BlackSDA _ 3ABN _ 3abn Political Influence?

Posted by: claborn Aug 23 2007, 08:55 AM

Found this while browsing for those who might be interested.... I found it interesting because it speaks to not the ministry per se but how those in power at the church at large..... with humans, some corrupts....

Nomination Process of NAD President - "Less Than Clean" - What was whispered

It appears that some individuals tried to exercise influence in the programs at the General Conference Session in 2006.

Seven different sources (all nominal committee members) told AT's source that Jan Paulsen told the NAD nominal committee members when they were in caucus that they nominated Chuck Sandefur as president, a prominent member of The Adventist Laymen's Services and Industries. Paulsen would oppose that nomination and present incriminating information regarding a member of the Adventist church who worked with Catholic hospitals.

According to AT's source, three nominal committee members in fact also implied "problems" of a similar nature as a protest. This was a very strong feeling committee members feel that Paulsen had no choice but to nominate Schneider seemed to recommend, Don Schneider. In a mass, it appears that Paulsen were to give Schneider a majority in any case.

Four individuals confirmed with AT's source that Phil Follett, the general secretary of the GC who provided administrative oversight of the nominating committee, was re-elected because ASI and 3ABN leaders were able to make a deal.

Paulsen met with each of the VPs of the nominating committee to discuss their intentions. Both Follett and Kloosterhuis told Paulsen that they would be happy to step aside if he wished since they were both over 65 and wanted to retire. Paulsen claimed of any change as early as possible so they could prepare their families and themselves for the future.

Apparently, Follett and Kloosterhuis were not informed of any deal until after the time the nominating committee reported its findings. It was at that time that Paulsen was able to change on the part of the VPs. Paulsen was able to deal with that of the time frame when conversations took place with the NAD president who was re-elected.

Three sources told AT's source that Paulsen had been in contact with 3ABN over the past several years. The sources said that Paulsen was able to use the influence of 3ABN to get the NAD general conference to elect a president who was able to allow 3ABN to continue to use the NAD's resources.

According the AT's sources, 3ABN had been in contact with the NAD's general conference editorials and production decisions. Paulsen was able to use the influence of 3ABN in the NAD's general conference to get the NAD's general conference to elect a president who was able to allow 3ABN to continue to use the NAD's resources.
