

182

Printable Version of Topic

Click here to view this topic in its original format

BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ Why All The Sensationalism

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 23 2006, 07:59 AM

This question is being asked of me over at MSDAOL, therefore, I created a topic on it there, and thought I would also create a similar one here, as I too am now wondering, why all this sensationalism?

Why not present the facts of it all, instead of facts mixed with fiction, etc.???

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Aug 23 2006, 08:01 AM

Because what started this off was a big piece of fiction.

What starts something off normally ends up being sprinkled in it all....

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 23 2006, 08:04 AM

Fiction shouldn't be mingled with truth, just as truth shouldn't be mixed with error.

Fiction mixed with truth is the work of the devil, and do we want to be associated with the devil's tactics?

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 08:06 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 09:04 AM) □

Fiction shouldn't be mingled with truth, just as truth shouldn't be mixed with error.

Fiction mixed with truth is the work of the devil, and do we want to be associated with the devil's tactics?

and you believe that you possess the total truth? About anything? Everything we have contains some error... the only person who has total unadulterated truth is The Creator.... everyone else is suspect.... so while you may believe its a black and white world, it is not...

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 23 2006, 08:11 AM

I am talking about known fiction that is being posted in the form of sensationalism.

To copy from somebody over at MSDAOL:

QUOTE

It just seems like we are straying away from facts and into the world of speculation and sensationalism with the following: "Back at the compound, the Televangelist leans back in a large couch. His eyes drift over to where a new step-daughter is playing and his lips curl in a slight smile. He reaches over and pats his new wife on the thigh, as he watches the little girl play. Memory takes him back over the years to another step-daughter."

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 08:20 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 09:11 AM)

I am talking about known fiction that is being posted in the form of sensationalism.

To copy from somebody over at MSDAOL:

was that posted as "fact?" does not the narrative it comes from claim to be a work of fiction?

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 23 2006, 08:26 AM

To quote part of a post by watchbird:

QUOTE

"The Televangelist" is a very unique document in that it names no names, gives no dates, and claims to be a work of fiction. However, the lines which make that claim are the only purely fictional lines in the whole work, and were added after the work was completed at the advice of legal counsel. There are, to be sure, "fictionalized" lines within the document, that is lines where the story is told through the vehicle of the thoughts of the Televangelist as he supposedly reminisces or plans.

It's the last sentence in the above quote that concerns me, as this is stated as known fiction, which I am asking, why does it even need to be there?

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 08:53 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 09:26 AM)

To quote part of a post by watchbird:

It's the last sentence in the above quote that concerns me, as this is stated as known fiction, which I am asking, why does it even need to be there?

I have no idea and I would tend to be like you (if you remember my earlier posts on this topic) give me the facts and let me digest them.... I don't like dramatic stories in narrative form when there are facts to be had.... if I want to read a fictional account I will go to the store and buy a book written by one of my fav authors....

Posted by: watchbird Aug 23 2006, 09:53 AM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 08:26 AM)

To quote part of a post by watchbird:

"The Televangelist" is a very unique document in that it names no names, gives no dates, and claims to be a work of fiction. However, the lines which make that claim are the only purely fictional lines in the whole work, and were added after the work was completed at the advice of legal counsel. There are, to be sure, "fictionalized" lines within the document, that is lines where the story is told through the vehicle of the thoughts of the Televangelist as he supposedly reminisces or plans. "

It's the last sentence in the above quote that concerns me, as this is stated as known fiction, which I am asking, why does it even need to be there?

As I have said before there is a difference between "fiction" and "fictionalized". Fiction means something that is not true. Fictionalized means something that is true which is written in the STYLE of fiction, and for the purpose of giving depth of feeling and breadth of context to the facts which are being stated in this literary genre.

As to the general answer to the question of why it was written in this style: The facts had already been presented in staid prose and with names attached to various individuals especially to those in positions of church leadership. (According to Matt. 18 principles.) They were completely ignored, or worse, the facts were taken back to the principal persons involved, who claimed that all were lies and those who were trying to inform were persecuted the more for their efforts, including threats of lawsuits of various kinds.

