time line"..... The Thompson letter which is pinned was sent out as a mass mailing to the 3ABN "family and friends" sometime in early April. (The earliest firm date I found for its posting on BSDA is April 19, 2006, though it had been posted at Club Adventist previous to that time.) Internal evidence in the letter itself may be found in the first sentence which begins, "Two years ago....."

This present letter was sent out privately at least to two different persons in mid-June 2006. If the two letters are compared, one finds that the second is merely an expanded version of the first, with more emphasis being given to justifying Brandy's presence and marriage. Internal evidence of the accuracy of this date can be found in the second paragraph, which reads: "Let me summarize some of the events as viewed from my perspective during the past couple years."

The Arild Abrahamsen letter (which is pinned along with the Thompson letter of ca April 19) was interiorly dated June 20, 2006, though it was not officially released until July 13. 2006. If one compares the Abrahamsen letter with the two Thompson letters, it is very plain to see that only one author can be telling the truth. The differences are two great to be accomodated by any mere "different perspectives".

I strongly suggest that it is Abrahamsen who speaks the truth, and I believe we had already posted confirming evidence of that long before we received his letter.

Posted by: paleface Sep 13 2006, 11:05 PM

Our private forward e-mail letter dated 4/13/06 7:41:43 Pacific Daylight Time- Subj: 3ABN From Walter Thompson.
Letter from Dr. Arild Abrahamsen, dated June 20, 2006 with the BlackSDA. web site was how we found BSDA. It was in our local church mail and the rest is history.

Posted by: icedragon Sep 14 2006, 10:41 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 13 2006, 12:36 PM)

IceDragon,
While your two scenerios are obviously speculation, your point is well taken. The truth of the situation is certainly hard to pin down.

I think speculation is the wrong word. Speculation is making statments with out fact or evidence to support it, picking a side and hoping the evidence will support it. Stock speculators, in the stock market used to pick stock based on hope, gossip, and current market conditions, Hot or cold. Stock analyist on the other make decisions and predications based on the financial condition of the companies they are recommending and the market indicators. they use fact to project resonable conclusions, to make more accurate decisons.

The same has I have tried to do. I have tried to stay away from speculation and inuenendo, unlike many people around here. I gathered all the information from first hand information scources and put them in one place, unfortunately it was not posted in it's completeness. After careful analaysis and discussion with friend who are i respect for there analitical skills. These are the 2 possible situations that could have occured more or less, based on the information, some minor details maybe changable but to the greater extent these are the options. right now we have no smoking Gun to absloutely to accuse Linda or Danny. of wrong doing. while i have leanings i have had to back off Those leanings. I think that analysis is a better word.

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 14 2006, 11:05 AM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 14 2006, 10:41 AM)

The same has I have tried to do. I have tried to stay away from speculation and inuenendo, unlike many people around here. I gathered all the information from first hand information scources and put them in one place, unfortunately it was not posted in it's completeness. After careful analaysis and discussion with friend who are i respect for there analitical skills. These are the 2 possible situations that could have occured more or less, based on the information, some minor details maybe changable but to the greater extent these are the options. right now we have no smoking Gun to absloutely to accuse Linda or Danny. of wrong doing. while i have leanings i have had to back off Those leanings. I think that analysis is a better word.

Icedragon, I could give you some other scenarios, based on some eyewitness accounts which I have heard firsthand. They are no less plausible, to one who knows the facts, but to the casual observer would seem much more far-fetched--like an ongoing soap "As the Stomach Churns." As it is said, "Truth is stranger than fiction." I think it is best to keep surmising out of this situation, and allow the facts to speak. 1) Because, we as humans, have poor motives with our sin-sick hearts, and thus blind ourselves to proper discernment; and 2) because as we put forth an opinion, it strengthens us in that very belief, whether or not it were true at the beginning. It is, in fact, that second point which has caused many to truly believe a lie. A third point of still greater magnitude that I might add here has much to do with the Arch-Deceiver, and his practiced art of placing walls between even the closest of friends by causing each one to misunderstand, and misappropriate the motives of the other for some small, innocent detail of life.

Posted by: summertime Sep 14 2006, 02:19 PM

[
[/quote]

Why do not all of you go to the new posting here today which does a whole Dr. Bacchiocchi Biblical Study of the Linda/Danny relationship. For one thing he quotes: Particular emphasis is placed upon the Christian character of a church leader, exemplified by his temperate life-style, loyalty to his wife, and spiritual leadership in the home. The reason is that a pastor or a TV evangelist serve as role models to the congregation or viewing audience entrusted to them. A man divorced and remarried several times, can hardly serve as a role model to his congregation or viewing audience. Thus, fidelity to the biblical teachings demands that spiritual leadership is to be entrusted to men who have proven to be faithful to their wives and to be moral and spiritual leaders in the home. According to Paul's teachings, the solution to Danny and Linda's marital conflicts, should have been, not the filing for a hasty divorce in Guam, but the filing of a legal separation which would have left the door open for a possible reconciliation. , Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position. The longer he holds on to his position, the more people will become disenchanted with him and 3ABN. In an age of instant communication, one cannot cover up past mistakes for very long.

(These quotes came directly from the posting originating from Dr. Bacchiocchi Biblical Studies. Dr. Bacchiocchi is a retired Religious Professor at Andrews University. They were forwarded to us today and are under the 3ABN listings.)

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 14 2006, 02:51 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 13 2006, 09:18 PM)

Not only speculation, but speculation that flies in the face of what multiple witnesses and participants have stated. Every item Icedragon mentions has already been addressed in the various discussions on each point. The "truth" is only "hard to pin down" when one does not decide who are credible witnesses and who are not. And I disagree that we need to go into all these exercises in finding "motives" that make sense to us. We can see what happened. We can decide whether Danny and Walt have been caught in lies or not. We can decide whether we trust the witness of Johann and Beartrap and Arild as primary actors in the events of 2004 and whether we trust the witness of other observers and friends of Linda. Once we make the basic decision as to who can be counted on to tell the truth, then it matters not how much the details are embroderied or how many times they are repeated. Repetitions do not make lies into truth.

I see that you have had more time to weigh the evidence here than I have and may feel more comfortable in making the judgement call as to who is telling the truth and who is lying. I have only been weighing this evidence for a short time so I don't feel comfortable with throwing my self onto one side or the other yet. I don't think that I have a "6-year-old" brain. I just like to get the whole story best I can before making that big leap.

> QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 13 2006, 09:47 PM)
>
> I strongly suggest that it is Abrahamsen who speaks the truth, and I believe we had already posted confirming evidence of that long before we received his letter.

Watchbird, could you tell me where to find the thread containing the confirming evidence so I can go and read it? Thanks

> QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 14 2006, 09:41 AM)
>
> I think speculation is the wrong word. Speculation is making statments with out fact or evidence to support it, picking a side and hoping the evidence will support it. Stock speculators, in the stock market used to pick stock based on hope, gossip, and current market conditions, Hot or cold. Stock analyist on the other make decisions and predications based on the financial condition of the companies they are recommending and the market indicators. they use fact to project resonable conclusions, to make more accurate decisons.
>
> The same has I have tried to do. I have tried to stay away from speculation and inuenendo, unlike many people around here. I gathered all the information from first hand information scources and put them in one place, unfortunately it was not posted in it's completeness. After careful analaysis and discussion with friend who are i respect for there analitical skills. These are the 2 possible situations that could have occured more or less, based on the information, some minor details maybe changable but to the greater extent these are the options. right now we have no smoking Gun to absloutely to accuse Linda or Danny. of wrong doing. while i have leanings i have had to back off Those leanings. I think that analysis is a better word.

IceDragon, I stand corrected. Your reasonable conclusions are very interesting. I also try to stay away from speculation, innuendo and hearsay because the whole reason I came here was to search for truth. And that's what I intend to keep pursuing.

Posted by: inga Sep 14 2006, 03:28 PM

> QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 13 2006, 12:09 PM)
>
> [regarding Linda:]
> This eventrually lead to an inapproprate relationship. If sexual in nature there was certinaly an oppetuinty and would explain the pregnancy test.

This is precisely what I have not found -- the "opportunity" you mention. All I know of are speculations based on flimsy evidence that Linda had supposedly met the doctor here or there. Some very specific, supposedly "provable" meetings did not take place, because Linda was at an entirely different place at the time, according to Johann who is a first-hand witness with no stake in this other than that he stands for truth.

There is speculation that she spent time alone with the doctor in Norway. Johann can probably speak to this "opportunity" as well.

What is quite apparent is that Danny Shelton and Walt Thompson have been doing their best to make it appear that there was opportunity for an affair to take place.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 05:43 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 13 2006, 10:18 PM)

Not only speculation, but speculation that flies in the face of what multiple witnesses and participants have stated. Every item Icedragon mentions has already been addressed in the various discussions on each point. The "truth" is only "hard to pin down" when one does not decide who are credible witnesses and who are not. And I disagree that we need to go into all these exercises in finding "motives" that make sense to us. We can see what happened. We can decide whether Danny and Walt have been caught in lies or not. We can decide whether we trust the witness of Johann and Beartrap and Arild as primary actors in the events of 2004 and whether we trust the witness of other observers and friends of Linda. Once we make the basic decision as to who can be counted on to tell the truth, then it matters not how much the details are embroderied or how many times they are repeated. Repetitions do not make lies into truth.

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 14 2006, 02:51 PM)

I see that you have had more time to weigh the evidence here than I have and may feel more comfortable in making the judgement call as to who is telling the truth and who is lying. I have only been weighing this evidence for a short time so I don't feel comfortable with throwing my self onto one side or the other yet. I don't think that I have a "6-year-old" brain. I just like to get the whole story best I can before making that big leap.

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 13 2006, 10:47 PM)

I strongly suggest that it is Abrahamsen who speaks the truth, and I believe we had already posted confirming evidence of that long before we received his letter.

QUOTE

Watchbird, could you tell me where to find the thread containing the confirming evidence so I can go and read it? Thanks

Yes, I have indeed "had more time to weigh the evidence", and not only that, I started with the advantage of being a long time friend of Johann's, of working with him in several venues, and of having confidence in his honesty and kindly character. So when I asked him for an explanation of what was meant by the terse announcements on the 3abn webpage in May and June, 2004, there was no question in my mind whose version of the story to believe. But of course there is no way for me to hand you my confidence in Johann....

What I can do, however, is to make a few suggestions as to how to go about studying the material and making decisions as to who to believe. First of all, there are no real shortcuts .... this is one more situation which proves the truth of the old saw, "The long way around is the shortest way home." And another .... "The best place to begin is at the beginning.... that's the very best place to start."

Here, then, are some suggestions. They will require some note taking, a printer, and lots of patience.

1) In the pinned section, print off the three letters there .... the ones from Johann Thorvaldsson, Arild Abrahamson, and Walt Thompson. (Don't run Arild's and Walt's letters together. Be sure they are separate files.) From the beginning of this thread, print off the other letter from Thompson.

2) Now notice the dates on each, July 29, 2004 for Johann's, May 2006 for the first of Walt's, and June 2006 for the other, and July 14 for Arild's.

3) Compare them closely. Use some system of marking passages 1) which are in essential agreement, 2) which could be different views of the same thing, and 3) which are contradictory. I believe you will find that Johann's and Arild's are in essential agreement, in spite of the fact that they were written nearly 2 years apart so that Arild's covers more time than Johann's. I also believe that you will find a few differences between Walt's two letters. And I think you will find enough differences between Walt's and the other two so it becomes obvious to you that one side or the other must be lying. There is simply no way to reconcile the two stories in many places.

4) Accept this as fact. Don't sweat the details. At this point the only conclusion that you should reach is that one or the other is lying. And don't let go of that. No matter how contrived the arguments get from anyone .... don't let go of this basic fact. There is no use trying to reconcile the differences. They are simply too great for that.

Now .... how to determine which side is truthful and which is giving out lies ....

Here is where I think the only way to really get there is to start at the beginning.

The beginning was 2004, and you will find the threads started at that time mostly at the very end of the 3ABN menu. (When you pass your cursor over the thread titles, a box containing the date it was started will appear.) There were not many threads that were begun in 2004, and it is such ancient history now that it may seem unnecessary .... but I think walking with those who were trying to sort things out at the time will give you a better feel for why some now are so certain about where they stand.

When you are finished with those, then move to those begun in 2006, after Danny's remarriage. This was when interest really picked up. And once Sister begins to appear in the threads, leave those and go take the "guided tour" through her "Unauthorized History of 3ABN" which you will find pinned at the top.

But don't stop there. Remember that all the time she was putting those up, other threads were running concurrently. Try to work your way through them all. But do it slowly. It simply can't be done in a day.

And as you read, keep in mind the two sets of letters that you read. When you come across a post that speaks to some point on those letters ... either side .... make a note of it. One way I have found helpful is to click on the post number, which gives me the exact url of that post, which I can then paste into a document, along with a sentence or two about the contents. Eventually you will run across the "confirming evidence" that I mentioned above. Once you have picked these out you will be in a position to decide which "side" has the most credibility.

And once you have decided who is lying and who is telling the truth, the liars will not be able to bewilder you any more.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 14 2006, 07:41 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 04:43 PM)

Yes, I have indeed "had more time to weigh the evidence", and not only that, I started with the advantage of being a long time friend of Johann's, of working with him in several venues, and of having confidence in his honesty and kindly character. So when I asked him for an explanation of what was meant by the terse announcements on the 3abn webpage in May and June, 2004, there was no question in my mind whose version of the story to believe. But of course there is no way for me to hand you my confidence in Johann....

What I can do, however, is to make a few suggestions as to how to go about studying the material and making decisions as to who to believe. First of all, there are no real shortcuts .... this is one more situation which proves the truth of the old saw, "The long way around is the shortest way home." And another .... "The best place to begin is at the beginning.... that's the very best place to start."

Here, then, are some suggestions. They will require some note taking, a printer, and lots of patience.

Thank you for your recommendations on how to look for the truth. I have already done some of what you have suggested. I haven't gone clear back to the beginning but have tried to pay close attention to comparing letters, etc.

Thanks again.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 14 2006, 08:06 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 06:43 PM)

And as you read, keep in mind the two sets of letters that you read. When you come across a post that speaks to some point on those letters ... either side .... make a note of it. One way I have found helpful is to click on the post number, which gives me the exact url of that post, which I can then paste into a document, along with a sentence or two about the contents. Eventually you will run across the "confirming evidence" that I mentioned above. Once you have picked these out you will be in a position to decide which "side" has the most credibility.

And once you have decided who is lying and who is telling the truth, the liars will not be able to bewilder you any more.

About comparing letters.

You may also have to ask questions.

For instance, Walter Thompson mentions Linda's "lady friend." This "lady friend" glides off of Dr. Thompson's tongue quite easily. Who is she? I have found you really have to seriously question every noun and adjective in Thompson's letters.

QUOTE

Our committee of the board invited a lady friend [Kuzma] of Linda's to sit with us, thinking that, being a woman, she would be able to make Linda comfortable. As soon as she heard Linda's story, she confided to Linda that she was wrong, and needed to correct the problem. Linda requested her to query some of the 3ABN leadership to hear their views. she did this, only to find that Linda used the negative feedback she received as evidence she was not a friend to her cause. Linda would not talk to her again - the same as she had done to the friend [Walsh] that went with her to Norway.

Thompson mentions these two, Kuzma and Walsh, as Linda's friends.

Kuzma wrote an e-mail to Calvin located here:

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=1664

where Kuzma stated,

> QUOTE
>
> Although I will not comment further about what happened to lead up to Linda's departure from 3ABN, we know that the other man had been to the States and spent time with Linda before she left Danny, and that immediately after she left Danny, the other man was with Linda. A few weeks later they spent time traveling together through Europe.

Did Linda really go travelling through Europe with Arild Abrahamsen as Kay said?

Notice how Thompson's subsequent letter differs:

> QUOTE
>
> One of the things was that Linda had made arrangements to meet the doctor in Norway to spend 10 days with him touring the pretty places in the country during the following June.

Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004, so you can see how this travelling did not take place "the following June."

This is important, because the 3ABN Board, undoubtedly, was told about the romantic romps through Europe. They were encouraged to vote based on false information. Why should the board discount such an esteemed Adventist Review contributor such as the illustrious Kay Kuzma?

You have to look really closely (almost under a microscope) with Thompson, unlike his own 3ABN appointed "fact finder" Kay Kuzma. Thompson doesn't say that Abrahamsen and Linda Shelton travelled anywhere. This is an important change in the story. Why don't these Kuzma and Thompson stories match on a topic so damaging and so critical to Linda's reputation?

Well, of course, Linda Shelton refused further calls from this Kuzma "3ABN fact-finder committee" woman when she saw this hatchet job under way. You would, too, if your "friend" implied to strangers you were travelling around Europe with your lover.

Those are the types of questions you will have to ask yourself. You have to say, if Linda Shelton and Arild Abrahamsen did not travel through Europe for 10 days, why would Linda's supposed "lady friend" be sending out e-mail saying that they did?

You also need to know that Danny, shortly thereafter, put Kay Kuzma in charge of 3ABN Books. Does Danny tolerate people who are sympathetic to his ex-wife? Ask yourself questions. The fact that Kay Kuzma remained in the good graces of Danny Shelton may tell you on which side of the pizza Kay Kuzma's cheese was melting. Same goes for the Linda's other "friend" mentioned.

So, you will have to read all of the letters very carefully and note the changes and where they don't match the other letters and ask yourself why.

Posted by: justme Sep 14 2006, 09:30 PM

3ABN BOOKS: A real money maker. And Kuzma is in charge of it. You may remember that her very first "new" projects was to RE-WRITE the "history of 3ABN. It very conveniently "forgot" what Linda did for 3ABN.

Re: SKY ANGEL ... Danny acts like SKY ANGEL's rejection of 3ABN is no big deal. SO few viewers and so on. It was SKY ANGEL that literally put 3ABN on the map across the USA. AND SKY ANGEL offered "LIFETIME MEMBERSHIP SUBSCRIPTIONS" to get enough funds to get DOMINION SKY ANGEL Progamming really going. Robert, founder of Dominion SKY ANGEL need start-up money, which came mostly from SDA's by virtue of the interest in 3ABN. Then DISH came along and offered the viewer a smaller, more compact DISH ANTENNA at 19-inches across instead of the 6-7 feet mesh dishes used earlier.

For Danny to downplay the importance of Dominion SKY ANGEL is to deny the reality of it all.

To see the importance of the loss of SKY ANGEL a satellite system installer told me he could not get the new "HOPE" systems in fast enough to keep with the demand.

HOWEVER, it now is dropped off to a stand-still. No one want 3ABN anymore, but they love "HOPE".

Kuzma is trying really hard to justify her job there ay 3ABN, so far, playing "fast-n-loose" with the "facts" that go into the books makes it easier to become a P.R. tool for 3ABN rather than an evangelistic tool for God. Her books glorify 3ABN staff and individuals that appear there.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 14 2006, 09:43 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 14 2006, 06:06 PM)

About comparing letters.

You may also have to ask questions.

For instance, Walter Thompson mentions Linda's "lady friend." This "lady friend" glides off of Dr. Thompson's tongue quite easily. Who is she? I have found you really have to seriously question every noun and adjective in Thompson's letters.
Thompson mentions these two, Kuzma and Walsh, as Linda's friends.

Kuzma wrote an e-mail to Calvin located here:

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?showtopic=1664

where Kuzma stated,
Did Linda really go travelling through Europe with Arild Abrahamsen as Kay said?

Notice how Thompson's subsequent letter differs:
Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004, so you can see how this travelling did not take place "the following June." This is important, because the 3ABN Board, undoubtedly, was told about the romantic romps through Europe. They were encouraged to vote based on false information.
Why should the board discount such an esteemed Adventist Review contributor such as the illustrious Kay Kuzma?

snip

So, you will have to read all of the letters very carefully and note the changes and where they don't match the other letters and ask yourself why.

found it quite easy to figure out that the letter was refering to Kay and Brenda.

just don't see how you can conclude that Linda and Arild couldn't have traveled through Europe ›ecause Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004. How does the divorce make a trip mpossible? Am I missing something?

Posted by: beartrap Sep 14 2006, 09:58 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 14 2006, 09:43 PM)

I found it quite easy to figure out that the letter was refering to Kay and Brenda.

I just don't see how you can conclude that Linda and Arild couldn't have traveled through Europe because Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004. How does the divorce make a trip impossible? Am I missing something?

›anny claims that they travelled through Europe while he they were married... LIE! It never ıappened, but if it did after the divorce, is it any worse than Danny spending nights with Brenda Valsh, and moving Brandy into the house across the street form him (Way out in the woods where her is privacy) and then marrying her after whaterver the time across the street (in privacy) may ıave produced? Alot of people seem to be obssesed with pounding square pegs through round holes to ry and fit their fallacious hypothesis, but round is round, and square is square. No matter how you ›ound, twist, turn, or otherwise attempt to create a nice, neat fit, it won't happen.

Posted by: Johann Sep 14 2006, 11:04 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 05:43 AM)

I found it quite easy to figure out that the letter was refering to Kay and Brenda.

I just don't see how you can conclude that Linda and Arild couldn't have traveled through Europe because Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004. How does the divorce make a trip impossible? Am I missing something?

have asked Walt Thompson what evidence he has that this visit took place. He replied there was ıood evidence. I asked him if he had seen it. He admitted he had not, but that he had heard it. . . .

Ay wife and I were spending most of our time in the vicinity of Dr. Arild Abrahamsen, she received requent treratments from him, and we were in daily communication with Arild. It would have been a nillionth of a chance we could have missed Linda's visit to Europe during that period. This is merely ›ne more of a multitude of lies emanating from 3ABN. So what can you trust of whata they say?

Posted by: vonessa Sep 15 2006, 12:16 AM

I have truly enjoyed reading this topic. Even though the subject is sad, it has been fun putting the pieces together and seeing the whole picture. Thanks for all the people who have spent time doing this - it has been amazing to see it all!

Again, I know that it is sad and what not, but it is a true story, and we can now talk to the real people who were there and saw it happen. Much better than 99% of what's on television, including 3ABN!

Posted by: inga Sep 15 2006, 12:38 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 14 2006, 09:06 PM)

About comparing letters.

You may also have to ask questions.

For instance, Walter Thompson mentions Linda's "lady friend." This "lady friend" glides off of Dr. Thompson's tongue quite easily. Who is she? I have found you really have to seriously question every noun and adjective in Thompson's letters.
Thompson mentions these two, Kuzma and Walsh, as Linda's friends.

This "lady friend" in Thompson's latest letter had me puzzled. Now I can't believe that he actually called Kay Kuzma a lady friend!! Was she ever a friend to Linda??

I can understand calling Brenda Walsh a "friend," because Linda apparently really thought that Brenda was a friend. But Kay??

Thanks for this analysis, Pete.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 12:41 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 14 2006, 10:43 PM)

I found it quite easy to figure out that the letter was refering to Kay and Brenda.

I just don't see how you can conclude that Linda and Arild couldn't have traveled through Europe because Danny and Linda were divorced by June 26, 2004. How does the divorce make a trip impossible? Am I missing something?

Perhaps you're thinking that all of this refers to after the divorce.

Kay says, "Immediately after she left Danny, the other man was with Linda. A few weeks later they spent time traveling together through Europe."

Immediately, according to the dicitonary: "Without delay or hesitation; with no time intervening."

Thompson only says there were travel plans made for June, 2004, after a divorce was filed. Divorces always involve a time interval - even a quickie divorce on Guam.

Thompson doesn't even write that those travel plans ever became a reality. So, where does Kay Kuzma's travel information come from?

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 12:55 AM

QUOTE(Johann @ Sep 15 2006, 12:04 AM)

I have asked Walt Thompson what evidence he has that this visit took place. He replied there was good evidence. I asked him if he had seen it. He admitted he had not, but that he had heard it. . . .

My wife and I were spending most of our time in the vicinity of Dr. Arild Abrahamsen, she received frequent treatments from him, and we were in daily communication with Arild. It would have been a millionth of a chance we could have missed Linda's visit to Europe during that period. This is merely one more of a multitude of lies emanating from 3ABN. So what can you trust of whata they say?

And certainly, if Arild and Linda had left to do some "traveling together through Europe" his patients would have noticed he was missing.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 15 2006, 07:07 AM

[quote name='beartrap' date='Sep 14 2006, 08:58 PM' post='151963']
Danny claims that they travelled through Europe while he they were married... LIE! It never happened, but if it did after the divorce, is it any worse than Danny spending nights with Brenda Walsh, and moving Brandy into the house across the street form him (Way out in the woods where ther is privacy) and then marrying her after whaterver the time across the street (in privacy) may have produced?

Did Linda and the Dr ever "vacation" together? After the divorce?

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 08:45 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 15 2006, 12:55 AM)

And certainly, if Arild and Linda had left to do some "traveling together through Europe" his patients would have noticed he was missing.

Yes, indeed, and Arild's patient records would be a good source for someone seriously interested in researching his exact location during the times he is rumored to have been with Linda on some other continent. There are two problems with doing this, however.... one is that Arild is a very private person and is not noted for granting interviews to reporters, and the other is that those who make accusation have been very vague in their dates as to when he was, according to the accusation, spending time with Linda in some place in the US.

But back to the "traveling together through Europe" story.... I would guess that this has its "seed of truth" in one of the medical appointments that Linda had with Abrahamson ... that we discussed elsewhere at some length. (Sorry I don't have time to search for the exact urls of that discussion, maybe someone else can find it and bring it to this place.) To refresh the memories who were here for the discussion.... when Linda was left with no medical insurance, and no stateside friends to help her out, Dr Abrahamsen offered to treat her without charge. At the time of her divorce, he was "on location" with patients in Switzerland, so this is where she went (after her divorce) for her medical treatments. When finished she joined Irmgard and Johann in Norway, where she spent some additional time in "retreat" at their home.

The interesting (almost ironic) thing about this trip is that Danny was having her trailed by Private Investigators all the way..... which means that he was effectively (and unwittingly) providing her with a set of "chaparones" .... or should we say a rock solid protection against false accusations. For surely, had there been any shadow of a doubt in the PI minds about her morality on that trip, they would have reported it to Danny and he would have been waving it in triumph ever since.

So I think in this case, we have not only the affirmations of Linda, Arild, Johann, and Irmgard, that she was not following up on a "romantic liason" but we can rest assured that she was so impeccable in her behaviour that even a professional PI team could "find no fault in her" to report to their employers.

Could this be a case of a fulfillment of God's promise that he would not only protect against the "snares of the enemy" but would turn such attempts to snare into a wall of protection for the righteous?

In response to Uncle Sam's question, Linda vacationed with Johann and Irmgard at times during the next year or so after the divorce. They lived in Norway. Not anywhere near Arild's clinic. But at times they ALL went to Arild's clinic, as both Irmgard and Linda were taking treatments from Dr. Abrahamson. (Again ... this is all by way of review. Johann has described these times elsewhere on BSDA, and doubtless he will do so again.) So yes, Linda vacationed in Norway. No she did not vacation with Arild .... with the implications that this carries of them being alone together for extended periods of time.

Posted by: icedragon Sep 15 2006, 09:26 AM

> QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 12 2006, 09:41 PM)
>
> What is the actual and honest date of this email?

that is what was posted on msdaol. I took it as it was. ask Daryal.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 15 2006, 09:56 AM

Thanks Watchbird for clearing that up. I knew I had read about that before but Beartrap's post kindof cofused me. Saying IF she had gone after the divorce...

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:00 AM

Did I read earlier on BSDA something to the effect that the "Accused Doctor" in in his mid-60's, but Linda is in her late forties?

Again, IF Linda has opportunity to spend time time with the accused Doctor, they certainly would have a lot in common. If he is available and she is available and they each have "rights" to visit each other, then WHY NOT? Linda deserves all the love and support she can find.

He seems like a fine Christian gentleman. Even IF they had no "desires" for each other at the beginning, they may have developed some along the way. It sounds like a really good match so far.

Should they (Linda and the doctor) AVOID each other just because Danny couldn't wait to get rid of Linda???

Someone help me out here ..

Oh yeah, and they could have wedding rings, too, a far as I'm concerned.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 15 2006, 11:01 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 14 2006, 11:41 PM)

Perhaps you're thinking that all of this refers to after the divorce.

Kay says, "Immediately after she left Danny, the other man was with Linda. A few weeks later they spent time traveling together through Europe."

Immediately, according to the dicitonary: "Without delay or hesitation; with no time intervening."

Thompson only says there were travel plans made for June, 2004, after a divorce was filed. Divorces always involve a time interval - even a quickie divorce on Guam.

Thompson doesn't even write that those travel plans ever became a reality. So, where does Kay Kuzma's travel information come from?

I seem to be confused about the dates of things. When was their divorce filed? When was their divorce final? Did they both go to Guam to effect the divorce?

If it was filed on June 26, 2004 and the claim was that Linda traveled in Europe before this date she and Danny were still married. Right? If the divorce became final on June 26, 2004, were they still married up to this point. Do you understand my confusion?

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:29 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 12:01 PM)

I seem to be confused about the dates of things. When was their divorce filed? When was their divorce final? Did they both go to Guam to effect the divorce?

If it was filed on June 26, 2004 and the claim was that Linda traveled in Europe before this date she and Danny were still married. Right? If the divorce became final on June 26, 2004, were they still married up to this point. Do you understand my confusion?

ılso, as I recall, back as early as March of 2004, Danny had already begun his campaign to smear and ɜliminate Linda. That's when he began to build his case and that's when he put together his "spies" ınd "henchmen" to help him accomplish his task. he already had the support of his "Bored", but they ıeeded to put together "evidence" to support their upcoming plans.

remember watching 3ABN in March and April and seeing Linda siting on a chair at the back of the ;tage/platform, gazing woefully in a daze, wringing her habds. I told my wife at the time, there is ;omething amiss at 3ABN. Danny was acting ELATED" and Linda looked as if she had lost her very last riend.

Posted by: Fran Sep 15 2006, 11:44 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 11:00 AM)

Did I read earlier on BSDA something to the effect that the "Accused Doctor" in in his mid-60's, but Linda is in her late forties?

Again, IF Linda has opportunity to spend time time with the accused Doctor, they certainly would have a lot in common. If he is available and she is available and they each have "rights" to visit each other, then WHY NOT? Linda deserves all the love and support she can find.

He seems like a fine Christian gentleman. Even IF they had no "desires" for each other at the beginning, they may have developed some along the way. It sounds like a really good match so far.

Should they (Linda and the doctor) AVOID each other just because Danny couldn't wait to get rid of Linda???

Someone help me out here ..

Oh yeah, and they could have wedding rings, too, a far as I'm concerned.

ʌy desire for Linda is that she will find her soul mate. Some one that she can lean on and he can lean ›n her. Someone that is a spiritual leader that will share with Linda the joys of worhiping the King of ‹ings.

want her to have a heavenly marriage. I want her to experience a bit of heaven on earth! God knows vhat she suffered while being with Danny. She now can see what went on behind her back, while she vas the blind wife.

want her to be loved with a true love. One that will be lasting and comfortable; one where the two vill share everything with each other.

ʌow, should that be Dr A, so be it. The who is irrelevant. What is important is that Linda and the other person have a holy love! I do not believe now, or before, that Linda or the doctor had any thing intimate going on while Linda was married.

What happened after Danny divorced Linda is not any of our business. She was free to see whoever she wanted to see. Danny cannot fault that since he was reportedly sleeping with Brenda and he had already brought Brandy on the scene.

So to answer your question, I just want her happiness. She has lost everything because of Danny. I want her to have this Godly relationship with whom ever she chooses, even if it is Dr A!

Come to think of it, I think he would be a wonderful choice! However, Linda is in control of her life and I will ACCEPT her choice no matter WHO it is. She may have been hurt so badly that she may choose not to ever marry again. I guess what I am trying to say is that her happiness is what I want!

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 11:49 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 15 2006, 11:01 AM)

I seem to be confused about the dates of things. When was their divorce filed? When was their divorce final? Did they both go to Guam to effect the divorce?

If it was filed on June 26, 2004 and the claim was that Linda traveled in Europe before this date she and Danny were still married. Right? If the divorce became final on June 26, 2004, were they still married up to this point. Do you understand my confusion?

My information from files dated 8/22/2004 was that Linda traveled to Europe "a month after the divorce was final". One reason she did that was because Danny was harassing her so badly where she was living in Southern Illinois.... yes, even after the divorce.... and after she was living in a different place.

It is my understanding that no one has to appear in person in Guam. All they have to do is to fill out the paperwork. (You can find more information about this on BSDA ... I think even the sample forms are there ... or perhaps a link to where they may be views on web."

The confusion that has at times surfaced on BSDA as to when the divorce was final stems from the fact that, a year or so after the divorce was final, Linda learned that there was a possibility that the state of Illinois did not recognize the validity of a Guam divorce. That information, coupled with information that showed that she could have sued Danny for divorce on morals charges had she only known at the time, led her to test the validity of the Guam divorce in the Illinois court. Had the court there agreed that it was not valid, she would have been free to apply for a divorce on the basis of the new information she had about Danny's unfaithfulness. With that knowledge, is it any wonder that Danny "fought" for the validity of the Guam divorce? It was the final decision of the Illinois court (that Illinois would indeed accept the Guam divorce as final) that occurred just a few days before Danny remarried. But the Guam divorce was valid all of that time. Only if the Illinois court had declared it invalid would it have become so.

As for Kay Kuzma .... obviously she did not know any of this at the time she was supposedly following Danny's orders and trying to persuade Linda to remain with Danny. While I don't have a very high regard for Kay, I have not seen anything that would lead me to conclude that she .... and Mark Finley as well .... were in collusion with Danny's real purpose ... that of getting rid of Linda. I think they all bought into his pretense that he wanted her to stay, so they were bending every effort to persuade her to do just that. And of course the more they went along with his pretense, the more they alienated Linda, so they had less and less chance of finding out the truth of the other side of the story .... which was not only that Linda was innocent of Danny's charges, but also that Danny was actively trying to drive her away... from both him and 3abn.

I would hope that sooner or later they would not only realize the extent to which they were duped but would be man and woman enough to admit that not only did they not act jucidiously in not closely examining all avenues of truth that were open to them .... including not only Linda, but Johann, Arild, Derrell, and a number of others ..... but they were so seriously misled that they were not even really doing what they thought they were .... pleasing Danny by trying to "save" his and Linda's marriage.

And do notice that I did not include Walt Thompson in the ones that I think may have been "duped". He spoke quite plainly regarding the real reason that the board voted to get rid of Linda ... not because of adultery on her part .... but simply because Danny wanted her gone. Whatever his motives, I cannot at this point find it in my heart to believe that he was so deceived as the others. (Of course, maybe I am wrong about them also. Maybe they were only playing Danny's game of pretense. Maybe time will tell. Maybe it will hold on to its secrets. We shall have to all wait and see on some of this.)

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:53 AM

[size=7]
THANK YOU!
YESSSS
AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAMMMMMMMENNNNNNNNNNNN!!

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 15 2006, 01:44 PM)

My desire for Linda is that she will find her soul mate. Some one that she can lean on and he can lean on her. Someone that is a spiritual leader that will share with Linda the joys of worhiping the King of Kings.

I want her to have a heavenly marriage. I want her to experience a bit of heaven on earth! God knows what she suffered while being with Danny. She now can see what went on behind her back, while she was the blind wife.

I want her to be loved with a true love. One that will be lasting and comfortable; one where the two will share everything with each other.

Now, should that be Dr A, so be it. The who is irrelevant. What is important is that Linda and the other person have a holy love! I do not believe now, or before, that Linda or the doctor had any thing intimate going on while Linda was married.

What happened after Danny divorced Linda is not any of our business. She was free to see whoever she wanted to see. Danny cannot fault that since he was reportedly sleeping with Brenda and he had already brought Brandy on the scene.

So to answer your question, I just want her happiness. She has lost everything because of Danny. I want her to have this Godly relationship with whom ever she chooses, even if it is Dr A!

Come to think of it, I think he would be a wonderful choice! However, Linda is in control of her life and I will ACCEPT her choice no matter WHO it is. She may have been hurt so badly that she may choose not to ever marry again. I guess what I am trying to say is that her happiness is what I want!

THANK YOU!
YESSSS
AMEN!!

Posted by: inga Sep 15 2006, 01:54 PM

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 12:00 PM)

Did I read earlier on BSDA something to the effect that the "Accused Doctor" in in his mid-60's, but Linda is in her late forties?

Again, IF Linda has opportunity to spend time time with the accused Doctor, they certainly would have a lot in common. If he is available and she is available and they each have "rights" to visit each other, then WHY NOT? Linda deserves all the love and support she can find.

He seems like a fine Christian gentleman. Even IF they had no "desires" for each other at the beginning, they may have developed some along the way.

From the vantage point of over six decades of life experience, I can say that the type of false accusations brought up against Linda and the doctor very often have the effect of throwing people together and generating the very feelings of which they are accused. This is especially true when one person is being harassed, as Linda is. The man's protective instinct comes into play, and the woman feels sheltered and protected -- with both having feelings that are pre-cursors to romantic love.

If this has happened to Linda and the doctor, they are in a real dilemma. If they should start to keep company, become a couple and look like they might get married, everyone will think that the original accusations are true.

How very sad!!!!

QUOTE

It sounds like a really good match so far.

Should they (Linda and the doctor) AVOID each other just because Danny couldn't wait to get rid of Linda???

Posted by: Ralph Sep 15 2006, 04:07 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 15 2006, 01:54 PM)

From the vantage point of over six decades of life experience, I can say that the type of false accusations brought up against Linda and the doctor very often have the effect of throwing people together and generating the very feelings of which they are accused. This is especially true when one person is being harassed, as Linda is. The man's protective instinct comes into play, and the woman feels sheltered and protected -- with both having feelings that are pre-cursors to romantic love.

If this has happened to Linda and the doctor, they are in a real dilemma. If they should start to keep company, become a couple and look like they might get married, everyone will think that the original accusations are true.

How very sad!!!!

hope that the parties involved are aware of the snare that you mentioned. "To be forewarned is to be orearmed." You have given the warning.

Posted by: inga Sep 15 2006, 04:55 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 15 2006, 05:07 PM)

I hope that the parties involved are aware of the snare that you mentioned. "To be forewarned is to be forearmed." You have given the warning.

But isn't it rather unjust for people who could be a "good match," as some suggest, to remain forever apart because of the unfounded slander of unprincipled folks?

Posted by: Green Cochoa Sep 15 2006, 06:22 PM

...And wasn't it rather unjust that when there was perfectly good, healthful and beautiful fruit in front of her, Eve was forbidden to eat it?

Just or unjust, true happiness can only be found in following God's plans for our life.

"Marriage is something that will influence and affect your life both in this world and in the world to come. A sincere Christian will not advance his plans in this direction without the knowledge that God approves his course. He will not want to choose for himself, but will feel that God must choose for him. We are not to please ourselves, for Christ pleased not Himself. I would not be understood to mean that anyone is to marry one whom he does not love. This would be sin. But fancy and the emotional nature must not be allowed to lead on to ruin. God requires the whole heart, the supreme affections. " (AH 44)

I believe everyone should FAST and PRAY before saying "Yes!" to marriage, lest we in haste accept the devils plan to ruin our lives before God has presented His offer for our happiness.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 15 2006, 06:34 PM

Yes, God WILL restore all that Linda lost, as He did with Job.

Just a little reminder, though Fran. I know it is easy to venture into the areas of what was "reported" or rumored, but please let's stick to the facts. Thanks!

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 15 2006, 10:44 AM)

My desire for Linda is that she will find her soul mate. Some one that she can lean on and he can lean on her. Someone that is a spiritual leader that will share with Linda the joys of worhiping the King of Kings.

I want her to have a heavenly marriage. I want her to experience a bit of heaven on earth! God knows what she suffered while being with Danny. She now can see what went on behind her back, while she was the blind wife.

I want her to be loved with a true love. One that will be lasting and comfortable; one where the two will share everything with each other.

Now, should that be Dr A, so be it. The who is irrelevant. What is important is that Linda and the other person have a holy love! I do not believe now, or before, that Linda or the doctor had any thing intimate going on while Linda was married.

What happened after Danny divorced Linda is not any of our business. She was free to see whoever she wanted to see. Danny cannot fault that since he was reportedly sleeping with Brenda and he had already brought Brandy on the scene.

So to answer your question, I just want her happiness. She has lost everything because of Danny. I want her to have this Godly relationship with whom ever she chooses, even if it is Dr A!

Come to think of it, I think he would be a wonderful choice! However, Linda is in control of her life and I will ACCEPT her choice no matter WHO it is. She may have been hurt so badly that she may choose not to ever marry again. I guess what I am trying to say is that her happiness is what I want!

Posted by: lurker Sep 15 2006, 06:42 PM

Don't go matchmaking where there is no interest. Did it ever occur to anyone that there never was that kind of interest between Linda and the Doctor. It is really embarrassing to have people assume there is when there is nothing.

Linda behaved herself and acted like a married person. Another married woman on the other hand was supposed to have been flirting with him but his attention was directed neither Linda or the other married woman but to a non Adventist lady had who was single as he was single and whom he had invited as his guest.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 15 2006, 06:58 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 15 2006, 06:42 PM)

Don't go matchmaking where there is no interest. Did it ever occur to anyone that there never was that kind of interest between Linda and the Doctor. It is really embarrassing to have people assume there is when there is nothing.

Linda behaved herself and acted like a married person. Another married woman on the other hand was supposed to have been flirting with him but his attention was directed neither Linda or the other married woman but to a non Adventist lady had who was single as he was single and whom he had invited as his guest.

"Matchmaking" is very inappropriate .... and very "outdated". Let's simply not go there.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 15 2006, 07:02 PM

QUOTE(lurker @ Sep 15 2006, 05:42 PM)

Don't go matchmaking where there is no interest. Did it ever occur to anyone that there never was that kind of interest between Linda and the Doctor. It is really embarrassing to have people assume there is when there is nothing.

Linda behaved herself and acted like a married person. Another married woman on the other hand was supposed to have been flirting with him but his attention was directed neither Linda or the other married woman but to a non Adventist lady had who was single as he was single and whom he had invited as his guest.

Linda and the Dr. have had nothing but a friendship from the beginning till now. That's just how it is. She has been fortunate to have his friendship through all this too. Will she someday be married or date, only time will tell, the hurt and betrayal she has been through and is experiencing now will take her much time to work through (she told me it will take her a while) and she is smart enough to know this. Even if she meets prince charming somewhere along her journey, it will take her time to really trust again. I'm sure she will do what she can (reading books, counseling,etc) to get the healing and learn from it all. She is a smart lady - a bit on the naive side - but SMART and INTELLIGENT still!!

Posted by: Brennen Sep 15 2006, 08:15 PM

Something is missing here. What happened to the marriage between Linda and Danny Shelton before the Doctor. got into the picture. If she was so intense with the Doctor, what happened before that relationship?. Nothing happens in a vacuum, and certainly not with Linda Shelton. I suggest the Linda would not have done anything to destroy her marriage and she did not. The marriage was weak and gone long before all of this. Why is Dr. Walter Thompson leaving out the most crucial points. If she did as he said, what would lead a woman to need another relationship outside of her marriage? Was the relationship with the doctor a deep friendship? If so, why should it end. I suggest that the Shelton's marriage was long gone down the drain long before all of this. When we focus on Linda's side it look very bad (to the untrained eye). But when we look at the total picture, I see a snake in the grass. Let us all ask the question: "What was wrong in the marriage one year before all of this happened? Was Danny Shelton truly abusive. Dr. Thompson suggestion is that only physical abuse is really bad. As a specialist in dealing with toxic intimacy, I know that emotional, verbal and psychological abuse is just a deadly and oftentimes worse. Come on Dr. Thompson, tell us more. Be honest. Or do you really know all the dark secrets long before all of this.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 09:24 PM

We are told in inspiration that Satan likes nothing better than to put together two people in marriage who will later turn against each other; because it destroys the children, the families from each side, and all their friends. To put together two individuals who do not belong together is Satan's most efficient tool to hurt the children of God. It destroys all the good that God designed to come from a Godly union.

The top priorities in considering marriage are:
Will this union Glorify God?
Will this marriage do more to glorify God than we can do individually as single people?

Give the idea of the marriage to God and ask if He WANTS it to be. Then, in purity of heart realize that each person belongs first to God, not to "me".

If God gives you back to each other then proceed carefully, with scripture in hand. There is no greater love for another than that placed there by God Himself.

Matchmaking is a tool of Satan. It is diabolical in it's premise. It falls into the realm of parapsychology to suggest that two people, not guided by God, should pursue each other.

For others to suggest that two "might otta" date each other is to supplant the Holy Spirit in their lives. Tell them to surrender to God and see whom HE suggests.

As mentioned before by someone "with six decades of experience", that all too often two hurting souls find solace in each other's company. They may marry. The source of the hurting dies away and now they no longer have anything in common. They wonder why they married in the first place.

Jacob had a potential wife selected FOR him, by his father's servant. When he actually saw her in person, the one God chose for him, he "loved her and went into his mother's tent to marry her". Notice that, even tho' God chose her, it was still up to Jacob to love her, or not to love her. Ultimately it WAS Jacob's choice to love or not to love, but God gave Jacob God's first choice for a wife.

I can tell you from experience that there is no greater joy than to be married to a woman who was sent by God. It proves itself true every year, every decade. It's as though you are reborn each and every day. God knows how to do it, ... right!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 06:41 PM

That was beautiful! Thank you for sharing that testimony.....it is very encouraging.

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 10:24 PM)

We are told in inspiration that Satan likes nothing better than to put together two people in marriage who will later turn against each other; because it destroys the children, the families from each side, and all their friends. To put together two individuals who do not belong together is Satan's most efficient tool to hurt the children of God. It destroys all the good that God designed to come from a Godly union.

The top priorities in considering marriage are:
Will this union Glorify God?
Will this marriage do more to glorify God than we can do individually as single people?

Give the idea of the marriage to God and ask if He WANTS it to be. Then, in purity of heart realize that each person belongs first to God, not to "me".

If God gives you back to each other then proceed carefully, with scripture in hand. There is no greater love for another than that placed there by God Himself.

Matchmaking is a tool of Satan. It is diabolical in it's premise. It falls into the realm of parapsychology to suggest that two people, not guided by God, should pursue each other.

For others to suggest that two "might otta" date each other is to supplant the Holy Spirit in their lives. Tell them to surrender to God and see whom HE suggests.

As mentioned before by someone "with six decades of experience", that all too often two hurting souls find solace in each other's company. They may marry. The source of the hurting dies away and now they no longer have anything in common. They wonder why they married in the first place.

Jacob had a potential wife selected FOR him, by his father's servant. When he actually saw her in person, the one God chose for him, he "loved her and went into his mother's tent to marry her". Notice that, even tho' God chose her, it was still up to Jacob to love her, or not to love her. Ultimately it WAS Jacob's choice to love or not to love, but God gave Jacob God's first choice for a wife.

I can tell you from experience that there is no greater joy than to be married to a woman who was sent by God. It proves itself true every year, every decade. It's as though you are reborn each and every day. God knows how to do it, ... right!

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

168

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ The 3abn Story

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 25 2006, 11:07 AM

I once overheard Melody Shelton say "Everytime I hear the 3ABN Story it gets bigger and better." As she rolled her eyes, she laughed, and walked away...

It made me wonder what the true beginning of 3ABN really involved.

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Aug 25 2006, 04:48 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 25 2006, 12:07 PM)

I once overheard Melody Shelton say "Everytime I hear the 3ABN Story it gets bigger and better." As she rolled her eyes, she laughed, and walked away...

It made me wonder what the true beginning of 3ABN really involved.

Her rolling her eyes and laughing was an "interesting response" to something so stank.

Posted by: västergötland Aug 26 2006, 09:43 AM

Question about John L. What year did he become 3abn pastor?

Posted by: justme Aug 26 2006, 10:20 AM

3ABN wants DISH NETWORK!

