Upon closer examination, I find a flaw with your poll. When I tried to check all of "those" who I believe fit the description of a "scrutator", I was dismayed to find parameters.

I have decided to select the one I feel is the most scrutatoriest one of the bunch.

This was the first poll that I have posted in BSDA. My intention was to allow you to check as many as you wished. I must not have gotten it right.

Sorry.

Gregory,

If I were to say that before I vote I need to know whether the pink panther option is The Pink Panther, or the PinkPanther at BSDA or PinkPanther007 from CF

As a confirmed logophile, thanks for the morning smile.

I just thought of more people that could be listed also. Fun you say? Where is Sister, Lurker, PB, and many more ... the list goes on!

The greatest want of the world is the want of men-- men who will not be bought or sold, men who in their inmost souls are true and honest, men who do not fear to call sin by its right name, nor heavens fall. (Ed 57.3)
But such a character is not the result of accident; it is not due to special favors or endowments of Providence. A noble character is the result of self-discipline, of the subjection of the lower to the higher.

Fran:

I thought of some of those also. But, as I understood the software, I could only list ten choices. So, I cut it off there.

For all of the logophiles you might want to sign up for a free new word a day at:

<http://wordsmith.org/awad/sub.html>

By the way, my favorite is: "Irish Bull."

Example: If you don't attend my funeral, I will not attend your funeral.

Although I'm somewhat of a Luddite I was able to finally find a online dictionary that had Scrutater in it. Great word and it makes sense when you think of it.

Well, that's ok...can't vote more then once, but at least so far, the ones not voted for are mostly like not scrutators in the right sense of the word. [img alt="smiley face icon"]

I like it. Good word. Thanks.