It was in this atmosphere and with the advice of Legal Counsel that the author of The Televangelist wrote out the facts of a wide variety of problems in a "fictionalized" manner, hoping to get more people to read, ask questions, and hopefully not quit asking questions until they found out the truths that were partially revealed by this method.

It is a matter of history though largely an untold and untellable history that it did indeed accomplish its purpose. And the answers that were found when people started digging far overshadowed the pale "fictionalized" pictures that were sketched out in The Televangelist. More than one person since then has exclaimed, "The Truth is stranger than fiction."

That continues to this day and if you think that The Televangelist is overly "sensational" and "dramatic", then I can only say that this is because you haven't yet found all the factual stories that are incompletely sketched so dimly and unemotionally by the author of The Televangelist.

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 10:06 AM the problem is that people will conclude that whatever is contained in a fictionalized style of writing is in essence true, but the names have been withheld or changed....

Posted by: awesumtenor Aug 23 2006, 10:09 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 23 2006, 09:53 AM)

I have no idea and I would tend to be like you (if you remember my earlier posts on this topic) give me the facts and let me digest them.... I don't like dramatic stories in narrative form when there are facts to be had.... if I want to read a fictional account I will go to the store and buy a book written by one of my fav authors....

In the hyper-litigious atmosphere in which public discourse occurs in this society, sometimes the Jack Webb "just the facts, ma'am" style is not prudent. A lot of truth has been buried because the person wishing to bury it has deep enough pockets to keep court proceedings ongoing enough that the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth never sees the light of day.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 10:11 AM

QUOTE(awesumtenor @ Aug 23 2006, 11:09 AM)

In the hyper-litigious atmosphere in which public discourse occurs in this society, sometimes the Jack Webb "just the facts, ma'am" style is not prudent. A lot of truth has been buried because the person wishing to bury it has deep enough pockets to keep court proceedings ongoing enough that the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth never sees the light of day.

In His service,
Mr. J

true... doesn't stop me from preferring that method though....

Posted by: awesumtenor Aug 23 2006, 10:19 AM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 23 2006, 11:11 AM)

true... doesn't stop me from preferring that method though....

i agree with you that your preference is the "preferred method"... however, one has to be enough of a pragmatist to understand that sometimes that just wont work.. no matter how earnestly it is preferred.

In His service,
Mr. J

Posted by: princessdi Aug 23 2006, 11:35 AM

Well, now, this is just me, but was there really a man who had two sons and the younger took his inheritance and wasted on "riotous" living, etc., coin, lost sheep(we know the stories)? Or did Jesus also couch the truth within fiction so it would be better understood by all? Apparently, Jesus did believe the "just the facts" approach was prudent either.

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 07:26 AM)

To quote part of a post by watchbird:

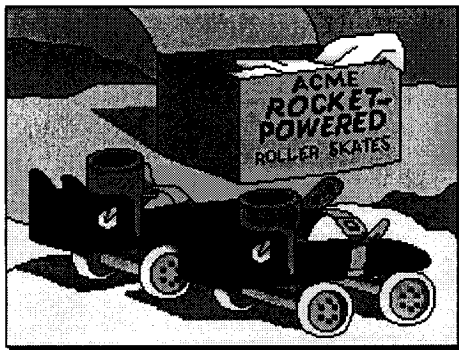

It's the last sentence in the above quote that concerns me, as this is stated as known fiction, which I am asking, why does it even need to be there?

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 11:38 AM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 23 2006, 12:35 PM)

Well, now, this is just me, but was there really a man who had two sons and the younger took his inheritance and wasted on "riotous" living, etc., coin, lost sheep(we know the stories)? Or did Jesus also couch the truth within fiction so it would be better understood by all? Apparently, Jesus did believe the "just the facts" approach was prudent either.

see you are hellbound... with rocket rollerskates on... how dare you question a parable given by Jesus....