3ABN has been broadcasting an announcement to ask to be placed in the DISH Network programming lineup.
Danny is speaking to all 3ABN viewers asking 3ABN viewers to write to DISH Network.

Mr. Eric Sahl
Senior Vice President for Programming

DISH Network
9601 South Meridian
Englewood, Colorado

80112

You may want to write to Mr. Eric Sahl, Senior Vice President for Programming, to express you thoughts on this request.

God's will be done!

Posted by: Johann Aug 26 2006, 03:51 PM

> QUOTE(västergötland @ Aug 26 2006, 05:43 PM)
>
> Question about John L. What year did he become 3abn pastor?

2003

Posted by: msraccoon Aug 26 2006, 06:40 PM

Hey "justme", thanks for the info on DS's trying to get on regular Dish network. I am drafting a letter to Mr. Sahl at Dish Network, however, it may not be exactly what DS had in mind.

Dish Network owns SkyAngel's satellite and I am sure there is some negative history there for 3ABN. Myself, I took it as a sign from God when SkyAngel took off 3ABN. Step 1 accomplished.

Thanks again, others may want to write Dish Network also. msraccoon

---

Posted by: justme Aug 26 2006, 09:52 PM

> QUOTE(msraccoon @ Aug 26 2006, 08:40 PM)
>
> Hey "justme", thanks for the info on DS's trying to get on regular Dish network. I am drafting a letter to Mr. Sahl at Dish Network, however, it may not be exactly what DS had in mind.
>
> Dish Network owns SkyAngel's satellite and I am sure there is some negative history there for 3ABN. Myself, I took it as a sign from God when SkyAngel took off 3ABN. Step 1 accomplished.
>
> Thanks again, others may want to write Dish Network also. msraccoon

His reply to an email sent to this is his email address

eric.sahl@echostar.com earlier is this:

His reply:
"We are interested in carriage of the service. However, we must negotiate first with the Dominion Sky Angel group due to a contractual issue with them. These discussions are ongoing but I cannot be certain of any outcome yet.

Eric"

(-----Original Message-----
From: justme
To: Sahl, Eric
<eric.sahl@echostar.com>
Sent: Sat Aug 26 10:26:44 2006
Subject: 3ABN

Dear Mr. Sahl,

What are you plans regarding adding 3ABN to your programming line up?

justme)

QUOTE(justme @ Aug 26 2006, 11:50 PM)

His reply to an email sent to this is his email address

eric.sahl@echostar.com

His reply:
"We are interested in carriage of the service. However, we must negotiate first with the Dominion Sky Angel group due to a contractual issue with them. These discussions are ongoing but I cannot be certain of any outcome yet.

Eric"

(-----Original Message-----
From: justme
To: Sahl, Eric
<eric.sahl@echostar.com>
Sent: Sat Aug 26 10:26:44 2006
Subject: 3ABN

Dear Mr. Sahl,

What are you plans regarding adding 3ABN to your programming line up?

justme)

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 02:57 AM

QUOTE(justme @ Aug 26 2006, 09:52 PM)

His reply to an email sent to
this is his email address
eric.sahl@echostar.com earlier is this:

His reply:
"We are interested in carriage of the service. However, we must negotiate first with the Dominion Sky Angel group due to a contractual issue with them. These discussions are ongoing but I cannot be certain of any outcome yet.

Eric"

(-----Original Message-----
From: justme
To: Sahl, Eric
<eric.sahl@echostar.com>
Sent: Sat Aug 26 10:26:44 2006
Subject: 3ABN

Dear Mr. Sahl,

What are you plans regarding adding 3ABN to your programming line up?

justme)

Vhile in most cases I have been one who has urged activist participation so as to be "a tool in the ıands of God" ..... as contrasted with a do-nothing-but-pray position..... in this particular case I have inside" information which indicates that humans have already done "their part" so we can safely rest n peace knowing that God is acting and will continue to act without further personal assistance from ıny of us. And I think we can also change our prayers in this particular regard from petition to praise.

Vhat are the clues? Why do I say this? I'm sorry. I am not at liberty to say, neither would it be wise or anyone who knows to say .... at this time. Perhaps when all things have been made clear, then we :an know the whole story. Suffice it for now to mention a couple thoughts from scripture; "Be sure ′our sins will find you out"..... and "God makes even the wrath of men to serve Him and bring glory o His Name."....

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 27 2006, 03:54 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 27 2006, 03:57 AM)

While in most cases I have been one who has urged activist participation so as to be "a tool in the hands of God" ..... as contrasted with a do-nothing-but-pray position..... in this particular case I have "inside" information which indicates that humans have already done "their part" so we can safely rest in peace knowing that God is acting and will continue to act without further personal assistance from any of us. And I think we can also change our prayers in this particular regard from petition to praise.

What are the clues? Why do I say this? I'm sorry. I am not at liberty to say, neither would it be wise for anyone who knows to say .... at this time. Perhaps when all things have been made clear, then we can know the whole story. Suffice it for now to mention a couple thoughts from scripture; "Be sure your sins will find you out"..... and "God makes even the wrath of men to serve Him and bring glory to His Name."....

/ery cryptic, Watchbird

Posted by: Fran Aug 27 2006, 04:43 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 27 2006, 03:54 AM)

Very cryptic, Watchbird

And very unneccessary IMO. If the forum has no business knowing, why post it?

Sounds to me a lot like a song kids sing to make the other kids feel bad. "I know a secret! But, I can't & won't tell you! HA-HA- HA!" "Nanny, Nanny, Boo Boo!"

Sorry about that, it is late and just my first thoughts after reading it.

Posted by: Clay Aug 27 2006, 05:11 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Aug 27 2006, 04:43 AM)

And very unneccessary IMO. If the forum has no business knowing, why post it?

Sounds to me a lot like a song kids sing to make the other kids feel bad. "I know a secret! But, I can't & won't tell you! HA-HA- HA!" "Nanny, Nanny, Boo Boo!"

Sorry about that, it is late and just my first thoughts after reading it.

yes..... in showbiz its called a "tease." And I really dislike them... share or don't share, but don't do the, I know something you don't but I can't tell you.... naw..... not feeling that one....

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 08:06 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 27 2006, 05:11 AM)

yes..... in showbiz its called a "tease." And I really dislike them... share or don't share, but don't do the, I know something you don't but I can't tell you.... naw..... not feeling that one....

This is not "showbiz', and this is not a "tease", neither is it an "I've got a secret .... etc...."

All along through this "saga" we have referred to things of which we could only tell a small portion and could not tell the details .... the "tip of the iceberg" it has been called. I think there are those on here with whom I have enough credibilty so that my statement, cryptic or not, as to whether there is any need to contact sky angel, is valuable information. And I know that there are others on here who also know "the rest of the story". Those who don't fit into one of those two groups can simply ignore my comments and go about their business.... not exactly sure why that "business" should include criticizing me for posting it .... but.... That's OK, too, I guess..... have a good day .... there is indeed HOPE.

Posted by: Clay Aug 27 2006, 08:48 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 27 2006, 09:06 AM)

This is not "showbiz', and this is not a "tease", neither is it an "I've got a secret .... etc...."

All along through this "saga" we have referred to things of which we could only tell a small portion and could not tell the details .... the "tip of the iceberg" it has been called. I think there are those on here with whom I have enough credibilty so that my statement, cryptic or not, as to whether there is any need to contact sky angel, is valuable information. And I know that there are others on here who also know "the rest of the story". Those who don't fit into one of those two groups can simply ignore my comments and go about their business.... not exactly sure why that "business" should include criticizing me for posting it .... but.... That's OK, too, I guess..... have a good day .... there is indeed HOPE.

if you know something, and don't share that something BUT tell someone that you know something and can't share it..... in my part of the world that is called a "tease." Then to allude that others know the rest of the story too, yet it is not being shared.... that is called a "tease."

Note I am not criticizing you, but I am calling it as I am seeing it....

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 09:13 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 27 2006, 08:48 AM)

if you know something, and don't share that something BUT tell someone that you know something and can't share it..... in my part of the world that is called a "tease." Then to allude that others know the rest of the story too, yet it is not being shared.... that is called a "tease."

Note I am not criticizing you, but I am calling it as I am seeing it....

Note that it feels like criticism. But that's OK, I can live with that.

I just want to note that this was not the point of my post. The point was a difference in what I had recommended .... even urged ... people to do .... and on this particular action of contacting dish network and sky angel. And the reason I mentioned having information I should not share at this time was to let the reader know that I had reason for changing my mind on this particular action... as contrasted with the possibility that I was just moving to the "do nothing" stance that some take.

That's all. Sorry it sounded like a "tease".

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 10:52 AM

This thread has wandered far away from the original comment of the thread .... and from what seemed to be the direction the creator of the thread wanted to go, as indicated by his subheading, "Fact vs. Fiction".

First a comment on the subhead.....

As I have mentioned before, the phrase "The truth is stranger than fiction" has often been affixed to the various stories coming out of 3ABN. I would like to add to that, that FACT is not only "stranger than fiction" but it is very often a great deal more unpleasant ... even downright revolting. If one is writing fiction, one is free to paint rosy pictures, to make everything come out right at the end, to make sure the "good guys" always wear white hats, and the "bad guys" always wear black ones. When one is dealing with real life and with facts rather than fiction, this is not so. The worst kinds of evil can come "garbed in garments of light". The pleasant smooth things are often the worst falsehoods, and the harshest and most repulsive facts are often the truth.

Let's look now at the story that husbandoftheyear brought to our attention thusly ....

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 25 2006, 11:07 AM)

I once overheard Melody Shelton say "Everytime I hear the 3ABN Story it gets bigger and better." As she rolled her eyes, she laughed, and walked away...

It made me wonder what the true beginning of 3ABN really involved.

And the pungent comment that PrincessDrRe added ....

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Aug 25 2006, 04:48 PM)

Her rolling her eyes and laughing was an "interesting response" to something so stank.

Most likely DrRe' based her comment on what has been previously learned here on BSDA about the "true beginning of 3ABN".... in contrast to the "first miracle stories" which have been told about it. But I would say that actually, Melodie's response was the only one that could reasonably be made, given what she knew about that "first miracle story".

I seem to recall it being discussed in more than one thread, but the main one that I could find, was the thread entitled "Danny Marries .... again"

In deference to the rule that posts cannot be copied from one thread to another, I will only bring three brief excerpts from the discussion there, and give the url of these posts so you can go to that thread to read the whole discussion.

On Apr 11 2006, 08:05 AM ... Post #194 of the above named thread, Sister included this paragraph in a post that dealt with a number of things other than this.

"Any man who begins his ministry founded on "a first miracle" that can be easily proven to be nothing more than a lie, should be suspect. When two of the current top people in his ministry are the ones, Molly and Hal Steenson, who suggested the "miracle" and were willing to forge documents to substanciate it and over the years both they and Danny have continued to sell it to the people---there is a lot more going on "in the name of God" at 3ABN than you can imagine." See the context and read the discussion at:

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?s=&showtopic=8572&view=findpost&p=126171

Later that day, in Post #200, Clay asked ... "what is this "first miracle" some have referred to that started 3ABN? What have I missed?"

And in Post #203 Sister gave a more complete explanation of the facts behind the "story", with this passage being the basic facts.

"Before 3ABN started, Danny met with the Steensons when they were charismatic pastors and they offered to put on paper that they were donating around $100,000.00 worth of television equipment to him. That was the first "miracle" story that started the money rolling in. No equipment was ever donated by the Steensons, other than an SM-58 microphone that didn't work. To this day that story is told as the miracle that started 3ABN, but it is false. The first camera equipment at 3ABN came from Joe Crews at Amazing Facts and was purchased on a barter deal for air time."
http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?s=&showtopic=8572&view=findpost&p=126260

And discussion continued from this point for several posts. This has been verified by a number of others who were in position to know the facts.

Thus it is no wonder that Melody would "roll her eyes" at the way the fictional stories had completely replaced the factual accounts of what had happened.

Fact vs Fiction? This is a good question to ask .... just so long as it is asked at least equally much of those at 3ABN who seem to think that if you tell a lie enough times it somehow morphs into truth, as it is asked of those who are only now telling the facts behind the lies.

Posted by: gardener Aug 27 2006, 10:53 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 27 2006, 11:13 AM)

Note that it feels like criticism. But that's OK, I can live with that.

I just want to note that this was not the point of my post. The point was a difference in what I had recommended .... even urged ... people to do .... and on this particular action of contacting dish network and sky angel. And the reason I mentioned having information I should not share at this time was to let the reader know that I had reason for changing my mind on this particular action... as contrasted with the possibility that I was just moving to the "do nothing" stance that some take.

That's all. Sorry it sounded like a "tease".

Watchbird, are you suggesting that we write Dish Network and encourage them NOT to put 3abn on? If so I would have to say NO. It is not 3abn that needs to go. We don't want to throw the baby out with the bathwater.

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 11:13 AM

> QUOTE(gardener @ Aug 27 2006, 10:53 AM)
>
> Watchbird, are you suggesting that we write Dish Network and encourage them NOT to put 3abn on? If so I would have to say NO. It is not 3abn that needs to go. We don't want to throw out the baby with the bathwater.

No, I am suggesting that in this case the best course of action is to lay low, say nothing at all to Dish network, and wait until all is settled and we either have a new and completely revamped 3ABN which has a valid and close relationship with the official church ... or there is a complete break between 3ABN and the church ... or whatever happens has happened.

As to the question of "throwing out the baby with the bathwater" .... it simply does not apply in this situation.

As far as what effect our letters on either side of the issue with DISH would have at this time .... at best they will be completely ignored and ineffective, and at worst they could worsen the situtation for the future. Or to put it another way .... the present is already fixed. We can stop trying to affect what already is. We need to wait until the future comes to see what will be appropriate action in view of whatever that "future" looks like when it becomes the present.

There are plenty of other places where those who wish to be activists can be of real help. Contact your friends and church leaders and direct them to BSDA to learn what we are saying about 3ABN. Contact other places like Palm Springs who already have "rallys" scheduled .... express your disappointment in their plans..... direct them to BSDA where they can learn more about why you are disappointed in them. I am still an activist. There is only this one item of activism that I had previously recommended, but when I checked to find out whether it was advisable or not, I found that it was not. But other than that, KEEP ON KEEPING ON with spreading the word in whatever venues you have opportunity.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 27 2006, 11:47 AM

> QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 27 2006, 11:13 AM)
>
> No, I am suggesting that in this case the best course of action is to lay low, say nothing at all to Dish network, and wait until all is settled and we either have a new and completely revamped 3ABN which has a valid and close relationship with the official church ... or there is a complete break between 3ABN and the church ... or whatever happens has happened.
>
> As to the question of "throwing out the baby with the bathwater" .... it simply does not apply in this situation.

Thanks for that update. Watchbird. That wasn't cryptic at all. That should make the others happier, I think.

By the way, cryptic just means "hidden from view." I didn't mean anything critical by using that word, if any readers are wondering. I appreciated the original post and understood it to be a "heads up" post to those who were contemplating corresponding with the satellite providers.

I am patient and I can wait to see where the dust settles. Thanks again, Watchbird.

Posted by: Johann Aug 27 2006, 12:01 PM

Let me just state that Watchbird is telling the truth, but the whole truth cannot be revealed at this moment. BSAD has played a solid role in what is happening these hours. We do not know exactly how things will mature from here, but the end of the present 3ABN regime is squarely in sight. Praise the Lord!

Posted by: Chez Aug 27 2006, 12:05 PM

> QUOTE(Johann @ Aug 27 2006, 01:01 PM)
>
> Let me just state that Watchbird is telling the truth, but the whole truth cannot be revealed at this moment. BSAD has played a solid role in what is happening these hours. We do not know exactly how things will mature from here, but the end of the present 3ABN regime is squarely in sight. Praise the Lord!

Johann, thank you for your unwavering faithfulness. Thank you for being a solid man of God. I have appreciated your leadership, forthrightness, and tenacity. Thanks! May God continue to richly bless you.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 27 2006, 12:48 PM

> QUOTE(Johann @ Aug 27 2006, 01:01 PM)
>
> Let me just state that Watchbird is telling the truth, but the whole truth cannot be revealed at this moment. BSAD has played a solid role in what is happening these hours. We do not know exactly how things will mature from here, but the end of the present 3ABN regime is squarely in sight. Praise the Lord!

I want to thank you and Watchbird for your comments on the forum.

I will be curious what "regime" will be ousted. If it is only Dan, then we haven't solved anything. Mollie will step in with Hal and we'll be fighting the same battles all over again - only Hal and Mollie are better at hiding secrets.

Posted by: watchbird Aug 27 2006, 01:46 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 27 2006, 12:48 PM)

I want to thank you and Watchbird for your comments on the forum.

I will be curious what "regime" will be ousted. If it is only Dan, then we haven't solved anything. Mollie will step in with Hal and we'll be fighting the same battles all over again - only Hal and Mollie are better at hiding secrets.

Thank you for your confirmation. This is our position also. Read Sister's threads with care. You will see that she has been leading the way in identifying those who are part of Danny's "regime" .... and she and others have been telling the stories that show why they, too, should be expelled.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 27 2006, 01:53 PM

I am all too familiar with the players. I am simply curious as to whether or not 3ABN will be completely cleansed of the infestation.

Posted by: rwelchcrs Aug 27 2006, 02:06 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 27 2006, 02:46 PM)

Thank you for your confirmation. This is our position also. Read Sister's threads with care. You will see that she has been leading the way in identifying those who are part of Danny's "regime" .... and she and others have been telling the stories that show why they, too, should be expelled.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 27 2006, 02:19 PM

With Danny Shelton controlling the board, how and in what way can they even be expelled?

Posted by: rwelchcrs Aug 27 2006, 02:20 PM

After following these posts for over a year now, I've concluded that the entire 3ABN "regime" members are "birds of a feather" because they all tend to think and act the same way. So if only a part of the "regime" is ousted, the others will pick up where they left off. Nothing will change. However, if the entire "regime" is ousted, where does that leave 3ABN as an organization? Remember, they are entirely an independent organization. Who, outside of the 3ABN board, will choose the new "regime"? The board is hand-picked by Danny, right? If they are part of the problem they will certainly not be able to provide a solution.
Since we now have the HOPE Channel coming on strong, I think perhaps the complete demise of 3ABN is the best solution. Let's note the lessons learned, and start over with a new organization that is already in place. Why try fixing a broken-down '87 Chevy when you have a new Lexus waiting at the curb?

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 27 2006, 05:22 PM

QUOTE(rwelchcrs @ Aug 27 2006, 03:20 PM)

After following these posts for over a year now, I've concluded that the entire 3ABN "regime" members are "birds of a feather" because they all tend to think and act the same way. So if only a part of the "regime" is ousted, the others will pick up where they left off. Nothing will change. However, if the entire "regime" is ousted, where does that leave 3ABN as an organization? Remember, they are entirely an independent organization. Who, outside of the 3ABN board, will choose the new "regime"? The board is hand-picked by Danny, right? If they are part of the problem they will certainly not be able to provide a solution.
Since we now have the HOPE Channel coming on strong, I think perhaps the complete demise of 3ABN is the best solution. Let's note the lessons learned, and start over with a new organization that is already in place. Why try fixing a broken-down '87 Chevy when you have a new Lexus waiting at the curb?

Sometimes it is the comfort of that old 87 that people want and need. There are many talented, Christian people there that want to do the work of the Lord. What becomes of them.

I agree with Gardener - we'd be throwing the baby out with the bathwater.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 27 2006, 06:32 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 27 2006, 06:22 PM)

Sometimes it is the comfort of that old 87 that people want and need. There are many talented, Christian people there that want to do the work of the Lord. What becomes of them.

I agree with Gardener - we'd be throwing the baby out with the bathwater.

To borrow your metaphors, Watchbird is just saying that we should not go speeding into the fog with either that '87 Chevy or the Lexus until we can see what's up ahead.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 27 2006, 06:38 PM

From what I have been reading here and there, I got the feeling that Linda may have been removed by Danny, divorce-wise and 3ABN-wise as she spoke against the wrongs she saw happening there.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 27 2006, 07:20 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 27 2006, 07:32 PM)

> To borrow your metaphors, Watchbird is just saying that we should not go speeding into the fog with either that '87 Chevy or the Lexus until we can see what's up ahead.

I couldn't agree more!

Posted by: rwelchcrs Aug 27 2006, 07:23 PM

> QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 27 2006, 06:22 PM)
>
> Sometimes it is the comfort of that old 87 that people want and need. There are many talented, Christian people there that want to do the work of the Lord. What becomes of them.
>
> I agree with Gardener - we'd be throwing the baby out with the bathwater.

There were many talented Christian people put out of work when the Battle Creek Sanitarium and press burned down. But it was temporary. They eventually found a new and better place to use their talents for the Lord. I don't think the "baby with the bathwater" metaphor fits the current situation unless we're willing to consider infanticide!
The independent nature of 3ABN and Danny's total control of the board makes positive change impossible.
Have you considered the possible significance of the rise of HOPE Channel at the same time this 3ABN scandal is emerging? I don't know the future, I don't even know very much about the present, but it appears to my fallible human perception that perhaps the Lord is getting ready to provide a completely new televangelism avenue for the SDA church. As HOPE grows, they will need more talent. The current 3ABN workers may be able to switch to a better working environment.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 27 2006, 07:51 PM

> QUOTE(rwelchcrs @ Aug 27 2006, 06:23 PM)
>
> There were many talented Christian people put out of work when the Battle Creek Sanitarium and press burned down. But it was temporary. They eventually found a new and better place to use their talents for the Lord. I don't think the "baby with the bathwater" metaphor fits the current situation unless we're willing to consider infanticide!
> The independent nature of 3ABN and Danny's total control of the board makes positive change impossible.
> Have you considered the possible significance of the rise of HOPE Channel at the same time this 3ABN scandal is emerging? I don't know the future, I don't even know very much about the present, but it appears to my fallible human perception that perhaps the Lord is getting ready to provide a completely new televangelism avenue for the SDA church. As HOPE grows, they will need more talent. The current 3ABN workers may be able to switch to a better working environment.

I am thinking like rwelchers too. There are many good people that have worked hard and long for 3abn, and God has not forgotten them. The right doors will open for each one - God has had things planned for each of His children, for each matters to Him. So, while it's totally acceptable thinking to see why 3abn can not stay in place, how it will happen is a curious thing, and none of us want to see a bandaid on it, for it will just continue to oooze all over the place, how do you just have something end? Hopefully, with the right people helping the fan's of 3abn merge to something else to watch - like the Hope Channel for example, most of the same programming is there, and will continue to grow there - and I tend to think that people will merge there (employees if they dare trust again, and viewers who discover it with good marketing). Lessons learned elsewhere will hopefully make HOPE a better place as well. Just shooting from the hip here....

Posted by: Chez Aug 28 2006, 08:01 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 27 2006, 08:51 PM)

I am thinking like rwelchers too. There are many good people that have worked hard and long for 3abn, and God has not forgotten them. The right doors will open for each one - God has had things planned for each of His children, for each matters to Him. So, while it's totally acceptable thinking to see why 3abn can not stay in place, how it will happen is a curious thing, and none of us want to see a bandaid on it, for it will just continue to oooze all over the place, how do you just have something end? Hopefully, with the right people helping the fan's of 3abn merge to something else to watch - like the Hope Channel for example, most of the same programming is there, and will continue to grow there - and I tend to think that people will merge there (employees if they dare trust again, and viewers who discover it with good marketing). Lessons learned elsewhere will hopefully make HOPE a better place as well. Just shooting from the hip here....

Speaking of good people, where is Melissa Summers? I haven't seen her on 3ABN for a while.

Posted by: calvin Aug 28 2006, 12:02 PM

Back on topic. These are the facts as I see them.

Linda and Danny got divorced. Linda was dismissed from 3ABN. Danny remarried. Everything else is hearsay.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 28 2006, 12:09 PM

Calvin,

If three people came to you and said that so and so did this, would that be fact or fiction?

Posted by: Clay Aug 28 2006, 12:20 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 28 2006, 01:02 PM)

Back on topic. These are the facts as I see them.

Linda and Danny got divorced. Linda was dismissed from 3ABN. Danny remarried. Everything else is hearsay.

no not quite.... Danny sought to divorce Linda.... used the nonexistent "spiritual adultery" as grounds for divorce for any who would ask.... sought this divorce in Guam..... then he got remarried....

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Aug 28 2006, 01:39 PM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 28 2006, 01:09 PM)

Calvin,

If three people came to you and said that so and so did this, would that be fact or fiction?

Is it really that simple? Wouldn't you need some criteria with which to evalute things said - veracity, potential motive to mislead, reason they came to tell me . . . and then, not having experienced it myself I would either have to accept it with a good dose of faith - or reject it until such time that more substantial evidence is presented to change my mind.

- fhb

Posted by: västergötland Aug 28 2006, 03:40 PM

Another thing that would appear to be established fact is the problems 3abn has had proving that it acctually is a charitable ministry. Thinking about the court document someone posted two weeks ago or so. If they fail to prove being a charitable ministry to a court when it is in their own interest to do so, well...

Though admitedly this is no crime, merely noteworthy..

Posted by: Johann Aug 28 2006, 04:10 PM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Aug 28 2006, 11:40 PM)

Another thing that would appear to be established fact is the problems 3abn has had proving that it acctually is a charitable ministry. Thinking about the court document someone posted two weeks ago or so. If they fail to prove being a charitable ministry to a court when it is in their own interest to do so, well...

Though admitedly this is no crime, merely noteworthy..

Is what you are saying fact of fictieon?

What would you say if I tell you that Danny and Linda's divorce is a mere side-issue and what you mention above is the core of the problem, and perhaps why Linda had to be sacrificed?

Posted by: Voktar of Zargon Aug 28 2006, 08:10 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 28 2006, 02:20 PM)

> no not quite.... Danny sought to divorce Linda.... used the nonexistent "spiritual adultery" as grounds for divorce for any who would ask.... sought this divorce in Guam..... then he got remarried....

Also, this newbie (yours truly) saw Danny do a solo swan-song presentation on-air back in 2004, in which he basically said he was going to be stepping down from his responsibilities at 3 ABN because of his problems with Linda and her not being willing to listen to counsel about a 'problem'. Did anybody else see that program? It was a fluke that I did. I don't ordinarily watch TV, especially 3ABN. I never could get the idea of how you reach the world by sitting in a livingroom and talking Adventist shop/lingo. Nobody seems to have mentioned this event so I am throwing it in the mix. In my humble hearsay opinion a godly 'innocent' man would have stepped down if only to avoid the appearance of evil and deleterious rumors. Ya'll know the rest of the story.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 28 2006, 08:18 PM

> QUOTE(Voktar of Zargon @ Aug 28 2006, 07:10 PM)
>
> Also, this newbie (yours truly) saw Danny do a solo swan-song presentation on-air back in 2004, in which he basically said he was going to be stepping down from his responsibilities at 3 ABN because of his problems with Linda and her not being willing to listen to counsel about a 'problem'. Did anybody else see that program? It was a fluke that I did. I don't ordinarily watch TV, especially 3ABN. I never could get the idea of how you reach the world by sitting in a livingroom and talking Adventist shop/lingo. Nobody seems to have mentioned this event so I am throwing it in the mix. In my humble hearsay opinion a godly 'innocent' man would have stepped down if only to avoid the appearance of evil and deleterious rumors. Ya'll know the rest of the story.

Welcome Voktar! Nice post. Interesting name you have! I like it!
Danny knows when to say what and who to say it to, and for who's behalf (his). He says lots of things (which maybe you have noticed) as he seeks to talk as much as possible and be sure to give an appearance of a saint who has been mistreated.
Anyway, I missed this show (I miss most of them) but I'm sure others know about this one and will comment. Your "humble hearsay opinion of a godly innocent man" is a good one, unfortunately not of Danny's list of "things I should do that are right". He feels he can afford to try to put out the fires as they come along, only now, there is a forest fire and he can't stop it now.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Aug 28 2006, 08:23 PM

> QUOTE(Voktar of Zargon @ Aug 28 2006, 07:10 PM)
>
> Also, this newbie (yours truly) saw Danny do a solo swan-song presentation on-air back in 2004, in which he basically said he was going to be stepping down from his responsibilities at 3 ABN because of his problems with Linda and her not being willing to listen to counsel about a 'problem'. Did anybody else see that program? It was a fluke that I did. I don't ordinarily watch TV, especially 3ABN. I never could get the idea of how you reach the world by sitting in a livingroom and talking

Adventist shop/lingo. Nobody seems to have mentioned this event so I am throwing it in the mix. In my humble hearsay opinion a godly 'innocent' man would have stepped down if only to avoid the appearance of evil and deleterious rumors. Ya'll know the rest of the story.

am not sure if it was the same one that you saw but, I recall him saying he offered to leave with .inda but the board told him that he didn't need to leave. I believe he should have left if only for a ;hort time to try to get their marriage together. If what he says is true that he loved her and wanted it o work out....That should have been his priority.....

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 28 2006, 08:25 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Aug 28 2006, 07:23 PM)

I am not sure if it was the same one that you saw but, I recall him saying he offered to leave with Linda but the board told him that he didn't need to leave. I believe he should have left if only for a short time to try to get their marriage together. If what he says is true that he loved her and wanted it to work out....That should have been his priority.....

ıe had no intention of leaving OR of fixing their marriage. That's the saddest of all. He had different priorities".

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 28 2006, 09:12 PM

QUOTE(Chez @ Aug 28 2006, 09:01 AM)

Speaking of good people, where is Melissa Summers? I haven't seen her on 3ABN for a while.

ıelissa Summers was sent to work with W. Phipps after upsetting pretty much everyone at the ;tation. Once in Florida, apparently she upset the admin there. She wanted to come back to 3ABN and vas told no.

Posted by: caribbean sda Aug 29 2006, 02:40 AM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 29 2006, 12:12 AM)

Melissa Summers was sent to work with W. Phipps after upsetting pretty much everyone at the station. Once in Florida, apparently she upset the admin there. She wanted to come back to 3ABN and was told no.

I, too, wondered what happened to her. What on earth did she do to upset the folks at 3ABN and also the people in Florida. I know she went through some tough times when she came to the church and 3abn. I recall her telling her story where she lost her husband and her home because of her refusal to work on the Sabbath. She seemed genuine enough to me...of course I only see what they want me to see. However, I hope she will be allright.

Posted by: Voktar of Zargon Aug 29 2006, 05:37 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 28 2006, 10:18 PM)

Welcome Voktar! Nice post. Interesting name you have! I like it!
Danny knows when to say what and who to say it to, and for who's behalf (his). He says lots of things (which maybe you have noticed) as he seeks to talk as much as possible and be sure to give an appearance of a saint who has been mistreated.
Anyway, I missed this show (I miss most of them) but I'm sure others know about this one and will comment. Your "humble hearsay opinion of a godly innocent man" is a good one, unfortunately not of Danny's list of "things I should do that are right". He feels he can afford to try to put out the fires as they come along, only now, there is a forest fire and he can't stop it now.

Thank you for the nice welcome. If I ever get adjusted to this forumsphere and it's language I may use a more earthly name. Thanks also for the meaningful response to my first post.

Posted by: Voktar of Zargon Aug 29 2006, 06:16 AM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Aug 28 2006, 10:23 PM)

I am not sure if it was the same one that you saw but, I recall him saying he offered to leave with Linda but the board told him that he didn't need to leave. I believe he should have left if only for a short time to try to get their marriage together. If what he says is true that he loved her and wanted it to work out....That should have been his priority.....

This was not the show I saw. He really was doing a swan song. I thought I wasn't going to see him on the air anymore.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 29 2006, 06:41 AM

Maybe this, from a few weeks to a few months leave, is another type of swan song?

Posted by: Fran Aug 29 2006, 01:18 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Aug 28 2006, 01:02 PM)

Back on topic. These are the facts as I see them.

Linda and Danny got divorced. Linda was dismissed from 3ABN. Danny remarried. Everything else is hearsay.

Did you read the post citing part of the 3ABN Property Lawsuit audit and the information from IRS 990 saying there were accountability issues with their Trust funds?

http://www.revenue.state.il.us/legalinformation/hearings/pt/pt04-1.pdf This is a 46 page document. Too large to post. Take note of page 17. Look at the footnotes marked 14 & 15.

Please take special note of "Split Interest Agreements (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

QUOTE

14 The financial report for 2000 contains additional concerns found by the independent auditors.
15 Applicant's financial reports raise additional questions and concerns. For example, the unrecorded contribution revenue related to charitable gift annuity agreements were not recorded in conformance with generally accepted accounting principles. The "related party transactions" were acknowledged without identifying the parties. The notes refer to "split interest agreements," where applicant received the assets funding the trusts and applicant is to pay certain amounts for specified periods of time to the donors. There is nothing in the record to identify the donors or the assets. None of the trust agreements were supplied. (Applicant's Ex. Nos. 14, 15) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

In other words, they would not provide information about the agreements or the identity of the parties involved to the auditors. They were there, but not on the books! No wonder they would not identify who they were. Not only that, but the donors assets were not even listed. Are you beginning to see the big picture? (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

In 2001, there were $ 2.4 Million found in Split Interest Agreements not posted. In 2002, $ 1.7 Million in Split Interest Agreements not posted. These are the amounts they found, but there is more they could not find. The assets were not found. Remember the interpretation of Split Interest Agreements involve TRUST FUND discrepancies. I wonder what was not found? (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

The auditors also found $14,000 + in funds posted to 3ABN income, but the funds were actually for other ministries. Yeah, just who were the ministry/ministries that did not get their money. I can only wonder how much was not found. (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

In 2001, Kenny Shelton and his wife were still listed as part of 3ABN even though he left many years before 2001. They would not provide many items that were requested for the audit. There was no income reported for the rent/leases by people and their businesses such as Subway. There were discrepancies in their asset accountability, like, they were missing. They were declared a business and NOT a non-profit. (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

I made a $43 purchase from the 3ABN Gift Shop on eBay. I received my goods. Then I received a TAX DEDUCTABLE RECEIPT showing I had DONATED $43 to 3ABN and that I had NOT RECEIVED ANY GOODS OR SERVICES. Nice huh?

Did you read that 3ABN, a corporation, operating for 20 years, did not follow Generally Accepted Accounting Principals (GAAP). Do you know what that means? (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

These and much more are cited in that Lawsuit. The lawsuit is an official court document and the IRS Form 990's are official IRS documents. They are public documents that can be obtained by anyone.

This has nothing to do at all with the divorce, Linda getting fired and Danny marrying Brandy!

There are concrete facts in just those documents, and contain many, many more facts than those you mentioned. (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit) (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990)

These documents along with the allegations of molestation are what this is about. The things you mentioned are done deals. These are not. This, of course is just my opinion.

Posted by: no_cults Aug 29 2006, 01:54 PM

QUOTE(Chez @ Aug 28 2006, 09:01 AM)

Speaking of good people, where is Melissa Summers? I haven't seen her on 3ABN for a while.

Comeon Calvin.... are those all the facts that you see?

Wasn't Linda "accused" of wrongdoing? Spiritual Adultery and the rest?
Didn't Linda deny this?
Didn't the Dr. A. A. also deny this?
Didn't several people comeforth with "fisthand" knowledge of what was happeing at 3ABN?
Didn't several letters spew forth from 3ABN to current supporters? (myself included)

If sure looks to me that things aren't going real well. I doubt Walt T. would be sending out explanation letters if all was honky-dorry. They can claim all is well, but I doubt that is the truth.

Anyone kept a list of how many "ex" emplyees of 3abn the last couple years?

Even if this WAS my first rodeo (which it isn't), I believe I could tell the difference from the BS and the Bull riders, and I don't need a private investigator to verify. Sure, there's lots of missing pieces, but the overwhelming body of evidence makes it clear that there is a definite problem. Evidentally, from what I am hearing (an surmising) people are voting with their pocketbooks.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 29 2006, 02:21 PM

QUOTE(no_cults @ Aug 29 2006, 12:54 PM)

Comeon Calvin.... are those all the facts that you see?

Wasn't Linda "accused" of wrongdoing? Spiritual Adultery and the rest?
Didn't Linda deny this?
Didn't the Dr. A. A. also deny this?
Didn't several people comeforth with "fisthand" knowledge of what was happeing at 3ABN?
Didn't several letters spew forth from 3ABN to current supporters? (myself included)

> If sure looks to me that things aren't going real well. I doubt Walt T. would be sending out explanation letters if all was honky-dorry. They can claim all is well, but I doubt that is the truth.
>
> Anyone kept a list of how many "ex" emplyees of 3abn the last couple years?
>
> Even if this WAS my first rodeo (which it isn't), I believe I could tell the difference from the BS and the Bull riders, and I don't need a private investigator to verify. Sure, there's lots of missing pieces, but the overwhelming body of evidence makes it clear that there is a definite problem. Evidentally, from what I am hearing (an surmising) people are voting with their pocketbooks.

Some are even voting with their conscience.

Posted by: no_cults Aug 29 2006, 02:26 PM

> QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 29 2006, 03:21 PM)
>
> Some are even voting with their conscience.

believe that a good steward SHOULD vote with their pocketbook.

Posted by: SandyColorado Aug 29 2006, 02:31 PM

ofl

Maybe.

I was at a seminar this weekend put on by a couple of on-air people from 3ABN. They used to be seen very regularly - but hardly are seen anymore.

I asked one of these people their opinion on what is going on at 3ABN and was told "When all of this happened, no matter who was at fault, they both should have been let go until they got things worked out."

I was SO tempted to ask if I could add their name to this quote - but didn't. so I will just mention it without identifying anybody.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 29 2006, 02:34 PM

> QUOTE(no_cults @ Aug 29 2006, 01:26 PM)
>
> I believe that a good steward SHOULD vote with their pocketbook.

I agree with that too. I was saying my comment with regard to those who buy and sell for power over something. Or play the political "my money" game.
We should all vote with our pocketbooks which should also be connected to our conscience.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 29 2006, 03:34 PM

"He that is of the opinion money will do everything may well be suspected of doing everything for money." Benjamin Franklin

---

Posted by: Fran Sep 4 2006, 01:23 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Aug 29 2006, 01:18 PM)

Did you read the post citing part of the 3ABN Property Lawsuit audit and the information from IRS 990 saying there were accountability issues with their Trust funds?

http://www.revenue.state.il.us/legalinformation/hearings/pt/pt04-1.pdf This is a 46 page document. Too large to post. Take note of page 17. Look at the footnotes marked 14 & 15.

Please take special note of "Split Interest Agreements (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)
In other words, they would not provide information about the agreements or the identity of the parties involved to the auditors. They were there, but not on the books! No wonder they would not identify who they were. Not only that, but the donors assets were not even listed. Are you beginning to see the big picture? (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

In 2001, there were $ 2.4 Million found in Split Interest Agreements not posted. In 2002, $ 1.7 Million in Split Interest Agreements not posted. These are the amounts they found, but there is more they could not find. The assets were not found. Remember the interpretation of Split Interest Agreements involve TRUST FUND discrepancies. I wonder what was not found? (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

The auditors also found $14,000 + in funds posted to 3ABN income, but the funds were actually for other ministries. Yeah, just who were the ministry/ministries that did not get their money. I can only wonder how much was not found. (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

In 2001, Kenny Shelton and his wife were still listed as part of 3ABN even though he left many years before 2001. They would not provide many items that were requested for the audit. There was no income reported for the rent/leases by people and their businesses such as Subway. There were discrepancies in their asset accountability, like, they were missing. They were declared a business and NOT a non-profit. (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990) (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

I made a $43 purchase from the 3ABN Gift Shop on eBay. I received my goods. Then I received a TAX DEDUCTABLE RECEIPT showing I had DONATED $43 to 3ABN and that I had NOT RECEIVED ANY GOODS OR SERVICES. Nice huh?

Did you read that 3ABN, a corporation, operating for 20 years, did not follow Generally Accepted Accounting Principals (GAAP). Do you know what that means? (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit)

These and much more are cited in that Lawsuit. The lawsuit is an official court document and the IRS Form 990's are official IRS documents. They are public documents that can be obtained by anyone.

This has nothing to do at all with the divorce, Linda getting fired and Danny marrying Brandy!

There are concrete facts in just those documents, and contain many, many more facts than those you mentioned. (IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit) (2000, 2001, 2002 IRS Form 990)

These documents along with the allegations of molestation are what this is about. The things you mentioned are done deals. These are not. This, of course is just my opinion.

lust bringing this forward again for more to read the IL vs. 3ABN Property Tax Lawsuit. It s, hands down, the best documentation available to the public about what is really ıappening at 3ABN.

ᵖlease read it.

ᶠollow the money!

: have also noticed the other 3 Google links have been removed. Two were to Club ʌdventist and one to BSDA.

: also noticed that Club Adventist no longer has a 3ABN Topics thread. All content is gone ʳom view, or at least it has been for me.

Posted by: Clay Sep 7 2006, 07:30 AM the tangent thread about what is Typical Adventist, including comments made by V of Z have been moved to The Cafe..... the thread title of course is "Typical Adventist."

Posted by: Fran Sep 16 2006, 10:22 PM

http://news.adventist.org/data/2006/08/1158086977/index.html.en

I wonder what has caused this increase in Mission Offerings during the first 1/2 of 2006. I am praying it is in response to people hearing the difference between fact or fiction. I am praising God.

Posted by: inga Sep 17 2006, 12:28 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 16 2006, 11:22 PM)

http://news.adventist.org/data/2006/08/1158086977/index.html.en

I wonder what has caused this increase in Mission Offerings during the first 1/2 of 2006. I am praying it is in response to people hearing the difference between fact or fiction. I am praising God.

ʿhanks for the URL, Fran.

ɔne thing that I think will serve to bring up offerings and may already have done so is a mission DVD put out by the GC. It is more interesting and varied than the Mission Spotlight, which became so utterly predictable after a few years. This quarter's DVD has 3 Feature of 7 - 11 min or so, 3 Mini Features of 4 - 5.5 min, 9 Short Stories of 2 - 3 min. each. The DVD is sent gratis to all churches.

We got our first DVD last quarter, and it was good. This quarter's DVD is evne better, as far as I'm concerned. If you haven't seen some interesting on-location mission segments in your church, find out why they aren't showing any segments from the mission DVD.

Also see http://www.AdventistMission.org

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

169

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Dr. Bacchiocchi's Thoughts

Posted by: beartrap Sep 14 2006, 10:02 AM

DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

The 3ABN saga of Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and remarriage has attracted considerable attention. Many subscribers to our newsletters have emailed me all sorts of gossip information. Both Danny and Linda also have exchanged several messages with me. Danny claims to be totally innocent, because it was Linda who had an affair with a Norwagian doctor, Arild Abrahamsen, and left him to be with her lover.

Linda denies all the allegations, as you can read for yourself at her website: http://www.lindashelton.org/ She claims that she never had an affair with Arild, she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, and she never wanted a divorce.

At this point only God knows who is telling the truth. The only thing that we know for sure is that Danny remarried a 20 years younger, twice divorced woman, while Linda is still single.

In response to the many enquiries I decided to put together the following information:

1) The two sides of the Linda/Danny Shelton story as posted at the BLACK SDA WEBSITE: http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

2) My understanding of the Biblical teaching on Divorce and Remarriage and its application especially to Danny's remarriage of a divorced woman.

The focus of my study is on the biblical teaching on divorce and remarriage. Danny and Linda Shelton are briefly mentioned only as a case study of the Biblical teaching.

THE BLACK ADVENTIST ONLINE COMMUNITY

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

The Accused Other Man Evidence: Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

06/20/2006
Greetings from Norway;

My name is Dr. Arild Abrahamsen. I live in Svindal, Norway. I have been a medical doctor for more than 35 years. I am a member of the Moss SDA Church. I've been the Sabbath School Superintendent for 14 years and the head elder for 4 years, which position I am presently serving. I am the Norwegian doctor who has been slandered by Dr. Walt Thompson, chairman of the board of 3ABN, Danny Shelton, John Lomacang and others.

Since I have observed the situation and the slander only getting worse, I feel it best to share my experience. I share my personal experience, what I have seen and heard. Much of this information has been verified by other sources, which include emails, letters and the personal experiences of others. I share my experience not to attack any individual or organization, but to bring the truth of this situation to the surface.

I have been shocked to observe the events of the last two years. I have made no public statement until now. I had hoped things would resolve themselves.

I visited Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson at 3ABN the last week of 2003. The purpose of the trip was to see them and visit the ministry, which I personally had been supporting for some time. I had never been to 3ABN previously, nor had I met the Shelton's. During this visit I discovered from the Thorvaldsson's that Linda Shelton's son, Nathan, was in a dangerous state of health because of an addiction to drugs and working in coalmines. I offered to see him. This visit resulted in an invitation for Nathan to come to Norway for treatments. Nathan came to Norway around January 20, 2004 along with his friend, Dava Vice. Linda came for a 3-? day visit to support her son, the first week of February together with Brenda Walsh. This was the last time I saw Linda until the weekend she was fired.

I had a chance to visit with Nathan regularly. I learned from my conversations with Nathan that the roots of his drug problems were the relationships with his father and stepfather. Specifically he told me that Danny had turned his back on him. I shared this information with his mother on the phone. She told me that Danny said he had no responsibility towards Nathan since he was a product of her first marriage, so she felt she had to do what she could to help her son. There was nothing unusual in the occasional phone reports I gave Nathan's mother while he was in Norway. After Nathan returned home, I asked Linda to keep me updated on Nathan's progress.

I was shocked to discover in early March of 2004 that Danny was threatening to get Linda fired from 3ABN because of some conversations on the phone. In fact, she was threatened immediately with divorce. By this time Nathan had started with drugs again and Linda was seeking advice. I was also shocked to discover that Brenda had started circulating untrue statements as well. (Was it because Danny had admitted to some emotional involvement with Brenda?) I talked to Danny one time on the phone and found him to be unreasonable, unbalanced and very difficult to communicate with. Johann Thorvaldsson, a retired pastor of the SDA Church of 50 years, also was in communication with Danny, both by phone and email. We talked together and shared the same opinion that Danny was acting completely irrational and unreasonable towards his wife. It appeared he was attempting to leave an email trail filled with untruths to verify a position at a later time. The decision was made to stop the communication by phone with Linda.

Some weeks went by. Johann and Irmgard were getting treatments at my clinic and staying in my home during the Easter week in April, so I discovered from them that the situation was not improving for Linda. She was being harassed, threatened, and unreasonable demands by her husband were repeatedly being made to confess things she had not done. By this time, she was also suspended from her job at 3ABN, an order that was issued and enforced by her husband with no Board action. Things were so bad in the home that she found it necessary to go to her daughter's home in Springfield, Illinois for safety and rest on several occasions. Derrell Mundall, who was traveling often for 3ABN, reports rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were in SDA churches in April 2004, when Linda was still living with Danny. When he inquired about the source of the rumors, people always pointed to Danny Shelton.

I could see from my 35 years of experience as a physician that Danny was a psychopath. accusations were directed at me that I had done "mind control" over Linda. (Walt Thompson made the same accusations in his letters.) Linda was accused of sending "secret messages" to me over the television. Danny's emails and communications with Johann were completely crazy, and his reasoning often conflicted with his previous emails. Danny targeted Linda's few inner circle confidants and slandered her to the point that even they backed away from her at this critical time. (Linda's "friends" did not want to lose their television privileges.) Johann and I concluded this was a man who was determined to get rid of his wife. We also concluded that Linda was in danger.

Things eventually progressed from emotional and mental abuse to physical abuse. In the midst of all this harassment Linda asked Danny, 'Why are you treating me like this?' He answered, 'Because I want you to get out.'

Considering the urgency of the situation I allowed the conversations to resume. Linda knew, with her high profile status, that confiding with local people regarding these issues would be very bad for the ministry. I had given counsel to people in difficulty in the past and felt I could be helpful from a distance in this situation. I encouraged Linda to fight for her marriage and ministry many times. This she really did, but she often had to leave her home to find refuge at her daughter's apartment in Springfield, even in the middle of the night because of Danny's behavior. At times like these she was afraid of him. She always returned to her home after a couple of days seeking to try to mend the marriage, but Danny would not allow this.