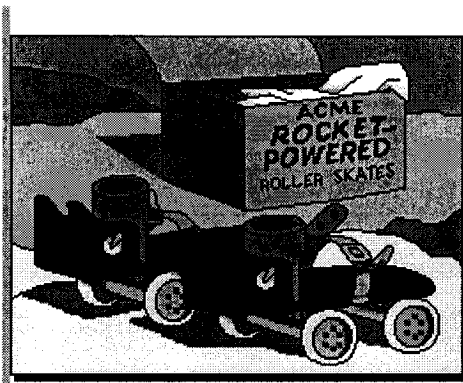

Posted by: princessdi Aug 23 2006, 11:55 AM

LOL!!! See! Now I wasn't questioning the parables or even their use, but saying that actually, Televangelist is akin to them. As they couch the truth in fiction in order to make it better understood. I believe the disciples asked Jesus about why He used those stories, and didn't He say that the people would understand better if the message was put in everyday terms they can in which they are familiar. I see nothing wrong with it.

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 23 2006, 10:38 AM)

see you are hellbound... with rocket rollerskates on... how dare you question a parable given by Jesus....

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 12:00 PM

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 23 2006, 11:55 AM)

LOL!!! See! Now I wasn't questioning the parables or even their use, but saying that actually, Televangelist is akin to them. As they couch the truth in fiction in order to make it better understood. I believe the disciples asked Jesus about why He used those stories, and didn't He say that the people would understand better if the message was put in everyday terms they can in which they are familiar. I see nothing wrong with it.

ocket rollerskates.... thats all I'm sayin....

Posted by: Hersheys99 Aug 23 2006, 12:02 PM

Well I'm with you on this one Di so guess I need a pair of them there skates too!!

Posted by: Clay Aug 23 2006, 12:05 PM

QUOTE(Hersheys99 @ Aug 23 2006, 01:02 PM)

Well I'm with you on this one Di so guess I need a pair of them there skates too!!

here are some in your size too..... heathens I tell ya...

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 23 2006, 12:33 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 23 2006, 10:53 AM)

It was in this atmosphere and with the advice of Legal Counsel that the author of The Televangelist wrote out the facts of a wide variety of problems in a "fictionalized" manner, hoping to get more people to read, ask questions, and hopefully not quit asking questions until they found out the truths that were partially revealed by this method.

It is a matter of history though largely an untold and untellable history that it did indeed accomplish its purpose. And the answers that were found when people started digging far overshadowed the pale "fictionalized" pictures that were sketched out in The Televangelist. More than one person since then has exclaimed, "The Truth is stranger than fiction."

That continues to this day and if you think that The Televangelist is overly "sensational" and "dramatic", then I can only say that this is because you haven't yet found all the factual stories that are incompletely sketched so dimly and unemotionally by the author of The Televangelist.

At the end of June, we talked about what Watchbird coined as the Daryl Fawcett "fact book." I also mentioned at that time that I hoped you (Daryl Fawcett) would not be disappointed when the various parties did not produce "film at eleven."

However, now I see you have created a topic of facts versus sensationalism. Is some disappointment starting to set in?

Does Jesus say in John 8:32 "And you shall know the bare facts, and the bare facts shall make you free."?

Or does He speak of truth?

For instance, the overwhelming truth of this situation goes beyond whether we print the names of the private investigators who followed Arild Abrahamsen and Johann Thorvaldsson after they were expelled from the 3ABN Campmeeting.

Remember, since this campmeeting occurred on a weekend, these private investigators were most likely hired by Garwin McNeilus and Danny Shelton to work on the Sabbath. So, why not just fictionalize them?

However, we are in the process of collecting enough information to know what happened.

Posted by: Daryl Fawcett Aug 23 2006, 01:41 PM

I didn't say to name names.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 23 2006, 01:47 PM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 01:41 PM)

I didn't say to name names.

voted. Thanks for the clarification.

was just using that as an example of extraneous facts.

Have a really good day, Daryl. I enjoy your posts.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 23 2006, 02:31 PM

Posted by: Johann Aug 23 2006, 05:05 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 23 2006, 08:33 PM)

For instance, the overwhelming truth of this situation goes beyond whether we print the names of the private investigators who followed Arild Abrahamsen and Johann Thorvaldsson after they were expelled from the 3ABN Campmeeting.

Remember, since this campmeeting occurred on a weekend, these private investigators were most likely hired by Garwin McNeilus and Danny Shelton to work on the Sabbath. So, why not just fictionalize them?

However, we are in the process of collecting enough information to know what happened.

I can verify that what you are saying is no fiction, because Danny Shelton produced pictures taken by the one of the three PI who were following every step we took on the last Sabbath of May, 2004. Still on the Sabbath he phoned to let us know he had those pictures.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 23 2006, 05:24 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Aug 23 2006, 05:05 PM)

I can verify that what you are saying is no fiction, because Danny Shelton produced pictures taken by the one of the three PI who were following every step we took on the last Sabbath of May, 2004. Still on the Sabbath he phoned to let us know he had those pictures.

Because they were desperate, the Sabbath had to go out the window.

None of this Ten Commandment keeping for Danny and Garwin when there is critical work to be done?

Posted by: PrincessDrRe Aug 23 2006, 06:20 PM

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 10:04 AM)

Fiction shouldn't be mingled with truth, just as truth shouldn't be mixed with error.

Fiction mixed with truth is the work of the devil, and do we want to be associated with the devil's tactics?

QUOTE(Daryl Fawcett @ Aug 23 2006, 10:26 AM)

To quote part of a post by watchbird:

It's the last sentence in the above quote that concerns me, as this is stated as known fiction, which I am asking, why does it even need to be there?

Because some parts very well may be "fiction"...but that line - the one you quoted...very well is not per the content that has been exposed...

Now - could the part about sitting on the couch be fiction? Yeah.... but how much other "fiction" is even in the Sabbath sermon that quotes an circulated "email"?

Same difference....

Posted by: lurker Aug 23 2006, 08:06 PM

QUOTE(Johann @ Aug 23 2006, 06:05 PM)

I can verify that what you are saying is no fiction, because Danny Shelton produced pictures taken by the one of the three PI who were following every step we took on the last Sabbath of May, 2004. Still on the Sabbath he phoned to let us know he had those pictures.

This came to mind:

They could rest little upon the Sabbath. Though they would not step over a Gentile's threshold for fear of defilement, yet they held a council concerning the body of Christ. Death and the grave must hold Him whom they had crucified. "The chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day, lest His disciples come by night, and steal Him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first. Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can." Matt. 27:62-65. {DA 777.3}
778

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 24 2006, 05:08 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 23 2006, 06:24 PM)

Because they were desperate, the Sabbath had to go out the window.

None of this Ten Commandment keeping for Danny and Garwin when there is critical work to be done?

Rules don't apply to them, do they?

Posted by: princessdi Aug 24 2006, 06:47 PM

Naw, you know they get to make it up as they go along. That's why we have "spiritual adultery" as "biblical" grounds for Danny's divorce and remarriage.

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 24 2006, 04:08 PM)

Rules don't apply to them, do they?

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 24 2006, 07:55 PM

You said it!

Posted by: tall73 Aug 25 2006, 11:40 AM

The first thing I noticed (which makes sense since it was the first thing in it!) about "The Televangelist" is the tendency to poison the well.

Anyone who plays the Hitler card had better have millions of body bags to back it up.

QUOTE

Adolph Hitler turned the failed German economy around and provided millions of jobs. He built a well disciplined society out of the anarchy resulting from World War One and the fall of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. As their savior, Hitler had the full support of the German people, and much of the world until his war of conquest became global, and his true intention shone through. His actions, both good and bad, were taken with the best intentions. He firmly believed that a global Third Reich was the only salvation of the world, yet the world he was trying to save turned on him with a vengeance. In the end, he felt that he had done no wrong.

Pol Pot closed the borders of Cambodia and launched an internal bloodbath almost unequalled in history. Using the "loving father who is cleansing and protecting his children" psychology, he decimated the population of his country. He believed that he was saving the true Cambodia by getting rid of all foreign influence, and eliminating those people who showed any sign of being tainted. He did not consider himself a monster, he was a savior.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 25 2006, 12:04 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 11:40 AM)

The first thing I noticed (which makes sense since it was the first thing in it!) about "The Televangelist" is the tendency to poison the well.

Poisoning that well is no longer possible.

rofl

Posted by: tall73 Aug 25 2006, 12:39 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 25 2006, 01:04 PM)

Poisoning that well is no longer possible.

rofl

Show me the body bags of millions of people killed by 3ABN and I will agree. Whatever the facts show in regards to Danny it does not justify comparisons of this sort. Hence the sensationalism charge.