During the spring of 2004 Danny called my pastor in Norway. Danny tried to get me kicked out as an elder and as a member of the church. My pastor told me about the conversation and he said, "He is mentally sick, he needs professional help."

I find it very disturbing that Walt Thompson defended and continues to defend Danny although he was a witness repeatedly to the emotional and mental abuse that was taking place. At one point he witnessed Danny "trashing" his wife for five hours. I also find it disturbing that John Lomacang, Linda's former pastor, claims to have counseled extensively with Danny and Linda when this was far from the truth. During the months of April and May of 2004, when most of the activity was ccurring in this situation, Linda NEVER saw John, who was supposed to be her pastor.

Coincidentally the handful of people supporting Danny and defending his actions has gained either power, position, airtime, homes, public endorsement or all of the above.

At one point I had a conversation with Walt Thompson, Chairman of the Board of 3ABN. He asked me to stop all communication with Linda. This had also been communicated to Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson and others. I told him that it was obviously Danny's plan to isolate Linda from everyone at a time when she needed help. To me it was the Christian thing to answer her phone calls and the only humane thing to do for someone who was in crisis.

Others did not come to Linda's aid because they did not want to lose whatever benefit they gained from 3ABN, whether it be a job, programming, promotions, etc. Walt was also the one who phoned Linda when she was suspended from the ministry by her husband. He instructed her that she must not come to the ministry (which she co-founded) without calling ahead of time because she must be supervised when at 3ABN. Danny broke into a locked bathroom to forcefully take her keys to 3ABN from her. Her hard drive of her computer was confiscated, her contact information taken and even her filing cabinets ravaged, all without any kind of Board action.

Linda was living in an impossible situation. Danny was "in her face" on a regular basis. At times he would say, "If you don't say you're a pathological liar, the marriage and 3ABN is over. If you don't say you're an adulterous woman the marriage and 3ABN is over for you. If you don't say you've given your heart to another man and that he is a demon the marriage and 3ABN is over..... etc." It even reached the point when he demanded her to say "Repeat after me." Johann and I received a couple emails, which said they were from Linda, but they were written by Danny. Linda saw her ministry being destroyed one day at a time. All of this was dehumanizing and terrifying to Linda, who was trying to hold things together. She very much realized what was at stake.

An "investigative committee" was put together by Walt Thompson to look into this situation. They were Walt Thompson, Bill Hulsey, Nick Miller and Kay Kuzma. Danny talked privately at length with each of these people. Linda did not. The committee as a whole never met with Linda at all. In one brief phone conversation with Kay Kuzma she told Linda, "The Board is not interested in you and Danny's personal problems. It is only interested in the fact that the President no longer wants his Vice-President." Johann Thorvaldsson testifies that he spoke with Kay the following day. She told him she was instructed to get Linda used to the idea of not being at 3ABN anymore and to try to get her involved in another ministry.

It's interesting that at the time Danny accused Linda for speaking on the phone to me, that he was in the practice of speaking regularly with Brenda, Linda's "friend." He also visited often with her in her 3ABN apartment in the night. A worker at 3ABN states that Brenda even went golfing with Danny behind Linda's back while she was working. As soon as Brenda saw where the tide was turning, she was no longer Linda's friend. She became an accuser as well.

About May 1, 2004 instructions were given to the production staff to wipe Linda's face off of the network by June 1, again with no Board action.

All CD's, videos, literature and photos of Linda were stripped out of the Call Center. She was sent a document a few days later specifying that she was advised to get 30 days of counseling by counselors of "their" choice. If she did not agree to this in writing within 24 hours, her employment could be gone. She requested time for an attorney to look at the document. This was refused. Mail was flooding into the network with Linda's name on it. They were all returned to sender. Her scheduled speaking appointments for women's ministries were sabotaged by those in leadership at 3ABN. Danny told those who worked for Linda that she was a pathological liar and to stay away from her. (He did not want them to hear the other side of the story.) At one point Linda told Walt that Dan was purposefully ruining her reputation and that she was not willing to be a martyr for 3ABN. Walt's response was "How else are we going to save the ministry?"

Rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were flying throughout the churches and the General Conference in May of 2004, rumors which were begun by her husband. It was communicated to me that Linda was going to be fired at the Board meeting, which would occur in May, following the 3ABN camp meeting. Johann and I decided to go to the camp meeting and talk to the Board members and tell them the truth about the situation. When we walked into the 3ABN building we were surrounded by about 10 people. One person stood directly behind me for the entire service. Walt Thompson and Nick Miller (3ABN's attorney) asked us to leave. We stayed until nearly the end of the service. (At this camp meeting an announcement was made regarding Linda. There were tearful appeals by Danny, which raised a record-breaking amount of money for 3ABN. Danny also claims that an additional two million dollars was raised the year of their divorce.) When Johann and I went to the door, once again we were followed by a small crowd of people. I spoke to Mark Finley about the situation at length in the parking lot. John Lomacang tried to stop the conversation. He said 'It is not good for you to talk to him alone.' What was he afraid of? He was standing with me when Danny drove up and said that if I returned to camp meeting I would be arrested and thrown in jail. He had already talked to the Sheriff. I decided to not return, as it was Mark Finley's suggestion to avoid the possibility of disrupting the camp meeting for all of the people attending. Linda was staying in her daughter's apartment in Springfield, so we drove there on Saturday to stay in a hotel for the weekend. During this weekend we were followed by three private investigators all the time. What kind of actions was that, for a man that REALLY wanted to save his marriage?

It is my understanding that a one-sided conversation was illegally taped by Danny towards the end of May. With a mind set on framing his wife, her words have been misconstrued into saying what he wants people to think. She mentions a trip to Las Vegas. He explains to all that she is planning a rendezvous with "the doctor." In reality for weeks he has offered Linda larger and larger sums of money for her to go to Las Vegas and stay with her mother for six weeks to acquire residency, a requirement for couples that want a quick divorce. For weeks she refused. SHE NEVER WANTED A DIVORCE.

The events of the previous months eventually bring her to the place where she thinks this is maybe what she should do. She knew a separation was necessary. Danny takes her words from the phone call and adds his insinuations. He makes photo copies of her one sided conversation and distributes it. This is his main source of "proof" for his actions and re-marriage. They call it circumstantial evidence." To further cover their tracks Linda's accusers say that for her sake they don't want to tell "all she has done." They say this so people will accept their statements and imagine the worst. This is slander of the worst kind all coming from professed Christians.

Johann says he was fired from 3ABN for refusing to attest to something false Danny wanted him to put in writing about Linda. Derrell Mundall, Danny's ex-son-in-law, says he was given the option to resign or be fired because of his actions defending Linda. Others quit their jobs because they could not support the actions of the leaders. There is one thing many of these people have in common. Anyone who disagrees with Danny is slandered and discredited.

It's interesting that Danny's daughter recently was found to be pregnant out of wedlock. A quick wedding followed when Derrell, (her ex-husband & father of their four children), claims she had no grounds for re-marriage. It's also interesting that nobody asked Derrell about the issue of grounds at all when he was still a resident in Thompsonville. Also another married Shelton family member had a romantic encounter recently with a married employee of 3ABN. They were instructed to keep it quiet. They did. They all still work at 3ABN, and Melody is featured on the network. Is 3ABN all about standing for principle and values, or standing for those who happen to be in good graces with the President and the Shelton family ?

Another question that seems to be in the minds of many is "Why was Linda given $240,000 when all claim she was fired for a wrongdoing?" The only reason Linda signed this 3ABN contract was because she needed money to escape from a very irregular, abusive and impossible situation. Danny forced her to sign not only this contract, but another contract which sold him her half of their joint-owned home the same day.

Linda has suffered much emotional trauma and humiliation from all of this. She still has nightmares about these events. She did not feel ready to face the people of the SDA church for six months after all of this occurred. I encouraged her to begin again. She went for the first time around the end of November of 2004 in Springfield. The people welcomed her. She requested her membership to be transferred out of the Thompsonville church into the Springfield church in December of 2004. The Springfield pastor had previously worked at 3ABN and knew Linda. He did not believe the rumors and encouraged the church to put her to work. It was a healing time for her to teach Sabbath School and occasionally preach.

In June of 2005 things changed. Pastor Grady was transferred out of the Springfield church, though he wanted to stay, and a pastor from 3ABN was moved into the church. Within two weeks John Stanton met with Linda and told her she would be doing nothing on the platform. She told him that the church really needed the help and she hoped that if she was asked once in two months to teach a Sabbath School class that she would be able to do this. He told her that the orders had come from the conference level. (The Illinois conference President sits on 3ABN's Board and his parents work for 3ABN.) During our visit to the General Conference Session Johann and I visited with this pastor. He told us he thought Linda was a liar. I TOLD HIM THAT LINDA HAD NEVER BEEN UNFAITHFUL TO HER HUSBAND and that all the rumors from her husband were lies. But this man had TV interests to pursue and he was in close connection with Danny and John Lomacang.

The last week of October 2005, a letter came to Linda from John Lomacang, the pastor of the Thompsonville (3ABN) church. It stated that the church board had voted "to call a church business session to recommend to the church that you be placed under censure." Linda called John to ask him why. He said it was because she had abandoned her marriage and ministry, which led to her divorce. (This is what Danny refers to as "grounds" to re-marry.) Linda planned to address the church business meeting. She wrote to Danny requesting a release from the restrictions of the contract she signed so she could openly share her side of the story. Danny denied this request. Because of this she felt forced to drop her membership there and then join another SDA church. This decision was made after much counsel with several SDA's. It's interesting that this recommendation for censure came almost 18 months after the fact. (Which kind of practice is this? Special for USA?) It's also interesting that all of this occurred while Danny was trying to gather evidence against Linda so he could re-marry.

Danny Shelton and the leadership of 3ABN are responsible for using the ministry of 3ABN to bring character assassination to Linda and others. In Linda's case, television and radio announcements were made denouncing her character. There was an announcement on the front page of 3ABN's website for many months. About 180,000 letters about Linda were sent to the mailing list at 3ABN. Videos about her were made and distributed. Magazine articles were written and submitted. Mailings were made to church officials. Many calls were taken at 3ABN where slanderous remarks about Linda were given over the phone. Many letters containing completely false statements were sent to many individuals. Danny even made his personal email address available over 3ABN so people could write to him and obtain his side of the story. They did a thorough job of character assassination.

Now two years later the "trashing" continues. It is inexcusable, especially for a proclaimed

Christian ministry.

In conclusion I want to clearly state that I have not committed adultery (emotional, physical, "spiritual"), and neither has Linda. The conversations we had were not unusual or inappropriate. Linda is the victim of domestic violence, only this has resulted in worldwide effects for our Church.

Linda has sought for help at the General Conference level. She has sought the aid of pastors. No one has an answer. She has tried repeatedly to meet with a committee from the Board of 3ABN. This request has not been granted. Still the bulk emails and letters flow from 3ABN slandering the innocent. This has been the most ungodly situation I have observed in my entire life. Any who find themselves not in good graces with Danny Shelton will find that their name is discredited and slandered in an attempt to destroy their influence. Linda has suffered the most with the loss of her job, her influence and reputation. But many others, including myself, have felt the heat coming from what is supposed to be a ministry representing Jesus Christ. This is an outrage. This is unacceptable. Accountability of leaders is a must. (Can bad fruits come from good trees?) As Christians, it is our duty to demand accountability and a high standard from leaders. I hope this testimony will fulfill the mission intended.

Respectfully,

Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

From Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN board of Directors
Regarding Danny's marriage

Dear Family and Friends of 3ABN,

Two years ago 3ABN was challenged by the most difficult battle the ministry has ever faced. It was a battle that threatened the very existence of the ministry and the work of preaching the end time message of the Three Angel's to the world. It is only because of the grace and power of God Almighty, and the faithful support of you, the 3ABN family, that the ministry has survived to preach another day. Today, the ministry is stronger than it has ever been and its reach into the world even broader and more powerful for the cause of truth.

As is always the case when in the public eye, questions arise, stories abound, and rumors spread. We thank God that you have trusted the leadership and board of 3ABN during this time and have stayed with us in ministry. More recently some of you have heard that Danny has found one to comfort him in his loneliness and sorrow. You may have also heard rumors about an allegedly illegal divorce occurring without Biblical grounds. This letter is an attempt to fill you in with the facts.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has taken the action that it has taken. I have been one that has plead with Linda to keep her marriage and her ministry and offered to provide counseling for them. I have known Danny and Linda almost from the beginning of the ministry and have been in their home many times. They had a good marriage. It was not until this third party got in the middle did things begin to fall apart. It is also true that Danny really did want to get back together again, but when it became obvious that couldn't happen, he correctly had to close the door on that part of his history lest it destroy him and the ministry.

The divorce was a mutually agreed thing, even the choice to get it from Guam where there would be no long wait. Linda had originally planned to move to Las Vegas long enough to become a resident there so as to get a divorce there. They then discovered the possibility of a divorce from

Guam, checked it out and found it to be legal, and decided to go that route. Though I believe Guam has now stopped the program, the legality of a Guam divorce had previously been taken to the U.S. Supreme Court where it was ruled legitimate. As chairman of the board, I did not try to influence the decision, but I will say that had they not obtained a quick divorce, the ministry would have been placed at much greater risk since the situation was causing so much dysfunction with leadership and staff. I believe time has verified the correctness of what was done then, both by Danny and by the board for the ministry.

Linda's web site recently stated that she and Danny were not divorced. She wrote this after the judge made the decision in Danny's favor. She claims she did not know this when she wrote it. Her web site referred to an e mail I sent to Johann Thorvaldson a year earlier saying that I had never accused her of adultery. I believe that exchange with him was in response to an accusation by him that we had fired her because of adultery. I was merely saying that she was not fired for adultery, but because she had defied the board in not discontinuing a relationship that was threatening to destroy the ministry. (I might add that the doctor also told me he would not break off the relationship, even though I pled with him to do so.) That letter to Johann was correct, and it is true that I have never directly accused her of adultery. That does not mean that I believe Linda is innocent. If by adultery one must be caught in bed with another person, I cannot prove Linda has committed adultery. If, on the other hand, hard evidence indicates that Linda was involved in an unacceptable relationship with another man qualifies for adultery, then there is no question about Danny's moral right to marry again.

As a board, we have chosen not to make the details of the evidence available to the public. I believe Satan is the accuser of the brethern. We have chosen to take the "high road" in this whole situation and say nothing more than we have been forced to say to try to quell rumors. We care about Linda and have tried not to do anything to hurt her more than she has already been hurt. I can tell you that I personally spent a great deal of time at 3ABN during those months when this was all happening. I spoke with Linda and Danny on numerous occasions. A sub committee of the board met and prayed with Danny and Linda and pled with Linda to call off the relationship. Danny and Linda spent an 8 hour session with a pair of Christian counselors (non-Adventist in an attempt to avoid bias) who had no doubts about the nature of Linda's conduct. We offered to provide Linda with the opportunity to go away for counseling with a counselor agreeable to both she and us. She did not respond to that offer or request.

Finally, the full board met, reviewed Linda's letter of explanation, and voted unanimously to remove her from the ministry and her seat on the board. Other church leaders who have been privy to some of the evidence we have are in full agreement with our decision.

The relationship Linda had with the Norwegian Dr. was not a normal doctor-patient relationship as she claims. It is true. Linda was very concerned about her son Nathan. He was the vehicle through which the Dr. reached Linda. Our evidence leaves no question that this became much more than a doctor-patient relationship. We know that the long hours on the phone together were not about Nathan and have hard evidence to support this knowledge - nor were times spent together on both sides of the Atlantic.

Furthermore, she refused to break it off, even after weeks of pleading with her to do so. We, the board believe the evidence we have clearly justifies the divorce and gives Danny the moral and legal right to remarry. Those in church leadership with whom we have shared some of this evidence agree with us. Out of concern for Linda we have been reluctant to make details public.

No, Danny is not to blame for what has happened here. On the contrary, he has bent over backwards trying to make things work and meeting her requests. Yet, she has never acknowledged that it was wrong for her to have another "friend".

The things I have stated here are accurate and correct. As far as the lady Danny has married is concerned, I can only say I believe his new wife is a very good person and will be a real asset to him as he carries on his heavy responsibilities. Just to clarify any rumor you may have heard, this relationship began long after the divorce. I was at 3ABN when this lady came from Florida looking for work. There was nothing going on before that time, and Danny definitely was not trying to "dump" Linda. I was with him during much of the time he agonized and mourned her loss. It is one thing to lose a loved one in death. It is much different to lose one to another lover - like cutting a dog's tail off one inch at a time! As to the matter of age difference, I will say that I do not believe that is any of my business. I find nothing in the Bible, and I don't remember any thing in the SOP indicating age differences for married couples. If it is legal, and morally correct, and if entered into with honesty, sincerity and earnest prayer for God's guidance, as I know happened here, it is not for me to criticize. In my own musings about this, I have concluded that it was no accident that brought Brandy to 3ABN. Either the devil was behind it, or God was. There is no question in my mind which one it was.

(Archo Dart was for many years a family and marriage counselor in the Adventist church. When in his 80's, he married one of my patients, who was then in her 50's. She loved and admired him till death many years later.)

I have had an interesting thought this week that I will share with you. It is this. God lost one of his closest companions when Lucifer went astray. More than that, myriads more angels left with him when he left heaven. Talk about grief or emotional pain. Experiences such as this with Linda, I think, help us to understand the pain of loss, and the reality of the war between God and Satan. Some have claimed it takes two to divorce. I don't think that is categorically true! This has been a terrible injury that has hit 3abn and Danny, and yes, Linda too, but it is one that I believe God understands - and He continues to bless his servants.

We recognize that we live in a world at war, and are working with a ministry that the devil would like to see destroyed. The war is real, and as in any other war there are real casualties. War is never pleasant, and spiritual battles may be some of the worst. Our hearts still ache for those who have been wounded. Our prayers continue to ascend on their behalf. Should acknowledgement of wrongdoing and penitence ever occur, we would be the first to forgive and forget. Unfortunately, that has not happened, and we must move on.

Some who have been aware of the growing relationship and the possibility of marriage have thought they should wait for a longer period of time before marrying. In discussions before the event, the 3ABN board reviewed the events of the past couple years and have agreed that there was no moral or legal reason precluding marriage. Realizing the heavy burdens resting on Danny and of his need for companionship, we, the board did not see any reason not to give our blessing to their union. We hope you, our 3ABN family, will agree too, and with us, welcome Brandy with open arms.

Should you have any questions that I might answer, please feel free to send them to me at 3ABN and I will do my best to try to answer them.

Sincerely in the precious name of Jesus,
Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN Board of Directors
Walter Thompson MD

REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University

Much of the discussion about Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and consequent remarriage of Danny, revolves on the legitimate grounds for them to divorce and for Danny to remarry. It appears to me that from a biblical standpoint, the issue is not, "Did Danny have a legitimate ground to divorce Linda, but should a Christian couple experiencing marital problems consider divorce as a solution to their problems in the first place?

The teaching of Jesus on divorce and remarriage is abundantly clear. Both Luke and Mark affirm the same teaching. "Every one who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and he who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery" (Luke 16:18). "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery" (Mark 10:11-12).

When Paul applied Jesus' teaching to the concrete marital problems that existed in the Church of Corinth, he clearly claims to give Christ's command by enjoining the wife not to separate from her husband, and the husband not to divorce his wife: "The wife should not separate from her husband, but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband- and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The total prohibition of divorce by Paul reflects the teaching of Jesus found in the Gospels.

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Danny is advancing all sorts of argument to prove that he is innocent and Linda is guilty. In the light of his allegations I asked Linda to respond to a dozen of specific questions. She denies all your allegations. She claims she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, she did not want a divorce, and she never had intimate relationship with the Arield, the Norwagian doctor, and she never married the man. It appears to me that had Linda been involved in an adulterous relationship, by now they would be married, especially since he is widow and she is divorced.

The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position.

The longer he holds on to his position, the more people will become disenchanted with him and 3ABN. In an age of instant communication, one cannot cover up past mistakes for very long.

My advice to Danny is largely based on Paul's teaching on Divorce and remarriage that we want to consider at this point.

THE TEACHING OF PAUL ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

Paul's teachings on divorce and remarriage are found in 1 Corinthians 7, where the apostle discusses three different types of marital problems. In 1 Corinthians 7:10-11 Paul speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts. His admonition given with Christ's authority is clear. Christian couples should not seek divorce, and if they separate they should remain single to leave the door open for reconciliation.

Since I have examined this passage in my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT, I will quote a few paragraph relevant to Danny and Linda's situation. Personally I feel that it is far more important to understand what the Bible teaches us on this important area of marital relationship, than to gossip about who is to be blamed.

In marital conflicts the blame seldom falls only on one partner. To a greater or lesser degree both partners have contributed to the problem and both need to seek a biblical solution to their problem. In seeking for a solution, it is important to remember that in the Bible marriage is not a social or civil contract that can be dissolved through the legal process, but it is a sacred, lifelong covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself.

The Teaching of Paul in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16

Paul's treatment of the divorce question in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 is most significant because it reveals how the teaching of Jesus on divorce was understood and applied to certain concrete marital situations in the apostolic church. He begins the chapter by setting forth some general principles about marriage. To avoid the temptation to sexual immorality, "each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband" (1 Cor 7:2). Both husband and wife should fulfill their respective conjugal rights (1 Cor 7:3-5). The unmarried and the widows who have the gift of celibacy should remain single as himself (1 Cor 7:7-8).

Next Paul discusses three different divorce situations: (1) the divorce of two believers (vv. 10-11), (2) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever does not want to divorce, and (3) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever wants to divorce. Since only the first situation is relevant to the case of Danny and Linda, I will quote from the book what I have written about it.

Divorce of Two Believers. Paul first speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts: "To the married I give charge, not I but the Lord, that the wife should not separate from her husband (but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband)-and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11).

Appealing to the teaching of Christ (cf. Mark 10:9, 11, 12; Luke 16:18; Matt 19:3-9), Paul declares in absolute terms that a Christian couple should not seek divorce. Twice he affirms the no-divorce principle: ". . . the wife should not separate from her husband . . . and the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The basis of Paul's prohibition is Christ's teaching that husband and wife are one flesh and what God has joined together no man should put asunder.

Paul recognizes, however, that human nature is perverse and that even a Christian husband or wife can make marriage intolerable for the other partner. A spouse who is out of fellowship with God can become intolerant, abusive, unfaithful, domineering, inconsiderate. Undoubtedly, Paul had run into situations of this kind and recognizes that sometimes separation may be inevitable. However, if separation becomes a necessity, Paul leaves Christian partners with two options: (1) to remain permanently unmarried, or (2) to be reconciled to one's partner.

It is important to note that Paul appeals to the teaching of Jesus ("not I but the Lord") in ruling against the possibility of divorce for a Christian couple. On this regard, New Testament scholar F. F. Bruce comments: "For a Christian husband or wife, divorce is excluded by the law of Christ: here Paul has no need to express a judgment of his own, for the Lord's ruling on this matter was explicit."

To appreciate the revolutionary nature of such teaching, it is important to remember that divorce and remarriage was allowed in both the Jewish and Roman society. Yet Paul affirms the no-divorce principle for Christians as a word of the Lord which will be accepted without challenge. This goes to show that within twenty-five years of the crucifixion itself, the Apostolic Church believed and taught that Christ had proclaimed the permanence of the marriage union. This belief played an important role in the Christian mission to revolutionize the values of the existing society.

In Paul's day, there was no provision for a wife to be legally separated from her husband without being divorced. Fortunately today, the law provides for legal separation as an alternative to divorce. Legal separation offers to a Christian the protection of the law while leaving the door open for reconciliation. Such a door must be left open because Christians believe that no marital conflict is impossible for God to solve.

Since there was no legal separation in Paul's day, the apostle recommends a legal separation-type of divorce. This is indicated by his use of the verb koridzo ("to separate") rather than the normal verb for divorce apoluo used by Jesus. By recommending a legal separation-type of divorce, Paul respects the spirit of Christ's teaching while at the same time providing protection for the believing wife until a reconciliation with her husband can be realized.

Paul's teachings on the question of divorce in 1 Corinthians 7:12-16 not only closely reflects Jesus' teachings concerning the permanence of marriage, but also reveals its full depths. It does this by showing how the Christian faith causes the marriage covenant to become a sacred and lifelong relationship. There is for Paul an intimate connection between the permanence of the marriage bond and the Christian faith.

A Christian couple who marries "in the Lord" accepts the responsibility to honor by divine grace their covenant commitment both to God and to one another. It is the sacred and permanent nature of the Christian covenant commitment to God that makes a Christian marriage sacred and permanent. On account of this fact, a Christian couple experiencing marital problems may separate with the hope of reconciliation but may not divorce and remarry. This condition does not apply to a mixed marriage where the unbelieving partner deserts his believing spouse, because by the very act of desertion the unbeliever rejects the Christian view of marriage as a sacred and permanent union.

Summing up, like Jesus the apostle Paul affirms the principle that Christian marriage is a union binding and permanent for life. If a separation should occur, Paul presents only two alternatives to believing partners: be reconciled to one another or remain single.

The Teaching of Paul on Divorce for Church Leaders

Paul's view of Christian marriage as a lifelong union which admits no divorce and remarriage, is indirectly supported by the marriage qualifications he sets forth for church leaders: "Now a bishop must be above reproach, the husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; cf. Titus 1:6). "Let deacons be the husband of one wife, and let them manage their children and their households well" (1 Tim 3:12).

The basic qualifications given by Paul for the church office of elder (or overseer) and deacon were designed to enable Timothy in Ephesus and Titus on Crete to appoint church leaders qualified to serve in such offices. The first qualification for the office of elder is that the man must be "above reproach." His blameless lifestyle is to serve as a role model to the congregation and is to offer no reason for criticism in the community. The first important aspect of his role modeling is his marital status, which Paul defines as "husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; Titus 1:6). This qualification occurs both in 1 Timothy and Titus immediately after the demand for blamelessness thus indicating the prominence Paul gives to the marital status of a church leader.

The Greek words translated "husband of one wife" can be rendered literally as "one-wife-man." This short phrase has been the subject of considerable investigation. Did Paul mean that a church leader should be married only to one woman at a time or only once during his lifetime? Did Paul intend to exclude from church leadership polygamists, that is, men married to several wives or digamists, that is, men married twice or more legally?

Exclusion of Polygamists. Some have understood the phrase "husband of one wife" to exclude polygamists from church leadership. This interpretation is discredited by two main considerations. First, there was no need for this qualification since no Christian, whether church leader or not, was allowed to practice polygamy. Second, in New Testament times polygamy was generally outlawed in the empire and thus it hardly needed insistence by Paul.

Exclusion of Digamists. The most plausible meaning of the phrase "husband of one wife" appears to be "married only once." This is in fact the rendering of the New Revised Standard Version. According to this view, divorce and remarriage would disqualify a man from the office of elder and deacon. Paul would be stressing the importance of appointing to church leadership only men whose marital status was beyond suspect by having been married only once. Several considerations favor this interpretation.

The priests in the Old Testament were enjoined to uphold a higher marriage standard by marrying only a virgin, and not "a widow, or one divorced, or a woman who has been defiled, or a harlot" (Lev 21:14; cf. 21:7). This Old Testament precedent supports the New Testament higher marriage standards for elders and deacons. Elsewhere I have shown that even the requirement for church leaders to be "abstinent" (1 Tim 3:2) finds its precedent in the Old Testament strict prohibition against the use of alcoholic beverages by the priests (Lev 10:9).

The construction of the phrase without article "mias gunaikos andra-one-wife-man" emphasizes the moral character of the individual as being totally committed to one woman. Such a total commitment is best exemplified by faithfulness to one's spouse "till death doeth us part." In an age when the marriage bond was lightly regarded and commonly dishonored, Paul emphasizes that a church leader must be an example of marital fidelity. Such a fidelity would exclude the possibility of divorce and remarriage.

This may be inferred also from the requirement that a woman enrolled in the official order of widows was to have been "the wife of one husband" (1 Tim 5:9). In Greek, the phrase corresponds to "the husband of one wife." Since the widows enrolled in the ministry of the church were to have been married only once, it seems safe to assume that the same qualification applied to the office of elder. The linguistic similarity between the two phrases ("husband of one wife" and "wife of one husband") strongly suggest that in both instances the person was to have been married only once.

In summary, both the Old and New Testaments uphold the principle of high marriage standards for church leaders (Lev 21:7, 14-15; 1 Tim 3:2, 12; Titus 1:6). In the New Testament church the elders and deacons must stand before the congregation as role models of blameless lifestyle, especially by being the "husband of one wife," that is to say, married only once and totally devoted to one's wife. This excludes the possibility for church leaders to divorce, remarry or to lust after other women.

The standard is admittedly high, but God could hardly allow a lesser standard from those who have been called to give spiritual leadership to His church. To allow a man who has been divorced and remarried to serve as the spiritual leader of a congregation means to tempt its members to follow his bad example by divorcing their spouses and remarrying, if the occasion arises.

The foregoing discussion of the marriage qualifications for church leaders has served to corroborate the principle that Christian marriage is a permanent, lifelong union, which admits no divorce and remarriage. This principle is to be upheld especially by church leaders because their lifestyle and teaching serve as role model for many to follow.

CONCLUSION

In this chapter we have found that both the Old and New Testaments clearly and consistently condemn divorce as a violation of God's original plan for marriage as a lifelong union that enables a man and a woman to become "one flesh." Respect for this fundamental principle demands that a Christian couple experiencing marital conflicts should not seek to resolve them through divorce. If a marriage relationship becomes intolerable, a Christian couple can consider a legal separation. The purpose of the separation should be to provide an opportunity for the couple to work toward a possible reconciliation.

APPLICATION OF PAUL'S TEACHING TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S CASE

According to Paul's teachings, the solution to Danny and Linda's marital conflicts, should have been, not the filing for a hasty divorce in Guam, but the filing of a legal separation which would have left the door open for a possible reconciliation.

Christians who believe that marriage is a sacred covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself, must also believe that God is willing to move heaven and earth to save their marriage. Legal separation leaves the door open for the Holy Spirit to work in the hearts of both partners who have been estranged.

It is important to note that a key qualification for church leadership spelled out by Paul, is the marital status. A church leaders is expected to be a "one-wife-man,", that is, a man married only once, fully committed to his wife and a spiritual leader who "manages well his own home . . . for if a man does not know how to manage his own household, how can he care for God's church? (1 Tim 3:5).

Particular emphasis is placed upon the Christian character of a church leader, exemplified by his temperate life-style, loyalty to his wife, and spiritual leadership in the home. The reason is that a pastor or a TV evangelist serve as role models to the congregation or viewing audience entrusted to them. A man divorced and remarried several times, can hardly serve as a role model to his congregation or viewing audience. Thus, fidelity to the biblical teachings demands that spiritual leadership is to be entrusted to men who have proven to be faithful to their wives and to be moral and spiritual leaders in the home.

--

Christian regards

Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.,
Retired Professor of Theology and Church History, Andrews University
4990 Appian Way
Berrien Springs, MI 49103

Phone (269) 471-2915 Fax (269) 978-6898

E-mail sbacchiocchi@biblicalperspectives.com

WWW HOMEPAGE: http://www.biblicalperspectives.com

Posted by: September Sep 14 2006, 10:25 AM

Excellent study! I pray more leaders like him speak out.

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 14 2006, 10:37 AM

In one way or another, most of us have posted the same thoughts, although not as detailed, for which I thank you Dr. Bacchiocchi.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 14 2006, 11:10 AM

In light of information from Dr. Bacchiocchi and possibly some others, it may make for an interesting night to watch 3ABN Live, and the FIRST live showing of course, as often the replays are edited. It can be watched online too if you don't have the satelite.

p.s. I will be happy when spell check comes back from vacation. Ü

Posted by: Chez Sep 14 2006, 11:38 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 11:02 AM)

DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

The 3ABN saga of Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and remarriage has attracted considerable attention. Many subscribers to our newsletters have emailed me all sorts of gossip information. Both Danny and Linda also have exchanged several messages with me. Danny claims to be totally innocent, because it was Linda who had an affair with a Norwagian doctor, Arild Abrahamsen, and left him to be with her lover.

Linda denies all the allegations, as you can read for yourself at her website: http://www.lindashelton.org/ She claims that she never had an affair with Arild, she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, and she never wanted a divorce.

At this point only God knows who is telling the truth. The only thing that we know for sure is that Danny remarried a 20 years younger, twice divorced woman, while Linda is still single.

In response to the many enquiries I decided to put together the following information:

1) The two sides of the Linda/Danny Shelton story as posted at the BLACK SDA WEBSITE: http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

2) My understanding of the Biblical teaching on Divorce and Remarriage and its application especially to Danny's remarriage of a divorced woman.

The focus of my study is on the biblical teaching on divorce and remarriage. Danny and Linda Shelton are briefly mentioned only as a case study of the Biblical teaching.

THE BLACK ADVENTIST ONLINE COMMUNITY

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?

The Accused Other Man Evidence: Dr. Arild Abrahamsen

06/20/2006
Greetings from Norway;

My name is Dr. Arild Abrahamsen. I live in Svindal, Norway. I have been a medical doctor for more than 35 years. I am a member of the Moss SDA Church. I've been the Sabbath School Superintendent for 14 years and the head elder for 4 years, which position I am presently serving. I am the Norwegian doctor who has been slandered by Dr. Walt Thompson, chairman of the board of 3ABN, Danny Shelton, John Lomacang and others.

Since I have observed the situation and the slander only getting worse, I feel it best to share my experience. I share my personal experience, what I have seen and heard. Much of this information has been verified by other sources, which include emails, letters and the personal experiences of others. I share my experience not to attack any individual or organization, but to bring the truth of this situation to the surface.

I have been shocked to observe the events of the last two years. I have made no public statement until now. I had hoped things would resolve themselves.

I visited Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson at 3ABN the last week of 2003. The purpose of the trip was to see them and visit the ministry, which I personally had been supporting for some time. I had never been to 3ABN previously, nor had I met the Shelton's. During this visit I discovered from the Thorvaldsson's that Linda Shelton's son, Nathan, was in a dangerous state of health because of an addiction to drugs and working in coalmines. I offered to see him. This visit resulted in an invitation for Nathan to come to Norway for treatments. Nathan came to Norway around January 20, 2004 along with his friend, Dava Vice. Linda came for a 3-? day visit to support her son, the first week of February together with Brenda Walsh. This was the last time I saw Linda until the weekend she was fired.

I had a chance to visit with Nathan regularly. I learned from my conversations with Nathan that the roots of his drug problems were the relationships with his father and stepfather. Specifically he told me that Danny had turned his back on him. I shared this information with his mother on the phone. She told me that Danny said he had no responsibility towards Nathan since he was a product of her first marriage, so she felt she had to do what she could to help her son. There was nothing unusual in the occasional phone reports I gave Nathan's mother while he was in Norway. After Nathan returned home, I asked Linda to keep me updated on Nathan's progress.

I was shocked to discover in early March of 2004 that Danny was threatening to get Linda fired from 3ABN because of some conversations on the phone. In fact, she was threatened immediately with divorce. By this time Nathan had started with drugs again and Linda was seeking advice. I was also shocked to discover that Brenda had started circulating untrue statements as well. (Was it because Danny had admitted to some emotional involvement with Brenda?) I talked to Danny one time on the phone and found him to be unreasonable, unbalanced and very difficult to communicate with. Johann Thorvaldsson, a retired pastor of the SDA Church of 50 years, also was in communication with Danny, both by phone and email. We talked together and shared the same opinion that Danny was acting completely irrational and unreasonable towards his wife. It appeared he was attempting to leave an email trail filled with untruths to verify a position at a later time. The decision was made to stop the communication by phone with Linda.

Some weeks went by. Johann and Irmgard were getting treatments at my clinic and staying in my home during the Easter week in April, so I discovered from them that the situation was not improving for Linda. She was being harassed, threatened, and unreasonable demands by her husband were repeatedly being made to confess things she had not done. By this time, she was also suspended from her job at 3ABN, an order that was issued and enforced by her husband with no Board action. Things were so bad in the home that she found it necessary to go to her daughter's home in Springfield, Illinois for safety and rest on several occasions. Derrell Mundall, who was traveling often for 3ABN, reports rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were in SDA churches in April 2004, when Linda was still living with Danny. When he inquired about the source of the rumors, people always pointed to Danny Shelton.

I could see from my 35 years of experience as a physician that Danny was a psychopath. accusations were directed at me that I had done "mind control" over Linda. (Walt Thompson made the same accusations in his letters.) Linda was accused of sending "secret messages" to me over the television. Danny's emails and communications with Johann were completely crazy, and his reasoning often conflicted with his previous emails. Danny targeted Linda's few inner circle confidants and slandered her to the point that even they backed away from her at this critical time. (Linda's "friends" did not want to lose their television privileges.) Johann and I concluded this was a man who was determined to get rid of his wife. We also concluded that Linda was in danger.

Things eventually progressed from emotional and mental abuse to physical abuse. In the midst of all this harassment Linda asked Danny, 'Why are you treating me like this?' He answered, 'Because I want you to get out.'

Considering the urgency of the situation I allowed the conversations to resume. Linda knew, with her high profile status, that confiding with local people regarding these issues would be very bad for the ministry. I had given counsel to people in difficulty in the past and felt I could be helpful from a distance in this situation. I encouraged Linda to fight for her marriage and ministry many times. This she really did, but she often had to leave her home to find refuge at her daughter's apartment in Springfield, even in the middle of the night because of Danny's behavior. At times like these she was afraid of him. She always returned to her home after a couple of days seeking to try to mend the marriage, but Danny would not allow this.

During the spring of 2004 Danny called my pastor in Norway. Danny tried to get me kicked out as an elder and as a member of the church. My pastor told me about the conversation and he said, "He is mentally sick, he needs professional help."

I find it very disturbing that Walt Thompson defended and continues to defend Danny although he was a witness repeatedly to the emotional and mental abuse that was taking place. At one point he witnessed Danny "trashing" his wife for five hours. I also find it disturbing that John Lomacang, Linda's former pastor, claims to have counseled extensively with Danny and Linda when this was far from the truth. During the months of April and May of 2004, when most of the activity was ccurring in this situation, Linda NEVER saw John, who was supposed to be her pastor.

Coincidentally the handful of people supporting Danny and defending his actions has gained either power, position, airtime, homes, public endorsement or all of the above.

At one point I had a conversation with Walt Thompson, Chairman of the Board of 3ABN. He asked me to stop all communication with Linda. This had also been communicated to Johann and Irmgard Thorvaldsson and others. I told him that it was obviously Danny's plan to isolate Linda from everyone at a time when she needed help. To me it was the Christian thing to answer her phone calls and the only humane thing to do for someone who was in crisis.

Others did not come to Linda's aid because they did not want to lose whatever benefit they gained from 3ABN, whether it be a job, programming, promotions, etc. Walt was also the one who phoned Linda when she was suspended from the ministry by her husband. He instructed her that she must not come to the ministry (which she co-founded) without calling ahead of time because she must be supervised when at 3ABN. Danny broke into a locked bathroom to forcefully take her keys to 3ABN from her. Her hard drive of her computer was confiscated, her contact information taken and even her filing cabinets ravaged, all without any kind of Board action.

Linda was living in an impossible situation. Danny was "in her face" on a regular basis. At times he would say, "If you don't say you're a pathological liar, the marriage and 3ABN is over. If you don't say you're an adulterous woman the marriage and 3ABN is over for you. If you don't say you've given your heart to another man and that he is a demon the marriage and 3ABN is over..... etc." It even reached the point when he demanded her to say "Repeat after me." Johann and I received a couple emails, which said they were from Linda, but they were written by Danny. Linda saw her ministry being destroyed one day at a time. All of this was dehumanizing and terrifying to Linda, who was trying to hold things together. She very much realized what was at stake.

An "investigative committee" was put together by Walt Thompson to look into this situation. They were Walt Thompson, Bill Hulsey, Nick Miller and Kay Kuzma. Danny talked privately at length with each of these people. Linda did not. The committee as a whole never met with Linda at all. In one brief phone conversation with Kay Kuzma she told Linda, "The Board is not interested in you and Danny's personal problems. It is only interested in the fact that the President no longer wants his Vice-President." Johann Thorvaldsson testifies that he spoke with Kay the following day. She told him she was instructed to get Linda used to the idea of not being at 3ABN anymore and to try to get her involved in another ministry.

It's interesting that at the time Danny accused Linda for speaking on the phone to me, that he was in the practice of speaking regularly with Brenda, Linda's "friend." He also visited often with her in her 3ABN apartment in the night. A worker at 3ABN states that Brenda even went golfing with Danny behind Linda's back while she was working. As soon as Brenda saw where the tide was turning, she was no longer Linda's friend. She became an accuser as well.

About May 1, 2004 instructions were given to the production staff to wipe Linda's face off of the network by June 1, again with no Board action.

All CD's, videos, literature and photos of Linda were stripped out of the Call Center. She was sent a document a few days later specifying that she was advised to get 30 days of counseling by counselors of "their" choice. If she did not agree to this in writing within 24 hours, her employment could be gone. She requested time for an attorney to look at the document. This was refused. Mail was flooding into the network with Linda's name on it. They were all returned to sender. Her scheduled speaking appointments for women's ministries were sabotaged by those in leadership at 3ABN. Danny told those who worked for Linda that she was a pathological liar and to stay away from her. (He did not want them to hear the other side of the story.) At one point Linda told Walt that Dan was purposefully ruining her reputation and that she was not willing to be a martyr for 3ABN. Walt's response was "How else are we going to save the ministry?"

Rumors of Linda's so-called "affair" were flying throughout the churches and the General Conference in May of 2004, rumors which were begun by her husband. It was communicated to me that Linda was going to be fired at the Board meeting, which would occur in May, following the 3ABN camp meeting. Johann and I decided to go to the camp meeting and talk to the Board members and tell them the truth about the situation. When we walked into the 3ABN building we were surrounded by about 10 people. One person stood directly behind me for the entire service. Walt Thompson and Nick Miller (3ABN's attorney) asked us to leave. We stayed until nearly the end of the service. (At this camp meeting an announcement was made regarding Linda. There were tearful appeals by Danny, which raised a record-breaking amount of money for 3ABN. Danny also claims that an additional two million dollars was raised the year of their divorce.) When Johann and I went to the door, once again we were followed by a small crowd of people. I spoke to Mark Finley about the situation at length in the parking lot. John Lomacang tried to stop the conversation. He said 'It is not good for you to talk to him alone.' What was he afraid of? He was standing with me when Danny drove up and said that if I returned to camp meeting I would be arrested and thrown in jail. He had already talked to the Sheriff. I decided to not return, as it was Mark Finley's suggestion to avoid the possibility of disrupting the camp meeting for all of the people attending. Linda was staying in her daughter's apartment in Springfield, so we drove there on Saturday to stay in a hotel for the weekend. During this weekend we were followed by three private investigators all the time. What kind of actions was that, for a man that REALLY wanted to save his marriage?

It is my understanding that a one-sided conversation was illegally taped by Danny towards the end of May. With a mind set on framing his wife, her words have been misconstrued into saying what he wants people to think. She mentions a trip to Las Vegas. He explains to all that she is planning a rendezvous with "the doctor." In reality for weeks he has offered Linda larger and larger sums of money for her to go to Las Vegas and stay with her mother for six weeks to acquire residency, a requirement for couples that want a quick divorce. For weeks she refused. SHE NEVER WANTED A DIVORCE.

The events of the previous months eventually bring her to the place where she thinks this is maybe what she should do. She knew a separation was necessary. Danny takes her words from the phone call and adds his insinuations. He makes photo copies of her one sided conversation and distributes it. This is his main source of "proof" for his actions and re-marriage. They call it circumstantial evidence." To further cover their tracks Linda's accusers say that for her sake they don't want to tell "all she has done." They say this so people will accept their statements and imagine the worst. This is slander of the worst kind all coming from professed Christians.

Johann says he was fired from 3ABN for refusing to attest to something false Danny wanted him to put in writing about Linda. Derrell Mundall, Danny's ex-son-in-law, says he was given the option to resign or be fired because of his actions defending Linda. Others quit their jobs because they could not support the actions of the leaders. There is one thing many of these people have in common. Anyone who disagrees with Danny is slandered and discredited.

It's interesting that Danny's daughter recently was found to be pregnant out of wedlock. A quick wedding followed when Derrell, (her ex-husband & father of their four children), claims she had no grounds for re-marriage. It's also interesting that nobody asked Derrell about the issue of grounds at all when he was still a resident in Thompsonville. Also another married Shelton family member had a romantic encounter recently with a married employee of 3ABN. They were instructed to keep it quiet. They did. They all still work at 3ABN, and Melody is featured on the network. Is 3ABN all about standing for principle and values, or standing for those who happen to be in good graces with the President and the Shelton family ?

Another question that seems to be in the minds of many is "Why was Linda given $240,000 when all claim she was fired for a wrongdoing?" The only reason Linda signed this 3ABN contract was because she needed money to escape from a very irregular, abusive and impossible situation. Danny forced her to sign not only this contract, but another contract which sold him her half of their joint-owned home the same day.

Linda has suffered much emotional trauma and humiliation from all of this. She still has nightmares about these events. She did not feel ready to face the people of the SDA church for six months after all of this occurred. I encouraged her to begin again. She went for the first time around the end of November of 2004 in Springfield. The people welcomed her. She requested her membership to be transferred out of the Thompsonville church into the Springfield church in December of 2004. The Springfield pastor had previously worked at 3ABN and knew Linda. He did not believe the rumors and encouraged the church to put her to work. It was a healing time for her to teach Sabbath School and occasionally preach.

In June of 2005 things changed. Pastor Grady was transferred out of the Springfield church, though he wanted to stay, and a pastor from 3ABN was moved into the church. Within two weeks John Stanton met with Linda and told her she would be doing nothing on the platform. She told him that the church really needed the help and she hoped that if she was asked once in two months to teach a Sabbath School class that she would be able to do this. He told her that the orders had come from the conference level. (The Illinois conference President sits on 3ABN's Board and his parents work for 3ABN.) During our visit to the General Conference Session Johann and I visited with this pastor. He told us he thought Linda was a liar. I TOLD HIM THAT LINDA HAD NEVER BEEN UNFAITHFUL TO HER HUSBAND and that all the rumors from her husband were lies. But this man had TV interests to pursue and he was in close connection with Danny and John Lomacang.

The last week of October 2005, a letter came to Linda from John Lomacang, the pastor of the Thompsonville (3ABN) church. It stated that the church board had voted "to call a church business session to recommend to the church that you be placed under censure." Linda called John to ask him why. He said it was because she had abandoned her marriage and ministry, which led to her divorce. (This is what Danny refers to as "grounds" to re-marry.) Linda planned to address the church business meeting. She wrote to Danny requesting a release from the restrictions of the contract she signed so she could openly share her side of the story. Danny denied this request. Because of this she felt forced to drop her membership there and then join another SDA church. This decision was made after much counsel with several SDA's. It's interesting that this recommendation for censure came almost 18 months after the fact. (Which kind of practice is this? Special for USA?) It's also interesting that all of this occurred while Danny was trying to gather evidence against Linda so he could re-marry.

Danny Shelton and the leadership of 3ABN are responsible for using the ministry of 3ABN to bring character assassination to Linda and others. In Linda's case, television and radio announcements were made denouncing her character. There was an announcement on the front page of 3ABN's website for many months. About 180,000 letters about Linda were sent to the mailing list at 3ABN. Videos about her were made and distributed. Magazine articles were written and submitted. Mailings were made to church officials. Many calls were taken at 3ABN where slanderous remarks about Linda were given over the phone. Many letters containing completely false statements were sent to many individuals. Danny even made his personal email address available over 3ABN so people could write to him and obtain his side of the story. They did a thorough job of character assassination.

Now two years later the "trashing" continues. It is inexcusable, especially for a proclaimed Christian ministry.

In conclusion I want to clearly state that I have not committed adultery (emotional, physical, "spiritual"), and neither has Linda. The conversations we had were not unusual or inappropriate. Linda is the victim of domestic violence, only this has resulted in worldwide effects for our Church.

Linda has sought for help at the General Conference level. She has sought the aid of pastors. No one has an answer. She has tried repeatedly to meet with a committee from the Board of 3ABN. This request has not been granted. Still the bulk emails and letters flow from 3ABN slandering the innocent. This has been the most ungodly situation I have observed in my entire life. Any who find themselves not in good graces with Danny Shelton will find that their name is discredited and slandered in an attempt to destroy their influence. Linda has suffered the most with the loss of her job, her influence and reputation. But many others, including myself, have felt the heat coming from what is supposed to be a ministry representing Jesus Christ. This is an outrage. This is unacceptable. Accountability of leaders is a must. (Can bad fruits come from good trees?) As Christians, it is our duty to demand accountability and a high standard from leaders. I hope this testimony will fulfill the mission intended.

Respectfully,

Dr. Arild Abrahamsen
From Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN board of Directors
Regarding Danny's marriage

Dear Family and Friends of 3ABN,

Two years ago 3ABN was challenged by the most difficult battle the ministry has ever faced. It was a battle that threatened the very existence of the ministry and the work of preaching the end time message of the Three Angel's to the world. It is only because of the grace and power of God Almighty, and the faithful support of you, the 3ABN family, that the ministry has survived to preach another day. Today, the ministry is stronger than it has ever been and its reach into the world even broader and more powerful for the cause of truth.

As is always the case when in the public eye, questions arise, stories abound, and rumors spread. We thank God that you have trusted the leadership and board of 3ABN during this time and have stayed with us in ministry. More recently some of you have heard that Danny has found one to comfort him in his loneliness and sorrow. You may have also heard rumors about an allegedly illegal divorce occurring without Biblical grounds. This letter is an attempt to fill you in with the facts.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has taken the action that it has taken. I have been one that has plead with Linda to keep her marriage and her ministry and offered to provide counseling for them. I have known Danny and Linda almost from the beginning of the ministry and have been in their home many times. They had a good marriage. It was not until this third party got in the middle did things begin to fall apart. It is also true that Danny really did want to get back together again, but when it became obvious that couldn't happen, he correctly had to close the door on that part of his history lest it destroy him and the ministry.

The divorce was a mutually agreed thing, even the choice to get it from Guam where there would be no long wait. Linda had originally planned to move to Las Vegas long enough to become a resident there so as to get a divorce there. They then discovered the possibility of a divorce from Guam, checked it out and found it to be legal, and decided to go that route. Though I believe Guam has now stopped the program, the legality of a Guam divorce had previously been taken to the U.S. Supreme Court where it was ruled legitimate. As chairman of the board, I did not try to influence the decision, but I will say that had they not obtained a quick divorce, the ministry would have been placed at much greater risk since the situation was causing so much dysfunction with leadership and staff. I believe time has verified the correctness of what was done then, both by Danny and by the board for the ministry.

Linda's web site recently stated that she and Danny were not divorced. She wrote this after the judge made the decision in Danny's favor. She claims she did not know this when she wrote it. Her web site referred to an e mail I sent to Johann Thorvaldson a year earlier saying that I had never accused her of adultery. I believe that exchange with him was in response to an accusation by him that we had fired her because of adultery. I was merely saying that she was not fired for adultery, but because she had defied the board in not discontinuing a relationship that was threatening to destroy the ministry. (I might add that the doctor also told me he would not break off the relationship, even though I pled with him to do so.) That letter to Johann was correct, and it is true that I have never directly accused her of adultery. That does not mean that I believe Linda is innocent. If by adultery one must be caught in bed with another person, I cannot prove Linda has committed adultery. If, on the other hand, hard evidence indicates that Linda was involved in an unacceptable relationship with another man qualifies for adultery, then there is no question about Danny's moral right to marry again.

As a board, we have chosen not to make the details of the evidence available to the public. I believe Satan is the accuser of the brethern. We have chosen to take the "high road" in this whole situation and say nothing more than we have been forced to say to try to quell rumors. We care about Linda and have tried not to do anything to hurt her more than she has already been hurt. I can tell you that I personally spent a great deal of time at 3ABN during those months when this was all happening. I spoke with Linda and Danny on numerous occasions. A sub committee of the board met and prayed with Danny and Linda and pled with Linda to call off the relationship. Danny and Linda spent an 8 hour session with a pair of Christian counselors (non-Adventist in an attempt to avoid bias) who had no doubts about the nature of Linda's conduct. We offered to provide Linda with the opportunity to go away for counseling with a counselor agreeable to both she and us. She did not respond to that offer or request.

Finally, the full board met, reviewed Linda's letter of explanation, and voted unanimously to remove her from the ministry and her seat on the board. Other church leaders who have been privy to some of the evidence we have are in full agreement with our decision.

The relationship Linda had with the Norwegian Dr. was not a normal doctor-patient relationship as she claims. It is true. Linda was very concerned about her son Nathan. He was the vehicle through which the Dr. reached Linda. Our evidence leaves no question that this became much more than a doctor-patient relationship. We know that the long hours on the phone together were not about Nathan and have hard evidence to support this knowledge - nor were times spent together on both sides of the Atlantic.

Furthermore, she refused to break it off, even after weeks of pleading with her to do so. We, the board believe the evidence we have clearly justifies the divorce and gives Danny the moral and legal right to remarry. Those in church leadership with whom we have shared some of this evidence agree with us. Out of concern for Linda we have been reluctant to make details public.

No, Danny is not to blame for what has happened here. On the contrary, he has bent over backwards trying to make things work and meeting her requests. Yet, she has never acknowledged that it was wrong for her to have another "friend".

The things I have stated here are accurate and correct. As far as the lady Danny has married is concerned, I can only say I believe his new wife is a very good person and will be a real asset to him as he carries on his heavy responsibilities. Just to clarify any rumor you may have heard, this relationship began long after the divorce. I was at 3ABN when this lady came from Florida looking for work. There was nothing going on before that time, and Danny definitely was not trying to "dump" Linda. I was with him during much of the time he agonized and mourned her loss. It is one thing to lose a loved one in death. It is much different to lose one to another lover - like cutting a dog's tail off one inch at a time! As to the matter of age difference, I will say that I do not believe that is any of my business. I find nothing in the Bible, and I don't remember any thing in the SOP indicating age differences for married couples. If it is legal, and morally correct, and if entered into with honesty, sincerity and earnest prayer for God's guidance, as I know happened here, it is not for me to criticize. In my own musings about this, I have concluded that it was no accident that brought Brandy to 3ABN. Either the devil was behind it, or God was. There is no question in my mind which one it was.

(Archo Dart was for many years a family and marriage counselor in the Adventist church. When in his 80's, he married one of my patients, who was then in her 50's. She loved and admired him till death many years later.)

I have had an interesting thought this week that I will share with you. It is this. God lost one of his closest companions when Lucifer went astray. More than that, myriads more angels left with him when he left heaven. Talk about grief or emotional pain. Experiences such as this with Linda, I think, help us to understand the pain of loss, and the reality of the war between God and Satan. Some have claimed it takes two to divorce. I don't think that is categorically true! This has been a terrible injury that has hit 3abn and Danny, and yes, Linda too, but it is one that I believe God understands - and He continues to bless his servants.

We recognize that we live in a world at war, and are working with a ministry that the devil would like to see destroyed. The war is real, and as in any other war there are real casualties. War is never pleasant, and spiritual battles may be some of the worst. Our hearts still ache for those who have been wounded. Our prayers continue to ascend on their behalf. Should acknowledgement of wrongdoing and penitence ever occur, we would be the first to forgive and forget. Unfortunately, that has not happened, and we must move on.

Some who have been aware of the growing relationship and the possibility of marriage have thought they should wait for a longer period of time before marrying. In discussions before the event, the 3ABN board reviewed the events of the past couple years and have agreed that there was no moral or legal reason precluding marriage. Realizing the heavy burdens resting on Danny and of his need for companionship, we, the board did not see any reason not to give our blessing to their union. We hope you, our 3ABN family, will agree too, and with us, welcome Brandy with open arms.

Should you have any questions that I might answer, please feel free to send them to me at 3ABN and I will do my best to try to answer them.

Sincerely in the precious name of Jesus,
Walter Thompson
Chairman, 3ABN Board of Directors
Walter Thompson MD
REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University
Much of the discussion about Danny and Linda Shelton's divorce and consequent remarriage of Danny, revolves on the legitimate grounds for them to divorce and for Danny to remarry. It appears to me that from a biblical standpoint, the issue is not, "Did Danny have a legitimate ground to divorce Linda, but should a Christian couple experiencing marital problems consider divorce as a solution to their problems in the first place?

The teaching of Jesus on divorce and remarriage is abundantly clear. Both Luke and Mark affirm the same teaching. "Every one who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and he who marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery" (Luke 16:18). "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another, commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery" (Mark 10:11-12).

When Paul applied Jesus' teaching to the concrete marital problems that existed in the Church of Corinth, he clearly claims to give Christ's command by enjoining the wife not to separate from her husband, and the husband not to divorce his wife: "The wife should not separate from her husband, but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband- and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The total prohibition of divorce by Paul reflects the teaching of Jesus found in the Gospels.

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Danny is advancing all sorts of argument to prove that he is innocent and Linda is guilty. In the light of his allegations I asked Linda to respond to a dozen of specific questions. She denies all your allegations. She claims she left Danny because of his abusive behavior, she did not want a divorce, and she never had intimate relationship with the Arield, the Norwagian doctor, and she never married the man. It appears to me that had Linda been involved in an adulterous relationship, by now they would be married, especially since he is widow and she is divorced.

The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position.

The longer he holds on to his position, the more people will become disenchanted with him and 3ABN. In an age of instant communication, one cannot cover up past mistakes for very long.

My advice to Danny is largely based on Paul's teaching on Divorce and remarriage that we want to consider at this point.

THE TEACHING OF PAUL ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

Paul's teachings on divorce and remarriage are found in 1 Corinthians 7, where the apostle discusses three different types of marital problems. In 1 Corinthians 7:10-11 Paul speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts. His admonition given with Christ's authority is clear. Christian couples should not seek divorce, and if they separate they should remain single to leave the door open for reconciliation.

Since I have examined this passage in my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT, I will quote a few paragraph relevant to Danny and Linda's situation. Personally I feel that it is far more important to understand what the Bible teaches us on this important area of marital relationship, than to gossip about who is to be blamed.

In marital conflicts the blame seldom falls only on one partner. To a greater or lesser degree both partners have contributed to the problem and both need to seek a biblical solution to their problem. In seeking for a solution, it is important to remember that in the Bible marriage is not a social or civil contract that can be dissolved through the legal process, but it is a sacred, lifelong covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself.

The Teaching of Paul in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16

Paul's treatment of the divorce question in 1 Corinthians 7:10-16 is most significant because it reveals how the teaching of Jesus on divorce was understood and applied to certain concrete marital situations in the apostolic church. He begins the chapter by setting forth some general principles about marriage. To avoid the temptation to sexual immorality, "each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband" (1 Cor 7:2). Both husband and wife should fulfill their respective conjugal rights (1 Cor 7:3-5). The unmarried and the widows who have the gift of celibacy should remain single as himself (1 Cor 7:7-8).

Next Paul discusses three different divorce situations: (1) the divorce of two believers (vv. 10-11), (2) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever does not want to divorce, and (3) the divorce of a believer and an unbeliever where the unbeliever wants to divorce. Since only the first situation is relevant to the case of Danny and Linda, I will quote from the book what I have written about it.

Divorce of Two Believers. Paul first speaks to married believers who might consider divorce as a means to resolve their marital conflicts: "To the married I give charge, not I but the Lord, that the wife should not separate from her husband (but if she does, let her remain single or else be reconciled to her husband)-and that the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11).

Appealing to the teaching of Christ (cf. Mark 10:9, 11, 12; Luke 16:18; Matt 19:3-9), Paul declares in absolute terms that a Christian couple should not seek divorce. Twice he affirms the no-divorce principle: ". . . the wife should not separate from her husband . . . and the husband should not divorce his wife" (1 Cor 7:10-11). The basis of Paul's prohibition is Christ's teaching that husband and wife are one flesh and what God has joined together no man should put asunder.

Paul recognizes, however, that human nature is perverse and that even a Christian husband or wife can make marriage intolerable for the other partner. A spouse who is out of fellowship with God can become intolerant, abusive, unfaithful, domineering, inconsiderate. Undoubtedly, Paul had run into situations of this kind and recognizes that sometimes separation may be inevitable. However, if separation becomes a necessity, Paul leaves Christian partners with two options: (1) to remain permanently unmarried, or (2) to be reconciled to one's partner.

It is important to note that Paul appeals to the teaching of Jesus ("not I but the Lord") in ruling against the possibility of divorce for a Christian couple. On this regard, New Testament scholar F. F. Bruce comments: "For a Christian husband or wife, divorce is excluded by the law of Christ: here Paul has no need to express a judgment of his own, for the Lord's ruling on this matter was explicit."

To appreciate the revolutionary nature of such teaching, it is important to remember that divorce and remarriage was allowed in both the Jewish and Roman society. Yet Paul affirms the no-divorce principle for Christians as a word of the Lord which will be accepted without challenge. This goes to show that within twenty-five years of the crucifixion itself, the Apostolic Church believed and taught that Christ had proclaimed the permanence of the marriage union. This belief played an important role in the Christian mission to revolutionize the values of the existing society.

In Paul's day, there was no provision for a wife to be legally separated from her husband without being divorced. Fortunately today, the law provides for legal separation as an alternative to divorce. Legal separation offers to a Christian the protection of the law while leaving the door open for reconciliation. Such a door must be left open because Christians believe that no marital conflict is impossible for God to solve.

Since there was no legal separation in Paul's day, the apostle recommends a legal separation-type of divorce. This is indicated by his use of the verb koridzo ("to separate") rather than the normal verb for divorce apoluo used by Jesus. By recommending a legal separation-type of divorce, Paul respects the spirit of Christ's teaching while at the same time providing protection for the believing wife until a reconciliation with her husband can be realized.

Paul's teachings on the question of divorce in 1 Corinthians 7:12-16 not only closely reflects Jesus' teachings concerning the permanence of marriage, but also reveals its full depths. It does this by showing how the Christian faith causes the marriage covenant to become a sacred and lifelong relationship. There is for Paul an intimate connection between the permanence of the marriage bond and the Christian faith.

A Christian couple who marries "in the Lord" accepts the responsibility to honor by divine grace their covenant commitment both to God and to one another. It is the sacred and permanent nature of the Christian covenant commitment to God that makes a Christian marriage sacred and permanent. On account of this fact, a Christian couple experiencing marital problems may separate with the hope of reconciliation but may not divorce and remarry. This condition does not apply to a mixed marriage where the unbelieving partner deserts his believing spouse, because by the very act of desertion the unbeliever rejects the Christian view of marriage as a sacred and permanent union.

Summing up, like Jesus the apostle Paul affirms the principle that Christian marriage is a union binding and permanent for life. If a separation should occur, Paul presents only two alternatives to believing partners: be reconciled to one another or remain single.

The Teaching of Paul on Divorce for Church Leaders

Paul's view of Christian marriage as a lifelong union which admits no divorce and remarriage, is indirectly supported by the marriage qualifications he sets forth for church leaders: "Now a bishop must be above reproach, the husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; cf. Titus 1:6). "Let deacons be the husband of one wife, and let them manage their children and their households well" (1 Tim 3:12).

The basic qualifications given by Paul for the church office of elder (or overseer) and deacon were designed to enable Timothy in Ephesus and Titus on Crete to appoint church leaders qualified to serve in such offices. The first qualification for the office of elder is that the man must be "above reproach." His blameless lifestyle is to serve as a role model to the congregation and is to offer no reason for criticism in the community. The first important aspect of his role modeling is his marital status, which Paul defines as "husband of one wife" (1 Tim 3:2; Titus 1:6). This qualification occurs both in 1 Timothy and Titus immediately after the demand for blamelessness thus indicating the prominence Paul gives to the marital status of a church leader.

The Greek words translated "husband of one wife" can be rendered literally as "one-wife-man." This short phrase has been the subject of considerable investigation. Did Paul mean that a church leader should be married only to one woman at a time or only once during his lifetime? Did Paul intend to exclude from church leadership polygamists, that is, men married to several wives or digamists, that is, men married twice or more legally?

Exclusion of Polygamists. Some have understood the phrase "husband of one wife" to exclude polygamists from church leadership. This interpretation is discredited by two main considerations. First, there was no need for this qualification since no Christian, whether church leader or not, was allowed to practice polygamy. Second, in New Testament times polygamy was generally outlawed in the empire and thus it hardly needed insistence by Paul.

Exclusion of Digamists. The most plausible meaning of the phrase "husband of one wife" appears to be "married only once." This is in fact the rendering of the New Revised Standard Version. According to this view, divorce and remarriage would disqualify a man from the office of elder and deacon. Paul would be stressing the importance of appointing to church leadership only men whose marital status was beyond suspect by having been married only once. Several considerations favor this interpretation.

The priests in the Old Testament were enjoined to uphold a higher marriage standard by marrying only a virgin, and not "a widow, or one divorced, or a woman who has been defiled, or a harlot" (Lev 21:14; cf. 21:7). This Old Testament precedent supports the New Testament higher marriage standards for elders and deacons. Elsewhere I have shown that even the requirement for church leaders to be "abstinent" (1 Tim 3:2) finds its precedent in the Old Testament strict prohibition against the use of alcoholic beverages by the priests (Lev 10:9).

The construction of the phrase without article "mias gunaikos andra-one-wife-man" emphasizes the moral character of the individual as being totally committed to one woman. Such a total commitment is best exemplified by faithfulness to one's spouse "till death doeth us part." In an age when the marriage bond was lightly regarded and commonly dishonored, Paul emphasizes that a church leader must be an example of marital fidelity. Such a fidelity would exclude the possibility of divorce and remarriage.

This may be inferred also from the requirement that a woman enrolled in the official order of widows was to have been "the wife of one husband" (1 Tim 5:9). In Greek, the phrase corresponds to "the husband of one wife." Since the widows enrolled in the ministry of the church were to have been married only once, it seems safe to assume that the same qualification applied to the office of elder. The linguistic similarity between the two phrases ("husband of one wife" and "wife of one husband") strongly suggest that in both instances the person was to have been married only once.

In summary, both the Old and New Testaments uphold the principle of high marriage standards for church leaders (Lev 21:7, 14-15; 1 Tim 3:2, 12; Titus 1:6). In the New Testament church the elders and deacons must stand before the congregation as role models of blameless lifestyle, especially by being the "husband of one wife," that is to say, married only once and totally devoted to one's wife. This excludes the possibility for church leaders to divorce, remarry or to lust after other women.

The standard is admittedly high, but God could hardly allow a lesser standard from those who have been called to give spiritual leadership to His church. To allow a man who has been divorced and remarried to serve as the spiritual leader of a congregation means to tempt its members to follow his bad example by divorcing their spouses and remarrying, if the occasion arises.

The foregoing discussion of the marriage qualifications for church leaders has served to corroborate the principle that Christian marriage is a permanent, lifelong union, which admits no divorce and remarriage. This principle is to be upheld especially by church leaders because their lifestyle and teaching serve as role model for many to follow.

CONCLUSION

In this chapter we have found that both the Old and New Testaments clearly and consistently condemn divorce as a violation of God's original plan for marriage as a lifelong union that enables a man and a woman to become "one flesh." Respect for this fundamental principle demands that a Christian couple experiencing marital conflicts should not seek to resolve them through divorce. If a marriage relationship becomes intolerable, a Christian couple can consider a legal separation. The purpose of the separation should be to provide an opportunity for the couple to work toward a possible reconciliation.

APPLICATION OF PAUL'S TEACHING TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S CASE

According to Paul's teachings, the solution to Danny and Linda's marital conflicts, should have been, not the filing for a hasty divorce in Guam, but the filing of a legal separation which would have left the door open for a possible reconciliation.

Christians who believe that marriage is a sacred covenant witnessed and guaranteed by God Himself, must also believe that God is willing to move heaven and earth to save their marriage. Legal separation leaves the door open for the Holy Spirit to work in the hearts of both partners who have been estranged.

It is important to note that a key qualification for church leadership spelled out by Paul, is the marital status. A church leaders is expected to be a "one-wife-man,", that is, a man married only once, fully committed to his wife and a spiritual leader who "manages well his own home . . . for if a man does not know how to manage his own household, how can he care for God's church? (1 Tim 3:5).

Particular emphasis is placed upon the Christian character of a church leader, exemplified by his temperate life-style, loyalty to his wife, and spiritual leadership in the home. The reason is that a pastor or a TV evangelist serve as role models to the congregation or viewing audience entrusted to them. A man divorced and remarried several times, can hardly serve as a role model to his congregation or viewing audience. Thus, fidelity to the biblical teachings demands that spiritual leadership is to be entrusted to men who have proven to be faithful to their wives and to be moral and spiritual leaders in the home.

--

Christian regards

Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.,
Retired Professor of Theology and Church History, Andrews University
4990 Appian Way
Berrien Springs, MI 49103

Phone (269) 471-2915 Fax (269) 978-6898

E-mail sbacchiocchi@biblicalperspectives.com

WWW HOMEPAGE: http://www.biblicalperspectives.com

EXCELLENT!!! Thank you.

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 14 2006, 12:00 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 14 2006, 02:10 PM)

In light of information from Dr. Bacchiocchi and possibly some others, it may make for an interesting night to watch 3ABN Live, and the FIRST live showing of course, as often the replays are edited. It can be watched online too if you don't have the satelite.
p.s. I will be happy when spell check comes back from vacation. Ü don't know if Dr. B has ever been a guest on 3ABN...but I'm also certain that now he has rendered his perspective on the Danny/Linda situation, the welcome mat has been rolled up. The wagons are now circling in West Frankfort, and it would be interesting to see the spin the good folks at 3ABN would put on this new development.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 12:12 PM

QUOTE(caribbean sda @ Sep 14 2006, 12:00 PM)

I don't know if Dr. B has ever been a guest on 3ABN...but I'm also certain that now he has rendered his perspective on the Danny/Linda situation, the welcome mat has been rolled up. The wagons are now circling in West Frankfort, and it would be interesting to see the spin the good folks at 3ABN would put on this new development.

Before we get too overawed by the Doc having his qualified "say" in the matter, it would be well to note that in the beginning .... within a very short time after Linda was ousted from 3abn, the doc listened to Johann and others, and essentially promised to write in her defense in one of his next newsletters. But not long after that he backed away, choosing to not "get involved". There are some of us who, rather than being elated at this attention he is giving the topic, are rather in wonderment as to why, in all the time that has elapsed since then .... and with all that has been said here on BSDA .... he can still only quote the two contrasting letters of Thompson and Abrahamson from this site, and conclude that he doesn't have enough information to judge which is correct. Nor does he give even any passing casual "nod" to all of the other problems that have been revealed about the Shelton Dynasty. It is as if nothing existed other than Danny's divorce and remarriage.

So ... once more Linda has been dragged out like a "red herring" so as to divert attention from all of the other ills that exist on the 3ABN campus! Which is just the way Danny wants it. Strange, isn't it .... how he manages to "get his way" in that matter?

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 14 2006, 12:18 PM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 14 2006, 11:02 AM)

REFLECTIONS ON THE BIBLICAL TEACHINGS ON DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE
AS THEY RELATE TO DANNY AND LINDA SHELTON'S SITUATION
Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph. D.
Retired Professor of Theology,
Andrews University

Interesting read since I had the Dr. as a prof in university. I am curious what brought him to generate this document. Who solicited his thoughts on this subject and how did it make its way here?

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 14 2006, 12:30 PM

Well Watchbird, I had come to the same conclusion after reading his Biblical Dissertation on marriage. Other concerns were not mentioned, and I wondered why he had not commented on them, but I am far too new to BSDA to have questioned why. Like I stated in my previous post, we all at one time or another have stated the same things only not as detailed....which was my way of saying without saying...much was left onsaid by him. I will leave it to all of you who have better insight than I do...to conclude as to the reasons why.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 12:37 PM

QUOTE(Lucyladye @ Sep 14 2006, 12:30 PM)

Well Watchbird, I had come to the same conclusion after reading his Biblical Dissertation on marriage. Other concerns were not mentioned, and I wondered why he had not commented on them, but I am far too new to BSDA to have questioned why. Like I stated in my previous post, we all at one time or another have stated the same things only not as detailed....which was my way of saying without saying...much was left onsaid by him. I will leave it to all of you who have better insight than I do...to conclude as to the reasons why.

Being a long time follower of Bacchiocchi's newsletters, I think he gives the immediate answer to the question of "why" in his early paragraphs .... he had a bunch of requests from readers of his newsletters .... and he had a book on the subject so he could use this as an excuse to promote that .... and he didn't have any other really bright ideas for subject matter (witness the fact that the majority of his several recent newsletters has been the reprinting of articles by other people, plus, of course, his own self-promotional material. (If I sound cynical when it comes to the dear "boc doc" (long history behind that nickname) it is only because I am... long history behind that also, but that would be WAY to far "off topic".)

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 14 2006, 12:44 PM

I am not sure how much people will listen to him. Seems like not too long ago he had some controversy and many have written him off too....

Posted by: calvin Sep 14 2006, 12:49 PM

Yes, it was an excellent Biblical based analysis. But please folks, you don't have to quote the whole post. We already read it.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 14 2006, 01:33 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 03:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Absent the man's stating otherwise, you should read it for what he stated it is... an assessment of that specific situation; any extrapolated tangents toward wide spread gneral application would be

[x] off

for this thread in this forum.

You can always fish in another pond, however...

In His service,

Mr. J

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:35 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 14 2006, 01:40 PM

QUOTE

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 01:18 PM)

Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

It does, however raise some thoughts in another area.... Is he suggesting that even a person who is a widow/widower or a person who it is clearly known has grounds for divorce due to adultery should not be placed in leadership of the church if they re-marry?

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 14 2006, 02:33 PM)

Absent the man's stating otherwise, you should read it for what he stated it is... an assessment of that specific situation; any extrapolated tangents toward wide spread gneral application would be off for this thread in this forum.

You can always fish in another pond, however...

In His service,
Mr. J

Same answer still applies, sarah.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 01:43 PM

And if you were the administration of BSDA or God it might be worth consideration...but since you are neither, and no rules have been violated, as a Moderator, all members are welcome to reply as it very much a part of this thread discussion.

Your thoughts have been noted.

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 14 2006, 02:40 PM)

Same answer still applies, sarah.

Posted by: Expression Sep 14 2006, 01:54 PM

I do not see everything the way Dr. Bacchiocchi does, but I really appreciate his thoughts. Making a statement and taking a stand has never been easy or popular--and yet it has always been needed. Church leaders have been all too quiet about the 3ABN situation and I hope others will come forward in the near future.

Thank you Dr. Bacchiocchi for sharing this with us.

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 02:08 PM

perhaps this thread that is dealing with divorce and remarriage be moved to the married forum....

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 14 2006, 02:12 PM

That is a very good idea....thanks for the suggestion. Can you please move it?

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 14 2006, 03:08 PM)

perhaps this thread that is dealing with divorce and remarriage be moved to the married forum....

Posted by: Clay Sep 14 2006, 02:16 PM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 03:12 PM)

That is a very good idea....thanks for the suggestion. Can you please move it?

done.....

Posted by: princessdi Sep 14 2006, 03:00 PM

Scary as this is.....I have to agree with Sarah here. I know that everyone involved is more than ready for ALL of the issues to be resolved, but the good Dr. has really given what is needed, just enough to get Danny removed at 3ABN, or at least enough of a warning to get GC to distance themselves. They cannot in good conscious maintain a relationship with Danny when he is not living acording to biblical principles, especially as a leader, one giving an Adventist face to the world. What the Dr. addressed is enough to get any other leader removed from office, it should be enough to warrant discipline for Danny. Also, it is the avenue that even the hardliners cannot ignore. It is the area which will more garner wide spread support.

The rest can also be dealt with in due time. It is not that there is not enough evidence, but it is definitely not as solid as the divorce/remarriage situation. Primarily because there is a solid biblical basis for it. We have hear several some here and say they lost interest when other matters came up with sketchy details. and It seemed like gossip at that point. Now, while it ia initially clear that these people did not take time to read carefully to get all the information on the other issues, it is also clear that they cannot over look the divorce/remarriage situation. IOW, it is a start. Begin with that, and the rest will come.

> QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 14 2006, 12:18 PM)
>
> Dr. Bacchocci's reflect and approach is not only biblical but as equally importantly IMO addresses what is known for certain is factual and beyond speculation and hearsay, leaving both to their dignity as Christians.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 14 2006, 04:04 PM

I wonder if the people that watch 3abn are the same people who would write hate mail to Dr B for his articles on EllenW? In other words, one of the groups of SDA that would have benefited from reading this may have already stoped reading the endtime issue newsletters.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 15 2006, 06:06 AM

> QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 01:12 PM)
>
> Before we get too overawed by the Doc having his qualified "say" in the matter, it would be well to note that in the beginning .... within a very short time after Linda was ousted from 3abn, the doc listened to Johann and others, and essentially promised to write in her defense in one of his next newsletters. But not long after that he backed away, choosing to not "get involved".

Watchbird. He did get involved in 2004.

I personally think 3ABN made Bacchiocchi offers in 2004 to "neutralized" him.

So many Adventists have no immunity to the insidious West Frankfort virus. Once that infected mosquito bites you, you're in trouble. We need to be grateful that he is recovering. Without treatment, West Frankfort virus can remain in your system for years, causing you to compulsively seek out TV cameras.

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_119.htm

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_119.htm

3ABN has invited Dr. Samuele Bacchiocchi to be a guest on a live two-hour program in December on "The Passion of Christ," on their flagship program 3ABN Today. Plans are also in progress to produce future programs with him as well.

I wish to thank 3ABN for inviting me to participate in some of their live programs and for airing some of my popular messages. The aim is to broaden the outreach of 3ABN by attracting viewers who look for a more substantive presentation of biblical truths. I will be sure to inform you about the time of the airing of my messages.

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_122.pdf

http://www.biblicalperspectives.com/endtimeissues/et_122.pdf

APPEARANCE ON 3ABN ON DECEMBER 9, 2004

3ABN has extended me an official invitation to present the highlights of my forthcoming book THE PASSION OF CHRIST IN SCRIPTURE AND HISTORY on Thursday evening, December 9, 2004 during the two hours popular live program.

The program will be aired twice. The first time on Thursday evening December 9, at 8:00 p. m. Central Standard time and the second time on Friday, December 10, at 1:00 a. m Central Standard Time. In the next newsletters I should have the time for the overseas airing.

Posted by: justme Sep 15 2006, 11:47 AM

Dr. Bacchiocchi has given us his analysis as they do it at the seminary, in light of all the references thay use up there. It is his personal view, just as this forum is a collection of personal views. His is no more or less authoritative because we each answer only to God in this regard.

Les us also remember that when one spouse committs adultry in the bed of another, it is called "adultry" as we all know. Jesus said that we also committ adultery if we so much as "lust " after another other than our spouse. Is that "grounds" as well? Is that a violation of the "Marriage bed"?

What if one spouse takes no interest in the sexual needs of the other spouse? Does that spouse then become the "victim" if the 'starved spouse" accepts the love of another?

I also know of a couple who has an agreement. It is this. If either of us "wants it" and the other is not available, take whatever IS available, and we don't discuss it afterwards. Is that adultry if they each/both agree it is OK?

Where does "blame" and "culpability" begin or end?

Who is the "CAUSE" and who was the 'EFFECT"?

Is "Self-righteousness" the absence of knowledge of "Cause and Effect".

What about a "PSYCHOPATH",and a "SOCIOPATH".

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 15 2006, 01:51 PM

I have asked that question in another 3ABN thread...will post when I locate it.

QUOTE(justme @ Sep 15 2006, 12:47 PM)

Dr. Bacchiocchi has given us his analysis as they do it at the seminary, in light of all the references thay use up there. It is his personal view, just as this forum is a collection of personal views. His is no more or less authoritative because we each answer only to God in this regard.

Les us also remember that when one spouse committs adultry in the bed of another, it is called "adultry" as we all know. Jesus said that we also committ adultery if we so much as "lust " after another other than our spouse. Is that "grounds" as well? Is that a violation of the "Marriage bed"? What if one spouse takes no interest in the sexual needs of the other spouse? Does that spouse then become the "victim" if the 'starved spouse" accepts the love of another?

I also know of a couple who has an agreement. It is this. If either of us "wants it" and the other is not available, take whatever IS available, and we don't discuss it afterwards. Is that adultry if they each/both agree it is OK?

Where does "blame" and "culpability" begin or end?

Who is the "CAUSE" and who was the 'EFFECT"?

Is "Self-righteousness" the absence of knowledge of "Cause and Effect".
What about a "PSYCHOPATH",and a "SOCIOPATH".

http://www.blacksda.com/forums/index.php?act=ST&f=48&t=10247

Found it!

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 03:34 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 14 2006, 12:37 PM)

Being a long time follower of Bacchiocchi's newsletters, I think he gives the immediate answer to the question of "why" in his early paragraphs .... he had a bunch of requests from readers of his newsletters .... and he had a book on the subject so he could use this as an excuse to promote that .... and he didn't have any other really bright ideas for subject matter (witness the fact that the majority of his several recent newsletters has been the reprinting of articles by other people, plus, of course, his own self-promotional material. (If I sound cynical when it comes to the dear "boc doc" (long history behind that nickname) it is only because I am... long history behind that also, but that would be WAY to far "off topic".)

I think you "hit the nail on the head" as they say, Watchbird....I see the letter as a "marketing" tool for his book...

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 04:13 AM

I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say. Did you notice, there was not one Spirit of Prophecy quote in that letter he wrote? I believe it is because he is not in harmony with the Spirit of Prophecy on his understanding of divorce.

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 04:39 AM

Please compare what the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy say, concerning divorce, to what Bacchiocchi says....he is NOT teaching Scripture...He is perverting Scripture! BEWARE!

The Bible says:

QUOTE

And I say unto you, Whosoever shall put away his wife, except [it be] for fornication, and shall marry another, committeth adultery: and whoso marrieth her which is put away doth commit adultery. Matthew 19:9

But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery. Matthew 5:32

The Spirit of Prophecy says:

QUOTE

God gave only one cause why a wife should leave her husband, or the husband leave his wife, which was adultery. Let this ground be prayerfully considered. {AH 342.2}

-Your ideas in regard to the marriage relation have been erroneous. Nothing but the violation of the marriage bed can either break or annul the marriage vow. We are living in perilous times, when there is no assurance in anything save in firm, unwavering faith in Jesus Christ. There is no heart that may not be estranged from God through the devices of Satan, if one does not watch unto prayer. {AH 341.3}

Bacchiocchi says:

QUOTE

In my book THE MARRIAGE COVENANT I explain at great length that the exceptive clause of Matt 19:9 which admits divorce on the ground of porneia, can be best explained in the light of the Judeo-Christian readership of Matthew. While Mark and Luke write to Gentiles, Matthew write to Judeo-Christians. Jews were tribally related and it was easy for them to marry a close blood relative. Such marriages were condemned by the Mosaic law (Lev 18:6-18) and were called porneia.

> Thus, Jesus allows for divorce only where a marriage should not have taken place in the first place, namely, within the degrees of prohibited relationships. Consequently, in Matthew, Jesus does not envisage any exception to the absolute ban on divorce but only allows for the dissolution of a marriage which was validly contracted according to Greco-Roman laws, but which was in conflict with the Mosaic law of prohibited relationships.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 16 2006, 05:09 AM

Dr B using this partly as an opportunity to promote himself and/or his book? Probably.

Dr B lacking quotes from Ellen in his letter. Yes, So? I didnt miss them...
There sure was no lack of scripture.

EllenW the only true interpreter of scripture? This might become interesting.

Time to get comfortable for the show..

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 06:11 AM

> QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 04:13 AM)
>
> I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say.....

hat has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like ı good used car salesman.....

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 16 2006, 07:03 AM

> QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 07:11 AM)
>
> that has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like a good used car salesman.....

ɛegardless of Dr. B's perceived flaws... one doesn't rebut his arguments by attacking his person.

n His service,
ʌr. J

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 07:09 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Sep 16 2006, 08:03 AM)

Regardless of Dr. B's perceived flaws... one doesn't rebut his arguments by attacking his person.

In His service,
Mr. J

not attempting to rebut this particular one..... now that one on wine...

Posted by: Tammy Sep 16 2006, 07:17 AM

The one on "wine"? What did I miss?

Posted by: Clay Sep 16 2006, 11:51 AM

QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 07:17 AM)

The one on "wine"? What did I miss?

another thread, another time..... don't need to highjack this thread, but if you search the archives you may be able to find the discussion we had on that subject....

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 17 2006, 11:14 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 16 2006, 06:09 AM)

Dr B using this partly as an opportunity to promote himself and/or his book? Probably.

Dr B lacking quotes from Ellen in his letter. Yes, So? I didnt miss them...
There sure was no lack of scripture.

EllenW the only true interpreter of scripture? This might become interesting.

Time to get comfortable for the show..

I'm having "meaty bits".....
"Lesser Spiritual" and all....

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 08:09 AM)

not attempting to rebut this particular one..... now that one on wine...

Get outta me head Clay - I was thinking the exact same thing!

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 17 2006, 04:49 PM

Thank you.

> QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 12:51 PM)
>
> another thread, another time..... don't need to highjack this thread, but if you search the archives you may be able to find the discussion we had on that subject....

Posted by: calvin Sep 17 2006, 05:03 PM

> QUOTE(Tammy @ Sep 16 2006, 05:13 AM)
>
> I agree with Watchbird....this letter was written as a "marketing tool".... I heard Bacchiocchi speak years ago, and it is ALL about "Dr. Bacchiocchi" this and "Dr. Bacchiocchi" that....sorry to be a pessimest...but he is far too "high on himself" for me to put any stock in what he has to say. Did you notice, there was not one Spirit of Prophecy quote in that letter he wrote? I believe it is because he is not in harmony with the Spirit of Prophecy on his understanding of divorce.

Well, at least he gave BSDA it's props! We got a some free marketing out of it. I'm cool with the man.

Posted by: Brennen Sep 17 2006, 07:55 PM

Great Dr. Sam. You are on target. You are certainly correct. Danny had no ground for remarriage and Linda is innocent. Danny should resign and do so very soon. The facts do speak for themselves. Great Dr. Sam, great points. I hope Danny Shelton reads this.

Quote by Dr. Samuel Bacc.:

"The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position."

Posted by: rwelchcrs Sep 17 2006, 09:07 PM

Beartrap, I would like to find Bacchiocchi's Bible study on remarriage as it relates to D Shelton on the Endtime Issues Newsletter website, but I can't find it there. Am I looking in the wrong place? I would like to get this from it's source so I can forward it to friends who respect Bacchiocchi. Can you provide a link directly to the study?

Posted by: sister Sep 17 2006, 09:49 PM

QUOTE(Brennen @ Sep 17 2006, 08:55 PM)

Great Dr. Sam. You are on target. You are certainly correct. Danny had no ground for remarriage and Linda is innocent. Danny should resign and do so very soon. The facts do speak for themselves. Great Dr. Sam, great points. I hope Danny Shelton reads this.

Quote by Dr. Samuel Bacc.:

"The fact is that she is still single and does not intend to remarry, makes it very difficult to believe Danny's allegations. By contrast, Danny has remarried a twice divorced woman who is 20 years younger. The facts speak for themselves. In the light of this situation, the only honorable thing for Danny to do is to resign from his present position as Director of 3ABN and let someone with a clean record serve as the leader of a station committed to preach the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. He can still work at 3ABN but in a less conspicuous position."

Brennen, of course Danny is reading this. He is reading BSDA everyday, watching and waiting, constantly checking which way the wind of Adventist opinion is blowing. How do I know this? I know Danny and one thing you can count on, he is predictable... He has certain established patterns of behavior from which he does not deviate. Once you realize how he plays the game, it is possible to stay a step ahead of him. Taking this into consideration, it would be completely out of character for Danny to do the honorable act of resigning his position at 3ABN. To quote a public statement he made previously, "3ABN is my baby and no one is going to take it away from me!" Is that the attitude of a man who would be willing to let someone with a clean record take his place at the helm of 3ABN? In defining "clean", I would not be suggesting any of the individuals currently in leadership positions at 3ABN. It is time to clean house...

There is one area of which I am in disagreement with Dr. Sam, in the above quote, that is in regard to Danny remaining at 3ABN in a less conspicuous position. First of all, I do not believe that would be possible, a demotion of that magnitude would be beyond what pride would allow. And secondly, Danny's influence would still control the ministry. But that is just my opinion...

Posted by: JustTana Sep 18 2006, 08:44 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 16 2006, 07:11 AM)

that has been my observation also..... he is a good salesman..... or should I say he comes across like a good used car salesman.....

That has always been my perception of the good Dr. Bacchocchi. I have long since stopped paying attention to his self-promotional ramblings. Yes, he is right about Danny not having a right to remarry, and I'll give him that, but there is where I draw the line. His treatise on dress/makeup/jewelry is not to be believed and I refuse to be cowed into obeying what I see as Biblical twisting by the SDA establishment. Should we use the modesty in all things instruction, by all means, but to treat all of these items as sinful - NOT!!

OKAY, I'M CLIMBING DOWN OFF MY SOAPBOX NOW! (GOTTA GET THOSE EMOTICONS WORKING!

JT

Posted by: Clay Sep 18 2006, 11:24 AM

QUOTE(JustTana @ Sep 18 2006, 08:44 AM)

That has always been my perception of the good Dr. Bacchocchi. I have long since stopped paying attention to his self-promotional ramblings. Yes, he is right about Danny not having a right to remarry, and I'll give him that, but there is where I draw the line. His treatise on dress/makeup/jewelry is not to be believed and I refuse to be cowed into obeying what I see as Biblical twisting by the SDA establishment. Should we use the modesty in all things instruction, by all means, but to treat all of these items as sinful - NOT!!

OKAY, I'M CLIMBING DOWN OFF MY SOAPBOX NOW! (GOTTA GET THOSE EMOTICONS WORKING!

JT

agreed.....

Posted by: SoulEspresso Sep 19 2006, 09:58 AM

Anyone who runs an independent ministry has to decide how, and how much, to "self-promote." If you're on Dr. B's Endtime Issues mailing list, you know that every e-mail comes with a lot of advertising for his books and appearances.

Is this wrong? I don't know. The advertising's not something I particularly like , but I stay on the mailing list because I like the content of the essays even if I disagree with him at least 1/2 the time.

As noted by someone else above, a lot of people showed up here in the first place because he included a link to blacksda in his newsletter. I was one of those, and I owe him one for sending me over to y'all.

As for his thoughts ... I might not agree with his reasoning, but he came to the same conclusion many of us did, just in a different way--and his way may be more credible to The Establishment tableta if they look for ways to distance themselves from him.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Oct 14 2006, 02:09 PM

SilentConqueror

welc

EH!

Glad you came to join us here on this forum.

PeacefullyBewildered

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Oct 17 2006, 08:50 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 15 2006, 07:06 AM)

Watchbird. He did get involved in 2004.

I personally think 3ABN made Bacchiocchi offers in 2004 to "neutralized" him.

There were discussions about having Dr. Bacchiocchi do a series on the 28 Fundamental Beliefs - but now I believe that program is going to James Rafferty and Ty Gibson...possibly...

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

170

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Danny And Walt's E-mails To Me--september

Posted by: September Sep 11 2006, 10:19 PM

This was in response to the first e-mail I sent him--right after he married Brandy. I don't have that origional e-mail for some reason...it's not in my e-mail folder anymore.

QUOTE

You people who don't sign their name really amazes me! I assume you call yourself a Christian. Is that true? If so what gives you the right to judge and condemn something you know nothing about. Do you really think you can go by what you read or hear and then condemn people based on your feelings? Honestly, I feel sorry for you.
Do you really think that every marriage counselor, our 3ABN board, and Pastor would all tell Linda that if she didn't stop her relationship with this man that she would lose her position at 3ABN and undoubtedly lose her husband in the process. Do you really think this would have happened without evidence against her? The truth is we didn't want to show her relationship with this man to the world. That's why we didn't go public with it. These people spent dozens and dozens of hours with both Linda and me. None of them agreed with her. They all told her this relationship was sinful.
Also it's been almost 2 yrs since our divorce, not one as you incorrectly stated.
Jesus says in Matt. 7:1 That we should judge not lest we ourselves be judged!
Your emails have 0 affect on people here at 3ABN because all of us close to the situation know the truth. I would like to humbly suggest you look at Matt. 18 and see if you followed all the steps before you started condemning and making judgements.
Danny

Danny Shelton
danshelton@earthlink.net
Why Wait? Move to EarthLink.

There are several from WT that I'll post in the morning. My computer is acting strange--I pushed a wrong button and deleted a whole section of another e-mail GRRRRRRRR!!!! So, I'm going to start fresh tomorrow...

Posted by: September Sep 12 2006, 06:43 AM

Okay, my computer is behaving now...let's see what I can do.

This is my response to the above letter from Danny:

QUOTE

Danny,

My name was on the e-mail I sent--it was in the form that I filled in. I figured that putting it in again would be redundant.

I apologize for saying that it was one year, rather than two. That was clearly a mistake on my part and I ask your forgiveness. It hardly seems like 2 years have passed since time seems to fly by.

Danny, I watched your announcement on 3ABN when this whole thing broke out. The way you said what you said led all of us to believe that Linda had an affair. At camp meeting that year I felt that you slandered Linda. Perhaps I was wrong, but getting up and having a public voice as you did, while not allowing Linda to have one was unfair. Also, every now and then you will make mention of the difficult year you had. You've always had a venue to speak or hint about your side and yet Linda has had none--other than her own website.

I have frequented her website and I have written to her personally. She has never once slandered you or 3ABN. She remains in full support of the ministry she helped start.

When I compare the behavior (for lack of a better word) of you both, I am reminded that 'by their fruits you will know them'. Linda has never had a bad thing to say about you but you have had plenty to say about her. She has written what she could about the details on her site, including a scanned copy of the form she had to sign to basically keep her mouth shut about the incident so as not to make 3ABN look bad.

In light of these things, can you honestly understand why and how I could take offense at the situations going on and wonder about whose story is actually the truth?

If you honestly felt that your marriage was honorable and justifiable then why didn't you do it on live TV? Or why hasn't it been announced on 3ABN? I would think that a happy newlywedded man would be proud to show off his new bride and family! Why hide and have a marriage in relative secrecy?

Danny I am a Christian, but am not a SDA. Any chance of me converting over is basically zero to none. I am not saying that what happened with you and Linda have anything to do with that, but I will say that I feel disillusioned because I've seen SO often where folks on 3ABN claim that the SDA church is the truth and yet they don't live the truth in many of the colleges, churches, and yes even on 3ABN. I believe that you didn't have Biblical grounds to re-marry. By your own admission you said that Linda committed Spiritual adultery--that's not exactly the same as S*xual adultery. For if that were the case than every time you lusted after a women in your heart you would have given Linda grounds for divorce.

You are right when you say that I don't have all the details...thank God I don't But my e-mail to you as well as this one here are based upon the facts that have been presented to me. Please try to understand that yes, I may be completely mistaken, but I am reacting to what has been said, reported, written about, etc.,

Thank you for writing me back

\fter this, Walt Thompson began to write me:

QUOTE

I have volunteered to respond to Danny's mail regarding this issue, so your e mail was referred on to me to respond to.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. (In fact I have plead with him to do the same.) I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has

My name was on the e-mail I sent--it was in the form that I filled in. I figured that putting it in again would be redundant.