Posted by: Clay Aug 25 2006, 12:47 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 01:39 PM)

Show me the body bags of millions of people killed by 3ABN and I will agree. Whatever the facts show in regards to Danny it does not justify comparisons of this sort. Hence the sensationalism charge.

So that was not why... it was because of the fictionalized way the story was written I believe....

Posted by: tall73 Aug 25 2006, 12:51 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 25 2006, 01:47 PM)

no that was not why... it was because of the fictionalized way the story was written I believe....

associate the two.

If they are willing to make such leaps in their literal comparisons, what leaps are made in the fiction?

If parts of it are fiction, and they show a grudge right from the outset by poisoning the well, then that alone calls into question the whole thing.

And how fictional is it anyway?

The defense is that it is not the real story because of legal issues. But if they put out an even less real story and then attach real names to it, isn't that more of a legal problem?

Posted by: Clay Aug 25 2006, 12:56 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 12:51 PM)

I associate the two.

If they are willing to make such leaps in their literal comparisons, what leaps are made in the fiction?

And how fictional is it anyway?

The defense is that it is not the real story because of legal issues. But if they put out an even less real story and then attach real names to it, isn't that more of a legal problem?

Actually Tall there is enough factual info that you need not read that narrative at all..... and if after you read all of the other info you conclude that it is not true, then simply say that it's not true in your opinion..... my point is that the story about the televangelist comprises but a small fraction of this whole saga...

Posted by: tall73 Aug 25 2006, 02:02 PM

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 25 2006, 12:56 PM)

Actually Tall there is enough factual info that you need not read that narrative at all..... and if after you read all of the other info you conclude that it is not true, then simply say that it's not true in your opinion..... my point is that the story about the televangelist comprises but a small fraction of this whole saga...

certainly agree with that.

My question is not whether it is needed but whether it hurts the overall case.

Several have said we should direct people here to learn the truth. And I think the Illinois state document and some of the letters, etc. are important evidences in doing that. But I am less likely to send people here when there are also fictionalized works that have these kind of claims in them. Those that support 3ABN who are already inclined to think that Danny is right and these folks are just gossips are turned off by such accounts. It has a dampening effect on the whole argument.

Beyond that I still don't see how the fictionalized thing is helpful.

If you come on a message board and post a fictional story, then put names to it, and insist that is actually true, how does that make you any less liable then coming to a message board, putting out the actual facts, and attaching names?

Posted by: Clay Aug 25 2006, 02:30 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 03:02 PM)

I certainly agree with that.

My question is not whether it is needed but whether it hurts the overall case.

Several have said we should direct people here to learn the truth. And I think the Illinois state document and some of the letters, etc. are important evidences in doing that. But I am less likely to send people here when there are also fictionalized works that have these kind of claims in them. Those that support 3ABN who are already inclined to think that Danny is right and these folks are just gossips are turned off by such accounts. It has a dampening effect on the whole argument.

Beyond that I still don't see how the fictionalized thing is helpful.

If you come on a message board and post a fictional story, then put names to it, and insist that is actually true, how does that make you any less liable then coming to a message board, putting out the actual facts, and attaching names?

good point... as opposed to putting the disclaimer out "this story is true but the names were changed to protect the innocent...."

Of course if you were to send someone here for info you would ideally tell them what to look for and what to avoid would you not?

Posted by: watchbird Aug 25 2006, 03:13 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 02:02 PM)

I certainly agree with that.

My question is not whether it is needed but whether it hurts the overall case.

Several have said we should direct people here to learn the truth. And I think the Illinois state document and some of the letters, etc. are important evidences in doing that. But I am less likely to send people here when there are also fictionalized works that have these kind of claims in them. Those that support 3ABN who are already inclined to think that Danny is right and these folks are just gossips are turned off by such accounts. It has a dampening effect on the whole argument.

Beyond that I still don't see how the fictionalized thing is helpful.

If you come on a message board and post a fictional story, then put names to it, and insist that is actually true, how does that make you any less liable then coming to a message board, putting out the actual facts, and attaching names?

perceive that your problem with this may be in not understanding its background.

First of all, the author did not come on to this board and post a fictional story. The story was written in May of 2005. It was distributed privately, by email only, with instructions that it was not to be posted on any website. This, as was the line about it being "fiction", was done because of instruction by "legal counsel" that there were legal ramifications to "publishing" it on a web site that went beyond the "safe zone" for distribution. The paper was, as I have said before, written for the purpose of letting people know, in as discreet and as safe a way as possible that there were many problems at 3ABN. It was sent mostly to church leaders and other concerned individuals. It was NOT put on any forum until comparatively recently, when someone posted it in its entirety to BSDA. If you go to the thread where this was done as the first post, you can see the discussion that followed as to whether this was a violation of copyright and whether the author approved. After giving a period of time for those who knew the author to contact him and get his comments, it was concluded that the author was in harmony with it being posted here. Recent posts by the author sent through Sister have confirmed that he not only approves of this being here, but has sent other stories which are more focused than his for her to post for him.

QUOTE(Clay @ Aug 25 2006, 02:30 PM)

good point... as opposed to putting the disclaimer out "this story is true but the names were changed to protect the innocent..."

Of course if you were to send someone here for info you would ideally tell them what to look for and what to avoid would you not?

precisely. And this is what we have done ... now that it is here, surrounded as it is by others who are telling parts of the story ... we point out that this gives a broad overview, and people who read the various views can piece them together like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, so that each account gives a little more detail to the whole picture than any one of them would alone.

It has been necessary to tell things in these little bits and pieces for the past two years. Soon, very soon, the story will be told in its fullness. We who have come here and posted the "jots and tittles" have done so hoping that by doing it in this way the shock that will hit some people will be somewhat mitigated by them having already learned things a little bit at a time.

Posted by: Johann Aug 25 2006, 03:25 PM

QUOTE(watchbird @ Aug 25 2006, 11:13 PM)

I perceive that your problem with this may be in not understanding its background.

First of all, the author did not come on to this board and post a fictional story. The story was written in May of 2005. It was distributed privately, by email only, with instructions that it was not to be posted on any website. This, as was the line about it being "fiction", was done because of instruction by "legal counsel" that there were legal ramifications to "publishing" it on a web site that went beyond the "safe zone" for distribution. The paper was, as I have said before, written for the purpose of letting people know, in as discreet and as safe a way as possible that there were many problems at 3ABN. It was sent mostly to church leaders and other concerned individuals. It was NOT put on any forum until comparatively recently, when someone posted it in its entirety to BSDA. If you go to the thread where this was done as the first post, you can see the discussion that followed as to whether this was a violation of copyright and whether the author approved. After giving a period of time for those who knew the author to contact him and get his comments, it was concluded that the author was in harmony with it being posted here. Recent posts by the author sent through Sister have confirmed that he not only approves of this being here, but has sent other stories which are more focused than this for her to post for him.

Precisely. And this is what we have done ... now that it is here, surrounded as it is by others who are telling parts of the story ... we point out that this gives a broad overview, and people who read the various views can piece them together like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle, so that each account gives a little more detail to the whole picture than any one of them would alone.

It has been necessary to tell things in these little bits and pieces for the past two years. Soon, very soon, the story will be told in its fullness. We who have come here and posted the "jots and tittles" have done so hoping that by doing it in this way the shock that will hit some people will be somewhat mitigated by them having already learned things a little bit at a time.

I agree fully with what watchbird is saying here. To this I could merely add that one of the reasons the author wrote this as a fiction was to protect as many of the innocent as possible. It is difficult to tell a story like this without also giving some information on other people's activities, and it may be difficult to tell the story without seemingly accusing them of being "guilty" too.

We could discuss till doomsday what is the proper way of doing this, but let's rather get on with the acts without involving more people than necessary.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 25 2006, 03:31 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 03:02 PM) □

If you come on a message board and post a fictional story, then put names to it, and insist that is actually true....

In the very latest response, Dr. Walt Thompson insists they had "defensible" evidence. In his last statement, he didn't say his evidence was true, he said it was "defensible." That's different than true." Thompson is a wordsmith. Some will speed-read over everything, impatiently, thinking one word means the same as another and miss the shading of those words.

Please also note that 3ABN has never presented this evidence. Have you noticed that? And it certainly has never been presented to any attorney representing the targeted people for a response. Evidence that is never presented in a proper way counts as genuine "fiction" in my book.