I apologize for saying that it was one year, rather than two. That was clearly a mistake on my part and I ask your forgiveness. It hardly seems like 2 years have passed since time seems to fly by.

Danny, I watched your announcement on 3ABN when this whole thing broke out. The way you said what you said led all of us to believe that Linda had an affair. At camp meeting that year I felt that you slandered Linda. Perhaps I was wrong, but getting up and having a public voice as you did, while not allowing Linda to have one was unfair. Also, every now and then you will make mention of the difficult year you had. You've always had a venue to speak or hint about your side and yet Linda has had none--other than her own website.

I have frequented her website and I have written to her personally. She has never once slandered you or 3ABN. She remains in full support of the ministry she helped start.

When I compare the behavior (for lack of a better word) of you both, I am reminded that 'by their fruits you will know them'. Linda has never had a bad thing to say about you but you have had plenty to say about her. She has written what she could about the details on her site, including a scanned copy of the form she had to sign to basically keep her mouth shut about the incident so as not to make 3ABN look bad.

In light of these things, can you honestly understand why and how I could take offense at the situations going on and wonder about whose story is actually the truth?

If you honestly felt that your marriage was honorable and justifiable then why didn't you do it on live TV? Or why hasn't it been announced on 3ABN? I would think that a happy newlywedded man would be proud to show off his new bride and family! Why hide and have a marriage in relative secrecy?

Danny I am a Christian, but am not a SDA. Any chance of me converting over is basically zero to none. I am not saying that what happened with you and Linda have anything to do with that, but I will say that I feel disillusioned because I've seen SO often where folks on 3ABN claim that the SDA church is the truth and yet they don't live the truth in many of the colleges, churches, and yes even on 3ABN. I believe that you didn't have Biblical grounds to re-marry. By your own admission you said that Linda committed Spiritual adultery--that's not exactly the same as S*xual adultery. For if that were the case than every time you lusted after a women in your heart you would have given Linda grounds for divorce.

You are right when you say that I don't have all the details...thank God I don't But my e-mail to you as well as this one here are based upon the facts that have been presented to me. Please try to understand that yes, I may be completely mistaken, but I am reacting to what has been said, reported, written about, etc.,

Thank you for writing me back

\fter this, Walt Thompson began to write me:

QUOTE

I have volunteered to respond to Danny's mail regarding this issue, so your e mail was referred on to me to respond to.

As chairman of the board I have been in the midst of this long and drawn out ordeal from the beginning. I was there when we counseled with Linda over and over again. I was present during the pleas and prayers, seeking to get her to give up her relationship with the doctor. (In fact I have plead with him to do the same.) I have seen and heard the evidence upon which the board has

Dear XX

We all love Linda. That does not make right what she has done. Yes, there are many things that she has not told. I cannot judge Linda's heart, and like you, I want to believe it is pure.

It is true, Linda was very concerned about her son Nathan. He was the vehicle through which the Dr. reached Linda. Our evidence leaves no question that this became much more than a doctor-patient relationship. We know that the long hours on the phone together were not about Nathan and have hard evidence to support this knowledge.

XX, the war between good and evil is not a make believe war! It is a war for keeps, and Satan is not going to bow out without a fight. There is no ministry in the world that is more in his gun-site right now than 3ABN. It has taken a number of hits, but God has blessed in spite of them. The church too is under attack. Satan has his agents planted throughout its ranks. Only in the better world will we know who is who. But one thing is certain, it is not our job to judge one another now. Make decisions based upon evidence and prayerfully moving foreword in faith, yes, but condemning others we cannot do. We cannot read another's heart. And we are all in the growing mode ourselves.

I appreciate your kind letter of understanding. God will bless you for it. In it's time, truth will reveal itself as it always does.

Feel free to write any time.

Sincerely in Jesus' name,

Walter Thompson
Walter Thompson MD

Mr. Thompson,

One more question and then I'll let this go I'm wondering about why Danny's marriage has not been announced on either 3ABN or the website as of yet? To me, if I knew I had Biblical grounds and knew that what I did was honorable I would not want to hide the fact that I got married again and moved on with my life, know what I mean?

QUOTE

Dear XX,

Your question about announcing his marriage has been a difficult one for us to deal with. We have felt that it is not an issue to be raised on international television. Perhaps the web site would be acceptable - an idea that I had not thought of until you mentioned it just now. I have written a letter announcing it that we considered sending to our mailing list, but that has not yet been done. I am sure Danny is reluctant to confront the public with it. He has been advised by some not to go public with it, advice I think he respects.

Danny knows he is innocent, but many who also know it have worried about the public reaction and have let him know they thought he was moving to fast. I am sure this has also affected him. On the other hand, the past two years have been hard on him, and though he has held up miraculously well, he was very lonely. Danny is a people person.

Thanks for your suggestion. I will check that out.

Walter Thompson

Walter Thompson MD

Posted by: September Sep 12 2006, 06:58 AM

Here's another e-mail I sent to Danny and his replies follow. I chose to be annon. to him on these because I know some employees of 3ABN--one who is a former employee and another married couple who I've known for years who possibly still work there...perhaps I was wrong in being annon. but that's what I did.

QUOTE

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: danshelton@earthlink.net
Sent: 6/6/2006 8:39:33 AM Subject:

Hello,

As Sky Angel subscribers and former 3ABN viewers please allow me to speak frankly to you, Mr. Shelton. I believe that God's blessing is being withdrawn from 3ABN because of your actions with regard to your wife Linda and your recent marriage--whereby you had no grounds--although you believe you do. 3ABN is no longer on Sky Angel--one of the biggest venues that 3ABN has. Also, parts of India can no longer view your station.

I know personally some of the people who have worked for you and I sincerely believe that it is in the best interest of the furtherance of the ministry of 3ABN that you step down from your position there. No matter how much you think you can justify your actions--with back up of the board and yes even the conference of SDA's, that does not hold a candle to the truth that God knows about the situation.

It's time for you to step down--if the ministry is God's as you are always saying, then trust Him with it. He's bigger than you and can take over! You've often stated on your programs that 3ABN belongs to us the viewers and donors. If that truly is the case, then we the viewers/donors are requesting that you step down.

In light of the fact that I am personally acquainted with a few former employees at 3ABN I am going to remain anonymous.

Sincerely in Christ.

His reply:

QUOTE

Usually I don't respond to those that don't have the courage to sign their names. First of all you know nothing about what really happened between Linda and me. I doubt you even know either one of us.
Secondly God does not condone you becoming judge, jury and executioner based on rumors from ex employees or anyone else. Gossip and rumors are serious business in God's sight.

Thirdly, since Linda has left our audience has more than doubled! What took us nineteen years to accomplish as far a our audience is concerned doubled after we made the hard, but right choice not to allow Linda on the air anymore because of her refusal to drop this other man.
Sky Angel is one of the smallest outlets we have as far as reaching people is concerned. Lots of SDA's bought the system, but it represents a very small percentage of total viewers. We are broadcasting to a potential viewing audience of a few hundred million people. Sky Angel represents less than 1% of that.
As far as India goes, new channels are putting us on all the time while some take us off. That's India. When Linda was here we were reaching basically no one in India. Now our potential is millions.
I would suggest that you go back to God and ask His forgiveness for trying to take His job.
My heart aches for those who claim to be Christians, but don't have a clue as to how Satan is leading them around by the noses in any direction he wants.
You may also want to consider what you are doing to spread the gospel, not rumors, to a lost and dying world. Every day, yes, even since Linda is gone, people write, email, or call 3ABN and give their conversion stories about coming to Jesus and the SDA church because of watching 3ABN!
Do people say that about your ministry? I'm not being proud as we give God the credit, but unless you are doing something better I don't understand why you think have the right to condemn those who are doing something big or God.

QUOTE

----- Original Message -----
From:
To: danshelton@earthlink.net
Sent: 6/6/2006 4:40:27 PM
Subject: RE:

Danny Shelton <danshelton@earthlink.net> wrote: Danny writes
Danny writes: My heart aches for those who claim to be Christians, but don't have a clue as to how Satan is leading them around by the noses in any direction he wants.

Satan is not leading me--I'm shocked that you would imply that. I feel for the lost and dying world who needs Jesus and I do all I can on a daily basis to reach others for Christ--not for the church. Linda was all about the heart--the heart of Jesus. All she ever did was encourage others in their walk with the Lord. You stopped her from speaking her side of things by the gag order that you made her sign--and yet you speak out against her all the time! You say that 3ABN has grown more since she's been gone. Well, that's for you to say as I don't have access to those reports. All I know is that in the major SDA area where I live the many folks I have spoken to would beg to differ with that greatly.

Would you like to know how I spread the gospel? I counsel people almost on a daily basis to get in touch with the heart of Jesus--no SDA doctrine involved, just simple truth that reaches the heart. I'm not interested in bringing people to the SDA church, but rather to Jesus Christ--the mender of broken hearts.

Danny, whether you realize it or not, you do have pride. I'm not trying to judge you here--but am responding to your e-mail to me. I believe that 3ABN was started by the Lord and it has reached untold millions of people. Praise God for that! But, couldn't there be a time when God might withdraw His blessing because the leadership is in error? You don't believe in your heart that you are in the wrong--and I accept that. But that doesn't make you right either.

Please re-read the e-mail you sent me Danny. It's defensive and vindictive. Have I touched a nerve or spoken a truth here? You write from a very angry heart. It was not my intention to make you angry at all. We all make mistakes--we've all sinned. I'm no better than you and you're no better than me. But I honestly pray that if or when God does withdraw his presence from 3ABN that you will have already seen the need to step away and do the Lord's work with a truly humble heart.

You said that I want to take God's job away. Wow. I'm not trying to take GOD'S job away--because Danny you aren't God. I believe God will lead 3ABN to even greater heights--I was just asking you to allow Him to do that.

Your e-mail to me causes me not to believe in your cause even more so now. I know you don't care who or what I believe, so that's neither here nor there. God does know the truth and the truth always--always has a way of being made known. The truth will set you free too Danny--even if it's a struggle getting to that point.

God bless.

Danny wrote back:

QUOTE

The main reason I don't respect what you say is that I don't even know who you are. You won't even give your name.
The truth remains. You have made judgement calls about me and 3ABN that you have no way of knowing. You have been drawn in by rumors and distorted truths.
Yes, it's frustrating that so many Christians think they have a right to gossip regardless that the bible says gossiping is a sin.
It's also interesting that you feel you can write such judgement calls and say what you want without any real knowledge of the truth, but are yourself, so easily offended because what I wrote to was biblical about not judging and gossiping.
Anyway if you want to dialogue anymore then please provide your name or otherwise you can understand that I will just delete whatever comes from you.
Thanks, and God Bless!
Danny
ps. As far as the so called gag order, that was Lindas way to get nearly $250,000. She wanted this contract and said that she promised not to tell anyone that 3ABN did anything wrong in letting me go. She knew the truth, but threatened to sue us anyway and told us the bad publicity would destroy 3ABN. Garwin McNeilus a wealthy SDA said he would put up the money so it wouldn't come from any donor money.
As you can see from the agreement. Linda broke it by putting it on the internet. We still pay her $6,000 a month even though she has broken the contract many times. The decision was hers, drop this man or lose her ministry and marriage. She refused.
She tells everyone who will listen how wrong she has been treated. I have proof of what I say and my pastor and also my conference president and others and seen the evidence all agree 3ABN and myself had no other choice but to make the decision we did.

Well, there you have it... I hope these letters help in some way to vindiate Linda. I have written Linda many times to encourage her and let her know of my prayers. I believe that the truth will prevail and am praying for those at 3ABN who are in the midst of all of this--God knows the details--He knows the truth--He has the final word.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 12 2006, 07:34 AM

Well, if Danny thinks Linda actually broke the contract, then why are they still paying her?

Posted by: September Sep 12 2006, 07:38 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Sep 12 2006, 09:34 AM)

Well, if Danny thinks Linda actually broke the contract, then why are they still paying her?

Must be that he's doing that out of the goodness of his heart

NOT!

Seriously, I wondered that same thing...

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 12 2006, 08:40 AM

After reading those emails...I must almost conclude that the very words he uses against Linda and those who are 'concerned' are the very words that could possibly be used to hang himself. He is so free to apply Bible quotes to others...yet somehow neglects to feel they apply to him as well. May God have Mercy on his soul.

Posted by: Clay Sep 12 2006, 08:41 AM interesting indeed.... a little window into the mind of Mr. Shelton.....

Posted by: Denny Sep 12 2006, 08:47 AM

He comes across as very defensive, and still paints Linda in a bad light, even if she did what they accuse her of why talk about her, a woman he supposedly loved with such vitriol? He sounds like kids in a playground saying 'well she hit me first". He believes he has the moral high ground but he is not acting like he is standing on it.

Posted by: Lucyladye Sep 12 2006, 08:57 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 12 2006, 06:47 AM)

He comes across as very defensive, and still paints Linda in a bad light, even if she did what they accuse her of why talk about her, a woman he supposedly loved with such vitriol? He sounds like kids in a playground saying 'well she hit me first". He believes he has the moral high ground but he is not acting like he is standing on it.

One reason to run someone else's character into the ground.. or 'paint them in a bad light' as you say, is to make oneself look better in the eyes of others.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 12 2006, 08:57 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Sep 12 2006, 07:34 AM)

Well, if Danny thinks Linda actually broke the contract, then why are they still paying her?

Surely by now you don't think that what Danny says reflects what he "thinks", do you? Point of fact, 3abn is still paying her. Point of fact, the lawyer who was at that time working for 3abn wrote threatening letters, not only to Linda, but to some of her friends as well, threatening all sorts of things. Danny, of course, followed those with letters saying that it wasn't "him" who was doing the instigation of the threats. But..... since at the same time he was making threats of his own by email, it really wasn't hard to tell that he wasn't telling the truth in the denial type emails..... particularly since the "denial" emails would also carry "warnings" right along with his denials.

QUOTE(September @ Sep 12 2006, 07:38 AM)

Must be that he's doing that out of the goodness of his heart

NOT!

Seriously, I wondered that same thing...

Why wonder. The truth is obvious. Danny doesn't deal in truths.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 12 2006, 09:19 AM

In his first response, Danny asked September to read Matthew 18 and see if she had followed the steps listed there.

Matt.18:15"If your brother sins against you,[b](some manuscripts don't include against you) go and show him his fault, just between the two of you. If he listens to you, you have won your brother over.

So, it appears she certainly was following that very advice!

Johann mentioned in a recent post in another thread that we need to pray that God will intervene to protect the church and 3abn when the truth comes out in a matter of days. Right there in the very chapter that Danny invoked to September is the following promise:

Matt.18:19"Again, I tell you that if two of you on earth agree about anything you ask for, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. 20For where two or three come together in my name, there am I with them."

Dear Heavenly Father,
Please forgive me of anything in my heart or life that would separate me from You.
I ask You, who alone know the innermost hearts of each of us here on earth, to clearly bring the full truth of what is happening at 3abn to light.
I also ask that you keep your church a strong and vibrant witness of Your Character as the truth is revealed, that none would be discouraged.
I ask in Jesus' Name
Amen

Now, If there is one more person on earth who would like to join me in this prayer...

Posted by: cottageK Sep 12 2006, 09:24 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 12 2006, 09:19 AM)

Now, If there is one more person on earth who would like to join me in this prayer...

Amen and Amen!

Posted by: September Sep 12 2006, 09:27 AM

Amen!! Lord, may You have the final word at 3ABN.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 12 2006, 09:48 AM

Danny is getting very frustrated, he isn't even answered carefully. There are several places where he gives information when it was not intended. GM gave the money for the settlement? Is that even ethical? A way for Linda to get $250,000.00? I know he is either real stupid or thinks everyone else is. Nevermind, he is not thinking at all at this point. Linda should still sue him and his cronies!! She doesn't know how to get in t touch with Gloria Allred(sp). she would own 3ABN when she got finished with Danny's sorry tail! Oops sorry.....went there again. Y'all include me in those prayers....

Also, a little side point, One thing that struck me is Danny's discomfort at September remaining annonymous. I hope all those who are here now asking for identites will see why they get immediately tied to Danny with their request.

Amen!!! Amen!!!!

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 12 2006, 07:19 AM)

In his first response, Danny asked September to read Matthew 18 and see if she had followed the steps listed there.

Matt.18:15"If your brother sins against you,[b](some manuscripts don't include against you) go and show him his fault, just between the two of you. If he listens to you, you have won your brother over.

So, it appears she certainly was following that very advice!

Johann mentioned in a recent post in another thread that we need to pray that God will intervene to protect the church and 3abn when the truth comes out in a matter of days. Right there in the very chapter that Danny invoked to September is the following promise:

Matt.18:19"Again, I tell you that if two of you on earth agree about anything you ask for, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. 20For where two or three come together in my name, there am I with them."

Dear Heavenly Father,
Please forgive me of anything in my heart or life that would separate me from You.
I ask You, who alone know the innermost hearts of each of us here on earth, to clearly bring the full truth of what is happening at 3abn to light.
I also ask that you keep your church a strong and vibrant witness of Your Character as the truth is revealed, that none would be discouraged.
I ask in Jesus' Name
Amen

Now, If there is one more person on earth who would like to join me in this prayer...

Posted by: watchbird Sep 12 2006, 10:02 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 12 2006, 09:19 AM)

Johann mentioned in a recent post in another thread that we need to pray that God will intervene to protect the church and 3abn when the truth comes out in a matter of days. Right there in the very chapter that Danny invoked to September is the following promise:

Matt.18:19"Again, I tell you that if two of you on earth agree about anything you ask for, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. 20For where two or three come together in my name, there am I with them."

Dear Heavenly Father,
Please forgive me of anything in my heart or life that would separate me from You.
I ask You, who alone know the innermost hearts of each of us here on earth, to clearly bring the full truth of what is happening at 3abn to light.
I also ask that you keep your church a strong and vibrant witness of Your Character as the truth is revealed, that none would be discouraged.
I ask in Jesus' Name
Amen

Now, If there is one more person on earth who would like to join me in this prayer...

Having been closely associated with many who were working for the purpose of being God's hands as He works to "clearly bring the full truth of what is happening at 3abn to light", I would like to point out that some variation of this prayer has been what we have all lived with constantly. If there are those who have not already been praying in this way, then I join you in inviting them to also pray. But do know that we have worked, and are continuing to work, very conscious of the fact that it is only as God Himself works through us and through other means only available to Him can the task be accomplished.

We have at times been tempted to be discouraged.... the time of waiting for God to do the final acts that only He can do has seemed so long. But as more time has passed we have learned patience, realizing that God was waiting for a reason .... probably for many reasons. But two specifically that have been impressed upon me are 1) that the "full truth" (including finding how many have been actively involved in the complicities) could be discovered, and 2) so that the truth would be given out in small enough "bites" so that it would not overwhelm those who had innocently put their trust in 3abn and the persons appearing there.

As has been mentioned in another thread, and some of us will be increasingly stressing this as time moves along..... there will be some very intense grieving and healing that will need to be done after things are fully revealed. Hopefully, the relationships formed here at BSDA will be very important tools that God will use to accomplish that part of your prayer.

As the motto has been.....

Stay tuned.....

For it really has not "all been said before".

Posted by: Freedom Sep 12 2006, 10:11 AM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Sep 12 2006, 08:02 AM)

Having been closely associated with many who were working for the purpose of being God's hands as He works to "clearly bring the full truth of what is happening at 3abn to light", I would like to point out that some variation of this prayer has been what we have all lived with constantly. If there are those who have not already been praying in this way, then I join you in inviting them to also pray. But do know that we have worked, and are continuing to work, very conscious of the fact that it is only as God Himself works through us and through other means only available to Him can the task be accomplished.

We have at times been tempted to be discouraged.... the time of waiting for God to do the final acts that only He can do has seemed so long. But as more time has passed we have learned patience, realizing that God was waiting for a reason .... probably for many reasons. But two specifically that have been impressed upon me are 1) that the "full truth" (including finding how many have been actively involved in the complicities) could be discovered, and 2) so that the truth would be given out in small enough "bites" so that it would not overwhelm those who had innocently put their trust in 3abn and the persons appearing there.

As has been mentioned in another thread, and some of us will be increasingly stressing this as time moves along..... there will be some very intense grieving and healing that will need to be done after things are fully revealed. Hopefully, the relationships formed here at BSDA will be very important tools that God will use to accomplish that part of your prayer.

As the motto has been.....

Stay tuned.....

For it really has not "all been said before".

Thank you for the encouraging words of HOPE!

As for Danny and Walt's letters to September: BARFFF, BARFF, Barff.

Posted by: justme Sep 12 2006, 02:49 PM

The stories in the Bible tell of manywho thry to God;s will, some at God;s bidding, some by their own choice, some in spite fo their own choice.

But one thing comes through it all. God wants us to learn to reason "from cause to effect".

Sometimes we see the "effects", but we may miss out on the "cause" part. We see the effects of our sins but we don't see how we caused the problems.

"September" I was broken hearted to read the email exchanges you shared with us. It bring back all those years that I was blind to the cause of many of my own problems. Until I was cinverted I could not reason from cause to effect. So, forgive me if all this doesn't make sense, but try is on for size. See if you see what is barely beneath the surface, just beneath the glare of the sunlight reflections.

I have these questions:

Did the same board that told Linda to stop talking with the Doctor also tell Danny to stops spending time alone with other females as he was apt to be doing?

Did the same board offer to help Linda's son, Nathan, get over his addiction? so maybe he wouldn'y NEED this doctor?

Whatever happened to "mending hearts and broken people"? It seems like a perfect place to begin to do thisis at home. WHY would Danny take on a wife and two wonderful children when he married Linda, and then mistreat Linda's daughter, Alyssa, and "ignore" Linda's son, Nathan? A husband who loves his wife as God loves His church will care for his family as God cares for His family. After all, aren't we all pretty much ADOPTED too? Scripture says that a man who does not provide for his family is but an infidel. Not only to provide food for the family, but to provide for all their needs, emotional and spiritual. Danny treated Nathan as a "red-headed-step-child", and Alyssa as a "novelty".

What would one expect to see happen, to a child who was treated as Danny treated Nathan? Would we expect Nathan to grow up in Danny's home as happy well-adjusted man, or would Danny's sneers and grunts make Nathan feel unwelcome and unloved? It is a wonder that Nathan is still among us after what Danny put Nathan through.

And the very BEST that Danny can come up with, as a reaction towards anything to do with Nathan, is to treat Nathan as a dog that happened to tag along with Linda when Danny wanted to marry Linda.

Alyssa was something different! She was something that Danny WANTED to have around. She was a sweet, innocent, and naïve little GIRL!. Who also was treated "special". Danny knows what he wants from girls. He has no clue what to do with boys. Especially if they develop problems from living in Danny's home.

Hypothetically assuming that there was some kind of "closeness" in the relationship between Nathan's doctor and Linda. It stands to reason that she would not want to let go of the only person in the world who reached out to Nathan to help him. After all, at home Nathan only knew rejection and revulsion from his stepfather.

Also hypothetically assuming that 3ABN actually believed in their own creed and "mission", all they would have had to do was to OFFER to provide all the very best doctors and care available to Linda and to Nathan and become "supportive" of them. But, instead, they chose to go the exact opposite direction. They decided to 'threaten" her with the loss of her ministry and the loss of her marriage. Is that what God wanted from 3ABN???

Does missionary work begin at home or not?
Does "mending broken people" begin at home? (Especially the people's hearts you broke at home).

Hypothetically assuming Linda did accept the attentions of another man, what would she be turning her back on at home? It is a known fact that a person is more likely to "steal" than to starve to death. This usually includes the area of love. A person who is starved for love usually will not turn it down when it is offered. SO, who would be to blame? the "starveee" or "starver". Even pet who is starved at home will gladly accept food from a stranger, and the owner may be arrested for abuse.

But the 3ABN-er's all decided to take the route of the most destruction they could do. They presented a plan that was ever so much more destructive than what Danny had already done in his own home. They all voted to give Linda the worst possible ultimatum. I.e. "Give up the best and only hope you will ever have of saving Nathan from total self destruction, (the process begun by Danny at home), and losing your husband, and losing the ministry you gave your life for, OR you may stay here working with all these wonderful people and let your son perish.

Elitist or Arrogance or Self-Righteous, ...? I'm not sure which, but something is coming between repentance and reformation.

"There are none so blind as those who REFUSE to see".

Posted by: icedragon Sep 12 2006, 02:54 PM

i want you to notice that When Danny and Walt are asked the question to give evidence for the Affair over and over again they don't give any evidence. They state the theroy they want people to believe. Linda had and affair, Linda had an affair, Linda had and affair. this is like Chicken little saying the sky is falling the Sky is falling, the Sky is falling. No evidence is given to support the claim just a restatment of the belief. That is propaganda and brainwahing.
Notice also danny asks people to come and ask him to talk to him, but then attacks them when they do stating that they should spend time reflecting the gospel (deflection). He shifts the blame to the person asking the question instead of answering the question. That is Garbage. Danny is Playing a Game. If he wanted to answer the question he would have just said here is my side of the story and the facts to support it.

Posted by: Fran Sep 13 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 12 2006, 09:48 AM)

Danny is getting very frustrated, he isn't even answered carefully. There are several places where he gives information when it was not intended. GM gave the money for the settlement? Is that even ethical? A way for Linda to get $250,000.00? I know he is either real stupid or thinks everyone else is. Nevermind, he is not thinking at all at this point. Linda should still sue him and his cronies!! She doesn't know how to get in t touch with Gloria Allred(sp). she would own 3ABN when she got finished with Danny's sorry tail! Oops sorry.....went there again. Y'all include me in those prayers....

Also, a little side point, One thing that struck me is Danny's discomfort at September remaining annonymous. I hope all those who are here now asking for identites will see why they get immediately tied to Danny with their request.

Amen!!! Amen!!!!

http://adventistreview.org/article.php?id=722

I read this and had questions and Praises.

Has McNielus let Danny go?

Did he remain with Danny, but continues to fund many true mission projects that save many lives Spiritually and Physically by changing their lives?

Has the GC lost a large contributor, but are stepping out in faith?

What ever happened, I am all for it. We all need to step out in Faith and SUPPORT our Global Missions Projects through the local church or send it directly to the GC and mark it for Global Missions.

This is TOTALLY exciting to me! Soon, Jesus will come! The Seventh-day Adventist Church does mission work RIGHT! There is no guessing about potential viewers. They are there in the field and can SEE the numbers responding.

The article says "Funding approved for the projects totaled more than US$1.7 million, pushing the 2006 project funding total to approximately $9.7 million. "

3ABN gets more than that to fund "POTENTIAL" audiences. Yeah, there is a signal, but do they actually have the equipment to view that signal? Who knows! Most viewers are SDA's already.

With Global Missions, the people reached are real and the numbers are high.

Churches across America have just about done away with Mission Spotlight seen for years by members within the churches. Now, Missions have been put on the back burner, so to speak, by congregations, because they have to pay for receiving the tapes and have to mail them fast so the next church can see them. Now all they need is a dish to link to global missions, but churches are frugal and have to save every penny they get.

However, can we brush Global Missions off our radar screen? NEVER!

It really doesn't matter what happened or didn't happen. This is truly a GOD project! Praise the Lord for his watching over a vital part of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. There are things the World Church really does that is wrong, but I honestly feel this is something it does that is RIGHT!

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Sep 13 2006, 07:54 PM

Danny Shelton is a hot mess on toast with a side of what the devil!

JMO

Posted by: Fran Sep 13 2006, 08:46 PM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 13 2006, 08:54 PM)

Danny Shelton is a hot mess on toast with a side of what the devil!

JMO

That HOT MESS has a putrid smell. It travels all over the world. I can smell it all the way over here!

Danny's airwaves are for POTENTIAL VIEWERS. They aren't even a sure thing. Those being saved are saved through other honest to goodness SDA programming, not 3ABN produced programming. 3ABN Today is nothing but talk! People are saved by watching SDA programming, not Danny programming or 3ABN Produced Programming.

Yes, VERY STINKY!

Posted by: no_cults Sep 13 2006, 10:34 PM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 13 2006, 08:46 PM)

That HOT MESS has a putrid smell. It travels all over the world. I can smell it all the way over here!

Danny's airwaves are for POTENTIAL VIEWERS. They aren't even a sure thing. Those being saved are saved through other honest to goodness SDA programming, not 3ABN produced programming. 3ABN Today is nothing but talk! People are saved by watching SDA programming, not Danny programming or 3ABN Produced Programming.

Yes, VERY STINKY!

"Potential" is nothing short of "Blue-Sky".

Does anyone think/believe that the income 3ABN is currently receiving is MORE than it was a couple of years ago? Getting a truthful answer to this would be real interesting. Especially, when it is clear that Danny is doing his best to imply that things are going great and improved now (since Linda).

Does anyone believe that W. Thompson would be sending letters to 3abn contacts defending Danny IF things were going great for 3abn? NO WAY.... if there were no troubles at base camp and the coffers over-flowing, they would simply let "sleeping dogs lie".

Posted by: Fran Sep 13 2006, 11:03 PM

QUOTE(no_cults @ Sep 13 2006, 10:34 PM)

"Potential" is nothing short of "Blue-Sky".

Does anyone think/believe that the income 3ABN is currently receiving is MORE than it was a couple of years ago? Getting a truthful answer to this would be real interesting. Especially, when it is clear that Danny is doing his best to imply that things are going great and improved now (since Linda).

Does anyone believe that W. Thompson would be sending letters to 3abn contacts defending Danny IF things were going great for 3abn? NO WAY.... if there were no troubles at base camp and the coffers over-flowing, they would simply let "sleeping dogs lie".

f it is greater, I would suggest that they now have to declare that missing stuff/Income, which was overlooked in previous years. There was a LOT of money/Missing Assets/Not posted Trusts/Money belonging to other ministries that were posted to 3ABN as income..... On and On it goes!

Sure the income goes up when it is declared! Where is all that money that was missing from previous years? Some 3ABN PEOPLE need IRS audits an search for bank accounts here and abroad! My opinion from documentation I have previously posted.

Posted by: västergötland Sep 14 2006, 01:20 AM

QUOTE(PrincessDrRe @ Sep 14 2006, 03:54 AM)

Danny Shelton is a hot mess on toast with a side of what the devil!

JMO

Does this often refered to hot mess on toast have any connection to http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marmite?

Posted by: Fran Sep 14 2006, 03:22 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 14 2006, 01:20 AM)

Does this often refered to hot mess on toast have any connection to http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marmite?

My brother lives in Australia. Every time they come they beg for that stuff! I'm sorry, it takes an acquired taste to love it! I think I missed out on that part. When they visit home, they bring it with them!

always pass on the offer to "Taste"! I did that once. Never again! rofl

What is your experience with that stuff?

Posted by: västergötland Sep 14 2006, 05:42 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 14 2006, 11:22 AM)

My brother lives in Australia. Every time they come they beg for that stuff! I'm sorry, it takes an aquired taste to love it! I think I missed out on that part. When they visit home, they bring it with them!

I always pass on the offer to "Taste"! I did that once. Never again! rofl

What is your experience with that stuff?

Not much, tried it once, but didnt think much about it.

Posted by: watchbird Sep 14 2006, 06:29 AM

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 14 2006, 01:20 AM)

Does this often refered to hot mess on toast have any connection to http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marmite?

Not at all. Marmite is essentialy a benign salty/bitter vege spread for which, as has been noted, one has to acquire a taste..... but it is still a thinly spread inert harmless substance. The "hot mess on toast" is alive and wiggling and totally repulsive to all who take a very close look .... or smell. I doubt that I should get more graphic than that.

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 14 2006, 06:43 AM

QUOTE(Fran @ Sep 14 2006, 06:22 AM)

My brother lives in Australia. Every time they come they beg for that stuff! I'm sorry, it takes an aquired taste to love it! I think I missed out on that part. When they visit home, they bring it with them!

I always pass on the offer to "Taste"! I did that once. Never again! rofl

What is your experience with that stuff?

Is it the same thing as Vegemite? ok...back to the topic...

Posted by: Chez Sep 14 2006, 09:00 AM

QUOTE(no_cults @ Sep 13 2006, 10:34 PM)

"Potential" is nothing short of "Blue-Sky".

Does anyone think/believe that the income 3ABN is currently receiving is MORE than it was a couple of years ago? Getting a truthful answer to this would be real interesting. Especially, when it is clear that Danny is doing his best to imply that things are going great and improved now (since Linda).

Does anyone believe that W. Thompson would be sending letters to 3abn contacts defending Danny IF things were going great for 3abn? NO WAY.... if there were no troubles at base camp and the coffers over-flowing, they would simply let "sleeping dogs lie".

f they are in greater financial shape or receiving more income that 2 years ago, why do they appear o be begging for money? Going to Direct TV and other venues seem to be about a marketing scheme o acquire more money. They are in trouble and they know it!

Posted by: icedragon Sep 14 2006, 10:44 AM

QUOTE(icedragon @ Sep 12 2006, 03:54 PM)

i want you to notice that When Danny and Walt are asked the question to give evidence for the Affair over and over again they don't give any evidence. They state the theroy they want people to believe. Linda had and affair, Linda had an affair, Linda had and affair. this is like Chicken little saying the sky is falling the Sky is falling, the Sky is falling. No evidence is given to support the claim just a restatment of the belief. That is propaganda and brainwahing.
Notice also danny asks people to come and ask him to talk to him, but then attacks them when they do stating that they should spend time reflecting the gospel (deflection). He shifts the blame to the person asking the question instead of answering the question. That is Garbage. Danny is Playing a Game. If he wanted to answer the question he would have just said here is my side of the story and the facts to support it.

am answering my own post to say that Danny and Walt are beginning to open up. see 'New nformation from Walter Thompson." this is what we need.

Powered by Invision Power Board (http://www.invisionboard.com)
© Invision Power Services (http://www.invisionpower.com)

Printable Version of Topic

171

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ A Viewer's Version

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 1 2006, 07:29 AM

Hi All,
I'm the friend of Uncle Sam's who thinks there is another scenario to this saga. As an avid viewer of 3ABN and not an insider, I will tell you the story from my perspective.

A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.

Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped. He was always giving her foot massages, picking the seeds out of her water melons and was doing what ever else she asked him to do. She would even go so far as to say that she would cook for the dog, but not for him sometimes and that he would get food from the pot, only to find out later that she had made it for the dog. But the both laughed at it good naturedly and my attitude was that if it was alright with them, it was alright with me.

Shortly after the music studio came into being, the whole atmosphere changed on the set. First, a lot on Non-Adventists began to make appearances. Then Linda started making comments about the furs she was receiving and she started packing on the make-up hard and heavy, especially after the music videos started doing so well. She had always had to wear some since she was on TV, but now it appeared as if she were trying to appear 20 years younger. She use to appear on some of the "on location" sites without her make-up, but she began to openly show anger when Danny let a clip be shown of her without any make-up on. You could see the animosity building, but it was all coming from her side. The fire was in her eyes and he looked as goofy as before. He was still giving the same "thoughtless" comments, but now she wasn't brushing them off. Now they were making her mad. And I can also tell you when that started. One day, it was their last anniversary program; Danny was talking again about how everything got started. And he made one comment that I knew was going to get him in trouble as soon as he said it. He was talking about how the Lord had told him to get the ministry started, and he was talking about how he and Linda were going around singing. He made the comment that, and I'm paraphrasing, 'God told him that he need to go ahead and marry Linda and get it out of the way because He had a lot of work for him to do.' Linda was taken completely off guard and said, "What did you say?" and poor simple Danny didn't have the good since not to repeat himself and said it again. The fire that started in Linda's eyes that day never truly left. You could see it simmering beneath the surface. Her pride was hurt and she couldn't let it go. Even though I don't know Danny, I know people and I can guess that he just brushed it off and didn't make any more of it than he did of the other embarrassing comments he often made. But this time it was different.
Linda had someone who she could talk to about her problems who would lend a sympatric ear, and the rest is history.

And why do I believe Linda is not as innocent as she proclaims? The words came from her own web site. She said she went to Europe with a friend and when they came back the "friend betrayed her". You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told. Maybe it was just a poor choice of words on her part.

And as to why I believe Danny is still stuck on Linda and is going to make Brandie's life miserable also started with Linda's web site. The only reason someone would write a na-na-na-na-na letter, would be to avenge a hurt. Now here is my scenario as to what happened.

Linda went to Europe with Brenda and Brenda saw something she didn't like. She came home and told Danny and at first he didn't believe her, but as time when on he became more and more suspicious. He tapped the phones and hired private detectives (per Linda's web site) and heard something that took him over the edge. The love he had for her turned to a deep hurt, and he was not about to take that kind of rejection, supposed or real, without fighting back. And that meant finding a replacement. Someone who came to him to start a music career, with 2 small children, a singer, songwriter, newly converted to Adventism, and Brandy fit the bill. He just had to write Linda and tell her about it.

Now as far as who did what and who is guilty of what, only God and those actually involved know. So I will leave if for the judgment when all the secrets of man/woman shall come to light.

So do I think Linda or Danny are evil because of what happened? No. I think their hearts got lifted up because of the praises of the people and when the crisis came, neither would do what was needed to fix the situation. I believe Linda was emotionally set-up by the doctor but would not admit it and Danny was too proud and arrogant to forgive and play the man. Instead he played the fool!

But, that's my version and I'm sticking to it.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 1 2006, 07:40 AM

rofl thank you for making me laugh this morning....this really brought a much needed smile to my face. I like your style!

> QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 07:29 AM)
>
> Hi All,
> I'm the friend of Uncle Sam's who thinks there is another scenario to this saga. As an avid viewer of 3ABN and not an insider, I will tell you the story from my perspective.
>
> A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.
>
> Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped. He was always giving her foot massages, picking the seeds out of her water melons and was doing what ever else she asked him to do. She would even go so far as to say that she would cook for the dog, but not for him sometimes and that he would get food from the pot, only to find out later that she had made it for the dog. But the both laughed at it good naturedly and my attitude was that if it was alright with them, it was alright with me.
>
> snip.....

Posted by: calvin Sep 1 2006, 07:54 AM

Welcome to BSDA. For me, someone who is not an insider and does not know either one of them, your version of what happened is just as creditable as all the rest of stories floating around here.

Posted by: lurker Sep 1 2006, 07:55 AM

Would make a good soap opera but no, that's not what happened. There are a lot of facts that you don't know that would keep that from being a possibility.

Posted by: Jvat Sep 1 2006, 08:00 AM

Just one point. You say that because Linda indicated that a friend had betrayed her that meant that she had done something wrong that she did not want exposed.

Is that really so?

Think again! Jesus was betrayed by Judas. Did Jesus do anything wrong??????

Posted by: Clay Sep 1 2006, 08:25 AM country bumpkin? must be related to Danny..... this story would have us believe that Danny is clueless and Linda was mad because she was getting old and Danny was making insensitive remarks about their relationship..... alrighty then... I may be tired but I am not gulliable.....

Posted by: Observer Sep 1 2006, 08:43 AM

Bumpkin, you said: "You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told."

Betrayal often comes in the telling of a falsehood, that is probably more common than in telling the truth.

Bumpkin, your missive is simply speculation, with neither knowledge nor reason.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 1 2006, 08:56 AM

.....and I have five bridges to sell you. One of them is very famous! I don't know if you have or not, but in your spare time, you might want to read some of the "insider" accounts. Danny is counting very heavily on your "outsider" account. He and his people have worked so very hard on it. I am sure, along with Simplysaved, you have also brought a smile to his face.

Just let me reiterate for you since you are new, and have not read t he many posts on the subject. It really doesn't make me any difference if Linda did it or not. The problem I have is how Danny and the 3ABN board handled the whole situation. It was not even civil let alone an example of chritian living, of which 3ABN claims to be. Danny came here and lied directly to the members here, not once, but twice. So basically I am holding him responsible for his own actions, not Linda's.
As for the rest, Yeah, I think I gotta take the word of insiders, than that of an admitted outsider. Your account only proves to me that you bought the spin. I don't mean that in a mean or spiteful way, just as it is.

BTW, Welcome to BSDA!!! We really are glad you are here. Hope you take the time to enjoy the rest of the benefits of our site!

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 06:29 AM)

Hi All,
I'm the friend of Uncle Sam's who thinks there is another scenario to this saga. As an avid viewer of 3ABN and not an insider, I will tell you the story from my perspective.

A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.

Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped. He was always giving her foot massages, picking the seeds out of her water melons and was doing what ever else she asked him to do. She would even go so far as to say that she would cook for the dog, but not for him sometimes and that he would get food from the pot, only to find out later that she had made it for the dog. But the both laughed at it good naturedly and my attitude was that if it was alright with them, it was alright with me.

Shortly after the music studio came into being, the whole atmosphere changed on the set. First, a lot on Non-Adventists began to make appearances. Then Linda started making comments about the furs she was receiving and she started packing on the make-up hard and heavy, especially after the music videos started doing so well. She had always had to wear some since she was on TV, but now it appeared as if she were trying to appear 20 years younger. She use to appear on some of the "on location" sites without her make-up, but she began to openly show anger when Danny let a clip be shown of her without any make-up on. You could see the animosity building, but it was all coming from her side. The fire was in her eyes and he looked as goofy as before. He was still giving the same "thoughtless" comments, but now she wasn't brushing them off. Now they were making her mad. And I can also tell you when that started. One day, it was their last anniversary program; Danny was talking again about how everything got started. And he made one comment that I knew was going to get him in trouble as soon as he said it. He was talking about how the Lord had told him to get the ministry started, and he was talking about how he and Linda were going around singing. He made the comment that, and I'm paraphrasing, 'God told him that he need to go ahead and marry Linda and get it out of the way because He had a lot of work for him to do.' Linda was taken completely off guard and said, "What did you say?" and poor simple Danny didn't have the good since not to repeat himself and said it again. The fire that started in Linda's eyes that day never truly left. You could see it simmering beneath the surface. Her pride was hurt and she couldn't let it go. Even though I don't know Danny, I know people and I can guess that he just brushed it off and didn't make any more of it than he did of the other embarrassing comments he often made. But this time it was different.
Linda had someone who she could talk to about her problems who would lend a sympatric ear, and the rest is history.

And why do I believe Linda is not as innocent as she proclaims? The words came from her own web site. She said she went to Europe with a friend and when they came back the "friend betrayed her". You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told. Maybe it was just a poor choice of words on her part.

And as to why I believe Danny is still stuck on Linda and is going to make Brandie's life miserable also started with Linda's web site. The only reason someone would write a na-na-na-na-na letter, would be to avenge a hurt. Now here is my scenario as to what happened.

Linda went to Europe with Brenda and Brenda saw something she didn't like. She came home and told Danny and at first he didn't believe her, but as time when on he became more and more suspicious. He tapped the phones and hired private detectives (per Linda's web site) and heard something that took him over the edge. The love he had for her turned to a deep hurt, and he was not about to take that kind of rejection, supposed or real, without fighting back. And that meant finding a replacement. Someone who came to him to start a music career, with 2 small children, a singer, songwriter, newly converted to Adventism, and Brandy fit the bill. He just had to write Linda and tell her about it.

Now as far as who did what and who is guilty of what, only God and those actually involved know. So I will leave if for the judgment when all the secrets of man/woman shall come to light.

So do I think Linda or Danny are evil because of what happened? No. I think their hearts got lifted up because of the praises of the people and when the crisis came, neither would do what was needed to fix the situation. I believe Linda was emotionally set-up by the doctor but would not admit it and Danny was too proud and arrogant to forgive and play the man. Instead he played the fool!

But, that's my version and I'm sticking to it.

Posted by: Denny Sep 1 2006, 08:59 AM

These are The Days of our Lives.....

Posted by: Expression Sep 1 2006, 09:10 AM

QUOTE(Jvat @ Sep 1 2006, 10:00 AM)

Just one point. You say that because Linda indicated that a friend had betrayed her that meant that she had done something wrong that she did not want exposed.

Is that really so?

Think again! Jesus was betrayed by Judas. Did Jesus do anything wrong??????

Vell stated.

'o betray is to break someone's trust in you. That does not exclude breaking the trust of someone by ıccusing them of something they never did.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 1 2006, 09:21 AM

WELL!!!

I must say the animosity that exudes from you all is such that I think I will take my humble little self off this site and leave you to your hate. WOW!!! I just don't have the words to express the shock!!! I couldn't even read most of them before I felt my pressure rise. Personal attacks for a difference of opinion. I hope and pray I don't personally know any of you.

BYE!!!

Posted by: lurker Sep 1 2006, 09:29 AM

Is someone a little paranoid?

Posted by: Denny Sep 1 2006, 09:32 AM

Sorry you see a difference of opinion as animosity and personal attack, if you can feel free to stay and debate why you think your point of veiw is valid

---

Posted by: Clay Sep 1 2006, 09:33 AM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 10:21 AM)

WELL!!!

I must say the animosity that exudes from you all is such that I think I will take my humble little self off this site and leave you to your hate. WOW!!! I just don't have the words to express the shock!!! I couldn't even read most of them before I felt my pressure rise. Personal attacks for a difference of opinion. I hope and pray I don't personally know any of you.

BYE!!!

have a nice life..... thanks for sharing your ummmm view of things.... and no I am not sorry that some were skeptical.... as for the other.... you have not seen hate.... if your story can't stand a little closer examination, perhaps you might keep it to yourself.....

Posted by: västergötland Sep 1 2006, 09:55 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 1 2006, 04:25 PM)

this story would have us believe that Danny is clueless and Linda was mad because she was getting old and Danny was making insensitive remarks about their relationship

Is this really a new idea to these discussions? Think I read something simmilar on the 'pentecostal infiltration of 3abn' threads, ie Danny the pawn...

Posted by: princessdi Sep 1 2006, 10:02 AM

You are right, Thomas. To those like country Bumpkin, "outsiders" Danny plays the victim. it is not new. As I said before Country Bumpkins analysis only proves that the spin is working.....on some.

QUOTE(västergötland @ Sep 1 2006, 07:55 AM)

Is this really a new idea to these discussions? Think I read something simmilar on the 'pentecostal infiltration of 3abn' threads, ie Danny the pawn...

Posted by: Ralph Sep 1 2006, 10:06 AM

hmmmm, I wonder who will give him his next pay chequue.

Just to make sure that he was describing himself correctly, I checked the dictionary.

bumpkin -- not very intelligent or interested in culture

Posted by: Expression Sep 1 2006, 10:40 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 1 2006, 12:02 PM)

[color=#993399]To those like country Bumpkin, "outsiders" Danny plays the victim. it is not new.color]

Danny has played and continues to play the "victim." For those who understand abuse this is one of the clearest evidences that accounts such as Barbara's are accurate. Something we've all seen is the "victim" role that Danny has played on the set, at campmeeting, etc. Many have bought this side of the story, but for someone who has dealt with those who are abusive and controlling the signs are all too clear.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 1 2006, 11:06 AM

Now, now, Ralph. We must realize that it really is difficult to think that someone who says they represent God to do such reprehensible things. Also, within Adventism, and chrtianity as a whole, we are more likely to believe the worse about the woman than we are the man if he is a leader. I have seen it many times. I have seen it where the pastors has physically abused his wife for years, the conference try to get her to stay,a nd them destroy her in anyway possible when she leaves, just to "save' his career. Danny only used a tired and true formula. He made Linda the villan. Nobody even ever hear do spritual adultery as he used it, but you see how far it has gotten him. He has a whole staff of SDA pastors compromising themselves, as well as GC, because they believe that 3ABN is getting the message out there. It would be such a simple thing for them to take that money and programming and switch to their own HopeTV, but they don't. Not even censure for Danny, no disciplinary action at all by the church he attends, why? Ok, I think you get the picture.

If all of these people who are our leaders are going along like Danny did the right thing, then what else is an outsider to believe. We look to our pastors and GC in situations like this for the right thing to do, to hold up God's standard, in such difficult times. If they are running around congratulatin' the new wife, and calling Danny the annointed and appointed, what is the rank and file supposed to believe? We really can't blame Country Bumpkin and others like him/her, it is a carefully developed master plan that has worked many times over.