So, if you "really insist that it is actually true" you must start by contacting Dr. Thompson and insisting that he present this evidence to you. These are the people, after all, who made the original charges. So, you need to go to the source of the charges, and ask for the original evidence. In any problem, you always go to the source. That's just common sense.

repeat, that "evidence" is controlled by Dr. Walt Thompson, Chairman of the Board of 3ABN.

But Thompson is not going to share anything. Therefore, his "evidence" counts as being the fiction. It might as well be evidence of Martians on the moon, if nobody's ever going to see it.

My point is that we have to realize that fictional writing may be taking place on the other side of the table, from the actual source of the controversy, itself, but it just isn't being recognized as such because some of the unwavering, diehard, faithful followers of 3ABN are giving 3ABN the "benefit of the doubt" which is highly unfair and irrational.

The biggest problem is 3ABN claims to have shown their secret evidence to people in "leadership." So, do we ask these people in "leadership" what they were shown? Do we demand that Don Schneider and/or anyone else who was presented with this data come clean and explain it to the rest of us?

Were any of the targeted parties, or their attorneys, present to see this presentation? I think not.

Therefore, the burden is squarely on the shoulders of the people who made the charges in the first place. It's their duty to come forward with their evidence.

If Hitler bombs London, do we criticize the British for the various ways they try to put out the fires? Of course, not. We cannot hold the people driving the fire trucks to a higher standard of expertise than the people who started the massive fires in the first place.

The people who started the current fires are all at 3ABN.

Posted by: Ralph Aug 25 2006, 04:23 PM

QUOTE(Panama_Pete @ Aug 25 2006, 02:31 PM) □

In the very latest response, Dr. Walt Thompson insists they had "defensible" evidence. In his last statement, he didn't say his evidence was true, he said it was "defensible." That's different than "true." Thompson is a wordsmith. Some will speed-read over everything, impatiently, thinking one word means the same as another and miss the shading of those words.

Thanks Pete for bringing our attention to the difference of meaning between two words. Your whole post was great!

Posted by: Johann Aug 25 2006, 04:29 PM

QUOTE(Ralph @ Aug 26 2006, 12:23 AM) □

Thanks Pete for bringing our attention to the difference of meaning between two words. Your whole post was great!

All say AMEN!

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 27 2006, 01:36 PM

QUOTE(tall73 @ Aug 25 2006, 01:39 PM) □

Show me the body bags of millions of people killed by 3ABN and I will agree. Whatever the facts show in regards to Danny it does not justify comparisons of this sort. Hence the sensationalism charge.

The body bags you ask for are here, in part, on this forum. You have but to look.

Sometimes it is the death of the spirit, not of the flesh that 3ABN accomplishes.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 27 2006, 07:55 PM

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 27 2006, 12:36 PM) □

The body bags you ask for are here, in part, on this forum. You have but to look.

Sometimes it is the death of the spirit, not of the flesh that 3ABN accomplishes.

Precisely. But as long as one is breathing, there is still hope of a spiritual revival, in more then one way. □

Posted by: princessdi Aug 27 2006, 08:49 PM

HOTY, I have been saying your wife named you aptly. Get out of my mouth!!!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 27 2006, 12:36 PM) □

The body bags you ask for are here, in part, on this forum. You have but to look.

Sometimes it is the death of the spirit, not of the flesh that 3ABN accomplishes.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 28 2006, 09:32 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 27 2006, 08:55 PM) □

Precisely. But as long as one is breathing, there is still hope of a spiritual revival, in more then one way. □

AMEN!

QUOTE(princessdi @ Aug 27 2006, 09:49 PM)

HOTY, I have been saying your wife named you aptly. Get out of my mouth!!!

You are too much!

Next time I'll let you post first!

Posted by: Green Cochoa Aug 29 2006, 06:16 PM

Well, speaking of bodybags, what about India? How many people are dying there every day? (It's one of the most populous countries on earth.) And yet, how many of them is 3ABN reaching? As can be read on the Wikipedia (<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/3ABN>), currently none, since they were banned from the country. The next question is, Why? Is God doing damage control? Consider that 3ABN is representing God to millions, and God has an interest in preserving His name. Eternal death is much more to be feared than our mere departure from this life. It's too bad about those who never had a chance to hear the good news. May we never be responsible for such through our neglect.

Posted by: sonshineonme Aug 29 2006, 06:29 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Aug 29 2006, 05:16 PM)

Well, speaking of bodybags, what about India? How many people are dying there every day? (It's one of the most populous countries on earth.) And yet, how many of them is 3ABN reaching? As can be read on the Wikipedia (<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/3ABN>), currently none, since they were banned from the country. The next question is, Why? Is God doing damage control? Consider that 3ABN is representing God to millions, and God has an interest in preserving His name. Eternal death is much more to be feared than our mere departure from this life. It's too bad about those who never had a chance to hear the good news. May we never be responsible for such through our neglect.

It is God's responsibility to reach everyone. We have an opportunity to be a vessel, a tool, a vehicle, to be part of that. When a vessel, a tool, or a vehicle becomes of no more use, there are other of the same. God is always in control. He doesn't NEED man/woman to do it for him. If we are given the opportunity and we blow it, I know MY GOD has many more mysterious ways to get it done still. God may do damage control, but I think He probably does many things at once every minute of time. I have faith in God to always do what is needed and when, and that to me makes me remember that HE IS IN CONTROL, and we need not worry about all the "whys". When we start thinking and become obsessed with the idea that we have to take care of everything, we can get off track very easily. And if we blow it? Is He not big enough to handle that?

Remember, in heaven there will be people who never heard the name of Jesus. So, obviously, they will be there still.

Posted by: husbandoftheyear Aug 29 2006, 07:19 PM

QUOTE(sonshineonme @ Aug 29 2006, 07:29 PM) □

It is God's responsibility to reach everyone. We have an opportunity to be a vessel, a tool, a vehicle, to be part of that. When a vessel, a tool, or a vehicle becomes of no more use, there are other of the same. God is always in control. He doesn't NEED man/woman to do it for him. If we are given the opportunity and we blow it, I know MY GOD has many more mysterious ways to get it done still. God may do damage control, but I think He probably does many things at once every minute of time. I have faith in God to always do what is needed and when, and that to me makes me remember that HE IS IN CONTROL, and we need not worry about all the "whys". When we start thinking and become obsessed with the idea that we have to take care of everything, we can get off track very easily. And if we blow it? Is He not big enough to handle that?

Remember, in heaven there will be people who never heard the name of Jesus. So, obviously, they will be there still.

You said it!

(In fact if you insert Dan into the places that you put "we" you'd be on to something. It would read something like this. "If Dan started thinking and becoming obsessed with the idea that Dan took care of everything, Dan would get off track very easily. And if Dan blows it? God is big enough to handle it.)

Let the match begin.

Posted by: princessdi Aug 29 2006, 07:21 PM

See!

QUOTE(husbandoftheyear @ Aug 29 2006, 05:19 PM) □

You said it!

(In fact if you insert Dan into the places that you put "we" you'd be on to something. It would read something like this. "If Dan started thinking and becoming obsessed with the idea that Dan took care of everything, Dan would get off track very easily. And if Dan blows it? God is big enough to handle it.)

Let the match begin.

Posted by: Panama_Pete Aug 29 2006, 07:35 PM

QUOTE(Green Cochoa @ Aug 29 2006, 06:16 PM) □

Well, speaking of bodybags, what about India? How many people are dying there every day? (It's one of the most populous countries on earth.) And yet, how many of them is 3ABN reaching? As can be read on the Wikipedia (<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/3ABN>), currently none, since they were banned from the country. The next question is, Why? Is God doing damage control? Consider that 3ABN is representing God to millions, and God has an interest in preserving His name. Eternal death is much more to be feared than our mere departure from this life. It's too bad about those who never had a chance to hear the good news. May we never be responsible for such through our neglect.

Most of the Adventist media - Hope Channel - 3ABN - Loma Linda - are streamed on the Internet.

And be sure to stop by the brand new <http://www.wocg.net/> Web site! Listen to the station online.
<http://www.wocg.net/>

Powered by Invision Power Board (<http://www.invisionboard.com>)
© Invision Power Services (<http://www.invisionpower.com>)