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 1 2006, 08:06 AM)

hmmmm, I wonder who will give him his next pay chequue.

Just to make sure that he was describing himself correctly, I checked the dictionary.

bumpkin -- not very intelligent or interested in culture

Posted by: caribbean sda Sep 1 2006, 11:18 AM

QUOTE(Denny @ Sep 1 2006, 11:59 AM)

These are The Days of our Lives.....

.."and so it goes..." ahh...life in Thompsonville, don't ya just love it?

Posted by: inga Sep 1 2006, 12:56 PM

Country Bumpkin, welcome to BlackSDA. welc

I actually appreciated your post with portrayal of how you see the matter. While I don't altogether agree with you, some of your points doubtless have merit. It is unrealistic to view Linda as a totally innocent saint and Danny as the evil one. What has happened, I believe, is that due to the public defamation of Linda -- which was quite wrong -- many have taken Linda's innocense in regard to the accusations one step further and have deemed her innocent of all wrong.

Most folks here just disagree with you and their way of expressing disagreement does sound rather personal, and I'm sure they wouldn't do it if they were to meet you in person. Please try to overlook the personal remarks.

Please feel free to browse this forum further. There are actual testimonies of fact from folks who were actually there that may make you change your opinion on some matters, even if you don't begin to see Linda as a saint, which I rather doubt she is.

Stardom is not good for anyone's Christian experience, and I doubt that Linda is any exception. Her two years of feeling rejection have caused her to reexamine many things, I'm sure. And I believe they have drawn her closer to God. Whether this closeness will survive another stint of stardom only God knows.

Ellen White tells an interesting story of a woman who was very poor and struggling financially. She was very close to God but wanted to be able to make more money so she could support the cause of God. I believe it was through her hat-making business that she eventually became quite wealthy -- and she drifted away from God.

Many who can stand the test of poverty and/or rejection cannot stand the test of wealth and/or fame.

May God bless Linda with just what she needs to be of service to Him -- no more and no less.

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 10:21 AM)

WELL!!!

I must say the animosity that exudes from you all is such that I think I will take my humble little self off this site and leave you to your hate. WOW!!! I just don't have the words to express the shock!!! I couldn't even read most of them before I felt my pressure rise. Personal attacks for a difference of opinion. I hope and pray I don't personally know any of you.

BYE!!!

Posted by: inga Sep 1 2006, 01:09 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 1 2006, 12:06 PM)

Not even censure for Danny, no disciplinary action at all by the church he attends, why? Ok, I think you get the picture.

Only the local church can "censure" a member. Not the conferec, the union or the General Conference can do that. And we know that Danny has the local church literally "in his pocket" because he pays the pastor and the members of the congregation So it's no wonder that Danny has not been dealt with faithfully.

I do wonder -- who is there to minister to Danny? He is virtually without any pastoral guidance.

QUOTE

If all of these people who are our leaders are going along like Danny did the right thing, then what else is an outsider to believe. We look to our pastors and GC in situations like this for the right thing to do, to hold up God's standard/

Indeed, and it would be wiser to welcome someone warmly and gently question, rather than to reject the testimony outright.

To be fair to "Country Bumpkin," he relates things he professes to have seen on the program. We can't argue with that --unless this person is not who he professes to be, a friend of "Uncle Sam." Perhaps "Uncle Sam" can vouch for him as being a real viewer of the program, rather than a deliberate 3ABN plant (which is how he has been treated). I think we should give him the benefit of the doubt -- especially since he posted reasonably, rather than with both guns blazing, as a couple of others have posted.

Posted by: icedragon Sep 1 2006, 01:34 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 08:29 AM)

Hi All,
I'm the friend of Uncle Sam's who thinks there is another scenario to this saga. As an avid viewer of 3ABN and not an insider, I will tell you the story from my perspective.

A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.

Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped. He was always giving her foot massages, picking the seeds out of her water melons and was doing what ever else she asked him to do. She would even go so far as to say that she would cook for the dog, but not for him sometimes and that he would get food from the pot, only to find out later that she had made it for the dog. But the both laughed at it good naturedly and my attitude was that if it was alright with them, it was alright with me.

Shortly after the music studio came into being, the whole atmosphere changed on the set. First, a lot on Non-Adventists began to make appearances. Then Linda started making comments about the furs she was receiving and she started packing on the make-up hard and heavy, especially after the music videos started doing so well. She had always had to wear some since she was on TV, but now it appeared as if she were trying to appear 20 years younger. She use to appear on some of the "on location" sites without her make-up, but she began to openly show anger when Danny let a clip be shown of her without any make-up on. You could see the animosity building, but it was all coming from her side. The fire was in her eyes and he looked as goofy as before. He was still giving the same "thoughtless" comments, but now she wasn't brushing them off. Now they were making her mad. And I can also tell you when that started. One day, it was their last anniversary program; Danny was talking again about how everything got started. And he made one comment that I knew was going to get him in trouble as soon as he said it. He was talking about how the Lord had told him to get the ministry started, and he was talking about how he and Linda were going around singing. He made the comment that, and I'm paraphrasing, 'God told him that he need to go ahead and marry Linda and get it out of the way because He had a lot of work for him to do.' Linda was taken completely off guard and said, "What did you say?" and poor simple Danny didn't have the good since not to repeat himself and said it again. The fire that started in Linda's eyes that day never truly left. You could see it simmering beneath the surface. Her pride was hurt and she couldn't let it go. Even though I don't know Danny, I know people and I can guess that he just brushed it off and didn't make any more of it than he did of the other embarrassing comments he often made. But this time it was different.
Linda had someone who she could talk to about her problems who would lend a sympatric ear, and the rest is history.

And why do I believe Linda is not as innocent as she proclaims? The words came from her own web site. She said she went to Europe with a friend and when they came back the "friend betrayed her". You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told. Maybe it was just a poor choice of words on her part.

And as to why I believe Danny is still stuck on Linda and is going to make Brandie's life miserable also started with Linda's web site. The only reason someone would write a na-na-na-na-na letter, would be to avenge a hurt. Now here is my scenario as to what happened.

Linda went to Europe with Brenda and Brenda saw something she didn't like. She came home and told Danny and at first he didn't believe her, but as time when on he became more and more suspicious. He tapped the phones and hired private detectives (per Linda's web site) and heard something that took him over the edge. The love he had for her turned to a deep hurt, and he was not about to take that kind of rejection, supposed or real, without fighting back. And that meant finding a replacement. Someone who came to him to start a music career, with 2 small children, a singer, songwriter, newly converted to Adventism, and Brandy fit the bill. He just had to write Linda and tell her about it.

Now as far as who did what and who is guilty of what, only God and those actually involved know. So I will leave if for the judgment when all the secrets of man/woman shall come to light.

So do I think Linda or Danny are evil because of what happened? No. I think their hearts got lifted up because of the praises of the people and when the crisis came, neither would do what was needed to fix the situation. I believe Linda was emotionally set-up by the doctor but would not admit it and Danny was too proud and arrogant to forgive and play the man. Instead he played the fool!

But, that's my version and I'm sticking to it.

I have some comments and some questions?
Concerning this quote?

"Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped." Did you mean "she had Danny so wrapped up? or raped?? not sure. I think you mean the first. is that correct?

As far as the the betrayal comment. this is completely illogical. the fact that linda felt betrayed does not mean she had done anything wrong. You are wrong for that. People can betray innocent people. I have been betrayed myself. People lie for various reason motivation, they also can misinform people thinking they saw something they did not. The fact that linda said she was betrayed is not an indication of wrong doing. Brenda could have spread false information about linda.

i do think you have hit on possible motivation for linda. A woman publicly humiliated by her husband on world television on more than one occaision. Then tells her that he was told by God to marry her because God wanted to get on with other things. This is a real blow to Linda as a woman. By saying this is a matter of pride is a complete understatement and unentimation of the situation. this is akin to saying I didn't really want to marry you, but I did it anyways because God told me to. That is not something you just get over that is a life changing statement. I think that vanity may have played a movitating factor that could explain any action on lindas part. that is fair

I would like to know how you know that Danny was told not to build a music recording studio by God. You also said that the whole atmospher changed. How do you know that? Also Concering Brenda "betraying" Linda. Do you know what was said and the event or statments in questions?

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 1 2006, 02:55 PM

Some of the things Country Bumpkin said, if true, would sound more like what would have needed to have been inside stuff rather than outside stuff.

Posted by: Freedom Sep 1 2006, 03:15 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 07:21 AM)

WELL!!!

I must say the animosity that exudes from you all is such that I think I will take my humble little self off this site and leave you to your hate. WOW!!! I just don't have the words to express the shock!!! I couldn't even read most of them before I felt my pressure rise. Personal attacks for a difference of opinion. I hope and pray I don't personally know any of you.

BYE!!!

Country bumpkin have you ever stopped to think about how verbally and emotionally abusive Danny's comments that he says on the air are? I have even witness Melody's shock and pain and some of Danny's comments!

It's bad enough to have it said in private, but on TV for the world to see and hear! Yes, if I was Linda I would probably have "fire" in the eyes.

As for people going to Danny to find out about something, Danny doesn't give alot of people the time of day. Danny doesn't always respond when questions or issues arise. So for him to talk about Matt.

24 not being followed is wrong and in my opinion a falsehood.

Danny what about the text: Lest you do it onto one of them you, do it onto me?

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 1 2006, 06:59 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 12:09 PM)

Only the local church can "censure" a member. Not the conferec, the union or the General Conference can do that. And we know that Danny has the local church literally "in his pocket" because he pays the pastor and the members of the congregation So it's no wonder that Danny has not been dealt with faithfully.

I do wonder -- who is there to minister to Danny? He is virtually without any pastoral guidance. Indeed, and it would be wiser to welcome someone warmly and gently question, rather than to reject the testimony outright.

To be fair to "Country Bumpkin," he relates things he professes to have seen on the program. We can't argue with that --unless this person is not who he professes to be, a friend of "Uncle Sam." Perhaps "Uncle Sam" can vouch for him as being a real viewer of the program, rather than a deliberate 3ABN plant (which is how he has been treated). I think we should give him the benefit of the doubt -- especially since he posted reasonably, rather than with both guns blazing, as a couple of others have posted.

Country Bumpkin called me after posting on here. She was very disappointed in the responses she got. She has been a long time viewer of 3ABN, she has never been to 3ABN. She says all she has learned from 3ABN's saga is from watching and listening to Danny and Linda.
She wanted me to ask why is it if someone has a differing opinion they are "attacked"? She feels that Danny nor Linda are innocent in this whole mess. And that was her point....

Posted by: Clay Sep 1 2006, 07:16 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 1 2006, 07:59 PM)

Country Bumpkin called me after posting on here. She was very disappointed in the responses she got. She has been a long time viewer of 3ABN, she has never been to 3ABN. She says all she has learned from 3ABN's saga is from watching and listening to Danny and Linda.
She wanted me to ask why is it if someone has a differing opinion they are "attacked"? She feels that Danny nor Linda are innocent in this whole mess. And that was her point....

she wasn't attacked....her view and rationale were questioned... just like everyone else who offers up opinions for consideration.... if that was her point then she is more than welcome to stick around and make it....

let me add that all views have been questioned at one time or another.... look at the early threads....

those making comments were questioned, put through 3rd degree and then some.... if your friend is going to post on a hot button topic.... expect the heat.....

Posted by: calvin Sep 1 2006, 07:18 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 1 2006, 06:59 PM)

Country Bumpkin called me after posting on here. She was very disappointed in the responses she got. She has been a long time viewer of 3ABN, she has never been to 3ABN. She says all she has learned from 3ABN's saga is from watching and listening to Danny and Linda.
She wanted me to ask why is it if someone has a differing opinion they are "attacked"? She feels that Danny nor Linda are innocent in this whole mess. And that was her point....

I do not think she was attacked, There was no personal name calling. Uncle Sam perhaps you should have warned her that when you put something out here, expect to be challenged, expect others to vehemently support opposing views. Country needs to get a thicker skin if she wants to voice an opinion here.

Posted by: Uncle Sam Sep 1 2006, 07:27 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 1 2006, 06:16 PM)

she wasn't attacked....her view and rationale were questioned... just like everyone else who offers up opinions for consideration.... if that was her point then she is more than welcome to stick around and make it....

There were some that were rather harse. I must say it does make some a little apprehensive to question things. There are always two sides. I don't know what all happened within the marriage and I don't have to. I don't know what happened with their "problem" and again I don't have to. I do see how Linda has/continues to be treated and that is my problem. I have written Danny on more than one occasion and told him he needed to just keep his mouth shut. He said many feel he should defend himself.

I don't know what is true and what is not but there has been enough doubt put in my mind that I want to at least see the evidence. Danny has put this whole thing out there for the world to see now it is time to put up or shut up.....

Posted by: Clay Sep 1 2006, 07:30 PM

QUOTE(Uncle Sam @ Sep 1 2006, 08:27 PM)

There were some that were rather harse. I must say it does make some a little apprehensive to question things. There are always two sides. I don't know what all happened within the marriage and I don't have to. I don't know what happened with their "problem" and again I don't have to. I do see how Linda has/continues to be treated and that is my problem. I have written Danny on more than one occasion and told him he needed to just keep his mouth shut. He said many feel he should defend himself.

I don't know what is true and what is not but there has been enough doubt put in my mind that I want to at least see the evidence. Danny has put this whole thing out there for the world to see now it is time to put up or shut up.....

vell then perhaps you may need to review the evidence that is already out there for examination..... ou can start with the grounds for divorce "spiritual adultery" and then move on to how he treated her luring and after the divorce..... righteous people have nothing to hide....

Posted by: inga Sep 1 2006, 08:07 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 1 2006, 08:16 PM)

she wasn't attacked....her view and rationale were questioned... just like everyone else who offers up opinions for consideration.... if that was her point then she is more than welcome to stick around and make it....

let me add that all views have been questioned at one time or another....

t seems that the denizens of this net don't recognize personal attack when they see it.

would feel attacked if my intelligence were questioned in a number of subtle and not-so-subtle ways. erhaps you wouldn't.
would feel attacked if I spent time putting together a serious post laying out my views, and I got aughed at or told that I provided needed amusement. Perhaps you wouldn't.
would feel attacked if I picked a name like "country bumpkin" to indicate that I am just "simple folk" nd I were ridiculed because of it. Perhaps you wouldn't.
And I wouldn't feel too good if, after stating that I felt attacked because of the above, I were called aranoid. Perhaps it would make you feel good.

Some of the posts did, indeed, merely question the content of "bumpkin's" post, but others were learly "ad hominem" -- i.e. arguments against the person rather than the points made. It is useful o consider, before posting, whether we are questioning the argument or ridiculing the person.

'm pretty sure most folks on this board are really "nice" people and thus would not ridicule "bumpkin" o her face. It's so much easier to do on the screen ...

Uncle Sam, please tell "bumpkin" to give us another chance. After a while, she'll get used to how folks elate. She may even learn to appreciate the ones who were basically rude to her, or she may learn to gnore them. Either way, this is not a bad place to hang out. h

---

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 1 2006, 08:27 PM

Inga,
When I saw the reaction to Bumpkin I had to wonder what spirit was in charge here.

As a new member and seeker of the truth, this only added to the bewildered state I find myself in over this whole 3abn situation. I still continue have peace through the Lord, tho

Thanks for so deftly putting into words what I, as an observer, was feeling!

Posted by: no_cults Sep 1 2006, 09:58 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 08:29 AM)

Hi All,
I'm the friend of Uncle Sam's who thinks there is another scenario to this saga. As an avid viewer of 3ABN and not an insider, I will tell you the story from my perspective.

A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.

Before the music studio was built, Linda used to brag in her subtle way about how she had Danny so rapped. He was always giving her foot massages, picking the seeds out of her water melons and was doing what ever else she asked him to do. She would even go so far as to say that she would cook for the dog, but not for him sometimes and that he would get food from the pot, only to find out later that she had made it for the dog. But the both laughed at it good naturedly and my attitude was that if it was alright with them, it was alright with me.

Shortly after the music studio came into being, the whole atmosphere changed on the set. First, a lot on Non-Adventists began to make appearances. Then Linda started making comments about the furs she was receiving and she started packing on the make-up hard and heavy, especially after the music videos started doing so well. She had always had to wear some since she was on TV, but now it appeared as if she were trying to appear 20 years younger. She use to appear on some of the "on location" sites without her make-up, but she began to openly show anger when Danny let a clip be shown of her without any make-up on. You could see the animosity building, but it was all coming from her side. The fire was in her eyes and he looked as goofy as before. He was still giving the same "thoughtless" comments, but now she wasn't brushing them off. Now they were making her mad. And I can also tell you when that started. One day, it was their last anniversary program; Danny was talking again about how everything got started. And he made one comment that I knew was going to get him in trouble as soon as he said it. He was talking about how the Lord had told him to get the ministry started, and he was talking about how he and Linda were going around singing. He made the comment that, and I'm paraphrasing, 'God told him that he need to go ahead and marry Linda and get it out of the way because He had a lot of work for him to do.' Linda was taken completely off guard and said, "What did you say?" and poor simple Danny didn't have the good since not to repeat himself and said it again. The fire that started in Linda's eyes that day never truly left. You could see it simmering beneath the surface. Her pride was hurt and she couldn't let it go. Even though I don't know Danny, I know people and I can guess that he just brushed it off and didn't make any more of it than he did of the other embarrassing comments he often made. But this time it was different.
Linda had someone who she could talk to about her problems who would lend a sympatric ear, and the rest is history.

And why do I believe Linda is not as innocent as she proclaims? The words came from her own web site. She said she went to Europe with a friend and when they came back the "friend betrayed her". You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told. Maybe it was just a poor choice of words on her part.

And as to why I believe Danny is still stuck on Linda and is going to make Brandie's life miserable also started with Linda's web site. The only reason someone would write a na-na-na-na-na letter, would be to avenge a hurt. Now here is my scenario as to what happened.

Linda went to Europe with Brenda and Brenda saw something she didn't like. She came home and told Danny and at first he didn't believe her, but as time when on he became more and more suspicious. He tapped the phones and hired private detectives (per Linda's web site) and heard something that took him over the edge. The love he had for her turned to a deep hurt, and he was not about to take that kind of rejection, supposed or real, without fighting back. And that meant finding a replacement. Someone who came to him to start a music career, with 2 small children, a singer, songwriter, newly converted to Adventism, and Brandy fit the bill. He just had to write Linda and tell her about it.

Now as far as who did what and who is guilty of what, only God and those actually involved know. So I will leave if for the judgment when all the secrets of man/woman shall come to light.

So do I think Linda or Danny are evil because of what happened? No. I think their hearts got lifted up because of the praises of the people and when the crisis came, neither would do what was needed to fix the situation. I believe Linda was emotionally set-up by the doctor but would not admit it and Danny was too proud and arrogant to forgive and play the man. Instead he played the fool!

But, that's my version and I'm sticking to it.

Do you think that if a friend of yours said something about you that was not true it would NOT be a "betrayal"?

Posted by: Just a Guy Sep 1 2006, 10:29 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 1 2006, 09:56 AM)

.....and I have five bridges to sell you.

I will never understand why BlackSDA of all the message boards I visit has so many people that copy the entire post (not sentence or two posts but paragraphs upon paragraphs) when replying.

Posted by: seraph|m Sep 1 2006, 11:48 PM

QUOTE(Jvat @ Sep 1 2006, 10:00 AM)

Just one point. You say that because Linda indicated that a friend had betrayed her that meant that she had done something wrong that she did not want exposed.

Is that really so?

Think again! Jesus was betrayed by Judas. Did Jesus do anything wrong??????

Thank you for making that point. That was the first thing that came to mind after I read the statement as well.

QUOTE(no_cults @ Sep 1 2006, 11:58 PM)

Do you think that if a friend of yours said something about you that was not true it would NOT be a "betrayal"?

Exactly!!!

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 2 2006, 03:11 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 1 2006, 08:29 AM)

A number of years ago, Danny wanted to build a music studio and was repeatedly told NO! by the Lord. He continued to ask and was repeatedly denied and could not understand why. Finally in response to his request, he received permission, and the consequences are obvious to all.

I understand that Ethel "ET" Everett, has a BA degree in Music Education. It was my understanding that she wanted the music studio. I talked to her at one time, and she was looking ahead to the building of the Sound Center, and it seemed to me she was already ensconced there.

I wasn't aware that Danny was having a back and forth debate about the Sound Center with God, where God repeatedly says, "NO." It's accurate, however, that this is probably what a lot of the 3ABN followers believe -- or want to believe.

The reservations I have about these God debates, however, is that there are many good Christians who don't have these one-on-one, back and forth, conversations with God, and go away thinking their connection to God is weaker than someone else's.

Pentecostals and Charismatics use "the God connection" as a major fund-raising and control device. Followers say, "I'll give my money to Marilyn/Oral because she/he gets messages straight from God, and she'll/he'll know best what to do with my money."

With miracle stories that exist out in the world, who can say for sure whether the statue of the Virgin Mary is weeping tears or not? All you do is hurt the feelings of the person who thinks they experienced something should you express any scepticism. So miracle stories -- and God conversations -- can be very effective, and have been effective everywhere, for many decades. If you speak against them, you may be held in contempt.

But, once again, this post represents a good appraisal of what the 3ABN viewers formulate in their own minds from watching. And whether God is saying "yes" or "no" I can only formulate my own opinion based on what I have seen and heard.

Posted by: Reflection Sep 2 2006, 06:41 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 1 2006, 07:18 PM)

I do not think she was attacked, There was no personal name calling. Uncle Sam perhaps you should have warned her that when you put something out here, expect to be challenged, expect others to vehemently support opposing views. Country needs to get a thicker skin if she wants to voice an opinion here.

Hi Calvin: Before I respond, I feel I need to introduce myself since I just registered and this is my first post. I only recently learned of BSDA through a copy of a letter my pastor husband received from the Norwegian doctor at our church. Our church airs 3ABN in our community, a fact that is a great concern to us right now. I was actually thankful to get this information. It has been bothering me since I first read the 3ABN public letter about Linda, and the doctor's letter confirmed my suspicions. Just gut/intuition from life experience. Anyway, I just felt the need to jump in here because I've been reading posts here for about 2 or 3 weeks and kind of got the gist of how people respond to each other. You are a bunch of friends and joke with each other, get sarcastic, jab at each other, etc. The reason it doesn't bother you is because you have already established a relationship. This poor new person had no idea.

You guys laughed at a newbie rofl

you jabbed a newbie

hammered at a newbie b

Since this is supposed to be a Christian group, I just wanted to remind the members of a few things, and maybe highlight some things you may not recognize because of your familiarity. You know, it is almost like she walked into your living room and no one smiled at her. The first thing you did was laugh at her (besides a couple of you called her a he):

Simplysaved
thank you for making me laugh this morning....this really brought a much needed smile to my face. I like your style! (THERE WERE QUITE A FEW LITTLE EMOTICONS MAKING LAUGHTER EVIDENT.)

Yes, simplysaved says "I like your style" but I am not really sure if he is making fun or not. I can't see his face and I don't know simplysaved at all. Neither does countrybumpkin.

This one implies that countrybumpkin is trying to pull one over on you. (I am not gullible.) This could have been considered the same as calling her a liar:
CLAY:
country bumpkin? must be related to Danny..... this story would have us believe that Danny is clueless and Linda was mad because she was getting old and Danny was making insensitive remarks about their relationship..... alrighty then... I may be tired but I am not gulliable.....

Observer:
Bumpkin, you said: "You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told."

Betrayal often comes in the telling of a falsehood, that is probably more common than in telling the truth.

Bumpkin, your missive is simply speculation, with neither knowledge nor reason.

Yes, the first part is just a response, but "with neither knowledge nor reason" could be construed as an insult without eye contact, body language or relationship.

Princess Di:
.....and I have five bridges to sell you. One of them is very famous!

I did not find anything else that could be construed as offensive in this post, but to start off like that with someone you do not know might be misunderstood. Again without eye contact, body language, or relationship (history together), one cannot be clear on whether or not one is being made fun of.

Denny
These are The Days of our Lives.....
Now, this one does have body language. Just look at those two girls! They always give me the feeling that whoever it is they are looking at are being made fun of! And maybe that they don't care at all/kind of indifferent. And that comment coming after a couple others must be making the recipient feel like she is being made fun of. It's just cummulative after a while, kind of a group atmosphere.

Now, if she decided to come back to see if maybe she was being paranoid, she might have seen this: (personal name calling perhaps?)
Ralph:
hmmmm, I wonder who will give him his next pay chequue.

Just to make sure that he was describing himself correctly, I checked the dictionary.

bumpkin -- not very intelligent or interested in culture

Or this sarcastic take on it all:
CLAY:
have a nice life..... thanks for sharing your ummmm view of things.... and no I am not sorry that some were skeptical.... as for the other.... you have not seen hate.... if your story can't stand a little closer examination, perhaps you might keep it to yourself.....

Now, who knows this person? Do you all pray before you speak? Do you pray before you post? Good questions to ask yourselves.

Sorry to come on here hammering people. But it just bugged me to see Christians treating someone like this. What someone thinks is not the important thing. The important thing is to represent Christ in all our interactions and to minister to each other. If we need a swift kick, then a friend should give one. Before you jab and joke with someone, make sure you first make them feel safe-- communicate your personal regard for other. That takes time. Take the time. I recently took a computer course and was made aware of computer addiction. Maybe some of you... well, I'll wait until we establish a relationship first before...

Thanks for listening!

Good emoticons for newbies:

welc

Posted by: calvin Sep 2 2006, 08:19 PM

Reflection, you make some good points in your observations. I admit, BSDA does have an edge to it. I can certainly understand how someone could be turned off by our confrontational in-your-face style, especially on hot button issues that members have strong opinions about.

BlackSDA is what it is. It's not for everybody.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 2 2006, 09:44 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 1 2006, 08:07 PM)

Uncle Sam, please tell "bumpkin" to give us another chance. After a while, she'll get used to how folks relate. She may even learn to appreciate the ones who were basically rude to her, or she may learn to ignore them. Either way, this is not a bad place to hang out. h

I agree. However, I would recommend dropping the "bumpkin" part and just going with "Country B." That "bumpkin" word means different things to different people in different places.

The word "bumpkin" has the following etymology:

"Bumpkin is a derivative of bum, "the rear end. It may come from either the Middle Dutch word bommekijn, " a little barrel," or the Flemish word boomken, "shrub" Such a person may easily have been compared to a block of wood; That country Bumpkin just sits on his porch and whittles."

I'm sure for some, the self-chosen handle "bumpkin" seemed to imply the user of that handle had a thick skin, strong opinions, and self-assurance, and wouldn't be offended by a strong retort.

Therefore, I'm hoping "Country B" will see this as a misunderstanding and return. Some here were reading the etymological tea leaves -- and the tea leaves were wrong.

Posted by: no_cults Sep 2 2006, 10:00 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 2 2006, 08:19 PM)

Reflection, you make some good points in your observations. I admit, BSDA does have an edge to it. I can certainly understand how someone could be turned off by our confrontational in-your-face style, especially on hot button issues that members have strong opinions about.

BlackSDA is what it is. It's not for everybody.

Calvin, you have a way with words.
VERY well said !!!

(In my opinion, you were very kind and generous to Reflection.)

Posted by: Ralph Sep 2 2006, 10:01 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 2 2006, 05:41 PM)

You guys laughed at a newbie rofl

you jabbed a newbie

hammered at a newbie b

There's a little history that may explain why the rash treatment of this newbie. On Club Adventist, there was a false persona, Margaret Gray, who wrote things to keep the pot boiling. I questioned whether Country Bumpkin was genuine. I felt that she knew too much to merely be a listener to the broadcast, and Daryl Fawcett apparently felt the same, for he wrote:

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Sep 1 2006, 01:55 PM)

Some of the things Country Bumpkin said, if true, would sound more like what would have needed to have been inside stuff rather than outside stuff.

I was mistaken in my assumption that we were dealing with another "Margaret Gray', so my apologies to Country Bumpkin. plea forgive.

By the way, Reflection, welc

Posted by: Clay Sep 2 2006, 11:04 PM

QUOTE

Now, who knows this person? Do you all pray before you speak? Do you pray before you post? Good questions to ask yourselves.

Sorry to come on here hammering people. But it just bugged me to see Christians treating someone like this. What someone thinks is not the important thing. The important thing is to represent Christ in all our interactions and to minister to each other. If we need a swift kick, then a friend should give one. Before you jab and joke with someone, make sure you first make them feel safe-- communicate your personal regard for other. That takes time. Take the time. I recently took a computer course and was made aware of computer addiction. Maybe some of you... well, I'll wait until we establish a relationship first before...

he person came on.... their first post (as in their very first post) is in a thread that is a hot button opic.....in my opinion, if you have the courage (the moxie) to make your first post in a hot button opic, then you are ready to deal with the fallout... now if she wasn't ready, then perhaps she should ıave posted in some of the other areas that are less controversial...

ly point? If you come in to participate, and then start posting away at the most controversial topic of he moment, don't complain that you are a newbie and didn't know when your comments are lissected, scrutized, and questioned..... as they use to tell me....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 2 2006, 11:22 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 2 2006, 05:41 PM)

Hi Calvin: Before I respond, I feel I need to introduce myself since I just registered and this is my first post. I only recently learned of BSDA through a copy of a letter my pastor husband received from the Norwegian doctor at our church. Our church airs 3ABN in our community, a fact that is a great concern to us right now. I was actually thankful to get this information. It has been bothering me since I first read the 3ABN public letter about Linda, and the doctor's letter confirmed my suspicions. Just gut/intuition from life experience.

li Reflection. I am also a new member here - searching for answers and truth about the situation at 3abn. I have asked several questions in this pursuit but have not had any answers in response from he more seasoned members. I don't know if my questions were just overlooked or avoided but that is vhat has been happening to me.

would like to see some sort of proof that Danny and Tommy Shelton have molested girls and boys. I :an't find either of them on Megan's Law websites for Illinois or Kentucky. The charges have been nade here and in The Televangelist but where are the accusers? I have read with interest the estimonies of people who are working or have worked at 3abn and am concerned about what they ;ay are the conditions there.

From some of the group I hear that they want 3abn to continue its huge ministry to the world with a ıew leadership in place. Others seem to want it shut down. I see that you and your church are :oncerned that 3abn is airing in your community. What are your concerns?

I have personally received many blessing from some of the programming I have watched on 3abn. That said, I do believe that the truth should be brought out - whatever it is. I have no first hand experience with the situation at 3abn so I don't know what the truth is. I seek truth and I pray that God will intervene according to His will. That is the best I can do.

Posted by: Clay Sep 2 2006, 11:26 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 2 2006, 11:22 PM)

Hi Reflection. I am also a new member here - searching for answers and truth about the situation at 3abn. I have asked several questions in this pursuit but have not had any answers in response from the more seasoned members. I don't know if my questions were just overlooked or avoided but that is what has been happening to me.

I would like to see some sort of proof that Danny and Tommy Shelton have molested girls and boys. I can't find either of them on Megan's Law websites for Illinois or Kentucky. The charges have been made here and in The Televangelist but where are the accusers? I have read with interest the testimonies of people who are working or have worked at 3abn and am concerned about what they say are the conditions there.

From some of the group I hear that they want 3abn to continue its huge ministry to the world with a new leadership in place. Others seem to want it shut down. I see that you and your church are concerned that 3abn is airing in your community. What are your concerns?

I have personally received many blessing from some of the programming I have watched on 3abn. That said, I do believe that the truth should be brought out - whatever it is. I have no first hand experience with the situation at 3abn so I don't know what the truth is. I seek truth and I pray that God will intervene according to His will. That is the best I can do.

you have not received any answers about that issue because that issue is off limits for the time being.... the discussion has been limited to the divorce and the management style.... we will not be dealing with allegations of molestation or alleged murder....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 2 2006, 11:32 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 2 2006, 10:26 PM)

you have not received any answers about that issue because that issue is off limits for the time being.... the discussion has been limited to the divorce and the management style.... we will not be dealing with allegations of molestation or alleged murder....

Clay, thanks for your information. I am a little surprised at this, though. I brought it up because folks were refering to the allegations in several of the topics - quoting from the televangelist, etc. Guess they didn't know it was off limits either.

Posted by: inga Sep 2 2006, 11:47 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 3 2006, 12:04 AM)

If you come in to participate, and then start posting away at the most controversial topic of the moment, don't complain that you are a newbie and didn't know when your comments are dissected, scrutized, and questioned..... as they use to tell me....

Steve, I'm afraid you missed the point completely.

My point, which was similar to Reflection's, though not as detailed, is that the personal attacks (as detailed by Reflection) were inappropriate, to put it mildly.

Give and take in a debate is one thing, but ad hominem remarks such as the ridicule directed at CB are recognized as rude in any other environment. I find it quite astonishing that some folks on this board cannot recognize meanness even when it is pointed out to them. (Is this the fruit of being Spirit-led?)

By contrast I appreciate Ralph's appropriate response. We all make errors in judgment, and he gave some background for his. Then he apologized -- something that would be an appropriate response for several others as well.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 2 2006, 11:55 PM

welcome.gif

Reflection!

First, I am definitely a woman...and not a man... you can simply look at the avitar next to the post and see that.

Second, if you have been reading for about two weeks, you must have noticed that I rarely post in in 3ABN.....sometimes I read, but rarely post. When I responded, I liked Country Bumpkin's sense of humor in how s/he said what s/he said in the posts. I apologize to you both if that came off as condescending or rude. I happen to agree that the perspectives presented only tell one side of the story...but that is another issue altogether for another thread....

I agree that as Christians, it is important that we tread carefully as to how we say what we say.

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 2 2006, 06:41 PM)

Hi Calvin: Before I respond, I feel I need to introduce myself since I just registered and this is my first post. I only recently learned of BSDA through a copy of a letter my pastor husband received from the Norwegian doctor at our church. Our church airs 3ABN in our community, a fact that is a great concern to us right now. I was actually thankful to get this information. It has been bothering me since I first read the 3ABN public letter about Linda, and the doctor's letter confirmed my suspicions. Just gut/intuition from life experience. Anyway, I just felt the need to jump in here because I've been reading posts here for about 2 or 3 weeks and kind of got the gist of how people respond to each other. You are a bunch of friends and joke with each other, get sarcastic, jab at each other, etc. The reason it doesn't bother you is because you have already established a relationship. This poor new person had no idea.

You guys laughed at a newbie [x] rofl

you jabbed a newbie
[x]

hammered at a newbie [x] b

Since this is supposed to be a Christian group, I just wanted to remind the members of a few things, and maybe highlight some things you may not recognize because of your familiarity. You know, it is almost like she walked into your living room and no one smiled at her. The first thing you did was laugh at her (besides a couple of you called her a he):

Simplysaved
thank you for making me laugh this morning....this really brought a much needed smile to my face. I like your style! (THERE WERE QUITE A FEW LITTLE EMOTICONS MAKING LAUGHTER EVIDENT.)

Yes, simplysaved says "I like your style" but I am not really sure if he is making fun or not. I can't see his face and I don't know simplysaved at all. Neither does countrybumpkin.

This one implies that countrybumpkin is trying to pull one over on you. (I am not gullible.) This could have been considered the same as calling her a liar:
CLAY:
country bumpkin? must be related to Danny..... this story would have us believe that Danny is clueless and Linda was mad because she was getting old and Danny was making insensitive remarks about their relationship..... alrighty then... I may be tired but I am not gulliable.....
Observer:
Bumpkin, you said: "You can not betray someone unless you know something they do not want told."

Betrayal often comes in the telling of a falsehood, that is probably more common than in telling the truth.

Bumpkin, your missive is simply speculation, with neither knowledge nor reason.

Yes, the first part is just a response, but "with neither knowledge nor reason" could be construed as an insult without eye contact, body language or relationship.

Princess Di:
.....and I have five bridges to sell you. One of them is very famous!

I did not find anything else that could be construed as offensive in this post, but to start off like that with someone you do not know might be misunderstood. Again without eye contact, body language, or relationship (history together), one cannot be clear on whether or not one is being made fun of.

Denny
These are The Days of our Lives.....
Now, this one does have body language. Just look at those two girls! They always give me the feeling that whoever it is they are looking at are being made fun of! And maybe that they don't care at all/kind of indifferent. And that comment coming after a couple others must be making the recipient feel like she is being made fun of. It's just cummulative after a while, kind of a group atmosphere.

Now, if she decided to come back to see if maybe she was being paranoid, she might have seen this:
(personal name calling perhaps?)

Ralph:
hmmmm, I wonder who will give him his next pay chequue.

Just to make sure that he was describing himself correctly, I checked the dictionary.

bumpkin -- not very intelligent or interested in culture

Or this sarcastic take on it all:
CLAY:
have a nice life..... thanks for sharing your ummmm view of things.... and no I am not sorry that some were skeptical.... as for the other.... you have not seen hate.... if your story can't stand a little closer examination, perhaps you might keep it to yourself.....

Now, who knows this person? Do you all pray before you speak? Do you pray before you post? Good questions to ask yourselves.

Sorry to come on here hammering people. But it just bugged me to see Christians treating someone like this. What someone thinks is not the important thing. The important thing is to represent Christ in all our interactions and to minister to each other. If we need a swift kick, then a friend should give one. Before you jab and joke with someone, make sure you first make them feel safe--communicate your personal regard for other. That takes time. Take the time. I recently took a computer course and was made aware of computer addiction. Maybe some of you... well, I'll wait until we establish a relationship first before...

Thanks for listening!

Good emoticons for newbies:

welc

Posted by: calvin Sep 2 2006, 11:58 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 3 2006, 12:47 AM)

Steve, I'm afraid you missed the point completely.

My point, which was similar to Reflection's, though not as detailed, is that the personal attacks (as detailed by Reflection) were inappropriate, to put it mildly.

Give and take in a debate is one thing, but ad hominem remarks such as the ridicule directed at CB are recognized as rude in any other environment. I find it quite astonishing that some folks on this board cannot recognize meanness even when it is pointed out to them. (Is this the fruit of being Spirit-led?)

By contrast I appreciate Ralph's appropriate response. We all make errors in judgment, and he gave some background for his. Then he apologized -- something that would be an appropriate response for several others as well.

nga, this is not SDAnet where I believe you where or are one of the moderators. Me and the other ıdministrators/moderators set the tone as to what we think is appropriate. Take it or leave it.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 3 2006, 01:28 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 2 2006, 11:32 PM)

Clay, thanks for your information. I am a little surprised at this, though. I brought it up because folks were refering to the allegations in several of the topics - quoting from the televangelist, etc. Guess they didn't know it was off limits either.

Greetings to PeacefullyBewildered,

An agreement was reached between the folks here midstream. While it is true, some people already had their feet wet, others were encouraged not to jump in on those topics Clay mentioned.

Also, the Televangelist was previously written elsewhere and then exported to this site and it remains to be seen whether the author(s) are present on this board, or not.

So, don't think for one second that you are being ignored or forgotten. Your presence here is very much appreciated.

Other seasoned posters may be on their end-of-summer vacations right now and away from their keyboards, but they will be back.

Pete.

Posted by: Clay Sep 3 2006, 07:32 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 2 2006, 11:47 PM)

Steve, I'm afraid you missed the point completely.

My point, which was similar to Reflection's, though not as detailed, is that the personal attacks (as detailed by Reflection) were inappropriate, to put it mildly.

Give and take in a debate is one thing, but ad hominem remarks such as the ridicule directed at CB are recognized as rude in any other environment. I find it quite astonishing that some folks on this board cannot recognize meanness even when it is pointed out to them. (Is this the fruit of being Spirit-led?)

By contrast I appreciate Ralph's appropriate response. We all make errors in judgment, and he gave some background for his. Then he apologized -- something that would be an appropriate response for several others as well.

nope didn't miss the point at all... I didn't think it was mean, and to me the experience of Country Bumpkin is like that of a person going to the swimming pool.... if as soon as you get there you decide you are big enough to jump into the deep end where the water is over your head, then you gotta deal with the consequences of that decision.....or find a way back to the wading pool.....

You say it was mean, I disagree.... and your question, "Is this the fruit of being Spirit-led?" does not change my opinion.....

I also disagree that she was personally attacked...and let me add, that had we been at a potluck dinner and CB walked up and shared her take on this issue, my response would have been the same....

Sorry just not feelin you on this one Inga.....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 3 2006, 09:33 AM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 2 2006, 11:28 PM)

Greetings to PeacefullyBewildered,

An agreement was reached between the folks here midstream. While it is true, some people already had their feet wet, others were encouraged not to jump in on those topics Clay mentioned.

Also, the Televangelist was previously written elsewhere and then exported to this site and it remains to be seen whether the author(s) are present on this board, or not.

So, don't think for one second that you are being ignored or forgotten. Your presence here is very much appreciated.

Other seasoned posters may be on their end-of-summer vacations right now and away from their keyboards, but they will be back.

Pete.

I appreciate your welcome and the further illumination on this subject.

Posted by: no_cults Sep 3 2006, 09:54 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 3 2006, 12:26 AM)

you have not received any answers about that issue because that issue is off limits for the time being.... the discussion has been limited to the divorce and the management style.... we will not be dealing with allegations of molestation or alleged murder....

I too am curious about this, but wholeheartedly agree with you. (Clay)
If anyone has real allegations about molestation of minors, they should contact the proper authorities with their proof.

Posted by: Reflection Sep 3 2006, 10:15 AM

QUOTE(simplysaved @ Sep 2 2006, 11:55 PM)

welcome.gif

Reflection!

First, I am definitely a woman...and not a man... you can simply look at the avitar next to the post and see that.

I'm so sorry!

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 3 2006, 07:32 AM)

nope didn't miss the point at all... I didn't think it was mean, and to me the experience of Country Bumpkin is like that of a person going to the swimming pool.... if as soon as you get there you decide you are big enough to jump into the deep end where the water is over your head, then you gotta deal with the consequences of that decision.....or find a way back to the wading pool.....

Yup, just let the poor fool drown, right? Absolutely no-one should jump in and help. Lifeguards are only for swimmers...

QUOTE(no_cults @ Sep 2 2006, 10:00 PM)

Calvin, you have a way with words.
VERY well said !!!

(In my opinion, you were very kind and generous to Reflection.)

You guys are great. And funny.

QUOTE(Ralph @ Sep 2 2006, 10:01 PM)

There's a little history that may explain why the rash treatment of this newbie. On Club Adventist, there was a false persona, Margaret Gray, who wrote things to keep the pot boiling. I questioned whether Country Bumpkin was genuine. I felt that she knew too much to merely be a listener to the broadcast, and Daryl Fawcett apparently felt the same, for he wrote:

I was mistaken in my assumption that we were dealing with another "Margaret Gray', so my apologies to Country Bumpkin. plea forgive.

By the way, Reflection, welc

Ralph: Thanks for the explanation and response! Considering I came in here with my boxing gloves on, I really appreciate the welcome!

Posted by: Expression Sep 3 2006, 10:27 AM

Personally, I agree with Clay 100%. When you get into a controversial subject there will be controversy. We can argue for hours as to whether or not what was posted was "kind," "caring," or "Spirit-led." But in the end where will it get us? This is what a forum is like. We express what we think and we share how we feel.

What has made BSDA what it is, is the fact that everyone can share their opinions. This encourages thought and has created ripples throughout our church. If we loose this honesty and openness with one another we will have lost much. I hope that our discussion from this point on about the 3ABN situation will not be "watered-down" as a result of this.

May we keep our focus.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 3 2006, 10:39 AM

No problem....It's all ...we are more than "COOL"!!! che

> QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 3 2006, 10:15 AM)
>
> I'm so sorry!
> Yup, just let the poor fool drown, right? Absolutely no-one should jump in and help. Lifeguards are only for swimmers...
> You guys are great. And funny.
> Ralph: Thanks for the explanation and response! Considering I came in here with my boxing gloves on, I really appreciate the welcome!

Posted by: Clay Sep 3 2006, 10:48 AM

> QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 3 2006, 11:15 AM)
>
> Yup, just let the poor fool drown, right? Absolutely no-one should jump in and help. Lifeguards are only for swimmers...
> You guys are great. And funny.
> Ralph: Thanks for the explanation and response! Considering I came in here with my boxing gloves on, I really appreciate the welcome!

I am not a lifeguard.... my wife who was one tells me that sometimes a drowning person instead of cooperating with a rescue often fights with the rescuer and may cause both to drown..... she said sometimes its easier to save a person who has passed out, cause there won't be that issue.... or I guess you can always throw out a life saver....

Posted by: Reflection Sep 3 2006, 10:59 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 2 2006, 11:22 PM)

Hi Reflection. I am also a new member here - searching for answers and truth about the situation at 3abn. I have asked several questions in this pursuit but have not had any answers in response from the more seasoned members. I don't know if my questions were just overlooked or avoided but that is what has been happening to me....

From some of the group I hear that they want 3abn to continue its huge ministry to the world with a new leadership in place. Others seem to want it shut down. I see that you and your church are concerned that 3abn is airing in your community. What are your concerns?...

I have personally received many blessing from some of the programming I have watched on 3abn.

Hi PeacefullyBewildered. Thanks for the response! Our concerns have to do with the unknown really. If these allegations are true, this promises to be a very big scandal. What will the media do with it? Will 3ABN be squashed? So, since 3ABN in a sense is the face of Adventism, should we be intertwined with them at all? On the other hand if these are untrue allegations, then who wants to be a part of the rumor mill SE that destroys an innocent entity that is doing a good work? Yet if it is true, our little church that has so much potential to reach our community could lose its sphere of influence.

I have a strong gut impression these are probably true. See, when I first saw the public letter about Linda from 3ABN, red flags and alarm bells were ringing and flying all over the place. First, if it was true, a Christian in a prominent position would not feel the need to write such a letter. Second, insinuations were rampant in the letter. This is like telling the truth with your mouth while your eyes and gestures clearly tell the opponent you don't believe what you are saying (like rolling your eyes) . This can be a somewhat subtle form of deception. I remember telling my husband (just from intuition and life experience), "watch, before the dust clears, Danny will be married. I bet you anything he's the one having the affair." Mind you, this was only spoken in private between us. At the time I hoped that no one in our church or community had caught wind of this. Before reading the Norwegian doctor's letter, I felt that that 3ABN letter (and later the new spiritual adultery clause) served to incriminate 3ABN quite concisely. A Christian fights for his/her marriage. And love covers a multitude of sins.

So, this whole thing is unfortunate, but looks like we will all need to deal with it. Some of the challenges I see regarding this:
1. SDA church losing influence and a barrier between us and those Christ wants to reach.
2. Danny being turned into the bigger-than-life Disney villain by SDAs, and Linda being turned into a goddess. As a result, lack of well-composed prayers for both, lack of balanced interaction with both.
3. The possibility that whole churches will be split over this issue. blc

I also see many good outcomes once this is resolved. Cleansing is always a good thing. For one thing, and I think I'll stop here or I may end up writing a book: Many church members may have felt that 3ABN was taking care of the Great Commission. Perhaps this mentality has kept many from developing witnessing skills as they felt opening their purses was fulfilling their responsibilities.

Most important action for those of us on the sidelines: Prayer for all involved. Try not to demonize or deify, though have eyes wide open for the truth. Hope for true repentance. Pray God picks up the pieces (even though we know He will).

Yes, I believe there's a place for television and radio ministry. TVsnack. I am one who came into the church through It Is Written and study, ONLY. No personal contact was needed to convince me. But, there is no replacement for the ministry of individuals. That--individual ministry--is what should be elevated to MOST IMPORTANT MINISTRY. Anyway, where's the step off this soap box....

Posted by: Jvat Sep 3 2006, 02:30 PM

Reflection, I appreciate your post.

Posted by: inga Sep 3 2006, 02:34 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 3 2006, 12:58 AM)

Inga, this is not SDAnet where I believe you where or are one of the moderators. Me and the other administrators/moderators set the tone as to what we think is appropriate. Take it or leave it.

Whew, Calvin, thanks for the appreciative response!

I've developed a pretty tough skin myself & can take a lot (and you have no idea what goes on at SDAnet behind the scenes!). I wasn't complaining for myself. I did, however, see a new member being subjected to some pretty rough treatment for no good reason. (Others who posted in defense of Danny recently asked for the way they were treated because they came on as being pretty rough themselves.)

My remarks were intended to provide a bit of a reality check Even on non-Christian boards a distinction is made between argumentation -- which may be quite vigorous -- and ad hominem remarks (put-downs of the person). The latter are technically classified as logical fallacies (invalid arguments) at best and recognized as rudeness or flames by regular posters. This is not allowed on most reputable boards.

Early in the posting history of the 3ABN section you indicated that you realized only one side was being represented, and you seemed eager to have both sides represented. However, the way "country bumpkin" was treated ensures that that side of the matter won't get much exposure here, except by the most thick-skinned folks who may be thick-skinned in more ways than one and maybe not the best "witnesses." Most folks don't willingly subject themselves to such treatment.

But, as you pointed out, it is your call regarding what tone you want to have on this board. If you want to allow flaming of newbies, that's your business. If you want to prevent viewers from posting how they see the issues, that's your business. If you think that ridicule of new posters is an appropriate Christian response, it's your call. But I had thought better of you ...

The way I see it, those who ridiculed "countrybumpkin" weren't trying to be mean to an innocent newbie. They were probably set up for that kind of response by several earlier posters who came on here with both guns blazing, and they failed to recognize that this poster was different. And that makes me think that it would probably be a good idea to be courteous even to those who are discourteous. Would that be so bad for BSDA?

And, of course, I realize I'm here by your good graces and you can shut off my access any time it pleases you. So, if it pleases you to deny my access to this board now, I want to thank you for my time here. I've learned to appreciate the folks here -- even when I don't agree with them. (I also find it interesting to observe the postings of folks I know from other venues by their real identity.) And the fact that you seem to have the most open SDA posting environment on the net has made this a valuable clearinghouse. However, I don't think that treating newcomers a little more kindly would take away from what BSDA has to offer. In fact, I rather think it would add to its attraction. And you would surely get a more balanced picture that way.

Blessings,
Inga Anderson

Posted by: Clay Sep 3 2006, 02:40 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 3 2006, 03:34 PM)

Whew, Calvin, thanks for the appreciative response!

I've developed a pretty tough skin myself & can take a lot (and you have no idea what goes on at SDAnet behind the scenes!). I wasn't complaining for myself. I did, however, see a new member being subjected to some pretty rough treatment for no good reason. (Others who posted in defense of Danny recently asked for the way they were treated because they came on as being pretty rough themselves.)

My remarks were intended to provide a bit of a reality check Even on non-Christian boards a distinction is make between argumentation -- which may be quite vigorous -- and ad hominem remarks (put-downs of the person). The latter are technically classified as logical fallacies (invalid arguments) at best and recognized as rudeness or flames by regular posters. This is not allowed on most reputable boards.

Early in the posting history of the 3ABN section you indicated that you realized only one side was being represented, and you seemed eager to have both sides represented. However, the way "country bumpkin" was treated ensures that that side of the matter won't get much exposure here, except by the most thick-skinned folks who may be thick-skinned in more ways than one and maybe not the best "witnesses." Most folks don't willingly subject themselves to such treatment.

But, as you pointed out, it is your call regarding what tone you want to have on this board. If you want to allow flaming of newbies, that's your business. If you want to prevent viewers from posting how they see the issues, that's your business. If you think that ridicule of new posters is an appropriate Christian response, it's your call. But I had thought better of you ...

The way I see it, those who ridiculed "countrybumpkin" weren't trying to be mean to an innocent newbie. They were probably set up for that kind of response by several earlier posters who came on here with both guns blazing, and they failed to recognize that this poster was different. And that makes me think that it would probably be a good idea to be courteous even to those who are discourteous. Would that be so bad for BlackSDA?

And, of course, I realize I'm here by your good graces and you can shut off my access any time it pleases you. So, if it pleases you to deny my access to this board now, I want to thank you for my time here. I've learned to appreciate the folks here -- even when I don't agree with them. (I also find it interesting to observe the postings of folks I know from other venues by their real identity.) And the fact that you seem to have the most open SDA posting environment on the net has made this a valuable clearinghouse. However, I don't think that treating newcomers a little more kindly would take away from what BlackSDA has to offer. In fact, I rather think it would add to its attraction. And you would surely get a more balanced picture that way.

Blessings,
Inga Anderson

nga, points taken.... unless you have violated some forum rule there is no reason to ban you.... I will do my best to see to it that newbies are not flamed their first time out..... (even though I don't think CB was flamed..... singed a little, but not flamed)

Posted by: inga Sep 3 2006, 02:55 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 3 2006, 03:40 PM)

Inga,
points taken.... unless you have violated some forum rule there is no reason to ban you.... I will do my best to see to it that newbies are not flamed their first time out..... (even though I don't think CB was flamed..... singed a little, but not flamed)

Thanks, Steve. I really appreciate your response.

Having taught logical argumentation and logical fallacies to my junior and senior classes in high school, my antennas are admittedly better attuned to ad hominem posts than most people's. And, being a woman, I can probably empathize a bit better with another woman who came on here to tell her story in the expectation that she would at least be takent seriously in the "free" posting environment. Being ridiculed isn't easy to take for most folks. (I've lived long enough that I just consider the source, so it probably wouldn't bother me in the same way.)

To tell the truth, this experience has served to make me a little more cautious in my own posting. Irony/sarcasm comes easily to me, if I let it. (It took me years to quit the habit in my youth. It's addictive for some of us.) And I wonder if I've let my guard down in some of my posts here. (Hey, I don't want to have to go through withdrawal again!!)

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 3 2006, 07:48 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 3 2006, 01:34 PM)

Early in the posting history of the 3ABN section you indicated that you realized only one side was being represented, and you seemed eager to have both sides represented. However, the way "country bumpkin" was treated ensures that that side of the matter won't get much exposure here, except by the most thick-skinned folks who may be thick-skinned in more ways than one and maybe not the best "witnesses." Most folks don't willingly subject themselves to such treatment.

But, as you pointed out, it is your call regarding what tone you want to have on this board. If you want to allow flaming of newbies, that's your business. If you want to prevent viewers from posting how they see the issues, that's your business. If you think that ridicule of new posters is an appropriate Christian response, it's your call. But I had thought better of you ...

The way I see it, those who ridiculed "countrybumpkin" weren't trying to be mean to an innocent newbie. They were probably set up for that kind of response by several earlier posters who came on here with both guns blazing, and they failed to recognize that this poster was different. And that makes me think that it would probably be a good idea to be courteous even to those who are discourteous. Would that be so bad for BSDA?

And, of course, I realize I'm here by your good graces and you can shut off my access any time it pleases you. So, if it pleases you to deny my access to this board now, I want to thank you for my time here. I've learned to appreciate the folks here -- even when I don't agree with them. (I also find it interesting to observe the postings of folks I know from other venues by their real identity.) And the fact that you seem to have the most open SDA posting environment on the net has made this a valuable clearinghouse. However, I don't think that treating newcomers a little more kindly would take away from what BSDA has to offer. In fact, I rather think it would add to its attraction. And you would surely get a more balanced picture that way.

Blessings,
Inga Anderson

Inga,
While I was swimming just off of a gorgeous,white sandy beach near Waterloo, Sierra Leone one day, I looked up in awe to see the silvery shimmerings of a few flying fish whisking through the salty air. As my gaze drifted back down to the beautiful blue water I noticed a roiling commotion not far from where I was standing. I asked my companion what made the water move so and she replied "The barracuda are feeding." Needless to say I soon found myself back on the safety of the white sand.

I'm not sure what brought that decades old memory to mind today but I thought I'd share it.

Posted by: calvin Sep 3 2006, 08:22 PM

Point taken Inga. Now everybody back on topic. Anybody else got any criticism or suggestions on how we administer this board, PM or email me privately. Won't promise I will response, I will read it. Lot a lot of work to do on the board to get it back.

Posted by: inga Sep 3 2006, 09:02 PM

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 3 2006, 09:22 PM)

Point taken Inga. Now everybody back on topic.

I thought we were on topic, Calvin -- the topic of a Viewer's Version of events surrounding 3ABN.

I would personally like more feedback from folks like CB. If we receive them graciously, they may be able to recognize that what they see on the screen is not necessarily reality, but more like the other reality TV shows.

Posted by: Reflection Sep 4 2006, 09:07 PM

Hi Peacefully Bewildered: Just wondering if you saw my answer to your question about our concerns?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 4 2006, 09:53 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 4 2006, 08:07 PM)

Hi Peacefully Bewildered: Just wondering if you saw my answer to your question about our concerns?

Hi Reflection.

Yes, I saw your post and thought I had answered. It must have gotten lost with all of trouble the site had - or maybe it was just my computer. The site kept showing "action cancelled" for me.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 4 2006, 10:10 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 3 2006, 09:59 AM)

Hi PeacefullyBewildered. Thanks for the response! Our concerns have to do with the unknown really. If these allegations are true, this promises to be a very big scandal. What will the media do with it? Will 3ABN be squashed? So, since 3ABN in a sense is the face of Adventism, should we be intertwined with them at all? On the other hand if these are untrue allegations, then who wants to be a part of the rumor mill se that destroys an innocent entity that is doing a good work? Yet if it is true, our little church that has so much potential to reach our community could lose its sphere of influence.

This definitely is a conundrum. From my own personal experience I have been so blessed by many of the programs on 3abn. My opinion is that if the rumors prove to be true, the true seekers will not be turned against your church. The Holy Spirit is far more powerful! Just my opinion.

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 3 2006, 09:59 AM)

So, this whole thing is unfortunate, but looks like we will all need to deal with it. Some of the challenges I see regarding this:
1. SDA church losing influence and a barrier between us and those Christ wants to reach.
2. Danny being turned into the bigger-than-life Disney villain by SDAs, and Linda being turned into a goddess. As a result, lack of well-composed prayers for both, lack of balanced interaction with both.
3. The possibility that whole churches will be split over this issue. blc

I also see many good outcomes once this is resolved. Cleansing is always a good thing. For one thing, and I think I'll stop here or I may end up writing a book: Many church members may have felt that 3ABN was taking care of the Great Commission. Perhaps this mentality has kept many from developing witnessing skills as they felt opening their purses was fulfilling their responsibilities.

Many of your points/concerns mirror my own.

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 3 2006, 09:59 AM)

Most important action for those of us on the sidelines: Prayer for all involved. Try not to demonize or deify, though have eyes wide open for the truth. Hope for true repentance. Pray God picks up the pieces (even though we know He will).

This, I believe, is the strongest part we can play in this whole situation!

Posted by: inga Sep 5 2006, 12:03 AM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 3 2006, 08:48 PM)

Inga,
While I was swimming just off of a gorgeous,white sandy beach near Waterloo, Sierra Leone one day, I looked up in awe to see the silvery shimmerings of a few flying fish whisking through the salty air. As my gaze drifted back down to the beautiful blue water I noticed a roiling commotion not far from where I was standing. I asked my companion what made the water move so and she replied "The barracuda are feeding." Needless to say I soon found myself back on the safety of the white sand.

I'm not sure what brought that decades old memory to mind today but I thought I'd share it.

You're not sure, huh?

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 5 2006, 02:28 AM

Hi All,

I must say that all is not lost on this web site. I must admit that the first site I read when I came back was INGA's so that gave me courage to continue. After reading a few more and seeing that the rhetoric had settled to a low boil, I felt is was safe to stick my toe back in the water.

To start with, I am a BLACK FEMALE who has never been to 3ABN, but has watched 3ABN consistently for the last 9 years, non-stop, all day, every day. That stopped about a year ago when I moved and was not able to take my dish with me. I chose the name country bumpkin because I moved to the country from the city 6 months ago. I had originally chosen the name country girl, but when I went outside and say my 3 foot weeds instead of produce in my entire garden, I figured bumpkin would be more appropriate.

As for the word betrayal, you do have a valid point in that Judas was referred to as betraying Jesus and he was innocent. That is the only point I will concede.

Now I do believe Linda said something on that phone to set Danny off. I know that I personally have said some hurtful things about my husband, that were said in anger because I was hurt, that could have escalated our marriage out of control if he heard them. And they would have been extremely damaging if he knew I was saying these things to another man. Fortunately for me, not only did he not hear what I said, I had since enough never to talk over issues like that with a male. And because he never heard the "venting" I did, I eventually calmed down and was glad nothing came of it.

As for the rest of your arguments, I still haven't read most because I couldn't get past the "attack node" introductions to get to the gist of the questions and as I don't want to have a heart attack and leave my children orphans, I refuse to go back and read them.

Signed COUNTRY BUMPKIN!

P.S. Newbie or not, you all need to learn to be nice to people. How can you write some of the things you do and go to church each week and say "Happy Sabbath" to those you meet? One of them might be me.

Posted by: Clay Sep 5 2006, 04:58 AM

thank you CB for your views..... in my opinion a mature male should not respond as Mr. Shelton did.... in essence you are "blaming the victim." Linda did not deserve to be abused, verbally, mentally, or physically because something she said "might have set Danny off...."

as for your other comment....

QUOTE

How can you write some of the things you do and go to church each week and say "Happy Sabbath" to those you meet? One of them might be me.

I may respond to that one later, however, you are new, so welcome to the forum....

Posted by: summertime Sep 5 2006, 01:52 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 5 2006, 04:58 AM)

thank you CB for your views..... in my opinion a mature male should not respond as Mr. Shelton did.... in essence you are "blaming the victim." Linda did not deserve to be abused, verbally, mentally, or physically because something she said "might have set Danny off...."

as for your other comment.... I may respond to that one later, however, you are new, so welcome to the forum....

A man like Danny, who says that he has been called by God to start a station should have never been so easily 'set off'. His response should have been as that like a 'man of God'. You may be a lucky CB to have been spared the knowledge of your husband knowing of the folly of your ways. . And if I were to see Satan himself at my church on the Sabbath, I would go out of my way to say, "Happy Sabbath".

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 5 2006, 05:46 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 5 2006, 01:28 AM)

As for the word betrayal, you do have a valid point in that Judas was referred to as betraying Jesus and he was innocent. That is the only point I will concede.

Now I do believe Linda said something on that phone to set Danny off. I know that I personally have said some hurtful things about my husband, that were said in anger because I was hurt, that could have escalated our marriage out of control if he heard them. And they would have been extremely damaging if he knew I was saying these things to another man. Fortunately for me, not only did he not hear what I said, I had since enough never to talk over issues like that with a male. And because he never heard the "venting" I did, I eventually calmed down and was glad nothing came of it.

As for the rest of your arguments, I still haven't read most because I couldn't get past the "attack mode" introductions to get to the gist of the questions and as I don't want to have a heart attack and leave my children orphans, I refuse to go back and read them.

Signed COUNTRY BUMPKIN!

Welcome CB, or Country B, or Bumpkin, or Country Bumpkin...all are fine with me, you tell me!

welc

want to address a couple things you said.
One: Betrayal is when someone does something to YOU that YOU would not expect from them(based on a relationship of some kind). Lieing to you by telling you one thing and actually doing something else - leaving you to believe something that is not true, or a lie about you to someone else, those are ways of betrayal. A husband/wife having an affair on you - betrayal. Now, if you tell someone something private, and they break the promise to you to keep silent, yes, that could be considered a betrayal, in a fashion. Trust broken, etc. I can tell you that Linda did NOT betray her husband, and that Brenda DID betray Linda, one of her best friends. She did do this. I know, you are just left to take my word for it.

Second: Linda did not need to say anything on the phone to set Dan off. Danny is a creative man. When he wants something, he finds a way to get it/do it. He is, as Linda has told me on more then one occasion, "the most persistant man I know". He does NOT quit. He will NOT give up on something he wants. This can be good and this can be bad. It has been a "gift" if you want to say it, used wrongly in many ways and occasions. You have simplified things in your mind based on what Dan wants you to think happend. Keep an open mind. Things did not go as you assume.

One more note here - and this is to reflection and PeacefullyBewildered as well; while 3abn has been "used" by God, God is not limited to an organization to do anything He wants done. Because our God is also "the most persistant" when it comes to saving His children, there are many ways and mysteries of God's to accomplish His will. Sin is HIS battle, he uses people and ministries where they can be used - it's our priviledge to be used - but if we step away from the mission, we also step away from Gods purpose for us. 3abn was a tool. There will be and ARE other tools. Lets not get hung up on "what's going to happen to the church". The church is NOT 3abn. If people think that, then they need to be educated. 3abn is an INDEPENDANT MINISTRY. That is it. Nothing more. When a tool breaks, and this one has been broken in many ways for a long time, in spite of that God still uses things, whatever He needs (a donkey too) it is of no more use, and new tool(s) will be used. I have faith that He is in control. I will not hang my hat on 3abn (never have actually) to be the voice of God, and when it's gone, oh no, what will happen?? To me, if that is how you think, you better re-think where you put your weight on things, and also realize that you have been TAUGHT to think this way. It is not healthy. Example, when I was growing up in this church, I was TAUGHT that if some preacher spoke from the pulpit that we were to listen, because it was from God - because that person wouldn't be there if God had not put them there. Not necessarily true at all. I have seen plenty of people in the pulpit that put themselves there. How do I know? Because their character did not match that of someone representing Christ (and I don't mean they weren't perfect, I mean CHARACTER). We can make judgements when things are put in front of your eyeballs - it becomes clear when you use the brain that God instilled in your head to see and understand things - and Jesus as our example. Many things are commen sense, but we SDA's tend to trust what everyone tell us instead of being willing to say "I don't agree, I don't see it that way" without fear.

Do your homework, there is a lot of info now, Dan is seeing the writing on the wall. Things have a way of coming around, and I pray that those that have worshiped the MAN will be willing to see he is just a man, who, well, lets just say, has a lot ahead of him to face. He has made a mess of things, and with the help of many. It's been wrong, it's still wrong, and it will end.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 5 2006, 06:12 PM

Welcome back CB! I would first like to apologize to you for the way I began my post. I do understnad that you are represnetative of the picture that 3ABN wants to portray to the world. It is not your fault.

Secondly, I agree with Clay. As someone who claims to be annointed and appointed and leader in Christian living, Danny "knows" better.

...and Sista Gurl, Statements like your last statement is what got you feelin like you had jumped into the shark tank in the beginning. Youc an't go "there" and expect us not to, at least some of us. You know the saying.....If you can't stand the heat.....you are no longer a newbie! Welcome to the BSDA Family!!! Murch lurve!!

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 5 2006, 12:28 AM)

Hi All,

I must say that all is not lost on this web site. I must admit that the first site I read when I came back was INGA's so that gave me courage to continue. After reading a few more and seeing that the rhetoric had settled to a low boil, I felt is was safe to stick my toe back in the water.

To start with, I am a BLACK FEMALE who has never been to 3ABN, but has watched 3ABN consistently for the last 9 years, non-stop, all day, every day. That stopped about a year ago when I moved and was not able to take my dish with me. I chose the name country bumpkin because I moved to the country from the city 6 months ago. I had originally chosen the name country girl, but when I went outside and say my 3 foot weeds instead of produce in my entire garden, I figured bumpkin would be more appropriate.

As for the word betrayal, you do have a valid point in that Judas was referred to as betraying Jesus and he was innocent. That is the only point I will concede.

Now I do believe Linda said something on that phone to set Danny off. I know that I personally have said some hurtful things about my husband, that were said in anger because I was hurt, that could have escalated our marriage out of control if he heard them. And they would have been extremely damaging if he knew I was saying these things to another man. Fortunately for me, not only did he not hear what I said, I had since enough never to talk over issues like that with a male. And because he never heard the "venting" I did, I eventually calmed down and was glad nothing came of it.

As for the rest of your arguments, I still haven't read most because I couldn't get past the "attack node" introductions to get to the gist of the questions and as I don't want to have a heart attack and leave my children orphans, I refuse to go back and read them.

Signed COUNTRY BUMPKIN!

P.S. Newbie or not, you all need to learn to be nice to people. How can you write some of the things you do and go to church each week and say "Happy Sabbath" to those you meet? One of them might be me.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 5 2006, 07:43 PM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 4 2006, 11:03 PM)

You're not sure, huh?

Alright, Inga. You caught me! It did rather feel like a feeding frenzy when CB posted her perspective. I'm just happy there was a good and redemptive followup discussion.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 5 2006, 08:28 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 5 2006, 04:46 PM)

One more note here - and this is to reflection and PeacefullyBewildered as well; while 3abn has been "used" by God, God is not limited to an organization to do anything He wants done. Because our God is also "the most persistant" when it comes to saving His children, there are many ways and mysteries of God's to accomplish His will. Sin is HIS battle, he uses people and ministries where they can be used - it's our priviledge to be used - but if we step away from the mission, we also step away from Gods purpose for us. 3abn was a tool. There will be and ARE other tools. Lets not get hung up on "what's going to happen to the church". The church is NOT 3abn. If people think that, then they need to be educated. 3abn is an INDEPENDANT MINISTRY. That is it. Nothing more. When a tool breaks, and this one has been broken in many ways for a long time, in spite of that God still uses things, whatever He needs (a donkey too) it is of no more use, and new tool(s) will be used. I have faith that He is in control. I will not hang my hat on 3abn (never have actually) to be the voice of God, and when it's gone, oh no, what will happen?? To me, if that is how you think, you better re-think where you put your weight on things, and also realize that you have been TAUGHT to think this way. It is not healthy. Example, when I was growing up in this church, I was TAUGHT that if some preacher spoke from the pulpit that we were to listen, because it was from God - because that person wouldn't be there if God had not put them there. Not necessarily true at all. I have seen plenty of people in the pulpit that put themselves there. How do I know? Because their character did not match that of someone representing Christ (and I don't mean they weren't perfect, I mean CHARACTER). We can make judgements when things are put in front of your eyeballs - it becomes clear when you use the brain that God instilled in your head to see and understand things - and Jesus as our example. Many things are commen sense, but we SDA's tend to trust what everyone tell us instead of being willing to say "I don't agree, I don't see it that way" without fear.

Do your homework, there is a lot of info now, Dan is seeing the writing on the wall. Things have a way of coming around, and I pray that those that have worshiped the MAN will be willing to see he is just a man, who, well, lets just say, has a lot ahead of him to face. He has made a mess of things, and with the help of many. It's been wrong, it's still wrong, and it will end.

I was speaking to Reflection's concerns over the impact the scandal at 3abn might have on their local church.

I learned early in my SDA experience not to blindly trust our preachers. When I was 17 one of them thought he could take advantage of my youth. This young, good-looking married father of two small children isolated me in a gorgeous valley and tried to do inappropriate things to me but found I was far too savy to become a victim. In contrast, when I took a walk in the woods with HMS Richards SR. a few years later he proved himself to be a faithful man of God whose only agenda was to share his faith with a young woman.

We each must test what is preached to us to see if it is true.

I have never been a fan of Danny's but have found lots of spiritual blessings from 3abn. I was blessed many times by Linda's devotionals on the porch. Of course I only saw them for a short time before she was suddenly gone.

I saw several hours of 3abn programming each day as I did in-home care for my 100-year-old grandmother. She has had a dish since the late 80's and has the programming on every waking hour. She is now 101 1/2 and is still watching it. She is hot-under-the-collar furious with Danny for pushing Linda out and especially for getting remarried.

My advice to her was that until we know the facts of the matter we can't make judgements. I also reminded her that the tares and the wheat grow together until God does the reaping. If Danny is a tare, there are still bushels of wheat that can be a blessing until the end of the 3abn story.

I know from personal experience that one can find a true spriritual blessing even from an imperfect ministry. You just have to be careful and prayerful. Our denomination is led by imperfect humans and is filled with imperfect members. Every one of us can only find perfection through Christ Our Righteousness and where we are in that journey is determined by our connection to Him.

Posted by: Reflection Sep 5 2006, 10:04 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 5 2006, 05:46 PM)

One more note here - and this is to reflection and PeacefullyBewildered as well; while 3abn has been "used" by God, God is not limited to an organization to do anything He wants done. Because our God is also "the most persistant" when it comes to saving His children, there are many ways and mysteries of God's to accomplish His will. Sin is HIS battle, he uses people and ministries where they can be used - it's our priviledge to be used - but if we step away from the mission, we also step away from Gods purpose for us. 3abn was a tool. There will be and ARE other tools. Lets not get hung up on "what's going to happen to the church". The church is NOT 3abn. If people think that, then they need to be educated. 3abn is an INDEPENDANT MINISTRY. That is it. Nothing more.

Thanks for the reminder! I mean I KNOW this, but I appreciate being jolted back to faith. I'm not sure I'm explaining myself correctly. I've been in the church for 24 years and I've seen churches split over lesser things. It's always disheartening. But you're right. Of course He is bigger than all of that. We all need to keep our focus even when some are falling all around us.

But beyond that, I still hold onto one concern. That is regarding our responsibility. Since we have the radio station, should we act now and change over to another provider of programming? I guess we're not clear on what our responsibility is at this point. I'm open to any suggestions or comments on this. Thanks!

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 5 2006, 10:11 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 5 2006, 09:04 PM)

Thanks for the reminder! I mean I KNOW this, but I appreciate being jolted back to faith. I'm not sure I'm explaining myself correctly. I've been in the church for 24 years and I've seen churches split over lesser things. It's always disheartening. But you're right. Of course He is bigger than all of that. We all need to keep our focus even when some are falling all around us.

But beyond that, I still hold onto one concern. That is regarding our responsibility. Since we have the radio station, should we act now and change over to another provider of programming? I guess we're not clear on what our responsibility is at this point. I'm open to any suggestions or comments on this. Thanks!

If you ask me (and probably some other people too), yes, I would make the change. I personally could not support a "ministry" that I have no respect for when there are others out there to support. I think it's no accident that there are other ministries - Hope as well as others. I want more accountability to viewers and to people who work in these ministries, along with the true stucture of a board. Of course, this is me, and I speak for myself. There is no call for us to support anything that shouts Jesus name. Remember, 3abn is only a network that hosts programs and a handful of their own personal ones. I am guessing that eventually what is on that network, which is also on other networks too, will soon migrate away from 3abn to a "safer" more regulated place. My opinion only...but I guess we will do a wait and see. I have actually thought about this quite a bit - we have a station here in OR that should make that move. If it were me, and I was finding out truths that have been hid behind lies, I could not and would not want to have an association with a "ministry" that breaks mended people, as 3abn does.

Posted by: inga Sep 5 2006, 10:14 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 5 2006, 09:28 PM)

I saw several hours of 3abn programming each day as I did in-home care for my 100-year-old grandmother. She has had a dish since the late 80's and has the programming on every waking hour. She is now 101 1/2 and is still watching it. She is hot-under-the-collar furious with Danny for pushing Linda out and especially for getting remarried.

I'd say your grandmother is a wise lady and has every right to be hot-under-the-collar furious with Danny for pushing Linda out and picking up a younger model. There's enough public evidence -- all the trashing of Linda engaged in by Danny and the board -- to indicate that Danny is not innocent! And I imagine your grandmother picked up on it -- if not consciously, then by the intution of a woman with a good many years of experience in life.

Say "Hi" to her from us here on BSDA, will you? h

Posted by: Reflection Sep 5 2006, 10:18 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 5 2006, 08:28 PM)

> I was speaking to Reflection's concerns over the impact the scandal at 3abn might have on their local church.
>
> I learned early in my SDA experience not to blindly trust our preachers. When I was 17 one of them thought he could take advantage of my youth. This young, good-looking married father of two small children isolated me in a gorgeous valley and tried to do inappropriate things to me but found I was far too savy to become a victim. In contrast, when I took a walk in the woods with HMS Richards SR. a few years later he proved himself to be a faithful man of God whose only agenda was to share his faith with a young woman.

Wow! Glad you stood your ground and that you were obviously prepared for this trial!

My advice to her was that until we know the facts of the matter we can't make judgements. I also reminded her that the tares and the wheat grow together until God does the reaping. If Danny is a tare, there are still bushels of wheat that can be a blessing until the end of the 3abn story.

I know from personal experience that one can find a true spriritual blessing even from an imperfect ministry. You just have to be careful and prayerful. Our denomination is led by imperfect humans and is filled with imperfect members. Every one of us can only find perfection through Christ Our Righteousness and where we are in that journey is determined by our connection to Him.

You're right! God can use a donkey! And all the rest of us too!

> QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 5 2006, 10:11 PM)
>
> If you ask me (and probably some other people too), yes, I would make the change. I personally could not support a "ministry" that I have no respect for when there are others out there to support. I think it's no accident that there are other ministries - Hope as well as others. I want more accountability to viewers and to people who work in these ministries, along with the true stucture of a board. Of course, this is me, and I speak for myself. There is no call for us to support anything that shouts Jesus name. Remember, 3abn is only a network that hosts programs and a handful of their own personal ones. I am guessing that eventually what is on that network, which is also on other networks too, will soon migrate away from 3abn to a "safer" more regulated place. My opinion only...but I guess we will do a wait and see. I have actually thought about this quite a bit - we have a station here in OR that should make that move. If it were me, and I was finding out truths that have been hid behind lies, I could not and would not want to have an association with a "ministry" that breaks mended people, as 3abn does.

Thanks for the input. Do you have any specific information I could take back to my church? The person managing the station has been away several months. We need to talk to someone who can give practical advice.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 6 2006, 07:57 AM

In answer to Calvin and Clay,

My original premise was that they BOTH became proud and arrogant. Once Danny started getting the Nashville singers and musicians in, his whole attitude changed. It became, "Look at me! See who my friends are." I remember it got so bad that one day he was interviewing Doug Bachelor on a live question and answer program and a question came in. It was a controversial subject, so I won't mention it, but Pastor Bachelor said, "Well the Bible doesn't teach...." And Danny said, "I don't care what the Bible says, I think..." My husband and I both looked at each other and said,

"Did you hear what he said?" I knew then they were headed for a fall.

But it was not all Danny, nor was it all Linda. You could see them both becoming proud and arrogant.

That is why when the fall came, Danny looked humbled. He was also deeply hurt. Why else would a man get on stage in front of "the world" and embarrass himself by yelling at the man if he wasn't hurt. Why would Mark Finley have to go on stage and try to save face if Danny had it under control and it was just a game to him. I think you all have taken this pawn of the enemy and made him into the master mind. Once they became proud, Satan set Linda up and Linda said something on that phone that Danny's pride couldn't take.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 6 2006, 08:13 AM

In response to sonshineon me.

I came up with this scenario after I visited Linda's web site. Before that I was totally clueless as to what had happened. But there were so many things she said that led me to come to that conclusion. I did not get my views from listening to Danny, but reading Linda, in light of what Danny had said. If I just listened to Danny, I'd think that Linda was an adulteress and the only reason they use the term "spiritual adultery is because they don't have the bedroom pictures to prove she actually did anything. If I listened only to Danny, I'd believe Linda was vacationing with the doctor and running around like a "you know what". I don't believe that and I never have. I do believe that people strike out and say terrible things when they are hurt. Things they would never say under normal circumstances, and that is what we are seeing and have been seeing these last 2 years.

It's sad and it's getting old.

Posted by: calvin Sep 6 2006, 08:21 AM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 08:57 AM)

In answer to Calvin and Clay,

My original premise was that they BOTH became proud and arrogant. Once Danny started getting the Nashville singers and musicians in, his whole attitude changed. It became, "Look at me! See who my friends are." I remember it got so bad that one day he was interviewing Doug Bachelor on a live question and answer program and a question came in. It was a controversial subject, so I won't mention it, but Pastor Bachelor said, "Well the Bible doesn't teach...." And Danny said, "I don't care what the Bible says, I think..." My husband and I both looked at each other and said, "Did you hear what he said?" I knew then they were headed for a fall.

But it was not all Danny, nor was it all Linda. You could see them both becoming proud and arrogant.

That is why when the fall came, Danny looked humbled. He was also deeply hurt. Why else would a man get on stage in front of "the world" and embarrass himself by yelling at the man if he wasn't hurt. Why would Mark Finley have to go on stage and try to save face if Danny had it under control and it was just a game to him. I think you all have taken this pawn of the enemy and made him into the master mind. Once they became proud, Satan set Linda up and Linda said something on that phone that Danny's pride couldn't take.

Country, I had no problem with your initial post. From what I have read here in the 3abn threads, your story fits well in Danny's characteristics.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 6 2006, 09:33 AM

Thanks Calvin, and I'm sorry I implicated you falsely.

Posted by: Clay Sep 6 2006, 09:39 AM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 08:57 AM)

In answer to Calvin and Clay,

My original premise was that they BOTH became proud and arrogant. Once Danny started getting the Nashville singers and musicians in, his whole attitude changed. It became, "Look at me! See who my friends are." I remember it got so bad that one day he was interviewing Doug Bachelor on a live question and answer program and a question came in. It was a controversial subject, so I won't mention it, but Pastor Bachelor said, "Well the Bible doesn't teach...." And Danny said, "I don't care what the Bible says, I think..." My husband and I both looked at each other and said, "Did you hear what he said?" I knew then they were headed for a fall.

But it was not all Danny, nor was it all Linda. You could see them both becoming proud and arrogant.

That is why when the fall came, Danny looked humbled. He was also deeply hurt. Why else would a man get on stage in front of "the world" and embarrass himself by yelling at the man if he wasn't hurt. Why would Mark Finley have to go on stage and try to save face if Danny had it under control and it was just a game to him. I think you all have taken this pawn of the enemy and made him into the master mind. Once they became proud, Satan set Linda up and Linda said something on that phone that Danny's pride couldn't take.

ahhhh I see.... good points.... and you are correct, God does not like pride..... not at all.....

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 09:13 AM)

In response to sonshineon me.
I came up with this scenario after I visited Linda's web site. Before that I was totally clueless as to what had happened. But there were so many things she said that led me to come to that conclusion. I did not get my views from listening to Danny, but reading Linda, in light of what Danny had said. If I just listened to Danny, I'd think that Linda was an adulteress and the only reason they use the term "spiritual adultery is because they don't have the bedroom pictures to prove she actually did anything. If I listened only to Danny, I'd believe Linda was vacationing with the doctor and running around like a "you know what". I don't believe that and I never have. I do believe that people strike out and say terrible things when they are hurt. Things they would never say under normal circumstances, and that is what we are seeing and have been seeing these last 2 years.

It's sad and it's getting old.

my point which I have made from the beginning of this mess was simply this... even if Linda did everything she was accused of, she should not have been treated the way she was by Mr. Shelton..... that's where I am coming from....

Posted by: seeshell Sep 6 2006, 10:45 AM

Country, for what it's worth, I think your take on it makes sense. Glad you came back.

Posted by: Clay Sep 6 2006, 10:51 AM

QUOTE(seeshell @ Sep 6 2006, 10:45 AM)

Country, for what it's worth, I think your take on it makes sense. Glad you came back.

then again as you have stated.... you are ummm blonde..... rofl

---

Posted by: Truly Blonde Sep 6 2006, 12:51 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 07:13 AM)

In response to Country Bumpkin
If I just listened to Danny, I'd think that Linda was an adulteress and the only reason they use the term "spiritual adultery is because they don't have the bedroom pictures to prove she actually did anything.

There has been lots of talk on other threads just what spiritual adultry is. Most of us had never heard the term before. Nobody has given a good explanation of spiritual adultry. The other day I was listening to Elder Bohr's cd's on cracking the Genisis code and he was talking about the ten commandments and he said that spiritual adultry is when we have other God's beside God and when we place them above God we have committed spiritual adultry. I asked my husband "Did you hear that?" Based on this, there is no way Linda committed Spiritual Adultry!!!! Unless Danny truly thinks he is our God blc

I personally think Danny is a very aggressive person who wants what he wants when he wants it and is going to force the rest of us to accept his way of thinking. I don't think it even fazes him to air all of his dirty linen to the whole world. I am not surprised that he took over and used Steve's and Doug's issues to rant on his own.

I agree that Danny is not the only bad guy here. It takes two in a given situation. But I agree with Clay that what Danny has done to ruin Linda and others who worked at 3abn is unconciousable.(sp)

I have another question that I don't think has been talked about. Danny's first wife supposably was getting ready to leave Danny when she died. I think I read she had two daughters from a previous marriage and that at least one of the daughters was helping her in this. Does anyone know what has happened to them. Do they fit in this story at all? Could they shed light on Danny before Linda and what his behavior was like? Just wondering.

Truly Blonde

Posted by: princessdi Sep 6 2006, 03:12 PM

That is exactly what "spiritual adultery? means, TB. So IOW, Danny and Brandy is shackin' up, because he doesn't have biblical/church grounds for divorce.

Now, as for your question about Danny's first wife, I am going to ask that someone with that info PM you with it. As you know, we are only dealing with Danny and his dealings at 3ABN, not his persoanl life. His first wife had nothing to do with 3ABN.

QUOTE(Truly Blonde @ Sep 6 2006, 11:51 AM)

There has been lots of talk on other threads just what spiritual adultry is. Most of us had never heard the term before. Nobody has given a good explanation of spiritual adultry. The other day I was listening to Elder Bohr's cd's on cracking the Genisis code and he was talking about the ten commandments and he said that spiritual adultry is when we have other God's beside God and when we place them above God we have committed spiritual adultry. I asked my husband "Did you hear that?" Based on this, there is no way Linda committed Spiritual Adultry!!!! Unless Danny truly thinks he is our God blc

I personally think Danny is a very aggressive person who wants what he wants when he wants it and is going to force the rest of us to accept his way of thinking. I don't think it even fazes him to air all of his dirty linen to the whole world. I am not surprised that he took over and used Steve's and Doug's issues to rant on his own.

I agree that Danny is not the only bad guy here. It takes two in a given situation. But I agree with Clay that what Danny has done to ruin Linda and others who worked at 3abn is unconciousable. (sp)

I have another question that I don't think has been talked about. Danny's first wife supposably was getting ready to leave Danny when she died. I think I read she had two daughters from a previous marriage and that at least one of the daughters was helping her in this. Does anyone know what has happened to them. Do they fit in this story at all? Could they shed light on Danny before Linda and what his behavior was like? Just wondering.

Truly Blonde

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 6 2006, 03:25 PM

Clay,
You make a good point. He should just let it go. But many people can't.

Once I went camping and I met the couple that was camped next to us. It was an older couple in a camper. They had both remarried. She had because her husband had died; he had because his wife had left him. He kept going on and on about the first wife, so much so that I assumed the events had happened quite recently. They had not. It had been over 15 years and I was shock at the bitterness and resentment he still held. He was not the only one I have seen. Once hurt turns to bitterness, some people just can't let it go.

I once had a boss who was embarrassed by something an employee of his said. After he fired her, he forbad all the employees to communicate with her. I have been amazed at the steps people go to when their pride is offended.

So, in my opinion, his reaction is not an uncommon occurrence. The fact that it is so open and in public is what makes this situation so discouraging. Most of the people that I have seen over react to situations have been members of "good and regular standing" and leaders in the church. Sad, but true.

I don't know what the solution is. I just feel sorry for all involved.

Country,

P.S. Please be nice. Seeshell's comments had nothing to do with her hair color and to judge her by her picture is totally unfair. Someone might accuse you of insensitivity, like, hummm... Danny, maybe?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 6 2006, 07:33 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 02:25 PM)

Clay,
P.S. Please be nice. Seeshell's comments had nothing to do with her hair color and to judge her by her picture is totally unfair. Someone might accuse you of insensitivity, like, hummm... Danny, maybe?

Country Bumpkin,
I believe Clay was having some fun with the "Disclaimer" at the end of Seeshell's post. Please go back and read what she has written there. I am not Clay but I'd just bet my ranch (if I had one) that it was just for fun.

Posted by: Clay Sep 6 2006, 07:36 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 6 2006, 07:33 PM)

Country Bumpkin,
I believe Clay was having some fun with the "Disclaimer" at the end of Seeshell's post. Please go back and read what she has written there. I am not Clay but I'd just bet my ranch (if I had one) that it was just for fun.

yeah i was messin with her.....

Posted by: seeshell Sep 6 2006, 08:22 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 6 2006, 11:51 AM)

then again as you have stated.... you are ummm blonde..... rofl

And proud of it! Oh yeah!

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 04:25 PM)

P.S. Please be nice. Seeshell's comments had nothing to do with her hair color and to judge her by her picture is totally unfair. Someone might accuse you of insensitivity, like, hummm... Danny, maybe?

Thanks, Country. It was sweet of you to stick up for me. Some of these folks around here...well, I just despair!

Posted by: inga Sep 6 2006, 11:03 PM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 5 2006, 11:18 PM)

I also reminded her that the tares and the wheat grow together until God does the reaping. If Danny is a tare <snip>

The parable is about tares and wheat, not thistles and wheat, and that's significant. Tares could not be distinguished from the wheat until harvest time. They looked alike, and that's why it would be dangerous to try to pull up the tares ... Thistles, on the other hand, are easily distinguised fromt the wheat and need to be dealt with. (As a gardener, I can vouch for that!!) Paul makes clear that it is the church's job to discipline its members in the case of open sin.

There are some pretty "open" sins in the case of Danny Shelton. His quick divorce and subsequent marriage without biblical grounds are matters of public record. So is his trashing of Linda, which continues to this day, often with references that only those aware of the problem "get." Some of his misuse of funds donated to 3ABN is also a matter of record, and it is evident that this is but the tip of the iceberg.

There's a time to keep silent and a time to speak up and act. Many folks who knew of irregularities at 3ABN for years have kept silent until recently. Seeing that things only got worse, not better, they came to the conclusion that it is time to speak up and act. You can find their testimonies on this board ...

Posted by: inga Sep 6 2006, 11:17 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 6 2006, 04:25 PM)

So, in my opinion, his [Danny's] reaction is not an uncommon occurrence. The fact that it is so open and in public is what makes this situation so discouraging.

CB, I think you do have a point in that the TV "stardom" went to Danny & Linda's heads, not just Danny's. However, the troubles with Danny go much further than his relationship and trashing of Linda. Even if it were only that, his continual skewing of topics to exonerate himself and blame Linda makes him unfit to speak as a Christian in front of a world-wide audience.

The problems with Danny involve misuse of funds entrusted to him and a general attitude of thinking it's okay for him to spend freely (not just for the ministry but also for his own pleasure) the money given to 3ABN through sacrifice.

The problems with Danny involve the way he treats current and former employees. It's hardly the way of Christ to live in comparative luxury while employees live in substandard housing and depend on government assistance to make ends meet.

That's the tip of the iceberg ...

Posted by: Reflection Sep 7 2006, 05:38 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 6 2006, 11:03 PM)

The parable is about tares and wheat, not thistles and wheat, and that's significant. Tares could not be distinguished from the wheat until harvest time. They looked alike, and that's why it would be dangerous to try to pull up the tares ... Thistles, on the other hand, are easily distinguised fromt the wheat and need to be dealt with. (As a gardener, I can vouch for that!!) Paul makes clear that it is the church's job to discipline its members in the case of open sin.

There are some pretty "open" sins in the case of Danny Shelton. His quick divorce and subsequent marriage without biblical grounds are matters of public record. So is his trashing of Linda, which continues to this day, often with references that only those aware of the problem "get." Some of his misuse of funds donated to 3ABN is also a matter of record, and it is evident that this is but the tip of the iceberg.

There's a time to keep silent and a time to speak up and act. Many folks who knew of irregularities at 3ABN for years have kept silent until recently. Seeing that things only got worse, not better, they came to the conclusion that it is time to speak up and act. You can find their testimonies on this board ...

Hi Inga: I don't think the quote about wheat and tares was me??? I may have responded to someone else and then commented, maybe peacefully bewildered? Not sure. I'll go check now! It's morning!

Posted by: Reflection Sep 7 2006, 05:59 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 6 2006, 11:03 PM)

The parable is about tares and wheat, not thistles and wheat, and that's significant. Tares could not be distinguished from the wheat until harvest time. They looked alike, and that's why it would be dangerous to try to pull up the tares ... Thistles, on the other hand, are easily distinguised fromt the wheat and need to be dealt with. (As a gardener, I can vouch for that!!) Paul makes clear that it is the church's job to discipline its members in the case of open sin.

There are some pretty "open" sins in the case of Danny Shelton. His quick divorce and subsequent marriage without biblical grounds are matters of public record. So is his trashing of Linda, which continues to this day, often with references that only those aware of the problem "get." Some of his misuse of funds donated to 3ABN is also a matter of record, and it is evident that this is but the tip of the iceberg.

There's a time to keep silent and a time to speak up and act. Many folks who knew of irregularities at 3ABN for years have kept silent until recently. Seeing that things only got worse, not better, they came to the conclusion that it is time to speak up and act. You can find their testimonies on this board ...

Okay I'm awake now ,. I see what happened. It's my newbieness, even though it says I'm a regular member. I've not figured out everything technical yet. I responded to PeacefullyBewildered, and wanted to separate the two quotes and respond separately to both. I couldn't figure out how to do that so I cut and pasted and highlighted the second quote with a bright blue, my response below it in the regular font color. Someone help me. How should I have done that so that the quotes end up in the same box? I mean the same response box, with the quotes in different boxes. I noticed that sometimes when I respond to more than one person one after another, the program does it automatically, but not always. Do I sound confused! I am!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 7 2006, 09:10 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 6 2006, 09:03 PM)

The parable is about tares and wheat, not thistles and wheat, and that's significant.

Those who actually know him might be able to characterize him as a "thistle" but to the outside world at large he may look like a wheat with tare tendencies. Point taken, though.

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 6 2006, 09:03 PM)

There's a time to keep silent and a time to speak up and act. Many folks who knew of irregularities at 3ABN for years have kept silent until recently. Seeing that things only got worse, not better, they came to the conclusion that it is time to speak up and act. You can find their testimonies on this board ...

It would be helpful to list the posters who actually work or have worked there. I would give much more credence to the accounts of those who have first-hand experience with the situation there.

I know that Johann, Barbara Kerr, sister, papertigers and beartrap fit this category. Am I missing some?

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 6 2006, 09:17 PM)

The problems with Danny involve the way he treats current and former employees. It's hardly the way of Christ to live in comparative luxury while employees live in substandard housing and depend on government assistance to make ends meet.

That's the tip of the iceberg ...

This behavior smacks of another world-wide entity - the big box superstores. The big difference is that one should be not for profit, right?

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 7 2006, 03:38 AM)

Hi Inga: I don't think the quote about wheat and tares was me??? I may have responded to someone else and then commented, maybe peacefully bewildered? Not sure. I'll go check now! It's morning!

Yep, that was me.

Posted by: inga Sep 7 2006, 11:24 AM

QUOTE(Reflection @ Sep 7 2006, 06:59 AM)

Okay I'm awake now ,. I see what happened. It's my newbieness, even though it says I'm a regular member. I've not figured out everything technical yet. I responded to PeacefullyBewildered, and wanted to separate the two quotes and respond separately to both. I couldn't figure out how to do that so I cut and pasted and highlighted the second quote with a bright blue, my response below it in the regular font color. Someone help me. How should I have done that so that the quotes end up in the same box? I mean the same response box, with the quotes in different boxes. I noticed that sometimes when I respond to more than one person one after another, the program does it automatically, but not always. Do I sound confused! I am!

If you remember that quotes begin and end with square brackets around the following:
quote
/quote
you can figure it out for yourself. (If I had included the brackets, this wouldn't show up.) You can also have quotes within quotes.

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 7 2006, 10:10 AM)

Those who actually know him might be able to characterize him as a "thistle" but to the outside world at large he may look like a wheat with tare tendencies. Point taken, though.
It would be helpful to list the posters who actually work or have worked there. I would give much more credence to the accounts of those who have first-hand experience with the situation there.

I know that Johann, Barbara Kerr, sister, papertigers and beartrap fit this category. Am I missing some?

The one that comes immediately to mind is husbandoftheyear who is currently still working at 3ABN. There are others as well. It would be helpful for them to respond here.
Though not fitting in this category, Fran should be taken seriously too, especially when she writes on financial topics. She's a forensic accountant who has examined the financial records of 3ABN which are publicly available.

QUOTE

This behavior smacks of another world-wide entity - the big box superstores. The big difference is that one should be not for profit, right?

I should think that a "ministry" for Christ should demonstrate different principles of behavior than purely for-profit entities. How about you?

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 7 2006, 11:55 AM

QUOTE(inga @ Sep 7 2006, 09:24 AM)

The one that comes immediately to mind is husbandoftheyear who is currently still working at 3ABN. There are others as well. It would be helpful for them to respond here.
Though not fitting in this category, Fran should be taken seriously too, especially when she writes on financial topics. She's a forensic accountant who has examined the financial records of 3ABN which are publicly available.
I should think that a "ministry" for Christ should demonstrate different principles of behavior than purely for-profit entities. How about you?

Oh yes, I forgot seeing the husband is still there. I agree that Fran certainly is an expert in the financial area.

I think it is sad that either entity should treat employees this way and expect tax dollars to make up for what they should be doing. For a Christian ministry, it certainly is a taint on the character to follow such a worldly model.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 7 2006, 02:03 PM

When I was a teenager, my mother decided to become a vegetarian. Eventually I said, "Sure, why not." Then she decided to become a vegan, again I said, "Sure why not." Then she said only whole grain foods, and I said, "Sure, why not." Then she started saying you couldn't eat foods with vinegar, and I said, "Well, Okay.", But when she said, No spinach! I said "Whoa baby, Popeye does not lie!" And I decided I had to decide for myself what I was going to believe about diet, because you'll end up in a mess if you believe everything that's going around out there.

To me it's the same with this Danny and Linda thing. You know I've thought about the accusations that Sister and her crew have posted on this site. When I first read them I got caught up in the saga and I believed everything I read. Then the story started getting too strange. Accusations of child molestations, implications that his first wife's death was somehow his fault, I finally went "Whoa baby! Who are these people?" and had to sit back and think. I don't know these people from Adam. How do I know that they just don't have a vendetta against Danny? Since I'm not there, I don't know who is telling the truth. I would not doubt that he may be spending more then he should, because you know Danny, he has to defend himself, and he has been defending his salary for years. But when he was doing that, it was during the "Linda years". He didn't do all of this misappropriation just in the last 2 ½ years, so if there is fault, we must make sure both are at fault.

But I do want to add something that is a little off subject. I started reading this book this morning about true heart conversion. The kind you read about in mission stories where people have the true love of Christ in their lives, the kind that makes you kind to your children and keeps you from getting angry when people malign you and go out of their way to antagonize you. And I thought, 'Who do you know that has that kind of a true Christ filled life?' No body in these United States! Everybody I know talks about it, wants it, but does not Know how to, or want to do what it takes to get it. Why is it that the poor convert from the highlands of Nepal can have a true heart conversion and surrender all of the heart to Christ, but we poor saps in the good ol' US of A can't? Is it because we are too sophisticated for that? Well, until we can surrender all, we are no better than Danny, or anyone else who is living in sin, because an un-surrendered heart is an un-surrendered heart. We will all loose out in the judgment. Now I will add that a person in a high profile position has the responsibility to live a life above reproach so as not to bring condemnation on the church and he has not done that, especially with this remarriage business, but in the long run, the sin God hates the most is pride, and we in the USA are full of it.

Country

Posted by: Clay Sep 7 2006, 02:25 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 03:03 PM)

snip.....
To me it's the same with this Danny and Linda thing. You know I've thought about the accusations that Sister and her crew have posted on this site. When I first read them I got caught up in the saga and I believed everything I read. Then the story started getting too strange. Accusations of child molestations, implications that his first wife's death was somehow his fault, I finally went "Whoa baby! Who are these people?" and had to sit back and think. I don't know these people from Adam. How do I know that they just don't have a vendetta against Danny? Since I'm not there, I don't know who is telling the truth. I would not doubt that he may be spending more then he should, because you know Danny, he has to defend himself, and he has been defending his salary for years. But when he was doing that, it was during the "Linda years". He didn't do all of this misappropriation just in the last 2 ½ years, so if there is fault, we must make sure both are at fault.

snip.....

Country

f people were to share some of the dirty laundry that exists in their families I think you would be ;urprised at some of the things you would hear. You might her about murder plots, molestations, ntent to do harm to people, etc..... so that does not surprise me....

'here are 2 issues IMO. One, the divorce and the grounds for that divorce, and two, how 3abn)perates and has treated its employees.....

1y concern has always been that Mr. Shelton gave Linda the short end of the stick as far as the livorce was concerned AND then trashed her reputation after he got what he wanted.... His actions vere wrong on every level.

\s for 3ABN and how it operates, I think people tolerated some things because they felt a good work vas being done. I don't understand how good people would stay in a miserable situation because they hink 3abn was spreading the gospel, yet from the stories told, many did..... until they began to see he light.... I think now that their eyes have been opened they want others to see what they :xperienced.... of course, experience is subjective so that's what we have....

1aybe the picture would be different IF every employee shared their experience, but I don't see that ıappening....

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 7 2006, 03:48 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 01:03 PM)

SNIP
But when she said, No spinach! I said "Whoa baby, Popeye does not lie!" And I decided I had to decide for myself what I was going to believe about diet, because you'll end up in a mess if you believe everything that's going around out there.

To me it's the same with this Danny and Linda thing. You know I've thought about the accusations that Sister and her crew have posted on this site. When I first read them I got caught up in the saga and I believed everything I read. Then the story started getting too strange. Accusations of child molestations, implications that his first wife's death was somehow his fault, I finally went "Whoa baby! Who are these people?" and had to sit back and think. I don't know these people from Adam. How do I know that they just don't have a vendetta against Danny? Since I'm not there, I don't know who is telling the truth.
SNIP

:ountry, your entire post was full of excellent insights! As observers we really don't know who's telling he truth or who is spinning an agenda.

'eople in other lands may have a more sincere conversion than many of those in this country because hey have far fewer diversions that vie for their connection with God. My own personal opinion in this ırea is that the sin that God hates the most is ANY sin for it separates us from Him!

Posted by: Expression Sep 7 2006, 04:31 PM

First of all, to say that no one in the US is converted is a rather broad statement. What does it mean to be converted? Everyone has their own picture, I suppose, but to say that no one in the US has a committed relationship with God was quite startling to me.

As far as the idea of sin and an un-surrendered heart...

To say, "Well, we're all in the same boat" has been used countless times. Why is the idea so popular? Because it is an excuse. There is no excuse so appealing as one that is coated in "Christianity." However an excuse is an excuse--regardless.

Secondly, there are degrees of sin. A child lying to his teacher is very different from a teacher raping a child. To say all sin is the same is not Biblical and is a far cry from logic.

We have professed the name of Jesus. As such we are to call sin by it's right name. It's not simply a choice, this is our responsibility.

In regard to the idea that as observers we really can't know what's going on, who's running their own agenda, etc...

If we were really looking at the situation and understood what we were seeing we would have realized who was telling the truth. People have given first-hand accounts of Danny's actions towards Linda and have stated that Linda was being abused. We can stand back and say, "Well, we don't really know" or we can read the signs. Danny has given plenty of them if you know what to look for. For instance, he has played the victim (before the whole world), and put all the blame on Linda. Accounts such as Barbara's have been given incredible weight because of Danny's actions. It fits like a hand in a glove.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 7 2006, 05:21 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 01:03 PM)

To me it's the same with this Danny and Linda thing. You know I've thought about the accusations that Sister and her crew have posted on this site. When I first read them I got caught up in the saga and I believed everything I read. Then the story started getting too strange. Accusations of child molestations, implications that his first wife's death was somehow his fault, I finally went "Whoa baby! Who are these people?" and had to sit back and think. I don't know these people from Adam. How do I know that they just don't have a vendetta against Danny? Since I'm not there, I don't know who is telling the truth. I would not doubt that he may be spending more then he should, because you know Danny, he has to defend himself, and he has been defending his salary for years. But when he was doing that, it was during the "Linda years". He didn't do all of this misappropriation just in the last 2 ½ years, so if there is fault, we must make sure both are at fault.

Country

I have some serious problems with your comments. Yes, you were not there. Nor was I. So, you can continue to hold onto those thoughts....but if you were a wiser person, you might consider that just because you start to discover some things that were "behind the scenes" you can just discard them. There are reasons and ways they have come out. They will be verifed eventually, more then just the "testimony" of people who have no real reason to tell lies at all about 3abn. Do you honestly think that people would waste their precious time here telling lies, their expirences, this handful just to bring down a network? Do you think they think so highly of themselves that they could actually do that? They have nothing to gain at all except liberty and unity of being through and going through the same things...aren't they fortunate they have a place to do that....many felt there was no one or place where others could also "download" and compare....you have forgotten the dynamics of how things are done at 3abn - YOU DON'T TALK. There are accounts, witness' and legal docs. Whether you decide to accept them is your choice, natually, but, use your head. You seem to grasp some of Danny's "ways" by watching him - his character in a large part does show through...add things up. Now, I can't blame you for what you don't know, all the other details that you don't have, but there are those that do have them and are taking care of things. But, keep your mind open. Don't assume so much, or simplify things so much....you go to great lengths to make sure "both get blame". Sure, there is blame on both sides, but the degrees and motives are very different. Keep that in mind too. And btw, if you are someone who is trying to coworse people to give up their identities, just in case you work for the "other side", because they are quite desperate right now, you can forget that. You underestimate these people very much. They have nothing more to lose.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Sep 7 2006, 07:41 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 7 2006, 12:55 PM)

Oh yes, I forgot seeing the husband is still there. I agree that Fran certainly is an expert in the financial area.

How could you forget HOTY?

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 7 2006, 10:30 PM

I guess implying that all in the US are unconverted was a bit extreme. It's just that I was raised in the church and have been around Adventist institutions most of my life and have yet to find a person that I can personally say makes me think of what Christ is like. Even the soft spoken, sweet talking ultra-conservatives have issues with no answers. You know I heard James Rafferty say something one day that struck me. He said that when people quote. "This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come," that people forget that the main emphasis of that text is witness. People want to see the gospel lived in the lives of God's people.

Now my mother is an ultra conservative Adventist, and one day she was discussing religion with my Baptist sister-in-law. My sister-in-law said something that struck me and saddened me, but it was something I could not argue with. She stated that she didn't see any reason to become an Adventist, because the only difference between us and them was that we worshipped on a different day and had more rules. It struck me that she did not see any difference in us as people than the rest of the world and when I stopped and thought about it, I could not think of anybody I knew who was any different from the rest of the world. Not the wild in-you-face devilish world, but the rest of the conservative Christian world. It made me sad, but I didn't know what to do or how to answer her. But praise God, I think I may have found something. This book appears to have the answers, and if it does and my kids see a difference in me, and I can have that peace that passes ALL understanding, then hey!!!!

And you may be wondering what it is I'm looking for. Its THE light in the eyes, THE joy in the heart, and THE peace that passes ALL understanding. I when I find it, or someone with it, I'm sure I'll know it.

Country

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 7 2006, 11:23 PM

To Sonshineonme,

You probably feel as if I have been deliberately ignoring you. Well, I have. Why? Because I did not want to "go there", as they say. Well, here is my opinion as to what you have said. Danny needs a heart transplant. Linda needs a heart transplant. I need a heart transplant. Linda has class, Danny doesn't. So am I supposed to hate Danny because he is a sinner with no class and love Linda because she is a sinner with class? I think not. Last I checked my Bible said I was to "Love the unlovely." What more can I say? Sorry I couldn't be of more help.

CB

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 7 2006, 11:58 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 10:23 PM)

To Sonshineonme,

You probably feel as if I have been deliberately ignoring you. Well, I have. Why? Because I did not want to "go there", as they say. Well, here is my opinion as to what you have said. Danny needs a heart transplant. Linda needs a heart transplant. I need a heart transplant. Linda has class, Danny doesn't. So am I supposed to hate Danny because he is a sinner with no class and love Linda because she is a sinner with class? I think not. Last I checked my Bible said I was to "Love the unlovely." What more can I say? Sorry I couldn't be of more help.

CB

Actually, I never thought you were ignoring me. It matters not either way if you reply to my comments about your post. I have no clue how you arrived at your post here based on what I said.

Maybe you could just read what I wrote once more. Maybe you don't care to. My attempt to "help you" didn't seem to do the job. You say you don't want to go "there" - where is "there"??
You want to play the middle so much, you are afraid to say what is appearant? We are talking about someone who is influencing people everyday - across the world - that's a huge weight of accountibility to just treat so lightly. He's not just someone who is "not classy" but is outright deceiving people, and going to great lengths everyday to be TOTALLY BLAMELESS in ALL THINGS. I don't care that we all need heart transplants? That's nothing new under the sun for us sinners....lets stick to the issues. I told you that you should not discard things. You were sarcastic and blaming of others possibly having an agenda. "Sister and her crew" as you say.... I told you to remain open. I guess I don't understand your reply back....maybe it's better left alone.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 8 2006, 12:02 AM

Sonshineonme,

I like that name, it has so much meaning! Anyway, I meant to add this, but I forgot. If Danny has done all that you say he has, even with the plastic smile on his face, he has to feel a wretchedness in his soul, the weight of which I can't imagine. Now I don't know you and don't need to, but if you do work at 3ABN, and if you have had a heart transplant, let him not only see the Son shine on you, but let him see the Son shine through you! You may be the witness he needs to change his heart so that he can have the transplant he needs. Then everyone at 3ABN will know that there is a real and powerful God who can change even the craftiest sinner.

CB

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 12:12 AM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 11:02 PM)

Sonshineonme,

I like that name, it has so much meaning! Anyway, I meant to add this, but I forgot. If Danny has done all that you say he has, even with the plastic smile on his face, he has to feel a wretchedness in his soul, the weight of which I can't imagine. Now I don't know you and don't need to, but if you do work at 3ABN, and if you have had a heart transplant, let him not only see the Son shine on you, but let him see the Son shine through you! You may be the witness he needs to change his heart so that he can have the transplant he needs. Then everyone at 3ABN will know that there is a real and powerful God who can change even the craftiest sinner.

CB

Those are nice words. It would be nice if it worked that way. But like Pharoah, once his heart was hardened, very little would or could penetrate a persons hardend heart. Every day Dan makes another choice to harden it a bit more - stick to his guns. Nothing I can do, but pray for him, can help him soften.
Again, you have simplified things, and that's nice in a way, but at the same time, you have to also realize that mans heart sickness, namely selfishness and pride can seperate him from God. God does not leave, but God does become unable to reach a persons heart if that person continuously discards God's voice. Dan (and I have evidence of this) will NOT change his ways. He apparently has not hit bottom enough to do so. And some (and I have seen and wittnessed this as well) can be so ill-hearted that they will never, or should I say, choose never to change or make different choices. Do you understand what a sociopath is? A narcisist is? This has been talked about with some of my friends, can Dan change? Can he be helped? Will he ever be willing to own up, confess, repent and change his ways, his thinking, his actions? When a person lives in such a way to make choices everyday to put SELF first, while it can be done, remember, the person with the hardend heart has to WANT to change. Many don't want to and never intend to. It's just that simple. That is what choice is all about.

(pardon any typos, please)

Posted by: Clay Sep 8 2006, 12:33 AM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 10:30 PM)

I guess implying that all in the US are unconverted was a bit extreme. It's just that I was raised in the church and have been around Adventist institutions most of my life and have yet to find a person that I can personally say makes me think of what Christ is like. Even the soft spoken, sweet talking ultra-conservatives have issues with no answers. You know I heard James Rafferty say something one day that struck me. He said that when people quote. "This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come," that people forget that the main emphasis of that text is witness. People want to see the gospel lived in the lives of God's people.

snip.....
Country

'hat is interesting because I have met several people like that.... one in particular is T.Marshall Kelly, ›astor and singer.... when you meet Elder Kelly its like the love of God washes over you in waves..... hat man is not religious, he is spiritual, and after talking with him you get a sense of what 'elationship with God is really like..... there are others, but he stands out, and other people here on he forum may have met him and can vouch for what i am saying.....

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 8 2006, 01:50 AM

That is the reason it is so important for us to "live" Jesus and not just be "no different" than anyone else....

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 10:30 PM)

I guess implying that all in the US are unconverted was a bit extreme. It's just that I was raised in the church and have been around Adventist institutions most of my life and have yet to find a person that I can personally say makes me think of what Christ is like. Even the soft spoken, sweet talking ultra-conservatives have issues with no answers. You know I heard James Rafferty say something one day that struck me. He said that when people quote. "This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come," that people forget that the main emphasis of that text is witness. People want to see the gospel lived in the lives of God's people.

Now my mother is an ultra conservative Adventist, and one day she was discussing religion with my Baptist sister-in-law. My sister-in-law said something that struck me and saddened me, but it was something I could not argue with. She stated that she didn't see any reason to become an Adventist, because the only difference between us and them was that we worshipped on a different day and had more rules. It struck me that she did not see any difference in us as people than the rest of the world and when I stopped and thought about it, I could not think of anybody I knew who was any different from the rest of the world. Not the wild in-you-face devilish world, but the rest of the conservative Christian world. It made me sad, but I didn't know what to do or how to answer her. But praise God, I think I may have found something. This book appears to have the answers, and if it does and my kids see a difference in me, and I can have that peace that passes ALL understanding, then hey!!!!

And you may be wondering what it is I'm looking for. Its THE light in the eyes, THE joy in the heart, and THE peace that passes ALL understanding. I when I find it, or someone with it, I'm sure I'll know it.

Country

He truly is.... I have a video tape with a message that I will never forget personally, because of what was spoken by the Holy Spirit through him, just for me...

Elder Kelly is a Man of God, and God gives me a prophetic to speak....he has been a great source of spiritual encouragement and gave it all up to serve the Lord---a career as jazz singer and the works.....very inspirational.

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 8 2006, 12:33 AM)

That is interesting because I have met several people like that.... one in particular is T.Marshall Kelly, pastor and singer.... when you meet Elder Kelly its like the love of God washes over you in waves..... that man is not religious, he is spiritual, and after talking with him you get a sense of what relationship with God is really like..... there are others, but he stands out, and other people here on the forum may have met him and can vouch for what i am saying.....

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 8 2006, 09:49 AM

I must admit I have never met T. Marshal Kelly. I have heard him speak and I have appreciated his ministry on 3ABN, as to meeting him personally, I have not had the privilage. It's comforting to know that there are some that people can come in contact with and feel the presence of the Lord.
Thank you Clay.

Well, Sonshineonme,

As the Honburgers say, Simplify, Simplify, Simplify. I have found that if you let it, life becomes over complicated. I am also finding out that that also applies to the gospel. Back "in the day" things used to be black and white. Now there are so many shades of gray that there is not right and wrong any more. Well, I've decided to get back to basics. Either you are converted or you are not. Either you will face God in peace or you will not. I can't read the heart. I will not claim someone has gone too far, for as I judge, so shall it be judged unto me and I need all the mercy I can get.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 8 2006, 10:14 AM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Sep 7 2006, 06:41 PM)

How could you forget HOTY?

My bad, HOTY!

Posted by: September Sep 8 2006, 10:33 AM

As the Honburgers say, Simplify, Simplify, Simplify. I have found that if you let it, life becomes over complicated. I am also finding out that that also applies to the gospel. Back "in the day" things used to be black and white. Now there are so many shades of gray that there is not right and wrong any more. Well, I've decided to get back to basics. Either you are converted or you are not. Either you will face God in peace or you will not. I can't read the heart. I will not claim someone has gone too far, for as I judge, so shall it be judged unto me and I need all the mercy I can get.
[/quote]

The Bible does say that we will know them by their fruits. It's true, we do not sit in judgement regarding Danny or Linda--or anyone else for that matter. But we can often know a person's character by their actions (fruit). Comparing Dann's "fruit" with Linda's "Fruit" there is a vast difference. While he has publically trashed Linda and says he has proof for his accusations against her and yet fails to bring forth that evidence--his fruit is rotten! Linda on the other hand has kept silent, except for only speaking good of 3ABN and it's ministry. She has not publically slandered Danny. She has kept a very humble attitude about the whole thing--as devastating as it has been for her. Danny has always been so full of pride ever since I first watched him on 3ABN--I could tell that he relishes his position and the attention he gets. He also allowed people to sit around him several weeks ago on a "Live" program and declare that he was annointed by God--a man of God. He allowed John L. to say that to turn your back on Danny--God's annointed--was turning your back on God. A true man of God--a humble man of God would never allow that to be said! If Danny was indeed a man of God, he would have stopped John L right then and there and said, "NO! Don't look at me--look to God--do not equate me with God for I am not worthy!" But instead, he sat there with a smirk on his face, basking in it--taking it all in.

These are fruits that are very telling of a person's character. No, I'm not judging Danny--because that's God's job--but I'm saying that by Danny's fruits--the outpouring from his lips, actions, etc., he's in a very dangerous spot and he needs to repent.

We all have sinned--we all need a heart change. We can tell when one has had a heart change by the actions, words, etc., of such a person.

It's true that if we are in tune with the Heart of Christ that we will be different--that we will exude Christ. Satan either recoils at this--or he works harder. Either way, if we are in Christ we will not be moved! This is how I view Linda's position. She has a heart for Christ--always has. Satan isn't happy because Linda was helping people connect with Jesus on a heart level. He has been working harder at taking the rug out from underneath Linda, but Linda's testimony--her influence, her humble character cannot be moved as long as her heart is connected with Jesus. Nothing that Danny can do or say will change that fact.

"My hope is built on nothing less, than Jesus blood and righteousness...on Christ the solid rock I stand--all other ground is sinking sand"!

September

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 8 2006, 10:43 AM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 7 2006, 11:12 PM)

Those are nice words. It would be nice if it worked that way. But like Pharoah, once his heart was hardened, very little would or could penetrate a persons hardend heart. Every day Dan makes another choice to harden it a bit more - stick to his guns. Nothing I can do, but pray for him, can help him soften.
Again, you have simplified things, and that's nice in a way, but at the same time, you have to also realize that mans heart sickness, namely selfishness and pride can seperate him from God. God does not leave, but God does become unable to reach a persons heart if that person continuously discards God's voice. Dan (and I have evidence of this) will NOT change his ways. He apparently has not hit bottom enough to do so. And some (and I have seen and wittnessed this as well) can be so ill-hearted that they will never, or should I say, choose never to change or make different choices. Do you understand what a sociopath is? A narcisist is? This has been talked about with some of my friends, can Dan change? Can he be helped? Will he ever be willing to own up, confess, repent and change his ways, his thinking, his actions? When a person lives in such a way to make choices everyday to put SELF first, while it can be done, remember, the person with the hardend heart has to WANT to change. Many don't want to and never intend to. It's just that simple. That is what choice is all about.

(pardon any typos, please)

t's true that "By their fruits ye shall know them". I have read and reread your post and still believe hat we here on earth have no business trying to judge if a person's heart is hardened or so set in his vays that he can't be helped.

'ou mentioned that the only thing you can do is pray for him. I actually 100% heartily agree with this :tatement. 1John 5:16 - 17 states:
If anyone sees his brother commit a sin that does not lead to death, he should pray and God will give ıim life. I refer to those whose sin does not lead to death. There is a sin that leads to death. I am not ;aying that he should pray about that. 17All wrongdoing is sin, and there is sin that does not lead to leath. "

3oth Mark Finley and James Rafferty have spoken on this in the last few years. It has been a great :omfort to me to know that I can ask that the most powerful Force in the universe be directed to the ıearts of my loved ones simply by asking Him to do so.

Posted by: country bumpkin Sep 8 2006, 11:04 AM

I just have one question. How would you have judged Saul of Tarsus' fruit before the Damascus road experience. God alone can read the heart and he alone knows who is redeemable.

Posted by: simplysaved Sep 8 2006, 11:23 AM

Now that was an EXCELLENT point.... [x]

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 8 2006, 11:04 AM)

I just have one question. How would you have judged Saul of Tarsus' fruit before the Damascus road experience. God alone can read the heart and he alone knows who is redeemable.

Posted by: princessdi Sep 8 2006, 12:43 PM

Saul was doing according to what he had been taught. The followers of Jesus were considered enemies of the "church" at that point, therefore enemies of God. Unfortunately, he was taught by those who didn't have a clue.

Danny is being asked to acknowledge, answer, and repair, as far as possible, the many trangessions he has done against others. He is not unredemable as long as he beathes. I think I used the example of a child who spills his milk or breaks a window. They can apologize, but you, as a parent, will also tell them they need to clean up their mess, use their allowance to fix that window, etc. It is not enough to say you are sorry, and not make amends if you can.

Also, in my experience, those like Danny, will not even acknowledge their wrongs if you don't. They can even be aware that you know about them, but if you don't actually bring it to their direct attention, not only will they also act as if they have done nothing, their behavior will escalate(sp). Getting bolder with each new offense. At least Danny knows and can see in black and white that somebody knows about his errant ways, it is now up to him. If Danny did the right thing today, I don't think there is a person here who would continue to have a problem with him, but he has yet to even acknowledge that he has done wrong. He persists and perfers in playing the victim to those who are not fully aware of his many misdeeds. IOW, he is using the tool God allowed him to spread the Gospel to lead people astray and abusing his postion of trust. That is not acceptable.

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 8 2006, 10:04 AM)

I just have one question. How would you have judged Saul of Tarsus' fruit before the Damascus road experience. God alone can read the heart and he alone knows who is redeemable.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 01:28 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Sep 8 2006, 11:43 AM)

Saul was doing according to what he had been taught. The followers of Jesus were considered enemies of the "church" at that point, therefore enemies of God. Unfortunately, he was taught by those who didn't have a clue.

Danny is being asked to acknowledge, answer, and repair, as far as possible, the many trangessions he has done against others. He is not unredemable as long as he beathes. I think I used the example of a child who spills his milk or breaks a window. They can apologize, but you, as a parent, will also tell them they need to clean up their mess, use their allowance to fix that window, etc. It is not enough to say you are sorry, and not make amends if you can.

Also, in my experience, those like Danny, will not even acknowledge their wrongs if you don't. They can even be aware that you know about them, but if you don't actually bring it to their direct attention, not only will they also act as if they have done nothing, their behavior will escalate(sp). Getting bolder with each new offense. At least Danny knows and can see in black and white that somebody knows about his errant ways, it is now up to him. If Danny did the right thing today, I don't think there is a person here who would continue to have a problem with him, but he has yet to even acknowledge that he has done wrong. He persists and perfers in playing the victim to those who are not fully aware of his many misdeeds. IOW, he is using the tool God allowed him to spread the Gospel to lead people astray and abusing his postion of trust. That is not acceptable.

Well said Di! Thanks for covering it so well - I was ready to jump in and then saw your post. Lets home all this "simplifying" in order to remove the "gray areas" does not send us back to another extreme where we just want to grab on to the easy answers and move on. Things are not that simple. The devil doesn't operate that simply, we better not think that simply.

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 01:46 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 8 2006, 09:43 AM)

It's true that "By their fruits ye shall know them". I have read and reread your post and still believe that we here on earth have no business trying to judge if a person's heart is hardened or so set in his ways that he can't be helped.

If an axe murderer walks up to you and hits you in the back with an axe, would you believe he is an axe murderer even if you didn't see him kill someone else? How many people would he have to kill to reach the line of "hardened"? Even if someone is hardend, can he still repent? Of course he can, IF he is WILLING to do so. IF you have someone that is NOT willing, what then? Can you then say "he has a hardend heart'? What's wrong with aknowledging that someones character reflects a hardened heart? It is a fact that we were shown what that is by Pharoahs example (and some others too). Do we not get the right to also say that? Why is this not a "simple" way to look at it?

Have you ever sat on a jury? Have you ever had evidence put in front of you that is ugly but true? Do you just turn away and say "well, only God knows and I have no right to make a judgement".

Do not confuse someones behavior with this "don't judge" thing. These are seperate and should be realized what each is. God is the final judge in the hearts of man kind, but he certainly didn't say "and by the way, you can make no laws, and my 10 commandements really mean nothing either because you can't see the heart, so just go on your merry way and let me do all the thinking and punishment". God has gone to a lot of trouble to help us see RIGHT AND WRONG. Now lets not waste this education. When someone commits crimes, there should be accountability. When someone commits wrongs against another person (s), there tends to be an eventual consequences from society or the person it's done to.

and CB, while this may not be "back in the day" where things were black and white, keep in mind that type of thinking, which was extremely unhealthy, is what has led us to the gray areas we are in now - allowing for this and that....and sometimes, grace is actually in there now (thank goodness). My fear is that people can't handle thinking things through - they like to be told, black and white, makes it so simple. That is what complicates things - because if we would realize that God looks at us each INDIVIDUALLY, why can't we also do that? It is always good to understand situations as much as possible, because we can learn from them, just like knowing details of so many of those bible characters we read about - things were not black and white then, and they shouldn't be so now. When it comes to laws, they must be kept. If you break them, well, you pay the price. You seem to have mixed every thing together...."either you are converted or you're not". This is true. And we can't know if someone is or not, not really, but we sure can tell who looks more like the devils ways of doing things, and who looks more like Jesus. What would you call that? Don't you have a right to make a determination? I think so. It's called using commen sense and your brain. It's a nice combination when you have to make judgements about things. Be wise....as God has told us, now how can we do that if we don't assess and annalyze things that happen before us?

(please pardon my typos, I keep waiting for the spellcheck to come back she says oh so patiently) things have never been black and white.... only our perceptions of things..... God told Adam and Eve, you disobey, you die..... the moment they did disobey He said, well, hold on, because I love you, there is a way that you will still be able to one day live with me forever.... God introduced the gray the moment sin entered in..... and his mercy and grace continues to do so.....

Posted by: Clay Sep 8 2006, 03:06 PM

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 8 2006, 03:54 PM

> QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 01:46 PM)
>
> Have you ever sat on a jury? Have you ever had evidence put in front of you that is ugly but true? Do you just turn away and say "Well, only God knows and I have no right to make a judgement".

Many of us have watched the person ahead of us on the highway weaving all over the road, and we make a judgment on observations, and then we act on those observations. Whether that intoxicated person comes to the Lord at a later date has nothing to do with whether we take the car keys away from an intoxicated person.

I would go so far as to say you have a moral obligation to confiscate the car keys from the intoxicated person in that situation, if you are in a position to do so. We all make judgment calls every day based on what we see in front of us.

We really don't have to go so far as to make a judgment about the person's relationship - or future relationship -- with the Lord. I think we're reading too much into "judging people by their fruits." All we have to see is that the person is capable of inflicting damage, or has done so in the past, and is likely to do it again. And sometimes, we decide this person should not be driving the school bus.

Metaphorically speaking, some people just think we need some new bus drivers here and there. Do we really need to re-write biblical doctrine before we grab the keys from a drunk?

Posted by: inga Sep 8 2006, 05:02 PM

> QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 01:12 AM)
>
> Dan (and I have evidence of this) will NOT change his ways. He apparently has not hit bottom enough to do so.

This brings me back to the question I asked earlier, "Who will minister to Danny?"

His "supporters" are actually supporting him on the way to hell. If any really cared for him, they would know that he has to be allowed to "hit bottom" so he is forced to look up (to God), instead of just pretending daily that God speaks to him and gives him specific directions in everything he does. (I say "pretending" because the God I know doesn't direct people to do the dishonest and mean things Danny did and does.)

Posted by: Reflection Sep 8 2006, 06:47 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 10:30 PM)

But praise God, I think I may have found something. This book appears to have the answers, and if it does and my kids see a difference in me, and I can have that peace that passes ALL understanding, then hey!!!!
Country

Country: Did I miss a post? What book are you referring to? Thanks!

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 8 2006, 07:19 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 12:46 PM)

What's wrong with aknowledging that someones character reflects a hardened heart?

You have the right to your opinions as do I. It is my opinion that only God truly knows the condition of a person's heart. It is my opinion that we can see evidences of their separation from God by their behavior.

As a fairly naive young woman far from home I struck up a deep friendship with a man serving in the Peace Corps. One weekend I went to his village and spent the entire weekend with him. I knew he was a worldly man but he felt like a dear big brother to me. I loved and respected him. We slept in the same bed (his was the only one with a mosquito net) and he never tried to be more than a good friend to me. When the mission doctor found I was not at home he came to find me and thought the worst. Soon, the whole compound believed that I was a fornicator when the only thing I was guilty of was poor judgement.

My point is God knew the true situation - those around me only thought they did.

Posted by: calvin Sep 8 2006, 07:31 PM

QUOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 11:30 PM)

I guess implying that all in the US are unconverted was a bit extreme. It's just that I was raised in the church and have been around Adventist institutions most of my life and have yet to find a person that I can personally say makes me think of what Christ is like. Even the soft spoken, sweet talking ultra-conservatives have issues with no answers. You know I heard James Rafferty say something one day that struck me. He said that when people quote. "This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all the world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come," that people forget that the main emphasis of that text is witness. People want to see the gospel lived in the lives of God's people.

And you may be wondering what it is I'm looking for. Its THE light in the eyes, THE joy in the heart, and THE peace that passes ALL understanding. I when I find it, or someone with it, I'm sure I'll know it.

Country

QUOTE(Clay @ Sep 8 2006, 01:33 AM)

That is interesting because I have met several people like that.... one in particular is T.Marshall Kelly, pastor and singer.... when you meet Elder Kelly its like the love of God washes over you in waves..... that man is not religious, he is spiritual, and after talking with him you get a sense of what relationship with God is really like..... there are others, but he stands out, and other people here on the forum may have met him and can vouch for what i am saying.....

Clay I find it more than interesting but absolutely amazing that someone could grow up in the Adventist church into adulthood and can't find anyone that exemplifies the character of Christ. I mean no one that you have seen the effect of the working of the Holy Spirit in their life. Mercy, what kind of people your been hanging around? The number is countless for me. Country, I need to introduce you to my mother, the most praying-est woman I know and my 99 year old grandmother they are always have a song in there heart and never pass up an opportunity to witness of the goodness of the Lord and more important they live the life everyday. Next my two brothers come to mind, knowing what rascals we where growing up, seeing them as God fearing men, local elders, changed men that could come from the power of the Holy Spirit and Bible study, and a prayer life. I have witnessed first hand working as a Bible worker in evangelistic campaigns folks lives changed, they throw off those bad habits of drugs, alcohol, smoking, they don't think or talk like they used too, they become changed people again through the power of the Holy Spirit. I think of Sisters Rogers and Adkins in my Sabbath School class, these women really enjoy the whole worship experience, and studying the Bible, it is evident in there faces. Elder Kelly comes to mind too, but I can think of many other pastors as well.

In fact I am not the same Calvin I was 20 years ago.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Sep 8 2006, 07:55 PM

Amen, Calvin!

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 08:25 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 8 2006, 06:19 PM)

You have the right to your opinions as do I. It is my opinion that only God truly knows the condition of a person's heart. It is my opinion that we can see evidences of their separation from God by their behavior.

As a fairly naive young woman far from home I struck up a deep friendship with a man serving in the Peace Corps. One weekend I went to his village and spent the entire weekend with him. I knew he was a worldly man but he felt like a dear big brother to me. I loved and respected him. We slept in the same bed (his was the only one with a mosquito net) and he never tried to be more than a good friend to me. When the mission doctor found I was not at home he came to find me and thought the worst. Soon, the whole compound believed that I was a fornicator when the only thing I was guilty of was poor judgement.

My point is God knew the true situation - those around me only thought they did.

'ou are talking about someone making a judgement based on things that could be different. Like, ;peculation and heresay.
am talking FACTS. Evidence. Testimony.
\nd I can tell you, whether you are doing the right thing or not, when you give the appearance of vrong doing, you place yourself in the position of being (fairly) judged. That's life. Now, if you have 'eally did nothing wrong (such as your situation, and even "wrong" could even be redefinied as it may ıot be the right thing to even sleep in the same bed because it's usually not a good idea anyway) then 'ou have nothing to worry about - who cares what people think, because you know. Well, if you are :omparing yourself to Dan Shelton, we are talking apples and oranges. Things are not the same, and if 'ou can't see that, then maybe someday, given more information???? you just might have to finally see it". We can't ball all situations together. I feel like I am just repeating myself, maybe I am not ;aying it clearly, but you seem to resist evidence of testimony to help you know facts of a situation - ınd you seem to want to find a way NOT to believe something is so. Whatever comparison you have o make.
)ne other thing, just for the record, I have stories like your own - my own stories, and I have had to ;ndure what people thought, and my endure took paying a price because of how people judged me by vhat they "thought" I was doing, when I knew clearly I was not doing what they thought....and the)eople were mean, did terrible things that affected my life very much. I can still say without any loubt, I knew that I was certainly not doing anything that I was accused or thought doing. Some hings might have given the appearance of evil (to some, though they are the type to judge people as ı rule) It's hard to say if I would do things differently because I did do it the first time of clear :onscience - but I did not realize people would be so unchristian in their treatment. Now I know. And ıow I would be more careful because I know (have learned) how people can be....I would make better ınd more careful choices. Probably. Well, I don't know, I do sometimes feel that people should mind heir own business, or ask me instead of judging ne...but we can't escape how people can behave, can ve. And then there are people who really don't care, will find something about you, or cause problems ;ither way....anyway, again, we are talking apples and oragnes when talking of an open, clear, vitnessed situations regarding DS. I am not stupid, I can use my head, and I CAN judge someone by heir ways of living their life. They put it out there, live it, it's my right to call it as it is, and as it is ;een. Don't you see the difference?

)UOTE(country bumpkin @ Sep 7 2006, 11:30 PM)

guess implying that all in the US are unconverted was a bit extreme. It's just that I was raised in the :hurch and have been around Adventist institutions most of my life and have yet to find a person that can personally say makes me think of what Christ is like. Even the soft spoken, sweet talking ultra-:onservatives have issues with no answers. You know I heard James Rafferty say something one day hat struck me. He said that when people quote. "This gospel of the kingdom will be preached in all he world for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come," that people forget that the main ;mphasis of that text is witness. People want to see the gospel lived in the lives of God's people.

\nd you may be wondering what it is I'm looking for. Its THE light in the eyes, THE joy in the heart, ınd THE peace that passes ALL understanding. I when I find it, or someone with it, I'm sure I'll know t.

:ountry

QUOTE(calvin @ Sep 8 2006, 06:31 PM)

Clay I find it more than interesting but absolutely amazing that someone could grow up in the Adventist church into adulthood and can't find anyone that exemplifies the character of Christ. I mean no one that you have seen the effect of the working of the Holy Spirit in their life. Mercy, what kind of people your been hanging around? The number is countless for me. Country, I need to introduce you to my mother, the most praying-est woman I know and my 99 year old grandmother they are always have a song in there heart and never pass up an opportunity to witness of the goodness of the Lord and more important they live the life everyday. Next my two brothers come to mind, knowing what rascals we where growing up, seeing them as God fearing men, local elders, changed men that could come from the power of the Holy Spirit and Bible study, and a prayer life. I have witnessed first hand working as a Bible worker in evangelistic campaigns folks lives changed, they throw off those bad habits of drugs, alcohol, smoking, they don't think or talk like they used too, they become changed people again through the power of the Holy Spirit. I think of Sisters Rogers and Adkins in my Sabbath School class, these women really enjoy the whole worship experience, and studying the Bible, it is evident in there faces. Elder Kelly comes to mind too, but I can think of many other pastors as well.

In fact I am not the same Calvin I was 20 years ago.

Amen Clay and Steve, and I feel bad for you CB. Makes me wonder what kind of standard you really expect from people - the Jesus you say you know....whatever you are complaring for the sake of comparing. Jesus was sinless, we are not, do you allow for this? What kind of legalism were you raised with? Sounds like you do an awful lot of judging about those around you, who ever you are around.....do you allow grace, growth and any allowance for sinful natures? Seems to me that if you are worried about us judging DS, you seem to be doing some of this yourself, IDN, JMO I guess.

Posted by: PeacefullyBewildered Sep 8 2006, 09:08 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 06:25 PM)

You are talking about someone making a judgement based on things that could be different. Like, speculation and heresay.
I am talking FACTS. Evidence. Testimony.
And I can tell you, whether you are doing the right thing or not, when you give the appearance of wrong doing, you place yourself in the position of being (fairly) judged. That's life. I am not stupid, I can use my head, and I CAN judge someone by their ways of living their life. They put it out there, live it, it's my right to call it as it is, and as it is seen. Don't you see the difference?

Those folks who judged me saw the facts:
1. I had spent the weekend alone with a person of the opposite sex
2. The man had a reputation for being promiscuous (a fact I was not privy to, tho I was later to find out that most Peace Corps of the era were doing the same thing)
3. Therefore, I must be having sex with the man.

Although I stated my innocence and agreed that the appearance of evil was bad they were still convinced I had been carnal with the fellow, banned him from the mission compound and eventually even tested me for STDs.

I know there are facts out there that have been seen by many as well as all of the testimony of those who have worked or are still working in the situation. And, once again, you are free to have your own opinions and make whatever judgements you feel are valid.

As for me, I can judge the situation as I see it but I cannot judge if the man's heart is hardened and I don't believe anyone apart from God Himself is privvy to that condition. That's my opinion.

Posted by: inga Sep 8 2006, 09:53 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Sep 8 2006, 09:25 PM)

And you may be wondering what it is I'm looking for. Its THE light in the eyes, THE joy in the heart, and THE peace that passes ALL understanding. I when I find it, or someone with it, I'm sure I'll know it.

Country
Amen Clay and Steve, and I feel bad for you CB. Makes me wonder what kind of standard you really expect from people - the Jesus you say you know....whatever you are complaring for the sake of comparing. Jesus was sinless, we are not, do you allow for this? What kind of legalism were you raised with? Sounds like you do an awful lot of judging about those around you, who ever you are around.....do you allow grace, growth and any allowance for sinful natures? Seems to me that if you are worried about us judging DS, you seem to be doing some of this yourself, IDN, JMO I guess.

Sonshineonme, you may have something there. It's called "projecting" - projecting one's own behavior (in this case harsh judging) on others.

I, too, was startled when CB said she had never met anyone who demonstrated the work of the Holy Spirit in their lives -- no one with the light in their eyes, the joy in their hearts and the peace only God can give. I find that difficult to comprehend unless CB is looking for something that's not possible to find on this earth ...

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 8 2006, 11:08 PM

QUOTE(PeacefullyBewildered @ Sep 8 2006, 08:08 PM)

Those folks who judged me saw the facts:
1. I had spent the weekend alone with a person of the opposite sex
2. The man had a reputation for being promiscuous (a fact I was not privy to, tho I was later to find out that most Peace Corps of the era were doing the same thing)
3. Therefore, I must be having sex with the man.

Although I stated my innocence and agreed that the appearance of evil was bad they were still convinced I had been carnal with the fellow, banned him from the mission compound and eventually even tested me for STDs.

I know there are facts out there that have been seen by many as well as all of the testimony of those who have worked or are still working in the situation. And, once again, you are free to have your own opinions and make whatever judgements you feel are valid.

As for me, I can judge the situation as I see it but I cannot judge if the man's heart is hardened and I don't believe anyone apart from God Himself is privvy to that condition. That's my opinion.

'ou were treated harshly, and unfortunately, this happends often when it shouldn't. I've been there, I ınderstand. But maybe they didn't know you well enough to beleive you? Or maybe they just follow he rules no matter what - and what's wrose, trying being in a christian envioronment where you vould expect people to treat you with a christian attitude and they do just the oppisite for various 'easons.

can still tell you that when a man/women RESISTS repentance (repeatedly) that is a sign of a ıardend heart. That is a fact you can not get around. And you are certainly entitled to your opinion, as ım I. I have much reason to feel valid in my opinion as well. Luckily, those people are few and far ›etween, and some are quite obvious, while others, well, it eventually shows through by cause and ıffect.

Posted by: beartrap Sep 9 2006, 01:02 AM

Sometimes as one looks outward, they need to look inward. At the same time Danny was accusing Linda of spending hours of time on the phone with Dr. Abrahamsen, he was spending many hours late at night with Brenda Walsh... alone with her. I, and many others, saw his red Dodge truck, and tan Suburban SUV at the church building with her Mercedes car, many times as late as early in the AM. Was he having spiritual or physical adultery with her? God knows, but he was physically with her for all those hours, and he accuses Linda of adultery for speakng on the phone.

As the accusations are hurtled at Linda stating that phone card records show she spoke on the phone with Dr. Abrahamsen, how about requesting Danny's Verizon mobile phone records for 618-218-* showing how many hours he spent on the phone with Brenda's 865-776-* mobile phone during that very same period of time. Seems that what applies to the goose should apply to the gander, shouldn't it?

Posted by: lurker Sep 9 2006, 05:40 AM

And that tells us about the situation in her marriage what Linda may have been asking a counselor for help about. She had said at the beginning that the situation involved high profile people at 3ABN and that is why she felt she couldn't counsel with anyone there and had to talk to someone "safe".

Posted by: fallible humanbeing Sep 9 2006, 08:01 AM

QUOTE(beartrap @ Sep 9 2006, 02:02 AM)

As the accusations are hurtled at Linda stating that phone card records show she spoke on the phone with Dr. Abrahamsen, how about requesting Danny's Verizon mobile phone records for 618-218-* showing how many hours he spent on the phone with Brenda's 865-776-* mobile phone during that very same period of time. Seems that what applies to the goose should apply to the gander, shouldn't it?

Don't you think putting phone numbers out there is rather unethical? Yes, you did leave off the last two digits - but you drastically reduced the permutation so that someone who has a little time might work it out. Seems like, while not stepping over the line, you have your toes firmly on the other side.

- fhb

Posted by: awesumtenor Sep 9 2006, 02:46 PM

> QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 9 2006, 10:01 AM)
>
> Don't you think putting phone numbers out there is rather unethical? Yes, you did leave off the last two digits - but you drastically reduced the permutation so that someone who has a little time might work it out. Seems like, while not stepping over the line, you have your toes firmly on the other side.
>
> - fhb

Just once I'd like you to not "not see the forest for the trees". Now that you've picked your nit, explain why the conversations Danny had with Brenda or any other woman not his wife were not evidence of his own infidelity, if we do according to Matthew 7 and judge him by the same measure by which he judged Linda?

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Panama_Pete Sep 9 2006, 03:57 PM

> QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 9 2006, 09:01 AM)
>
> Don't you think putting phone numbers out there is rather unethical? Yes, you did leave off the last two digits - but you drastically reduced the permutation so that someone who has a little time might work it out. Seems like, while not stepping over the line, you have your toes firmly on the other side.
>
> - fhb

Beartrap was identifying exactly which phone numbers to check.

If he had gone the other way and not identified them, you would have said his argument was weak, because these folks might have several phones, etc., etc., etc., and someone might check the wrong telephones, etc.,etc., etc. And if they are unlisted, how would he even have those numbers, etc., etc., etc.

To your credit, you did skillfully avoid the context of the post, which is that Brenda and Danny most likely had quite a few of those "spiritual adultery" phone calls of their own.

So, when it comes to "the other side," you need look no further than your own front door.

Posted by: Clay Sep 9 2006, 04:00 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Sep 9 2006, 03:57 PM)

Beartrap was identifying exactly which phone numbers to check.

If he had gone the other way and not identified them, you would have said his argument was weak, because these folks might have several phones, etc., etc., etc., and someone might check the wrong telephones, etc.,etc., etc. And if they are unlisted, how would he even have those numbers, etc., etc., etc.

To your credit, you did skillfully avoid the context of the post, which is that Brenda and Danny most likely had quite a few of those "spiritual adultery" phone calls of their own.

So, when it comes to "the other side," you need look no further than your own front door.

I noticed that too... never dealt with the actions of Mr. Shelton which were questionable.... just reacted to the phone numbers....

Posted by: sonshineonme Sep 9 2006, 04:35 PM

QUOTE(fallible humanbeing @ Sep 9 2006, 07:01 AM)

